

Lubbock economy booming—only one exception

By BOB HANNAN
UD Reporter

The Lubbock economy, in contrast to the nationwide norm, is in good shape. Figures released by the Lubbock Economics Council indicate an 82.4 per cent improvement of economic indicators for July 1974 over July 1973. Agricultural is the major area of the South Plains economy facing problems.

John Cassel, president of the council, said the situation now is one of having boom years on top of boom years. "There aren't many things you can be pessimistic about now," he said.

Nationwide, the economic situation is one of rising unemployment and inflation, and falling profits. Industry is providing the main support for the economy with its high rate of investment, but homebuilding is in a nationwide slump and interest rates are up.

Cassel, along with council members Dr. John Wittman and Dr. Carl Stem, listed several factors accounting for Lubbock's favorable economic picture. (The council is a "forum where businessman and economists can exchange ideas and information," said Cassel.)

Construction is having a big impact now and will have a big impact for the next three years, said Cassel. July figures indicate an increase of $47 million in building permits over the last year. Most of that construction will not be finished for two to three years, he said, and then related activities will be drawn into the area.

THE $47 MILLION FIGURE does not include the $35 million Med School construction, Cassel said.

Wittman said the Med School construction will probably result in Lubbock becoming a medical center for the region. The construction activity is such that, "We've ended up as a labor shortage area," he said. The overall rate of unemployment for the Lubbock area is below 2 per cent, as compared to the national 5.3 per cent rate of unemployment. A particular shortage exists in the area of skilled construction workers, Wittman said.

Wittman listed several substantial construction projects — the Civic Center, Hilton Inn, West Texas Hospital, Methodist Hospital, and on campus, the Library addition, the Music-University Center addition, the Range and Wildlife addition, the Holden Hall addition and the new Mass Communications Building.

Stem, who spent the last year as the senior economic adviser in the Washington, D.C., Office of Foreign Direct Investments, said the level of economic activity in the area began growing in the summer of 1970 and through the summer of 1973. The economic activity is still strong, he said, but it is no longer such a boom.

Stem listed other factors besides construction as having a favorable impact on the area economy.

Lubbock is running counter to national economic trends because of the rising price of oil and natural gas, the increased drilling activity associated with high petroleum prices and the high prices of agricultural goods.

THE NATIONWIDE NORMS OF RISING unemployment and falling profits are not a part of the Lubbock economic situation. Inflation, industrial investment, a homebuilding slump and high interest rates are a part of the picture.

The high rate of economic activity in the area will have an effect on the rate of inflation. "I would expect that our rate of inflation would tend to be above the national average for the next three years," Stem said.

The area's rate of inflation for the last five years has been higher than the national rate. Stem said the higher rate reflects the growing level of economic activity in the area since the tornado swept through Lubbock in 1970.

Texas Instruments, Litton Industries and the Daiwa spinning mill in Levelland were examples given by the council members of industrial investment.

Texas Instruments is a direct plug into the national economy, Stem said. And some industrial spin-off could result for the Daiwa mill, Wittman said. Industries might arise in the area to produce finished textile goods from the mill goods.

THE SLOWDOWN IN home-building, both for this area and nationwide, is related to high interest rates. The residential construction in the area is mostly for multi-family dwellings, Wittman said, because the high mortgage rates have slowed down home-building. Money is in short supply for non-corporate users, said Cassel. But he said when funds become available, there will be a boom in home-building.

Wayne Finnell, president of Lubbock National Bank, said his bank is 63 per cent loaned-up. "The loans are about where we want them to be," he said.

Bill McNabb, president of Texas Bank, said his bank has an ample flow of money, with ample funds to lend.

An important factor in the area economy is Tech. "Tech has a substantial effect on business here in town," Cassel said. Tech, along with Reese Air Force Base, gives the economy a stability it wouldn't otherwise have, he said.

Tech has an impact regardless of the unemployment situation, Wittman said. The students buy gas and groceries and rent apartments, and usually arrive with assets for the year, he said.

The agricultural economic situation is not very bright, however. Yield, prices and total income are off from last year, said Dr. Jim Osborne, a council member and a professor of agricultural economics.

Last year, he said, the area nearly broke all records, with cotton and grain sorghum selling for good prices.

Now, he said, cotton and grain sorghum crops are short, because of 18 months of drought. Feedlot operators are also losing money, he said.

PRICES ARE NOW ABOVE historical levels, he said, but have dropped from last fall and spring.

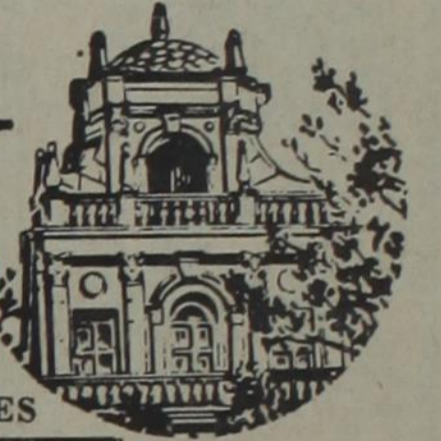

Cassel said Lubbock is in a transition period, going from an agricultural - based economy to a more diversified economy. But more than the basis of the economy is changing, he said.

"We have moved into an international economy," he said. As an example, he pointed out that area agricultural products are no longer marketed just around Lubbock. Last year, prices were high worldwide for area products, and the area benefited.

"We're not an isolated island like we have been," Cassel said.

Whatever the changes, the Lubbock economy should stay in good shape for the next three years. All three council members agreed that as long as the big construction projects are in progress, Lubbock's economic situation will benefit.

Bookstore manager explains buying - selling operations

By BABS GREYHOSKY
UD Reporter

Along with the hassles that normally accompany the first few days of every semester, book-buying is probably one of the biggest headaches students will encounter. The range complaints in variety from "I can't find the right book" to "This joint is a rip-off!"

According to Larry H. Templeton, manager of the Tech Bookstore, the problems of book-buying occur on both sides of the coin. As convinced as some students might be, the bookstore is not trying to take the student for all he's worth, Templeton said.

"A lot of the confusion could be eliminated if the students would try to buy their books early," said Templeton. One of the most familiar sights on the first and second days of school is the lines of people wrapping around the book shelves, waiting to buy their "semester treasures."

Books can be returned for a full refund five days after the first day of class or five days after the day of purchase; in some cases, a student can receive refunds with 10 per cent deductions days after the first day of classes.

"We have this system set up to encourage students to buy their books as soon as possible instead of waiting for the first-day rush," explained Templeton.

Buying books earlier would also allow the bookstore to estimate more accurately how many texts are going to be needed, alleviating the problem of running out of books. Usually, though, the store is stocked with twice as many texts as will be needed.

Templeton explains that the bookstore tries to provide as many used books as it can. "The faculty is responsible for choosing the text for the course; and they normally want the most recent and best edition, requiring new books."

In addition to this factor, many upper-classmen prefer to keep a lot of their books for reference and simply don't sell their texts back to the store.

The Tech bookstore works with other colleges throughout the nation when attempting to stock up with used material. "We normally work through three national book jobbers whose sole job is to buy and sell used books to universities," said Templeton.

Often, the student will receive only 50 cents for his text because the teacher has decided to discontinue that particular edition. The bookstore then sells these surplus books to the book jobber for the same amount paid the student.

Occasions do arise when the teacher decides to keep a book previously marked as discontinued. Then the bookstore "makes a profit," so to speak (all bookstore profits go to the University, not the bookstore).

"But for every one of those transactions, we have one to counter it," said Templeton. Teachers will list a certain book as re-usable, so the bookstore will buy it back for its "used" price; then in mid-August, that teacher will cancel the text, and the bookstore is stuck with a stock of books that are not needed.

All book prices are set by the publishers. Used texts are marked at exactly half their original value, and any dilapidated books are not bought back, said Templeton.

Refused to resign

UT president gets pink slip

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Chancellor Charles A. LeMaistre of the University of Texas system fired Dr. Stephen Spurr as UT-Austin president Tuesday in what one regent called the climax of a long-standing personality conflict.

Spurr has the right to remain on the faculty, however, as a tenured professor in the botany department and the Lyndon Baines Johnson School of Public Affairs, LeMaistre said.

The regents will hold a special meeting at 4 p.m. today.

"I would think there would be a vote taken in such a manner as to know whether Dr. LeMaistre is being backed up or isn't. The power play has been made," said regent Dr. James E. Bauerle of San Antonio.

LeMaistre said in a news release that his confidence in Spurr's ability "to administer the affairs of the University of Texas at Austin in an effective and efficient manner has been severely eroded over the past few months. This erosion has been accelerated by a generally uncooperative attitude on the part of Dr. Spurr and an effort on his part to discredit the chancellor and system administration through direct contact with members of the board of regents."

Bauerle said LeMaistre followed up a meeting with Spurr Monday by giving him a deadline of 11 a.m. Tuesday to resign. He said LeMaistre listed 16 specific complaints against Spurr.

"More than anything else, it was a personality conflict between Dr. LeMaistre and Dr. Spurr," Bauerle said.

He predicted the regents would uphold LeMaistre's action at today's meeting.

Bauerle, a dentist, said LeMaistre, a physician, had felt for some time that Spurr was not providing the kind of leadership necessary to keep the UT-

Austin library "moving ahead as it should be."

"This is what precipitated it," Bauerle said in a telephone interview. "Dr. LeMaistre told the board there was a communication problem on this issue as well as on other issues. I wouldn't interpret this in any way as being a spur of the moment thing."

LeMaistre's statement made no explanation of what he meant by "direct contact" with regents, and Bauerle said he did not know of any attempts by Spurr to by-pass LeMaistre and go to the board.

Plus-minus grading system remains in distant future despite numerous efforts

By JOHN POWELL
UD Staff

A proposal to reflect pluses and minuses in a student's grade point average (GPA) was under study by the Academics Committee of the Tech Student Senate two years ago.

But don't bother to recheck your grade reports, the proposal died for lack of support.

"We want to make sure our idea is worthwhile before we take it to the council of deans," said Karen Hogg in 1972 as a committee member.

The proposal never made it to the council of deans and several reasons have been offered for the inaction.

"The plus and minus system was used years ago at Tech," said Dr. Lawrence L. Graves, Dean of Arts and Sciences. "They were dropped primarily because they were a nuisance. Teachers were asked if the pluses and minuses really did any good."

After the plus and minus system was discontinued, some teachers continued to use them to let the student know how he was doing, Graves said.

Dr. Owen L. Caskey, of the Office of Instructional Research, said that most of the plus-minus proposals were designed to recognize rates of achievement.

"The fellow who is floating around a 1.86 (GPA) and does not usually make the solid letter grade is not going to be in favor of such a proposal," Caskey said.

Most teachers are not against a change but want to know definite things wrong with the present system and concrete ideas on how to improve it, according to Caskey.

Dr. Robert H. Anderson, Dean of Education the past 13 months, said that he was interested in the plus-minus system although he had not heard about any specific proposals.

"There are times when I would have felt more comfortable had I been able to distinguish the solid grade from the borderline cases," Anderson said.

Lisa Eldridge, present chairman of the Academics Committee, said that no concrete action has been taken by the committee on the plus-minus proposal in two years.

So, although Tech's present grading system has taken its knocks, it stands as it is for lack of a suitable replacement.

News briefs

UD seeking reporters

The University Daily is interviewing for two openings on the reporting staff.

Applications are available in room 206 of the Journalism Building. For further information, call Charley Bankhead or Robert Montemayor at 742-4254.

United Way Campaign kicks off

A luncheon Tuesday at the University Center marked the beginning of the United Way fund drive on the Tech campus.

Approximately 200 representatives of the faculty and staff who will head up the fund drive within their respective departments attended.

Tech president Gover Murray is the campaign chairman for the campus. Murray, Regent Bill Collins and Lubbock Campaign Chairman Jay Eagan each delivered a brief speech concerning the drive, which begins Sept. 26 and will continue through Oct. 25.

Lubbock's goal is $1,018,588, the first time a goal of over $1 million has been set. No goal was announced for Tech.

Student Association President Bill Allen is the member of the Tech Campaign Cabinet responsible for student efforts. Students in Public Relations 431, Public Relations Cases and Problems, will promote the campus campaign.

Commuter lot to be closed

Some 800 parking spaces in the commuter lot west of Jones Stadium will not be available to commuting students Thursday morning only.

Tech Police Chief B. G. Daniels said the parking spaces will be roped off for attendants of the United Way kickoff program. Daniels urged commuters to park instead in the commuter lot east of Jones stadium for this one day.

Rain hampers fair activities

Rainy weather seems to have put a damper on attendance and activities at the 57th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair. The fair opened Sept. 21, and will run through Saturday.

For the first time in recent years the annual "Parade of Bands", scheduled for Monday was cancelled because of the weather.

Total attendance for the fair through Monday was 79,871 in sharp contrast to the 1973 three-day figure of 129,646.

All remaining activities, both inside and outside, are still scheduled. College and Military Day at the South Plains Panhandle Fair is Friday, Sept. 27. The University Daily previously reported Sept. 28 as the day of the event.

Football coupon hassles back in swing again

Robert Montemayor

LATELY THERE HAVE been numerous Tech students calling SA President Bill Allen and myself asking for help concerning the sale of football coupon tickets. Evidently the hassles over the tickets have gotten so bad that a furious exchange of words between a Tech coed and Ticket Manager Ruth Sturtz has occurred.

Allen has told me that though the number of students making the complaints is not overwhelming, the actual hassling procedure seems to be the topic of conversation and consideration. On this same page Allen has expressed his thoughts about the ticket situation.

It seems silly to me why people get so damn fussy about a game such as football. But, nonetheless, the situation of these few students who have encountered their problems attaining their tickets is no new happening at Tech.

It happens almost every year. Not to say that two wrongs will make a right, but it does happen every year. And really if there is one faction of this University which students might as well forget about bucking, it's the Tech Athletic Department.

Inevitably, Tech's sports officials will get their way, regardless what any soul may think ... including President Gover E. Murray himself.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED in the situation of the tickets is that those few students failed to meet the set times to purchase their coupon books. According to Tech Athletic Department officials, those set times included freshman orientation this summer, Law and Medical School registrations and the regular fall registration time.

There was also a special time set aside for those students who failed to buy their tickets at the regular registration times. Even with that there were still some students who failed to get tickets.

Allen said he understood that there had to be deadlines, but that there should also be flexibility involved as well. He was referring to the fact that many students were late in receiving their validated IDs and thus had the problem of proving to the ticket office that they had indeed paid their fees and were enrolled in school.

Sturtz made this point — of having the validated ID — perfectly clear to anyone wanting to purchase coupons. What was worked out consequently was a deal whereby students had to obtain a slip from Registrar D. N. Peterson stating they had paid their fees ... thus tickets could then be bought.

MONDAY I HAD a conversation with Murray and Executive Vice President Glenn E. Barnett and discussed the situation. Barnett said he didn't understand why the ticket office had asked for the validated ID card since no student at registration had a card at that time and it wasn't required then.

I then told Barnett that if they were requiring the cards, why were they having so much trouble mailing them out to students. He said he was not aware of the problem. I then advised him, and it still stands today, that I have not received my validated ID card and many other students were in the same shape.

Both he and Murray agreed that the situation should be looked into. Barnett was supposed to make the necessary calls, but he advised me Tuesday late in the afternoon that he had failed to contact the proper people and would get to it as soon as possible.

Obviously, the situation is frustrating and quite senseless. Just the fact that the validated ID cards have not been received by some students is enough to make me uneasy. By the way, I was able to purchase my coupon booklet ... without even showing my validated ID card. I was never asked for it.

In any event, I wish someone in the ball park would get their head together and come to some kind of sensible agreement over this ticket hassle. But, we may as well remember that no matter how much of a case any of us have, we will have to play the Tech Athletic Department's game, like it or not.

*****

A WEEK OR SO AGO I related to you how Southern Methodist University's President Paul Hardin was run out of his job. It seems the University of Texas also has run President Stephen Spurr out of his position.

It's not a good year for Southwest Conference presidents, it seems. Spurr was relieved of his job because, according to reports, UT System's Chancellor Charles LeMaistre couldn't get along with him. Not so surprising.

More times than not it will be a personality conflict. Even here at Tech, Murray has admitted that his job is being threatened in some respects. He's not overly paranoid at this time, but with the presidential heads of other colleges rolling, Murray may find himself looking over his shoulder more than usual.

DOONESBURY

Be my guest

SA president hot about football tickets

By BILL ALLEN

Let's move back a couple of years and listen to a bit of a conversation in the office of an Athletic Department honcho and an SA representative; the latter has been pleading with the former to give us a better deal on tickets (sound familiar?). Always one for having the last word, ex-coach what's-his-name ends said conversation by saying flatly: "I don't care if there isn't a single student in the stands."

Two years ago, they say. Ah yes, but we all know of old dogs and new tricks, yet the tricks have remained the same.

Take the case of one beleaguered young coed who had the unmitigated audacity to walk into the ticket office and ask for season coupons (Gawd, you'd think she was going to a university or something). The miss was told she needed a validation of her enrollment, and lacking one, she procured a fee payment slip showing her payment of the full Student Services fee. She gets her coupon book, but before she's 20 feet away from the door the ruler of the ticket office grabs her and before a group of other persons calls this student a "little liar" in between other invectives. Simply because she had used a fee slip.

I'm happy to say that this matter was promptly attended to by her irate father. But, who's cheating who, and who are the liars? My last two weeks have been spent meeting with other irate students. Some had legitimate gripes, some did not. But one thing is overwhelmingly clear: the Red Raiders are not our team anymore. The team belongs to the moneyed, the fat check givers, and to anyone who pays the full price for non-student season tickets.

I have consistently defended the policy of setting a deadline on student coupon book sales — that I can understand. But too many students have come to me and sworn that they asked for tickets at registration and were turned away.

I defend the policy requiring a validation to prove full payment of service fees. But damn it, if it hasn't arrived yet, why not be flexible enough to accept a fee payment slip from the registrar?

But those inequities are all the harder to bear when the honchos say, "Talk to the Student Association. They set the policy."

It's news to me. However, with all this new found power I would like to take this opportunity to make public notice of

THE NEW POLICY:

Non-amended portions of the "old policy" remain the same.

1. Football and Basketball coupon books will be sold at the Law School, Freshman Orientation, Fall Registration, and during the week following registration.

A. Exact location of ticket sales will be printed in the University Daily.

2. Ticket prices will be held at their current rate.

3. A validated ID or signed fee payment slip from the Registrar is required to buy extra tickets.

4. All end zone seats will be sold to the general public.

A. All 14,127 student seats will be between the end zones.

5. A full and complete line-itemed audit of the Athletic Department budget shall be printed in the UD.

A. Failure to comply with this stipulation will be grounds for the free distribution of coupons to all students.

Have a sporting day.

Lennon

Max Lennon named as Animal Science chairman

Dr. Max Lennon was recently named new chairman of Tech's Department of Animal Science. He succeeded Dr. Dale W. Zinn, assistant dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences and director of the Division of Agricultural Services.

"Tech has excellent programs in animal science and can make significant contributions to the animal industry," Lennon said. "To make the most of our potential, we must try to predict the future, to anticipate problems and begin to solve them before they occur."

"Dr. Lennon has unusually fine training in animal science and solid experience in livestock production in a major portion of the United States and Europe," said Dr. Anson R. Bertrand, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. Lennon was a member of the Tech Animal Science faculty from 1970 to 1973. From 1973 until his appointment as chairman he served as a swine research specialist, senior swine nutritionist and director of swine research for Central Soya, Inc., Decatur, Ind.

Lennon received the Ph.D. degree in Animal Science from North Carolina State University in 1970. He holds the bachelor of science degree from that institution and the Associate of Arts degree from Mars Hill (N.C.) College.

by four Red Raider football fans.

The steer will be served to the Red Raiders at Tech's athletic training table.

A proclamation of Sept. 23-28 as "Slaughter a Steer Week" by Lubbock Mayor Fred Bass was read by Pat Gooden, representing the mayor, during the presentation.

The steer was the gift of John Smith, owner of the Sirloin for Steaks Restaurant;

Jerrell Price, owner of the Gridiron Restaurant; J. B. Hance, owner of the Pancake House; and Kenneth Odom, co-owner of Cecil's Package Store. All are members of the Red Raider Club and the Lubbock Restaurant Association.

The steer was named Sir Longhorn. The animal will be slaughtered and processed by the Meats Lab of the Department of Animal Science.

Osborn

Osborn named Ag Eco chairman

Dr. James E. Osborn has been named chairman and professor of Agricultural Economics at Tech.

Osborn succeeds Dr. Mark L. Fowler as chairman of the department. Announcement of the appointment was made by Dr. Anson R. Bertrand, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Fowler will return to teaching and research as a professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics.

"Free from the responsibilities and administrative duties of the chairmanship, I will be able to contribute more to teaching. I also hope to be able to work to develop more areas for a viable research program in agricultural economics and to help the department develop its research potential," Fowler said.

"The department of Agricultural Economics has attained a high level of quality through the efforts of its former chairmen, including Dr. Fowler's," Osborn said. "I hope to build upon the quality they have developed and to help the department fulfill its potential in many areas."

"The department will continue to offer the best possible education to its students," he said. "It will continue to look for better ways to teach students and for ways to improve the curriculum."

"The department has a responsibility to conduct research in agricultural economics and to make its findings available to the public," Osborn said. "Strong efforts will be made to take advantage of research opportunities; and we will explore ways to be of service to the people who are concerned with the business side of agriculture."

The department will continue to develop programs, short courses, workshops and conferences to serve the public and industry, according to Osborn. "Osborn has been exceptionally effective as assistant dean of the college," Bertrand said. "He will continue with some of the duties from that job and will retain the title."

Osborn joined the Tech faculty as an assistant professor of Agricultural Economics in 1965. He was promoted to associate professor in 1967 and to full professor in 1972. He was named assistant dean with responsibilities for research coordination in the college in 1973.

Osborn received the Ph.D. degree from Oklahoma State University at Stillwater. He formerly taught at Auburn University and for two years was a research assistant at North Carolina State University.

Street closed temporarily

The university street running between the Athletic Offices and the residence parking lot on the east end of campus has been temporarily closed by the Grounds Maintenance Department for safety reasons.

Students had complained to Administrative Services that their cars may have been ruined because of huge chug holes in the street. The danger of the holes, hidden by recent flooding on the street, gave the Grounds Maintenance Department ample reason to barricade the street.

Administrative Services Associate Vice President Fred Wehmeyer said the street would be closed only temporarily and will be open again when the street "dries out" and repairs can be made.

Bronze cemetery vases new targets for thieves

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Cemeteries, long the playground of juvenile vandals, have become the latest target for professional thieves.

The FBI and cemetery operators say thieves are after the bronze vases which hold flowers over thousands of graves in cemeteries across the nation.

The vases, which weigh about three pounds each, are sold to scrap metal dealers for the current going rate for bronze, up to $1 a pound.

Robert Toson of suburban Milwaukee's Pinelawn Memorial Park said thieves recently made off with 802 grave vases. He said the vases, probably sold for about $2,400 by the thieves, would cost about $21,000 to replace, at wholesale prices.

Spokesmen for two of the nation's largest bronze vase manufacturers, Matthews Bronze Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Gorham Bronze Co. of Providence, R.I., say, however, that they are making replacements for stolen vases free of charge.

Toson said the loss of the vases, which carry retail price tags of $50 to $75, is causing concern among relatives who bought vases.

He said the cemetery thieves generally find the profits high and the risks relatively low in stealing the bases late at night in quiet, unpatrolled cemeteries.

A spokesman for the FBI office here said the agency is investigating interstate shipment of stolen vases.

Richard Kauppinen of Beloit, president of the Wisconsin Cemetery Association, said police in some areas are being asked to give more attention to cemeteries on their night patrols, but most cemetery managers fear publicity will only spark more thefts and vandalism.

However, the American Cemetery magazine, an industry publication in New York, says only 69 arrests resulting in 35 convictions were recorded nationwide for 3,500 cemetery thefts reported in the last five years.

Middle man

Supporting the insatiable monster that is a major college athletic program is a fulltime job and making ends meet requires a little bit more than merely balancing a checkbook. Polk Robison, Tech's athletic administrator for finance and development, receives a shot in the arm this week with the Tech-Texas encounter being put on regional television.

The American Broadcasting Company are the folks who will pass out this money for the TV rights and ABC has lots of experience. A rough estimation was made before the season and ABC will set a new record by spending $16 million for the rights to college football games.

$315,000 is the figure ABC will pay for the Tech-Texas telecast but before anybody heads over there to try to get a loan there needs to be some explanation as to how much Tech actually gets.

It seems everybody and his dog and the dog's cousin has his finger in the pie and, believe it or not, Tech only gets about a sixth of the money. The approximate total revenue for the telecast as far as Tech is concerned is $54,000. Texas gets the same amount which accounts for $108,000.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association receives about 4 1/2 per cent of the total which comes to about $15,000. That's quite a fee for just being a member of a collegiate athletic association. Fraternity memberships aren't that high.

So, you ask what happens to the stray $192,000? That's simple. It goes into the coffers of the Southwest Conference and is divided equally among the eight schools. That's still another high membership due. This is done to help support schools like Rice and Baylor who do not get to play on television very often. Kind of like communism — same principle.

The Tech-Texas encounter is the top one for the weekend as far as ABC is concerned. They have sent their top team of sportscasters, Keith Jackson and Bud Wilkinson here for the game. Keith and Bud are about the best as far as this vantage point is concerned. They analyze well and their voices don't start grating on your nerves by the fourth quarter like Curt Gowdy and some of the others.

Eighteen states will see the Tech-Texas game, which makes it more than just a regional telecast. The game will be shown in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Utah, Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Missouri, New York, New Jersey, South Carolina, North Carolina and of course, Texas.

100 victories

Richard Sybesma, captain of the 1974 Raider swim team, presents coach Jim McNally with a plaque signifying the Raider mentor's 100th victory in a 16-year coaching career.

Ticket lottery today, Thursday

The ticket lottery for Saturday's Tech-Texas SWC opener will be held today from 1:30-5:30 p.m. and Thursday from 1-6 p.m. in the Coronado room of the University Center.

Saddle Tramps will also be printing "Beat Texas" T-shirts in the Coronado Room during the ticket lottery. Price of the printing is 15 cents and individuals must provide their own shirts.

Royal shuffling 'Horn's lineup

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Coach Darrell Royal is shuffling his lineup again for the Southwest Conference opener against Tech Saturday, starting Marty Akins at quarterback and All-American fullback Roosevelt Leaks at halfback.

Royal told a news conference he rates the game a "tossup." He said, "We'll know a lot more about our football team when we get on the plane to come back from Lubbock."

Despite lopsided victories over Boston College and Wyoming, Royal said, "We're a long way from being an outstanding football team. There's something off-key all the time. Maybe we'll tell one of these days."

Akins started against Boston College but was knocked out, and Mike Presley guided Texas to its 42-19 victory and also had the Longhorns ahead of Wyoming, 20-7 when he was knocked unconscious.

Royal said Presley, however, was "fine." But he added, "Akins will be the starter, and both will play."

Asked how he had arrived at this decision, Royal said, "The same way I based my decision that Bob Simmons Texas' highly touted tackle will start" — meaning obviously that Royal thinks Akins is better.

But he never said so and later commented that he does not like to compare quarterbacks — for the public — anymore than he would like to compare his two sons "for the whole public."

Tight end Tommy Ingram definitely will miss the Tech game, and possibly four to six weeks of the season, with a fractured thumb that required surgery, Royal said. Tackle Fred Currin is on crutches with a sprained knee.

Although defensive end Lionell Johnson bruised his ribs, he "stands a chance to play," Royal said.

Senior Cornell Reese and freshman Brad Shearer will sub for Currin, and sophomore Joe Samford will fill in for Ingram although Royal says, "He doesn't play near as well as Tommy."

Royal said he was "pleased" with the experiment of playing Leaks, who holds single game and SWC season rushing records, at halfback as he tries to overcome a severe spring training knee injury. "But it's obvious he has a lot to learn at halfback."

Leaks' replacement at fullback, freshman Earl Campbell, did a "super job" of faking, then blocking in the secondary, Royal said, "but Campbell was squirming free so much to block. 'I'm hoping we'll be getting the ball to him more.'"

Asked about Tech quarterback Tommy Duniven, Royal said, "They think he's the best all-around athlete to come to Tech in years."

What kind of a game does he expect?

"About a tossup. We had a tossup game with 'em last year, and we had about the same type of losses they've had."

Buckeyes replace ND in poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

In extremely close voting, the Buckeyes of Ohio State replaced Notre Dame Tuesday as the No. 1-ranked team in The Associated Press college football poll.

Five new teams appeared in the Top Twenty as a result of the weekend's rash of upsets.

Following Saturday's 51-10 rout of Oregon State, Ohio State received 23 first-place votes — three fewer than Notre Dame — and 1,110 of a possible 1,220 points from a nationwide panel of 61 sports writers and broadcasters.

The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, who walloped Northwestern 49-3, received 26 first-place votes but only 1,104 points.

Oklahoma, idle last weekend, held onto third place with eight first-place ballots and 913 points.

Alabama, fifth a week ago, received the other four No. 1 votes and 896 points and moved up a notch to fourth by battering Southern Mississippi 52-0. Nebraska, last week's No. 4 team, dropped to 10th by losing to Wisconsin 21-20.

Michigan, a 31-0 winner over Colorado, climbed from sixth to fifth with 756 points. Texas defeated Wyoming 34-7 and rose from ninth to sixth with 588 points.

Last week's 7-8 teams, Louisiana State and Penn State, were upset by Texas A&M 21-14 and Navy 7-6 and skidded to 17th and 19th, respectively. Arizona State trounced Texas Christian 37-7 and jumped from 11th to seventh. Pitt shot from a tie for 15th to eighth with a 27-17 triumph over Georgia Tech. Texas A&M, a newcomer to the rankings, zoomed all the way to ninth by beating LSU. Nebraska rounded out the Top Ten.
