

Patricia Hearst to join revolutionary cause, criticizes family action

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, the newspaper heiress who was dragged screaming from her apartment two months ago, renounced her family on Wednesday and declared she was joining her terrorist kidnapers as a revolutionary.

"I have changed — grown. I've become conscious and can never go back to the life we led before," said the tape-recorded voice identified by her mother as that of Patricia's.

The 20-year-old heiress has been held during demands for millions of dollars of free food for the poor.

A SECOND VOICE on the tape, identifying himself as a leader of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, declared that the heiress to a newspaper fortune was free to leave at any time and added that her freedom was no longer a subject for negotiation.

The FBI agent in charge of the case, Charles Bates, said he did not know whether Patricia was staying of her own free will. "I don't feel it makes any difference in our investigation," he said.

The taped message was delivered to a San Francisco radio station one day after another "communique" that promised details of Miss Hearst's release would be provided within 72 hours. That message had signaled an apparent end to the two-month Hearst family ordeal during which $2 million in free food was given away and another $4 million pledged to secure the young woman's release.

PATRICIA'S 18-YEAR-OLD sister Ann arrived at the family home in suburban Hillsborough moments after the tape was delivered. "I know Patty far too well to think she'd come around like that. She only hears one side of the story... I don't believe it. She's too bull-headed."

But on the tape, the latest in a series of suddenly delivered communications from the terrorist group, Patricia said: "I have learned how vicious the pig really is, and our comrades are teaching me to attack with even greater viciousness..."

Thomas O'Hara, program director of KSAN, the station to which the message was sent, said the envelope contained the tape, a typed transcript, a color photograph and a thin slip of paper which said the other half of Patricia's driver's license was included. But the document, the other half of which was received Tuesday, was not included.

THE PHOTOGRAPH SHOWED Miss Hearst holding an automatic rifle and standing in front of a banner bearing the seven-headed cobra symbol of the SLA.

The man who identified himself as Cinque, SLA General Field Marshal, said in the tape recording: "There is no further need to discuss the release of the prisoner, since she is now a comrade and has been accepted into the ranks of the peoples' army as a comrade and fighter. And there is no further basis for negotiations since the subject may leave whenever she feels that she wishes to do so, and she is armed and perfectly willing and able to defend herself."

Miss Hearst was seized the evening of Feb. 4 at the apartment she shared with her fiancée, graduate student Steven Weed.

THE SLA, BELIEVED to be a multiracial group of no more than 25 members, also declared certain "corporate enemies of the people" would be shot on sight. Three persons — two black men and one white woman — were said on the broadcast to be on a death list.

There had been speculation within past weeks that Miss Hearst may have been in league with the SLA from the outset — speculation vehemently denied by Weed, her parents and by associates of the Hearst family.

Miss Hearst began her message by saying she had never been forced to say anything on any tape "nor have I been brainwashed, drugged, tortured, hypnotized or in any way confused."

SHE TERMED THE $2-million People in Need food giveaway funded by her father and the William Randolph Hearst Foundation "a sham." Then, to her parents, she said: "You were playing games — stalling for time — time which the FBI was using in their attempts to assassinate me and the SLA elements which guarded me."

She accused her father of being a liar and said, "You said you are concerned with my life and the lives and interests of all oppressed people... but you are a liar in both areas, and as a member of the ruling class I know your interests and Mom's are never the interests of the people."

The communique was delivered to the radio station in an envelope marked "energy crisis news." Another message from the group delivered to an underground newspaper Tuesday arrived with a dozen long-stemmed roses.

IN THE 20-MINUTE recording, Miss Hearst said she had been given the name "Tanya," after a comrade who fought alongside Cuban revolutionary Che Guevara in Bolivia.

"I embrace the name with the determination to continue fighting with her spirit," the taped message said. "There is no victory in half-assed attempts at revolution."

Several faces of a Black Panther

Bobby Seale appearance at Tech marred by reported threat on life

By ROBERT MONTEMAYOR
News Editor

Black Panther Party co-founder Bobby Seale's life was threatened Wednesday just before he went on stage at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium to speak about the "Black Liberation Struggle in America."

Tech Police Chief Bill G. Daniels told the University Daily a local priest had received a telephone call about 7 p.m. Wednesday from an unknown person who promised to "kill this Bobby Seale tonight and put his soul where it's supposed to be."

Daniels said the priest called the Lubbock Police Department which in turn alerted Daniels and his force of the threat.

"WE HAD ORIGINALLY scheduled five policemen to cover the speech," Daniels said. "Upon receiving the call from LPD, I assigned seven more patrolmen to attend the talk."

He said there were no reports of anyone attempting to kill Seale. In addition to the patrolmen assigned with Daniels, it was reported Seale had as many as eight Black Panthers in the auditorium.

Seale, scheduled to begin his talk at 8 p.m. kept the crowd waiting for 40 minutes before he was introduced.

After he was introduced, the crowd applauded and Seale still did not appear. A long pause later Seale came on stage with two body guards, who sat on stage behind him during the entirety of the speech.

The audience was extremely quiet as Seale came on stage. Seale did not appear to be rattled much as he slowly began his blasting rhetorical speech. No mention of the threat on his life was ever made to the audience.

IN A LOW TONED VOICE, he began criticizing the mass media for "not trying to tell you what we (Black Panthers) are trying to do."

"The press has not told you about the real goals of the organization," he said. "They haven't told you about the unjust racial brutality to the poor black people. They didn't tell you about the 10 points set out in the Black Panther Party... that we wanted power, full employment for our people, better living shelters, decent education, an end to the exploitation of the poor and medical care when we want it. The press didn't tell you about all of these contributions."

"And they say that Bobby Seale is fighting to beat his hard image. Hell, the press media are the ones that created that image for me," he said.

He told the crowd of approximately 700 that he was trying to build "new character" for the Panther Party. "Malcom X told us there was a need to organize the people," Seale said. "On that we are trying to implement concrete projects, trying to contribute to the black liberation movement."

He heavily criticized the government hierarchy for what he termed wasting $10 billion for the war on poverty. "The poor people are in worse shape than they were before the $10 billion was spent, just because of corrupt politicians," he said.

Earlier in the day, at a press conference, Seale had told reporters that the offices of president and vice president should be abolished and the power put back in the hands of the people.

"THE PRESIDENT IS controlled by the corporate racist power structure. We have a President running around corrupting the government. The office is a vast monster — the biggest usurpation of power there is," he said.

"They talk about the energy crisis. The only energy crisis we have is that we haven't had enough energy to impeach and oust Nixon out of office," Seale said. Shouting at the top of his voice at times, Seale kept spouting out more criticisms of American society.

"They talk about justice for all. If I'm one part of the all, then I want my part, because I'll sure as hell take it," he said.

Seale said blacks should not only consider themselves just beautiful blacks, but rather human beings.

"We are no longer niggers, Negroes, blacks or even coloreds. We are human beings!"

"THE PEOPLE DON'T control the President. The people must have control of the institutions that control their lives. Civilization, in order to be set down, must set down a functional institutional system... one the people control. But, that is the crux of the problem today. The people do not control the institutions around them."

He said individuals who talk about dropping out of the system "may just as well drop out of the universe."

Seale said no one could disregard the system and emphatically expressed that "those exploited are interconnected and interrelated within the system" the most.

He continued saying, "Capitalism is only an aspect of the system... a cancerous aspect... but it is not the system. Racism is also an aspect — an aspect which exploits the methods of the system."

Seale also said, "If some of you think that you want to grow up to be president, then you'll grow up to be corrupt. You'll grow up to be a burglar!"

HE URGED BLACKS not to let people tell them that the black liberation movement is dying. "Ten years ago there were two million blacks registered to vote in America, and now there are more than 10 million blacks registered to vote. If people tell you the movement is dying, don't believe them. You have all that power. Don't let it slide by," he said.

As soon as Seale finished his talk, his two bodyguards rushed up to him and hurriedly escorted him off stage. Because of the threat, the question and answer session had to be cancelled.

Seale's appearance here was a part of Black Week sponsored by Tech's Student Organization for Black Unity.

Committee members to draw blueprint for Tech growth

By JOANNA VERNETTI
UD Reporter

Men and women in various professions all over the state are now being contacted to serve on Tech's Master Blueprint Plan Committee. The committee will propose a 10-year plan for Tech's future development.

The master plan idea was presented by Regent Judson Williams and approved by the Board at the Feb. 1 meeting. The committee to prepare the master plan will work voluntarily and complete the study within six months after being formed.

Explaining his reasons for presenting the master plan idea, Williams said, "Any institution ought to have a plan of growth and plan for the future. We need to plan to know how to cope with the educational problems and possibilities provided in the future."

Williams, who served on a similar committee in 1962 for Texas Western College, now the University of Texas at El Paso, said his group's one-year study made recommendations to the college, and in 1973 an evaluation showed 95 per cent of the goals outlined by the committee in 1963 had been implemented.

Tech's committee will make recommendations on where Tech should be 10 years from now, Williams said. The committee, composed of 35-50 members, will be drawn from leading people throughout the state who are interested in Tech's continued progress.

The committee will have all the resources of the University available to them for their study, Williams said. "We want to have them come out with reachable goals. We want them to be realistic and visionary."

The committee will study Tech's educational plan in the past and determine its strengths and weaknesses, while also examining areas such as funding, faculty and student recruitment, curriculum requirements, and physical facilities. "We do not want them to limit their thinking in what Tech can do in any field," Williams said. "This will set guidelines and set priorities."

"We can't be all things, nor should we be," he added. The committee will make proposals on which areas of study should be emphasized and which should receive less funding in the coming 10 years. "If you don't have a dream, how can it come true?" Williams asked.

The report to the Board by this interested, representative group of citizens will be an outstanding opportunity for the institution," Dr. Glenn E. Barnett, Tech executive vice president said. "This committee is an attempt to get wide-based reactions to what institutions ought to do. It will be directional and specific."

Dr. Grover Murray is expected to present a complete list of the names of members for the 10-year plan committee for Board approval at the next Regents meeting May 7.

Editorial

Student government an exercise in futility

Tech students have elected another student government.

Big deal, you say — right? What's so different?

In an early student election editorial, we noted that this newly elected set of student leaders — senators and executive officers — could prove to be the most critically needed leaders in recent student government history.

Why?

YOUR STUDENT LEADERS, each year, must set a tone of student government, a "style" so to speak, in dealing with student issues. In recent years virtually every imaginable "style" of leadership has been evident in student government — from one-man benevolent dictatorship in one administration to caretaker politics in another.

Most recently we've seen student government "spread out" to include more and more numbers of students, but actually accomplish less and less in terms of new programs and new services. Many of the students involved in the cumbersome bureaucracy created within student government this year sought only "titles" and "prestige" — the executive assistant subcommittee chairman of the Office of the Executive Director of Legislative Affairs .. and on and on.

If there was ever a program of commensurate importance and prestige to the many titles adopted by many student leaders last year, the list of accomplishments in student government would be phenomenal — but it's not.

Instead of accomplishments in terms of "programs" and specifics, the SA has accomplished something perhaps of more importance — groundwork.

Unfortunately in the past, many programs and services were created by student leaders only later to collapse in dismal failure as new student leaders took over. The groundwork was never there — the planning, the projections, the long-term implementation of new programs and services was virtually non-existent.

As a result, the SA hurriedly created a student book exchange. The concept was good. The first book exchange ran relatively smoothly. Then, a new student government took the reins and the book exchange met with an untimely, and indebted death. The student book exchange proved to be an "accomplishment" for one student administration and a total disaster for another. No groundwork.

THE EQUALLY DISASTROUS recreational facilities expansion project saw students faithfully accepting a $15 "student use fee" increase on the premise that "a high priority" would be given recreational facilities. Instead of a high priority, student recreational facilities were left with a beggar's share of the millions in bond sales that the $15 a semester student tax will generate in 20 or 30 years. Without the necessary groundwork, student government was blindly trapped into accepting makeshift recreation facilities that merely pacify, not satisfy student needs.

Student money was used to resurface the Tech track field at a cost in excess of $100,000 — a use that students never approved. More than one-half of all student recreation money will go for ONE swimming pool — eliminating numerous, less costly recreation facilities projects. Student recreation money is also being used to construct an outdoor amphitheater, a facility that never received any support from student groups, but nevertheless is being built.

Without the necessary groundwork, student government was a weak, ineffective force in changing the priorities assigned to these facilities by regents and administrators and providing for reasonable, comprehensive expansion of recreation facilities at Texas Tech.

AND NOW, WITH the passing of one Student Association administration to another, we finally see some groundwork being laid:

Groundwork in communications to the highest level of decision-making at Texas Tech.

The establishment of a "red book" — a sort of elementary primer for regents on student issues and student affairs.

The beginnings of a student consumer complaint service.

A student "helpline" to the Counseling Center for troubled and confused students (there's a lot of that going around).

A Student Information Service — providing student senators in the SA office at specific times to help answer student questions about "what can I do about this, or, who can help me with that?" — the beginnings of an ombudsman program.

Student government has even delved in the forbidden world of academics and the even more sacred area of tenure recommendations — just a meager beginning.

THE REVIEW OF budgets of all organizations that use YOUR student fees — the more than $1 million annually that previously received little or no student scrutiny, only rubber stamp approval.

Student government is also trying to gain some control of "student use fees" — a euphemism attached to a seemingly boundless "fee" that can be collected from students to fund programs and projects the legislature refuses to fund — like buildings on any campus other than the University of Texas at Austin.

These are all areas that student government has provided some ground work in — virtually only within the last year. But, we emphasize that it is only groundwork, not finalized programs or policies that can be immediately implemented by our new student administration.

But unfortunately for the new student administration, there are many immediate issues that must be dealt with and resolved — issues such as alcohol in dormitories, student representation on University committees, recognition of certain student organizations, and the rights and responsibilities of Tech students as enfranchised, emancipated legal adults.

FROM OUR OBSERVATION over these past years, and of past student administrations, one "style" of leadership is called for in the coming year.

The benevolent dictatorship was tried, and failed.

Presidency in absentia was tried, and failed. Presidency by bureaucracy was tried, and met with too many frustrations.

A presidency in student government that deals firmly, strongly and forcefully with student issues and student wants is what Texas Tech has long needed. Perhaps it has arrived.

Some of the most "meaningful" changes in administrative policies and programs have come only at the threat of court action, or open confrontation on issues. Progress has come to Texas Tech only after its share of controversy, and controversy cannot be avoided in seeking the successful implementation of "meaningful" programs at Texas Tech.

It seems, though, that administrators and regents see most attempts by student government at securing progress as "threats" to their dominance of "power" over the lives of students at Texas Tech. To admit that students can plan, operate and implement programs and policies affecting the everyday lives of other students at Texas Tech is to admit that perhaps we don't need the many "administrators" we have that presently plan, operate and implement programs and policies.

To admit that students are adult enough to be responsible, reliable citizens of the University community is to admit that perhaps we don't need as many of the "guardians" at Texas Tech as we presently employ — perhaps fewer policemen, perhaps fewer disciplinarian administrators, perhaps fewer supervisory personnel for the dormitories...

Perhaps... BUT, ONE THING is certain in the quest for progress. Administrators and regents will jealously guard and protect their power to administer and govern the academic lives of every student and faculty member at Texas Tech. It is unfortunate, but true, that they view their positions as places of "power" and any attempt at entering those spheres of "power" by any student government must be repulsed as futile attempts by students to exercise their own "student power."

It is for this reason that each time progressive programs are proposed, controversy and confrontation between students and administrators occurs — a conflict of "power" versus "power." This cycle can only be broken when both sides realize that it is not power the Tech student wants, or needs...

...It is the simple act of securing the privilege, not the power, to exercise certain rights.

When the struggle ceases to be one for power, and begins to be one for rights, perhaps then, progress can be made and student government will cease to be an exercise in futility at Texas Tech...

...Perhaps

New unit to oversee Tech farms

The College of Agricultural Sciences is in the process of organizing and implementing a new Division of Agricultural Services, according to Agricultural Sciences Dean Anson R. Bertrand.

Dr. Dale W. Zinn, animal science department chairman since 1967, has been appointed assistant dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences and director of the new services division.

"The immediate responsibility of the new assistant dean," Bertrand said, "will be to organize the division which will administer all the farming and livestock operations."

The College of Agricultural Sciences has farming and livestock operations on approximately 1,000 acres on and adjoining the Tech campus, 2,240 acres in two tracts in Terry County near Brownfield, and 981 acres of land in north Lubbock county near New Deal.

The College also has title to and use rights on approximately 14,000 acres of land at the Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo (Pantex), located about 15 miles east of the panhandle city, and 430 acres at the Tech University Center at Junction.

"The primary reason for the establishment of this service division is to provide overall coordination for the diverse field laboratory activities of the College," Bertrand said.

"Our major objective will be to improve our ability to teach and provide research opportunities for student and faculty," said Bertrand. "Another purpose will be to improve the quality of our livestock and keep our operations more in tune with industrial and commercial livestock operations."

Bertrand also said that the division can assure a more efficient use of equipment used in distant farm and livestock operations.

"Not everything can be done at once," Zinn said, "but we will move into other areas in support of teaching and research. We look forward to developing a center for visual aids for instructional use by the departments, a centralized publications unit, and a program to coordinate various activities, such as field days, promotions and exhibits," Zinn added.

"The service division's responsibilities will cover a wide spectrum," Bertrand said, "and it will be a support role all the way."

Farenthold

Organizational meeting slated for Farenthold area campaign

An organizational meeting for the Lubbock area campaign of gubernatorial candidate Frances Farenthold has been scheduled for 8 p.m. today at campaign headquarters, 809 University.

Campaign manager Harry Osborne called the meeting to begin planning campaign tactics and fund-raising operations.

Farenthold, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1972, will visit Lubbock sometime during mid-April. The organizational meeting will plan such events as campaign dinners, art auctions and other fund-raising activities, said Ann Coleman, media contact for the headquarters.

"Sissy" will again be challenging Gov. Dolph Briscoe for the right to run in the November general election on the Democratic ticket. The Lubbock campaign will be in full swing as soon as volunteers are recruited to man the headquarters, knock on doors in each of the precincts, and make phone calls.

Farenthold, a graduate of the University of Texas Law School, during her 1972 bid for the nomination carried 46 per cent of the vote. She was also the first woman ever to be nominated for the vice presidency of the United States at the 1972 National Democratic convention.

Campus music festival slated

By ANN SANDERS
UD Staff

Performers from Texas will be featured in Tech's first full scale music festival Saturday and Sunday, April 13-14. The Lone Star Muzik Festival, sponsored by the University Center Program Council, will bring rock entertainers such as Michael Murphy, Asleep at the Wheel and others to provide two days of free music.

The festival will be held adjacent to the Ex-Student Association Building on the corner of 19th and University. Chairman for the festival, John Williams, said there will be refreshments available and contests sponsored by the various UC committees. Some of the contests planned include activities such as kite-flying and an "infamous cigarette rolling" contest.

Michael Murphy is to be the highlight of the festival. He has written numerous songs used by Michael Nesmith and wrote songs for television in the late 60s. Murphy has also appeared at many outdoor music festivals throughout Texas and the South. His fourth album, now being released, will be given away at his performance. He is scheduled to appear at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Other performers scheduled for Saturday include the Skillet Lickers at 3 p.m., Asleep at the Wheel at 4:30 p.m. and Rusty Weir at 6:30 p.m. Asleep at the Wheel appeared here several months ago with the group Colours and, according to Williams, was received with enthusiasm by the Tech crowd. The country swing group recently signed with United Artists and has just released a new album.

Sunday, the schedule includes Asleep at the Wheel at 2 p.m., Skillet Lickers at 3:30 p.m., Rusty Weir at 5 p.m. and Uncle Tom at 6:30 p.m. Uncle Tom is a rock and roll blues group from originally were from Texas. They have appeared with groups such as War and Quick Silver Messenger Service. The group played for a crowd of 3,500 this year at UC Week in the fall.

Williams said the festival has been planned as a kickoff drive for new members of the UC committees. Applications are now available at the UC and in various buildings around campus. Persons interested, he said, are urged to fill out an application and bring it to the UC office.

Nixon agrees to pay back taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has agreed to pay back income taxes of $432,787.13 plus interest that could push the total to $465,000, the White House announced Wednesday night.

The announcement said the Internal Revenue Service had ruled Nixon owed the taxes on income during his White House years, and that the President ordered full payment with interest.

Word of that decision came hours after the staff of a joint congressional committee recommended that Nixon pay $476,431 in back taxes and interest for the years 1969 through 1972.

A White House source said the IRS had told Nixon there was no suggestion of fraud, civil or criminal, in the assessment for back taxes.

Officials said that on virtually every challenged tax item, the IRS findings and those of the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation were in agreement.

They said the different tax amounts stemmed from differences in calculations.

The congressional staff report was made public by 9 to 1 vote of the joint committee. The panel adjourned Wednesday without deciding whether to adopt formally the findings of its staff. It is to meet again Thursday, but White House word that Nixon will pay back taxes seemed to make its deliberations moot.

The President asked this prestigious panel to look into two major items his returns last December when disputes over them arose after he had made them public.

He said then that he would pay any additional amounts due if the committee found his returns had errors in them.

The panel accepted the responsibility but insisted on looking into all of the items involved, not just the two cited by Nixon.

The staff emphasized in submitting its report that the document "is not a demand for payment of taxes."

"Any tax payment is a matter for consideration by the taxpayer and the Internal Revenue Service."

IRS already has announced it is re-examining the President's returns for 1970, 1971 and 1972.

The report also made clear the staff did not try to draw any conclusions as to whether fraud or negligence was involved in any of the disputed items on the President's returns.

If civil fraud were found by IRS, a 50 per cent penalty could be levied.

The staff said that this position was appropriate since the House Judiciary Committee now is conducting an impeachment investigation of the President.

A copy of the document was sent immediately to the Judiciary panel.

The major item on which the report found against Nixon involved his deductions for his vice presidential papers valued at $576,000 to the National Archives.

West Texas history group slates 51st annual session

The West Texas Historical Association will meet here Friday and Saturday for its 51st annual session. The activities, open to the public, will get under way Friday with tours of the Southwest Collection and Ranch Headquarters Museum at 2:45 p.m.

This week's letters were kind of dull. But I did get a neat package. It contained a home-built mouse trap. Not

Allstate told to pay dividends or leave Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Insurance Commissioner Don Odum has given Allstate, Texas' second largest auto insurer, a choice: pay $4 million in disputed policyholder dividends or leave the state.

Allstate, which receives more than $75 million a year from Texas auto policy premiums, said it would appeal Odum's ruling.

Odum said Tuesday the company's certificate to do business in Texas would be canceled if Allstate does not start paying the dividends within 30 days.

Allstate canceled dividends on its expiring policies Oct. 3, 1973, the same day the board granted it the right to reduce its rates on automobile policies below the Texas uniform rates.

Odum noted that Allstate customers whose policies expired between June 1 and Oct. 3, 1973 received dividends and said those with coverage expiring after Oct. 3 were victims of "unfair discrimination and unlawful treatment."

Students needed to man phones for Interchange

Interchange, a hotline for students wanting personal counseling, general information about the University and referrals to specific agencies connected with their problems, needs student volunteers to man phones.

There are no specific qualifications other than the student be willing to work on the phone four hours a night, said Joseph Bak, director of Interchange. Students desiring to volunteer their services should contact the Counseling Center at 742-4297 and set up an interview.

Interchange is not in operation yet, Bak said, but the hotline will definitely be in operation in the fall and also hopefully for the summer sessions.

Bak said Interchange will be totally staffed by student volunteers. The hotline will allow students to be helped by other students, rather than become involved with official sources, he said.

Texas hosts A's in opener

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The owner's box may be a bit crowded Thursday night when the full of spring vinegar Texas Rangers challenge the world champion Oakland A's in an American League baseball opener.

"We haven't quite worked out who will be sitting where," Bob Short joked Tuesday after he sold 90 per cent of the Rangers for $10 million.

Besides industrialist Brad Corbett, who is the principal owner, there are eight other businessmen in the Dallas-Fort Worth area who now own a piece of the club.

The Rangers will send fireballing Jim Bibby, who no-hit Oakland last year, against 20-game winner Jim "Catfish" Hunter in the game expected to draw some 25,000 fans to Turnpike Stadium.

The owners won't be the only thing new.

The Rangers have moved in the "power alleys" 10 feet in right and left centerfield to 360 feet so not so many of power slugger Jeff Burroughs' drives will hang short of the fence in the predominantly southerly wind.

"Jeff hit 30 homers last year and I bet he'll hit 40 this year," says brash Billy Martin, who will be making his debut as Ranger manager.

Burroughs says, "I really don't care how many homers I hit. I just want to win for a change and I think we will. I'm like Billy, I'm not even thinking .500 ball. I'm thinking of winning the pennant."

The Rangers enter the young season as baseball's worst team for the second consecutive year. Martin was hired last September after Whitey Herzog was fired for failing to inject some life into the club.

"I think we're going to surprise some people," Martin says. "We've got a lot of speed on this ball club and we can force the other team into mistakes."

Alvin Dark is owner Charlie Finley's designated manager of the Oakland A's for the season after a spat with former manager Dick Williams, who was held to his contract by Finley and could not jump to the New York Yankees. Williams is now in the insurance business in Florida.

Hunter says, "We'll play hard for Dark, but we'll miss Dick, of course. He is a great manager. He gave me the confidence I needed to become a winner."

Spring training blues

Sophomore quarterback Tommy Duniven contemplates his new status as heir apparent to Joe Barnes while his other teammates take part in various spring drills.

Aaron: will he, or won't he?

CINCINNATI — Will he or won't he? The answer to the Great Henry Aaron Debate is only hours away.

The Atlanta Braves' home run artist arrives with his team today amid a swirling controversy over whether he'll play in Thursday's baseball season opener or in the remaining two games of the series.

An announcement on the decision is likely to come at Thursday's 11:30 a.m. EDT press conference. Aaron and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn will be in attendance.

Aaron, on the threshold of eclipsing one of the most hallowed records of all time, has been a raging topic of debate this spring since the Braves announced he would likely be kept out of the lineup until the club returns to Atlanta.

He needs one home run to tie Babe Ruth's legendary record of 714 career smashes.

Both clubs were scheduled for light workouts today.

A sell-out crowd of 51,726 is expected at the four-year-old stadium which Aaron officially christened with the first homer hit in the gleaming white $45 million edifice.

If he plays, as Kuhn has strongly suggested, Aaron will be facing Reds' right-hander Jack Billingham, a 19-game winner last year.

The sinker-ball specialist said he'll have a hollow spot in his stomach if Aaron strides to the plate accompanied by an expected standing ovation. "Then I'll have to get down to business," said the 31-year-old Billingham, who has given up five homers to Aaron.

Reds' Manager George "Sparky" Anderson plans to follow with fireballing lefty Don Gullett in Saturday's nationally televised game. Gullett has permitted nine homers to the 40-year-old superstar — more than any other Red. Newcomer Clay Kirby is scheduled to start in Sunday's final game of the series.

Phil Niekro or Carl Morton will likely oppose Billingham.

Grambling coach to speak at athletic banquet

Eddie Robinson, athletic director and head coach at Grambling, will be the featured speaker at the annual Red Raider Club All-Sports Banquet for Tech athletes April 9, Roy K. Furr, club president, announced.

Robinson has compiled a 225-80-11 won-loss record at Grambling while developing more than 100 players for professional football. Only Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama with 232 victories has scored more wins among active coaches.

Brought in to rebuild the Grambling football program in 1941, Robinson immediately went to work and the rest is history. The school plays a coast-to-coast schedule each year and winning has been its trademark.

Robinson is a graduate of Leland College of Baker, La., and holds a Masters degree from the University of Iowa.

Bill McAlister, president of KSEL Radio and TV, will serve as master of ceremonies.

The banquet will honor all-conference players in all sports and the recipients of the Pete Cawthon, Dell Morgan and Donny Anderson awards to outstanding footballers.

Furr emphasized that the banquet is open to the public, and that all members of the family should enjoy the event, slated to begin at 6:30 p.m. in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Leete Jackson, executive vice president of the Red Raider Club, stressed that no funds will be solicited at the banquet. Tickets cost $5 per person and may be obtained by writing Jackson's office, Box 456, Lubbock, 79408.

Managers meeting set

The last Women's IM sportsmanagers meeting for this semester will be held today at 5:30 in the basement of the Women's Gym. Each club, sorority, dorm, and independent team should have a representative at the meeting.

Little "500" bicycle races and golf entries have been extended until April 5. The Little "500" is scheduled for Saturday at Memorial Circle. Golf competition will start first round play April 10.

Repairmen were hurriedly patching up a section of the leftfield fence — Aaron's prime home run territory — that was battered by high winds Monday night.

The Reds have announced Vice President Gerald Ford will pinch-pitch for President Nixon in throwing out the traditional first ball.

German drama opens today

Tech's German Theater will present the Max Frisch drama, "The Firebugs," in the Qualia Room of the Foreign Language and Mathematics Building today through Saturday and Monday through Wednesday of next week. All performances will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The production will be entirely in German, using the original script and titles. "Biedermann und die Brandstifter" is under the direction of Prof. Theodor W. Alexander and students Inge Shelburne and Anne Leon.

Gottlieb Biedermann, the central character of the story, is portrayed by Shelburne. Biedermann is a solid citizen plagued by his guilty conscience because of his own unethical business practices. He tries to gain a reputation as a humanitarian by giving shelter to a couple of strangers.

The strangers are suspected of arson and already being sought by the police. John D. Archer appears as Schmitz, the wrestler, and James Collier is Eisenring, a waiter.

In supporting roles are Christine Taylor as Biedermann's wife; Linda Kay Lynn as Anna, the maid; Randy Alford as the policeman; Steve Dowden as the doctor of philosophy; and Elaine Garrett as the Widow Knichtling.

Inge Shelburne is the leader of the Fireman's Chorus. Other members are Sharon Hale, Susan Johnson, Sandy Osiek, Kathy Rhodes and Sherry Snider.

"The Firebugs" was first produced in Frankfurt, Germany, in 1959, and has since been produced in the United States in both German and English.

Tickets for the production are $1.50, and will be available at the door or in advance by calling 742-4264.

Grim joke

Schmitz, the arsonist, plays a grim joke on the Biedermann household by pretending to be the ghost of Herr Knechtling in a scene from "The Firebugs" which opens today in the Tech German Theatre. The performers, from left, are Christine Taylor as Frau Biedermann, John Archer (under tablecloth) as Schmitz, Linda Kay Lynn as the maid, James Collier as Schmitz' pal, Eisenring, and Larry Shelburne as Herr Biedermann.

Tech to play host for petroleum meet

Tech will host a two-day meeting of members of the Southwestern petroleum industry April 18-19, in an attempt to better understand the national energy situation.

The meeting will be the 21st annual gathering for the Southwestern Petroleum Short Course sponsored by Tech through the department of petroleum engineering.

Technical papers will be presented at various sites on the Tech campus beginning April 18.

E. D. Dorchester of Texas Electric Service Co. will deliver one of the first discussions of the short course, "Understanding the National Energy Situation," at 10:25 a.m. April 18 in Electrical Engineering room 211.

Dorchester's discussion will present a comprehensive overview of the total energy consumption demand and reserves of the nation. He will outline some immediate options and a look at future sources of energy. The energy plans of the electric utility industry will be discussed with a particular look at fuel diversification programs.

The Southwestern Petroleum Short Course is a technical conference devoted to problems concerning the lifting of petroleum from the ground. Some 30 technical presentations will be made during this year's short course in categories including drilling and well completions, logging and formation evaluation, well stimulation and workover techniques, fracturing, reservoir operations and reservoir engineering, and artificial lift.

The two-day meeting will be highlighted by an opening day luncheon and the presentation of the J. C. Sloninger Award to two individuals for outstanding contributions to the technology of petroleum production. The luncheon will be at 12:05 p.m. in the Ballroom of the University Center.

Nominations sought for Woman of Year

Three student organizations, Mortar Board, Women In Communications and Women's Task Force, are sponsoring a Woman of the Year Award in response to what they feel is a growing need to recognize outstanding women of the Tech campus.

Since the dissolution several years ago of the Association of Women Students, a group which annually sponsored the Faculty Woman of the Year contest, there has been no similar campus wide award.

Nominations can be made by individual students, faculty, and staff members, or by campus organizations. They must be in the form of a letter written to the Woman of the Year Selection Committee, 242 West Hall. Deadline for submitting letters of nomination is 5 p.m. Friday.

Nominees may be women faculty and staff members, and the letter should describe a candidate's contribution to Tech, her profession, students, the community and the role of women. Final selection will be made by a student-faculty committee, and the winners will be announced this month.

Most Handsome

Walt Barnes, sponsored by Sigma Nu Little Sisters, was chosen "Most Handsome Man" March 27 in the annual contest conducted by Women In Communications. Barnes was selected as a result of "penny-a-vote" balloting in the University Center.

The series will begin at 7:30 p.m. today in room 217 of the Social Science Building, continue Friday with a lecture at 10:30 a.m. in room 260 of the Administration Building, and culminate with the final discussion, also on Friday, at 2:30 p.m. in room 382 of the Administration Building.

Lecture on Ticks

Dr. James H. Oliver Jr., director of the Institute of Anthropology and Parasitology at Georgia Southern University, will lecture on "Aspects of Tick Reproduction," at 7:30 p.m. today in room 101 of the Biology Building.

Oliver's Thursday lecture is a part of the Distinguished Lecturer Series at Cornell University, a distinction shared by scientists of international reputation.

Art Exhibit

Works by nationally known artists will highlight the Ceramics Invitational Exhibition which opened Tuesday in the Department of Art Teaching Gallery. The exhibit will remain on display through April 22. Gallery hours are from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Ten producing artists, including several who operate their own studios, are represented in the collection of items ranging from handcrafted sculpture to functional ware.

Among the artists is Joe Anderson, former Tech student, who is now working in Salt Lake City; Anderson will show low-fire earthenware sculptures. Also on exhibit will be a group of sculptures by Mike Moseley and Terry Bumpass, graduate students at Tech.

Architect fears delay for teaching hospital

By SUSAN GRINE
UD Staff

Energy crisis uncertainties and transportation and delivery of steel may affect the construction time of the new Lubbock County Hospital, according to Bob Goyette, architect of the proposed county medical teaching hospital.

In a recent meeting with the Lubbock County Hospital District board of managers, Goyette said construction time for the new hospital should be set at three years rather than two and one-half.

"Bidders face problems with availability and delivery of materials. I hate to restrict them to less than three years, although they may not need or take the full time to build," said Goyette.

"If we try to crowd builders for time we penalize ourselves," Goyette said. "We will go for the best possible low bid, and extending the construction time will help."

The energy crisis has not affected much of the design of the new hospital, according to Goyette, although some new measures will be taken. For instance, the hospital will attempt to recycle air by using a transfer wheel.

"We bring air in, clean it, cool it (or heat it), then throw it out again. With the transfer wheel, we hope to conserve energy," said Goyette.

Another energy-saving device which will be used is thermo-pane glass which reduces the total air conditioning required.

The hospital will be built adjacent to the Tech Medical School now under construction. A construction contract is expected to be signed by July 1, and move-in time is estimated by Goyette at June 1977. Present timetable for the medical school puts its completion at the end of 1975 or the first of 1976, according to Dr. Richard Lockwood, coordinator for the Medical School-Hospital complex.

Differences between medical doctors, osteopaths discussed by practitioners

By KAREN MURPHEY
UD Reporter

A man who is licensed to treat patients' ills is obviously a doctor and practices medicine. However, there is a definite difference between osteopathic physicians and medical doctors. Approximately 20 per cent of Lubbock's population is first seen by a Doctor of Osteopathy (D.O.) for general medicine, said Dr. Max M. Stettner, D.O. Yet few persons really understand the distinction between D.O.'s and M.D.'s.

Osteopathic medicine differs mainly in its philosophy, said Stettner. The principle and concept behind osteopathy is the treatment of the total man in his total environment, he said.

"An M.D. is taught in school to treat a disease. An osteopath tries to handle each individual as an individual. No two people are alike," said Stettner. "Rather than just treat a headache, we get behind it to the real causes," he explained.

Stettner feels he is qualified to compare osteopathy with general medicine because, although a D.O., he taught classes at the New York Medical College for eight years.

Until recently, osteopathic schools accepted candidates with poorer educational qualifications than did ordinary medical schools. They also gave inferior training with excessive emphasis on spinal manipulation, said one Lubbock M.D.

Any hospitals receiving state funds are now required by law to admit osteopaths, Stettner said. Previous barriers to D.O.'s are presently being removed.

The American Medical Association recently extended an invitation for the American Osteopathic Association to join its ranks. However, osteopaths refused, preferring to remain a separate organization and school of medicine.

"We do a better service to the people of Texas by being a minority. We prevent a monopoly over medical care. An absolute monopoly would only be detrimental to free choice," said Stettner.

He said today there is almost 100 per cent cooperation between M.D.'s and D.O.'s. "We often see patients for the first, basic contact and then, if necessary, refer them to a specialist," said Stettner.

He said that because of the trend toward socialized medicine, most M.D.'s are going into specialized fields today. "The incentive for general practice is being taken away by government programs," Stettner said.

He predicted that socialized medicine will be an everyday part of life by 1980, just as it already is in England and Sweden. "People want cradle to grave free medical care without paying for it. What they don't know is that they are paying for it — through taxes," said Stettner.

Stettner believes osteopaths are forestalling socialized medicine in their role of general practitioners, as the minority. "People still need a family doctor; they may need to be referred to a specialist later," he said.

When asked their opinions on osteopathy, most Lubbock M.D.'s replied that each osteopath must be judged as an individual. Dr. James R. Matthews, M.D., said D.O.'s and M.D.'s receive very much the same training. "The only real difference is that we (M.D.'s) don't take a course in osteopathy," said Matthews.

Matthews agreed that, in the past, M.D.'s have tended to specialize, but he feels the pendulum is swinging the other direction now. "Family practice seems to be getting a lot of play now," he said.

Another Lubbock M.D. (who preferred not to be quoted) said there are some well-trained and very good osteopaths, but added that most M.D.'s look down upon D.O.'s.

Osteopathy itself is based on heavy emphasis on the idea that abnormal curvature and alignment of the spine is the cause of many illnesses, said another local medical doctor. He said this is important, but it has been overemphasized.

Several other M.D.'s said anyone graduated from an osteopathic school in recent years would probably be a fine doctor, basing their statements on improvement in osteopathic standards and curriculums.

Therefore, attitudes concerning osteopathy have changed vastly from days past when D.O.'s were thought of as anything from a chiropractor to a "rubbin' doctor" to a quack.

This is no longer generally true. Most of the nation's seven osteopathic schools have raised their standards and have greatly improved their curriculum in medical subjects, said Stettner.

In 36 states, osteopaths must pass exactly the same examination as M.D.'s before being licensed to practice. In fact, since 1909 there have been nine M.D.'s and three D.O.'s on the Texas Medical Board. They are the doctors who sign every license for practice in the state, said Stettner.

Osteopathic medicine was first described in 1874 by Dr. Andrew Taylor Still, a licensed medical doctor, who founded the first school of osteopathic medicine at Kirksville, Mo., in 1892.

Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine at Fort Worth has been open for three years now and is graduating its first senior class of 22 students this spring, Stettner said. Four Tech students have been accepted for first year training there also, he said.

Stettner says osteopathic students have an advantage in experience over students of general med schools, since osteopathic students in their first semester of school are assigned 20 families, usually underprivileged ones. The students go to their families' homes to become familiar with their circumstances and home life.

For the four years in school, the students become knowledgeable about their assigned families and treat their illnesses, with assistance from D.O.'s in the school.

Thus, when the students graduate and receive their licenses for practice, Stettner said, they have already had experience with patients. The first time an M.D. sees a patient is when he hangs out his sign for business, he said.

However, Dr. John M. McKenna, associate dean for administration at the Tech Med School, contradicted this claim. McKenna said med students get experience with patients from their first semester in med school.

Stettner said five per cent of the physicians in Texas and seven per cent of the doctors in Lubbock are osteopaths. Many small towns in Texas have only osteopaths, not medical doctors, for general practitioners, he said.

American-French relations expected to remain uneasy

WASHINGTON (AP) — French President Georges Pompidou's death Tuesday is not expected to affect the uneasy relationship between the United States and France, U.S. officials said.

Much depends, they added, on who will be France's next president, a question nobody ventures to speculate about.

The differences between the two countries started much before Pompidou took over the presidency from Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The basic differences between the two allied nations are likely to remain, U.S. officials believe, and they boil down to French suspicion that the United States wants to dominate the fragile structure of Atlantic partnership.

The French dislike any reference to partnership and insist that true partnership can exist only between equals. Partnership in the true sense of the word, the French explain, will be conceivable only when the European allies can speak with one voice and with authority based on their combined and unified strength, a thesis with which the United States disagrees.

Murray, ag team to visit Africa

Agreement signed

Director C. Payne Lucas of Africare, Inc., left, and Tech President Grover E. Murray sign an agreement which will send a Tech team of agricultural scientists and a geologist to Niger to work on a long range solution to the six-year disastrous drought which has killed hundreds of thousands and left millions more homeless in the six nations bordering the Sahara of the south.

Five Tech agriculturalists, accompanied by Tech President Grover Murray, will leave April 12 for a three-week visit to Niger, Africa, to make a feasibility study of ranching and farming in Niger.

The study is sponsored by Africare, a non-profit organization dedicated to improving public health care standards in rural Africa. Funds for the study were provided by Lilly Endowment, Inc.

Dr. Anson Bertrand, dean of the School of Agricultural Sciences, will head the Tech study team. Others participating will be Frank Conzelman, director of the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies; Dr. Robert Albin, an animal scientist; Dr. Donald Burzlaff, chairman of the department of range and wildlife management; and agricultural economist Dr. Rex Kennedy.

C. Payne Lucas, Africare director, said Tech was selected as the best school in the nation for the study because of its history of interest in and understanding of agricultural problems similar to those facing Niger.

West Texas and Niger have similar climates, according to Lucas, and solutions to problems in West Texas could be applied to Africa. Niger is one of six nations in the Sahelian area of Africa.

The area is located near the southern Sahara, and the nations have experienced a five-year drought as the desert has crept continually southward.

Lucas said the study hopefully would lead to the development of methods for good management for water and rangeland, revegetation in irrigated agriculture. The ultimate goal of the study is development of a viable agriculture capable of competing for world markets. According to Lucas, this is the long-range cure for famine and poverty such as that experienced by Niger and the other Sahelian nations.

insure animal and crop production.

The group will also look into providing a broad natural laboratory in the heart of the Sahelian area for studying the wide range of agricultural and human problems associated with changes from nomadic to settled life styles. The group will study the feasibility of providing a Sahelian scientific laboratory for agricultural studies to be used by several nations.

Long-range plans also call for the development of a demonstration and research center for African desert agriculture and make a significant improvement in the rural economy of Niger. In addition, there are hopes that the program will eventually lead to the construction of a system or model for improving the life of nomadic people by providing a stable source of life's essentials without destroying their culture and heritage.

Council launches member drive

The University Center Program Council will conduct a membership drive today through April 10. Brochures containing applications for committee memberships will be distributed. Applications should be returned to the Program Office before interview dates April 10-17.

Mike Murphy, chairman of the Program Council, said the reason for changing the membership drive to the spring semester was to be prepared for the fall without wasting time. "We need to arrange procedures now so we'll have a working group ready in the fall," he said.

Chairman and assistant chairmen for the eight University Center committees were selected before spring break, according to Murphy.

Entertainment Committee will be led by Mark Voss, chairman, and Jacques Taylor, assistant chairman; recreation, chairman Dottie Buchanan and assistant chairman Curtis Brooks; Leadership Board, chairman Marla Buckles and assistant chairman Randy Means; Films, chairman Mack Andrews and assistant Vicki Keathley; Fine Arts, chairman Mary Pike and assistant Dana Ferguson; Free University, chairman Beth Johnson and assistant Brenda Massengill; Ideas and Issues, chairman Jane Alexander and assistant Charles Kuratko; International Interest, chairman Scott Dueser and assistant Royal Cox.

Two of the committees will have new emphasis in the fall. Fine Arts will deal more with the visual arts and recreation will utilize different areas outside the UC as well as the game rooms.

Office provides time shift aid

A special office in the University Center is open through Monday to aid students who are having difficulty in adjusting work schedules to class schedules following the class time shift after spring break. A University staff member representing the Office of Academic Affairs is on duty in the Student Association Office from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. When hardship exists, department chairmen and faculty are urged to make every effort to accommodate students, according to a recent letter from the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs. Arrangements for individual students could possibly take the form of allowing a change of sections or allowing students to complete the semester's work through individual study.

For the session starting July, 1974, Euromed will assist qualified American students in gaining admission to recognized overseas medical schools.
And that's just the beginning. Since the language barrier constitutes the preponderant difficulty in succeeding at a foreign school, the Euromed program also includes an intensive 12-16 week medical and conversational language course, mandatory for all students. Five hours daily, 5 days per week (12-16 weeks) the course is given in the country where the student will attend medical school.
In addition, Euromed provides students with a 12-16 week intensive cultural orientation program, with American students now studying medicine in that particular country serving as counselors.

Senior or graduate students currently enrolled in an American university are eligible to participate in the Euromed program.
