BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

United Auto Workers

DETROIT — The United Auto Workers union reached tentative agreement on a new contract with the Chrysler Corp., UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Monday night.

Woodcock said the settlement covers those workers in Chrysler's parts and manufacturing locals, but does not include white collar workers. He said no details will be released before 8:30 a.m. today.

IBM monopoly

TULSA, Okla. — International Business Machines Corp., the giant of the world-wide computer industry, was found guilty of monopolistic practices Monday.

IBM was ordered to pay the Telex Corp., a Tulsa-based competitor, $325.5 million in damages while Telex was directed to pay IBM $21.9 million for theft of trade secrets. The federal judge ordered IBM to begin steps to end "predatory" acts in the computer accessory market.

An IBM spokesman at company headquarters in Armonk, N.Y., said IBM would appeal.

10 per cent lending rates

NEW YORK — Several more major banks pushed their prime lending rates up to 10 per cent Monday in spite of a demand from Washington late last week for two banks to justify the increase.

The increase, the 16th quarter-point hike this year in the banks' minimum lending fee for large corporations, was begun late last week by San Francisco's Wells Fargo and New York's First National City, two of the nation's biggest banks. Among those joining the increase were First National Bank and Harris Trust, both of Chicago, and New York's Bankers Trust.

Post-coup developments

SANTIAGO, Chile — Two daily newspapers quoting high military sources reported Monday that the toppled government of the late President Salvador Allende had prepared a plan to assassinate all top military officers and opposition political leaders.

UN to open today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The U.N. General Assembly opens its 28th annual meeting today under increasing criticism that it is becoming a debating society habitually bypassed by the major powers on crucial decisions.

The proposed entry of the two Germanys and sharp East-West conflict over the future of Korea promise to highlight the three-month session.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on Monday dismissed wholesale criticism of the United Nations as "unjust and unfair."

Agnew investigations

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury investigating allegations of political graft in Maryland may send its findings on Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to the House of Representatives, it was learned Monday.

Such action could be a prelude to impeachment proceedings against Agnew if the evidence warranted it. The procedure would permit the Justice Department to avoid facing the controversial constitutional question of whether a vice president can be indicted before he is impeached.

Kissinger confirmation hearings

WASHINGTON — The Senate's Democratic and Republican leaders said the role of Henry A. Kissinger in national security wiretapping will not bar his confirmation to be secretary of state.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said he expected the Senate to vote confirmation of Kissinger within the week.

Formation of Student Foundation to help Tech in procuring funds

By ROGER FEHR
UD Reporter

Tech students will soon be able to play a greater role than ever in the academic and physical development of Tech through the establishment of a Tech Student Foundation, according to Dr. Clyde Kelsey, director of development.

The proposed student foundation will work as the "student arm" of the Tech Foundation in procuring funds for Tech from private sources, Kelsey said.

The idea for the student foundation, he said, was first discussed last spring and was approved by the board of directors of the Tech Foundation.

A group of students has been working with the Office of Development to put the idea into action since mid-summer, Student Association President Rickey Alexander said.

The first step to foundation establishment will be creation of a 10-person task force which will research similar foundations operating successfully at other universities and write by-laws for the body, Alexander said.

A steering committee will then be selected to serve as the "student board of directors."

As the body gains organizational strength and projects are planned, the efforts of more and more students will be enlisted, Alexander said.

Kelsey said the foundation will raise money through any feasible means, utilizing the initiative and guidance of the students.

Similar organizations are in operation at the University of Indiana, University of Kansas and Baylor University.

An Indiana public information release states the foundation there involves 650 to 700 students.

The foundation's biggest annual project, similar to Tech's Little 500 bike race, has a budget of over $100,000 and returns 15 to 20 percent in profits, the release states.

Kelsey said the student foundation will not function separately from the Tech Foundation, but will work "in tandem" with it.

Alexander said he feels the student organization has "great promise."

The students now involved with the planning process will be seeking "the best Tech has to offer" in the way of task force and steering committee members, he said.

He said students eventually involved with the foundation will hold "a lot of power and responsibility for tapping all available financial resources and improving the university."

Kelsey said private philanthropy has become an integral part of the financial support of both private and public institutions in the United States.

Tech's funding from private sources is currently a "small" percentage of its overall budget, but Kelsey said he hopes that percentage will improve through continued efforts of the Tech Foundation and the addition of the student foundation.

In Kelsey's words, private donations provide the "extra margin of funds which allow Tech not simply to operate, but to further develop as an institution of excellence."

Alexander said he expects the recruiting process for the task force to begin within two weeks.

State law to change marijuana felonies

About 75 persons charged between May and August with possession of less than four ounces of marijuana can consider themselves lucky.

Until Aug. 27, possession of any amount of marijuana was considered a felony in Texas. But a law passed by the legislature in May reclassified possession of less than four ounces as a misdemeanor.

Although the law did not go into effect until Aug. 27, the Lubbock criminal district attorney's office is taking advantage of a provision in the law which allows those charged after the bill passed but before it became law to be sentenced under the new law.

Criminal Dist. Atty. Alton Griffin said he made the decision to refile the cases partly to ease the case load building in the district courts. The misdemeanor cases will be tried in the county courts-at-law, said Griffin.

Griffin said the refile probably would not delay the cases coming to court and that they would reach trial approximately the same time as if they had not been refiled.

Possession of less than two ounces of marijuana is considered a class B misdemeanor punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 and six months in the county jail.

Possession of two to four ounces can result in a $2,000 fine and one year in the county jail.

When possession was a felony, two years in the state penitentiary was the punishment. Conviction for possession of more than four ounces is still a felony punishable by 2-10 years in the state penitentiary.

Hunt asks to change guilty plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — E. Howard Hunt Monday sought to withdraw his guilty plea in the Watergate case. In another court move involving last year's presidential campaign, Donald H. Segretti agreed to plead guilty to violating federal election laws.

Segretti, an underground political operative for President Nixon's reelection campaign, also agreed to cooperate with federal prosecutors investigating sabotage in 1972.

Segretti received money from President Nixon's former personal attorney for what allegedly was a campaign of political sabotage in Florida.

In a brief appearance before a federal magistrate, Segretti agreed to have the case transferred from Florida to Washington, D.C.

A federal grand jury in Tampa handed down the four-count indictment Aug. 24 but it remained sealed until Monday.

The magistrate scheduled a hearing for Oct. 1 when Segretti is expected to enter his plea to the new indictment.

Segretti, 32 years old Monday, was released on his personal recognizance.

The new indictment charged Segretti with conspiracy and with illegally publishing unauthorized political statements.

Hunt, one of five men who pleaded guilty in the Watergate trial early this year, asked a federal judge to withdraw his plea and dismiss the charges against him.

In a motion filed in U.S. District Court, Hunt said evidence that would have enabled him to defend himself against the conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping charges had been withheld from him.

Hunt's motion said he had two defenses available to the indictment.

"The first is that his acts were lawful because they were performed pursuant to the President's power to protect the national security," the motion said. "The second, assuming that the acts were not lawful, is that he was justified in believing they were lawful." Hunt said in the motion that he was led by Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy to believe that a counter-intelligence program known as Gemstone was approved by then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon campaign aide Jeb Stuart Magruder and then-White House counsel John W. Dean III.

It said that Hunt planned the two entries into Watergate and photographing information in the party's files because of a report by Liddy that foreign governments were supplying funds to the Democrats' campaign.

Two days after the break-in, Hunt's safe in the White House was opened. The petition said that Dean failed to turn two notebooks over to the FBI and that their absence remains unexplained.

There is evidence "that the investigation and prosecution of this case were contaminated by misconduct by many responsible White House and law enforcement officials," the motion said.

Last Friday, four other men who had pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the June 17, 1972, burglary of Democratic National Committee headquarters asked the court to withdraw their pleas.

The four men who last week asked to withdraw their guilty pleas were Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez.

They said their guilty pleas had been "premised on false assumptions which had been fostered on them by others, including co-defendant E. Howard Hunt Jr., and ultimately, high officials in the executive branch of the government."

Students become sailors

Tech students climbed aboard and became sailors last weekend as the Movement for the Advancement of Sailing at Tech (MAST) took its first trip to Buffalo Lake.

Organized last spring by members of a sailing class offered by the free university program, MAST aims at making people aware of sailing opportunities in Lubbock. Club members plan to offer sailing trips every weekend throughout the year at Buffalo Lake, and possibly to White River. In case of bad weather, classroom instruction will be offered for those wishing to improve their boating skills.

MAST is open to both beginners and experienced Tech students. Cost of membership is $5 a year. George Gray, MAST President, hopes that with an eager membership this year the organization will be able to buy its own boats. The club is presently using boats provided by Dr. Charles Richard Quade, a physics professor and one of the MAST organizers, and several members. Gray also hopes members will be able to hold boat races and other sailing events in the future.

The next MAST meeting will be held at 7 o'clock tonight in room 60 of the Science Building.

WASHINGTON — The four Cubans who were caught inside the Watergate in the crime that has rocked the nation have written some poignant letters from prison.

Although they were recruited to do the dirty work and then were abandoned behind bars, their letters aren't bitter.

"All things considered," wrote Bernard Barker to his daughter, Maria Elena Moffett, "we are all pretty damn lucky people."

Another Watergate prisoner, Frank Sturgis, wrote to his wife Janet:

"I've been thinking of you constantly and dream of you always. Keep you chin up baby. Things will somehow work out."

THE LETTERS WERE SHOWN to us by friends of the four. Although Barker and Sturgis were reluctant to let the world read their personal sentiments, they gave us permission to quote from the letters.

Barker, for instance, called upon Watergate ringleader E. Howard Hunt inside the White House and came away with the impression that the Watergate breakin and the earlier Los Angeles burglary of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office were national security assignments.

Afterwards, the Cubans wound up in prison while those who plotted the Watergate crimes remained free.

Yet on Father's Day, Barker wrote to his daughter and her husband: "If you are lucky and wise, you will be of those selected few that will know real happiness in life. Your mother and I have it, and you two have it now and should have it more than us because you don't argue the way we do."

AGAIN ON AUGUST, he wrote to his daughter in Spanish:

"I have always been proud of you, but now I walk around with a special smile on my lips since now it also includes your husband..."

He concluded the letter with this rueful apology: "Well, my love, receive all the love from your problematic progenitor, a relic of a problematic generation that has been unable to give more than what it has and that can only distribute its problems."

Sturgis wrote hopefully to his wife about a visit from Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., one of the Senate Watergate committee. "I think he wants to help us somehow. I hope so! He may come back to see us again," wrote Sturgis.

He explained to the senator, Sturgis told his wife, how "the CIA trains men to infiltrate industries past the security guard and if caught, say nothing because someone will make contact and bail us out and if anything happens, it is common knowledge that your family will be taken care of."

"NO ONE SPOKE TO US about that, but our chief was Howard (Hunt) — ex-CIA official and White House aide. We thought it was gov. operation and it may still be one."

The senator "feels that the three of us took orders from Macho (Barker) and thinks Macho is holding back," related Sturgis. "We three do not know if that is so but the Sen. has an idea that he may know something on that order."

Hunt was taken away to testify on August 16. Reported Sturgis to his wife: "Howard has not returned as yet. Everybody thinks he is talking his butt off. If he is, he can only help us and not hurt us."

But Sturgis wound up cheerfully: "We still may win this yet. Keep the faith, honey! I love you always."

PERHAPS THE MOST FASCINATING reference was to columnist William Buckley.

"I don't know if I told you before," Sturgis wrote to his wife, "but William F. Buckley used to work for CIA and I don't know if he still does. When he found out that Howard (Hunt) was going to work in the White House, he told Howard it was good that he could be so close to the President but Howard told him that he was there to take orders and not to influence anyone."

"That was a good answer! I'm not clear whether this is what Howard or Buckley really said!"

Reached for comment, Buckley frankly admitted he was a "deep cover agent" for the CIA from July 1951 to March 1952, but said he had not worked for them since. He declined to say what his CIA role was.

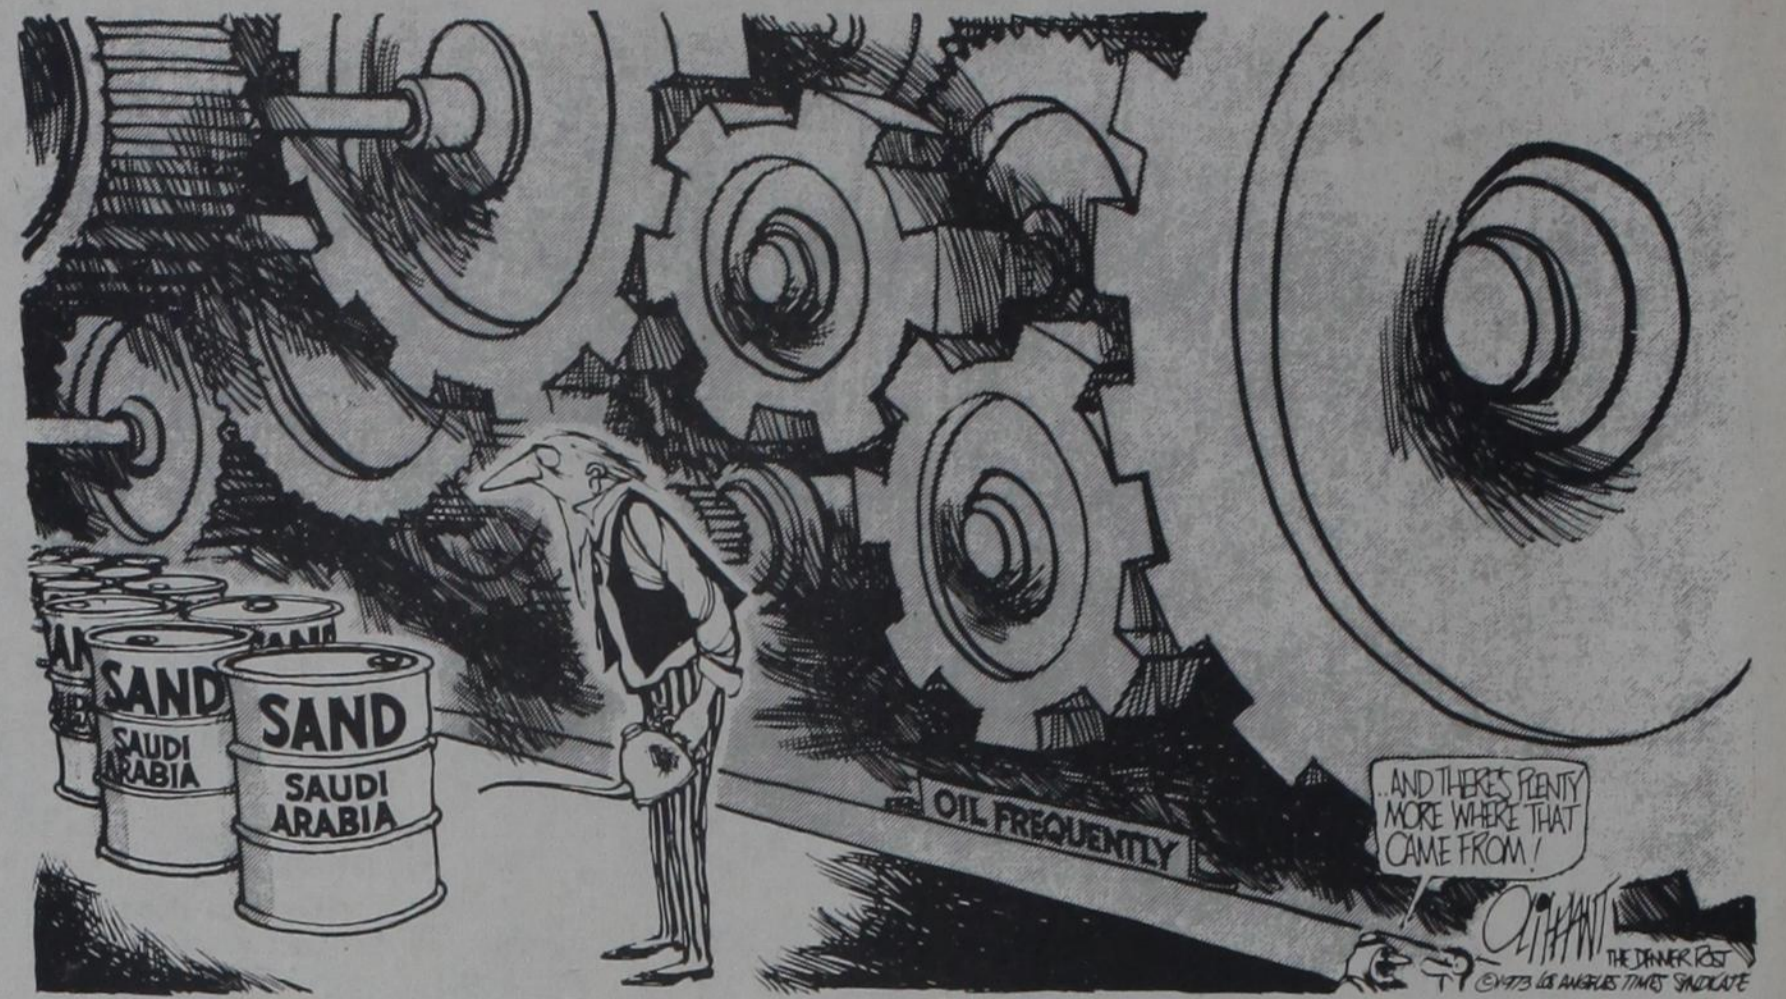

When Charles King Mallory, a young New Orleans lawyer, was named as the Interior Department's power resources chief, Interior's publicity mill ground out a press release praising him for his dedication to "public utility ..., securities regulation (and) antitrust" activities.

The implication was clear that the Administration at last had found a consumer advocate to ride herd on the energy moguls.

IN FACT, THE NEW DEPUTY assistant secretary is not a consumer lawyer at all but one who represented Louisiana Power and Light which is charged in consumer suits with antitrust violations and conspiring against consumers.

Although several of Mallory's other clients were also lined up against the consumers, Mallory assured us that his publicity men "had no intention to mislead" in their hand-out on him.

LETTERS to the editor

Disagrees with Senate editorial

To the editor:

Your editorial pontifications of September 6, 1973, directed toward the Student Association Senate can only be seen as a Freudian, though somewhat injudicious, attempt to illustrate that the editor has no intellectual clothes. How else can one explain such expressions of totally insipid content.

The Sixth Session of the Senate saw action taken which reorganized the Student Services Fee, called for a more equitable apportionment of that fee by hours (an idea enacted by the last Texas Legislature), fought the proposed raise of tuition (and won), formulated the football seating system presented to the Board of Regents, caused the Tech administration to back down over the policy of alternate student appointments, and investigated the apartment situation in Lubbock. For about one minute during one meeting, three committee chairmen offered an admittedly humorous resolution called the Dempsey Dumpster Caper. But Mr. Warden tell us that too much time was spent on such resolutions, and Mr. Warden is an honorable man.

The Seventh Session of the Senate saw action which created the apartment commission, formulated the proposed Student Association legal program, launched the first investigation of the Health Center, began a massive student voter registration, and finally got the administration to implement the athletic seating program. A proposal to fill Senate vacancies by special election was submitted which caused much controversy among the Senators. In an attempt to pass the measure, a dummy bill to make Charcoal Cody an honorary member of the Senate and fill Senate vacancies by special election was introduced. But Mr. Warden says that the Senate was only interested in making mascots into Senators as Caligula of old, and Mr. Warden is an honorable man.

The years have seen the Senate place too much importance and emphasis on organizational appropriations. This is a charge that cannot be honestly denied. Such grants have been made to various agricultural teams, the soccer team, SOBU, and others too numerous to mention. During the Seventh Session, a bill was pushed through the Senate which appropriated money for a ROTC Drill Meet. The primary sponsor of that bill was a young Senator named Mike Warden. Yet Mr. Warden tells us that too much time is spent doling out money to "worthy" organizations, and Mr. Warden is an honorable man.

Alas, Mr. Warden, I fear that your experience as Senate reporter, Senator, and president of GROUP II has been all for naught. You seem to fit William Pitt's pitiable aside to Walpole: you are ignorant in spite of your experience.

All in all, the editorials of this caliber seem to confirm the observation of Thomas Jefferson. "The man who never looks into a newspaper is better informed than he who reads them, inasmuch as he who knows nothing is nearer the truth than he whose mind is filled with falsehoods and errors." But then maybe a free pizza coupon can be considered a redeeming social value.

Russian rights group resurfaces

MOSCOW (AP) — Sharply reduced in numbers by a massive police crackdown, a human rights action group resurfaced Sunday and vowed to continue fighting for freedom of expression in Russia.

Its members rebuked dissenters Pyotr Yakir and Viktor Krasin, founding members of the group, for turning state's evidence at their recent subversion trial.

But the condemnation was softened with a protest "against such methods of coercion which break a man's personality and force him to slander his own actions and those of his comrades."

In a statement made available to Western correspondents, the Action Group for the Defense of Human Rights in the U.S.S.R. challenged the testimony of Yakir and Krasin, who denied that the police sometimes confine political dissenters in special psychiatric prisons. "The confessions of Yakir and Krasin unfortunately cannot abolish the monstrous reality," the statement said.

Yakir, an historian, and Krasin, an economist, were tried last month for anti-Soviet propaganda. They "confessed" and "recanted" and were given three-year sentences plus a three-year term of exile. Yakir spent 14 months in pre-trial confinement, Krasin 11 months.

"We state that Yakir and Krasin made lying statements during the investigation, in court and at the press conference after the trial," the action group said. "It is a tragedy that their lies were related to the fate and reputation of all political prisoners in labor camps, prisons and psychiatric asylums in the U.S.S.R."

At their trial, Yakir and Krasin said their earlier protests against human rights violations in the Soviet Union were fabricated on orders from a foreign emigre organization. Sunday's statement was signed by five people, all that remained from the original 15 members who formed the action group in May 1969. They were Tatyana Velikanova, a mathematician, Sergei Kovalyov, a biologist, Anatoly Levitin-Krasnov, a religious writer, Grigory Podyapolsky, a scientist and member of Human Rights Committee, and Tatyana Khodorovich, a linguist.

The other 10 original members, including Yakir and Krasin, have been reported arrested or imprisoned or under-ground.

The statement defended the legality of the group's activity and said that in the future "the action group hopes to undertake individual and collective efforts directed at widening commonly recognized freedoms, such as freedom to express and distribute opinions.

Judo expert very cautious woman

THAR SHE BLOWS!—Scott Heitman used the famous West Texas wind to help him fix his parachute last weekend in an area behind Bledsoe Hall. Similar chutes are being used by some students to decorate bare walls in dorm rooms.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Kanokogy has 18 years of experience in the field of martial arts, but she's still a very cautious woman.

Although she says she's not paranoid, Rusty has techniques for detecting a possible attacker. As a matter of fact, she says they might be funny if it weren't for the truth behind them.

"I happen to know what life is in New York, in Brooklyn, or even some out-of-town places," she added.

"As much confidence as I have in my judo, I'm careful when I walk into a public restroom. I check for normal ladies' legs in the place, and if there's an empty stall, I make certain it is empty. I don't want somebody to come in and stick a gun in my neck while I've got my pants down," she said.

Although Rusty doesn't consider herself of the general stature that would attract a mugger—she is 5 feet 9 and "as big as the average guy in looks"—she says it is still inexcusable for women to walk around oblivious to their surroundings.

She says a woman who has had judo training would not find herself in a compromising position without putting up a fight. She explains that judo teaches that the mind cannot effectively be on any two given things at one time.

Judo, Rusty adds, is a reactionary sport.

Now as instructor with the Jerome Mackey School, Rusty holds a fourth degree black belt out of a possible nine degrees. She is considered the highest ranking woman in judo in the nation, and first became interested when a friend taught a class at a YMCA.

Rusty claims that the few times she has ever had to defend herself, she was disappointed that it all happened so quickly.

"One time a guy came behind me on the stairs in a subway station in Coney Island. He grabbed my handbag - and I always keep a tight grip on that. Anyway, he grabbed it, I held on, turned, flipped him over my hip and he fell down the stairs. I ran into a train," she added.

Judo is strictly a sport for Rusty, but she says most of the women who come for training come to learn for self-defense. She says many Americans do not realize that there is a philosophy behind judo. After a few aggressive attempts on their part and a few skilled put-downs by an instructor, they soon learn the courtesies of the sport.

"I've had women come in, honestly, and say to me, 'How long will it take me to kill?' I say, 'Five minutes: go buy yourself a gun.' You know, if that's what they want, why bother going through this whole thing," she asked.

Women and young people are the ones Rusty finds primarily concerned with this area of training. She says men are more interested in the sports aspect. The popularity of television shows and movies featuring the martial arts has generated much interest in lessons, she said.

For herself, there are other realms in judo to explore. She has come in first in her weight division in every competition she entered. Now that Japan has recognized women in judo, she says she would like to see judo in the Olympics for women.

"I'd love to be the U.S. coach," she said. "To be honest, I'd love to compete, but I have a professional status. But if I thought you could get rid of that status by being an amateur for five years, I'd not get paid for five years just to be an amateur."

Committee to recycle UD's

Green and black barrels bearing the message "Please put UD in these cans" have begun to dot Tech's campus. The discarded newspapers will be collected once a week and recycled at West Texas Paper Company.

The barrels are the latest ecological effort of the Ideas and Issues Committee of the University Center. Chairman Terry Adams said the committee will receive 30 cents per 100 pounds of newspaper, and the money will be used to expand the project by purchasing more barrels.

Adams said only newspapers should be placed in the barrels. "We would appreciate the students' cooperation in this," he added.

Vehicles used to transport the newspapers are the same vehicles used by the UD's cir-ulation department. There are now 11 barrels on campus at the following buildings: Social Science, Administration, Tech Bookstore, Home Economics, Biology, English, Business Administration, Foreign Language and Math, and University Center.

Any student who wants to help with the morning collections should call Terry Adams at 742-4151 and ask for the Programs Office.

US first cholera case 'a fluke'

PORT LAVACA, Tex. (AP) — The nation's first case of cholera in 50 years was described here Monday as a "fluke" by health authorities who said the patient's unique medical history made him unusually susceptible to the disease.

"We very confidently do not expect another case of cholera," said Clayton Toalson, sanitarian and health administrator for Port Lavaca and Calhoun County where the case was diagnosed the weekend of Aug. 25.

"If that old boy had a normal stomach this more than likely never would have been a case," Toalson said.

"This probably explains why he got it and no one else did," said Dr. Jack Weissman, epidemiologist with the Center for Disease Control at Atlanta, Ga., in a telephone interview. Toalson and Weissman said the 51-year-old patient, whom they would not name, had a stomach operation in recent years which impaired his ability to resist cholera organisms.

Both men shared the conclusion that cholera germs must be present in large doses in a normal stomach with normal acidity in order to contract the disease.

They said only a minimal ingestion of cholera germs would have been necessary for the Port Lavaca man to contract the disease.

The man is now fully recovered and may return to his job as a handyman as early as next week, local sources said.

"The man had a very rapid recovery. The recovery was miraculous. Within hours he began to respond," Toalson said.

The patient entered Champ Traylor Hospital here the weekend of Aug. 25, displaying symptoms of cholera, diarrhea and loss of body fluids.

Doctors took him off the critical list within 12 hours of treatment.

Health officials credited a young doctor here from Corpus Christi on emergency weekend duty and a determined lab technician with helping diagnose the disease.

Before the diagnosis was fully established, the patient was treated for dehydration, which can be caused by a number of intestinal diseases and which also can be fatal.

Weissman described the case as "almost encouraging, since we have long believed that cholera would be introduced in this country from time to time." He said that researchers have believed that "even if cholera were introduced into the United States, it would not propagate and we wouldn't have the kind of situation now in Italy."

He said the recent case here demonstrated the capacity of local health authorities to quickly recognize a disease they have known only from textbooks.

"Everyone more or less got on the stick. In a period of a very short time we were able to assure ourselves and the public there was no danger," Weissman said.

Of the 52 guests at the Burns Motel, near the patient's trailer home, 40 have been contacted by health authorities and stomach cultures taken from them have been negative.

The motel has been closed since Labor Day.

Carlen praises New Mexico; worries about wishbone

By MIKE HALLMARK
Asst. Sports Editor

Tech head coach Jim Carlen feels that New Mexico quarterback Don Woods is the finest quarterback Tech has faced since he has been here.

"New Mexico is a much improved team over last year because of one thing," said Carlen in a press conference Monday, "that's their quarterback. Woods may be the best quarterback we have played against in my four years here. He throws the ball extremely well. He runs the ball better than any quarterback that I have ever seen. He is just a unique athlete."

Carlen felt that Woods made New Mexico's offense, which was good last year in his opinion, a very explosive attack.

"Woods is not as disciplined a thrower as Van Galder of Utah was, but he can run, throw on the run, and do so many things that are just hard to defend. Woods is a lot better football player than Van Galder."

Carlen said that he was basing his opinion of Woods on the film of the New Mexico-New Mexico State game last week which was won by New Mexico 48-6.

New Mexico runs a wishbone offense. Carlen felt that Woods is a master of the wishbone. "Woods takes the snap from center," said Carlen, "and he either runs or hands off to their fullback, Rich Diller, who is a top wishbone fullback. When Woods drops back to throw he is like Joe Barnes in that you don't know if it is a run or pass. If he gets locked up by a rush here he comes running."

Carlen felt that Utah and New Mexico were different types of teams. Utah was mostly pass-oriented, Carlen felt while New Mexico bases its whole offense on their quarterback being able to run and throw. Carlen said that against Utah, Tech was not worried about Van Galder running. Against New Mexico Woods' running is what the Raiders will have to watch.

"We won't have to worry too much about their throwing game although they are capable of hurting us," said Carlen. "When you run a wishbone, unless you break up those backs, the only receivers you have are the ends. So we will have to stop their run."

Carlen also praised flanker Lawrence Williams, runningback Rufus Myers and linebacker Tom Ryan for their play against Utah.

"I was even more impressed with Williams' play than with Myers," Carlen said. "Lawrence caught the ball well and did a fine job of blocking. That diving catch he made for the two point play was one of the most important plays in the game."

Carlen expressed disappointment in the play of his front seven against Utah. He said that he was considering bringing up Lubbock freshman Thomas Howard for help at defensive end. Howard has been hobbled by a sprained ankle but has outstanding speed and pursuit from the defensive end slot.

"Howard is not really ready because of his ankle," said Carlen. "But he is a talented young player who may help our end situation. We did not get good end play against Utah."

RUFUS POWER

SOPHOMORE TAILBACK Rufus Myers (32) powers through the Utah goal line defense for the winning touchdown in Saturday's 29-22 Tech victory. Myers spearheaded the Raider ground game with 135 yards and two touchdowns. Fullback John Garner (35) blocks for Myers.

Lottery set for NM tilt

The lottery exchange for Saturday's New Mexico outing will be held this week from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday in the Coronado room of the University Center.

Students who wish to purchase a coupon booklet may do so until 5 p.m. Thursday in the Student Association office in the University Center. Price of the booklet is now $10 because only five home games remain on the Tech schedule.

Date-spouse coupon booklets may also be purchased until Thursday in the SA office. Price of the booklets is now $30.

Tickets for the Texas game to be played Sept. 29 in Austin go on sale Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the SA office and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Tech ticket office.

To buy a ticket, a student must have a student ID and certification of enrollment. A student may buy a maximum of six tickets but must have a set of IDs for each.

OJ's King

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — O. J. Simpson, Buffalo's 1972 National Football League ground-gaining champion, ran for a record 250 yards, helping the Bills whip the New England Patriots 31-13 in a season opener Sunday.

"It looked like a track meet out there," New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks said after his pro coaching debut. "We'd have a hole blocked up, but O. J.'s natural ability got him away from the hole."

"It looked like Grant going through Richmond. We were helpless and couldn't slow him down. Give Simpson's blocking a lot of credit. And we gave him a lot, too," said Fairbanks.

"He had more yardage than Secretariat," said New England linebacker Edgar Chandler, who played with Simpson for four years in Buffalo before being traded this summer. "He has that deceptive speed. You think you have the angle on him, then he's gone. It was embarrassing."

Simpson, starting his fifth pro campaign after winning the Heisman Trophy at Southern California, broke the NFL record of 247 yards set by Willie Ellison of the Los Angeles Rams two years ago against New Orleans.

RAIDER BANDIT

Unbehagen thinks Lobo's Woods will be tough runner to defense

By MIKE HALLMARK
Asst. Sports Editor

Tech scouting coach Ted Unbehagen told his players that New Mexico quarterback Don Woods was probably as good a running quarterback as they were likely to line up against all season.

"Woods is a big, rangy kid who has a lot of speed and confidence in himself and his ability to run the football," said Unbehagen in his scouting report to his players Monday.

Unbehagen told the Raiders that Woods had carried the ball 18 times against cross-state rival New Mexico State Saturday and the Lobo signal caller had chucked up 210 yards rushing in the 98-6 N.M. win. His 200-plus steps included 70 in one whack for a touchdown.

Woods transferred to New Mexico this season when New Mexico Highlands dropped football from their program. Woods was one of the outstanding small college quarterbacks in the country last season.

"This boy runs the wishbone real well," said Unbehagen. "However, he does not run it quite like Texas does in that he calls the option beforehand in the huddle and rarely reads the tackle for a key as to whether to keep or pitch."

Unbehagen said that Woods is a quarterback who likes to carry the ball. New Mexico State Woods and fullback Rich Diller each carried the ball 18 times while halfbacks Ben Turner and Cliff Crenshaw saw limited carrying time.

"Diller is a good wishbone fullback," said Unbehagen. "He didn't have quite as spectacular results as Woods against NM State but he is big, strong and durable. He is hard to bring down. Turner is a good back and Crenshaw has 4.4 speed in the 40 so you can't forget about either of them, although they did not get much chance to carry the ball last week."

Unbehagen said that New Mexico was especially proud of their defense. He said New Mexico feels like they have matured a lot on defense since last season.

"They have a defensive end named Steve Bradshaw who is a fine ballplayer that many prospects have looked at as a prospect. They also have a good cornerback in Rick Jones. They will be a lot like Utah was in that they will be a much better defensive team than last year. The only difference is that New Mexico is a better team than Utah defensively.

Coach Richard Bell, head defensive coach, related a story to his players that was told to him by an ex-Raider letterman who now lives in Albuquerque. Bell's story went that the New Mexico coaches attending the Tech-Utah game felt that they had a better defense than Utah and that the Lobos would have a good chance against the Raiders. The Tech alum also related a left-handed compliment to the Raiders in that the Lobos had said that their defense was hitting even better now than Texas Tech hit them a year ago. Bell said the Raider defensive squad should resolve themselves to remind the Lobos on Saturday just how hard the Raiders had hit them last year.

Happenings around Southwest Conference

WACO (AP) — Center Cary Dorman and linebacker Don Bockhorn will be lost to the Baylor Bears from two to three weeks because of injuries suffered Saturday night in the 42-14 loss to Oklahoma, Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said Monday.

"The loss of these two fine football players will hurt us against Pittsburgh," said Teaff. "We don't have a backup of Dorman's caliber. When he went out we seemed to lose our first action against Oklahoma."

"Bockhorn is the best linebacker we had." Teaff said Baylor's spirit was high going into Saturday's game in Pittsburgh.

COLLEGE STATION, — The Texas Aggies came through Saturday night's 48-0 victory over Wichita State in good physical shape and barring practice field injuries all hands will be ready to play against Louisiana State Saturday night in Baton Rouge.

Quarterback David Shipman, freshman from Odessa Permian whose only action against Wichita State was holding for extra points, is expected to resume full practice this week and may be ready for duty against LSU.

Girl's IM refs sought

An organizational meeting for the newly formed women's officials club will be held at 5:30 p.m. today in the women's gym. All prospective members must attend this meeting.

Men students who are interested in officiating any women's intramurals are also welcome to the meeting. The purpose of the club will be to encourage and improve officiating for women's intramural sports.

Requirements for officiating will be discussed at the meeting as well as officials' testing and rating procedures for the coming season.

Anyone interested in either the club or being an intramural official is invited to attend the meeting. Questions concerning the club and duties of an official may be brought to the meeting and will be answered there or in the Women's Intramurals Office, room 115 of the Women's gym.

Billie Jean King feeling fine for battle of sexes with Riggs

HOUSTON (AP) — Like Greta Garbo, Billie Jean King wants to be alone.

Once one of the most outgoing and ebullient personalities in tennis, the 29-year-old Wimbledon champion has gone into a shell in preparation for her $100,000 winner-take-all match with 55-year-old Bobby Riggs at the Astrodome Thursday night.

"No private interviews — no personal appearances," was Billie Jean's edict after arriving on the scene for the so-called "Battle of the Sexes."

Before going behind her own private bamboo curtain, Billie Jean told the world that she was feeling fine, that she loved pressure matches and that she was ready for her match against the aging hustler from Newport Beach, Calif.

"I don't have leukemia, hepatitis or hypoglycemia," she said. "I am fine. I feel great."

To prove it, she submitted to two singles matches Monday in the women's tour tournament. There has been concern over Billie Jean's physical condition since she pulled out of a third-round match in the recent U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y., and returned to her Hilton Head, S.C., base to undergo a series of tests.

Doctors reported that she had low blood sugar, probably as a result of some kind of virus, and that she might be subject to tiring in intense heat or in a prolonged match. "The doctors tell me that I had a bad cold and I am now over it," Billie Jean said. "Both mentally and physically I will be in top shape for Riggs."
