Farm Measure Is Sent Back To Conference

Agricultural Appropriation Bill Is Placed Before The House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP)—A $161,863,147 agricultural department appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1936-37 was laid before the house today as the new half-billion dollar soil conservation farm program headed for conference.

Some Delay Following a policy laid down in the war department supply measure, the appropriations committee refused to allow a million dollars requested in the budget for the shelterbelt tree planting in the Great Plains area.

Although delayed by the conference action, the new farm bill was expected to reach President Roosevelt this week and receive his immediate signature. Department of agriculture officials, however, expect a delay of several weeks before administrative details of the program are worked out.

Appeal To Farmers Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator who will direct the new program, meanwhile, appealed to farmers to plan portions of their land in erosion-controlling crops.

He asked them to have sufficient confidence in the new program to make the switch in crops before they know definitely what the government will do for them in return. Davis estimated 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 acres of land would be switched from intensive production.

Battle Of Alamo Raged 100 Years Ago

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 24. (UP)—One hundred years ago today the challenge that sounded Texas' independence from Mexico went out from the Alamo, historic fort-mission here that will be the shrine for thousands of patriotic Texans this year.

William Barret Travis, young commander of the Texas garrison, on Feb. 24, 1836, dispatched the message that has gone down in history as the Lone Star state's parallel to Patrick Henry's plea of the American revolution: "Give me Liberty or give me Death."

Travis' letter: "To the people of Texas and all Americans in the world: 'Follow citizens and compatriots—I am besieged, by a thousand or more of the Mexicans under Santa Anna. I have sustained continual bombardment and cannonade 24 hours and have not lost a man. The enemy has demanded a surrender at discretion, otherwise, the garrison are apt to be put to the sword, if the fort is taken. "I have answered the demand with a cannon shot, and our flag still waves proudly from the walls. I shall never surrender or retreat. Then, I shall call on you in the name of Liberty, of patriotism and everything dear to the American character, to come to our aid with all dispatch. The enemy is receiving reinforcements daily and will no doubt increase to three or four thousand in four or five days. If this call is neglected I am determined to sustain myself as long as possible and die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his own honor and that of his country. Victory or Death. (Signed)

"William Barret Travis. "Lt. Col. Comdt."

"P. S. The Lord is on our side. When the enemy appeared in sight we had not three bushels of corn. We have since found in deserted houses 80 or 90 bushels of corn and got into the walls 50 or 60 head of bees."

Reinforcements of 32 men came from Gonzales the night before the Alamo fell on March 6, 1836. On that date, the Mexicans—50,000 strong—began their assault on the fortress. The 130 Texans resisted bravely but all were killed at their posts. One of the last survivors set fire to the powder magazine. The wife of one officer, two baby girls, and a young negro man came from the Alamo alive. The Mexicans reported loss of more than 500 dead and wounded.

Included in the Texan loss was Travis, Col. James Bowie, and David Crockett, two famed fighters who had joined the revolutionists. One account of the battle declared that Travis offered to surrender the fort the night before it fell, on condition that all lives be spared. A Mexican officer discredited the report of high losses by saying three-fourths of Santa Anna's casualties were caused by their own guns. Nevertheless, six weeks later "Remember the Alamo!" was the Texans' cry at San Jacinto, where Gen. Sam Houston's ragged army surprised and captured Gen. Santa Anna. The Mexican invasion was broken, but that country never recognized Texas' independence until it became a part of the United States in 1845.

Ex-Governor Ritchie, New Deal Foe, Dies

Candidate For Demo Nomination In 1932 Is Victim Of Stroke

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 24. (AP)—Former Governor Albert C. Ritchie, 56, a contender for the presidential nomination in 1932, died today, apparently from a stroke.

Funeral services for Ritchie were set for 3 p. m. Wednesday. The body will lie in state at Christ Protestant Episcopal church Tuesday.

Flags on the statehouse and other public buildings were at half-staff today. Ritchie's death ends the speculation on the possibility of his taking a leading role in opposition to the renomination of President Roosevelt at the Philadelphia convention. The Maryland man, a potent political figure in his section, had sought the nomination won by Roosevelt four years ago, and had been an opponent of new deal policies.

A few hours before his death he sharply criticized the centralization of government at Washington. Previously he had charged new deal policies circumscribed the constitution and engulfed state's rights. Ritchie, a powerful figure in Maryland politics for the past 15 years, was alone in his apartment when he became fatally ill.

Sam Atkins, Jr., and J. B. Bender were presented with the highest honors of the day, their bronze palms, next step after the coveted Eagle award. Both are in Troop No. 1.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (UP)—Major General Johnson Hagood was summarily relieved from the command of the army Eighth Corps area today and was ordered to proceed to his home to "await orders."

Hagood has maintained headquarters at San Antonio, directing the army area that includes all the Southwest. The order was by direction of President Roosevelt.

Hagood, in recent testimony before the house appropriations subcommittee, suggested that congress take advantage of what he termed "WPA stage money" and use it to improve housing at army posts. The order relieving him of his command was issued on Feb. 21. No explanation of removal was forthcoming immediately from war department headquarters.

Salt Water Is Encountered In Deep Test

No Decision On Plugging Back To Levels Where Shows Recorded

A hole full of salt water Monday all but banished hopes of production from the Loffland Bros.-Moore Bros. No. 1 McDowell deep wildcat test in Glasscock county. After fighting for a week to stop a leak which caused the drilling fluid to drop 2,000 feet, the fluid level was brought to the top and the test pushed 23 feet further where it struck salt water at 10,906 feet.

Whether the hole could be plugged back to try for production where heaviest shows were recorded at 9,594, 9,600 and 9,833 feet or whether it will be plugged was undecided Monday. Made Two Heads The test has experienced two heads, one of which caused fuel tanks to catch fire just before drilling was to have been resumed in December.

Shut in for several months at 10,115 feet, it was drilling in what many geologists believed was the Ellenberger, lower Ordovician, or the Simpson, middle Ordovician. Nearing the two-mile depth, it picked up oil stains in the lime formation.

Cites Record Of Testimony 'Whited Gave

Accusation Might Be Used For Perjury Action Against Man

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 24. (AP) — Governor Harold Hoffman today accused Millard Whited, Surland Mountains lumberjack and one of the state's chief witnesses against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, with "lying," a charge which might be the basis of perjury action against him.

"Record Shows Lies" The governor who questioned Whited Saturday, said "the printed and written record shows he is lying." Whited was the only witness from New Jersey called at the Hauptmann extradition hearing in New York, and his testimony was used to place Hauptmann near the scene of the crime.

He told Governor Hoffman Saturday he described a prowler in the area to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh the day after the flier's baby was kidnaped. Whited's testimony underwent a terrific battering from defense attorneys during the trial. The defense attack on him was so successful that Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, summing up evidence for the jury, did not even mention Whited.

Long Questioning Whited was quizzed for two hours Saturday night by Governor Hoffman, and the executive asserted after the session that it was "highly significant" that Whited had once told police he had seen no one near the Lindbergh home, and then apparently reversed himself and identified Hauptmann when the Bronx carpenter was arrested two and one-half years later. The governor said Whited told him he had been promised a part of the $25,000 reward offered for the arrest and conviction of the kidnaper. Hoffman also asserted that "errors" had been found in Whited's statements, but he did not disclose what they were.

Whited's identification of Hauptmann at the extradition proceedings in the Bronx in October, 1934, was one reason New York authorities decided to grant New Jersey's request for the prisoner. Hauptmann is under sentence to die the week of March 30. Asked today if the results of Whited's questioning might mean a second reprieve, the governor said: "I haven't considered it in that light, but it is highly significant that on April 26, 1932, this man gave to two detectives, one of them from the state police, a statement that he never saw Hauptmann and in the Bronx county courthouse testified he had seen him on two occasions prior to the kidnaping."

Sen. Borah Listens Again To Call Of Presidency

For First Time, Appears To Be Seeking Nomination

The political background of the man most prominently mentioned for the republican nomination are discussed in a series of six daily articles, of which this is the first.

By KIRKE SIMPSON WASHINGTON, (UP)—Wherever men talk of possibilities for the republican nomination, he who could have been vice-president is never ignored. He is Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, rounding out as chairman of the senate 30 unbroken and speculatively independent years of service.

Down those tramping decades Borah has heard his name called again and again for highest party honors, only to have the call die away against the strangely irregular pattern of his party regularity. At 71, when most men in public life see their careers closing, he hears that call again—louder, more insistent than ever before.

For the first time he has assented to use of his name in party primaries outside his own state—has said, even, that he expects to be presidential nominee. Yet there is no more certainty among his party colleagues that he is actually seeking a nomination than there is as to Herbert Hoover's real intent.

A Sturdy Figure These two are mystery figures. They were closely allied in 1928.

Practically everyone has one these days. And unless you want to find yourself completely out of the swim, get busy and rustle up a young husky with a burning ambition to put an end to the Joe Louis menace once and for all.

S'East Leaders Play 'Dirty', As Clean Suits Break Charm

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 24. (UP)—Soiled uniforms tell a story of a coach's superstition and the rise of Vanderbilt university's basketball team in the Southeastern conference.

Religiously a believer in signs, Josh Cody, brawny coach of the Commodores, is most superstitious.

But When Losing— When his team is not doing so well, he forgets these superstitions. There are other things, he says, to worry about then.

Among other things, Cody opens every contest with the same line-up, if possible; he wears the same tie to every game; he places the Commodore line-up on the same side of the score-board; and he personally wraps the players' ankles, following a definite order in that procedure.

Two State Heads Pay Visit To Local Ladies' Auxiliary To The V. F. W.

Three State Officers Residing In Big Spring Join Members As Hostesses For Dinner At Settles

Two state officials of the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary arrived in Big Spring Monday morning to pay their official visit to the local chapter.

They are Mrs. Mabel Gertrude Shaw of El Paso, president of the department of Texas; and Mrs. Jessie Edge of San Antonio, secretary-treasurer. Both will be presented to the members at the meeting to be held this evening in the V. F. W. hall.

Proceeding the meeting there will be a dinner at the Settles hotel complimenting both officers.

Among the hostesses there will be three state officers, Mrs. Allen Hull, member of the council of administration; Mrs. R. E. Blount, state musician and Miss Ruby Bell, assistant to chief of staff.

Mrs. Shaw is a former resident of Big Spring. She lived here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ellis as a child, moving from here to El Paso where she has resided ever since.

Mrs. Edge is a former state president and has visited Big Spring before in that capacity.

She and Mrs. Shaw will go from Big Spring to Lubbock, to pay official calls on the chapter there.

Mrs. Jimmy Wilson Is Shower Honoree

Mrs. Jimmy Wilson was complimented with an unusually pretty shower Friday afternoon at the home of her cousin, Mrs. A. J. Stallings. Mrs. Wilson is the former Miss Edith Lomax.

Flags and Washington birthday emblems decorated the rooms. Many appropriate contests were played.

The final contest was won by the honoree. Two children dressed in George and Martha Washington costumes brought her gifts to her on a little wagon. The wagon and the gift containers were beautifully decorated with crepe paper in red, white and blue.

Delicious refreshments were served to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. W. J. Lomax, her mother-in-law, Mrs. F. D. Wilson of Big Spring and about 30 other guests.

H. D. Council In Meeting With Men

Mrs. Ben Brown Resigns As Secretary Of Group

Members of the Howard County home demonstration council met with the agricultural council Saturday afternoon in the district courtroom for a farm planning program at the request of the federal government.

The object of the meeting was to obtain figures relative to Howard county agricultural conditions that will be submitted, along with those of other counties to Washington. This will form a basis for working out a program to replace the dead AAA.

The men were asked to estimate the percentage of crops they will probably plant this year, the percentage that should be planted, the percentage of tillable soil and other questions relative to obtaining greatest possible benefit from the soil. The women's questions pertained to gardens, orchards and meat products.

This program will be repeated in 15 Howard county communities on March 3-4. The representatives present Saturday will act as leaders of the programs in their respective communities.

Following the joint meeting the council members met for a brief session. Mrs. Ben Brown resigned as secretary.

There was an excellent attendance.

Joel Miller and J. T. Thornton, Jr., spent the week-end on a fishing jaunt to the Concho.

"IN QUEST OF LOST WORLDS"

By Count Byron de Prorok (E. P. Dutton and Co.)

Within the covers of this one book the reader travels into little known—sometimes unknown—corners of the world; he sees strange people, learns strange facts, is thrilled, frightened, excited and informed. He gets a dose of geography and archaeology so chocolate coated that it goes down like a pulp adventure yarn. He commences his journey with an excursion into a land whose civilization dates long before the Sahara was a desert. He ends it in the most talked of country today—Ethiopia.

The publishers whet the appetites of the readers by referring to the lost continent of Atlantis, a continent that seems to grow less faded and more historically real with the passing of decades. Atlantis, however, could not be more intriguing than the lost civilization's Count de Prorok investigates. The connection with Atlantis is that this expert—a fellow of the Royal Geographical society of England—has by his own concerning Atlantis and he is trying to prove it. He believes the continent extended east and west and that Northern Africa saw the sun rise and Mexico saw the sun set over it. Its disappearance is considered due to an upheaval in the Atlantic that caused the land bridge between the two continents to sink. He substantiates his theory by asserting that there are many signs in the Americas that link the new world to the old world prehistorically.

This book is divided into four parts, each telling of an archaeological survey. The first and second were in Northern Africa, the first into the Hoogar, part of that country conquered and governed now by the French foreign legion. The party went there in search of a legendary buried queen-goddess of a fierce warlike tribe.

"It was a country upside down," he said. "The men were painted and veiled. The women were beautifully made, without a blemish, in purple robes worn Egyptian fashion to leave the right shoulder bare."

Yet the men were among the most dreaded of the tribes the French foreign legion had to deal with, reserved, without mercy and with superhuman endurance when it came to avenging a wrong. The tale of the finding of the hidden tomb of the goddess and the rifting of it is one of suspense from beginning to end.

Accounts of the expedition across the terrible eastern Sahara beyond the valley of the Nile is like reading a sequel to Egyptian history. All of that country now so wasteland was once a land of rivers and advanced civilization. The party followed the dry streams of old rivers and located cities in which no European had ever before put foot and dug into thousands of tombs. Except for the fact that the jewelry, implements of living and warfare, were similar to that of other well known civilizations of 2000 years ago, they might have been digging on Mars. They were in a country the present knows nothing of.

Although the story of the trip to Yucatan is highly exciting, the account of the Ethiopian expedition is the high point of interest.

Long before the expedition ever entered Ethiopia, fear of the country engulfed them. Only the intrepid spirit of Count de Prorok, whose life is one of flirting with death anyway, kept them on the march. They were in search of the Biblical gold of Ophir, the Blue Nile, King Solomon's mines and the mountains of the Moon which no white man had ever seen.

They were in danger from savage tribes, from tropic diseases, from broken promises, superstitions, and a thousand lesser evils. Every day they gambled with death and won. Even when they penetrated country of a certain degree of civilization, the presence of the people were dangerous.

BLACK - DRAUGHT Next Time You Need a Laxative

For constipation, take a dose of Black-Draught as soon as you realize the condition you are in. "If I am bilious, have headache or a cold, I take a dose of Black-Draught at night," writes Mrs. H. B. Thaxton, of Lexington, Ga. "If I have a bad feeling after meals, I take just a pinch of Black-Draught. It relieves me. I recommend it very highly—a good family medicine. I give my children Syrup of Black-Draught. It fits both good."

Black-Draught paves the way for the relief of many such symptoms as those mentioned above, when constipation is at the bottom of the trouble.

Just try it! Follow the directions carefully and you'll probably learn why Black-Draught is so popular.

GOOD GARDENING

3. Spade Work

Don't let your zeal for turning the good earth lead you to putting a spade into the garden too early, or before the last of the winter rains have died out well. It's hard to say just how much moisture is right but here's a good test. Squeeze a handful of soil and drop it. If the soil remains stuck together it's too wet to work. Don't spare your back in spading, and rake right along behind the spading, breaking up the lumps and clods while they're still moist. In all cases manure—or the best available substitute—should be turned under. The whole garden should be hoed over to a depth of four to five inches to prepare it for planting after it has been spaded as deep as the good soil goes.

Tomorrow—Use of Ashes.

From the hand that left them there.

We shall think of the roistering way.

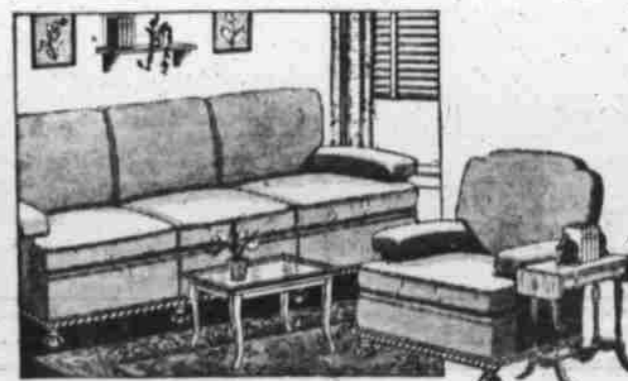

He sang a song of wonder On the road to Mandalay.

The Light That Failed, and Kim, Stalky and Soldiers Three, The Jungle Book with its vim, And his tales of tragedy.

But now he may work and not weary.

On the following day she walked into the office of Messrs. Wheeler & Owen, House and Estate Agents.

"Extraordinary," said Frankie. She left the office in a thoughtful mood. As Bobby had prophesied, all Mr. Bassington-french's actions seemed clear and above-board.

Contracts Needed Before Paving of Alleys Can Start
Of 50 letters containing alley paving contracts and sent to property owners in the downtown section, only one answer had been received by the city, Monday morning.
City Manager E. V. Spence called attention to the necessity of securing the signed contracts before the alley paving program can be accomplished. The two-course asphalt topping will be installed at the rate of 36 cents per running foot.

A FARMER WRITES AN "AD"

Gentlemen: I am an old man who knows what he likes. A hill farmer is a stubborn cuss, and when he takes to cigarettes when he's well gone by 60 years, he has good reasons for wanting those cigarettes. And for some time now I haven't touched any smoking but OLD GOLDS.
My brother's son got me on cigarettes, but the ones he gave me seemed too quick-burning. One day our general storekeeper stood me one of those Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS, made of prize crop tobaccos. And I had my first cigarette that burnt as slow and cool as my pipe, and that didn't leave a man's tongue stinging and biting like that other cigarette brand.
I've bought Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS ever since, and every pack has been the same. I know, because I'm blind, and we without eyes learn to taste and feel better than you who see.
Yours truly,
Jerry Hurley
