Heave Ho Of Bao Dai Has Problems

For perhaps the first time in history, an emperor was unseated by direct vote of his people when the people of South Viet Nam gave the boot to Emperor Bao Dai last Sunday. It was also the first time in modern history the Vietnamese had voted on a nationwide scale.

The final count will be slow in compiling, but in four cities the people gave Communist-hating Premier Ngo Dinh Diem the job of chief of state, 751,970 to

It is true Bao Dal wasn't much of an emperor, but seldom has there been so lopsided an election anywhere in the world. Also for one of the few times in history, the United States formally recognized the new chief of state before he was elected. France and Britain at least waited for the outcome. Next step is proclamation of the Republic of South Viet Nam, and thereby hangs what may become another major world crisis. The overwhelming verdict in favor of Diem over Bao Dai seems to rule out any possibility of unification elections in Communist North Viet Nam. and snti-Communist South Viet Nam as provided in the Geneva armistics, scheduled for next July, Premier Diem has fiercely opposed those elections as long as the North Viet Nam Reds refuse to guarantee free and untrammeled voting.

Although France accepts the verdict against their puppet Bao Dai, the election in South Viet Nam was as much a slap at France as anything else. In another part of the world France also met a major defeat Sunday when the people of the Saar, mostly German, voted two to one against placing the area under the aegis of the Western European Union, It will remain under French "protection" economically, but the French commissioner took the hint and handed in his resignation. The Germans confidently expect to cut themselves loose from French apronstrings in time and re-absorb the Saar - something that would have been much more difficult had the area been put under control of the WEU.

GOP Partisans Face Uncertainty

The heart specialist who has been checking on President Eisenhower's rate of progress toward recovery has said it will be two or three months before he and his colleagues can say for sure whether their patient has fully recovered.

This probably is somewhat disturbing to many GOP leaders who have been hinting January 1 is about the latest date they can wait a decision from Mr. Eisenhower as to whether he will seek re-election or not. Two months of uncertainty as to the completeness of recovery would carry almost to January 1; three months almost to February 1.

Meantime, party strategists can only mark time. About the only basic decision they have taken is that their 1956 campaign will be based on President Eisenhower's program, whether the President or someone else leads the ticket.

That decision, obviously a wise one, is not without its hazards; for a considerable segment of Republican opinion is not solidly behind Mr. Eisenhower's program, particularly in the foreign affairs field. Most of them are not famous for holding their own council, and may be expected to start their own bandwagon to rolling the minute Ike says he isn't going to run - the decision most people ex-

After the nomination is made and the platform adopted, practically all those dissident rightwing leaders probably will go along, but meantime in case Ike says 'No," they can cause plenty of disturbance in the ranks. This time there will be no Robert Taft to offer the wise council of forbearance and cooperation, and whoever gets the nod finally, regardless of his identity, will lack the great personal pulling power of Ike Eisenhower.

Meantime, the Democrats are playing it pretty smart. They are bending every effort to Iron out factional differences before the campaign gets under way, and they have made substantial headway.

Marquis Childs The Growing Sickness Of France

PARIS-When the foreign ministers of the four powers meet in Geneva at the end of the week France will be represented by a full delegation headed by Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. This is thanks to the fact that Premier Edgar Faure saved himself at the last minute as his government was about to go over the dam. But that is all that can be said for the rescue operation carried out in the National Assembly by reluctant deputies of the center and the right. The Faure govern cannot solve the major problems that have for so long produced something close to paralysis in France. The government has neither the power nor the capacity to carry out essential reforms in North Africa. to revitalize the economy and to bring about changes in the election laws contributing to the paralysis, This paralyzing weakness is a grave defect in the Western alliance, France is at the geographical heart of Western Europe and, as such, it is the strategic center of tthe North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with billions of dollars spent on installations from the German border to the Atlantic ports. Yet, France has withdrawn at least three divisions and parts of others from her NATO force to try to suppress the terror in Algeria and Morocco. In the decade since the liberation of France in 1945 as 21 ineffectual governments have risen and fallen the public has developed a cynical indifference. But today, in the view of observers who know France well, there is a growing realization of what the present paralysis means and with it a deep resentment and distrust of what appears to be the fumbling incapacity of representative government as it functions, or fails to function.

In North Africa the army has refused to carry out the orders of the civil government in Paris. The top officers of the army do not believe in the reforms Faure wants to carry out.

The Big Spring Herald

As the top military ignores orders from Paris, reservists have in several instances conducted something resembling the sitdown technique in protest against being sent to North Africa. The war there is just as unpopular as was the seven-year con-flict in the jungles of Indochina.

There has been ugly violence at recent strikes, conspicuously at Nantes, with the Communists playing on the fierce resentment against certain economic injustices inherent in the French economy, which is frozen by cartel and government restrictions. This resentment is also expressed in the spreading tax strike lead by Emil Poujade, Dismissed as a crackpot when he first started campaigning to persuade Frenchmen to stop paying taxes, his movement has grown into an angry cry of protest heard in various parts of France that adds up to "Down with the govern-

The antiquated French tax system puts most of the burden on the bottom twothirds of the population with the top onefourth or one-tenth managing to escape anything like its share of the total tax bill. The greatest inequities fall on the shopkeepers and professional people in the towns and they are embattled followers of the spellbinding Poulade.

Just before the vote of confidence on the Faure government in the Assembly sober voices were raised to warn the politicians and the country of the consequences of a government crises coming on the eve of the Geneva conference. Responsible newspapers, such as Le Figaro, and statesmen of the rank of Andre Francois Poncet said that the fall of the Faure regime would advertise the sickness of France to the world. How long the reprieve voted by the Assembly will last no one can be sure. Elections must be held before next July but Faure may decide it is to his advantage to have a trial of strength before his great rival, former Premier Pierre Mendes-France can rally his forces. It has been rumored that Faure may maneuver to force an election in December. Mendes-France, who succeeded in his brief term in ending the Indochina War and bringing relative calm through a semiindependent government to Tunisia, one of the French African colonies, is already hard at work. He is trying to unite the center and the left of center, short of the Communists, behind a government that would have majority support.

Around The Rim

Well, We'll Bear It ...

If Destiny lays her hand on me and dictates that I take my place in the legislative or congressional halls, I will not be unprepared. I am building a private dosajer of bills which I will introduce and fight doggedly for enactment.

The first will make it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine for the first offense, to divide a fried chicken into approxi-mate parts by using a meat cleaver. The second offense for failure to disjoint the chicken in a Christian manner would be punishable by 10 days in the pokey.

And if I continue to feel the same way when my annointed time comes, I most certainly shall insert a sub-section B, towit: "Any cook or chef in a public eating place found gullty of dipping said fried chicken into a batter resembling mortar mixture shall be forced to chew on the fried product until his teeth shall have cracked to the gums."

I have a pet measure to toss at road and street engineers, too. It deals with the employment of that hog-bacg of torture, the high crown street or road, particularly at intersections. In such instances that it can be established that the engineer had reached the age of accountability when he designed such humps, I shall propose that he be sentenced to ride back and forth over said hump until his bridgework has been loosened and his neck vertebrae are rattling. The same punishment will be proposed for those who design steep dips on lateral roads.

I also propose to introduce legislation which would permit the installation of a device to apply an electrical shock to the rear of drivers who poke up to traffic lights, then in a split second burnt of speed, dart across the changing light to leave apoplectic drivers stacked up be-hind. Trapped drivers would be permitted to punch a remote control button instead their horns, activating the shocking mechanism in lieu of sound. For truck drivers who persist in clinging doggedly to the center stripe of streets and roads, more especially while on long hills, I propose either hanging by the thunbs or being stopped every five miles by the Highway Patrol for a weight or license check. Then there is the little item of people who go to the theatre or to concerts not for entertainment or edification, but for constant conversation, I am giving serious thought to having a rubber foot stuffed into their mouths for two-hour intervals, or else forcing them to att in allence while the chant of a tobacco auctioneer is played over and over and over and over, ad

Finally, for space will not permit a continuation, I would seriously try to find some means of confining persons who constantly beef about the way "they" run things - if they cannot identify "they" -to life in a community, club or state populated by people exactly like them-

If you have some ideas for my legislative file, I shall be happy to include them with my weighty ones. Meanwhile, until Destiny calls, let us grin and bear

Ike's Fourth Year, And Second Term

WASHINGTON - When Representative Joseph W. Martin, Republican, former Speaker of the House of Representatives, said the other day that he had a hunch President Eisenhower would accept renomination, he was really pointing up what is rapidly becoming known as "The January 20th dilemma." For, on January 20, 1956, Mr. Eisenhower will be faced with the question of whether to resign the presidency or whether to begin the fourth year of his term without objecting to the decision of political leaders of his party to enter his name in the presidential preference primaries shortly thereafter in various

The really important question is whether Mr. Eisenhower will or will not announce his resignation on January 20, next. As his convalescence becomes more and more a matter of general knowledge and he begins to live an approximately normal life - which some doctors say may be the case by January 20 - many people will ask what reasons the President would have for declining to be a candidate that could not also be applied to or justify a declination to remain in the presidency for the fourth year of his term. If it is improper for a man with heart trouble to continue in the presidency after January 20, 1957, the query will be why isn't it also improper for him to remain in the White House a whole year prior to that date: The Constitution says specifically that in case of "inability to discharge the powers and duties of said office (the presidency), the same devolve on the Vice President."

Dwight Eisenhower is a conscientious man with a deep respect for the spirit as well as the letter of the Constitution. He would not feel right about it if the doctors told him he could not function actively in discharging "the powers and duties" of the presidency. He would be inclined to resign. But is he is assured that he can fully carry out the "powers and duties" during his fourth year as President, it will be asked what reason is there to suppose he could not serve in the same way during the fifth and sixth years or during all of a second term?

Most persons with long experience and background in national politics are beginning to say realistically that for Mr. El-senhower to serve in the presidency during the fourth year of his term in a position of retirement and detachment would raise more political problems than it would

In the first place, if the President doesn't run and allows a scramble for the nomination to develop, it will tend to split the Republican party into factions and make a shambles of the Eisenhower program in the 1956 session of Congress. The Republican minorities in both the House and Senate would be divided into rival groups and since the presidential influence would be weakened, the tendency would be, as it always has been in the last year of an outgoing President's term, to regard the incumbent as of secondary importance in a political sense.

A President who is going to be a candidate to succeed himself can crack the whip of leadership but a retiring President loses his political power the moment it becomes definitely known that he isn't going to run again. This has happened with Democratic as well as Republican presidents who were not candidates to succeed themselves.

For Mr. Eisenhower to remain sflent altogether would be politically hazardous and full of embarrassments. It would open the way to suspicion and the maneuverings behind the scenes of persons on the White House staff and by others supposedly high in the presidential councils and thus add fuel to the flames of factionalism in the party.

The idea that the President might offer list of selected names from which a candidate would be chosen is politically more dangerous than silence. For to name some and eliminate others -- and there are 40 or more Republican Senators who consider themselves eligible and qualified - can arouse bitter feelings. What a field day the Democrats would have with that one!

Dictating a nominee to a national convention, moreover, is risky business politically, as the voters don't like bossism. National conventions are supposed to do the nominating. Even when an incumben-President is assured of a second nomination for himself and wants it, he doesn't brazenly tell the convention to give him the nomination. He refrains from any appearance of pressure or dictation and tries at least to give the impression he is being "drafted." So any thought that Mr. Eisenhower will hand out a list of desirable nominees sounds fantastic to experienced politicians and they frankly do ot expect any such public endorsement either of a group or of any individual. With all the talk in this country recently about the need for a constitutional amendment to clarify the provision about the possible "inability" of a President to serve, no better solution of the whole problem of succession will be found than in the principle of joint responsibility of the legislative and executive branches of the government in choosing the leader and submitting the choice to the people instantly in an election. The principle, imbedded in the British Parliamentary system, has long been advocated by this writer. It was once championed by Woodrow Wilson. It affords the best basis for free government in a democracy because in essence it rests on the continuous consent of the governed.

Don't Worry, Folks, They're

WASHINGTON OF - The Air Force, busy for seven years trying to scotch legends about flying saucers, wants the public to know those weird looking aircraft which folks will see soon won't really

They just look and act something

The Air Force last night issued what has become a sort of annual report on the flying saucer situa-tion, saying again it has found no evidence of flying saucers.

But this time it attached to the new and voluminous (316) report a statement by Secretary Donald Quarles. It said some aircraft of novel form are coming along but there will be nothing "supra-natural or mysterious" a bout

One will be the vertical-rising, jet-powered experimental plane now at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., test center for jet aircraft. The Navy already has flown a similar aircraft, the Convair VTO, but this is powered with a conventional propeller.

Another strange plane, still in design stage, is being developed by the Canadian firm of Avro, by the Canadian firm of Aviv, Ltd., which has a contract with the U.S. Air Force. This design, Quarles said, "could result in a similar to the popular concept of a flying saucer. Avro officials have insisted their product isn't a flying saucer. Gas exhausted through a system of ducts would spin an outer rim of the disc to propel the aircraft vertically into the air; the gas blast then would be diverted from the disk and to the rear to provide forward thrust, like any jet plane. The air secretary also said, presumably with allusion to reports of Soviet saucers, that "we must recognize other countries also have the capability of developing vertical-rising aircraft, perhaps of unconventional shapes." But, he insisted, "we are satisfied at this time that none of the sightings of so-called 'flying saucers' reported in this country were in fact aircraft of foreign origin."

The Air Force told of investigations of 4,834 reports of sightings of "unidentified flying objects" (UFO) since 1947,

Part of the new report contains a summary for the January-May period of this year, when the Air Force received 131 UFO reports It said evaluation of the 131 reports showed that balloons accounted for 26 per cent; planes 21 per cent; stars, meteors and other astronomical objects 23 per cent; "other" (mirages, kites, fireworks, contrails of high-flying planes) 20 per cent. Insufficient information on which to make evaluation 7: unknown 3 per cent.

Quarles said he felt "certain that even the 3 per cent could have been explained as conventional phenomena or illusions if more complete observational data had been available."

Reprimand Is Handed School

WACO UP-Trouble piled up Baylor's football today with sharp reprimand from the NCAA for the school's athletic recruiting tactics the latest blow.

Five football players, kicked off the team for violating training rules, were indefinitely suspended by a student-faculty joint discipline committee yesterday. Paul Caver, a sophomore halfback and one the five, was told he could apply for reinstatement in the summer of 1956 because his "guilt was less than the others.

The NCAA in Chicago handed down a stiff reprimand because the university in 1953 furnished transportation for two prospective athletes and the expense money was paid over by a coach,

Dean Abner McCall, Baylor faculty representative to the Southwest Conference, said the rules then appeared to allow this but that the NCAA shortly afterward interpreted the rule to mean that a coach could have nothing to do with the payment of an athlete's expenses for a campus visit.

McCall said the athletes Jerry Tubbs and Bobby Keith, then students of Breckenridge High School, and they came to Baylor in Keith's automobile. He said their expenses of six cents a mile from Waco back to Breckenridge were paid by the Baylor Ex-Students Assn. but that the trouble with the NCAA arose because the money was handed to the boys by a Baylor coach. Tubbs went to Oklahoma where he now is the star center. Keith is at Texas A&M and playing end.

McCall said the Southwest Conference did not agree with the NCAA on its rule, thinking that any money paid to athletes should go through the school and not the ex-students, and that the NCAA w was studying the possibility of changing its interpretation. Baylor's shattered football forces

Monterey Most Improved 11'

Big Spring Coach Carl Coleman, who scouted Monterey of Lubbock personally in its game against Palo Duro of Amarilio last weekend, said the Plainsmen are the most improved team in District I-AAA.

"They've come a long way since the beginning of the year and they have some of the finest looking players I've seen," Coleman stated, "I only wish we had caught them early in the year."

The Plainsmen started slowly and took one-sided defeats at the hands of Snyder and Sweetwater. However, they picked up lots of yardage against the latter club and might have made quite a game of it had they been able to hold onto the ball. Coleman singled out Don Cathey, Bryan Baxter and Milton Daniel as the three lads who " make the Plainsmen tick." He said Cathey and Baxter were speedy backs with great talent and describes Baniel as a "real offensive end."

With Tommy Hart

I look for Darrell Royal, the Mississippi State football coach, to into the Southwest Conference next year.

The Big Spring-Lamesa engagement last weekend was the first involving a Steer team which had been decided by one point since Sweetwater toppled the locals Thanksgiving Day, 1983.

The Ponies won that one, 14-13, in a massive upset, although the Steers proceeded to the state finals.

The game was the first one-point decision the locals had won since 1951, when they sneaked by Plainview, 21-20.

In 1947, the Longhorns upset San Angelo, 20-19, in the mud at San Angelo. In 1949, they beat Brownwood, 14-13.

The Big Spring-Lamesa game will rank with the all-time Steer thrillers, since Big Spring had to come from behind four times to achieve victory.

The paid atendance at the Big Spring-Lamesa game was reported at 3,055.

Jim O'Brien says 1,269 of the fans came from Big Spring to see the game. What he means is that 1,269 tickets were sold here. There were any number of local people who waited until they got to Lamesa before buying ducats. Those sat in the west stands,

It is quite probable more than half the people present at the contest were from Big Spring.

Lamesa people just haven't been supporting their fine, little football team the way they should be.

There has been some complaint here over the speed with which some of the ward school football games are being run off. Some of the games are being completed in 35 minutes — half time included.

Tommy McAdams, Big Spring's splendid quarterback last year, must have made quite an impression on Max Bumgardner, San Angelo College coach.
Tommy went down to Angelo on a half scholarship. Bumgardner might have thought he was too small to play college ball.

At any rate, Tommy is already on a full scholarship and is playing more than enough to win his letter. Granting a full scholarship means that it is understood McAdams will return to SAC for his sophomore year.

The Rams sprang a mild upset in defeating Del Mar in Corpus Christi last week, 24-14, and Tommy had a big hand in the win. Tom-Tom led his team in scoring, with a touchdown, field goal and three extra points. He scored his TD on a pass interception and a 35-yard run, the first six-pointer San Angelo made.

Oddly enough, McAdams didn't kick PAT's in high school. That chore was taken care of by Wayne Medlin in his junior year and by Glenn Jenkins last season.

Plainview is developing a defense that the Big Spring Steers may find hard to move against in their game Nov. 18.

In 19 of 42 running plays against the Bulldogs, Snyder backs were held to gains of one yard or less last week. Ten times the Tigers lost yardage. Four times they were held to no gain.
