On Economic Front

Labor Chief Says Action Is Needed

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg said that only prompt action will forestall "a real depression in the United States."

Goldberg, inspecting Illinois and Indiana unemployment areas for President Kennedy, called for bi-partisan political support for administration economic proposals.

Goldberg interviewed idle workers and their families in employment offices and conferred with political, labor and business leaders in Chicago, Gary and South Bend.

The latter two steel and auto producing centers have nearly 12 per cent unemployed.

Meeting here with several hundred South Bend community leaders, Goldberg said: "We are in a real recession in the United States and if we don't take the proper action we'll be in a real depression in the United States."

France 'Regrets' Incident

PARIS (AP) — France Friday night formally expressed sincere regrets to the Soviet Union for French jet fighter plane's burst of tracer bullets carrying Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

The Foreign Ministry said the French charge d'affaires in Moscow, Jean de la Grandville, was received Friday night at the Soviet Foreign Ministry his own request to deliver the French apology along with a pledge to make a full investigation.

Tech Joins Special Drive

ABILENE (AP) — Fourteen Texas universities and colleges will team up in Abilene for a concentrated fund drive among their ex-students in an experiment that may expand to other cities.

Purpose of the unified drive this spring is for coordinated, short-term personal solicitation which will be dramatized because of its size.

A volunteer organization of the 14 cooperating schools will be formed under the name of CLASP—College Loyalty Alumni Support Program.

The project is an adaptation of one pioneered last year in lower Fairfield County, Conn., where 35 colleges simultaneously solicited their alumni in one giant promotional effort.

Abilene's three schools—Abilene Christian, Hardin-Simmons and McMurry—will serve as co-hosts of the program. In addition to the three Abilene schools, others participating are:

Baylor, Houston, Rice, Southern Methodist, Southwestern, Texas A&M, Texas Christian, Texas Tech, Texas Wesleyan and Trinity of San Antonio.

Each of the schools will independently organize its own ex-students living in Abilene for the two-week campaign May 2-15.

U.S. Tries Rocket Thrust

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The highest rocket thrust ever achieved — 1,550,000 pounds — was produced at Edwards rocket base in California Friday, the Federal Space Agency announced.

The announcement said the test was of a prototype thrust chamber for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's F1 liquid propellant rocket engine.

The thrust produced in Friday's test was more than all eight engines of the Saturn super booster are designed to produce.

RIDING HIGH IN THE SWC — The Texas Tech Red Raiders bid for their second win of the year over the Southern Methodist Mustangs tonight before an expected capacity crowd of over 9,000 in Lubbock's Municipal Coliseum. The Raiders go into the game tonight with a 6-1 conference record, holding down

'Scarlet' Reigns On Annual Day

Texas Tech, hoping that history repeats itself, will be clad in red today on the annual Red Raider Day, attempting to dazzle the Southern Methodist University Mustangs into defeat as it did on the first Red Raider Day two years ago.

Fast becoming a solid tradition at Tech, the annual day is under the sponsorship of Saddle Tramps. Tags have been given students throughout the week bearing the words, "Beat SMU."

A "victory bell" symbolizing the Tech-SMU rivalry will pass into Tech's possession prior to the game tonight, with SMU Head Cheerleader Tommy Luce presenting the bell to Bill Dean, Student Assn. president.

Winner of each Tech-SMU game receives the bell until the next game is played, with Tech receiving it for their 70-68 victory over the Mustangs January 3.

Performing for the half-time tonight will be the Modern Dance Group.

The Red Raiders are currently riding on top of the Southwest Conference basketball race with a 6-1 Conference record. Texas A&M with a 5-2 mark is holding down second. Arkansas, University of Texas and Southern Methodist are scrapping in third place with 4-3 totals.

Adding to the celebration of Red Raider Day today will be two bells now used as spirit-routers by the Saddle Tramps. One is a 250 lb. bell given by the Santa Fe Railroad to the group and the other is a smaller bell donated by the Lubbock Fire Dept. The smaller one is rung with each Raider score.

Board Considers Science Addition

A $400,000 addition to Texas Tech's Science Bldg. will be among items to come before the college Board of Directors in a regularly-scheduled business session beginning this morning at 9:30 in the Office of the President.

Dr. R. C. Goodwin, president of Tech, was reported ill with flu Friday and was not expected to be at the meeting this morning.

Mrs. Goodwin told The Treador Friday that Dr. Goodwin was "better this afternoon" but he had "a good case of flu." The President was not expected to return to the campus this weekend.

Committee meetings of the directors were underway Friday afternoon and prior to the Board meeting this morning.

Items expected to be considered at the meeting today include research budgets, recommendations from the Athletic Council, plans for poultry and dairy cattle facilities, consideration of additional housing for women, a summer language institute and a contract for air flight training for Army ROTC cadets.

Carl Maxey Co. of Lubbock made the low bid of $411,000 for the addition to the Science Bldg. Eleven bids were opened Tuesday at the Aggie Memorial Auditorium.

The addition would be a three-story wing to the south-west side of the present building. Classrooms, labs and space for physics, geology and biology will be included in the new wing.

Today's Board meeting will be the last for three Tech directors, unless Governor Price Daniel reappoints them. The three are J. Evetts Haley, Canyon rancher-historian; Tom Lineberry, Kermit rancher; and Douglas Orme, Big Spring oil executive.

Allen Conducts Interviews For BSO Officers Monday

Interviews will be conducted for new officers of the Board of Student Organizations from 2:30-5 p.m. Monday.

To be qualified for an office, a student must have served as a representative to the BSO or as a president of an organization on campus. Officers must also be classified as a junior or senior next fall.

James G. Allen, dean of student life, the Executive Committee, the Workshop Committee, and the Retreating Committee will talk to interested students by appointment in Dean Allen's office.

Plans are still being made for the BSO retreat, March 3-5, at Cloudfcroft, N.M. Organizations may still send a delegate by paying their BSO dues. Deadline for paying dues is 5 p.m. Feb. 27. Delegates may complete arrangements for the retreat by turning in the necessary papers to the secretary of the dean of student life.

Debaters Compete With ACC Sunday

Texas Tech debaters challenge Abilene Christian College Sunday at 5 p.m., in an intercollegiate debate tournament as "Young America Speaks."

Tech will contest ACC's affirmative stand "Resolved: that Communist China Should be Admitted to the United Nations." The Tech debaters will base their main argument on the point that Communist China does not meet the requirements of the United Nations charter.

Representing Tech are Darlene Collins, freshman education major; Harry Newhardt, freshman government major; Wynette Johnson, freshman physical education major; and Kip Glasscock, sophomore pre-law major. All are from Lubbock, Miss Collins, Miss Johnson, and Newhardt are first semester speech students; Glasscock has been in the department for three years.

Assisting the students in the presentation of their argument were Raymond Mack, government assistant professor; Dr. Sterling Fuller, government professor; and Paul Woods, history associate professor.

Participating in the "battle royal" portion of the debate will be Glasscock and Newhardt for Texas Tech, against Terrell Reagan and Wayne Grisso for Abilene Christian.

Following speeches made by two members of each team, will be a period of cross-questioning where each side will ask the other side questions for five minutes. The debaters will then be asked questions by the audience.

Sinclair Refining Company, sponsor, will contribute $1,000 to the scholarship fund of the winning school and $500 to the losing school's scholarship fund.

Two Attend Meet Of Drama Group

Ronald Schulz, associate professor of speech, and Miss Shirley Cadle, speech instructor will attend the annual meeting of the Texas Educational Theatre Assn. today at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth.

Business of the association includes consideration of criteria for instruction in theater at Texas colleges and universities and will include a report of the committee on theater history of which Prof. Schulz is a member.

Show Eyes Top Talent

The deadline for applications for Tech's third annual talent show, the Raider Rambles, has been extended indefinitely, according to Jane Gentry, Student Union Program director.

Originally set for today, the deadline was extended to encourage other acts to enter the show set for 6:30 p.m. Feb. 24, prior to the Tech-TCU basketball game.

"We hope to sort of fill the gap left by the absence of this year's Varsity Show," said Miss Gentry. She urged singers, dancers, instrumentalists and novelty performers to make application at the Union Office.

Preliminary auditions will be held today and Feb. 14 and 15 at 7 p.m. Two acts will be chosen to make an expense-paid trip to Fort Worth to represent Tech in the Texas A&M talent show.

The best act will receive a trophy presented by the Student Union Arts and Entertainment Committee.

Big Objects Start Incinerator Fires

Sneed Hall has been the scene of several "fires" recently, all of which proved to be merely an overloading of the building's antiquated incinerator system.

The size of the passages seems to be sufficient until clogged with some large object such as a pasteboard box, according to John M. Bayne, dorm supervisor.

The situation causes little or no danger, and it is possibly the intentional work of pranksters living in the hall.

IBSON

February 31st was another day of infamy. It was only one of many, of course, but it was one. More so, it seems to me that there are many more to come if the pattern of the recent past (since January 20) continues without some word of outraged injustice from "We, the people . . ."

I, personally, am admittedly biased, although I am trying desperately not to be. But the "packing" of the House Rules Committee should be the handwriting on the wall for all of us "peepul" to be shivering right down to our toes over what to expect next from the new Administration.

"Packing" is the only word which can be applied to the Honorable Mr. Rayburn's tactics of insuring the advancement of the President's utopian-type bills through the lower chamber of the Congress. The Thursday before, there was supposed to have been a vote on the issue of the numerical strength of the Committee, but Mr. R.—using all the power of the Speaker of the House, as well as much more accumulated through his many years in Washington—postponed any such vote on the issue until later. Later, of course, was time enough to do whatever was necessary to buy, promise, cajole or what-have-you the persons necessary to change the strength of Rules Committee.

When F.D.R. attempted the very same thing in the Supreme Court, the "peepul"—through their spokesmen in Washington—howled long and loud, and the whole fiasco fell on its face. Too bad for the "peepul" that they didn't get up off their lethargic subsidies and put a stop to last Tuesday's travesty.

What's happened? The House Rules Committee is now made up of 15 members instead of 12 (6 from each party). There is no way I know of to beat the unhealthy combination of 8 to 7, unless—and I must say this is only a slim hope—conservatism rules the majority.

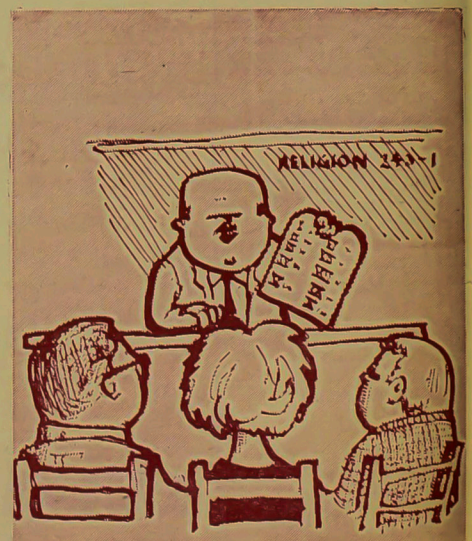

What does this mean to the people? It means that no matter how expensive, socialistic, paternalistic, extravagant, ludicrous or ridiculous a bill may be, chances are 8 to 7 that it'll come out of the Committee to be voted on on the floor of the Congress. Competency and efficiency have been forsaken, it seems, for the sake of the theory that ALL bills should be voted on by ALL members of the House. It means that the House will be wasting time—and that's money—as well as instigating more extreme liberal legislation that will probably pass—and that's even more money.

It is our money. It is yours. It's mine. But once in the coffers it becomes Government money and everyone—at least a slim majority—suddenly feels that this is money from a source untapped. Everything—EVERYTHING bought and paid for by the Federal Fund comes out of YOUR pocket. There's no limitless well from which the National Funds are extracted. Unfortunately, many seem to look at it in just that way. For every buck the Government spends, somebody—the "peepul"—have to pay.

I wonder if the President's State of the Union address, as it referred to the deplorable condition of the U.S., was not so much a pronouncement of existing conditions, but was rather a prediction of what is to be expected on this new road upon which we're embarked. The hazards on this path to the "New Frontier" have only begun to begin with last Tuesday's action. What lies ahead may well make us gag!

But that is another story — next week.

Wehrle's World . . .

Now, about the text for this course.

Evaluate Yourself

Who Are Tech Students?

What is the average college student at Texas Tech today?

In this day and age when higher authorities — both political and technical — spend much of their time and effort in evaluations of our educational system, it seems only natural that the college student himself should open his eyes inwardly and resort to a little self-evaluation.

If the student inspects himself and his academic actions closely enough he will find out that his college career falls into two possible categories — it is either an interim between high school graduation and the inevitable day when he has to go to work — or — it is an extension of his high school work in which he broadens himself in every way possible.

Either way he can get a degree, which is a relative thing anyway.

The student who came to Tech because "it was the thing to do" might possibly find his years at college following this pattern: not participating in class discussion, not active in campus clubs or activities, not questioning any of his basic beliefs or opinions which he brought here, never extending his knowledge on a certain subject beyond the classroom, never attending extra-curricular lectures, recitals, concerts or productions, or not reading the periodicals well enough to know what is going on in Washington, the Congo, Laos or even Lubbock.

As was aforementioned, this student will get the same sheepskin that the student will get who has taken an active interest in his college. Their grades might be close also, and the jobs they get might be the same.

But the difference between the two will be seen in the future.

The student who has not only taken advantage of classroom lectures but has also seen fit to educate himself will probably reap the fortunes of faster advancement and a more satisfying life.

He will be able to "apply" what he has learned. He will be able to discuss intelligently the world about him and write with clarity the affairs of his business.

A college degree alone, then, should not be the goal of the student who partakes in an evaluation of his academic actions, it should be a college education.

Tech Cagers Host Ponies

The high-flying, league-leading Texas Tech Red Raiders will attempt to card their second win of this year over Southern Methodist University, when the Mustangs invade Municipal Coliseum at 8 p.m. today.

Tech won the first of the home-and-home series when they overcame a 13-point halftime deficit to win by two points, 70-68, in Dallas Jan. 3.

Since then, the Ponies have won four of six contests, their latest conquest being defending Southwest Conference champ Texas at Dallas Tuesday, 70-63.

Tech's record since then is only slightly better than that of Southern Methodist. The Raiders dropped a match in Austin to Texas, but have won five other conference games.

With its 4-3 record, SMU goes into the game tonight in a three-way tie with Arkansas and Texas for third place in the league. Tech leads with its 6-1 mark.

High-scoring Steve Strange and Jan Loudermilk lead the Ponies in their effort to knock the Raiders from atop the league.

Strange was one of the thorns in the backs of the Raiders in the Dallas contest, and Loudermilk has been on a personal scoring spurge the last few weeks to become one of the top scorers in the conference.

Tech is the only Southwest Conference team to beat the Mustangs on their home court this year. In other games, SMU has defeated Baylor, Rice and Texas. On the road, Coach Doc Hayes' team lost to A&M and Arkansas but beat Texas Christian.

The series between Southern Methodist and Texas Tech dates back to the 1944-45 season, and of the 20 games played, the Red Raiders have managed to take only six, most of which have come in the last five years.

The largest Tech victory margin was eight points in a 72-64 victory in 1959 and Southern Methodist's most decisive win was a 29 point, 101-72 decision in 1957.

In other games across the conference, Tech's closest competitor for the loop title, Texas A&M goes to Fort Worth to play Texas Christian; Texas University hosts Baylor at Austin; and Arkansas plays at Houston against the Rice Owls.

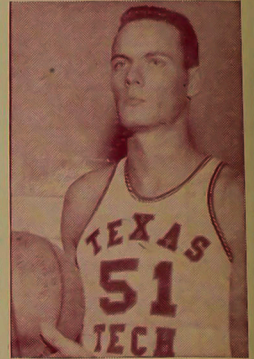

A near capacity crowd is expected for the game tonight when the Raiders take on the Ponies, since the Raiders are league leaders now and stand to gain or lose prestige in tonight's contest, as well as their league standings.

If tradition is any criterion, the Municipal Coliseum will be no place for the weak-hearted tonight. Close games are the rule rather than the exception between these two clubs. For instance, Tech downed the Mustangs 70-68 in the first contest at Dallas this season. In fact, ten of the 20 games played have been decided by five or fewer points.

A great deal hinges on Texas A&M's contest with TCU tonight. If A&M wins and Tech loses, the conference race will be tied.

Tech's Picadors will try for the .500 mark for the season in the preliminary game at 6 when the Lubbock Christian College Pioneers move in for a game.

Bowling Signups To Be Extended

Student Union program director Jane Gentry has announced that the deadline for signups for the Union Bowling Tournament has been extended to 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Entrants will bowl for the right to represent Tech in the National Intercollegiate Bowling Tournament at Texas A&M April 21-23.

The local tournament will begin Friday and conclude next Saturday.

Interested persons may sign up at the men's intramural building on the campus, the Student Union Building or at Lubbock Bowling Club, where the bowling will take place.

Picadors Vie With Strong LCC Today

Tech's Picador basketballers will run into rough going tonight at the Municipal Coliseum when they take on the powerful Lubbock Christian College Pioneers prior to the varsity contest.

Going into last night's game with South Plains Junior College, Coach Lester Perrin's Pioneers had recorded a perfect 7-0 conference won-loss record. The quintet had emerged victor in ten of their last eleven games, running their season record to a commendable 16-7 count.

The Pioneers stand as favorites in the game tonight by comparative scores. The most recent common foe is the West Texas State freshmen LCC defeated the West Texas group 69-62, while the Picadors took a ten-point licking, 99-89, from the same squad.

Where the Pioneers have been meeting junior college foes, the Picadors have been playing against semi-pro squads only (with the exception of West Texas State) with plenty of experience.

A Tech win over the Pioneers would even the Picadors season record at 5-5, and would give them a 2-0 win margin over the junior college in total meetings. Tech won the initial contest between the two clubs last year by a four-point margin, 76-72.

The Picadors will be playing before possibly its largest crowd of the season tonight as a sellout crowd is expected to witness the Raider-SMU Southwest Conference battle immediately following the junior varsity tilt. The Picadors will tip-off at 6 p.m.

Raider Track Team In Successful Debut

The Texas Tech Raider track team entered its first competition of the 1961 season Thursday night in the Will Rogers Games in Fort Worth.

The Games, first indoor meet ever held in Texas, had among its entrants six of the eight Southwest Conference schools and approximately a dozen other colleges.

Rice and Arkansas were the only SWC teams not entering.

Led by Bob Swafford's first place finish in the 60-yard hurdles, Tech's cindermen finished in fourth place behind Abilene Christian, Southern Methodist and Texas.

Coach Don Sparks took seven varsity athletes to the meet including five runners and two field men.

Charlie Draper and Guy Golden represented Tech in the 880 yard dash, Curtis Hart ran in the 440 yard dash, Cecil Bryant and Delbert Shirey were in the pole vault, and John Byram joined Golden, Draper and Hart to compose the mile relay foursome. Shirey high jumped also.

In addition to the varsity competitors, freshman hurdler Ronny Biffle accompanied the group and competed in the open division in the meet.

Although the Raiders finished fourth in the overall standings, the Tech team was in second place going into the final event, the mile relay.

The Raiders finished second in their heat behind ACC, but in the other heat, SMU and Texas had better times than Tech and edged ahead in the final point total.

Although Swafford's win was the only blue ribbon captured by the Red Raiders, several other Tech athletes finished in the top four of their individual events.

Compilation of final finishes in each event found Tech with a second place in the 880 yard dash by Draper, a fifth place finish by Shirey in the high jump, and two Raiders, Bryant and Shirey in a six-way tie for second in the pole vault.

Besides the fourth place finish of the mile relay team, Tech had one more ribbon when Biffle finished third in his hurdle race.

Swafford's performance was one of the more outstanding in the meet, his winning time of 7.4 being only two-tenths of a second off the American indoor mark.

Regarding Swafford's feat, Coach Sparks was apparently well pleased.

"He looked real great," the track coach replied. "In fact, he looked better than he had in a long time."

Sparks thought the indoor meet was a great value to his team.

"I feel they learned a lot. It was a real good meet, and we know where we stand now. I was pleased with the boys; I feel they did probably as well as they could considering the bad weather we've been having lately," Sparks said.

Draper's second place finish in the half mile was pointed out by the coach also.

"None of the Southwest Conference boys beat him. Menchaca, of North Texas State beat him, but he's one of the top-rated half-milers in the country this year," Coach Sparks emphasized.
