HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

When you stand on a "platform" 167 feet above the downtown streets of Big Spring and cast your eyes over the terrain you get a more impressive idea of the action and the growth taking place.

Yesterday, with G. R. Porter as ballast to keep the thing from going any faster (if possible) and Superintendent Edwards of the McCright Company, the contractors, as guide, we rode the material elevator to the top of the Settles Hotel building—167 feet straight up. And there's a different feeling about riding one of those open-air elevators than when you mount a nice, cozy one inside some building.

About the time we got up there Howard Woodall and five passengers sped by, westbound, in one of S. A. T.'s airplanes. We then bustled ourselves with looking.

The T. & P. threading its way eastward and westward; hundreds of cars in the yards; dust and smoke arising from the wide main-made plain over there south of the tracks where they're rushing the new railroad terminal; an endless ribbon of the Bankhead highway like beads on a string; the folks from all over town, from up around Knott and Ackerley and Vealmore, up from Forsan and Elbow and Chalk and Lomas; over from Coahoma and Stanton and a lot more places jamming the Main street sidewalks; new buildings everywhere; handsome homes set into the ruddy green of the mountain background of Edwards Heights; homes, homes, and more homes marked by neat roofs placed on city blocks like checkers on a board; churches, most all of them new, studding the landscape.

Life. Progress. Activity.

Local Boy Wins District Contest

Robert, 11-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Owen won first place in the junior high school division declamation contest of the eighth district of the Texas Inter-scholastic League at Abilene Friday evening. He received a gold medal.

Young Owen, a pupil in the fifth grade of the local schools, took second place in the district contest last spring.

"Both the boys and girls of the Big Spring high school debate team were defeated in their first discussion in the district meet, although each team received the vote of one of the three judges. The boys drew a bye for the first round of the elimination series and were defeated by Hamlin in the second round. The girls were defeated in the first round by Putnam.

Uncounted Persons May Call Chamber Of Commerce

Census enumerators who met with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce Saturday afternoon told those present that citizens of Big Spring are offering poor cooperation with the workers. Cases were cited where it was necessary to return two and three times to secure a complete record and census of persons inhabiting a dwelling. Other cases were recalled in which citizens were discourteous to census enumerators and had been rude in their remarks.

The chamber of commerce has attempted to assist with census work by asking all citizens not counted to call the organization's office giving names, number in the family and address.

In turn census enumerators have asked more cooperation from citizens who have been inclined to be little tabulation work. It was again pointed out that those refusing to answer enumerator's questions are subject to prosecution in federal court and that information given census takers can not be used in assessing taxes, demanding jury or military service or in any other way except for counting and a general business survey.

Mrs. Lee Favored For Husband's Seat

CISCO, TEXAS, April 19 (AP)—A sentiment favoring Mrs. R. Q. Lee as a successor for her late husband's place in congress was indicated in reports received here today from the Seventeenth congressional district.

Unsolicted statements from constituents of Representative Lee, who died in Washington yesterday, favored Mrs. Lee as his successor, and friends here declared she would be a logical person for the place. The representative's body was started from Washington last night and will arrive here late tomorrow. It was accompanied by members of his family and a congressional delegation. Funeral services were planned here for Monday.

Clean Up Forces Near Task's End

Although sponsors of the clean up and paint up campaign nearly reached their goal of concluding the drive Saturday night, a few isolated districts on the north side will be given a few finishing up touches Monday, announced H. F. Robbins, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce civic committee.

Mr. Robbins made a thorough inspection of all property on the south side of the city Saturday night and reported that the campaign had been instrumental in removing some of the most unsightly spots in the city.

OIL LANDS OFFERED

AUSTIN, TEX., April 19 (AP)—Bids on 46 tracts of University of Texas oil and gas lands will be received Tuesday by the board for the lease of university lands.

The tracts, located in Andrews, Upton, Crockett and Hudspeth counties, comprise some of the richest oil and gas lands owned by the university. Twenty of the tracts are located in Andrews county; 14 in Upton county; eight in Hudspeth county and four in Crockett county. The Hudspeth county sections contain 704 1-10 acres.

None of the land offered for lease in Andrews county is involved in the litigation started several months ago, J. H. Walker, commissioner of the land office said.

A minimum annual rental of fifty cents per acre and a royalty of one eighth of all oil and gas produced has been fixed by the board.

HOTEL CONSTRUCTION NEARLY COMPLETED; PLUMBING RUSHED

Exterior brick work having progressed steadily during the past week is scheduled to be finished and partitions started in the Settles hotel this week.

Brick layers, although prevented from working Saturday because of high winds which, at the twelfth floor above the street, make operations on a suspended scaffolding dangerous, will finish the plain brick work to the top of the fourteenth floor this week.

Stone was being hauled to the top Saturday afternoon to be in readiness Monday for the workmen. This is for the top floors, those forming the "tower."

The plumbing contractor's men made a test through the fourteenth floor Saturday afternoon. All

DAN CITES HIS RECORD

Statement Answering 'Political Enemies' Issued

AUSTIN, TEX., April 19 (AP)—Governor Moody today issued a statement reviewing his achievements during the three years of his tenure as governor, which, he said, was "a complete answer to political enemies" who had made attacks on his administration.

He said the statement was the first of three, the second to deal with attitude of the 41st legislature toward his legislative program, especially the plan of penitentiary centralization advocated by him, and the third to give his views as to how pending state problems should be solved.

It was believed certain around the capitol his statements presaged his announcement for a third term in the governor's office.

He declared he had managed to give the people the lowest average ad valorem tax rate for state purposes in recent years. He said it had been held down to an average yearly rate of 66 1-3 cents during the three years of his administration. For 1927 the rate was 67 cents, 61 cents in 1928, and 68 cents for 1929.

"The departments of government have been operated honestly and efficiently," he said. "Public money has been spent honestly and the people have been given the value of their tax dollar. Only honest and competent people have been allowed to hold office. The highest type of patriotic citizens have been selected for public office and confidence has been restored in the integrity and efficiency of the government."

He said obligations inherited from preceding administrations have been paid, including over $6,200,000 of the highway department and over $3,680,000 in other departments.

Highways "competitive bidding" had been substituted for "political favoritism," and ten times more miles of concrete road constructed and put under construction in 1929 than in 1925, and that concrete roads were built at 30 per cent less cost, or over $5,680 less per mile, in 1929 than in 1925.

He said work like that provided for in contracts which he cancelled when attorney general, and on which he recovered judgment amounting to $1,000,000 was done during his administration at about one fourth the cost paid by the preceding administration.

Over 3,700 miles of all-weather highways were contracted and put under construction, and more money given for the building of local roads, during his three years' tenure, he claimed, adding: "Federal aid, which has been obtained from the federal government, and the yearly allotment to Texas recently increased from $4,500,000 to $7,500,000 bringing $3,000,000 additional wealth to Texas annually."

CITY DRILLING Two New Wells

Rigs over two new water well locations in the city's water reservation south of Big Spring were under construction Saturday and Clovis McDaniel, the contractor, expected to be drilling by Monday evening.

Work on the two wells is being rushed as much as possible as an emergency measure. Indications are that the city will soon be called upon to furnish the entire demands of the Texas and Pacific railroad company and although sufficient reserve now exists to take care of the increased demand, the city is drilling the wells as an assurance against shortage.

There is no connection between the present development and that proposed in the regular program, said V. R. Smitham, city manager, but work is being done to insure an adequate supply to residents and to the Texas and Pacific railroad should it become necessary to do so.

HUDSPETH SUPPORTS MURPHY; THOMASON "NOT SURPRISED"

SAN ANGELO, April 19.—I believe the people of this congressional district will resent any man attempting to dictate who will be his successor in office.

Mayor R. E. Thompson thus received the news that Congressman Claude B. Hudspeth had endorsed E. E. ("Pat") Murphy for the office. Hudspeth is retiring at the end of the present term. Mayor Thompson and Mr. Murphy of San Angelo are candidates for the post. Hudspeth's endorsement of Murphy was given Thursday at his ranch near Comstock and Mayor Thompson received his first news of it from The Morning Times last night.

"Despite Hudspeth's endorsement, I am confident of victory," the El Pasoan told The Times over the long distance. "I am not surprised at his opposing me. He has been my political foe for years.

"When I was seeking the post of speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, Hudspeth attempted to secure an opponent for me. Despite his efforts I was elected without opposition. When I ran for governor he attempted to have me defeated in El Paso county, but I carried the county. And the last time I made the race for mayor of El Paso, Hudspeth left Wash-

150 PERISH IN CHURCH

Good Friday Services In Rumania End Terribly

CHOEISTI, Rumania, April 19 (AP)—One hundred and fifty persons were burned to death here last night, when a church in which a good Friday service was being conducted was destroyed by fire.

Only three of those inside the building when the fire began escaped. They attributed the death of the others to their pious anxiety for the sacred vessels, the host and a valuable altar cloth, which they rushed to rescue.

Against Door They turned finally to the door, the one means of egress. It opened inward, and the mass, panic stricken and gossed by the searing flames, jammed against it and died before those outside could push it open.

It was all over in a few minutes. The blazing ceiling, tapestries and paper wreaths on the walls fell on the fear-mad congregation, who trampled the women and children under foot. Their screams soon died out, leaving only the crackle of the flames and the shouts of would-be rescuers.

The fire started when a breeze, wafted through a high rear window stroked a candle's flame with one of the tapestries. Its tinsel fringe took fire, paper wreaths caught, and in a minute the building was a blazing inferno.

The structure was 100 years old, and its worm-eaten boards were tinder to the blaze. Outside, the fire departments of Choesti and Piatesi fought vainly with antiquated apparatus to extinguish the fire. Those who had escaped and the crowding townsman tried to open the jammed door, but the massing of those inside against it made their effort unsuccessful.

Among the dead were two priests, a notary, and the burgomaster of Choesti, a small town of 5,000 population, near the edge of the Transylvanian Alps. Hardly a family in the town escaped unscathed.

At a meeting of Rotary club directors held Friday afternoon, E. Reagan, banker and pioneer resident of this section, was named president of the service organization to take office June 1 and serve for one year. W. T. Strange, Jr., is the retiring president.

Other officers elected by directors as provided by the constitution are George L. Wilke, secretary, serving his second term; Edwin A. Kelley, first vice-president and W. W. Inkman, second vice president.

The new members of the board, Shime Phillips and W. C. Blankenship, were elected by the entire membership of the organization. Mr. Phillips and Mr. Blankenship succeeded C. W. Cunningham and Max Jacobs. Old members of the board who have more time to serve are E. Reagan, W. W. Inkman, George L. Wilke, W. T. Strange, Jr., and E. A. Kelley.

Mr. Reagan will probably defer appointment of standing committee chairman until the Rotary district meeting at Temple April 21, 22 and 23 is completed.

PRACTICES ARE UNFAIR HE CHARGES

Conservation Called Non-De-Plume By Dan

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 19 (AP)—Governor Dan Moody tonight charged the federal oil conservation board with trying to further the interests of the larger oil companies in this country.

"Under the non-de-plume of conservation, the board is encouraging the monopolizing of the oil industry" the governor declared amid vociferous applause in the final address at the banquet which concluded the first annual convention of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

History The state's chief executive had praised his attack on the federal board by stating that less than five years ago official Washington had suggested cooperation in the oil industry which was a veiled invitation for combinations which would at least get on the "ragged edge" of violations of the anti-trust laws.

The association added Frank H. Reed of New York, to the list of vice presidents from the various states and named the following additional members of the board of directors:

Texas—Earl Calloway, Amarillo; O. W. Killam, Laredo; Claude Witherspoon, San Antonio; Geo. H. Marshall, Laredo; Rupert Ricker, San Angelo; Clifford Mooers, Wichita Falls; M. C. Aman, Beaumont; E. G. Bedford, Amarillo; Joe Danciger, Amarillo.

Oklahoma, B. A. Lawell, Ada; Pat Malloy, Tulsa; Lew Wentz, Ponca City; Tom Slick, Oklahoma City; F. E. Tucker, Ardmore; Clarence Burlingame, Bartlesville; W. R. Ramsey, Oklahoma City; Paul S. Ache, Tulsa; J. I. Cromwell, Muskogee; Frank Buttram, Oklahoma City; H. F. Wilcox, Tulsa; New Mexico—William Dooley, Artesia; George Eitz, Roswell; C. J. Dexter, Artesia; Kansas, T. C. Johnson, Wichita; A. L. Derby, Wichita; Marvin Lee, Wichita; H. E. Garden, Augusta; Arkansas, Joe K. Mahony, Eldorado; C. E. Murdock, El Dorado, and J. D. Reynolds, Camden.

FORT WORTH, April 19 (AP)—A large, brilliant and enthusiastic band of independent oil men today reaffirmed an intention to work against any further reduction of domestic production until oil imports had been restricted by tariff or otherwise.

The occasion was the first annual convention of the Independent Petroleum Association of America at which Wirt Franklin of Ardmore, Okla., was named to carry on as commander-in-chief of the independent forces and a permanent constitution was adopted.

Delegates were harsh in criticism of the major companies particularly the Standard and the Dutch Shell groups, and were insistent that imports be checked.

This latter feeling found expression in two resolutions, one condemning the report of the economics committee of the federal conservation board because it recommended curtailment of domestic production while making no mention of importation and the other promising cooperation in conservation after congress shall have voted a duty of $1 a barrel on crude oil. The resolutions also called for increased production of oil and gas in the 1930 level.

Former Senator Robert L. Owen, of Tulsa, Okla., and Governor Dan Moody of Texas were among speakers at the banquet tonight.

Owen's resolution declared the large oil purchasers of domestic crude oil forced the prices of that commodity. W. Scott Heywood of Jennings, La., later to be elected one of the national vice presidents, suggested the independents, whom he said produced more than sixty per cent of the nation's oil, refine and distribute their own crude.

THREE IMPORTANT WELLS IN HOWARD COUNTY START WORK

Old Cox and O'Neal Well East Of Refinery Will Be Deepened From Present Total Depth of 2,517 Feet

Three wells that will have a distinct bearing on future development in Howard and Glasscock county oil producing territories were started during the past week. All three tests were either in strict wildcat territory or far enough from proven production to be interesting.

One of the most interesting wells was that spudded during the latter part of the past week by Sinclair Oil & Gas Company on the Montgomery tract property in extreme east Howard county, approximately four miles east and one mile south of Coahoma. The well is located 2,310 feet from the north and west lines of section 11, block 30, township 1 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, and is miles from proven production.

Should production be developed in Sinclair's No. 1 Montgomery et al. the productive fields of Howard county will be proven continuous across the entire width of Howard county. The well was spudded late Wednesday and as the week ended, was drilling below 300 feet. A national machine is being used in drilling the test.

Outside Chance F. H. E. Oil Company all but gave up hopes of developing production in its No. 1 Cox, northern Glasscock county wildcat, and has now turned the spotlight of attention to another undeveloped territory—south and approximately midway between the Roberts field of southern Howard county and the Coffee-Phillips pool of northern Glasscock county. No. 1 Springer in the name under which F. H. E. now venture is being carried. The well was spudded during the latter part of the past week and is now regarded one of the most interesting tests in the region. The well is located 330 feet out of the northwest corner of the east half of the northwest quarter of section 18S, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey.

The third interesting test on which operation was started during the past week is Cox and O'Neal's No. 1 Flowers, an old well just east of Big Spring, which was drilled to a total depth of 2,517 feet more than one year ago. A group of operators have taken over the well and surrounding acreage and as the week closed were moving materials to the location to test deeper. The well will be highly interesting from a geological standpoint even should no encouraging showings of oil or gas be encountered during the further development. The well is located in the center of the northeast quarter of section 12, block 31, township 1 north, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Drilling At 2800 F. H. E. Oil Company's No. 1 Cox, an interesting wildcat test in extreme northern Glasscock county, reached lime during the past week and had drilled to around 2,800 feet when the week ended. The well is conceded little, if any, chance of developing into a commercial producer because of the extremely low lime top. No. 1 Cox is located 230 feet from the south and east lines of the southwest quarter of section 8, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey. Contract on the well forces operators to test to a total depth of 3,200 feet. Timberlake and Snyder's No. 1 Meek, southwest of all other tests

Deep Wells Add To Expenses Of Producing Oil

SANTA FE SPRINGS, Cal., April 19.—Scarcely a half-century has passed since oil was found in Pennsylvania 60 feet down. It took 30 years of prospecting in the Kettleman Hills field of California to discover production at 7,200 feet. Today oil field engineers are seeking—and finding—oil at depths below 8,000 feet and look upon the 10,000-foot well as certain of accomplishment within the year.

Forty years ago a 1,000-foot well was a "deep hole." Twenty years ago the 1,500-foot well was about the average. Today wells of 4,000 to 5,000 feet are common. The world record for depth is contested by Hathaway No. 7, of Santa Fe Springs field and Nea No. 11, of Long Beach field. The former, at last reports, was down 9,350 feet and the other 9,280 feet, or more than a mile and a half below the surface.

But deep drilling means more than records to oil men. It may alter the picture of the world's petroleum supply, not only through the possibility of discovering prolific new sources at deep levels, but through the restoration of oil fields given up for dry at lesser depths.

Deep holes mean also deep problems. Drilling costs, nominally $500 per day, increase enormously when the bit drops to 8,000 feet and the comparatively few days, or weeks, needed to complete the average well, lengthen into months. Machinery and tools must be heavier and stronger, weighing hundreds of tons and made of steel sturdy enough to meet unusual stress and strain. Temperatures of 200 degrees, or more, and water and gas pressures running as high as 5,000 and 4,000 pounds to the square inch, must be overcome. Keeping a mile of pipe straight is no easy task on the surface. The difficulties are multiplied when it is driven into the earth.

Non-Refueling Test Planned By Aviator

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—Charles P. Rocheville, vice-president of the Emaco Aircraft Corporation, announced plans for a non-refueling endurance flight next week in a new flying wing monoplane in an effort to better the German record of 65 hours, 20 minutes. The flight will be made at Long Beach, Calif.

Immediately following the endurance flight, Rocheville said, the plane will be crated and shipped to Tokyo, Japan, from which place it will take off within a month on a non-stop flight to Seattle, Wash.

Unitization May Herald Death Of Oil Field Booms

FORT WORTH, April 19.—Oil men see in unitization, or unit development of oil pools, the possible end of the booms so long associated with the discovery of new fields.

Development of an oil field usually has been a disorderly rush to obtain production. Wells were drilled rapidly, with labor and material at a premium. Competition was keen and ruthless. "Boom" towns sprang up, prices for everything from overalls to beef stew soared skyhigh. Haste and waste were the order of the day.

Unit development may change all that because it eliminates the need of haste. Cooperation replaces competition, for production and profits are shared alike by all interested. Careful, leisurely drilling only of needed wells at low cost in proven locations obviates the hasty completion of unnecessary wells on any sites obtainable. Gas pressure is conserved and the pool is slow to reach peak production. Thus its producing life greatly is prolonged.

Typical is the case of the unitized Big Lake pool of West Texas. Discovered in 1923 it was six years before the number of wells exceeded 200. In the Yates and Hendricks pool, developed under intense competition, hundreds of wells were drilled within a few months.

Deliverance From Plague Of Feminine Knees Welcomed; Knees Of Much Practical, Sligh Landscape Value Long Skirts Stimulate Real Democracy Says Will Rogers

Legs were on parade

By WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. You know one of the most welcome things that has hit us in many a moon is the return of the long dresses. It had to come but it was a long time doing it. You see according to law, fashions must change every year, sometimes every month, and in order to change dresses styles, you have to either go up or down, the crossways change don't count, or show much. So if you can only change one way or the other and you have been going one way for years why it stands to reason that the worm must turn sometimes, even if it's a silk worm. Well skirts had just gone so high there wasn't anything to em, and the material people put up a howl. Men had just about lost interest in em, or below em.

It was just legs, legs, legs. The whole country had gone legs. Every imaginable shape, size, contour, was on free exhibition. Legs went on parade. Well you can get tired of anything if it's dished up to you morning noon and night. We will watch an Elephant parading quicker that we will anything, and I doubt if even they could hold our attention if we couldn't turn without having an eye full of elephant legs all the time.

They first showed us their calves. Well that looked fairly promising, and we seemed enough shocked to add spice to our views. But when they just practically overnight yanked another foot off their apparel and we woke up one morning with thousand of knees staring us in the face, why there is where I will always think they overstepped and took in too much territory. A knee is pliable but not what you would call gorgeous. There is 120 million people in this country with knees, that adds up 240 million knees, subtracting the He knees, and figuring on a fifty percent male calf crop, that leaves 120 million She knees.

Now almost every part of the human anatomy has gained fame in some way or another. We speak of beautiful arms, neck, heads, feet, body, hands, nose, eyes and ears, but do you know out of 120 million knees we have never heard a word about a one of them only two belonging to little Anne Pennington. Now ain't that strange? Of all the knees in the world there has only been one pair that rose to the distinction of every being spoken of.

You read of some girl imported from Europe to join Zeigly's Follies and it tells of her legs, but there is never anything outstanding about her knees. The reason is they have a practical and not landscape value, in other words there had to be a joint somewhere for locomotion purposes and in order to get the joint in they had to break the line of the limb on the way down, that meant leaving some bumps there that it was practically impossible to get rid of. You see an ugly leg is just as apt to have a fair looking knee as a good looking leg is, that is if there was such a thing as a good-looking knee.

Now I was just telling you just now about Anne's knees. I know Anne's knees pretty well. I was in the show with them for years. We both had our little meal tickets. I had my chewing gum and my rope and Anne had her knees. If I appeared with out my rope there would have been a riot. When she wanted to disguise herself and not be recognized in public she used to cover up her knees and no one ever knew her. Hers kinder blended into the leg, they didn't protrude.

Most peoples knees are practically knots, but little Anne's were symmetrical. I used to do a dance with her in the Follies and I could black up some night, or send in a double, and let him do it for me, and I would never be missed. For when Anne's knees were on the stage why your audience never looked up. But when the feminine world, or the dress designers who perhaps did it, thought "Why if Anne can startle the worlds with hers, why will we show em some knees?"

And Brother they did, some knees and How, and Why? It was just old bumpy knees to the right of us, exposed joints to the left of us, valleyed and rattled.

Well to be honest with you the idea didn't get over. Women made a mistake, like everybody else makes the same mistake when they are allowed too much kneeway. They always spoil a good thing by going to far, and that's what they did when they showed us their knees. We would have thought much more of em both morally and artistically if they had just kept em covered. So they had to do something, nobody was looking at em any more, and they were tired of looking at themselves. So they had to do something radical, so some genius conceived the idea of not only covering the knee up but the whole thing again, and you would be surprised how much better they look. You see short dresses was made for certain figures, but fashion decrees that everybody be fashionable, so that means there is going to be folks try and keep up with the fashions, that while they might be financially able, are physically unfit, their purse is good but their build is bad. Now with long skirts that will all be remedied. Every girl gets an even break till she hits the beach. So long skirts mean democracy, there is no privilege classes. Society is not rated on its curves as it has been. You got to get by with your head now instead of underpinning.

Defects are hid now and not made exhibits. The big-legged girl and the skinny-legged ones are coming back. That's going to cut out a lot of this fool reducing too. That was what was the matter with the prosperity of this country people wasn't eating and buying enough. Course they can hide their legs for a few years now, and we grow up a new generation that never saw them why that would mean that they can take a whiff at the old exposure stuff. But we hope it don't come during our generation, for we have seen enough legs and knees to tide us over the balance of our existence. You can watch the marriages pick up now. Contentment will beat exposure any time.

Homicide Case Jury Dismissed

After six hours of fruitless deliberation, the jury hearing the case in county court against Durward F. Elder, charged with negligent homicide, was dismissed just before noon Saturday by H. R. Debenport, county judge.

Elder is accused of negligent homicide in the death of Wilma Selma Patterson of Knott, who died from injuries received when she was struck by an automobile last November. Elder was driving the machine that crashed into the Patterson girl.

Before Judge Debenport dismissed the six jurors, the foreman reported there seemed no chance of reaching a verdict and said they were in what appeared to be a hopeless deadlock.

Overall Will Is Construed For Administrator

COLEMAN, Texas, April 19 (UP)—Mrs. Martha Tyler Overall intended to convey by her will the residue of the vast Overall estate to three nieces, Judge E. J. Miller decided in district court here.

The ruling was on request of J. P. McCord, administrator, for a construction of the will, which is being contested.

The three nieces of Mrs. Overall are Mrs. Agilla M. Frankell of Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. Mary M. McCully of Britton, Okla., and Mrs. Lucy Van Cleve of Macon, Mo., the latter dead. The court ruled that one-third of the residue should go to Mrs. Van Cleve's two children, instead of being apportioned ac-ording to the law of descent and distribution.

Mrs. Van Cleve died prior to Mrs. Overall's death and no alteration was made in the will, which bequeathed monies remaining after all bequests approximating $175,000 had been made, to the three nieces. Monies remaining amounted to about $2,500, but land notes and oil royalties amounted to more than $300,000.

Attorneys for heirs seeking to have the residue divided equally among all relatives of Mrs. Overall filed a motion for a new trial. If this is denied an appeal will be taken.

Numerous bequests of Mrs. Overall to Texas colleges and other states and to individuals were not affected by today's judgment.

Oil Field Secrets Probed By Experts

TULSA, Okla., April 19.—The underworld of the Mid Continent oil fields will have no more secrets than a gold fish by the time geologists get through charting its characteristics.

Geologists representing more than 30 oil companies have completed the first phase of a study of underground structure in Oklahoma, and now are engaged in putting on paper the cross section picture of an area of nearly 12,000 square miles. Similar work is to be done in Texas and Kansas.

This cooperative activity of oil companies and geologists for the first time will make it possible to obtain a fairly accurate conception of subsurface conditions in the oil-producing country of the Middle West. Their work also will be a valuable contribution to geology, since it will permit close study of underground structures and their history, sedimentation and geologic forces and may aid in determining the origin of petroleum. Not the least of the benefits will be charting location of possible oil pools.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ray visited Big Spring last week.

Lewis McKee visited Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hambrick Thursday.

L. C. Hambrick had quite an exciting experience with rattlesnakes a few days ago. He was repairing the fence over his land pasture and seeing a large hole decided to investigate by peeping in. While thus engaged his dog came up behind him—his! buzz! The huge rattler struck at the dog. Mr. Hambrick jumped back, but having nothing to kill the snake with, it got in the hole while he was trying to get a fence post. The next day he was passing the same place and thought he would look around to see if the snake was out sunning again. As he walked up to the hole about two feet away another snake was coiled. He struck a tin, but it went hissing in the hole. It did not appear as large as the one he saw the day before, but he thought probably it was excited more. The hole was large and appeared to be deep. So Mr. Hambrick came to the house and told his wife, they both went back armed with hoes and shovel, etc. He cut the bushes and cleared them away. Then began shoveling and digging. The den was on the side of a sand dune. He dug back about four or five feet and was about to give it up as a hard job when suddenly their 15-year-old boy, who had come by this time, saw a squirming rattler back in the hole. They began to dig with perhaps more caution than courage. The back of the hole was about four feet straight up the way they had shoveled off the side of bank. In a few minutes there appeared to be ten snakes hissing and spitting, trying to climb up out of the hole. Exciting! Well, that is hardly strong enough to express it. However, there were only two huge rattlers in the den, one a little over five feet, the other one a few inches shorter. Both snakes were killed.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By STANLEY NORMAN

POOR BOY Although the season is little more than started, Bloddy (Imright) Cross has hit the inaccurate reporting percentage column so hard and so often that he has left Bruce Francis, Prexy Anderson, Boyce House and all other competitors far behind.

Imright's latest outburst misinforms his two or three customers that H. Stanley (Judas) Norman is piloting an independent baseball team which is slated to do battle with a San Angelo diamond corps this afternoon. As can always be expected, Imright is all wet again. We claim not the distinction of managing anything. We can't even manage our own affairs much less a baseball team.

OH, MY! We've already been barred from Eastland, threatened in Snyder, ostracized from Coahoma and now through the assistance of the inaccurate champion we fear disgrace in the Concho city. Imright reports that Concho customers are after our scalp, but if his information along that line is as misleading as in other matters, we will probably be welcomed in the wool center with open arms.

Just to keep the record straight and to avoid a later denial from old Imright, we reprint a paragraph from his story.

"The Herders expect to have a lot of fun with the Howard county nine because it is purported to be managed by H. Stanley (Judas) Norman. And saying Herd sports series, and the Concho class is out for that young man's scalp. It has been custom for Norman to belittle in his newspaper columns the endeavors of San Angelo athletic contingents, whether it be football, basketball or baseball. Naturally the Herders will take great delight in bombarding the Big Spring baseball team, especially since it is managed by Norman."

THE RECORDS At this writing we haven't heard from the interscholastic league district track and field meet held Saturday in Abilene. However, it will be interesting to compare district records with times reported after the final race Saturday and so we are printing district records some of which have successfully withstood onslaughts since 1923.

A complete list of the records follows:

- 120-yard high hurdles—Nicolls, Stamford; Guitar, Abilene, 1927. Time 16.4 seconds.
100-yard dash—Stevens, Abilene, 1924; Morgan, Baird, 1927. Time 16 seconds.
One mile run—Gilbreth, Abilene, 1924; Mills, Sweetwater, 1925. Time 4:50.4.
440-yard dash—Stevens, Merkel, 1923. Time 52.2 seconds.
220-yard low hurdles—Sayles, Abilene, 1926. Time 25.4 seconds.
220-yard dash—Stevens, Merkel, 1923. Time 22.4 seconds.
800-yard dash—Gilbreth, Abilene, 1924. Time 2:28.
Pole vault—Little, Putnam, 1929. Height 11 feet, 3 inches.
Shot put—Adams, Roseco, 1928. Distance 46 feet 10 inches.
Discus throw—Blackwood, Breckenridge, 1923. Distance 120 feet 9 inches.
High jump—Sanders, Anson, 1924. Height 6 feet.
Broad jump—Stevens, Abilene, 1925. Distance 23 feet 8 inches.
Javelin throw—Bartlett, Anson, 1927. Distance 161 feet 8 inches.
One mile relay—Abilene (Salkeld, Moser, Sayles, Burgess), 1927. Time 2:37.5.

SKIPPERS MEET Team managers of the Big Spring Amateur Baseball Association have been called to meet next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Herald office. Important legislation concerning opening of the season, schedule and other matters will probably come up for discussion and, consequently, it is important that all skippers be on hand to represent their clubs.

Six teams have already tied the line, but signed contracts are not flooding the secretary's office. It is important that all contracts be duly signed and in hands of the secretary at least three days before the season opens, April 27, so a little speed in this matter will be appreciated. Let's not wait until the last minute and expect the secretary to have all rosters and eligibility lists prepared in the last two days.

SOME ACTION Baseball fans who desire a little action Sunday afternoon can secure it in rare form by journeying to the ball park at three o'clock where Laundrymen and T&P shops will stage a battle royal. Both clubs have been working regularly and are rounding into midseason condition. Fans will not be disappointed and it will be a couple of hours well spent in watching the boys do their tricks.

Clarence De Mar Still Wins Races BOSTON, April 19 (AP)—Clarence De Mar, veteran runner of the Melrose Post, American Legion, won his seventh Boston Athletic association marathon race over a field of 180 here today.

Edwards Sets High Hurdle Record

CAPTAIN IS HIGH POINT MAN OF DAY

Wins Hundred, High Hurdles; Second In High Jump

A new district track record fell into hands of Captain Buren Edwards Saturday at Abilene when he stepped over the high hurdles in the sensational time of 15.7 seconds. That wasn't all the tall Steer captain did either. He had time to win the century dash in 10.2, place third in the low hurdles and then win second in the high jump with a spring of 5 feet 11 inches.

Needless to say, Edwards' performance stamped him as the premier track and field athlete of this interscholastic league district and won him individual high point honors for the day in which approximately 200 school boys ran, heaved and jumped in desperate efforts to land the coveted position Edwards finally claimed when the curtain was run down.

Long Standing Until Captain Edwards kicked a pair of glittering spikes over the high barriers Saturday, Nickolds of Stamford and Guitar of Abilene were joint holders of the high hurdle record in the comparative slow time of 16.4. An even more impressive fact is that the old record had withstood desperate attacks thru seven long years, since 1923.

Big Spring finished third in the meet, so far as team standings is concerned with a total of 16 points. Roseco topped the meet with 24 1-2 points. Abilene was second with 22 1-2 and Snyder finished just one point below Big Spring with an even 15. Other schools to win at least one or more points finished in the following order with their day's earnings: Albany, 14 1-2; Colorado, 13; Putnam, 10 1-2; Moran, 8; Munday, 6; Knox City, 5; Fluvanna, 5; Haskell, 3 1-2; Sylvester, 2; Rule, 2; Midway, 2; and Potosi, 1 1-2.

Richbourg Adds Henry Richbourg, a track man developed entirely this year, picked up Big Spring's sixteenth point by placing fourth in the broad jump. Edwards' time of 10.2 in the century was two-tenths of a second slower than the record. Cornell of Putnam finished just behind Edwards in the 100-yard dash. Howell of Snyder was third and Pruitt of Munday was fourth.

Jack Smith, an elongated youth of Abilene, tied the district record in the high jump with a spring of 5 feet. Edwards cleared 5 feet 11 inches, but was unable to get over the bar placed one inch higher.

Two Others Fall Two other district records fell under the onslaught waged Saturday. Little of Putnam established a new mark for future generations to bombard in the pole vault when he cleared the cross bar at 11 feet four inches. Edwards' closest competitor for individual high scoring honors was Smith of Colorado who gained 10 points by taking first in the discus throw and javelin. Smith threw the discus 116.6 and the shot was tossed out 48 feet one and one-half inches.

Leland Beats World's Century Mark In Kansas Relays, Clocked At 9 4-10

By J. H. ANDERSON Associated Press Sports Writer LAWRENCE, Kas., April 19 (AP)—One world's record was bettered and one was equaled as sterling track athletes of the mid-west and southwest competed here today in the eighth annual University of Kansas relays.

Cy Leland, sprint star of the southwest representing Texas Christian University, sped with the wind down the 100-yard straightaway to be clocked by nine of ten officials' watches in 9.4 seconds. The recognized world's record is 9.6 seconds. Leland's mark is not likely to be recognized as a new world record because of the strong south wind which helped him along and because starting blocks were used.

The sprint relay team from Illinois led Michigan to the tape in the quarter mile relay in 41 seconds flat. To equal the mark set in 1927 by the Newark Athletic club. The time scattered the meet record of 41.8 seconds set by Notre Dame in 1927.

Leland's 9.4 sprint also broke the meet record of 9.6 seconds set by Roland Locke of Nebraska, in 1906.

Steer Regulars Bow To Seniors

A 15 yard dash by Buster Bell across the Steer goal line brought victory to the Senior class in a week-end struggle with the Big Spring gridiron squad by a score of 6 to 0. Bell scooped up a fumble and raced around end for the only marker of the game.

The second clash between the Seniors and the Steers found the Big Spring varsity facing a well-balanced, perfectly co-ordinated attack that took the ball at the kickoff and carried it almost the length of the field for a touchdown during the first six minutes of play. After that George Brown's charges rallied, and the rest of the game found them outplaying the graduating class consistently.

Despite the small scoring both sides advanced the ball freely. Kidwell and Cook of the Steers reeled off eight first downs while the Senior backs accounted for 10. Cook, a chunky youngster from Lubbock, maintained a superiority over Morrison, Senior punting ace, in the duel of toes throughout the contest, keeping the vectors from scoring another touchdown.

Oscar Heibison at guard was the outstanding performer in the Thursday clash. The blonde-haired lineman was all over the field, stopping the efforts of the Senior backs with ease. Hargrove, McCain, Yarbrough, and Jordan also starred for the losers with Bell, Ashlock, Morrison, and Bugger featuring the work of the victors.

A third contest between these two teams has been planned, in order that Edwards and Glover, trackmen, will have a chance of playing one last game before they surrender their athletic tops in favor of a diploma. The addition of Flowers, Orr, and Richbourg is expected to bolster the Steer lineup.

Aggies And Steers To Renew Grudge

COLLEGE STATION, April 19.—When the Texas Aggies of Coach Roosevelt Higginbotham and the Texas Longhorns of Uncle Billy Discus meet in the first contest of their two-gauge series on the Kyle Field diamond Monday, April 21, another chapter in that historic diamond feud which is virtually as old as the game of baseball in the Southwest Conference will be enacted.

Long recognized as the outstanding rivals of the Southwest Conference sport world, diamond contests between the Aggies and Longhorns would naturally be fraught with interest and keen competition, but to add to this natural rivalry is the record of diamond battles between the two teams in the past. Evidencing the keen rivalry between the two teams is the fact that in each of the past four years the Longhorns, winners of seventeen championships in the past eighteen years, have had their title hopes hanging in balance when they entered their final series of the season with the Aggies.

Frog Flash Proves Metal In Kansas Relays

Although Cy Leland did not have his two picture mates in run against at Lawrence, Kansas, Saturday, judging from the time in which the Flying Frog stepped the century, it would not have altered the result. Leland's time of 9.4 seconds will probably not be recognized because of the helpful wind, but you can bet your new Easter bonnet that Mr. Leland was doing some churning.

ECKHARDT LEADING HITTER

DALLAS, April 19 (AP)—Two young men who have caused countless arguments on their ability to carry a football have proved in the first week of the Texas League race that the gridiron is not their only sphere.

Big Oscar Eckhardt, whom Texas University adherents still claim was the greatest back in the history of the Southwest Conference wound up his first week as a member of the Beaumont outfield with an impressive sticking average of .519, topping his closest rival, Morro, of Houston, by 19 percentage points. Joel Hunt, Houston's dynamic little shortstop, who won undying fame in the Texas Aggie backfield banged five homeruns in the first eight days of the campaign to lead the circuit in that department. Larry Betgenecourt of Wichita Falls, another former gridiron great, and Gene Rye of Waco, each slapped three homers to tie for second place. Hunt, incidentally, still is wearing the same No. 8 on his uniform that distinguished him at A&M.

Other leading sluggers through games of Thursday, as compiled by William E. Ruggles, league statistician, were: Morro, Houston, .500; Blackberry Dallas, .484; Bettencourt, Wichita Falls, .483; Krauss, Shreveport, .429; Crouch, Wichita Falls, .414; E. Brown, Dallas, .400; Hunt, Houston, .400; Windle, Dallas, .385; Mallon, Fort Worth, .385; Muson, Waco, .376.

Five pitchers wound up their first week with a record of two victories and no defeats. They were Owens, Shreveport; Henick, Dallas; Stout, Houston; and Witse and White, Wichita Falls. Stout and Rose of Houston, each had accumulated 12 strikeouts.

Hunt, Houston, and Rye, Waco, were tied in total hits, each with 16. Blackberry of Dallas had 15 and Eckhardt and Bettencourt 14 apiece.

She Says $500 Could Not Buy Good Done Her

SAN ANGELO WOMAN DECLARES ORGATONE (ARGOTANE) IS WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD; HAD SUFFERED FOUR YEARS

"Five hundred dollars wouldn't buy the good that two bottles of Orgatone (Argotane) have done for me and I just think it's worth its weight in gold," said Mrs. L. A. Thomas, of 103 W. 7th street San Angelo.

"I was told repeatedly that my trouble could not be cured. In fact, I have had an operation for appendicitis and I had to have the second one for adhesions, but still I suffered. Even the noise of a passing car would upset my nervous system. My stomach was in such a bad condition that I could not even digest an egg, and this had gone on for four years until I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

"I kept reading in the paper about so many people who had trouble similar to mine that had used Orgatone (Argotane), and it proved to be the very thing in their case and I decided to try it.

"I have taken two bottles altogether and have gained wonderfully in weight and I haven't had a nervous spell since. I can eat anything I want and am building up every day. I just can't say too much in praise of Orgatone (Argotane)."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Big Spring at the Cunningham & Philips Drug Co.—adv.

American Men Big Headed, Hat Sizes Prove It

The men of America have the big head! What has been simply a contention of the women of this country for many decades now becomes a proven reality when data concerning the so-called average man in England and the United States are examined. It takes a much larger hat, it seems, to encircle the craniums of the men here than it does in the British Isles.

According to a story from the London Daily Mail the predominating sizes of hats in England are 6 7-8 and 7. In America the most popular sizes are 7 1-8 and 7 3-4.

"For every hat we carry in stock of the 6 3-4 size," says one merchant in a recent survey, "we carry one of the 6 7-8 size, two of the 7, three of the 7 1-8, three of the 7 1-4, two of the 7 3-8, and one of the 7 1-2. We carry hats as small as 6 3-4 and as large as 7 5-8. We have occasional calls for even smaller or larger sizes."

"Sun Tan" Has Little Health Value Says Prominent Doctor

Some facts about sun tan are contributed by Dr. LaRoy A. Wilkes, director of the division of medical service of the American Child Health Association, as a contribution to the celebration of national child health day on May 1.

"Sun tan," says Dr. Wilkes, "is produced by the development of skin pigmentation by the body's defense-mechanism as a protection against an excessive amount of sun rays. Sun tan in itself has no health value except as it gives this protection, and indicates, further, that one has been exposed to the beneficial rays of the sun.

"Sun tan varies in amount in different individuals and bears a close relationship to the complexion of the individual. The blonde and fair skin burns easily and tans with more difficulty than the brunette whose skin has inherently a greater amount of skin pigment.

"The red-head not only does not tan easily but burns and peels most readily and commonly freckles excessively.

"Sun rays when reflected from such surfaces as water, white sand, and glass, (windshields of autos) intensify the burning and tanning process.

"Wind also appears to play a part in accentuating the effect of sun light.

"Research is still required to help in solving the question of how much of the body must be exposed to sunlight in order to get the maximum health benefits.

"Some clothes are said to transmit the beneficial rays of sunlight better than others and a variety of sun suits are now on the market, but children with less expensively girded loins can probably benefit equally well from the exposure to the sun.

"A combination of sun bath and sea bath provides an attractive and beneficial treatment for children. Under the effect of these agents children store up vitality for the long winter months when, though equally important, sun baths are less easily taken and in some cases must be supplemented by artificial sunlight such as carbon-arc and other forms of electric light."

she did in this," indicating the picture. "Ruby Joyce is three and mainly likes to come to town. She doesn't care if I go away, just so I leave the car there. "You know, she wants everything she sees! Didn't get it from me—she's just like her mother," he laughed. "May we put that in?" we enquired. "Well, I'll take the chance," said the genial superintendent of our public schools and left grinning.

Lime Green, Ripe Banana, Champaign; Neglected Petticoat Is Necessary Now Among Popular Colors For Summer

COLORES RUN GAMUT OF THE PRISM

Colors can't be counted in new summer fashions. They run the gamut of the prism—and then some more.

Lime greens, mother of pearl pinks and pale lemons are particularly important. A large leaf design in bright apple-green has its background against a pattern of fine tracery in pale gray. Egyptian green combines itself with flame and a bright mustard with brick-red in true Parisian manner.

Fruit shades will be popular, such as ripe banana, cherry-pale, apple-green, peach, plum and apricot and there is still the popular purple of grapes (raisin shade) which is nothing short of divine in summer chiffons.

There is also champagne, delicate brown, cream, gray and vivid mid-blue. Dull Bordeaux-red comes combined with Chinese-pink and the misty smoke-blues make up charming wool and jersey ensembles.

Good old navy-blue is a predominant color for practical daytime clothes, made dainty with extremely clever touches of lingerie in the form of collars, gilets and pockets.

The pastel season is already on and there is any amount of sea-green, pale blue, pink and white. Purple, scarlet and rich chocolate-brown figures for classic tailcoats and coats. Light orange and deep apricot, Chinese vermilion and pale blues are favorites at Maggie Rouffers.

SLEEVES ARE WHAT YOU MAKE THEM

The question of sleeves is a big one. One of the newest tricks is to cut the sleeve off short, half-way above the elbow. Tiny puff sleeves are worn and little cap sleeves are quaint and considered quite chic. If the sleeves are long, they are elaborate, often ending in great balloon puffs from the elbow to the wrist. Again, small puffs may occur above or below the elbow in a tight sleeve.

COLOR AND NOTCHES FEATURE SCARVES

Among new scarves is one with irregularly slashed and notched edges. They give it a roughneck air which makes it particularly effective with tweed costumes.

Bright green and cardinal red are the chic colors for sport scarves this season. Small scarves, double thickness of crepe de chine or marcan are smarter than big ones. Even wool scarves are small, eight inches wide and long enough to twist once around the throat with 12 to eighteen inches left over at the ends.

BRING OUT THE PETTICOAT

Petticoats are putting in an appearance this spring after being terribly neglected for many years. The new fluffy frocks and transparent effects have once more proved their usefulness and necessity. Slips are absolutely needed under the thin chiffon and organdie dresses which will be worn this summer and frilly petticoats will make flared skirts look much better.

Cream-satin and matching Lyon lace make a charming fitted slip fastening in the back under a little fly-band. Pink chiffon with wands and motif of matching satin incrusted by point turc make another with uneven hemline and pink crepe de Chine with crepe satin and ecru lace is cut on fitted lines and made adjustable by the neat wray-around cut.

Because of the sheerness of most of the new cloths, pale pink is probably the favorite tint for new lingerie, with cream and ecru lace, crepe de chine and crepe satin are preferred fabrics, sometimes combined with sheerer weaves of chiffon.

Low-backed evening gowns and sun-tan day frocks are bringing most calls for one-piece garments where it is possible to eliminate the strap or back fastening across the shoulders or place it much lower than in the case of the separate basissets. Most of the new combinations as well as slips and petticoats are cut on princess lines to reduce bulk at the waist and over the hips to a minimum, while the fuller skirts of the dresses have inspired flares starting at a low line on the petticoats worn beneath them.

BLOUSE SHORTIES NEW PARIS NOVELTY

Blouse-shorties are the Suzanne Lenglen specialty appearing at the house of Yvonne May, where the well-known temperamental tennis champion is now exercising her talents along a slightly different line.

These blouses of kasha, silk, crepe or jersey that are worn with the two-piece ensemble of tweed or little pantaloons tucked on so that one has blouse, petticoat and bloomers all in one. The skirts snap open or button on one side. For comfort and neatness, there certainly was never anything like them and besides, no one can deny that they are beautiful as well.

FITTING WOES END WITH TIE-ON FROCKS

There is a new complication in dress styles, launched under the name of the tie-on.

It is meant to solve the problem of selling the general public dresses which must fit snugly around the waistline.

The tie-on dresses are adaptable to any figure. They feature peplums or skirts ends which extend into straight ends that tie around the waist, controlling skirt fullness and belt measurements.

HORSEHAIR LACE HATS ARE BROAD OF BRIM

Brimmed hats of horsehair lace which turn back abruptly off the forehead but reach almost to the shoulders at the sides and back promise to be a phase of summer headgear popular with the continental debutante.

Modified forms of the lace straw hats in black and dark blue are shown for town wear. For afternoon wear at resorts and in the country vivid colors are preferred.

MODEST MAIDENS

"Look, I got an anonymous letter!" "Who's it from?"

Spring Formal

White crepe evening gown with separate blouse and skirt composed entirely of diamond shaped pieces of fabric and fitted to the princess silhouette and sewn with tiny crystals. This is an unusual type of evening dress, but quite in line with the more individual showings for the season.

900 Tomato Plants Of Scotch Variety To Be Given Away

A tomato plant growing ten to twelve feet high and bearing fruit in clusters like grapes is to be introduced into Big Spring by E. B. Ribble, florist.

It is a Scotch variety and Mr. Ribble is one of the only men in the United States to have seeds. He paid one cent apiece for them.

The plants grow very rapidly and there is often 150 pounds of fruit on the vine at one time. Often as many as from thirteen to twenty tomatoes have been taken from one stem. The fruit grows to two and one fourth inches in diameter.

Mr. Ribble has 900 of these plants and will give them away in order to have them started under different conditions in this climate. The plants will be given away during this coming week, but not more than three or four to each person who will call for them.

They are from four to six inches high at present and should bear from June to frost.

Birthday Party And Easter Egg Hunt In Honor Of June Hines

Miss June Hines was the honoree at a party given by her mother, Mrs. W. R. Hines, at her home on 402 Lancaster street, Friday afternoon.

The party was in celebration of her ninth birthday. An Easter motif was carried throughout. The color scheme was pink and yellow. On arrival the twenty little guests were given white and pink "funny" caps to wear. Numerous Easter games, such as pinning on the bunnies' tail, were played.

The children found their partners by matching chickens with each other, and proceeded to the lawn to search for Easter eggs. Kodak pictures were made of the group.

A large pink frosted "birthday cake with the word "June" in the center was on the table. Hand-painted cards marked the place of each guest. Ice cream and cake was served. A grassy nest, with chickens and eggs, was given as a favor.

The guests were: Mable Segell, Margie Ray Damron, Maurice Bledsoe, Ethel Hooser, Anna Corcoran, Adene Carter, Jean Porter, Marvin Louise Davis, Emma Lee Stalcup, Christine Shannon, Johnnie Williams, Frank McTier, C. Clarke, Bobbie Gene King, Maxine Perdue, Robert Delbridge.

CLUB STUDIES PROBLEMS OF CHILD

The everyday problems of the everyday child will be the subject of discussion for the Child Study club, formerly Child Conservation club, for the coming year, according to Mrs. H. S. Faw, president of the organization.

At Friday's meeting the program was devoted to "Physical Health." Mrs. J. C. Moore made a talk on "When the Baby Is Teething," Mrs. Robert Henry, "Give Sunbaths With Care"; Mrs. H. S. Faw, "New Ways to Correct Posture."

Mrs. Henry, the retiring president, made a short talk on the purpose and significance of the organization.

"Truly children," she said, "are the most vital and valuable resource of a nation. It is the sensitive spirit of youth that is most open to the truth that saves the world."

She went on to say that, therefore, their education is the most necessary and most amply repaying work of the people.

Must Study

"We must study," she continued, "the child as a social as well as an individual being. So as to teach him social responsibilities as well as his personal duties; to teach him that all sin has its roots in selfishness; and that all virtue has its roots in the principle of the Golden Rule."

She went on to say that the child is born with traits and tendencies of temperament that it is up to the parents to mold, and that the purpose of the Child Study club is to fit the parents for the responsibility of moulding the life of the child.

Mrs. Henry was elected chairman of the constitution and by laws committee. Mrs. E. D. Norman was appointed chairman of the P. T. A. work. Mrs. J. C. Moore was elected chairman of the year book committee, and Mrs. L. I. Stewart, chairman of the information committee.

Book

Mrs. Faw outlined the work for the coming year which will be based on the book, "Everyday Problems of the Everyday Child," by Douglas A. Thom, M. D., director of the Child Habit Clinics of Boston.

Next meetings will take up the different chapters of the book such as, the relative importance of heredity and environment; habits; the parent-child relationship; feeding; sleep; intelligence; teacher and pupil; delinquency and conduct; toys and companions; obedience and discipline, etc.

These phases of the child's growth and development, are often a source of unhappiness and bewildered confusion on the part of the mother as well as on the part of the child. The club hopes to work out a sane attitude, said Mrs. Faw, toward the upbringing of the child by study of cases and their correction and discussion of the questions as they arise.

Members of the club are: Mesdames G. W. Beard, M. A. Cook, W. D. Correll, H. S. Faw, R. J. Glaser, Earl Glaser, G. H. Hayward, R. W. Henry, J. B. Hoard, J. L. Moore, E. D. Norman, James Rivers, L. I. Stewart, Granville Glenn, W. H. Martin (honorary member), J. B. Delbridge, Biggs and Reed.

With first editions of Edna St. Vincent Millay selling for many times their original price it is obvious that her verses mean something to many. Miss Millay, however, has passed her laurels so far as popularity are concerned, to her younger sister Kathleen.

"I shall forget you presently, my dear,
So make the most of this, your little day,
Your little month, your little half a year,
Ere I forget, or die, or move away,
And we are done forever; by and by
I shall forget you, as I said, but now,
If you entreat me with your loveliest lie
I will protest you with my favorite vow.
I would indeed that love were longer-lived,
And vows were not so brittle as they are,
But so it is, and nature has contrived
To struggle on without a break thus far—
Whether or not we find what we are seeking
Is idle, biologically speaking."

HOUSE OF ENGLISH DESIGN

This is a house of English design which always lends charm to the landscape.

Distinction is achieved with its gables over its many projections or breaks in the plan. These breaks are always made in various plans to obtain sunlight or cross ventilation. A break with no other purpose in view than to merely make another gable is poor planning. It should always be done to make better living conditions.

In this house the material would be brick for the walls, stucco and half timber on the second floor, and slate for the roof.

The house may be built on a lot 50x150 feet with the living room facing the street and the dining room and kitchen looking to the rear or garden front.

Space marks all the rooms, particularly the living and the master's bedroom. In these two rooms there is a fireplace and four or five windows.

Two walks may be laid to the entrance, one from the front and another from the left side. There would be remaining after construction enough lawn or garden space to carry out the theme of the structure.

The cost of building this house is estimated at $10,000 to $12,000, depending upon the quality of materials and where the house is built.

White House Easter Egg Roll Has "Lost Children's Garden."

BY SUE McNAMARA
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rose garden of lost children will bloom at the annual egg rolling on the White House lawn Easter Monday.

Girl Scouts will preside over the garden where children who have become separated from their guardians will be kept and comforted.

Each year many small children get lost in the crowd which swarms through the White House gates during the day. It is necessary to have a place to keep them.

So the rose garden, which adjoins the south side of the White House, is to be used as a lost and found bureau. The Girl Scouts will circulate in the crowd locating the lost parents or guardians.

Mrs. Coolidge always took a particular interest in the lost children and often came down upon the grounds to mingle with them.

When the last child has departed at 4:30 p. m. an army of 60 men will advance in a long line across the littered White House lawn. Long hours of work will be necessary to rid "the president's yard" of all traces of the egg rolling. Every bit of paper, shells, sandwiches and banana peel must be picked up.

Just being a child is ample passport to the White House grounds on Easter Monday. No adult can get in unless accompanied by a youngster.

The crowd will begin to assemble long before 9 o'clock when the gates are opened. Policemen are to be stationed all about the grounds. Vendors of colored balloons, paper rabbits, pop corn and peanuts will line the curbing outside the grounds.

Most of the children come supplied with hard-boiled colored eggs and lunch baskets. The adults visit together, enjoy the feeling of being in the White House yard, listen to the Marine band and wait for the moment, along in the afternoon, when the President and Mrs. Hoover appear on the south portico to bow and smile.

U. S. SCHOOLS IMPRESS TEACHERS FROM BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Eight Brazilian teachers who spent several months in the United States studying American educational methods under the auspices of the Carnegie Foundation have returned here much impressed with elementary instruction in the states visited.

It is likely that many of the methods studied will be used in the schools here.

Since their return the teachers have been interviewed by nearly every newspaper in the capital and in this way American schools and methods have come in for a great deal of publicity.

Manual training and the absolute equality of rich and poor children in the schools studied were two of the important impressions brought back here.

BY ONA REAGAN PARSONS
"Eroica" by Samuel Chotzinoff (Simon and Schuster)

This is a story of the lonely Beethoven by a man whose love and understanding of the great musician extend even farther than the bounds of his scholarship. One is not conscious of material gathered from all sources by a devoted admirer; one is conscious only of Beethoven.

Mr. Chotzinoff, who, by the way, is the musical critic for the New York World, does not presume to offer us a biography. He calls this a novel based on Beethoven's life. It is a novel with the fire and passion of a great soul revealed, not by the author, but by the musician himself in his struggles with himself and his environment.

Musicians do not need to know the lives of the composers to appreciate their music; but I doubt if any ordinary mortal can ever, after having read this book, listen again to any of Beethoven's sonatas without seeing a picture of the unhappy Ludwig proud in the knowledge of his genius, humble in the knowledge of his inconsistencies, and fathoming in his music the depths of a nature that was a social misfit in the superficial music-loving Vienna.

Even Mr. Chotzinoff, however, could not decide just which of the various sweethearts was the Immortal Beloved whose image Beethoven had so enshrined in his heart that marriage was impossible. He decided that instead of a persons this was an ideal that the rude musician was never to realize, although he sought for her all his life.

The influence of this ideal, which was so stormy at first became more and more powerful toward the end as Beethoven's approaching deafness made him realize that society would be no longer agreeable. He then directed the force of his strong and passionate nature inward and from his soul brought forth music that had a new dimension—depth—for the admirers of Mozart and Haydn. Many of these masterpieces came too late to give their producer the satisfaction that his earlier, lighter pieces had given him when he saw the impression they made on music-lovers. But he no longer cared as much for public reward as he desired only to express the feeling within. His was a genius conscious of itself but seldom satisfied with its expression.

Musicians are a new theme to the biography-loving public. They will probably continue to be a rare theme for they require an author who can find words to express the emotions of music, as well as a long-abiding interest in his subject. Even one biography, however, can do a great deal in the way of providing a background. We moderns understand more of all of the great masters whose art was subsidized by those in political authority just from reading this one book.

"I would like to call your attention to the publishers of 'Eroica.' Someone has asked me if these were the cross-word-puzzle publishers. Simon & Schuster have probably made a nice little fortune out of their cross word puzzle books, which they still advertise with as-

Easter, Survival Of Old Teutonic Mythology, Once First Of Year

History

The name, Easter, like the names of the days of the week, is a survival from the old Teutonic mythology. It is said to be derived from Eostre or Ostara, the Anglo-Saxon goddess of Spring, to whom the month corresponding to our April, called Eostur-month, was dedicated. Although Easter, as commemorating the central fact of the Christian religion, the resurrection of Christ, has always been regarded as the chief festival of the Christian year, there is no indication of the observance of the Easter festival in the New Testament or in the writings of the apostolic Fathers. It soon became recognized, however, and according to a regulation of Constantine, was to be the first day of the year. This reckoning of the year as beginning at Easter lingered in France as late as 1564.

Easter eggs, the perennial symbol of the day, have their origin in remote antiquity. In the early days of the Christian era, dyed Easter eggs were blessed by the priests and holy men and kept as amulets supposed to bring good fortune. Even before Christianity, there are references in history to the "eggs of Spring," and the rolling of the Pesche, or Pace, egg is one of the oldest recorded customs.

The lamb, another traditional Easter symbol, traces back to the sacrifice of the paschal lamb in the ancient Jewish Passover observance.

Easter cards of the modern type made their first appearance about 1908, following the lead of various earlier English publishers and of Louis Prang in America. These cards were much simpler than their later prototypes. They were usually floral subjects, with an occasional outdoor Spring scene, and bore in one corner a brief caption such as "Easter Greetings." Rabbits, eggs, and chickens, the time-honored symbols of Easter, also appeared.

Within a year or two the messages on the cards became more elaborate. A typical floral design folder in 1910, wished to the recipient: "May Easter be but the beginning of an endless period of peace and happiness for you and yours."

Modernistic Influence

Until this year Easter cards have not differed essentially in manner from the styles first introduced in 1908. The fantastic treatment increasingly evident in cards for other occasions with the popularity of the modernistic school of art has been strikingly absent in Easter cards. This year for the first time the influence of modernism is apparent, but it is not expressed in siduity. But they have applied that fortune toward producing some of the best non-fiction (and fiction, too, in which class is this book) of the present season. It will be worth your while to acquaint yourselves with their publications.

"The April Texas Monthly"

As the months pass and the Texas Monthly gets more and more into its stride it finds a gradually increasing number of interesting Texas facts to find and preserve. It is doing what the magazine features of alert Texas newspapers do in a very limited space; it is talking for Texans. There is much to talk about, Texas past, present and future. One will read it and then put it away to read and refer to.

The first article deals with the future. Stuart McGregor makes a plea for the adoption of an economic program for Texas which needs it, he says, more than any state in the union.

The second article deals with the past. Dr. Simmons, of Baylor, presents the first of three articles on Mollie E. Moore Davis, an early Texas and southwestern writer who was very popular in the east in her day. He is reviving her for posterity. Maybe someday first editions of her novels will be valuable. The third article is an account of the theatre in early Texas. It is just as interesting reading as Decca Lamar West's story of Robert E. Lee's experiences in this state before the Civil War.

The quaintness of Fredericksburg is revealed in a short article about the "Sunday houses" (residences not churches) in that little city.

The best endorsement I can give it is that it is worth saving.

Not long ago I received the following letter from a woman in Kansas:

"I am very puzzled about my skin. I ought to have a beautiful skin, for I eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, and am outside most of the time. I live on a farm, and must get up very early in the morning—but I get more sleep than most women, for I go to bed early. Although I am only thirty-three my skin is beginning to show fine little wrinkles, and seems to be growing darker and coarser all the time. I never have used anything but soap and water on my face, because I thought all I needed was to keep my skin clean. Please tell me what else I must do to have a good complexion."

This letter tells volumes about the skins of many women. In a way, the little lady from Kansas is right. By leading a healthful life and keeping your skin clean you can have a lovely complexion. But soap and water are only a part of the cleanliness story. If soap and water were all you need to keep your skin beautiful, creams and lotions never would have been invented. No, you must use more than soap and water. In those tiny pores of your skin, little oil glands are working all the time. When they work too hard, or the pores are the extreme futurist motifs noted at Christmas and Valentine's Day.

Religious Cards

It is estimated that approximately 20 per cent of all Easter cards sent are religious, and a number of handsome cards are shown, although not in as great variety as the floral designs. They are almost invariably decorated with a cross, sometimes framed with flowers, and are most often done in silver and lavender on white. Old English lettering is a favorite for the sentiments which recall the significance of the Resurrection story. Apart from the wholly religious greetings, the cross is also frequently used with beautiful effect on cards carrying a message of friendship.

Humorous Cards

There are almost no humorous cards. In the past the main source of humorous inspiration was found in the new clothes, and especially the new hat, but with the Easter parade as such now practically passe, these cards have lost much of their significance. There are amusing bunnies and chickens and gossings in various surprising poses, but even those for children carry in the main only a conventional greeting of Happy Easter wishes.

Novelty cards for children appear in numerous cut-out forms. These strike a new note this year in featuring to a large extent the toys of modern childhood. For instance, many popular cards of this type show bunnies riding on up-to-date scooters in various styles, and others even more progressive, show toy automobiles or even aeroplanes.

Envelopes

Envelopes, even for the elaborate cards, are almost invariably white and unlined, probably in unconscious survival of the older observance when the liturgical color for Easter was everywhere white, as the sign of joy, light, and purity. A radical departure this year are the occasional brilliantly lined envelopes in gay colorings which accompany the new modernistic cards. One, for example, appears in bright blue lined with a subtle design in cerise, yellow, blue, green, gold, and black, and another lines a bright apricot envelope with an iridescent pattern of peacock blues and greens and copper tones.

Etiquette

Easter is accepted as preeminently the appropriate season for the sending of friendship messages, and cards are sent to a wide circle of acquaintances and business connections as well as to intimate friends and relatives. Cards are shown for nearly every member of the family, as well as for friends and neighbors, and there is also a marked increase in cards specially designated for the minister or pastor of the sender.

Paris (AP)—Women scored heavily over men in examinations just held for filling vacant posts in the service of historical archives of France.

The first place went to a male candidate, but the second, third, fourth and fifth went to women. The examination is a severe one, requiring a remarkable knowledge of French history, ancient forms of the French language, the reading of old documents and charts.

Candidates are expected, beside this general knowledge, to specialize on one subject of history on which they must present a thesis to the examiners.

BRIDGE WITH STYLE

By MARGERY TAYLOR
Interior Decoration Editor McCall's Magazine. Written For The Herald

It just had to be done, and now it is—the bridge style of interior decoration.

If home is a place to live in, and we "can't live without bridge," then we must have a bridge home.

Perhaps you haven't reached the point where you will have the living room walls and ceiling painted with card motifs, but if you are fortunate enough to have a game room, you will find the new chintz, called "Trumps," the perfect decoration.

It comes in an ivory, black or familiar spots, and the red or black chintz would be very effective in draperies with a valance perhaps, of three red diamonds.

But there is no need to be discouraged if you can't go in for the bridge atmosphere in a big way—there are always the accessories—china, ash trays, lamp shades and a hundred other things that will occur easily to all who breathe bridge.

The chintz, for instance, can be transformed into a striking cover for the bridge table or for the score pads, or at least the match box. Incidentally, match boxes covered and shellacked, tied with red ribbon in half dozen or dozen lots, make appreciated (and inexpensive) prizes.

OHIO HUNTS STATE SONG: WANTS TO HUM TUNE SOON

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Ohio is seeking a real state song.

Tired of being songless while residents of neighboring states are humming, whistling and singing official state tunes, the department of education of Ohio has made an appeal not only to lyric writers and composers, but to every Ohioan.

Prizes are offered and the rules are few. A poem of at least three stanzas and of high literary type that will lend itself to musical setting and "treat of the commonwealth, her greatness and grandeur" is wanted. It is hoped that the song will be ready so residents of the state will be able to learn it this year.

FRENCH WOMEN QUALIFY FOR ANTIQUARIAN POSTS

PARIS (AP)—Women scored heavily over men in examinations just held for filling vacant posts in the service of historical archives of France.

The first place went to a male candidate, but the second, third, fourth and fifth went to women. The examination is a severe one, requiring a remarkable knowledge of French history, ancient forms of the French language, the reading of old documents and charts.

Candidates are expected, beside this general knowledge, to specialize on one subject of history on which they must present a thesis to the examiners.

Babies' Eyes

One of the most common forms of unnecessary and avoidable blindness is the result of an eye disease acquired by the baby at birth or during the first weeks of life.

This affliction nearly always could have been prevented by the use of certain eye drops. It usually is called "babies' sore eyes." Physicians call it Ophthalmia Neonatorum.

It begins with a redness of the eyes. The lids become swollen and pus is discharged from between them. If this condition is neglected in the beginning, it becomes much more difficult or even impossible to cure later on.

So-called home remedies should never be tried on a case of babies' sore eyes. The risk is too great. Proper medical treatment should be secured at once, or the eyes may be severely damaged so that, even if complete blindness does not result, sight may be greatly impaired.

Enough damage may be done by this disease in one day to make it impossible, even with the greatest care, to prevent total blindness.

About 50 years ago, Dr. Carl Franz Crede of the University of Leipzig found that if the doctor, nurse or midwife who takes care of the baby when it is born would put a few drops of a certain silver containing solution in the baby's eyes immediately after birth, this would prevent the disease in practically all cases.

In many states such preventive treatment is now required by law. As a result of the widespread use of these "drops," a reduction during the last twenty years of approximately 68 per cent in the number of blind cases resulting from Ophthalmia Neonatorum is reported by an organization gathering such statistics.

JACQUELINE ON HER OWN

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If all things come to those who wait, young Joel McCrea is one movie actor who has had his share of waiting.

McCrea, under contract to one studio for the past ten months, to date has not appeared in a single picture.

Nor has he been "up for a part," either, which means he has never been tried and found wanting.

This state of things, which on the surface might appear to be a plot to hide his light under a bushel, is to his benefit, he believes.

It so happens that his studio has been concentrating on song-and-dance pictures, and McCrea, a six-foot-three, broad-shouldered athlete from Pomona college, would be as much out of place in one of those as a Broadway hooper on a desert ranch.

The studio chief, one who apparently sees beyond the haze of dollars and cents, has preferred to keep him idle, on salary, rather than miscast him.

McCrea's last screen work was in "The Five O'Clock Girl," a musical intended as Marion Davies' first talkie. Joel had the second lead.

But the picture, when nearly completed at large cost, was shelved, and Miss Davies appeared instead in "Marianne." "The Five O'Clock Girl" is still gathering dust.

But Joel's studio is heading the popular demand for westerns and outdoor pictures, and McCrea is due to have his innings.

Two Rex Beach yarns of the open spaces are being considered as possible vehicles.

Meanwhile he has been tested for roles in "Liliom" for Fox and in Mary Pickford's next talkie. Hitherto the studio has refused to lend him to other companies.

GOODBYE? The title of Miss Pickford's next, by the way, intrigues this department greatly. The idea will not do down that its wording may be an eloquent gesture of farewell from the woman who has reigned in filmdom nearly 20 years. The title is "Forever Yours."

However, nothing in Miss Pickford's present attitude indicates a contemplated retirement. Enthusiastic over the new screen as ever she was, recently she won the academy award for the best feminine performance of the year, as "Coquette."

JACQUELINE ON HER OWN

By RICHARD STARR

SYNOPSIS: The age old barrier of different social positions looms between Teddy Montrose and Jacqueline Grey and the latter, realizing her riches soon will vanish, determines to forget Teddy. But she finds it difficult, and the pleasures of the wealthy devoid of the thrill they once gave her.

She agrees to accompany Mr. Carew on a motor trip to see Mrs. Porter Mason only to find after the car breaks down that Mr. Carew has deceived her. His cavernous tactics fill Jacqueline with fury and Mr. Carew learns for the second time he has made a mistake in pursuing her. Jacqueline simulates a faint and Mr. Carew vainly seeks to revive her, then runs for help and Jacqueline miraculously revives and flees the scene.

Chapter 27 TERRORS OF THE NIGHT There was only one thing in Jacqueline's mind as she walked down the road—to get as far away from Mr. Carew as possible before he discovered how neatly he had been fooled by the potent effect on a man of an artistic faint.

She knew it was about 10 o'clock, and that she was some 45 miles from London. Also she did not love dark country lanes miles away from anywhere. They frightened her.

She kept walking as fast as she could. Twice she tried to run, but the fog was too thick, and each time she fell.

She had been hurrying down the road for more than 10 minutes when she heard the quick pounding of steps behind her.

Somebody was running along the road towards her. It must be Carew.

This was only too true. He had found the farmhouse in a few minutes, and had hurried back to the car, only to discover that the fainting girl had miraculously recovered and vanished.

Illumination came to him. He realized that he had been sold. The dead faint was a hoax, specially staged for his benefit, and he had fallen into a trap.

In a rage he went pelting down the road, knowing that there was only one direction the girl could take.

To make matters worse, he had a powerful electric torch with him, and with this was searching the hedges as he ran, to make sure that she was not crouching somewhere in hiding.

Jacqueline, who had started running directly she heard the thud of flying feet, saw the glimmer of the torch coming toward her, and saw at the same time a stile close at hand.

It was the work of the moment to climb the stile and crouch on the other side.

The runner did not slacken, but went straight on past the stile, flashing the light on it.

On the particular meadow in which Jacqueline now found herself there was a path, if it could be so called.

A narrow, winding foot-track led across from one stile to another, and she followed this by the feel of the harder ground under her feet.

When she had crossed two more stiles she felt safe so far as Carew was concerned, but there were plenty of other troubles to face. She was now completely lost. She wandered, forlornly in a bumpy meadow, her thin shoes and stockings already wet through with the dew.

And she was frightened. Much more frightened than she had been of Mr. Carew and his melodramatic plot.

There were strange inconsistencies about Jacqueline. She would stroll serenely down such places as Paradise Row, Poplar, where old Dobbin had lived, with perfect unconcern. She would have gone just as light-heartedly into the worst slum in London, no matter how bad its repute. She never dreamed of dangers in the streets of London, where she had lived all her life, and had never been interfered with.

Other things, too, she was not scared about. But she always used to sing to keep her courage up, if she had to go upstairs in the dark; and she could not imagine anything more dreadful than to be alone in a country lane at night.

After the adventures of this adventurous day she was perhaps entitled to a few tears. But she did not indulge in the weakness for long.

She sat for some minutes sobbing. Then she shook her slender shoulders and dried her eyes carefully with her handkerchief.

"What a time I'm having!" she told herself, commiseratingly. "I bet my nose is red. What wouldn't I give to be back in the old dormitory again at Byrams, having an argument with Emily Gibbs? If this is the sort of thing one gets from being wealthy! Oh, Teddy—Teddy!"

Then she cried a little more, and stopped abruptly with a gulp. "Oh, if only I could find a road somewhere a main road for preference!"

But she was afraid to stir. She dared not explore the possible terraces that lay on the further side of this hospitable stile. She felt that the stile was her only safeguard, and feared to move away from it.

She argued if a cow appeared on one side she could climb over to the other. What to do if a cow appeared on both sides she dared not think.

After she had considered this point in fear and trembling for a quarter of an hour, she heard a sudden roar, a rushing whirl of wheels, and a great blase of lights flew past her on the others side of the stile.

It was a motor-car going at high speed.

All the time she had been considering the hopelessness of her position, the road—and a main road too—was only just on the other side of the stile.

In a moment she was over and speeding down the road in the direction the car had taken. When she was out of breath she pulled up.

"You're not going to catch that, my child," she said. "Your brains have gone out for a walk of something. Better wait for the next one."

So she followed more soberly, but it so happened that she did after all catch the great car which she had seen rushing recklessly through the fog.

In the stillness of the country night, she heard a distinct thud and a metallic crash.

"Sounds as if that car has met something," said Jacqueline, and began to run again.

She was right. When she arrived breathless on the scene of the accident, she found a man pinned under the car. It had run up a bank and turned completely over.

The man was in a bad way. The car was lying across his body. He was on his back, his arms outstretched and his head rolling from side to side. There was some blood on his face and he was moaning feebly.

He was an old man, too, with white hair, and a short, well-trimmed beard. The wheels of the car were in the air, but the electric headlights were still burning.

The man was conscious, and in a tremulous tone asked Jacqueline to help him.

But how to help him? She caught hold of the edge of the car body with her pathetic little hands and tried to lift it. The result may be guessed.

Fortune and her own quick brain favored her.

Somebody had been cutting fence rails by the roadside, and there was a neat pile of stout poles eight feet long or so. Jacqueline very quickly saw the use of one of these.

So she chose a pole, put the end under the car, and using it as a levez was able by the exertion of all her strength to move it an inch or two.

"Can you crawl out if I lift the car off you," she asked.

"Yes," whispered the old gentleman. With the weight of the car on his chest, it was all he could do to speak at all.

Jacqueline heaved on her lever. The man drew himself clear of the wreck. He did it painfully and slowly, and before he was clear Jacqueline was white and panting with her efforts. She let the car down with a crash immediately he was clear.

She helped the old man to his feet. He was very tottery and leaned all his weight on her slim young

'HIT THE DECK' IS OPENING AT RITZ TODAY

'Bigger And Better' Apt Description Of Radio's Greatest Musical Show; Oakie Heads Startlingly Fine Cast

"Bigger and better"—to borrow an ancient and often abused movie slogan—briefly describes Radio Pictures' version of the popular stage success "Hit the Deck."

Although the Vincent Youmans musical comedy established box-office records throughout the United States, the stage offering could only suggest the immense scope, color and narrative value of "Hit the Deck" in its present celluloid form.

The "Hallelujah" song is an example of what is meant. It was a solo on the stage. In Radio Pictures' interpretation it becomes a lengthy sequence—a Negro spiritualist meeting which involved 109 Negro vocalists, dancers and players; and introduced to film fans the colorful Marguerita Padula, a black-face singer whose voice has a startling range of four octaves!

This same parallel may be expected in other comparisons of the old and new "Hit the Deck" which will play at the Ritz theatre today, Monday and Tuesday.

Hundreds in Cast
More than a million dollars and three months' time were spent in making the film. Elaborate sets which required an army of workmen many weeks to build, a chorus of 183 trained dancers and a unit stock company of 300 selected players—were on constant call.

Thirty-five thousand dollars were spent on wardrobe alone. This provided numerous changes for the women principals, Polly Walker, June Clyde, Ethel Clayton and Marguerita Padula. Radio Pictures' dancing girls directed by Pearl Eaton, appearing in several sequences introduced new and exotic costumes in each. There were 146 sailor uniforms, including 24 for Chief Petty Officers, 24 for Ensigns, 24 U. S. Marine outfits, and seven high-ranking officers including the admiral.

Three sets were built at an approximate cost of $200,000 involving 300 men working in three shifts for five weeks. This included an exact replica of the forward deck of the U. S. S. West Virginia. The deck was completely equipped with cabins, bridge, gangways, a revolving gun turret, and four new model 14-inch Naval guns.

Guns Support Chorus
The guns were designed to support the weight of 90 chorus girls—15 on each—and had a revolving angle of 90 degrees and an elevation of 25 degrees.

The battleship sequence and several of the coffee shop scenes were made in technicolor.

Expense was forgotten in assembling a cast for the principal roles. Polly Walker, who is Looie in the play, was imported from the New York stage. Roger Gray and Frank Woods enacted the roles in the film which they created in the original version.

Many Featured Players
A further glance at the roster of players will reveal the charming Radio Pictures player, June Clyde of "Tanned Legs" fame; Wallace MacDonald, handsome as ever, with a voice that "clicks"; Ethel Clayton, Harry Sweet, Dell Henderson, Andy Clark, Nate Sloss, Charles Sullivan and George Ovey.

Many new songs were added to the sensationally popular group introduced by the stage show, "Harbor of My Heart" and "Keeping Myself Just for You" have already been marked as hits, along with the familiar "Hallelujah," "Sometimes I'm Happy" and "Nothing Could Be Sweeter." Nine songs, not including several spirituals, are offered in all by the vocalists, orchestras and navy band.

Great credit for the success of "Hit the Deck" goes to Luther Reed, the director, Robert Kurrie, chief cameraman, and the many other art and technical supervisors, working under the direction of Producer William LeBaron.

LOVERS REUNITED IN FILM
Gary Cooper and Mary Brian, who made a big hit with the movie-going public in their romantic roles in "The Virginian," will be seen again as film lovers in "Only the Brave," which comes to the Queen theater Friday and Saturday of this week. Jack Oakie Stars In Radio's Finest Musical Show, Coming To Ritz Today

Jack Oakie, the Sedalia, Missouri, product who happens to be one of those talented individuals who can sing, dance and act as stars should be featured in "Hit the Deck," playing the role of "Bilge." It is still running in New York at $3 to $5 per seat and is to be shown at the Ritz here today, Monday and Tuesday.

Nancy Of "Sweetie" Here In "Honey"

...Nancy Carroll, one of those gifted girls of the screen over whom men rave while women sneer, meaning that she is exceedingly ornamental as well as gifted, will appear at the Ritz Wednesday and Thursday in "Honey." Harry Green, Skeets Gallagher and Lillian Roth are in the cast.

"Only The Brave"

Those captivating lovers, Gary Cooper and Mary Brian, who can thrill you as lovers without gushing into wordy ecstasies return to Big Spring Friday and Saturday of this week at the Queen in "Only the Brave."

Delectable Comedy Makes 'Honey' Just What Name Implies

"Honey," which will start a 2-day run at the Ritz theater Wednesday of this week, is a sweet show. Miss Nancy Carroll, the darling of America's movie fandom, is the star. She is even sweeter than she was in "Sweetie" if that can be imagined. The reason is that "Sweetie" showed her to have moments of obstinacy, whereas "Honey" shows her as a completely delectable character who is at all times lovable.

It affords fascinating entertainment every moment. The comedy tempo is fast and riotous. The song sequences are exceptionally pleasing to the eye and ear.

The show, a musical romance with a negligible amount of dancing in line with the famous stage hit, "Come Out in the Kitchen," Miss Carroll is the daughter of a poverty-stricken Virginia family who is forced to leave her parental mansion to Jobyna Ralston, a wealthy widow from the East, in order to gain money to pay off the mortgage.

When the widow moves into the mansion with her daughter, Lillian Roth; her chosen prospective son-in-law, Stanley Smith; and her detective guardian, Harry Green, there is a shortage of servants and Nancy and her brother, Skeets Gallagher, are forced to assume the roles of cook and butler respectively.

A series of hilarious comedy episodes result from this situation. Of course Stanley Smith falls in love with Nancy, even though he is unaware that she is a high-born Virginian and not really a kitchen maid.

With the exception of Miss Carroll and Smith, who, of course, are the romantic leads, every character in the cast is a genius of comedy and

Excellent Cast Supports Cooper In Queen Picture

Gary Cooper has been provided with an excellent supporting cast in "Only the Brave," his second starring talkie, which is the main attraction on the big bill at the Queen theater Friday and Saturday of this week.

Heading the support is Mary Brian, winsome miss who leaped into the limelight several years ago in "Pete" Pan. Miss Brian has appeared in seven talking pictures in the last year and a half. Among the more recent are "The Virginian," "The Marriage Playground" and "Burning Up."

the picture is filled with their laugh-packed antics. ZaSu Pitts is as usual a scream in the role of a dolorous house-maid, and little Mitzi Green, nine-year old sensation, is excruciatingly funny as the prying and precocious Doris.

The pretty love-theme finishes satisfactorily. "In My Little Hope Chest" is the leading song of the show. Miss Carroll and Smith sing it charmingly. Another smashing success is "Sing You Sinners," a Negro jubilee song which thrills with its tropic rhythm and clever staging. The other songs, rendered in uproariously funny fashion by the comedy support, are "I Don't Need Atmosphere," "Let's Be Domestic" and "What's This Power I Have."

KEROSENE REFRIGERATOR
An iceless refrigerator, which cools its contents by burning kerosene, has been placed on sale in rural districts where neither gas nor electricity is available.

Horton Very Funny In Queen Feature

"Set a woman to trap a man," is an adage the truth of which is amusingly demonstrated in the story of "Wide Open," the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone all-talking comedy with Edward Everett Horton which comes to the Queen theater Wednesday and Thursday.

Women really can locate men's weaknesses with uncanny directness, according to Patsy Ruth Miller, who plays the mystery girl who operates the trap that is set to find out the real truth about the valuable and undervalued office clerk, played by Mr. Horton. With her, she plays the girl—who is in reality the daughter of the big boss—is generally a couple of jumps ahead of any of the masculine investigators.

"Perhaps this curious facility is due to intuition," says Miss Miller, "perhaps it is some sixth sense, perhaps it is just a woman's unique gift." Whatever it is, Miss Miller believes that "Wide Open" makes use of the proper psychology in assuming that an inexperienced girl could and did completely fool a business man of average acumen.

Perhaps by now Miss Miller has had an opportunity to test her theories because she was married during the production of "Wide Open" and delayed her honeymoon to complete the comedy on time.

Archie Mayo directed "Wide Open" and the cast includes Louise Fazenda, Edna Murphy, Vera Lewis, T. Roy Barnes and others.

STRUMS AND SINGS
Rex Lease strums a mean ukelele and demonstrates his skill in "Troopers Three," in which he sings his own accompaniment to his playing of the theme song, "As Long As You Love Me," by Abner Silver and George Wagner. Dorothy Guliver does the listening.

"Troopers Three," a comedy drama of the U. S. Cavalry in peace time, written by Arthur Guy Empey and recorded by RCA Photophone, is the Toffany all-talking production coming Friday to the Ritz theater.

"Troopers Three" Offered At Ritz

In the field day meet, held at the barracks of the 11th U. S. Cavalry at Monterey, Calif., many cups were donated by Tiffani, which was at the time, making scenes on the Parade Grounds for its big special production, "Troopers Three." The actual story of Cavalry life, by Arthur Guy Ramsey, will be the attraction Friday and Saturday of this week at the Ritz theater.

The prizes were awarded to the Cavalrymen for the winning of the various events, which included barrel-racing, pyramid riding on three horses and machine gun relay races. Prizes were also awarded to the regiment of infantry stationed at the barracks.

The cups were presented through the courtesy of Colonel Roger S. Fitch, commander of the post.

"Troopers Three" is an all-talking production recorded by RCA Phonograph and directed by Norman Taurog. Rex Lease, Dorothy Gulliver, Roscoe Karns and Slim Sumnersville play the featured roles.

Sally O'Neil Star In Queen Picture

Sally O'Neil, who is starred in "Broadway Scandals," the all-talking, singing, dancing musical comedy sensation coming to the Queen theater on Monday and Tuesday possesses that rare combination of good common sense and artistic ability.

Both these characteristics are hers by inheritance. The common sense comes to her through her father, Thomas Francis Noonan, who was a Justice of the Supreme Court. At the time of his death, he was a prospective candidate for the post of secretary of war. Artistic ability, in good measure, was contributed by her mother, Hannah Kelly, who was an opera singer. These qualities make Sally an extremely intelligent and congenial artist. She is always ready to listen to a director's suggestions and will adopt them without any unnecessary display of temperamental if she finds them beneficial. An artistic temperament unaccompanied by common sense usually results in an egotistical person who is hard to manage.

On a coast visit she met Marshall Neilan, who was then a director for M-G-M. He was so impressed with her vivacious personality that he selected her for the lead in "Mike." Sally, Irene and Mary" for M-G-M followed. She was made. Then came one success after the other.

The road which the county will take over, improve and maintain has been in use, but was constructed and maintained by private interests.
