Resignation intention announced by Murray

By JAY ROSSER
UD Reporter

Tech President Grover Murray announced his intent to retire as head of the university complex in a special called meeting with the Tech faculty Wednesday.

Murray said he had sent a letter to Clint Formby, chairman of the Tech Board of Regents, asking him to bring his resignation up for approval at the Dec. 5 meeting of the board. Murray said that if approved, he would cease to be the president of the university on Aug. 31, 1976.

In a telephone interview with the University Daily, Formby said he felt the board would honor Murray's request and accept the resignation.

"HE DID APPEAR before the board at the last executive session and discussed the matter of his resignation. He said he was just considering it but no date was mentioned," Formby said.

Following the announcement, Murray said the decision was a personal one and conflicts with certain regents in no way had influenced his decision.

The Aug. 31 date was chosen, Murray said, because "it marks the completion of the 10-year period which I judge to be an optimal length of time for a president." Murray also said it should provide the regents with enough time to accomplish the search for a new president and "to effect a smooth and orderly transition of executive officers."

MURRAY WHO has been president of the university for the past 9 years, said he would be willing to stay on as president until Dec. 31, 1976, if the search for a new president took that long. "My personal preferences would be that this period not extend beyond Dec. 31."

Murray also asked the regents to grant him a University Professorship with the understanding that he would continue research in geology, the problems and aspects of arid and semi-arid land, energy and epidemiology.

Asked if he thought Murray was resigning now to prevent a struggle to get him to resign, Formby replied, "I doubt it. I think that it was coming. There was no direct pressure and no motion made at the board meeting to remove him from office."

"THE RESPONSIBILITIES of the presidency of a major state university are numerous and they require virtually all of one's time," Murray said in his letter to Formby. "Because they are so consuming in nature, I have neglected, to a considerable degree, my family as well as my personal and professional welfare, interests and activities."

Murray said he wants no part of direct involvement in the selection of a new president because "that should not be a part of my responsibilities." He did say he would be willing to give the regents input if they asked.

Murray's wife Nancy, who was present at the news conference following his resignation, said she agreed with his decision.

Murray said he would not be operating as a "lame duck" president until his resignation takes effect. "I will be the president as long as I am in the office and until they bring the new man in." He added he would only be a "lame duck" if the board considered him so.

THE REACTION from the other board members at the executive session on learning of Murray's intent to resign was mixed, according to Formby.

"It did come as a surprise to some of them," he said.

Asked if he thought the university might name a chancellor instead of a president, Formby replied, "I seriously doubt it, although we have not really talked about it. I think we will be looking for a president."

Both Formby and Murray said they had no possible candidates in mind for the presidency.

"It will take the next board meeting to fully decide what the selection process will be," Formby said. "I really do not have any idea of how long the selection process might take."

FORMBY SAID he is hopeful the board could get student-faculty input in the matter and said he would be on campus next week to get some ideas from the faculty.

The possibility was raised at the news conference that Murray might take a job with some government agency.

Murray said he would prefer to remain at Tech and added "I have seen enough of bureaucracies."

"The general goals provided by the board which employed me and subscribed to in principle by all subsequent boards, of developing a major, multi-purpose state university of national reputation have been accomplished," Murray said in his letter.

MURRAY INDICATED the attainment of goals for both the academic university and the medical school led to his decision to retire.

"I hope people accept my personal decision to retire," Murray said. "I believe it is in the best interest of myself and the university. I am sure the university can find a better president than I would like to think I made."

Murray said it would be hard for him to give one highlight of his presidency at Tech.

"There has been an improvement in the spectrum of quality in the school's program. The image of respect the university has held nationally has grown and is also important," he said.

Murray added he is also proud the university was able to avoid real problems during the student activist years.

Justice William O. Douglas steps down from high court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice William O. Douglas retired from the Supreme Court on Wednesday because of ill health, ending the longest tenure in the tribunal's history. His retirement opens to President Ford an appointment that could tip the balance of power on the court.

Douglas, 77, said he would leave the bench immediately because "I have been unable to shoulder my full share of the burden." He suffered a stroke last Dec. 31.

He had served 36 years on the court.

He had made his mark as a dissenter, a civil libertarian and a figure of controversy for his private life.

Twice there had been moves in the House to impeach him as a justice — the most recent led by then Rep. Gerald R. Ford.

It was to President Ford that Douglas submitted his retirement letter, ending months of speculation that he would not step down until after the next election, in hopes that someone other than Ford would appoint his successor.

Faculty Council Exec Committee urges media center, in-service program priority

By CHARLES HICKMOTT
UD Reporter

The Executive Committee of the Faculty Council at a meeting Wednesday passed motions supporting a proposed in-service program for teaching assistants and professors and urging that a media center for Tech be given top priority by the administration.

The motions were passed at a one-hour meeting which adjourned early so committee members could attend a special called faculty meeting at which President Grover Murray announced his resignation.

SUSAN TOM, chairperson of the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Association's Executive Branch, asked Executive Committee members for a vote of support for the in-service program, referring to the fact that the program was faculty-oriented.

Support from Executive Committee members, as faculty representatives, would enhance the chances for obtaining adequate funds for the program, Tom said. Approximately $2,400 is needed to meet the project's total budget, according to Tom.

Introducing Tom, Dr. George Tereshkovich, chairman of the Faculty Council's Academic Affairs Committee, said that his committee "supports the program in full and also urges that the program be considered as a number-one priority to be presented to the administration."

The Executive Committee passed the motion to support the program with one abstention.

THE COMMITTEE also passed a motion which stated, "The Executive Committee very strongly recommends that a media center for Texas Tech be given top priority by the administration."

During a discussion of a media center, committee members said that a media center should not only have the ability to maintain equipment and be production-oriented, but should also have resource people on hand to aid faculty members in the production of learning materials.

At the end of the meeting, Dr. Charles Burford, associate professor of industrial engineering, made a motion "to commend vice presidents Robert Ewalt, Fred Wehmeyer and Glenn Barnett for the forthright manner in which they responded to the residents of Gordon Hall actions and concerns relating to the routing and construction of the campus loop system."

The motion passed with three negative votes and one abstention.

The committee voted to reconvene Wednesday to take care of any unfinished business not covered in the abbreviated meeting.

Randall claims humor based on problems of other people

By GEORGE JOHNSTON
UD Reporter

Comedian and entertainer, Tony Randall, said humor is based on other people's troubles and tragedies, in a speech sponsored by the Tech Office of Cultural Events Wednesday night in the Municipal Auditorium.

Speaking on "Humor is a Serious Business," to a crowd of approximately 1,000, Randall said he has yet to find any humor that does not have traces of hate, anger, aggressiveness or hostility in it.

"It is impossible to get through a day without some anger and hostility building up. Laughter is a socially accepted way to release these feelings," Randall said.

Of the different forms of comedy, he said, humor is the only form that concerns him because it is about human behavior.

THE OTHER FORMS of comedy, he said, are concerned with tricks, which he has little concern for.

Going into the area of acting, Randall said acting is not a form of lying or pretending, but a form of truth.

Most actors, Randall said, claim they play comedy and tragedy in the same way, which is basically true.

"The actor's problem is he must live out the part," Randall said.

HE SAID there is only a slight difference between comedy and tragedy.

"The comic must be true and must live the part out plus he must have a comic character," Randall said.

"Because good acting is true, it can convince us, thus making us believe," he said.

After finishing the main text of the speech, Randall went into detail about his recently cancelled television show, "The Odd Couple."

The reason the show was cancelled, he said, was because of poor rating. The reason for the drop in ratings was the show was moved from Friday nights to Thursday nights opposite "The Waltons."

"The Waltons' are so sincere, so sentimental, so crappy, that no one can beat them," Randall said. "We were the only good show ABC had and they moved us opposite 'The Waltons,'" he added.

Resigning—officially, unofficially

AS OFFICIALLY announced, President Grover Murray wants to resign because he has attained his goals for the Tech complex. He denies any personality conflict with Board of Regent members, or of any pressure forcing him to resign.

However, it is widely known that there is not a warm relationship between Murray and, for one, Regent J. Fred Bucy, and that Murray is not in great favor in the Lubbock community over such issues as Indiana Avenue and the Development of the School of Medicine.

Apparently, Murray resigned rather than have the issue of his continuance in office become a damaging public dispute.

The regents have all along been reluctant, and even downright deceitful, in discussing the issue.

Murray during the board's executive session Oct. 17, said he was considering resignation.

Prior to the meeting, an Avalanche-Journal story had intimated that matters of administrative reorganization would be discussed.

Seven of nine regents contacted by The University Daily said they would not bring up matters of administrative reorganization and that they knew of no plans to do so.

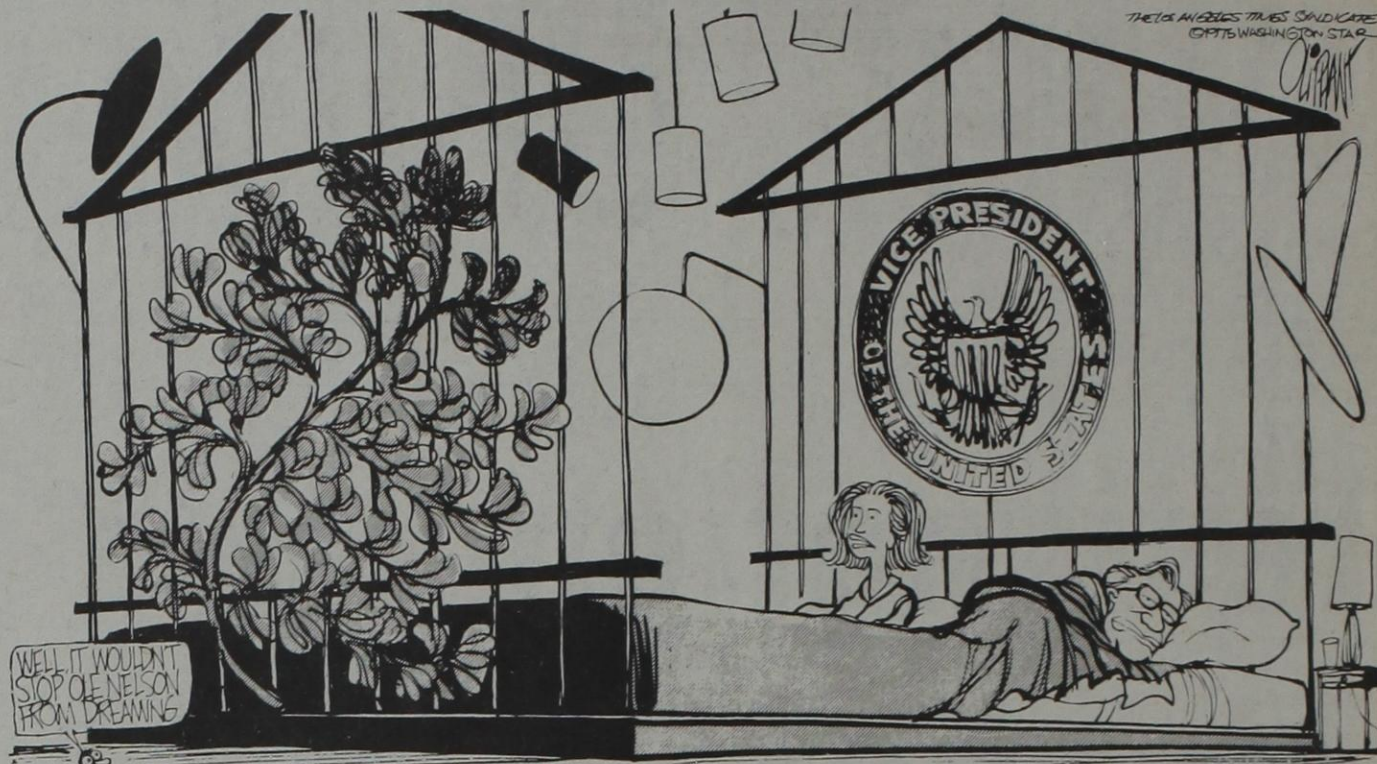

FORMBY SAID HE HAD known of Murray's desire to resign for several months, but at the time of the board meeting refused to give any acknowledgement that the matter would be discussed. Even during a break in the executive session in which Murray announced his intentions, Formby said he expected no major actions to come out of the closed meeting.

In a television interview after the meeting, Formby expressed his confidence in Murray.

Hopefully, Tech's next president will do as good a job for Tech as Murray did. While he was in office, Tech grew from a small, regional school to a major multi-purpose state university -- basically, a school whose degrees are widely respected.

AND HOPEFULLY, WE will be met with a little more honesty in the process of selecting a new president.

Formby said the regents have an obligation to get ideas and input. That obligation should be kept, as students and faculty deserve a voice in the selection of a new president.

Basic political gambits

PART OF THE FASCINATION of watching politics is that there are certain basic gambits that turn up time and again. For example, everyone who has seen Republican politics in this generation has been exposed to the New York Skip-Step. It involves taking yourself out of the game in the pre-presidential year in order to make a dramatic reentry in the presidential year.

It's the favorite ploy of Nelson Rockefeller, who now seems to be executing it for the third time. Because of the intervals at which it appears in his repertory -- first in 1959, then in 1967 and now again in 1975 -- it is sometimes known as the Eight-Year Rock.

A second familiar opening move is the California Crawl, which requires an even greater pose of indifference on the part of the player than the first phase of the New York Skip-Step.

Richard Nixon, pining for another chance at the presidency, nonetheless declared a "moratorium" on political activity for all of 1967. Ronald Regan, using the same technique in 1975, has managed to make it almost to Thanksgiving without becoming a declared candidate. (He will reportedly succumb to candor and announce next week.)

FITTING NEATLY WITH both these gambits is that other favorite Republican stratagem, the Michigan Mad-Rush. George Romney popularized it in 1967 when he was the Michigan governor and the front-runner for the Republican presidential nomination. Gerald Ford has picked it up for 1975.

Rather than ducking out and coming back in, or feigning indifference, the Michigan Mad-Rush thinks the way to win is to travel farther and talk more than anyone else. Romney managed to talk and travel himself right out of the race before the first primary.

That has not yet happened to his fellow-Michigander, Mr. Ford, but it may. After all, in four months as an avowed candidate, he has already lost his political director, his finance director and the man he insisted was his first choice for a running-mate. The next man overboard may be the candidate.

THIS IS NOT ENTIRELY facetious. The Reagan strategy of 1975 has obviously been influenced by the Nixon strategy of 1967. Like Nixon, Reagan is exploiting mass media publicity while avoiding the kind of hard questions he'd have to answer if he were an avowed candidate. Like Nixon, he has delayed his announcement as long as possible, while letting a "citizens committee" organize on his behalf. In fact, the same shrewd lawyer, John Sears, is doing the organizing job for Reagan as he did for Nixon in 1967.

Obviously, too, Rockefeller is reliving 1967, declaring himself out of the race and in support of the Michigan front-runner, even while his aides measure the opportunities for Rockefeller to grab the banner from the faltering hero.

And is the Ford-Romney parallel so far-fetched? Despite the advantage of incumbency, which Romney never had, Mr. Ford has spent his pre-election year in the same sort of reckless wandering and verbal wobbling that characterized the Romney campaign.

WHEN HE ANNOUNCED his candidacy last July, he had Rockefeller in his pocket and Reagan on the ropes. Now, after the blundering path from the Solzhnitsyn affair to the Schlesinger affair, Rockefeller is off the leash and Reagan has issues to discuss he could hardly have hoped to be handed.

For the first time in the past week, this reporter has heard serious talk that the Ford version of the Michigan Mad-Rush could end the same way Romney's did: with a withdrawal of candidacy. This talk did not come from remote or antagonistic quarters but from people as close to the President as a senior Cabinet official.

Mr. Ford, of course, said Sunday on Meet the Press there will be "no withdrawal by me." But circumstances change. A month ago, he was all for Rockefeller; he thought James Schlesinger's defense dissents "healthy;" he saw "no problem" in Henry Kissinger's holding down two full-time jobs; and he "quite specifically said no" to rumors that William Colby might be on his way out of the CIA.

In each instance, reality prevailed, and now Mr. Ford faces some realities about his own situation.

ONE IS THAT THE proliferation of primaries works against the political security of an incumbent President. No President can turn his back on his job and take five months out to compete in 30 primaries against a serious challenger. Not without losing the respect of the people who will be voting on his stewardship in November.

The Ford-Reagan candidacy will be a short, intense struggle, probably to be decided by the Florida primary in mid-March. Either Mr. Ford will put Reagan away fast, or he will have to concede that he cannot defeat him at all. He cannot in conscience leave the White House to Dick Cheney and the country to a lame-duck Vice President, while he campaigns.

HE WILL, IN SHORT, have to withdraw, if he cannot beat Reagan decisively in the early going. This reporter has already noted Mr. Ford's penchant for "the big play" that "resolves" a problem by removing the player from the board -- the Nixon pardon, the Rockefeller withdrawal, the Schlesinger-Colby caper.

Next time, the big play may involve Mr. Ford himself.

Tech's fraternities defended

To the editor:

More than a few members of Tech's fraternities read the guest editorial entitled "Fraternity Parties from Dates' View." While it was amusing, and in part based on fact, it was certainly not limited by fact. It's a shame that few individuals are able to "hurl mud" onto the image of one of the best Greek systems in the country.

Sure, most fraternity men drink, a few to excess. Sure, some fraternity men need to use more consideration in making and keeping dates. Sure, a few fraternity men are asses and act with immaturity. But a person does not have to be in a fraternity to be guilty of any of these charges, and to generalize about all fraternities from the actions of a few members is ignorant. Moreover, in these changing days of equality of the sexes, being a propositioner is not restricted to being a fraternity man, or even a male.

Getting down to the brotherhood aspect of fraternities, brotherhood is more than parties. There are very few other organizations on campus which dedicate more time and money to charity. This output does not come through the works of a few. It takes brothers united together to pull off any sort of activity. Satisfaction comes in working hand in hand with a man you can truly call a brother. Individually each fraternity does at least one service project per year. Brotherhood makes the Phi Psi food drive for needy people a success, and the Fiji "Play day" at the state school work, and the list goes on. In fact, this weekend the Lambda Chi Alpha's are planning to stay sober enough to take boys from the Texas Boys Ranch to the Baylor Game.

United, the fraternities also do a great deal. Where were these ladies when the fraternities, among others, raised money for Lubbock's United Way, and IFC even donated $300 of its own funds? Where will these young ladies be this weekend when the fraternities, and friends, try to raise money for Muscular Dystrophy? Bitching, no doubt?

My only solution to liberate these young ladies from their suffering at fraternity parties is to turn the "uncouth heathen" down next time,...if there is one!!!

Representative pageants

The problem with Tech's male and female beauty pageants is they do not represent the total university. These pageants draw their talent from an extremely small minority. So Tech students, as a whole, treat them with apathy.

What is needed is an expansion to include the traits that truly represent the "scope and depth" of Tech.

Contests such as Ugliest Man, and Ms. Ugly Tech, Grubbiest Raider, Biggest Redneck and Highest Brow could boast campus-wide participation.

The Ugliest Man and Ms. Ugly Tech contests probably would have the toughest competition. These important contests would remove the pageants from the hands of a gifted few and put them into those of the accursed many. Previously embarrassing features such as a protruding nose, inconspicuous chest, or bulging eye(s), would be cultivated and not disguised.

Audiences would be allowed to participate in the selection of course. The person receiving the widest assortment of insults and taunts would be the winner.

It could start a whole new movement. People would find their ugliness a source of pride, wearing "I'm Ugly and Proud of It" buttons. National organizations would be formed to lobby for legislation in the interests of ugly people. Ugly people would be called to stand up and be counted -- I guess the world knows who we are, anyway.

The Grubbiest Raider -- probably one of the more interesting contests, attracts a wide field of competitors. The contest would operate on a point system. Contenders from Sneed, Gordon and Bledsoe would be automatically awarded a 10-point advantage. One point would be awarded for each week a person wore the same jeans and t-shirt without washing. Three points would be awarded for each day without such luxuries as toothpaste, showers, or deoderant. The contest would culminate with the tennis shoe competition. Two points would be awarded the contestants if the smell of their P.F.'s produced slight nausea, five points for dizzy spells, and 10 points if the pungent whiff produced a TKO.

The biggest rivalry, however, probably would exist in the Biggest Redneck Pageant. This competition would be divided into two parts: appearances and talent.

Judging -- in the appearances division -- would be based on originality and coordination of western attire. Judges would check the actual gallon-draw of hats, the size and style of boots, and the overall effect of accessories.

In the actions category, the three most revered cowboys arts -- spitting, cussing, and belching -- would be judged. Spitting would be judged on arc, distance, and accuracy -- up-and-down-wind. Cussing would be checked for originality, sincerity, and quantity. Belching excellence would be based on volume and overall tone quality.

Also included in the actions division would be a cow chip kicking and catching contest.

First prize for the outstanding Redneck would be a case of Lonestar longnecks and a year's supply of Copenhagen snuff.

All these contests could take place in the same week. Each winner from each contest would progress to the finals to compete for the coveted Typical Techsan award.

The award, a superstar award of sorts, would be bestowed on the one student with talents most representative of the vast Tech student body. It would be an award which wouldn't just recognize the God-given gifts of a few, but the hard-earned and diligently developed traits of the common student.

One can almost see the Typical Techsan rising to receive his (or her) award -- smelly, ugly cowboy wearing P.F. Flyer cowboy boots, cursing 50 words per minute and spitting upwind plumb to Austin.

NEWS BRIEFS

Kissinger criticizes UN vote

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today the United Nations vote equating Zionism with racism "was extremely unhelpful and highly irresponsible" in efforts to bring lasting peace to the Middle East.

However, Kissinger said, "we have to keep the American reaction in some bounds."

In reply to questions at a news conference here, Kissinger said: "We went through a period in which the United Nations was described as the best hope of humanity. That was exaggerated..."

"We must now not swing to the other extreme of not realizing some of the benefits that the U.N., with all of its failings, still has for the United States."

Kissinger said the administration has not decided on any specific course of action. He pointed out that, with the large number of countries voting for the U.N. resolution on Zionism, a decision by the United States to apply economic sanctions would amount to a major change in U.S. foreign policy.

Soviet denied travel permission

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei Sakharov, physicist and civil rights champion, said Wednesday the Soviet Union has denied him permission to travel to Oslo to receive the Nobel Peace Prize.

Sakharov, who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb before devoting himself to human rights, said passport officials told him he could not go because he has "a knowledge of state secrets."

"I consider this decision as damaging to the cause of international detente," the 54 year old scientist told Western correspondents outside the passport office.

The tall, stoop shouldered scientist seemed stunned by the decision. He had said minutes earlier that he thought he would be allowed to attend the award ceremony on Dec. 10.

Norwegian Foreign Minister Knut Frydenlund said Wednesday night that he deeply regrets the refusal to allow Sakharov to go to Oslo.

Bentsen urges defeat of Wallace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen said Wednesday he and fellow Democratic presidential contenders must defeat Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in their home states to prove they are viable candidates.

"It's not just me," the Texas Democrat said in an interview. "I don't see how anyone remains a really viable candidate if he doesn't beat Wallace."

Wallace officially announced his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday.

Bentsen and Wallace are considered the prime candidates in the May 1 Texas primary.

CIA plots never revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Warren Commission had received information about CIA plans to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, it would have widened its investigation of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the commission's assistant counsel says.

Information that the CIA plotted to kill Castro was gathered during the Rockefeller Commission's recent probe of the intelligence agency.

But that information never was reported to the Warren Commission, even though the director of the CIA, the late Allen Dulles, was a member of the commission, David W. Belin said Tuesday.

Belin also served as executive director of the Rockefeller Commission.

Ms. Playmate, Ms. Texas Tech selected Tuesday

Carol Hart, a junior education major, emerged from a three-way tie Tuesday night to be named this year's

Ms. Texas Tech. The judges also chose Tricia Hammond, a senior fashion merchandising student, sponsored by Sigma Chi fraternity as Ms. Playmate for 1975-76.

Both contestants will represent the university at special school functions and will be featured in the La Ventura.

The audience of about 700 in the University Center Ballroom was kept waiting while the judges took one last look at the contestants before the 20-year-old Hart, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta sorority, was chosen Ms. Texas Tech for 1975-76.

JUDGES IN THE contest were Lubbock City Councilman Dirk West; Coach William W. Brown of Brown's Varsity Shop; Helen Dixon, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal family news editor and Eddy Clinton, KCBD-TV sportscaster.

The contest was sponsored by The Society of Professional Journalists—Sigma Delta Chi and the Public Relations Student Society of America. The two groups raised approximately $1,200 from the event to provide scholarships for mass communications students.

Hart was chosen from 20 finalists who were selected by the judges who voted on poise, personality and appearance in both formal and casual clothing.

Hammond was selected from 10 finalists judged on poise, beauty and appearance in swimsuits.

Runners-up in the Ms. Texas Tech contest are Sharon Kelton, first runner-up; Alice Tolliver, second runner-up;

Lisa Thornton, third runner-up and Diane Callaway, fourth runner-up.

Runners-up in the Ms. Playmate contest are Cynthia

Woodward and Rhonda Foster, both first runners-up; Michelle Thorn, third runner-up and Carol Ubben, fourth runner-up.

Colorprint U.S.A. plans 130 works

About 130 works by more than 100 artists will go on display in the Tech art department Teaching Gallery at 2 p.m., Sunday.

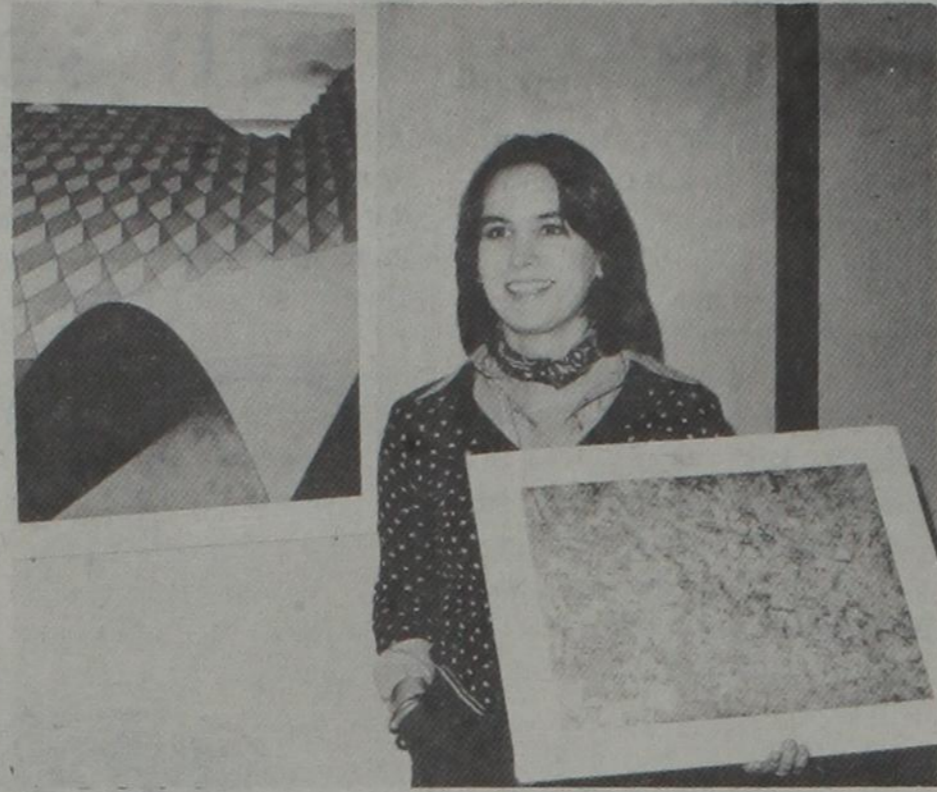

The sixth annual Colorprint U.S.A. will open with a public reception in the Teaching Gallery, 2-4 p.m., with the jurist and judge, Clare Romano, professor of fine arts, Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., as guest of honor.

Initial jurying was done for the first time this year from 35 millimeter color slides. Romano said, "It was a singular experience to be part of Tech's experiment with selecting the prints for this year's exhibition from slides." She will judge the works after arrival.

There are 11 invited entries in the show, according to Dr. Bill Lockhart, art department chairman, who praised the quality of the art work shown this year. "We believe this has a positive benefit for the university community, Lubbock and this area of West Texas," he commented.

"One of the most pleasant aspects of looking at the prints was the emergence of so many new names, along with the better known artists," Romano said.

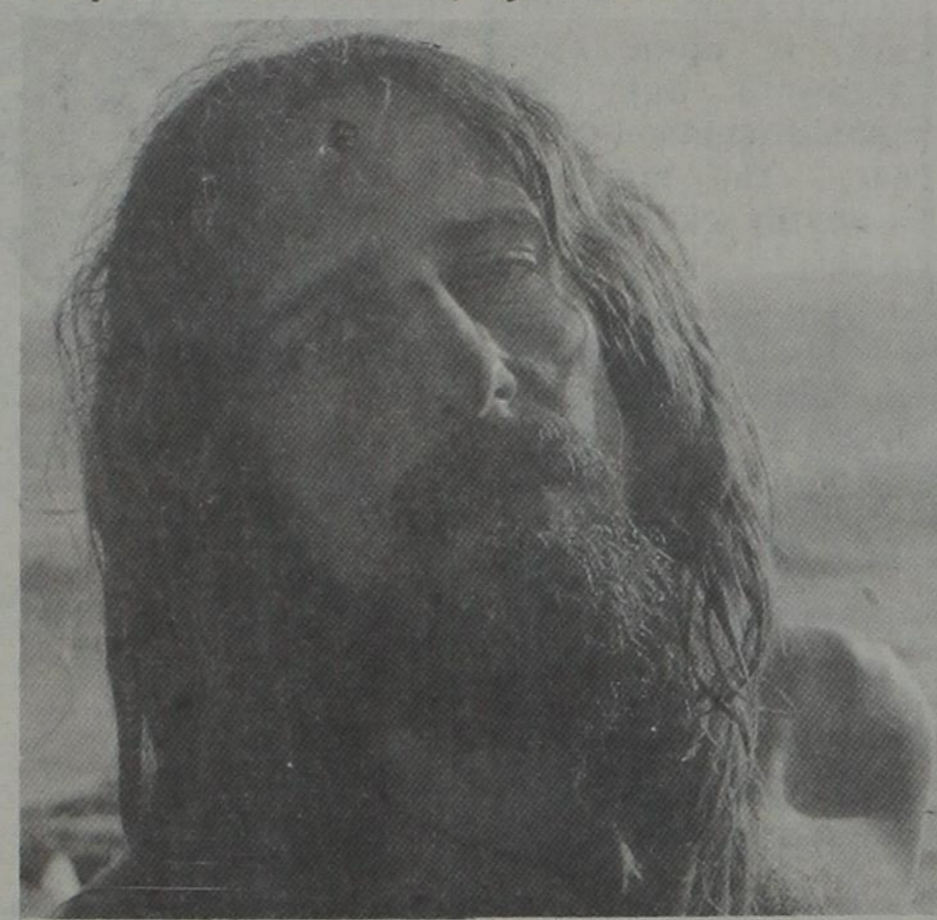

Two lithographs for show

Mary Louise McCarroll of the Tech art faculty will show two lithographs in the Colorprint U.S.A. Exhibit, opening Sunday in the art department Teaching Gallery. She is holding one entitled "Delphinion." Already hung is an intaglio, "And They All Look Just the Same," by Frances Ross.

Moot Court Team

Jimmy Spheeris

Album review

Artist needs lyrics, production

By DOUG PULLEN
Fine Arts Staff Writer

Jimmy Spheeris marked his return to the recording business with a new lp entitled "The Dragon Is Dancing." After listening to this disc, I knew that this is an artist who needs some lyrical help.

It's not that the music is so bad, because it isn't, but the words are something else. Spheeris is a practitioner of what is called "purple poetry." You've all probably heard about it in your English classes.

When an artist prints his lyrics with his album (as Spheeris has done), that artist should be able to take the scrutiny that will be unleashed on him; whether the criticism is positive or negative. I hope Spheeris can dish out the criticism, because his lyrics are false, make-believe and bull.

Two specific passages are perfect examples. One is clumsy while the other is just plain stupid. From "Blown Out" comes the lovely lyrical passage, "I will die for you, for you, you are the only one, deep as the oceans and colder too, such a sad and lonely one, but I'm gonna stay with you." Clumsy.

The other passage comes from "In the Misty Woods" and goes like this: "By a windy sea, dolphins laughed as we made love, seagulls circled up above, their cry was sad."

Another bad aspect of "The Dragon Is Dancing" is the production. Henry Lewy is credited on the liner notes for the production and sound, but Lewy would have been better off avoiding such credits.

On the positive side, though, is the music. It is fairly good. For this I must give Spheeris a plus rating. He has expertly mixed his mellow folksy moods music with some mystic themes and even some hard rock. Somehow it all seems to fit in. With people like jazz man Chick Corea helping out, the music is bound to sound good.

Despite all this, Spheeris has a chance to make a name for himself. All he needs is a lyricist and a producer. Otherwise, he's alright.

Special Services aims at learning

By CINDY BAUM
UD Staff

"The purpose of the Special Services Program is to try to develop more democratic learning conditions for all students," according to Kaprosy, director of the Special Services Program.

Tech's Special Services Program, started two years ago, has a program to help the physically disabled and people with limited English-speaking abilities who are currently enrolled.

"The handicapped people can receive tutoring, counseling, financial aid, job placement and can take advantage of early registration," Kaprosy said. "The physically disabled, especially the blind, take the most advantage of tutoring," Kaprosy said. "We have two or three out of the 20 to 30 tutors available that are specially trained in this area."

Kaprosy said the handicapped are not necessarily poor students. "The Special Services Program will send a tutor to the student," Kaprosy said. "We try not to duplicate the services offered by the Texas Rehabilitation Center," Kaprosy said, "and we try to work with the rehabilitation center."

Kaprosy feels the people with limited English-speaking abilities receive less attention than other minority groups including the handicapped. "The Special Services Program is trying to develop more learning opportunities - culturally as well as academically - for the limited English speaker," Kaprosy said. He said there is very little for the limited English speaker since all courses except for language courses are conducted in English.

Kaprosy said most of the limited-English speakers, excluding foreign students, are native Spanish speakers. "We are working with other departments to hire people with experience in working with limited English speakers and also to choose text books that have bi-lingual editions," Kaprosy said. The services offered in these programs including tutoring, counseling, etc., are carried out by students who come from the same background or who have an understanding of their problems.

Paper, plastic bags and cans for clothes

Recycled cans hit the market a few years ago, but Alice French's "Communications Media in Clothing" class featured recycled clothing in an informal fashion show

Wednesday. As part of a class project, French's students designed and modeled clothes made of everything from plastic bags to beer cans. (Photos by Larry Smith)

Jennings to perform at the Paradise

Waylon Jennings, recently named "Country Male Vocalist of the year," will perform at 9 tonight at the West Texas Paradise Ballroom. The group Pecos will serve as the warmup band. Jennings was born in Littlefield and later moved to Lubbock, where he worked as a disc jockey for a local radio station. There he met rock-and-roll star, Buddy Holly, who asked him to join his group as electric bass player.

Jennings' albums on the RCA label include "Honky Tonk Heroes," "Good Hearted Woman," "The Taker-Tulsa" and "I'm a Ramblin' Man."

He traveled with Holly until Holly's death in 1959, then returned to radio work in Lubbock before moving to Phoenix, Ariz., where he formed his own group, The Wajlons. The group was a combination of country, folk and rock.

Advanced tickets for the concert may be purchased for $5 at both John's Jeans locations and the Main Street Saloon. Beginning at 8 p.m., tickets may be purchased at the door of the Paradise Ballroom for $6.

Loneliness, caring in theater production

The young and lonely Jo (Jayna Hock) clings to the warmth and caring affection of Geoff (Danny Cartwright) in the Lab Theater's production of "A Taste of Honey." The play begins Friday at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. and will continue through Wed. Nov. 19. Tickets are still available at the University Theatre box office. (Photo by Larry Jayroe)

Nazi era film depicts propaganda

A Nazi era film "Triumph of the Will," will be shown today in the Coronado Room of the University Center, at 3 and 7:30 p.m. Student admission is 50 cents, with a validated I.D.

Directed by Leni Riefenstahl, the propaganda film presents Hitler and national socialism at the "culmination" of German history. The presentation is the filming of a staged extravaganza portraying the German people as enthusiastic and dynamic.

According to Otto M. Nelson, associate history professor, it is evident in the film that the German people have been transformed, uprooted and detached from previous norms of existence.

The film is sponsored by the Tech history department and the UC Programs Committee.

Petro engineering students to benefit from symposium

By JUDITH BRANN UD Staff

Six $500 scholarships will be financed by income from a production technology symposium sponsored today and Friday by the South Plains Section and Tech Student Chapter of the Society of Petroleum Engineers (SPE), according to Duane A. Crawford, associate professor of petroleum engineering. "This is where we get our scholarship money for deserving students in this (petroleum engineering) department," Crawford said. National SPE funds will match the amount raised by the South Plains Section, he said.

More than 250 petroleum industry professionals and students are expected to attend the two-day program at the KoKo Palace Convention Hall in Lubbock, Crawford said. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. today in the convention hall lobby. Student registration is free. Non-student registration fees, including reprints of the technical papers, are $20 for SPE members and $25 for non-members. Fourteen technical sessions are scheduled for the symposium, the fifth regional meeting of the South Plains Section of SPE.

regional meeting, we are able to select papers more appropriate to this locale," Crawford said.

Tech students will have a booth in the exhibits room, Crawford said. The students will display a working reservoir model built by Crawford and a gas lift model built by Dr. H. W. Winkler, petroleum engineering department chairman.

Tech students will also be helping with registration and conducting an SPE membership drive, Crawford said.

'Old Man' Green vital part of Raider secondary

By BARRY DIETERT
UD Sports Staff

Known as "The Old Man" by his fellow players, Tony Green is the oldest player on the Raider varsity squad. At 23, the strong safety is playing his last season at Tech.

"Tony has been an important factor in our defense all year," said Taylor McNeel, defensive backfield coach. "His experience has really stabilized our secondary."

"We've come to expect big plays from Tony every game," said McNeel. "His consistency is almost unbelievable."

GREEN HAS compiled several unassisted tackles every game. Against Oklahoma State he made five sacks which resulted in losses totaling 28 yards. "His performance in the OSU game was sensational," McNeel said.

Besides all the tackles he has to credit, Green has snagged three interceptions. One, he returned for a touchdown.

"Tony is definitely a prospect for All Southwest Conference," said Head Coach Steve Sloan. "It would be no accident or mistake. He has worked hard and deserves it."

"My years at Tech have really flown by," Green said. "It seems like only a short time ago when I was making the tough decision of where to go to school."

AS A SENIOR at Seguin High School, Green was one of the leading pass interceptors in the state. He was a blue-chip college prospect at safety and therefore, sought by many colleges.

"Growing up in South Texas, everyone breathes UT" Green said. "I had an offer to go to Texas as well as several other major universities, but I chose Tech."

"I decided to join a team that could beat Texas, rather than playing with them," Green said. "I also thought Tech would have a good chance to win the Southwest Conference during the time I'd be here."

"My final decision was greatly influenced by my recruiter, Coach John Conley (now Tech's Assistant Athletic Director). He really impressed me and quickly gained my respect."

"LUBBOCK AND the people of this area seemed to fit my personality, too. Everyone was nice and friendly."

"I played quarterback, as well as safety in high school. I thought I might get a chance to play quarterback here, but I was immediately put on defense," Green said.

After lettering his sophomore year at free safety, Green was moved to strong safety and red-shirted. "It was a frustrating time for me," Green said. "I felt like the coaches had lost all confidence in me."

"There were two senior strong safeties ahead of me that year," Green said. "Danny Willis, who played first string, was very highly thought of."

"THE NEXT season all the coaches talked as if it would be impossible to replace Willis. It took a while, but I finally made up my mind that I could replace the "Irreplaceable Danny Willis," Green said. "Now as I look back on being red-shirted I'm really glad it happened," Green said. "I gained valuable experience and it gave me an opportunity to play under Coach Sloan."

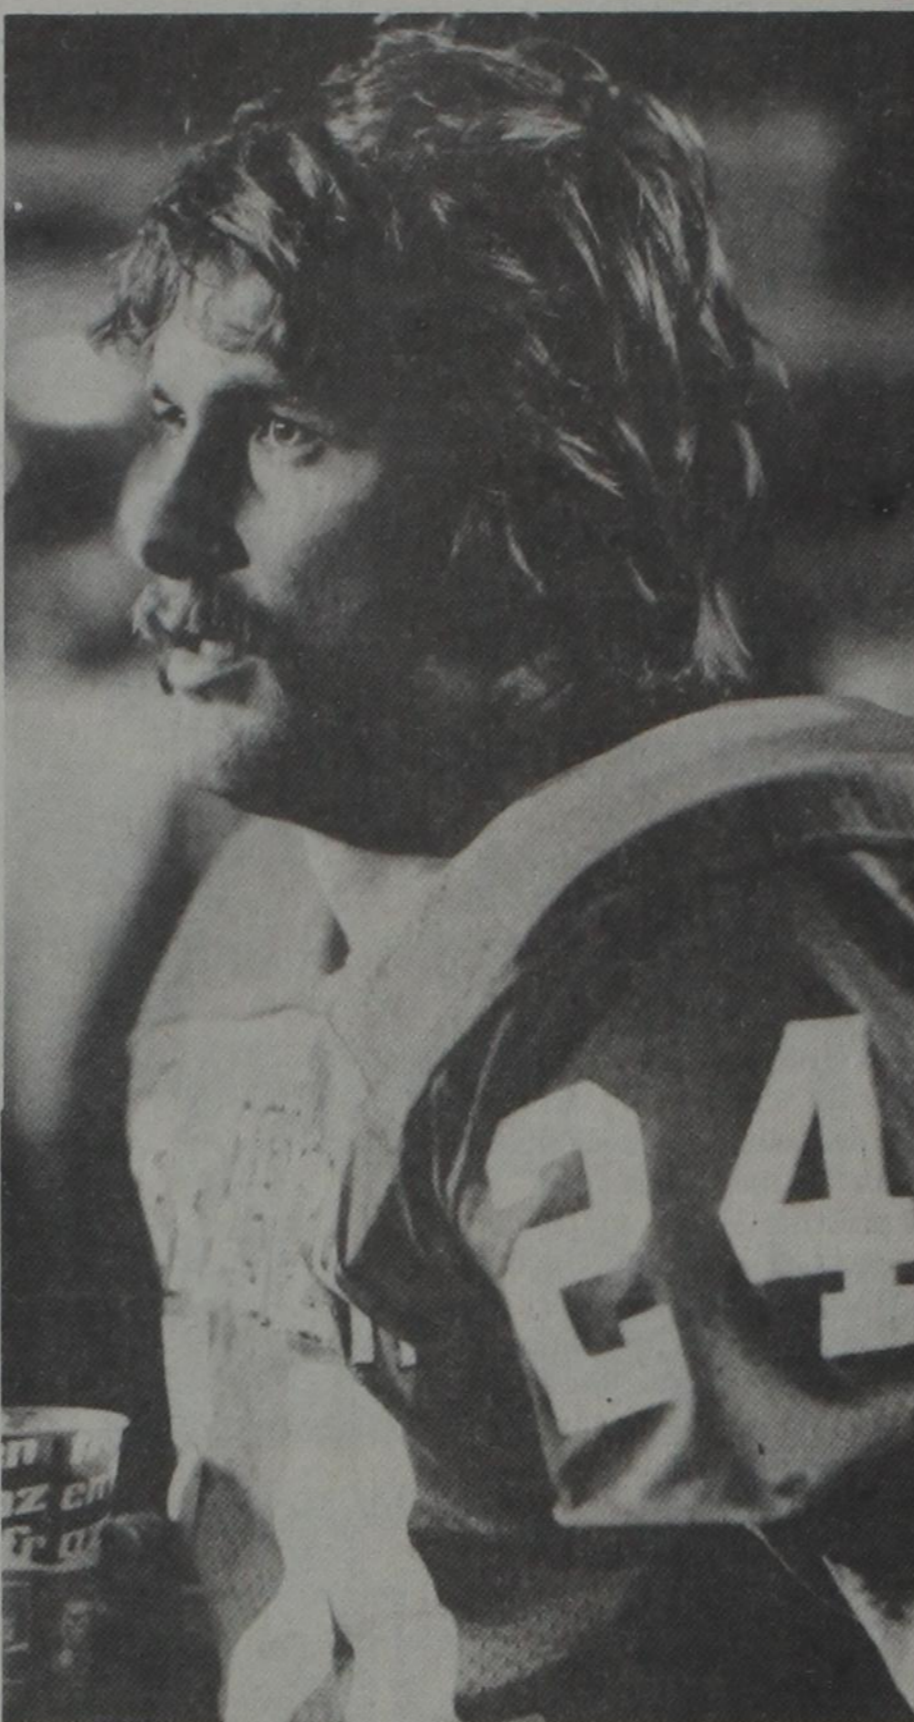

"Even though I had to go through a period of adjustment, I feel very fortunate to have played for Coach Sloan. He is a very warm, personal individual. He stays on our level and understands our problems as players," Green said.

"With Coach Sloan and his hard working staff here, I expect big things from Tech in the near future. I just wish I could stay and be a part of it," he said.

GREEN WILL graduate with a business degree in December. His plans for the future are still rather indefinite, he said.

"I'll probably wait for the professional football draft before making any decisions. I've always hoped for the chance to play pro football," he said.

Right now, I'm concentrating on the two remaining games. It would be great to finish out my college career with wins over Baylor and Arkansas," Green said.

'Mean Green'

Betas, Splash take honors in intramural swimming

Beta Theta Pi collected 85 points while Splash amassed 100 points to take All-University honors in the Men and Women's Intramural Swim Meet Tuesday night.

Pi Beta Phi (Women) and McNasty's (Men) finished in second place.

A national intramural record was set by Holley Smith of Pi Beta Phi in the diving event with a score of 95.65.

Four intramural records were broken in competition. Greg Chaffin of the Betas broke his own record of 25.75 by a tenth of a second in the 50-yard butterfly.

The team of John Davis, Bruce Wagner, Greg Chaffin, and George Perry representing Betas set a new record in the 100-yard free relay of 44.24. The old record was 45.1.

Dee Schmidt of Delta Gamma blasted the old record of 1.44 in the 100-yard breast by 17 seconds to establish a new time of 1.26.87.

In the 100-yard free relay a new record of 57.6 was set by Kathy Duckworth, Lynne Stebbins, Mary Grace Swanson, and Debbie Haralson of Pi Beta Phi. This broke the old record by two seconds.

Seaver takes NL's Cy Young

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver knew exactly how Randy Jones felt when the Baseball Writers Association of America announced Wednesday the winner of the National League's 1975 Cy Young Award.

"I'm sure it was a big disappointment for him," said Seaver. "I've gone through the same thing."

Seaver and Jones, the NL's only 20 game winners, were considered the only real candidates for the trophy that goes to the league's best pitcher. The writers picked Seaver, giving him 98 points to 80 for Jones, of the San Diego Padres.

"I THOUGHT the voting would be closer," said Seaver, who had won the award twice before, after leading the New York Mets to pennants in 1969 and 1973. He didn't win it in 1971, a year in which he felt he was the best pitcher in baseball.

"I felt I pitched well enough to win in '71," he said. "But they gave it to Ferguson Jenkins. If Jones had won it this year, I wouldn't have felt as badly as I did in '71."

In 1971, Seaver started on the final day of the season and won his 20th game. It was no coincidence that he also started the final game of the 1975 season and won No. 22. "Yes, that was partially why I started that last game," Seaver said. "The club wanted to give me the best shot it could at winning the award."

SEAVER, WHO set a major league record with his eighth straight season of 200 or more strikeouts, had a 22-9 record and a 2.38 earned run average. He received 15 first place votes from the 24 man BBWA committee. Jones was the NL's only other 20 game winner and led the league with a 2.24 earned run average.
