

Stresses food, energy

Ford calls for global strategy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — President Ford presented to the United Nations on Wednesday a pledge of increased U.S. food aid for needy countries, a challenge to Arab oil producers and an impromptu endorsement for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"Failure to cooperate on oil, food and inflation could spell disaster for every nation represented in this room," Ford told the General Assembly as he urged "a global strategy for food and energy."

IT WAS FORD'S FIRST major foreign policy address of his 5½-week-old presidency, and he inserted into his prepared speech a paragraph intended to assure the nation, the world and Kissinger that his role will remain unchanged in the new administration.

In the added sentences, written out in long-hand by Ford minutes before his speech, the President declared that Kissinger "has my full support and the unquestioned backing of the American people" both as secretary of state and as head of the White House national security system.

Presidential aides said Ford departed from his prepared text because he wanted to underscore his intention that Kissinger will keep his post as director of the National Security Council.

KISSINGER HAS BEEN UPSET by news reports Tuesday that an unnamed presidential adviser had recommended he be replaced in the White House job.

After Ford's speech, a newsmen asked Kissinger if he personally had asked for words of assurance from Ford. "Absolutely not, of course not," he replied.

The praise for Kissinger sent a ripple of applause through the hall, where the Nobel Peace Prize winner sat with delegations from the United States and 132 other countries. Absent were Israel on Jewish New Year holiday, and Cuba, which is on unfriendly terms with the United States.

Ford promised the assembly that the United States would spend more on food shipments to needy countries and boost technical aid to their food production programs. He also declared American readiness to negotiate a world food reserve plan, although he gave no specifics.

He turned to the energy question with blunt words for the Arab countries: "NOW IS THE TIME for the oil producers to define their conception of a global policy on energy to meet the growing need — and to do this without imposing unacceptable burdens on the international monetary and trade system."

In declaring that a global strategy is needed on food and energy, Ford said prices on both should be fair because "it should ... be clear that by confronting consumers with production restrictions, artificial pricing, and the prospect of ultimate bankruptcy, producers will eventually become the victims of their own actions."

As for the United States, he said, "it has not been our policy to use food as a political weapon despite the oil embargo and recent oil price and production decisions."

ARAB DIPLOMATS REACTED with measured coolness to Ford's remarks. "I couldn't agree with everything he said," commented Sabab A. A. Al-Sabah, foreign minister of Kuwait, one of the richest oil producing nations.

Ambassador Jamil Baroodi of Saudi Arabia said he told Ford at a reception later that "it costs me $11 just to have lunch while for $10 he can buy enough gasoline to drive his car for a week."

Several non-Arab diplomats said they were pleased that Ford, as one put it, had "thrown the gantlet" to the oil producers. A Japanese representative said, "Somebody has to talk openly to the oil companies but only the United States can dare to."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, asked what he thought of Ford's speech, responded with a smile and said: "I am going to study it thoroughly."

After the address, Ford greeted more than 200 delegates and diplomats at a champagne reception, then attended a roast beef and lobster luncheon.

Right of privacy topic of Watergate counsel

Samuel Dash, who served as chief counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee, will speak on "The Right of Privacy" in a public address today at 7:15 p.m. in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Dash is appearing here under auspices of the Speakers Series which will bring a total of six guest lecturers to the campus during the 1974-75 academic year.

Tickets are $1.50 for general admission and 75 cents for Tech students with validated ID cards. They may be purchased in advance at the University Center ticket booth or at the door prior to the lecture. There are no reserved seats.

Dash is professor of law at the Georgetown University Center of Law and director of the center's Institute of Criminal Law and Procedure. Prior to joining the Georgetown faculty in 1965, he was a trial lawyer in Philadelphia, first as a partner in the firm of Blank, Rudenko, Klaus and Rome and, in 1958, as a partner in the firm of Dash and Levy. He served as a district attorney in Philadelphia from 1955 to 1956.

He has been president of the National Association of Defense Lawyers Conference Project on Mental Disorders and a special consultant to the National Association of Attorneys General and to the Ford Foundation; a member of the A.B.A.'s Commission on Campus Government and Student Dissent and its Special Committee on Crime Prevention and Control.

From 1956 to 1958, Dash directed a study for the Pennsylvania Bar Association on wiretapping and eavesdropping, which prompted him to write a book on the subject: "The Eavesdroppers."

Dash, 49, was born in Camden, N.J., and reared in Philadelphia. He earned his undergraduate degree at Temple University and his law degree at Harvard University.

Other guest lecturers in the Speakers Series will be Tom Wicker, associate editor of the New York Times; journalist Bill Moyers; syndicated columnist Art Buchwald, former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, and microbiologist Rene Dubos.

National issues divide state GOP

By BOB HANNAN
UD Reporter

The Republican county chairman from Lubbock said attempts to prevent national issues from being considered at the Republican state convention led to a "bloody battle" on the closing night of the convention.

Gary Riley, a member of the delegation from the 28th senatorial district, said he had hoped the convention would address itself to state issues, not national issues such as the pardon of ex-President Richard Nixon and President Ford's amnesty proposals.

But, said Riley, Rep. Ray Barnhart of Pasadena authored a motion late Tuesday night critical of some of Ford's actions. Barnhart's motion, when originally brought up, was tabled, Riley said. But the delegates were tired, said Riley, and the motion was allowed to be brought up again for clarification. The resolution was then passed.

Riley was a member of the Platform and Resolutions Committee. The platform passed at the convention contained about 20 planks, he said, and covered issues ranging from natural resources to right-to-work. Riley termed right to work a strong Jim Granberry plank. Granberry is the republican candidate for governor.

The platform was "a platform for the full slate of state-wide candidates dates the Republicans have running this year, Riley said.

National issues were not wanted on the platform, he said. The introduction of Watergate, amnesty and the Nixon pardon would obscure the state issues, he said.

The platform was passed with little problem, according to Riley. The end of the session brought the bloodshed, and trouble began with a resolution commending Ford's pardon of Nixon, he said. The resolution was not passed by the Platform and Resolution Committee but instead came to the floor as the minority report. Consideration of the resolution was tabled. U.S. Sen. John Tower hit the gavel on the resolution and that was that, said Riley.

The resolution condemning Ford for his amnesty proposals caused the most problems. The resolution accused Ford of abandoning the principles of the party. Riley indicated he did not approve of the resolution.

Deserters want chance 'to think over' amnesty plan

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. (AP) — The first Vietnam war deserters inquiring here about President Ford's clemency plan were reluctant to call, afraid of being sent to jail and worried about possible military harassment.

Most of the callers seemed eager to return home, but wanted to think it over for a while, officials at Ft. Benjamin Harrison said.

THE ARMY CLEMENCY Information Center had received 49 calls by Wednesday morning from persons claiming to be Army deserters or from families or attorneys representing them. Other inquiries had been made by deserters from other branches of the service, but the Army was not including them in its total.

Officials had predicted the inquiries would increase sharply by Wednesday, but it might be next week before any sizable number of deserters report for processing.

The information center is merely four telephones on two wooden tables pushed together in the middle of a large file room at the Army Finance Center at Ft. Benjamin Harrison here. The green metal filing cabinets contain the records of all Army deserters.

Four men at a time, working eight-hour shifts, man the telephones.

WHAT ARE THE ATTITUDES of the career soldiers assigned the duty of handling the calls?

"It's not my decision. Someone else decided to give them amnesty," replied Sgt. Francis Stewart, a 13-year veteran.

Capt. Phillip Barnett took the job in stride. As chief of the Army's absentee and deserter division, his task has changed from helping authorities track down deserters to helping guide them home.

The callers were asked first to give their names, service grade, date of birth and Social Security or service number. Then they were asked for their addresses, where the Army could send a letter informing them if they were eligible for clemency.

Only those who deserted or went AWOL during the Vietnam era of 1964-1973 and who had no other charges against them could qualify.

The address proved to be the stumbling block.

Draft evasion not only charge some returning dodgers face

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Vietnam-era deserters who decide to seek conditional amnesty could find themselves behind bars after returning to U.S. military control.

These would be men who have other serious criminal charges, such as larceny, assault, or rape, pending against them in addition to desertion. Pentagon officials estimate that between 10 and 20 per cent of the 12,554 fugitive deserters would face criminal charges other than desertion if they chose to turn themselves in.

"If a deserter committed another crime, we can't let him off the hook for that," a Pentagon spokesman said Wednesday.

However, officials suggested the charges in certain cases might involve relatively minor offenses, such as the theft of small amounts of money, and that these could be forgiven or resolved with nominal punishment.

In announcing the new conditional amnesty plan, the White House said Monday that "those against whom other charges under the Uniform Code of Military Justice are pending will not be eligible to participate in the program until these other charges are disposed of in accordance with the law."

Pentagon officials said a deserter in this category could be taken into custody when he shows up at a U.S. military base or at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., the main processing point for the deserter amnesty program.

He then might be court martialed,

"SOME REFUSED to give it and said they would call back in a few days after thinking it over," Barnett said.

"I had about half a dozen say, 'If I give you my address, will I be arrested?'"

Stewart, who worked the same shift, said, "Mainly they wanted to know what their responsibilities are going to be;

what's going to happen; are they going to go to jail."

Some had others call for them.

"At times it would be a wife calling, but you could tell the husband was standing behind them funneling information."

In each case, the caller was assured there would be no effort to apprehend him, even if he rejected the clemency offer or was ineligible. Officials said about half the calls Tuesday were from within the United States.

"THE IDEA IS NOT entrapment," said Col. Leonard Reed, public affairs officer. "The idea is leniency."

One caller was assured he would not be required to get his hair cut during processing.

Ft. Harrison will provide direct processing for Army deserters and administrative support, including housing and food, for those from other services. The other services will supply their own processing and legal personnel.

Capt. John Seawell, post deputy public information officer, said persons accepting clemency are expected to report slowly with no large numbers arriving immediately.

"THEY'RE GOING TO WAIT and see who's first and what happens to him," Reed added.

Once a deserter reports, Reed said, plans are to process him within four days. During that time, there will be no incarceration and no guards and the deserter will be free to take liberty in the evenings.

Processing will include a records check to guarantee eligibility, legal counseling, a physical examination and a review of finance records to determine if the man had any pay due from the time he entered service until he deserted.

Then he will be asked to sign a loyalty oath, issued an undesirable discharge and provided transportation to the location of his alternate service job. The discharge may be changed to a clemency discharge upon completion of the alternate service.

Nixon may enter hospital

Former President Richard M. Nixon will probably enter a hospital within a week, according to his daughter. A team of medical specialists was reported on standby at the Camp Pendleton naval hospital near his San Clemente, Calif., home.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower said on Tuesday that the treatment Nixon received at home for the blood clots in his leg veins has improved his phlebitis and that he will enter the hospital "to get something checked."

She said her mother had indicated that the former president was "irritable" because of the illness, but she labeled as "crazy" reports that his mind was wandering or that he was dangerously depressed about having to resign office last month.

Last POW released

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines — Emmet James Kay was freed by his Laotian captors after 16 months as a prisoner Wednesday and told greeters he knew of no other Americans in custody.

Thus the lanky commercial pilot from Hawaii retained his status as the last known U.S. prisoner of war in Indochina.

Kay, 47, was the first prisoner released in a long-delayed POW exchange between the U.S.-backed Vientiane government and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao. The two sides, now joined in a coalition government, are to exchange 350 Laotian, Vietnamese and Thai prisoners starting Thursday.

DIRTY POLITICS AND corruption is not solely reserved for the high level politicians, as proven by a former student body president at the University of Michigan who evidently pulled some slick rip-off tricks of his own.

Lee Gill, the former president of that school, has had a lawsuit filed against him for allegedly misusing approximately $16,000 of student funds. The civil suit was filed last month by the current student body president.

It seems Gill, who resigned last January amid controversy, is believed to have left the state and hasn't been located to be served the complaint and summons.

Gill is believed to have opened various bank accounts in the name of the UM Student Government, transferred student funds between accounts and withdrawn large sums for personal use.

The funds were allegedly transferred without knowledge or approval of other officers and forgery of the Student Government's treasurer's signature may have been involved.

The rip-off doesn't end there. Gill is also charged with making hundreds of personal telephone calls on Student Government phones and taking a Student Government desk.

Student officers are apparently being lenient about it though. They say they are only interested in obtaining restitution and do not intend to file criminal charges. Fat chance of that ever happening.

PEOPLE DON'T LIKE changes. That's a fact. If you don't believe me, ask Dr. Clive Kinghorn, mass communications professor who supervises KTXT radio.

Kinghorn said the Spanish program which was on the air last Saturday evidently disturbed quite a few ears on campus. You see, the program is in Spanish and the irate fellows were not hip to listening to someone they couldn't understand.

"They were pretty nasty about it. They asked me what the hell was going on. I simply told them that we had 141 weekly hours of air time and we were giving four of those hours for a Spanish-speaking program," Kinghorn said.

Of course they didn't buy it and a few choice words were said before the loud click was heard. That tickles the hell out of me, because there was once a time when I used to listen to people speak English and I didn't know what the hell was going on.

I simply took time to learn, so I could communicate. Now I speaky si Engleesh pretty good.

FREE LEGAL AID services are available at over 100 colleges and universities nationwide. Tech is not an exception. Resident lawyer Jim Farr has his office at the University Center and his door is always open.

The relatively new concept of free legal advice and attorneys for students has gained extensive support in the past year. Farr has told that the number of students coming in is quite high ... most of them involved in landlord-tenant disputes.

However, these cases are not the only types he handles. He says there are a variety of other cases which students get hung up with frequently. Farr can't go to court for you, as he doesn't have any litigation powers, but he can counsel. And the best part about it is that he's free.

THE RECREATIONAL FACILITIES Committee is meeting today to decide to accept the plans for a cutdown version of the original bubble top pool which had its bids come in $800,000 over the anticipated costs. The pool plans are now sitting at around $1.2 million.

Both Student Association President Bill Allen and Vice President for Student Affairs Robert Ewalt are both quite enthusiastic about the plans. Both admitted that they were not that sold on the pool idea a few months ago. However, now they think students can get themselves a "quality" pool they can be proud of.

Ewalt said there are still fears that the pool plans may not fall under the $1.2 million, but says, "I think we should build it as soon as possible, if the figures are within the price range we're talking about." He's right. If we wait any longer to think about what we need, we're going to discover that that $1.2 million is going to be worth considerably less because of inflationary costs in construction materials.

Talk about someone not giving a big one about student evaluations! An anonymous Michigan State University professor claims he filled out his own student evaluation forms rather than distributing them to his class.

The professor says he faked the evaluations, which are given official weight by the MSU Academic Council, to prove that they are "nothing but computerized crap."

Have a good day.

No license, no cash

To the Editor:
Noticing that the weekend was fast approaching, I decided to duck into the bookstore to cash a check, just in case. I went up to the window, made out my check for a safe $8 and was asked to show my driver's license.

Now, for personal reasons, I never did get my license. Because of this I had to go to several different people before I got an O.K. Now the guy who gave me the O.K. didn't even look at my Tech I.D., which I did show at the cashier's window. My check was cashed without any further ado.

Out of curiosity, I called the University Center and it seems that they have the same policy. I had my Social Security Number printed on my checks for identification, but on this campus it just isn't enough.

Strange, though, that Varsity Bookstore and even some firms out at South Plains Mall did not make such a big deal of REQUIRING my driver's license. My Tech I.D. is enough.

Mama Bell too pushy

To The Editor:
As a student of Texas Tech University, I am tired of being pushed around by the Bell Telephone Company.

When I arrived in Lubbock for the current semester, my first stop was at the downtown office of the phone company. They told me that I could not arrange there to have my phone installed, even though I lived off campus, but that I would have to go to the University Center — just because I was a student. If I had not been a student, I could have arranged for installment then and there, and had it installed within a week or so.

But, like all the other students, I waited in line at the Sub, and was given an installation date of Sept. 10th, two weeks away. The inconveniences of being without a phone are great, but I put up with them, as did every other student who lives off campus.

Well, the 10th rolled around, and I skipped my classes to stay at home for the phone installer. As you might have suspected, he didn't show. No note of explanation, no telephone, no nothing.

So, on the following morning, I called (from the Sub) the office of Bell Tel. Co. I received a cheery 'Good Morning', an insincere apology, and a new installation date — September 23rd. They agreed that this was unfair, since the fault was clearly theirs, but they "couldn't possibly install the phone until September 23rd."

I was late for class, so I had to accept that answer. But when I got out of class, I went downtown to straighten things out. After talking with a very nice service representative, who gave me the same answer, I asked to talk to her supervisor. After more bickering, they finally agreed that they could install my phone on September 17th. What a boon!! They acted as though they had granted me an enormous favor.

I think it is time that Bell Telephone Company recognized that Tech students deserve just as much consideration as any other customers. I would like to suggest that Bell Telephone Company change its slogan to: "We may be the only phone company in town, and we know it."

Writer not cool

To the editor:

I am a resident of Horn Hall and I feel it's time something is done about the un-air-conditioned dorms. In our modern civilization and college campuses, most every building is air conditioned.

It can become very hot and miserable living at Horn at times, and the percentage of the dorms on campus are air-conditioned. I think this is a little unfair.

Don't get me wrong. I love living at Horn because everyone is so friendly. It would just make it more pleasant if it were air-conditioned, and I feel a school as advanced as Tech should make accommodations as comfortable as they can for all the students.

Legal aspects of drug use explored

Phi Alpha Delta, the legal fraternity, is sponsoring a program dealing with the legal aspects of drug use.

Nolan Greak, the program's coordinator, said, "The main thing we want to do is to inform the people on what the drug laws are today." The program will not attempt to tell people whether the drug laws are good or bad, or whether it is good or bad to use drugs, he said.

Gale Warren, former coordinator for the program, said the program will not attempt to explain the medical or moral aspects of drug use.

Emphasis will be on Texas laws on drug use, the various penalty groups, classification of drugs and the marijuana laws. The program will also cover some aspects of federal law dealing with drug use.

Greak said, "We'd be more than happy to talk with any group." The program can be presented to any size group and at that group's convenience, he said.

Presentation of the program may be arranged by calling Greak at the Law School (763-9159). Warren said more than 100 presentations of the program were made in the spring of 1974 after the program was revised to deal with changes in Texas drug laws.

Tech's 'distinguished alumni' to be honored

A college president, a university dean, a Texas Supreme Court associate justice, and the executive director of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers will be recognized as "distinguished alumni" of Tech Oct. 18.

Recipients of the honors at the eighth annual Distinguished Alumni dinner will be Dr. William M. Pearce, Jr., president of Texas Wesleyan College since 1968, and former executive vice president of Tech; Dr. John R. Bradford, dean of the College of Engineering at Tech since 1955; Associate Justice James G. Denton of the Supreme Court of Texas since 1970; and Joe B. Alford of New York City, executive director since 1968 of the AIME, the national professional and technical society for engineers in the minerals, metals and energy resource industries.

Twenty-six alumni have been awarded the recognition by the Tech Ex-Students Association in annual ceremonies which were instituted in 1967.

Purpose of the program, according to Manuel DeBusk of Dallas, president of the association, is to recognize and honor Tech Ex-students "who have made significant contributions to society, and whose accomplishments and careers have brought credit to Texas Tech University.

Dr. Pearce, who did most of his undergraduate work at Tech and received his MA degree from the institution in 1937, was associated with Tech as a member of the faculty and staff from 1938 until he left in 1968 to assume the presidency of Texas Wesleyan College at Fort Worth, with exception of time in service during World War II and two years at the University of Texas.

He served as assistant professor of history at Tech from 1949 until 1953, head of the department from 1953 to 1960, vice president for Academic Affairs from 1960 to 1966, and executive vice president from 1966 to 1968.

The former Tech administrator is a native of Plainview. He received his BA degree from Southern Methodist University in 1935 and his Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin in 1952.

Dean Bradford, who received his BS and MS degrees from Texas Tech in 1942 and 1948, respectively, and his Ph.D. from Case Institute of Technology in 1953, only last year was designated a "distinguished engineer" of the university.

Dr. Bradford was honored in 1965 as Engineer of the Year by the South Plains chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers and in 1968 he was named "Community Salesman of the Year" by the Lubbock Sales and Management Club.

Bradford has served as a state director of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers and is a member of its Education Committee; is a member and past president of the Board of Directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, and is director of the Institute of Science and Engineering at Tech.

Judge Denton, a 1938 graduate of Tech, received his Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from the University of Texas School of Law and was admitted to the bar in December 1941.

He was the first judge elected to the County Court-at-Law of Lubbock County in March 1950. Two years later he was elected judge of the 99th District Court of Lubbock County, serving until October 1959 when he was appointed chief justice of the Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals by then Gov. Price Daniel.

He was twice re-elected to the appellate court and in 1970 was elected associate justice of the Supreme Court of Texas. He has served as vice-chairman and chairman of the Judicial Section of the State Bar of Texas.

Alford is a native of Seymour. After receiving his bachelor's degree in Business Administration from Tech in 1939, he earned an MA in journalism from Stanford University in 1946.

New aid offered to job-seekers

By LISA WARMAN UD Staff

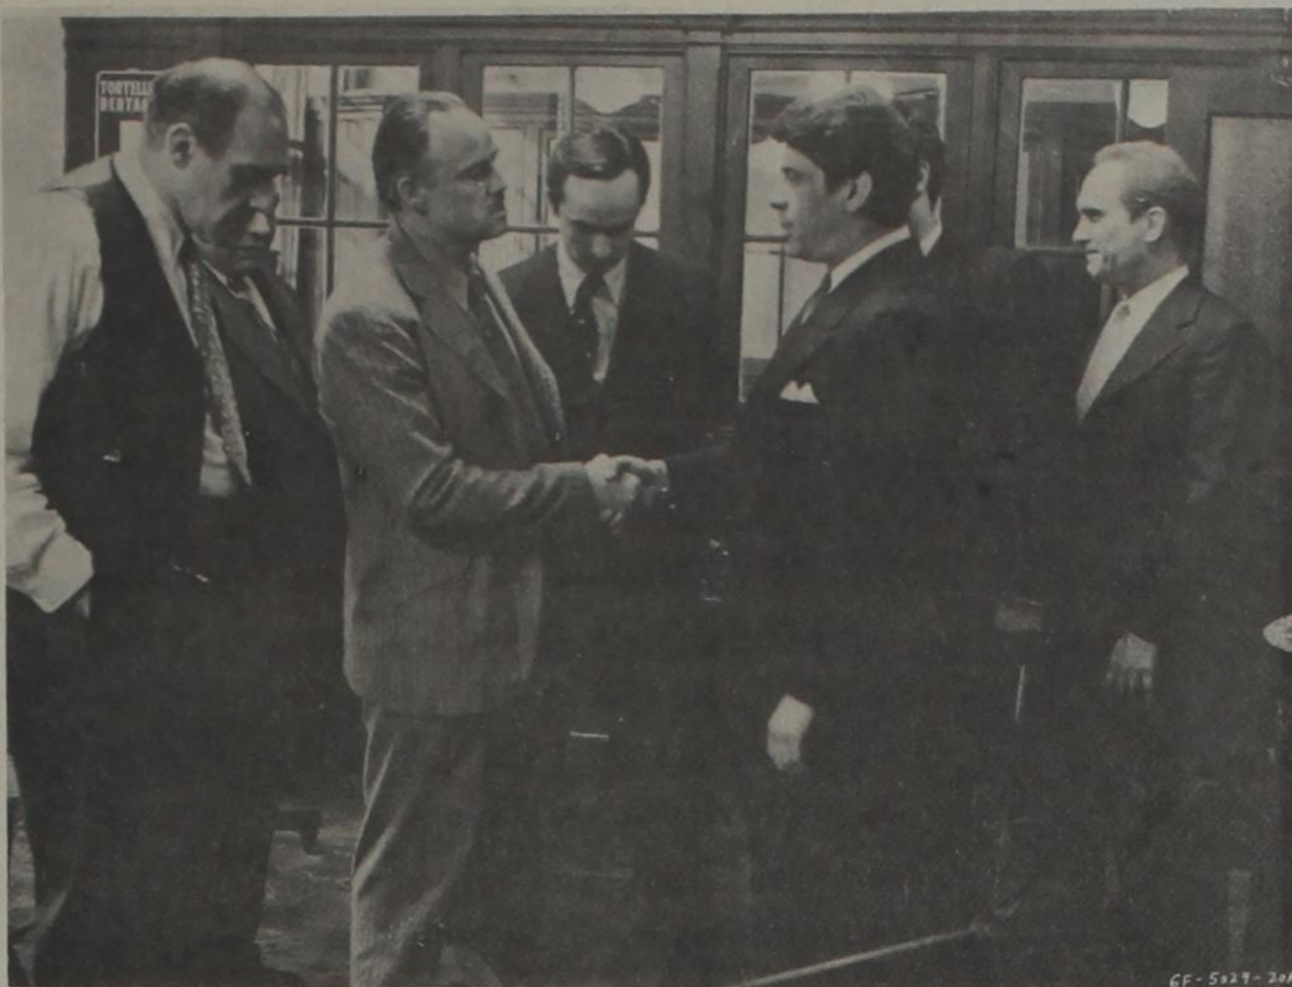

Representatives from more than 175 companies, including Exxon, Bell Telephone and Arthur Anderson, will be visiting Tech and interviewing prospective employees individually from December through May this year, thus saving the student time and money in letter writing and travel expenses.

Another benefit the placement service offers is in the area of future job projections. According to Jenkins, the service can accurately state what fields will have job availabilities in 1980, thus enabling the student to see if he will be able to work upon graduation.

In addition to job projections and interviews, the service schedules interview workshops for the benefit of the student to show him the do's and don't's of interviewing, how to write letters of inquiry and resumes, fill out applications, and give him general information about the companies and their employees.

The Placement Service also establishes a file of references on each student who fills out an application. This is one of the most valuable aids the service renders, Jenkins said because it enables employers to get all of the original references of the prospective employe by mailing one letter to the Placement Service. In that way, no references are ever lost, and professors need write only one letter for each student.

The Placement Service is located in room 252 of the Electrical Engineering Building, and placement calendars and applications may be picked up from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Additional information may be obtained by calling 742-4131.

UC Movie of Week

This week's UC Movie of the Week is Francis Ford Coppola's outstanding Academy Award winner THE GODFATHER. Due to its three-hour length, the film will be shown in the UC Ballroom at 6 and 9:15 p.m. Friday, and again at 7 p.m.

Sunday. Tickets are being sold for $1 to students with a validated ID, and advance tickets can now be obtained at the UC Ticket Booth. "The Godfather" is rated R, and will be shown in its unedited version.

Senate curbs abortion funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today passed a $33 billion appropriations bill that include sharp limitations on use of federal funds for abortions or school busing to achieve desegregation. The vote was 77 to 12.

The bill, providing funds for most of the government's domestic social programs, was cut $419 million below the administration's budget request and $297 million below the House total.

Such reductions have been unprecedented in recent years. Normally the Senate has voted considerably more than the President asked and the House allowed.

But this year the bill's sponsors said they were determined to hold down federal spending and help the fight on inflation.

Before final passage, the Senate adopted 85 to 5 a busing amendment offered by Sen.

Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., providing that nothing in the bill should prohibit the implementation of rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

'Beat Texas Free-for-All' planned on campus Sunday

By JOANNA VERNETTI UD Reporter
A pep rally, tee-shirt silkscreening, and games between international students and American students are some of the activities planned for the "Beat Texas Free-For-All" from 3-5 p.m. Sunday.

The Free-For-All, sponsored by the University Center's Recreation and International Interest Committees, will take place in front of the Ex-Students' Association Building, at 19th and University.

The purpose of the Free-For-All is to inspire spirit for the football game with the University of Texas, said Georgene Fox, International Interest chairman of the event.

"By having the Free-For-All on Sunday, we hope everyone will be ready for the game all week," she said.

The event will also be an opportunity for American students to meet international students. The foreign students were sent a special invitation to the event, she said.

Frisbee contests, tug of wars, and sack races are other activities. Gift certificates and prizes from local merchants will be presented to the winners of the contests.

Games are planned where American students will compete against international students. "We want the students to know that they can have fun together," she said.

'Faustus' heads Theatre slate

Tech University Theatre has announced productions for its 41st major season. This season's productions include: "Faustus!", Joseph Kesslerling's "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Peer Gynt" by Henrik Ibsen, and "The Comedy of Errors" by William Shakespeare.

"Faustus!" based on "The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus" by Christopher Marlowe, will run Oct. 11-15. The University Theatre's production has been adapted by Larry Randolph with choreography by Luke Kahlich.

The production is billed as an original and modern rendering of a classic play. Randolph will also direct "Faustus!"

"Arsenic and Old Lace" by Joseph Kesslerling will run Nov. 22-26. It will be directed by Dr. Clifford Ashby.

The comedy classic involves two innocent old ladies who fill their basement with "unfortunate boarders," their nephew Jonathan who kills for pleasure, his brother Teddy, who thinks he is Theodore Roosevelt, and assorted policemen, a drama critic, and a minister's daughter.

The comedy and confusion lie in the fact that nobody knows which dead body belongs to which set of murderers.

Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" will run Feb. 28 - March 4. It will be directed by Ronald Schulz. Peer is a wayward rascal who will try anything once, and he tries everything in this play including running around with some pagan spirits, kidnapping a new bride, and eventually becoming the king of an asylum. The fantasy is considered one of the best from the great Norwegian playwright.

Shakespeare's "The Comedy of Errors," scheduled April 18 - 22, will be directed by a new visiting professor at the University Theatre, Dr. Joseph Kaough. Mistaken identity is the main element of the comedy. Two identical masters and two identical servants provide confusion for a wife, a courtesan, parents, and the twins themselves.

Season tickets for this year's major productions went on sale Monday. Tickets are $7 each, and a season ticket entitles the holder to a reserved seat on the night of his choice for each performance.

Tickets and information can be obtained by calling the University Theatre at 742-2153, or by going by the box office in the lobby of the theatre. Season tickets may be purchased through Oct. 15. Box office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Postal Service implements new plan to cut down mail-order swindles

A new consumer protection program, designed to assist postal customers who complain of mail-order swindles, has been implemented by the U.S. Postal Service, it has been announced by Chief Inspector William J. Cotter. The Postal Inspection Service for the first time has begun notifying legitimate mail-order merchants of postal customers complaints alleging failure to receive ordered merchandise or promised refunds. The procedure encourages immediate settlement of such claims.

The program was extended nationwide about a two-month pilot project was termed "very successful" by postal officials. During the test, approximately 80 per cent of the customer complaints received were resolved by this method.

Frequently many complaints do not indicate a scheme to defraud the customer, but may be merely the result of poor business practices on the part of the mail-order firm. All complaints received by the Postal Service from the public alleging fraud or misrepresentation of products and services sold by mail are reviewed by postal inspectors to determine if an investigation should be initiated, or if they can be resolved under the new consumer protection program. In each instance, the consumer will be notified as to the action taken.

public from swindlers. Since that time, postal inspectors have vigorously investigated complaints from the public that involve a scheme to defraud with a view toward obtaining a criminal prosecution against those who prey on unsuspecting consumers.

Postal customers who have complaints regarding mail-order transactions should contact their local postmaster, the nearest postal inspector, or write to the Chief Postal Inspector, Washington, D.C. 20260.

Scouting Corner

Jeff Klotzman

In the words of Tech's head scout Ted Unbehagen, "New Mexico has a complete new look this season, from brand new uniforms to a complete overhaul of their offensive philosophy."

"New" is the word to describe the 1974 edition of Lobo football. Gone is '73 head coach Rudy Feldman, and youthful Bill Mondt has stepped into the driver's seat. The first chore of the Mondt administration was throwing out the wishbone offense and switch to the Houston veer complemented by a pro passing set.

Unbehagen

In the '73 outing between the Raiders and New Mexico, the Lobos came into town with a dandy senior quarterback named Don Woods, a master of the wishbone attack. However, Woods never got the chance to show his stuff because the Raiders jumped out to a 14-0 lead and Woods was stuck with the short end of the pulley bone. Tech waltzed away with a 41-7 verdict after 60 minutes of play.

Unbehagen said the Lobos' new quarterback, jucotransfer Steve Myer, performed to perfection in New Mexico's 32-23 victory over Colorado State last weekend, showing a flair for throwing touchdown passes while running the veer adequately.

Myers isn't feared for his running ability so he usually lets runningbacks George Anderson and Chester Goodson handle the overland routes. Both Anderson and Goodson are noted for their lower back strength because they are built close to the ground.

Unbehagen said, "They look alike when they are on the field. They have great strength and it takes more than one arm tackle to bring them down."

The receiving corps features a top performer in split end Ken Lege, who possesses 4.5 speed and latched on to two TD aeriels against CSU.

The offensive line is built around quick guard Ken Brown and strong guard Ed Bell. Both are returning starters from the '73 squad. Sizing up New Mexico offensively, Unbehagen said, "They have a good passer and some fine receivers so they are a definite threat passing-wise. They are also noted for dumping the ball to their backs who can really scoot with the ball once they catch it."

Mark Dove, who handles the defensive scouting for the Raiders summed up the Lobos as you've guessed it, "100 per cent brand new."

"New Mexico really had enthusiasm and motivation going for them and you can see it in their players and their coaches," Dove said. "They return seven players on defense and their experience and maturity will help them a lot."

The best athletes on the team, in Dove's estimation, are defensive ends Robin Cole and Greg Jones. Jones is the super athlete of the ball club who made the team as a walkon.

Noseguard Bill Bassetto is the nucleus of the unit and Dove said the entire defense revolves around him.

The linebacker play was the big question mark facing the Lobos in fall drills but they think they have found the answers in Dave Thompson and John Gener.

The defensive secondary is the highlight of the entire defensive squad with three starters returning from the '73 team. Cornerbacks Ronnie Wallace and Rick Jones are quality players who have a knack for stumbling into offensive passing routes. Free safety Randy Rich plays the run and pass equally well and is one of New Mexico's top athletes.

Dove said the Lobo secondary was caught looking twice against CSU and were burned for two long touchdown plays.

"CSU did score twice on long gainers last week but they are an excellent passing team," said Dove. "New Mexico's defense, overall, isn't very large but they are mobile and are enthusiastic. Enthusiasm is probably their top asset. They are young and they don't want to be beat offensively."

Pecos Kid a special freshman

By KIRK DOOLEY
Sports Writer

Back where this writer came from, if someone made all-district in any one sport, they were stars, and the girls (including many homecoming hopefuls) flocked about them. In Pecos, Texas, where freshman Don Walker came from, they could have done away with all-district honors when Walker's awards were finally categorized.

Shall we begin with football? The fleet split end led his district in receiving (615 yards) and was all-district, all-West Texas and all-South Plains, all in his junior year. He was all of the above, plus all-state, plus prep all-American his senior year.

With zero time to rest on his laurels, Don immediately took up basketball when the football season ended. He started all four years and his junior year he made all-district and all-West Texas. His senior year he added the honors of all-South Plains and although he failed to make all-state (no tears shed in sorrow for the boy), he made a few prep all-America teams.

Presley named starter

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sub Quarterback Mike Presley, who piled up 163 yards running and passing in less than three quarters against Boston College last Saturday, has been picked to start when the Longhorns play Wyoming this weekend.

Presley, a redshirt junior from Grand Prairie, filled in when starter Marty Akins suffered a brain concussion. Coach Darrell Royal said doctors recommended that Akins not play Saturday night. In another quarterback change, split receiver Walter Rowan was switched to No. 3 quarterback, and third-team quarterback Adrian Ford was moved to linebacker.

Oklahoma, Vanderbilt, and several others that he never heard of. Texas wanted him for basketball and "some town near Houston wanted me to run track. I forgot their name, too."

Possibly the most inviting offer was made by some team that was different than the rest. The Oakland Athletics offered him $12,000 to sign plus $750 per month for a certain period of time until he played. Following the "hassle" of deciding what to do and where to go, Don ended up in Weymouth Hall and will start for the Picadors Monday at split end. "Tech is so close to home," said Don, "and they have such a winning tradition. I don't know what I'd do if I played on a losing team. I've never been on one."

Don is excited about receiving for quarterbacks like freshmen Rodney Allison and Mike Mock. He likes the way they throw, hard and accurate.

A typical freshman, Don has some not so typical qualities. He is one of the few blacks I know who is into "Chicano power." Don has a Mexican girlfriend named Jane Corrales, a 15-year-old freshman at Pecos High. Besides the O'Jays and The Isley Brothers, Don listens to something or someone called El Charonegro, which is some combination of soul and Spanish music.

During the interview with Don, he kept denying that he was involved in the blackjack game that was going full swing in his room. Instead he was "just watching the Oakland - Buffalo game on TV." He was watching, in particular, Fred Biletnikoff, the Oakland receiver who used to catch for Tech coach (and former Florida State QB) Jerry Sullivan.

Despite the jeers of "Pecos Kid" and others, Don likes it here just fine. He readily admits that the $12,000 he turned down looms in his mind as things like a brand new Mark IV (any color), "or anything else that much money could buy" and despite all that cash he still made that decision "to come here and get a good education."

That's a pretty refreshing statement from someone who could have hidden behind his headlines and clippings while driving around in a hot new car.

It takes a strong individual to strive to better himself while glory is his, yet his potential is not reached.

Viva el Pecos Kid!

Pecos Kid

Don Walker from Pecos, Texas is one freshman who has made tough decisions in his young life. He passed up a baseball contract with the World Champion Oakland Athletics to play split end for Tech's Picadors.
