Barber reminisces of Tech's early years, friendships with students

By WAYNE ROPER UD Reporter

He was there for the groundbreaking ceremony of the Administration Building, remembers when some of the local businessmen would chunk rocks across University Avenue at complacent jack rabbits, and proudly boasts that he "helped buy Tech." C. P. Collier, who gives his age as "81 and a half", has lived in Lubbock for 65 years and is a part of Tech's growth.

The owner of the Tech Barber Shop on Main Street, Collier has cut Tech students' hair at that location for the past 20 years.

"I CAN HARDLY remember when I wasn't a barber," Collier said. "I started barbering around 1915 and I won't retire as long as I'm able to work."

"The barber shop was put in on University in 1925," he said. From a disarrayed stack of newspapers, Collier pulled an old newspaper photo on the Tech campus in the 1920's, pointing to the spot on University Avenue and Main

University and chunk rocks at jack rabbits in the field across the street," he said, sweeping his hand across the picture to a lone building in the field. "That building in the background is the Administration Building. I attended the groundbreaking ceremony for that building," Collier said adding, "Back then it was about the only building Tech had."

"THE BARBER SHOP was then moved to the place where College Inn now stands," Collier said.

It was then, about 20 years ago, that Collier bought the barber shop and developed ties with Tech customers.

"I used to have five barbers cutting hair then," Collier said, rubbing his own thinning white hair.

"Of course, that was when kids used to get haircuts every two weeks," Collier said with a chuckle.

THE FREQUENT haircuts gave Collier a chance to know quite a few Tech students.

"The only trouble was that the kids would trade with you for two, three, four years and then be gone, and you never hear from them again," Collier said, gazing through the empty barber "The businessmen used to line up on shop and focusing on some distant point across the street.

> "Some come in at homecoming and visit a little," Collier said. "But he might have one of his own kids under his arm."

One former Tech student writes Collier around Christmas time, he

"I USED TO keep the names, but I don't anymore," Collier said. "It's hard to remember all their names after all those years, but I remember most of their faces."

The location of Tech in Lubbock around 1923, Collier remembers vividly.

"They had a committee come by to look at Lubbock and decide whether to locate the university here," Collier recalled. "They said that they would need more land, so we called a town meeting."

The area now occupied by Tech included a few privately owned sections of land, at that time, Collier explained.

"THE COMMITTEE felt Tech would need that land so at the town meeting we got together and bought those few sections," Collier said. "I guess you might say I helped buy Tech," he ad-

Collier told of going to some of the Tech basketball games in the old gym, "it wasn't much bigger than twice the size of this barber shop, and you had to wait in a long line to crowd in. I finally stopped going because I couldn't see once I got in, anyway."

Collier admits that business isn't as good as it used to be.

"Kids don't get their hair cut like they used to, and if they do, they usually get it styled," he said. Collier scans the four vacant chairs in his shop at 2420 Main Street.

"MOST OF the barbers went into styling, but I didn't. I was too old to go into styling," Collier said. "I'm the only fellow around that gives regular haircuts, and I'm one of the only ones that still gives shaves."

Most of Collier's customers are people who have been with him a while, including a few Tech professors.

"I cut a lot of foreign students' hair," Collier said. "They get more regular haircuts."

Collier's eyes wander toward the busy street, but seem not to focus on the chaotic rush of traffic. He seems more intent on another place and another

"If you chunked a rock now," he says, smiling slightly "you'd probably break a window."

Senate referendum set today

By GEORGE JOHNSTON

Another argument brought out in Thursday's senate meeting was a concern that the bill was designed only for minority representation.

Academic vice president explains student-teacher ratios, recruiting

BY PAT GRAVES UD Reporter

As an institution, Tech is in reasonably good shape on terms of its student-teacher ratio compared to other state universities, said Dr. William R. Johnson, Tech vicepresident for academic affairs.

The average student-teacher ratio at Tech is 19 to one, Johnson said. Although enrollment has increased during the past two years in several departments, including mass communications and petroleum engineering, Johnson said only the College of Business Administration has felt enough enrollment pressure to warrant its current faculty recruiting

"The BA student-teacher ratio of 24 to one is a bit high," he said, "but that figure is not unique. It is more difficult now to maintain a proper ratio since Tech's enrollment rate has slowed two to three per cent. We must manage our resources better."

JOHNSON EXPLAINED the university ratio did not compare majors with professors but full-time equivalent students with full-time equivalent faculty. Reduction of a student-teacher ratio cannot be accomplished in less than a year, he said.

"The question of whether a university has enough faculty is more complex than merely determining the studentteacher ratio," Johnson said. "One must consider the various means of instruction involved, such as labs and higher level courses, where classes are necessarily smaller."

To illustrate his point, Johnson mentioned the Graduate School's low student-teacher ratio, which is attributable not to a large faculty but a small enrollment. He also referred to the College of Education which does not have a high student-teacher ratio because all of its courses are upper

FACULTY RECRUITING generally occurs year-round, Johnson said, but mostly from January to March or April so that the incoming faculty members' universities will have time to replace them. Johnson said Tech does not steal faculty members from other schools in May or June because Tech does not want the same treatment. He added that faculty recruiting was most often done to fill positions vacated by resignations or retirement.

University officials must go beyond personal contacts to recruit faculty, Johnson said, because the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) requires colleges to advertise open positions and make the opportunities widely known. Johnson said the major responsibility for recruiting new faculty belongs to the dean and faculty of the prospect's potential college at Tech.

Johnson said, however, that either he or Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs Len Ainsworth conducts an interview with each application and gives them an overview of Tech. During the interview trends at Tech are discussed, questions are answered and both the applicant and Tech officials take a critical look at each other, he said.

"IF A PROSPECTIVE faculty member is coming out of graduate school with no experience other than having been a teaching assistant, we check the person's record," Johnson said. "If he is an established faculty member with teaching experience, we contact his other colleagues. His potential Tech colleagues also judge him. The judging doesn't stop when he arrives. Judgments are made about him when we bring him in and then he is judged again (e.g. for tenure)."

In most cases, Johnson takes recommendations from potential faculty members' prospective deans and department chairmen and makes an offer on behalf of the university. If the incoming faculty member is to be a department chairman or has tenure at the school which he is leaving, Johnson said he must be approved by Tech's president and board of regents.

"For the welfare of this institution we must be effective in our selection of faculty," he said. "This is a high priority for us as officers and members of the faculty."

Endorsed: at-large senate seats

IN TODAY'S Student Association referendum, in which the SA Constitution will be up for revision, the voter's checkmark should go before the line reading: Yes, I am in favor of three (3) At-Large Senate seats in addition to the current Senate membership.

Those three senators, if added, will be voted on by students across the university. Under the current process, students can vote only for senators from their college or school.

THOSE THREE seats, if added, will allow for wider representation across the university, and have the potential for increasing minority representation in the senate.

Earlier in the year, consideration had been given to having a seat specifically designated for a minority senator. This would definitely place minorities in the organized student forum, but that would be the only merit for the proposed

AGAINST THE special seat is the argument that it would amount to tokenism. Sure, the SA would have a minority senator, and it would look like the minorities were given consideration. But because the seat was virtually given to the minority senator, and because that senator would not necessarily have voting bloc behind him, he would not be able to accomplish anything.

Further, where, if minorities are given a seat, does the SA draw the line? Are special seats then to be set aside for women - for older students - for handicapped students?

IF THIS semester's letters to the editor are any indication, white students are not opposed to giving the minorities an opportunity to compete equally. They are opposed to minorities being given a definite advantage over them, such as by providing special senate seats. An attempt to put the proposition of having minority seats before the students would be a waste of time, money and effort.

And the point that they hypothetically would have put across on the ballots should be well taken. If the other senators have to compete for their votes, shouldn't the minority senators also have to enter that competition? If the minority senators are going to be given a vote equal with their fellow senators, the election should serve to give them legitimacy for exercising their voting power in the senate. Having a special seat set aside for ninority senators would destroy their legitimacy.

WHAT SHOULD be pointed out about the addition of the at-large seats is that they give special interest groups, such as minorities, the opportunity to legitimately come to power in the

If the minorities, or for that matter a group that wants more handball courts, can assemble a voting bloc, and elect a senator, then they deserve to have that senator represent their interests. They have won that right, rather than have it given to them.

IT SHOULD be noted that special interest groups are not politically unethical. If a group can demonstrate that its feelings are enough in line with the estimated 800 votes needed to elect an at-large senator, then they should be given a voice in the senate. Special interest groups at least are not unknown on the Tech campus. The Greek organizations and the Saddle Tramps are certainly able to wield political force.

Any candidate elected by a special interest is not going to be able to determine the senate's vote on every issue. He will be able to provide a voice for his special interests and work to further them. But at the same time, that person cannot neglect the needs of the other senators and the total university. If he does so, he will lose the voting support of the other senators.

THE AT-LARGE seats will help make the senate more representative, and responsive to more than the concerns of the individual schools and colleges. The at-large seats deserve a vote of approval.

Bentsen out of national presidential campaign but continues Texas drive

By GARTH JONES

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., pulled out of the national drive for the Democratic presidential nomination Tuesday but said he would continue his Texas campaign.

"AFTER STUDYING the results of the early caucuses do not think it would be either useful or productive to continue campaigning across the nation," he told a news conference at the state Capitol.

"As a result, I will no longer campaign for the presidency outside of my home state. Rather, I will concentrate my energies on serving Texas and the nation in the Senate; On seeking re-election as senator from Texas; and on pulling together a united delegation from Texas to the Democratic Convention in New York City."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT, expected since Bentsen ran third among four candidates in Oklahoma last weekend, left eight active Democratic candidates seeking the nomination.

Bentsen, who will be 55 Wednesday, refused to lay blame for his campaign's

"I DON'T believe in post mortems," he said, adding that he felt there had been "too much polarization in the early caucuses (Mississippi and Oklahoma) . . . I tried to represent the moderates. The caucuses attracted the activists."

Bentson also refused to endorse any other candidate.

"LET THEM develop their issues," he said. "I will be looking for the moderate view point."

When asked who he thought represented the moderate viewpoint, he replied: "I do."

"I'll be looking to see if some candidate reflects the Texas viewpoint," he said. . . Someone who does not turn one section of the country against another."

BENTSEN SAID his presidential campaign offices would be closed and all debts paid as soon as possible. "I'm sure we will end with a deficit."

He said his presidential campaign had already qualified for more than $70,000 in additional matching election funds from federal sources but we will not take one dollar of it. It will be returned."

Bentsen said he dismissed his Secret Service escort at his Lake Jackson home Tuesday morning.

HE SAID he would not attempt to hold any delegates already pledged from any other state than Texas. "That is up to them, that is their determination," he said.

He said he would recommend that Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe be chairman of the 130 member Texas delegation to New York City next July.

"WE MADE A good hard effort and I have no regrets," he told the new con-

"I'll write if I get work."

Bentsen had hoped to build momentum for his drive for the Democratic nomination with early victories in caucuses and primaries but he suffered setbacks in Mississippi and Oklahoma. He came out of the Mississippi caucuses on Jan. 24 with less than two per cent of the delegates. Last week in Oklahoma he ended third among four candidates with less than 12 per cent.

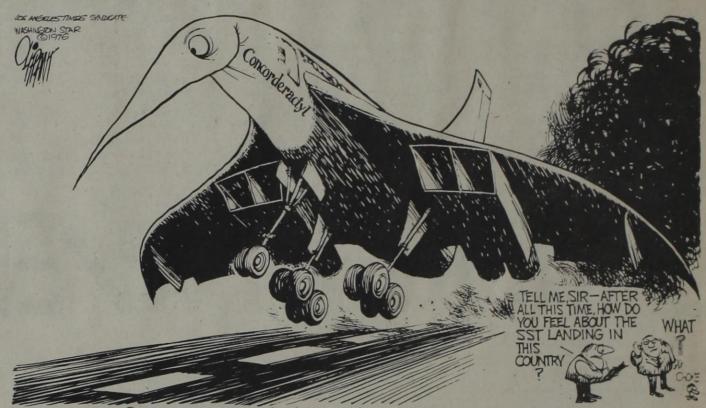

HIGH TEXAS officials urged him to run as a favorite son candidate to give Texas more bargaining power in New York next

At the May 1 primary Texas Democratic voters will get a chance to elect national convention delegates supporting Bentsen, Alabama Gov. George Wallace and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter in all 31 state senatorial districts. Fred Harris, Sargent Shriver and uncommitted delegates will be on the ballot in selected

"I FIRMLY believe that my views reflect those of most Texans and I am convinced that our state must be heard when the Democratic Party convenes in New York in July to select its nominees and adopt its policies," he said in his statement.

"There has been no decision made on that," he said when asked if he would be nominated as a favorite son candidate at the national convention. "I would if it would serve the purpose of the state."

BENTSEN SAID he planned to be in Texas for the remainder of the congressional recess and then would return to Washington.

Living—and voting—in Lubbock

THE STUDENT Association has undertaken an effort to register Tech students to vote. The effort is designed primarily as an outreach program with emphasis placed on students who indicated they were not registered as of class enrollment time.

In the process of registering students, this concern is often voiced: "Why should I register to vote at all, and why should I register and vote in Lubbock County?" Both inquiries deserve answers and explanations.

Why register and vote at all? The simplistic answer is that in this constitutional democracy, it is the duty (privilege) of every qualified citizen to exercise his or her right to vote. A single vote can mean the difference between success and failure; victory and defeat.

ADOLF HITLER was elected to the position from which he launched his drive to power by the margin of one vote. President Andrew Johnson was saved from removal from office during his impeachment trial by a one-vote margin. The list goes on. At the last Texas general election, a state representative from the Panhandle won his seat in the Legislature by a margin of six votes. President Kennedy won the electoral votes of several states by only a few hundred votes.

Voting is the most important right American citizens possess and yet our citizenry has one of the lowest voting percentages of any of the nations where free voting exists. Perhaps that record is a sad reflection of the feeling our citizens have toward their government. Though perhaps justified, we must not allow that apathy to survive if we seriously expect democracy to survive. Our choice to vote is therefore clear.

WHY REGISTER and vote in Lubbock County? The simplistic answer is that for the duration of one's higher education, Lubbock County is in fact "home." It is here that students pay bills, whether utility or liquor.

It is in Lubbock County that students pay rent and through that rent pay property and other taxes. It is in Lubbock County that students earn income to pay for expenses of education and living; entertainment and survival. It is here that we drive our cars, eat our meals, buy our clothes, read advertising, etc.,

VOTER REGISTRATION and participation should occur wherever the individual is actually and presently located. This attitude, as reflected in laws recently enacted by the Texas Legislature, resulted in the dropping of all residence requirements as a prerequisite to

An individual should vote where his or her economic and social interests are located. One should not vote in a place where the only ties remaining are those of family and friends. To do so is to work an injustice on the individual voter and upon those citizens whose economic and social interests lie in that area.

FOR TECH students, "home" as defined by history or family background may be Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, or Anytown, U.S.A. For voting, "home" is and should be Lubbock. Register and vote here; for the good of everyone.

Italian government crisis ends

ROME (AP) - Premier designate Aldo Moro brought Italy's 34-day-old government crisis to an end Tuesday, deciding on a stopgap cabinet in a move to stave off elections and possible gains by the Communist party. But the Lockheed scandal threatened to delay his choice of

The 59-year-old Christian Democrat, a four-time premier given a mandate by his party in an effort to tackle Italy's pressing economic and monetary problems, told President Giovanni Leone he would name his cabinet ministers, made up only of members of his party, within 48 hours. It will be Italy's 38th government since the fall of fascism in 1943.

Moro came under increasing pressure to drop Luigi Gui, interior minister in Moro's caretaker government. He was named by several Italian news papers as a recipient of payoffs from the Lockheed Corp.

Gui, defense minister in 1970, filed a statement with the state prosecutor Tuesday and asked him to conduct a probe regardless of "the judicial consequences."

According to a 1970 Lockheed memorandum released in Washington last week by a U.S. Senate subcommittee, the company laid out $1.6 million to promote the sale of 14 C130 cargo planes to Italy. The memo did not identify Italian officials, referring only to "the minister," but newspapers here named Gui. He previously denied any connection.

Schnabel receives indictments

AUSTIN(AP) - Three more indictments were returned Tuesday against Senate Secretary Charles Schnabel, including charges he worked University of Texas athletes on his farm on Senate time.

Two of the new indictments allege he stole two state pay checks totaling $521.48 and forged an endorsement on another for $332.11.

One indictment contains five points, including the allegation he misapplied state money by paying five Senate women employes to type "heat sheets" at the Texas Relays

The grand jury incorporated into that indictment one of the three previous indictments it returned against him Dec. 30. That one involves a charge that Schnabel worked a Senate employe, Frank J. Smith III, on Schnabel's farm during Senate time.

Teen-ager testifies in hearing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Patricia Hearst, once a kidnap victim, smiled easily Tuesday as a teen-aged witness spoke of her as his kindly captor who comforted him while

Thomas D. Matthews, an affable 19-year-old obviously pleased to see Miss Hearst again, testified that he remembered vividly her skillful clicking of a bullet in and out of her rifle while he watched.

Miss Hearst swore in direct testimony Monday that she never handled a gun near Matthews. But under further questioning, she said her memory was cloudy and "it's possible" she loaded a rifle in his presence. Matthews' recollection was far from cloudy as he told again and again of Miss Hearst's concern for his comfort during his 12 hours of captivity by the Symbionese Liberation Soviet-backed Angolan

"She patted me on the head and asked me if I was all right," he said. "I know she did this at least twice, but it might have been four or five times."

Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s admission that it paid $22 million to foreign officials and businessmen threatened the future Tuesday of the Japanese government and the Dutch monarchy and hampered efforts to form a new Italian cabinet. It also set off official inquiries or calls for such inquiries in Columbia and Turkey.

The leading Japanese opposition party, the Socialists, demanded that a former primeminister be added to the eight men already summoned to testify under oath before a committee of parliament. The Socialist chairman said Prime Minister Takeo Miki's Liberal Democratic cabinet would be forced to resign if the Lockheed affair was thoroughly

The Dutch government appointed a three-man commission to investigate allegations that Prince Bernard, the 64-year old husband of Queen Juliana, received $1.1 million of the Lockheed money. He has denied the accusations and said he welcomes an inquiry.

Reporting the payments to promote aircraft sales, the Soviet news agency Tass said the "scandalous machinations" of Lockheed were linked to the desires of the U.S. military industrial complex to make "fabulous profits" and enrich the government treasury.

Construction underway in the Administration Building has added some new steps to the Tech Shuffle. Among the hazards awaiting the unwary visitor are: Two signs directing people to a mysterious room 158B, top left, (mysterious since one of the signs points to the tile floor, top center); another sign which points the way to Temporary Administrative offices, top right; and a third sign which directs shufflers to several Administration Building offices now located in the Library, bottom left.
