

Convocation Halts Classes

A BIG WELCOME FROM A&M — Texas Tech was officially welcomed into the Southwest Conference Saturday night at Kyle Field in College Station. After the Aggie band had spelled out a huge welcome on the playing field, a presentation ceremony saw Roland Dommert, president of the Aggie student body, present a plaque to Bill Dean, Tech Student Assn. president. Accepting the plaque with Dean were Pete Baker, Tech Student Assn. vice president; Larry Campbell, Student Assn. business manager and the editor of the Treador. The contest was played in a rain that made the going rough for footballers and plaque bearers.

Nomination Of Officers Will Follow

The annual All-College Convocation, followed by the nomination of class officers, will necessitate the dismissal of classes from 10 a.m. until noon tomorrow.

Faculty and students will assemble in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum at 10 a.m. and class meetings, to be presided over by last year's officers, will follow at 11.

All Army and Air Force ROTC cadets will attend the Convocation in uniform.

Army ROTC cadets will congregate on the football practice field for roll call and AFROTC cadets will meet in the parking lot north of the Coliseum. Uniform for both groups will be Class B.

James G. Allen, dean of student life, will emcee the Convocation. Tech's Concert Band, under the direction of Dean Killion, will prelude with "Fandango" by Perkins.

Dr. W. G. Steglich, faculty sponsor of Campus Religious Council, will give the invocation. Tech Choir and Tech Singers, directed by Gene Kenney, will present Christiansen's "Laud Him" and James' "Sing and Rejoice".

Pres. R. C. Goodwin will deliver the annual "State of the College" address as principal Convocation speaker. Bill Dean, Student Assn. president, will speak and introduce Council members.

The assembly will be concluded with the singing of the school song, "O, College Mother Beautiful", and "The Matador Song" by the entire student body and faculty. The Band, Choir and Tech Singers will assist.

Following the Convocation, freshmen will remain in the Coliseum for the nomination of class officers. Their meeting will be coordinated by Bill Dean and Janis Jones. Sophomores will meet in the Aggie Auditorium, juniors in Chemistry 101, and seniors in the Speech Bldg. Auditorium.

Presidential nominees will be allowed three minutes for campaign speeches and each candidate must speak one and a half minutes. Students seeking the vice presidential and secretarial nominations will be allowed two minutes for speeches, but need not make these themselves.

Petitions may be obtained in the Student Council office Wednesday for persons campaigning for the Council nominations. These petitions, which require 100 signatures, are substituted for nominations and are not required of class officer nominees.

Expense form IX and 50 cent filing fee for all class officer and Student Council candidates, plus the Council petitions, are due in the Council office by noon, Oct. 3, as they must be shipped to the printer then.

A maximum of $25 may be spent on the campaign and Expense Form IX must include all items used.

Board Nixes Varsity Show

By PRESTON MAYNARD
Treador Managing Editor

Hopes for a Varsity Show on the Texas Tech campus this year were killed Saturday by a unanimous vote of the Varsity Show Board.

At the same time preliminary planning was initiated for the possible production of an entirely different entertainment show next fall, tentatively discussed Saturday as being produced as a revue drawing talent from all sectors of the college and similar to productions at Northwestern University, as well as the University of Texas' "Night of Stars."

The vote to kill the Varsity Show this year came in a packed

Council Runoffs

Polls Open Today To Fill 21 Posts

The polls open again today for the election of 21 remaining positions on the Freshman Council. Only nine of the 30 positions were settled in the Sept. 23 election.

The 40 candidates vying for the remaining six dorm, five Lubbock, and ten at-large representatives are as follows:

Knapp—Sandra Adams, Betsy Sue Addison, Suzanne Alderson, Jo Buschow, Linda Hill, Jo Kadane and Ruth Lehman.

Horn—Betti Bullock, Jan Barton and Kay Carolyn Eudy.

Drane—Karen Anderson, Carolyn Buxton, Mary Alice Hill, Michele Gainey, Mary Ellen Cross, Susan Scott, Margo Williams and Carolyn Wood.

Gordon—Tex Cowart and Doug Talbott.

Sneed—Clark Edgecomb and Bobby Stanton.

Bledsoe—William Menzies and Robert Watson.

Lubbock representatives—Ann Brown, Nancy Greve, Bill Heard, Pat Hinkle, Sue Hoskins, Nancy Jones, Donna King, Jo McCook, Judy McKinzie, Norma Mears, Judy Merritt, Mary Kay Pearce, James Perry, Markay Reynolds, Donnie Richards, and Bob Tate.

Ballot boxes will be in the dorms from noon to 1 p.m. today. Each dorm may vote only for one representative from that dorm. Off-campus freshmen can vote between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. in the Tech Union and The Classroom and Office, Agriculture, Home Economics, Administration, and East Engineering Bldgs.

The nine successful freshman candidates in the Sept. 23 election were Pat Crozier, Russell Denison, Jan Justice, Gary Milburn and Judy Price from Lubbock. Residence Hall positions filled were Men's 7, Tommy Scott; Men's 8, Charles Giddens; Men's 6, Tommy Utterback, and Men's 5, Robert Carter.

hour and a half Board meeting in the Student Life Conference Room, attended by members of 16 organizations represented on the Board and several members of the music department faculty.

The decision came on the heels of the resignation of Ronnie Morris, selected by the Board last spring to be producer of the show scheduled for December. Action to forego any production this year hinged on the some nine weeks remaining prior to the tentative production date and doubts among Board members that the production could be readied by that time.

The discussion of a new revue type of show came after suggestions were made by Charles Lawrie and Paul Ellsworth, music faculty members, that the possibility of such a production be considered.

Lawrie explained that the production at Northwestern used a specific theme each year and a permanent show name. The production draws on the talent of hundreds of students, who submit set designs, scripts, scenes, dances and musical arrangements after a theme is announced about a year in advance.

A committee met several hours with Lawrie Saturday after the Board meeting to continue preliminary plans toward the proposed new show. Discussion was also given to use of an entirely new name for the show, with preference shown to one that would fit with the Spanish theme of the college itself.

Use of co-producers was also considered, along with other organizational details in the committee meeting.

The Board itself moved toward investigating the show at Northwestern and using it as a model for Tech to work toward in future years.

Decision to cancel any plans for the Varsity Show this year came after extensive discussion of possibilities of obtaining script and schedule conflicts. A spring production was ruled out due to conflicts with other campus events.

The Varsity Show has had an uncertain future since the production of "Something for Nothing" in the spring of 1959. The Tech Union at that time decided not to take responsibility for the production itself but to continue its support of the show financially.

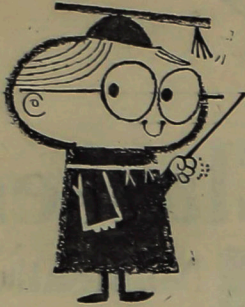

The Varsity Show Board was organized in the fall of 1959 to spread responsibility for the show over 16 campus organizations, each to take charge of part of the show.

Meeting late in the spring of last year, the Board selected Morris as producer. His resignation came this fall.

Problems of the Varsity Show in the past have concerned production expenses. It was pointed out in the Board meeting Saturday that full houses did not necessarily, in the past, make possible a financial success for the show.

Dean James G. Allen commented that the new show proposal could provide "utilization of any talent anywhere" and would be "one place where all the talent of the college is being utilized."

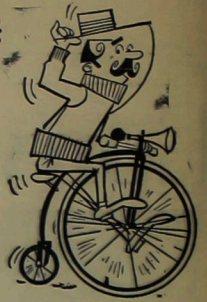

Dr. Gene Hemmle, head of the music department, said that he would consider it a wise decision to "start the groundwork now toward what was produced at Northwestern."

Tickets Still Available For Out-of-Town Trip

Tickets are still on sale for the traditional out-of-town trip this weekend to Austin for the Tech-Texas Longhorn game.

A caravan of buses will leave Lubbock early Saturday morning. Tickets for the trip, including both the buses and game, are $14.50 and may be obtained from any Student Council member or from a booth in the Tech Union.

A pep rally is planned in downtown Austin immediately after arrival. Lunch will be in Brownwood and students will have several hours free to spend in Austin prior to the game.

Seats on the buses will be guaranteed students both coming and going from Austin.

Students planning to make the trip should sign up for reserved seats and buses at the Student Council by Thursday. Tickets for the game must be stamped and presented with I. D. cards before admission to the game.

All students going to Austin must fill out information cards for the Council files. Sponsors for the trip are Dean Lew Jones, Dean Dorothy Garner, Dean Bob Hilliard, Miss Carol Sittler, Miss Diane Burke, Edsel Buchanan, Miss Carol Baughman and James Schiermeyer.

The bus caravan is expected to include buses for the Tech Band, at least one fraternity and students.

Jimmie Wilson, business manager of athletics, announced Monday that students attending the Austin game must pick up tickets by 5 p.m. Friday.

'Fun with Songs' Is Motto of Brothers

"Having fun with a good song," is the trademark of the Brothers Four, who will be at Texas Tech Friday. Showtime begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

This Columbia recording group, sponsored by the Tech Union, will sing American folk songs and ballads such as their hit tune entitled "Greenfields."

These four young men from Seattle got their start last year when they began singing at fraternity house fests. From there they graduated to entertaining campus-wide groups as well as other colleges.

One day a phone call came from the secretary of a Seattle night-spot for a weekend engagement. When an ensemble of instruments and the Brothers Four showed up, the manager of the club said he had no secretary and had never heard of the Brothers. But he listened to the boys and they became his weekend regulars.

Admission to see the Brothers Four will be $1. for Tech students; $1.50 for faculty, faculty wives, and student wives; and $2. for the general public.

Student Council Beat

If Saturday night's game at Austin is just half as exciting as the Red Raider-Aggie clash last Saturday night then the $14.50 school trip ticket is "dirt cheap." Anyone who went to College Station will tell you that we have a lot to be proud of, even though we didn't win. It seemed that the Aggies were glad to settle for the tie but not the Raiders.

At halftime, the A&M Student Body paid quite a tribute to Texas Tech. Their famed Aggie band formed a WELCOME TECH and Roland Dommert, A&M student body president, presented our officers and Toreador Editor Ralph Carpenter with a plaque symbolizing Tech's first Southwest Conference game. The plaque, of course, is nice. But the thing that means the most to me is the sincerity of Aggie leaders behind the presentation.

So Tech's entrance into the SWC was one of glory. This week affords an opportunity for Tech's Student Body to enter the conference race with the trip to Austin. Don't YOU be left behind!

Tomorrow morning at 10 a.m. Tech students will have the opportunity to hear Dr. R. C. Goodwin for the first time since he was named President of the College by the Board of Directors.

The All-School Convocation is a Tech tradition and classes are dismissed from 10 a.m. until noon. This is the only occasion of its kind on the campus this year. If you have ever heard Dr. Goodwin before you will know that he will have something to say that everyone will be interested in hearing and it won't take him long to say it.

Afterwards, Tech's four classes will go to separate meetings to nominate candidates to run for class offices. Then more campaigning begins!

Class officers can be just as good as they want to be. Their area of leadership and accomplishments is rather undefined. If they have initiative and ambition they can make their office something of value. If you run, run with the idea of accomplishing something for your class and school—not just yourself.

Tonight at council meeting the Out-of-Town Trip and the report of the Allocations Committee will be at the top of the agenda. The Allocations Committee, headed by Larry Campbell, has the job of interviewing all the campus organizations requesting money from the student council, evaluating their needs, and making recommendations as to how much they should receive. It is a long and difficult job, especially since requests are several thousand dollars more than what is available to be allocated. The council will hear the recommendations and either approve or revise. If you are interested in how allocations are handled the council meeting is in Ad. 227 at 7:15 p.m.

Attend the Convocation!

This week the entire student body, faculty and administration of Texas Tech will have opportunity to gather under one roof—that of the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum—to demonstrate the united effort of Texas Tech.

The Toreador challenges every individual who is a part of Texas Tech to attend the convocation Wednesday as part of the effort to make this the greatest of Texas Tech's thirty-six years.

Wednesday's session is the only chance Techsians have of gathering as one body—one personality. It is becoming a tradition on this campus and deserves the support of everyone as part and parcel of the spirit and enthusiasm that can make Texas Tech a strong member of the Southwest Conference, a rising institution of the Southland and a power among Texas schools.

Such an achievement will come only with the full participation that should be given to such activities as the annual convocation.

And particularly to the students of Texas Tech, The Toreador believes that this school will be only as great as your support of its activities and functions.

A Voice For A Growing Texas Tech

On Our Campus

Major Production Needed

After hanging in the wind for about two years the Varsity Show—at least for this year and possibly forever—is dead on the Texas Tech Campus.

The Toreador believes that Texas Tech—and the student body of this college has been hurt by losing the tradition of the Varsity Show. It is to be deplored that a campus of 9,000 students now has no major single campus-wide entertainment production.

The Varsity Show has had financial and production troubles in the past and, after the production of "Something for Nothing" in the spring of 1959, the show's future has been in grave doubts. The Tech Union decided not to take responsibility for production of the show thereafter, although the Union continued to stand behind it financially.

The Varsity Show Board was set up last year with 16 campus organizations represented. The Board was to be responsible to the Union Board and was to direct efforts for the show, with each organization taking a part of the production.

Last January the Board voted to hold a fall production and late last spring Ronnie Morris was selected as producer. However, the fall production's success was dependent on work being started during the spring and summer to allow time for the production date of December to be met.

The recent resignation of Morris—who had decided to graduate in January due to a job offer and did not feel he could take responsibility for the Varsity Show due to his studies—apparently struck the deathknell to hopes of a Varsity Show. The Board's meeting Saturday was a last-ditch effort to find some "out" for the Varsity Show.

A ray of hope for a major production on the Texas Tech campus was struck when Paul Ellsworth and Charles Lawrie of the Tech music faculty suggested that an entirely different production be planned for the fall of 1961, based on a college-wide revue similar to those at Northwestern University and the University of Texas.

Such a revue would draw on the talents of hundreds of students throughout the college. The Northwestern show is a tradition at the school with a cast of up to 400 persons.

The Toreador believes and takes a strong stand at this time that a major entertainment production should very definitely be a part of Texas Tech's year and—if the Varsity Show is dead—every possible effort should be extended to bring about such production as was discussed Saturday to replace it.

It is to be hoped that in the future the responsibility for the production will lie in a group which has the full authority to ramrod the production effort and to hold every person associated with the production personally responsible for both their actions and their conduct as part of the show effort.

Only in this way can the production be cleared of the lack of concrete direction which has hampered its efforts in the past. Possibly an entirely new standing board with more power—and much smaller—than the present Varsity Show Board should be set up.

A major entertainment production—properly planned and directed in a definite manner—can be a great asset to the students of Texas Tech and the college itself.

Impressed am I by Texas A&M—and weary am I from the trip that took me 800 miles to sit in the rain and watch in wonder the Aggie grandstand performance while catching glimpses of the football game that thrilled me much less than the activity around me.

After arriving in Bryan and locating a raincoat (hailing from New Mexico I was largely unprepared for such exposure to the elements) I set out to observe, study and absorb as many of the sights at A&M as I could in one short night.

Here is what impressed me the most:

... my first view of the campus that took my breath away with the splendor of stately Grecian-style buildings with gleaming white pillars partially hidden by a forest of trees.

... my disappointment at discovering that once inside the shield of trees the buildings lost their splendor and looked less like a Grecian city than Texas Tech.

... the members of the A&M class of 1935 who were gathered for a class reunion and who looked very little like the cadets presently comprising the student body.

... the girls escorted to the game by Aggies who stood along with their dates and cheered with every bit of their spirit and gusto.

... the boots—ones worn by cadets that reach to the knee and have spurs at the heel and do so much for the looks of the uniforms—and the cadets.

... the large number of Tech supporters in the crowd and the noise they made despite the overwhelming competition from the opposition. (I got the full benefit of the Aggie cheers as I was in a fringe area and was bumping elbows with an Aggie).

... the way 2,000 Aggie freshmen rushed onto the football field to escort the team off after the game and the way the team ran off as if pursued in terror by wild Indians.

... the similarity of the freshmen cadets to wild Indians.

... my surprise at discovering that all of Texas doesn't look like the south plains and that there ARE rivers, hills, and big trees in Texas!

TOOLS OF THE TRADE

In considering the cost of a college education, students are often prone to place undue emphasis upon the cost of textbooks. Yet a recent survey of college expenses indicates textbooks represent less than three per cent of the total cost of a four year course in college.

To a college student, textbooks are "tools of the trade." A carpenter, a brick mason, an automobile mechanic, a radio and television repairman, a skilled surgeon and all other categories of craftsmen and professional men own and cherish "Tools of the Trade." Without these, craftsmen and professional men would be "babes in the woods."

You and/or your parents will spend up to $5,000 on your college education. Three per cent of $5,000 adds up to $150. That $150 represents one of the best investments of your entire college career. To save any part of $150, do you want to be a "babe in the woods" during your four years in college?

When you own your own copy of each required text in the courses you pursue, you can annotate important facts on the margins. Years later, you may have occasion to refer to your personal notes and the factual printed material therein. To you, in your professional career, that textbook becomes a valuable reference guide.

When you have completed a course, evaluate its usefulness and that of its basic text content. If the textbook has possibilities of assisting you in your professional career, place it in your personal library. If it holds no promise of assistance, carry it down to your favorite bookstore and offer it for sale. Your book dealer will pay you its full market value and make it available for another Techsman who will replace you in that course next year.

The writing, publishing and distribution of textbooks is an expensive operation, and potential sales are limited to a very small percentage of American consumers. Contrary to the common opinion of aymen, nobody gets rich in the process. First, the author — usually a professor — puts in many hours and a considerable expense preparing his manuscript. In most cases, his basic philosophy is not one of commercial gain. Second, the publisher who accepts the manuscript accepts a calculated risk. Some books click and show a margin of profit to author and publisher. Many others fall flat upon their faces commercially. Third, consider the book retailer. His margin of profit is fixed by the publisher. Except in rare instances, that margin is twenty per cent of retail. With the exception of good products — which reflect thirty to fifty turnovers of inventory per year as compared to two turnovers for book dealers — no other category of retail merchandise has such a low margin.

The thousands of World War II veterans, who attended college under the terms of the G. I. Bill were completely equipped with ALL the textbooks required for their respective courses of study. No other group of students ever has been so completely equipped. The academic records and professional achievements of the G. I. group stand head and shoulders above the American average, or the record and achievements of total graduates of any institution or of the members of any fraternity or learned society.

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST INVESTMENT YOU WILL MAKE DURING FOUR YEARS IN COLLEGE IS YOUR INVESTMENT IN BOOKS. VISIT YOUR BOOK DEALER OFTEN DURING YOUR STAY ON THE CAMPUS. HE IS STANDING BY, EAGER AND WILLING TO HELP YOU ACQUIRE "THE TOOLS OF YOUR TRADE."

Raiders Wanted Win Over Aggies

by BILLY PATTON
Toreador Sports Editor

Despite a good showing and a 14-14 tie with tough Texas A&M, the Red Raiders were not satisfied with Saturday's game in College Station.

"We didn't prove a thing," was the general atmosphere in the Raider dressing room, although they did prove some things to sports writers who had picked the Aggies as three-point favorites.

The consensus seemed to be that defense was the biggest problem, as the Aggies moved the ball well on the ground.

"We should have won this one," said Johnny Lovelace, sophomore quarterback. "Our defense is better than that."

"That trap up the middle," Lovelace reflected on Aggie plays. "It hurt us more than anything."

On that play, the Aggies' big sophomore fullback, Sam Byer, stood out like a shining star time after time, bulling his way through the line and driving for the extra yard or two after being hit by Raider defenders.

Raider linemen didn't think the Aggie line was quite as tough as had been expected.

"They were hard to block," said guard Fred Weaver, "but it was because they hit and slide. Straight on, they weren't too tough."

A drizzling rain that sometimes became more than a drizzle during the first half slowed the Raiders' passing attack and the wet grass kept the ball soaked all through the second half, but nobody laid much blame on the weather.

"The moisture hurt our kicking and passing a little," said half-back Bake Turner, "but running was okay. The ground was firm enough for good footing."

"I do wish we could have passed more the first half," Turner added reflectively.

Jackie Wiles summed up his feeling about the tilt this way:

"It's sort of like we made the trip for nothing. We should have won. We should have kept them in their end of the field and made them play our kind of ball game."

As the final gun sounded, the Aggie team left the field amid a host of cadets who piled out of the stands, happy, if not jubilant. It could be that the Aggies were happy to get out of the game with a tie score, and the post-game reactions didn't escape the notice of some Tech players.

"They acted happy over a tie score," said tackle Tommy Pace. "I can't understand that, because a tie doesn't prove much."

The Raiders won praise from Aggie coach Jim Meyers from a tough ball club.

"That big John Lovelace hurt us several times," said Meyers, "and Holub was all over the place."

Lovelace fired the 38-yard pass to Jay Dean Byrum in the third quarter to regain the lead for the Raiders.

Hawks, Royals Clash In Lubbock Exhibition

Pro basketball comes to Lubbock Oct. 4 when the Cincinnati Royals and the St. Louis Hawks clash in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Such stars as Bob Pettit, Clyde Lovellette and Cliff Hagan will see action for the Hawks, and the Royal attack will be headed by Jack Twyman, who joined Wilt Chamberlain last season in topping the previous record for single-season scoring.

Tech students and faculty have an opportunity to see the game at a reduced rate, $1 for a reserved seat in the $2 section.

Tickets are on sale at the Sports Center, 1612 13th, and must be bought before the day of the game to get the special rate.

The Royals-Hawks contest will be the second game played in Lubbock by NBA clubs. Last year, the Hawks defeated the Philadelphia Warriors 107-98.

This year's game promises fast action and high scoring, with some of the NBA's top scorers in action. The Hawks feature the numbers four and five men in the scoring column, in Pettit and Hagan.

One Texan is expected to be with the Royals, Jay Arnette, who led the Texas Longhorns to the Southwest Conference championship last season, then went on to join the U.S. Olympic team in Rome.

Arnette was the Royals' second choice in the April draft, and is expected to play this season.

Tech Holds Statistics Lead

Compiled from
The Associated Press

Texas Tech stayed in the spotlight in Conference statistics over the weekend on the strength of a 14-14 tie performance against Texas A&M.

One of the few blots on the Raiders' record is George McKinney of Arkansas, who holds the total offense lead with 233 yards on 38 plays.

The Red Raiders, making their Southwest Conference debut as a member, are hogging virtually the entire show.

Halfback Dickie Polson, with 148 yards on 13 carries, leads the ball-carriers and fellow Raider Coolidge Hunt is second with 99 yards on 25 trips.

Another team mate, Glen Amerson, is the leading passer with nine completions on 16 tosses for 142 yards and two touchdowns.

Polson also is setting the pace in pass receiving, having caught six for 75 yards and one touchdown. He is the leading scorer with 20 points, followed by the University of Texas' Mike Cotten with 18.

Tech has averaged 345.5 yards per game on offense, to lead that category with Arkansas, 315 yards per game, second. Rice, which limited Georgia Tech to only 97 yards, nabbed the team defense lead.

By virtue of this tie, Tech remained among the seven unbeaten teams in Texas college football, although four teams are still untied.

Perfect records have been racked up by Sul Ross, Howard Payne, Austin College and Baylor. With Tech among the unbeaten, but tied, teams are North Texas State and Texas A&I.

All of the unbeaten teams run the risk of losing their status this week. Baylor plays Louisiana State, Sul Ross meets Southwest Texas State, Howard Payne takes on A&I and Austin College hosts Mississippi College. North Texas State meets Cincinnati and Texas Tech battles Texas.

Texas A&M placed two if its players among the statistical leaders against Tech Saturday. Babe Craig became the top punter with a 38.8 average on 13 kicks, nosing out Tech's Bake Turner, who held the lead going into the game. Randy Sims, another Aggie, leads in punt returns with a 21.0 average on five runbacks.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press football poll showed Mississippi clinging to a narrow margin over Syracuse in their tight two-team battle for the No. 1 position in the nation.

Washington continued as the only other serious bidder for first place although the perennial pace-setters grabbed off 42 of the 48 top votes of the special panel representing all sections of the country.

Mississippi, which smashed Kentucky Saturday night 21-6 for its second victory, was named best on 22 of the ballots and Syracuse, the defending national champion, on 20. Washington, in third place, received five votes and the other one went to Northwestern.

Syracuse opened the new season with a casual 35-7 triumph over Boston University—the team's 12th victory straight and the 18th in a row for regular season play.
