WASHINGTON SIGNALS

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, U. S. Veterans' Administrator, is a cautious man where issues with political considerations are involved. You can safely bet he was seeking by the book when he hinted that elimination of all interest charges on bonus loans might be a good compromise on the American Legion's immediate bonus payment "recommendation."

Although he was careful to say President Roosevelt had expressed no opinion, the general's comments on interest cancellation were made in the White House lobby a few seconds after he had left FDR's office.

At the time the bonus issue first got hot again, and well before the Legion met at Miami, this column pointed out that the administration probably would propose the interest on bonus loans be forgiven in an effort to stave off cash payment. Those veterans who "borrowed" fifty per cent of their service certificates' face values would not find much of the remaining fifty per cent left in 1945 if the interest on their "loans" continues to run.

Frank Belgrano, Jr., new National Commander of the Legion, was quick to take issue with Hines. He said the Miami convention's mandate to recommend immediate payment of the bonus would be carried out.

What Belgrano did not say was how hard the recommendation would be pressed. The Legion's executive committee meets in Indianapolis late this month to decide that point. Of course the overwhelming majority by which the boys asked for cash on the barrel head must influence the committee considerably.

Commander Belgrano personally is in a rather unique position. As new chief of the Legion he must perform lip service at least for bonus payments. As an official of the Bank of Italy it might be suspected his private views would lean against asking the government to lay out an extra two billion dollars at this time.

Senator Key Pittman's announcement that he intended to introduce a bonus bill was a final tip-off to the White House on how tough the fight is going to be.

Forward Movement Organization Is Being Rapidly Perfected

Rock Crusher Added To CCC Project Here

Crushed Rock To Be Used In Topping Roads On Scenic Mountain

An effective organization is rapidly being perfected under the direction of D. W. Webber, general chairman of the Big Spring Forward Movement, sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

Announcement was made this morning by Webber of Dr. P. W. Malone as colonel of the general sales army, whose leadership in particular outstanding in Big Spring. Under this commission, Colonel Malone will direct the general sales campaign, which swings into the field of action on November 21.

Colonel Malone is about to appoint four majors, each of which will organize a division consisting of four captains and twelve lieutenants.

Response to the request of the various officers of the sales army for leaders, who are being selected for their own particular qualifications at getting the job done in the past, has been highly pleasing to General Chairman Webber.

The organization is further perfected and rounded into final form there is an increasing optimism that augurs well for the entire plan as worked out almost to its final stages, Webber said.

Pointing out Thursday that the program will call for active interest of every citizen of Big Spring, Webber declared that the essential thing for the movement is the cooperation of the old Big Spring spirit that in other days meant so much to the development of the city.

To this end, there are a great number of younger citizens all keenly interested in the future welfare of Big Spring whose energies are being turned into the one motivating action behind the whole movement, that of bringing Big Spring to the realization of its immediate need to form a solid foundation on which the future years are to be built.

FDR Cheered By Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cheered by election results, President Roosevelt Thursday took up vital problems of unemployment relief and government expenditures upon returning to the White House after a voting trip to his home at Hyde Park, New York.

Representative Bushanan, Texas chairman of the appropriations committee, was one of his first callers.

While obviously intent upon both unemployment and budget problems, there was no indication the president had reached final conclusions on legislative recommendations.

It appeared likely the future relief program will hinge upon surveys of needs to be known later.

Steer Team Shows Plays For Lions

Lions had members of the Big Spring high school football team as their guests Wednesday at the weekly meeting.

Following the luncheon, Coach Obie Bristow lined up a "first string" and placed opposition guards, tackles and center in regular defensive positions.

Then by slow motion tempo, he showed how plays are worked. He worked spinners, off tackle plays and a sneak through center. He demonstrated a forward double lateral pass. He had the boys show a few plays which have not been used this season but which will probably be put into force against San Angelo.

Bristow reminded that three basic elements in a football attack were speed, power and deception. Timing of plays was a vital cog in the success of any one of the basic elements. He demonstrated this by action.

Games are won and lost in the line, he said. "People watch the man with the ball," said the coach. "But they forget that if one line-man falls in his assignment, the play falls."

Bristow was assisted in the demonstration by Milton Moffett, an assistant coach to whom Bristow gave credit for blocking on the team.

The program for the day was arranged by the new program committee, headed by Dave Tobolowsky.

Upton Sinclair has suffered a crushing, smashing defeat. From one end of California to the other, he and his frank doctrines have been buried under an avalanche of indignant American votes.

Sinclairism is dead and buried in California—probably all over the United States. Although, like other forms of rash, it was an unpleasant experience, it was well that Upton Sinclair ran for office and conducted this campaign.

The people of California are not red. They never have been. On the contrary, it is doubtful if any other state of the Union is more thoroughly American in thought, intent or character of the population.

THE DAY OF RECKONING Los Angeles Times: With the election day came the opportunity for California to speak her mind. The result is a litter of broken-down soap boxes, a smell of burned-out red light glasses and deflated ghosts of burst balloons.

Spanish soldiers who served their time in the mission garrisons stayed on in California to build a great and colorful civilization. Eager, adventurous young Gribnos who came with stout hearts and—as the Spanish era faded from the scene—created an American civilization in California.

It was this setting that Upton Sinclair chose for his attempt to overthrow every ideal that Americans have held sacred; and to substitute the decadent, rotted doctrines of shot-out wrecked and ruined civilizations from other lands.

It has been obvious from the first that Sinclair had no settled constructive program and no definite idea as to where he was heading. He has an exhibitionist fixation.

He attracted much interest while it lasted. Few men have been able to keep so many rainbow soap bubbles dancing in the air at the same time. In the end—in fact before the end came—he was dismayed by his own performance.

For Californians, it is a job well done. We can dust off our hands and go about our business. But what of the disillusioned, disappointed people lured here by this rainbow clown, Sinclair?

By thousands they have flocked to California—hitch-hiking their way across the hot desert, coaxing the last miles out of battered, old freight cars—on their way to a promised land of milk and honey.

They know, in their hearts, that it was not Wall Street and the demon rich who did it. Upton Sinclair scuttles off the scene, leaving them to face their fate.

AUSTIN, (UP)—Centennial discussions before the state legislature have revealed that adopted sons of Texas are just as eager for the Centennial as native sons.

Most of the legislature's members shows that 23 of the Senate's 30 members were born in Texas; two in Tennessee and one each in Alabama, Georgia, Illinois, Mississippi and Missouri.

The House with 150 members has 105 native sons. Georgia and Tennessee each have furnished eight; Arkansas and Mississippi, four each; Missouri and Kentucky, three each; Louisiana and Indiana, two each.

Proceeds To Acquire Land In State Park

Correspondence Relative To Project From Responsible Heals Received

With the general election out of the way, attention of this city is now being turned to the proposed $20,000 bond issue Nov. 20.

Proceeds of this issue would be used to acquire additional acreage upon which proponents of the Beehive Mountain park project say an extensive development program hinges.

Verbal assurances of a larger development program in event the land is acquired have been given. Others have sought written confirmation.

Correspondence received from responsible heads having different interpretations placed upon it by proponents and opponents of the issue.

Perhaps excerpts from a series of letters may throw some light upon the matter:

Quoting D. E. Colp, chairman of the State Park Board, in a letter to Dr. P. W. Malone, secretary of the citizens state park committee:

"To this (a letter asking assurance that the park project would be completed if the land were acquired) we would like to say, the National Park Service served notice on us quite a while ago if the additional land was not purchased they would complete a hurried program and move the camp out as quickly as the small project could be finished but if the additional land was acquired the camp should remain there until the end of the period July 1, 1935, and complete the program as originally outlined, which is about a $240,000 improvement program.

"In the event we should have had weather, or for some unforeseen reason the project was not finished on July 1; understand we can't guarantee you anything but we have the assurance no more camps will be moved until the job is completed. I don't mean until they have done everything they can find to do, that means according to the plans for the improvement of the park as approved by the National Park Service. In other words to complete the plans as approved for your project, if we get the additional land.

"I am sorry we can't give you some definite guarantee on this but Washington is furnishing the money and of course they have the day; since it is not our money it would be very foolish in us to attempt to guarantee what somebody else would do. We certainly have no reasons to believe the camp will be moved out until the project is finished.

"I want to state here, there have been three camps moved out where the local people were making a determined effort to retain the camp for another six months and were asking for all kinds of improvements but there are only two that were moved out before they finished the job, that was approved and that was at Mineral Wells and Caddo Lake and that happened under the original Relief Administration and it was no fault of theirs. It was just a combination of circumstances but we got the matters all straightened out and camps have been reestablished on those two projects and they will be completed in a short time."

In reply to a letter from Thomas J. Coffey, city attorney, asking what assurance could be given as to the completion of the project and to whom the land should be deeded, Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, said in part:

"The National Park Service has maintained a policy of requiring a minimum acreage for development by CCC camps for State Park purposes, that is the Park Service has let that the area should be sufficient to accommodate the probable number of users. It is my understanding that this minimum acreage is usually five hundred acres. Whenever the Park Service recommends for my approval the location of a CCC camp for improvement and development work on a State Park the recommendation contains a very definite statement as to the scope of the work that is to be undertaken. It has been our policy to strictly confine the work to the scope that it thus originally set out and approved. This statement is the only tangible evidence of what the Federal Government undertakes to accomplish but our record will show that we make every reasonable attempt to carry out the implied agreement.

"In reference to your second inquiry as to where the title for State Parks properly belongs, I wish to say that it is my understanding that the National Park Service has considered that the State itself, or its proper authorized representatives should hold the title to lands comprising recognized State Parks."

Then again from J. H. Halle, Jr., assistant to Herbert Malar, third district officer of the National Park Service, in a letter to Dr. Malone:

"A short time ago this office submitted a revised application to the Washington office of the National Park Service which will change, of course, the program for the park's development. As soon as this application is approved we will be able then to give you a definite statement as to the contemplated program. In the meantime we have no doubt but what this application will be approved, but until it is we are not in a position to commit ourselves."

Other correspondence on the subject has been received, but it has not yet been made privileged matter. Until additional communications are made public, these communications will suffice, varied interpretations and all.

In six games the Steers have played this year they have profited only $223.84.

They lost heavily on the Austin High and Granbury games. In the Austin game actual cash from gate receipts amounted to $231.15, while expenses were $380.92—a loss of $149.77. Loss on the Granbury game was $93.84.

The athletic account was boosted considerably by the Sweetwater conflict when gate receipts totaled $960.63. Big Spring gained $269.78.

The Steers profited $63.65 on the Lubbock game, $27.92 on the Bowie game, and $5.90 in the Hobbs scrap.

Experts Study Food Source For World

NEW YORK (UP)—Chlorophyll—a chemical combination that possesses the secret of the food source of the world, remains a mystery, despite constant investigation and experimentation by scientists.

Upon it, all animals are dependent for their food; without it, starvation would ensue. Through its presence in the green leaf it makes possible the manufacture, of carbohydrates, fats, and proteins, in the leaf.

Aided by Sunlight

Chlorophyll, with the assistance of sunlight, enables the plant to recombine such raw products as water and carbon dioxide, into elementary carbohydrates. The process is called photosynthesis. Briefly then, photosynthesis is the combining, in the presence of sunlight, of water and carbon dioxide, by the chlorophyll, to manufacture sugar.

Some scientists believe that oxygen and carbon, from carbon dioxide, unit chemically with oxygen plus hydrogen, from water, to make possible a more complex compound consisting of oxygen, hydrogen and carbon—possibly formaldehyde.

Forms Simple Sugar

According to some investigators, this minute unit (molecule) of formaldehyde then unites with other units of formaldehyde to form a simple sugar. This manufacture of sugar by the green plant is one of the most complex of all natural phenomena. Scientists are aware of the constituents that enter into its making, but the process remains a secret.

Today, much of the work of attempting to find out this process is being conducted by the Boyce-Thompson Institute at Yonkers, N. Y. Here, experts in botany, plant anatomy and plant physiology, are cultivating plants not only in daylight but, at night, too. For this purpose part of their equipment consists of a greenhouse over which is elevated, upon rails, a massive frame supporting powerful lights; when dusk approaches, this mobile frame is moved over its tracks to cover the greenhouse, and the lights are switched on.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or cilia which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amounts, burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nervous headache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, hiccups, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 times every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS. . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. For they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Trust in DOAN'S PILLS. . . the old reliable relief that contains no opium or harmful foreign drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-McBride Co.

FLOWER SHOW S. O. S.

Garden Club Asks Aid For Exhibit; Just To Show What West Texas Can Grow

Plans for the Flower Show to be held Saturday were perfected at a called meeting of the Garden Club held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. W. Webber.

Because of the excessively dry fall and recent high winds, there was talk of calling off the Flower Show. Many of the members said they had lost the flowers they were developing especially for this. The opinion of the club however, was that there ought to be a Show anyway, calling for the best exhibits possible to let the public see what could be grown in the second drought year and under adverse conditions.

Mrs. Russell Manion is general chairman of the Show. Mrs. Wilbanks will assist her in the registration.

The Flower Show will be held Saturday all-day at the Big Spring Motor Co. show rooms. The exhibit is open to the public, including both city and rural women.

Because of the dry year, the Garden Club makes a plea the public to support them in sending flowers to this exhibit. Last fall many people did not send flowers because they thought their few did not make a gorgeous showing, and these same ones found exhibits at the Show no better, if as good, as they might have sent. It is hoped by the Club that this mistake will not occur again. The club is not stressing beautiful and handsome blooms this time, but profusion and variety. If every flower-grower will bring or send, at least one vase of flowers, the Show will be a great demonstration of what dry West Texas can do at its drier.

Especially desired this year are potted plants. Both good looking and odd ones.

Those who can bring their flowers to the show rooms are asked to be so before 10 o'clock Saturday morning, so they can be put in place before the judging starts. People who bring cut flowers are asked to bring their containers. Expensive or easily breakable vases are not desired. Those who have something to add to the Show and can not get it down are asked to call the nearest member of the Club Friday and she will take care of the transportation.

All members of the Garden Club are expected to act as hostesses throughout the day, selecting most convenient hours, if they have not already promised to assist at some rush hour.

Those responsible for certain hours will be: Mrs. J. M. Morgan and Mrs. D. W. Webber from 10 to 12; Mmes. Russell Manion and B. E. Harris from 12 to 2; Mmes. R. V. Hart, W. D. Wilbanks, E. D. Merrill from 2 to 4; Mmes. J. R. Phillips, Horace Penn, W. R. Ivey, J. P. Dodge from 4 to 6; Mmes. J. M. Morgan and D. W. Webber from 6 to 8 o'clock.

RED CROSS HAS MADE MAJOR CONTRIBUTION TO NATION'S WELFARE

Although the government's widespread relief program in this country's worst depression has assumed huge proportions, the contribution made by the American Red Cross to needy families in the last five years has no parallel in the annals of private relief agency activities.

Measured in dollars and cents, the Red Cross has spent $13,835,000 and distributed in addition wheat and cotton products valued in excess of $70,000,000 since the rigors of depression set in. Direct relief to 25,000,000 individuals in practically every county in the United States is the record of performance of the Red Cross. Causes of the plight of those assisted varied from unemployment to drought, tornado to earthquake, but all the aid was extended on the basis of helping others to help themselves.

This principle, incidentally, has been adhered to since the inception of the Red Cross. Actually, "helping others to help themselves" defines the movement itself.

With all its expenditures, however, the Red Cross has made an even greater contribution to the cause through its accident prevention, health, and other services. All its 3,700 chapters have taken an important part in this work.

Thousands of children, reached through Red Cross public health nurses, have had conditions of malnutrition discovered and checked, and this generation may not pay in future years for deprivations in childhood.

Safeguarding the expectant mother has been an important work of Red Cross nurses during these years. These nurses aided at the birth of more than 39,000 babies, and they also made 1,289,000 visits to, or in behalf of, more than 100,000 maternity cases.

Sick and disabled veterans and their dependent families have been the special charge of the Red Cross and the recurring problems of hospitalization, claims, and welfare continue a vital concern. To lessen accidental deaths and injuries among workers of the Civil Works Administration, Emergency Work Relief Administration, Federal Emergency Relief Administration and Civilian Conservation Corps, the Red Cross trained in first aid more than 75,000 men engaged in these projects throughout the nation.

Millions have worked in the ranks of volunteers under the Red Cross banner during these trying years.

Millions have joined each year as members, arming the Red Cross to serve in their names in this battle against want.

The Eighteenth annual Roll Call opens on Armistice Day. Thanksgiving will mark the campaign's close.

Chapter 29 LOW TRICK

Hero jumped from the car and ran swiftly toward the house. Marian followed, watching the dog's peculiar actions.

He reached the house, waited for her to unlock the door, then entered with low growls rumbling in his throat. Marian nodded. There was little likelihood that anyone would have seen someone whose scent Hero disliked.

She switched on the lights and followed the dog from room to room. Still the low growling, the uneasy pacing from bureau to chest to secretary, from secretary to Lon's workroom.

Nothing seemed disturbed. But where was Lon?

A car was coming up the drive. She heard Lon's "Good-night, thanks for bringing me over—and say, the barbecue was fine."

He came running towards the house now. "Jan," he called, "wait, this is a surprise; I didn't expect you back tonight. I'm glad your mother's better."

"What makes you think mother's better?" she asked.

"You wired me she was... say what's the matter with Hero... look he's actually growling at me."

"He probably doesn't approve of your dancing with Silver," she hazarded.

Lon looked at her in astonishment. "How did you know?" he asked.

"I don't know, but Hero does. He's found the same scent on you that he found here in the house."

"Lon, listen. My mother wants to see you. Neither she nor Dad sent the wire. It was sent by the same person who saw that I had the car here at the house to use, in order to give them a chance to go through this house without fear of interruption."

"Jan, what are you saying?"

"This, McSwain sent me word that my mother was ill. After I left Silver came here... look at Hero if you can't take my word... she went through everything... watch him go from place to place... he associates something unpleasant with that scent. She frightened him that night in Nevada and you scolded him for snarling at her. He smells her scent on you, now... hold out your hand, the one you used in holding her hand while you were dancing."

"Jan, for Pat's sake, be yourself. I suppose that next thing you'll be telling me you didn't send me a wire from Sacramento asking me to get that letter out of the safe deposit box and mail it."

"Lon!" Marian screamed his name as realization of what had happened came upon her. "What have you done?"

"Well, for the love of Heaven, what's going on? You wire me to do something, then yell at me for doing it—"

"Forget me, Lon, listen, tell me everything. You say you got a letter out of the safe deposit box. What did you do with it?"

"Mailed it to Sacramento like you told me to... I guess it was the right one; it was the only one there in a plain envelope. It had Silver's name on it. Marian, what's the matter?"

"Tell me, Lon, you say you mailed that to me. To what address, and at what time—?" She looked at her wrist watch. Could she reach Sacramento in time to intercept the letter?

With a look of offended dignity, Lon walked to the divan, sat down, selected a cigaret and lighted it. Marian watched him, breathlessly. He wasn't acting natural. His hand seemed a little uncertain as he held the flame to the white cylinder; his cheeks were over-flushed. How much did he know of McSwain's actions? Under normal circumstances he should be as upset as she.

"Please, Lon," she begged patiently, going over to sit beside him, "what time did you mail that letter, and to whom?"

"I followed your instructions," he retorted bluntly.

"Lon," she reached for his coat sleeve, tugged it as though she could force him to give her his full attention. "Listen, Lon, I didn't send that wire. That letter is of vital importance. I must intercept it before it's delivered, if it is physically possible. Tell me, how did you address it?"

"I addressed it to Mrs. Lionel Casad, Congressional Hotel, Sacramento, California, U. S. A."

"At what time did you mail it, and where?"

"McSwain, who took the time from his work to drive me to the bank, was kind enough to carry it clear out to the Oakland airport so it would be... what's the matter... do you want me to drive you to Sacramento?" He seemed roused from his lethargy as Marian jumped from the divan.

"No," she answered, and after a moment's restless pacing of the room, "there's no use now. The letter didn't go to Sacramento any more than McSwain went to the airport."

"Oh, Lon," she turned to him again, "don't you see what's happened?"

"All I can see," he returned with a shrug, "is that the girl I married is carrying on like a prima donna."

Marian sat in a chair, head in her hands. Well, that was that. While she was sitting with her mother, chuckling over winning the first round with McSwain, he was taking her only weapon away from her. But how had he known where to find the letter?

She arose and went to her room and delved into the desk in which she kept all receipts. There on top of one pile lay a receipt from the bank for rent on safe deposit box, held by Marian and Lionel Casad, jointly.

McSwain was clever, as clever as a fox. Had the letter been mailed, delivered and accepted by someone else, she might have charged them with intercepting the mails. However, he had read Lon rightly. Lon was too honest to conceive of any one else's being false.

She went back into the living room. Lon was still sitting on the divan, dark head resting on the pillow, a fresh cigaret between his lips.

"Lon," she sat beside him, took one hand in both of hers, and began curling about hers it lay passive. "Try to listen to what I want to say."

"I was called away from here by a telegram supposedly coming from Sacramento. I telephoned you. You told me to take the car, then you turned from the telephone and talked to someone. That person suggested to you that I take Hero with me. With him out of the way, they knew whoever was going through this house would be un-molested."

"Lon, whom do you know that's afraid of Hero? Who wired you to meet them and suggested in the wire that you leave Pat at home?"

"Oh, now listen, Ian," protested Lon, "if you mean Silver, put her out of your mind; She was down at the East Brazos all day... had lunch with us there."

"Had she ever done that before? And how long after I left did she arrive?"

"She was there before that wire came from Sacramento, asking me to send the letter on to you."

"Of course she was. Look," she handed him the receipt, "she found that here, tipped off the person working with them in Sacramento what to wire, and then proceeded to arrange an alibi for herself."

"Lon, why won't you be convinced that Silver and McSwain are guilty of actually robbing me?"

"Why?" he repeated, and withdrawing his hand, faced her. "Because I happen to know what is behind this whole affair."

"You do? Would you mind telling me?"

"When McSwain and I started off this morning, he asked me if you had kicked up a fuss over my working for him. I replied that you hadn't. He said he was surprised. I asked him why, and this is what he told me."

"He said that he and your father had been enemies for years. He told me a lot about your childhood, that I had never before known; how you used to be taken around to all sorts of places with crowds of rough men, so your father could use his pretty daughter for political purposes."

"He said it got to such a place your father's sister realized you were being spoiled for any normal womanhood and she stepped in and paid your way through this exclusive girl school, but that as soon as you left school, he forced the newspaper backing his faction into giving you a job as a reporter so you could further his interests there."

Know Your GROCERIES

DID you know that the speed with which a bread dough rises depends to a great extent upon the kind of flour that is used? Did you know that the way coffee is roasted is as important in producing fine uniform flavor as careful blending? Did you know that some shortenings can impart a delicious delicate flavor to the foods in which they are used?

Take time to read these advertisements. They are written in an interesting manner and the important technical points are clearly portrayed. What's more, the facts are easy to remember and when you go to market you will be able to buy with authority—get the most for your money—enjoy the utmost at your table.

Whirligig

Not having the same interest in it as the cabinet officer he will view it with detachment and lack of bias and calmly put the kibosh on it. Then will come the fireworks, predict the sideliners.

When a cabinet member takes a sore toe to the White House and says either he or the man who stepped on the toe must go, it puts the president in a tough spot. Chief executives have a horror of losing members of their official family. Witness the reluctance of FDR to accept the resignation of treasury secretary Woodin. Witness Ray Moley's removal from the state department when Secretary Hull made it a showdown.

Mr. Roosevelt has given ample evidence of his confidence in the ability and judgment of Richberg. He has promoted the former labor lawyer step by step until he bestrides the cabinet like a Colossus. But most cabinet officers don't like to be bestridden. There is tough going ahead for Richberg.

Colossus

Donald Richberg professes to be neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet but Washington observers are wondering whether he hasn't considerable vision regarding the future.

When Richberg was made overlord of NRA in the recent reorganization he told friends he was betting the gullotine would catch up with him just as it did with General Johnson.

But now the president truly has put the amiable Don on the spot. If he carries through as executive director of the National Emergency Council under that job's warty old crown and comes out with a whole skin, he will be hailed as a miracle man indeed.

Under FDR's latest executive order the whole cabinet becomes part of the Emergency council. As the council's guiding head it becomes Richberg's duty to mull over all cabinet reports and recommendations, summarize them and indicate the proper conclusions from the evidence therein.

Oldtimers who have seen many government officials come and go say it is only a question of time before Richberg runs afoul of some pet project of a cabinet officer with possibly disastrous results.

Limit

Census Director William L. Austin got credit for making one of the frankest statements on record when he announced that the 25,000 field employees necessary to take the impending agricultural census would be hired on a basis of congressional recommendations. Austin further announced that the 2,000 additional employees necessary here in Washington must be taken from civil service rolls and be further qualified with past census experience. The Civil Service commission has been flooded with requests from politicians to get executive orders giving their constituents civil service status. The answer has been, No.

Tough

Everything is quite judicial at the Post Office hearings to determine what shall be done about ocean mail contracts but steamship men can't help noting that the judge, jury and prosecutor all seem to come from the same stable.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Harold French presides. He is assisted by Solicitor Karl A. Crowley. The prosecutor is Calvin W. Cassell, a Post Office Department attorney who works under Crowley.

Notes

A strong drive for the 30-hour week law is organizing but insiders in labor circles say it will be a long road to Tipperary. Wise guys predict that FDR will take the

Pressure

Insiders remark that the treasury is sure hungry for cash these days. The Internal Revenue boys are turning the heat on everyone who might possibly owe the government a dime with a ferocity they have never shown before. To the nation if you had an argument with Uncle Sam about the legitimacy of some tax item, a revenue field agent would call to talk things over. He would listen politely to your version of the contested item. Then he would tell you what he was going to recommend and invite you—if he didn't see things your way—to present your rebuttal to the same authority at the same time. It was all very amiable and easy going.

But it doesn't work that way any more. Nowadays field agents are ferreting out every possible tax claim and demanding at least a partial settlement regardless of the merits of the case. If you balk you are threatened with an immediate assessment—which these agents now have authority to levy on their own responsibility.

An assessment is no fun. You either pay it within sixty days or you're liable to a stiff fine and a jail sentence with no back talk allowed as to whether the tax was legally levied. The best you can possibly do is pay up and sue for recovery later—and Uncle Sam can make that process both painful and costly.

These strong-arm tactics are getting results. Corporations and wealthy individuals have kicked in literally millions of dollars in the past few months on disputed items—many of which have been argued for years. Somehow New York doesn't care for the new system. You even hear it referred to as blackmail. But the smartest lawyers in Wall Street haven't been able to dope any way to escape the pressure.

Gravy

Well-posted insiders have suddenly developed an intense interest in real estate. Dozens of plans are afoot to "help out" the government by financing mortgages, promoting construction or forming pools to acquire potentially valuable property.

Promoters of these plans are trying to keep them dark. They all aim to get into action before the competition gets too keen. One of the most ambitious schemes calls for the formation of a real estate trust company which would lend money on a tremendous scale on mortgages only. It would start with a large capital investment and finance itself further by the public sale of debentures which would be secured by the mortgaged property

V. Price, Wanted in Atlanta, Ga. For Murder, Robbery, Arrested in Local Drug Store By Jess Slaughter

Victor Price, alias Victor Wilkerson, wanted in Atlanta, Georgia, for murder and robbery in connection with the killing of Stanley Dodge at Hollywood Tourist camp in that city on February 27, 1934, was arrested by Sheriff Jess Slaughter at the South Scurry Drug store in the 1300 block on Scurry street late Wednesday afternoon. Price had been living at the Dixon camp on South Scurry, and has been sought by local officers for some time.

Price was captured by Atlanta police following the crime, but succeeded in breaking jail on July 2, 1934. He has been a fugitive from justice since that time. Price has been working as a tool dresser in the oil fields near here.

Price admitted his identity when Sheriff Slaughter questioned him at the drug store Wednesday, and he was brought to the county jail, to be held pending extradition. Price demanded extradition papers be served, and local officers immediately got in touch with Atlanta officers who have petitioned the governor of Georgia for necessary papers. Price refused to make a statement other than to admit his identity and flatly deny the crime with which he is charged. Fingerprint records in hands of the sheriff's department, together with other identification marks, served to positively identify the fugitive.

Profitable Meeting Held By Howard County Chapter State Game, Fish Protective Ass'n.

The Howard county chapter of Game and Fish Protective association had a profitable meeting Tuesday at the Crawford hotel. From all indications the chapter will become a real factor in game and fish conservation in West Texas.

The man giving the membership requested that his name not be mentioned.

The Howard county chapter now has about 150 members.

The first Friday night in each month was agreed on as the regular meeting night and will be held at the Crawford hotel. Hunters and fishermen are urged to be on hand.

Program of the local chapter is as follows:

Exterminate crows, hawks and other vermin destructive to birds. Create a sentiment that will eliminate game and fish law violation, and if necessary pay a reward to the person that furnishes evidence leading to the arrest and conviction of game and fish law violation.

To foster or promote the building of a large lake for the people of this district.

The following committees were appointed:

Legislative—Bill Barcus, Grover Cunningham, Dr. C. W. Deats.

Extermination—Dewey Martin, Geo. Hall, L. D. Morrow.

Fish Propagation—Merle Mancil, Frank Covert, Jack Nail.

Game Propagation—C. H. Carson, Walter Wilson, Davis.

Finance—Noel Lawson, B. F. Robbins, Horace Reagan.

Lake committee—Noel Lawson, chairman; Ollie McDaniel, L. A. Eubanks, Ned Ferguson, J. C. Douglass.

The content on membership was carried over until the next meeting. The Hawks had one member the best of the Crows Tuesday night, George Hall having been high with thirty four members to his credit.

Mr. Elder will leave for Sweetwater and will organize there before he returns to Houston. Paul H. Blanke will have charge of the field work in this district until Elder returns.

Blanke will also serve as the executive secretary of the state organization, next year. Blanke has recently been placed on the retired list by the post office department at Washington, D. C.; having served 30 years as a rural mail carrier. He has had several years experience in organization and secretary work.

The game and fish protective association will publish a small booklet in December, giving a detailed report of game and fish conditions in Texas and will explain the proposed program of the association.

The association is sponsoring a universal hunting and fishing license and is also sponsoring dividing the state into five zones and putting a district commissioner in each zone and giving each district commissioner full charge of all conservation work in the district allotted to him. Each district would be divided by counties and would be allotted a certain amount of funds to the district.

A resolution was passed thanking the Herald for its cooperation. Mr. Elder was tendered a similar resolution.

Whirligig

Not having the same interest in it as the cabinet officer he will view it with detachment and lack of bias and calmly put the kibosh on it. Then will come the fireworks, predict the sideliners.

When a cabinet member takes a sore toe to the White House and says either he or the man who stepped on the toe must go, it puts the president in a tough spot. Chief executives have a horror of losing members of their official family. Witness the reluctance of FDR to accept the resignation of treasury secretary Woodin. Witness Ray Moley's removal from the state department when Secretary Hull made it a showdown.

Mr. Roosevelt has given ample evidence of his confidence in the ability and judgment of Richberg. He has promoted the former labor lawyer step by step until he bestrides the cabinet like a Colossus. But most cabinet officers don't like to be bestridden. There is tough going ahead for Richberg.

Bonds

The Pecora investigation never paid any attention to bond dealings on the stock exchange and the securities and exchange commission has usually ignored them also. Of course stocks are more spectacular and are traded in much larger volume but Wall Street insiders say the commission wouldn't be wasting its time if it looked into the methods of "the bond crowd."

The bond business on the exchange is concentrated in the hands of a very few houses who run what amounts to a closed shop. Other brokers charge that this group makes handsome trading profits by a quiet doctoring of prices against which the outsider has no defense. The fluctuations are usually minor and no one gets hurt very much but critics insist the bond specialists are playing a sure thing for themselves if ever there was one.

Stubborn

Foreign governments and corporations are becoming a severe pain in the securities and exchange commission's neck. They continue to thumb their noses at registration requirements and defy the commission to do anything about it.

The commission's only comeback is to delist their securities—which would push prices off the deep end. And what a howl that would bring from American investors who could claim that the agency set up for their protection had ruined them! But if the commission lets the foreigners get away with it its prestige is shot. Wall Street is sure Mr. Kennedy and his associates would be glad to hear from anyone who has the answer.

Kickback

Richard Whitney's publicity questionnaire isn't going over so well among exchange members. In some quarters it has revived hostility to the Whitney regime where it had almost faded out since the last exchange election.

One critic remarks: "First he high-tails the public and now he tried to carry favor with obvious propaganda. It was bad enough to let the horse of public confidence run away. On top of that he's locked the door now so it can't get back."

Sidelights

New York is being circulated by the American Freedom League—organized in Illinois to combat the American Liberty League. Anthony Fokker—Dutch airplane designer—is going to build American Douglas planes in England. Talk about a League of National Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
