

Supreme Court says Wimmer disqualified from run-off on four counts

Greg Wimmer was disqualified on four counts as a candidate for Student Association (SA) president Monday night by the Tech Student Supreme Court.

The court ordered a runoff of all SA presidential candidates except Wimmer to be conducted concurrently with the Senate elections March 22.

The case was appealed to the court after the Senate Government Operations and Relations Committee ruled last week to dismiss protests that Wimmer had violated the election code.

Chief Justice Steve Scott and Justice O.J. Simpson heard the case.

Justice Rick Hurst disqualified himself because he had worked in Wimmer's campaign, Scott said.

Justice Jim Lynch was absent.

Simpson delivered the opinion of the court. He said both evidence presented to the committee last week and evidence given to the Supreme Court for the first time Monday showed Wimmer had violated the election code.

The committee heard evidence that Wimmer had sent questionnaires about student government to students outside his BA constituency.

Those who brought the appeal were Dennis Graham, former SA vice president, and Tech students David Loutrel and Mary Basada.

Graham and Loutrel also signed the protests brought before the Government Operations and Relations Committee last week.

The petitions were unable to produce a copy of the questionnaire and accompanying letter at the committee hearing.

Hank Anderson, counsel for the petitioners showed a copy of the letter and the questionnaire to the court.

Testimony that a person wearing a shirt with a Wimmer campaign slogan was seen on campus March 4 at a varsity tennis match was given to both the court and the committee.

Simpson cited the close decision of the Government Operations and Relations Committee to dismiss the protest as the third count in the court's decision.

Committee chairman Gayle Snure testified she cast the deciding vote to dismiss the protest.

Miss Snure said, "I had some doubts" after the committee decision about whether her vote to dismiss the charges was just.

As precedent for the decision, Simpson cited the court's decision to disqualify Doug Williams as a candidate in the 1971 executive election.

In the Williams case, Alan Soffar, chief justice at that time, said a violation of the election code that influences one single vote is serious enough to disqualify the candidate.

At the beginning of his argument, Anderson asked that Simpson and Lynch be disqualified from ruling on the case.

Anderson said, "the petitioners have ample evidence showing that these two justices are members of a political caucus that was engaged in actively supporting the campaign of Mr. Wimmer." Simpson said, "I have never met with any caucus that supports Greg Wimmer."

Scott said he had talked with Simpson and he did not believe Simpson would do anything that was unjust in ruling in the case.

Anderson said he accepted Simpson's decision to rule on the appeal. Anderson did not produce any evidence of Simpson's involvement in Wimmer's campaign.

In other action, the court upheld a Government Operations and Relations Committee dismissal last week of a protest against the entire election.

Senate legalizes election delay

By CASS RAY
Managing Editor

The Tech Student Senate in a 20-minute special session Monday night unanimously approved the Election Code Reorganization Act, legalizing a proposed week-long postponement of Senate elections.

The Senate elections were originally scheduled for Wednesday.

Sponsored by seven members of the Government Operations and Relations Committee, the act offered revisions to two subsections of the election code.

The original version of the first revised subsection stated Senate elections would be "the first Wednesday following the Wednesday of executive officer elections."

It was changed to read, "the election of senators shall be held on the first Wednesday following the Wednesday of executive officer elections or executive officer run-off elections."

The original version of the second revised subsection required that executive officer run-offs be conducted "concurrently with the election for senators."

It was changed to read, "any run-off needed to fill an executive office shall be held on the Wednesday following the Wednesday of executive officer elections."

Gayle Snure, Education senator, chairman of the Government Operations and Relations Committee and co-sponsor of the act, said the Senate and executive officer elections could not be held on the same day because of a lack of manpower to help with the elections.

Miss Snure said the majority of the 114 senatorial candidates had been notified Senate elections had been postponed one week.

"If you want to call 114 people and tell them the election's this week, that's fine," Miss Snure said.

Education Senator Bruce Barrick referred to a section of the election code which requires a two-day campaign before Senate elections.

"They (Senate candidates) haven't had those two days of campaigning," Barrick said. "Therefore, it would be impossible to hold the elections this week."

A letter announcing members of Women's Service Organization (WSO) will work with the Student Association (SA) in the elections was read to the Senate by Arts and Sciences Senator Ann Graham.

The letter was signed by Sharon Warford, WSO president.

"WSO is working these upcoming elections with the stipulation that a member of the UD staff and a member of the Government Operations and Relations Committee be present at all times during the distribution and collection of the ballot boxes and during the counting of ballots," the letter said, "and further that the members of the Government Operations and Relations Committee who are running for reelection disqualify themselves from certifying elections."

The letter also said WSO would decide after the executive officer run-offs and the Senate elections whether to continue helping with SA elections.

"Alpha Phi Omega has voted to participate in this spring's elections by a narrow margin of two votes," said a similar letter signed by Gary Hudspeth, president of Alpha Phi Omega (APO), and read to the Senate by Barbee Anderson, Senate secretary.

The letter placed three stipulations upon APO election assistance.

Tech invites Nixon to speak

Tech issued a formal invitation to President Nixon to address the annual banquet of the American Society for Engineering Education Wednesday, June 21, in Lubbock.

Dr. Grover E. Murray, Tech President, Dean John R. Bradford of the College of Engineering and Texas Congressman George Mahon issued the invitation to the president at the White House.

Nixon said he would give the invitation special consideration.

ACLU called after delay

YSA seeks legal help

By ROBERT MONTEMAYOR
Special Reporter

A small group of Tech students calling themselves the Young Socialists Alliance (YSA) have asked the American Civil Liberties Union (A.C.L.U.) to review their question concerning their rights to be a recognized campus organization.

The YSA claims the Administration is delaying their recognition beyond an unreasonable time. The Administration says they are following normal procedures.

Recognition of the YSA is presently under investigation by the Administration, even though the organization was unanimously recommended by the Committee for Student Organizations (CSO).

Dr. Kennedy, Vice-President of Academic Affairs, is heading investigation of the organization along with the assistance of the university lawyer. He added that if the YSA was recognized, it would still have to be approved by the Board of Regents.

The YSA applied for official recognition to the Office of the Dean of Student Life the first week in February. On the 17th of February the CSO unanimously recommended that the YSA should be granted official campus recognition.

After three other organizations were recognized, the YSA's application was referred to the Associate Vice-President for Academic Affairs. The application was then forwarded to Dr. Kennedy's office for a final decision.

Kennedy stated that the lengthy delay was because of a question in the YSA constitution.

He said he questioned the ideals of the constitution because the organization based its philosophy on the works of Lenin and Trotsky. Kennedy said, "I will take close look and question any application that says they are revolutionary, as their constitution states."

Asked why determination of a decision was taking so long, Kennedy said, "I am trying to make an evaluation for myself and trying to make up my mind as to their right to receive organizational recognition."

"I'm still contacting my colleagues and asking for advice. I also do not have all the information that I would like to have before I reach a decision."

According to CSO member Donnie Richards, procedures for the recognition of the group are irregular. Richards said organizations usually received immediate recognition upon recommendation from the CSO.

Tim McGovern, YSA member, said, "The YSA does not advocate violence or rebellious revolution. Rather we do advocate the struggles of mass movements such as those of the Blacks, Chicanos, and Women's Lib."

McGovern added that the YSA would work to organize further anti-war movements on campus and locally. He said, "We are primarily advocating the struggles for self determination of all minorities and oppressed people. Our weapons are not guns. Our weapons are ideas and principles."

Ralph Bates, another YSA member, said the YSA was planning to hold a campus speak out, with organizations that favor the YSA stating their ideas on why they should receive recognition.

Bates said, "No other group, political or otherwise, has received such prejudiced discriminatory treatment. We are demanding our rightful civil liberties, for which the YSA has always stood."

Barefoot makes campaign stop

Sanders speaks in Hub

By TOM BRASHIER
Copy Editor

Barefoot Sanders, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, visited Lubbock today for the second time since hitting the campaign trail leading to the May primary elections.

During today's stopover, Sanders announced that he would return to Lubbock in mid-April and was scheduling some speaking events especially for Tech students during that visit.

Sanders, former U.S. District Attorney and congressional advisor to the president, was greeted with questions mainly concerning the campaign tactics used by his opponent, ex-Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough. Yarborough made a visit to the Hub City recently to speak to Tech students.

"Mr. Yarborough has been making quite an issue out of my name. It (Barefoot) is the name my parents gave me and so I'm proud of it. I do have legitimate qualifications though, so my name should really be no issue," Sanders said.

Sanders says his own campaign has been getting "good response" all across the state. "I think people are getting tired of Mr. Yarborough's constant talk about things other than the issues," he continued. "I believe the voters will respect and appreciate an affirmative campaign for a change," Sanders added.

In citing major problem areas Sanders pointed to foreign relations and economic policy as places for improvement.

"I view the Nixon trip to China as the American people's trip to China. It was a constructive step," Sanders said. "The trip was beneficial and will open doors of communication to a country that has one-fourth of the world's population."

Turning to the Vietnam issue, Sanders said he is in favor of negotiating for release of POW's and MIA's followed by a complete withdrawal of troops. However, he maintained that the law should be upheld in regard to granting amnesty to military deserters.

In addressing issues that students are usually concerned with, Sanders spoke out strongly in favor of complete equal rights for 18-year-olds. "I think it should be implemented through the states, however. It should not have to be passed as a constitutional amendment," Sanders said.

Touching on other issues being tied with the campaign, Sanders voiced opposition to mass busing of school children. He hinted the Nixon administration was lacking in its efforts to solve the problem, and noted that closer studies of each individual community situation by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, as well as the Justice Department, would aid the busing controversy greatly.

Sanders also expressed interest in the results of U.S. Rep. George Mahon's study of the possibility of bringing Mississippi River to the South Plains area in the future.

Sanders offered some additional thoughts about the present senate campaign. "I expect a big vote. The 18-year-old vote and the new voter registration system should lead to a good turnout for the primary," Sanders said.

New Administration policy denies circle to Little 500

By GARRY MANGUM
Special Reporter

There will be no Little 500 Bicycle Race this year as things currently stand.

Administration officials are asking Chi Rho fraternity, the sponsors of the 15th annual race, to select another location for the event, traditionally held in Memorial Circle and the Engineering Key.

Dr. Owen L. Caskey, associate vice president for academic and student services, said the race was against a new Board of Regents policy, approved October 8, 1971. "It was not my decision, it is just against the new board policy," he said.

Caskey said there had been two requests for bike races and one request for a carnival in the last month. "None of these were approved because of the new policy."

The board policy regarding the use of space and facilities on campus for events says persons using any area must not block or obstruct the free passage of pedestrians or vehicular traffic.

"When we began to seek permission to use Memorial Circle for the race, we got a run-around from some administrators, because they said it was not their decision," Philip Frazee, Chi Rho member, said.

The fraternity sent a representative to Dr. William H. Duvall, assistant dean for programs, to secure the permission for the use of Memorial Circle.

Duvall in turn sent Chi Rho to Fred Wehmeyer, associate vice president for administrative services. Wehmeyer told the group this was not in his area and he could not make a decision.

"We went to Caskey, but he would not offer a decision either," Frazee said. Frazee said Caskey felt the race would cause problems with the traffic-pedestrian tie up.

The group then approached Student Association President Bill Scott. He took them to discuss the matter with Dr. Grover Murray, president, and Dr. Glenn Barnett, executive vice president.

"Murray said the decision was Caskey's, but it was against the board's policy to allow the event," Frazee said.

"Since we had already talked with Caskey once, we decided not to see him again since he would obviously say no," Frazee said.

Dr. S.M. Kennedy, vice president for academic affairs, said the Administration was not trying to stop the race. "We only want them to pick a more suitable place than Memorial Circle," he said.

The group has considered other areas, such as the Administration suggested. Areas under consideration were the Museum parking lot, the east stadium parking lot, the Municipal Auditorium-Coliseum parking lot and Tech Terrace park on Flint Ave.

"The Administration strongly suggested the use of the Coliseum lot," Kevin Moran, Chi Rho member in charge of the race, said. "We checked with the Municipal Auditorium and Coliseum Manager's office and the auditorium and coliseum are both in use on April 8, the scheduled day of the race," Moran said. He said they were also told the coliseum and auditorium were booked for the rest of the semester.

"We looked at the other areas under consideration, but found the Museum and stadium lots too small, and we can't block off city streets to use Tech Terrace," Moran said.

"The race has been approximately 10 miles or 24 laps around the Circle and Key," Frazee said.

Frazee said the Administration hinted around last year at not letting them use Memorial Circle for the race. "Nothing was ever said about it and we had the race," he said.

Caskey said the race caused several problems in regards to the security and safety of the campus. "The people taking part in the race like to practice before the event and this always causes a certain amount of confusion," he said. He said the actual race caused even more problems because the campus had to be blocked off.

Frazee said they had an emergency plan prepared for the race, in the event an ambulance, fire truck or other vehicle needed to get on campus.

"We have someone stationed at each barrier," he said. "They will throw back the barriers and let the emergency traffic on campus." He said at the same time a red flag would signal the racers to stop and get off the course.

"We have used this plan in the past and it has always worked," Frazee said. "Chief Bill Daniels of University Police told us he saw no hazards in having the race on campus," he said.

When contacted Monday, Daniels said he could not offer a comment on the race. "Since the Administration has already said they will not allow the group to use the Circle for the race, I can't say anything," he said.

Chi Rho felt this final decision was unfair since the campus is blocked off for the Carol of Lights and the President's Retreat each year. Caskey said the time limit was not specified in the board's ruling.

"The Carol of Lights takes about one hour and the Retreat only 30 minutes," Caskey said. He said Chi Rho had requested the Circle for about six hours, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Caskey said he could have made a recommendation to the board to allow the race, but he could not recommend it. "I don't think I could with a clear conscience make a recommendation on this matter."

Chi Rho has appealed the matter to Caskey, Kennedy and Murray.

"We are now trying to get every interested organization president to sign a petition in the SA office," Frazee said. "We think maybe the board will listen to these campus leaders and maybe with over one-half the campus represented we can have a little more pull."

Frazee said this was a last resort in the situation. "If student's opinions can't change the Administration's mind, nothing can."

The Little 500, long a Tech tradition won't appear in its traditional form this year due to an Administration ruling on use of campus streets. Organizers of the annual race have appealed the decision to members of the Administration and are now trying to organize student support to hold the race in Memorial Circle.

Efforts to sell beer in the Houston campus University Center drowned with a county court judge's decision last week not to grant the UH request for liquor license.

County Judge Bill Elliot denied the license to ARA-Slater Catering Co., which provides the food service to the student center. The judge ruled that Texas law does not permit the sale of alcoholic beverages with 300 feet of a public school.

However, Larry Wayne, UH legal counselor, said Texas law states that a county judge may permit the sale of liquor within the 300-foot limit.

The WTSU student newspaper has come up with a unique variation on gauging campus opinion on a variety of subjects—the random sample survey of bumper stickers.

The most numerous display was of the various forms of WTSU stickers with sorority and fraternity decals running second. The American flag was a popular item on many of the hundreds of cars surveyed on the campus parking lots.

According to the survey, peace symbols are out this year and smile faces are the fad by a five-to-one ration. Dallas Cowboys are THE team at WT with the Vancouver Canucks getting one vote.

Dolph Briscoe has a two-to-one advantage over Ben Barnes in the Texas governor's race; Palo Duro Canyon and Six Flags are the favorite tourist spots and WT is full of Bud men.

Student elections were completed last week on the UT campus and protests were the first order of business upon their completion and the winners announced.

Complaints were filed with UT's Election Commission by the losing presidential candidate members of The Blacks and the Mexican-American Youth Organization (MAYO). The complaints called for a new election and invalidation of last week's election because of an allegedly biased election story in the campus newspaper, The Daily Texan.

The paper's account included statements made by the presidential candidates during a debate the night before elections and reported references made to the endorsement of candidates by minority groups. The losing presidential candidate labeled references to minority "demands" made of him in return for their endorsement "blatant lies," and stated that no such demands made or agreed to and that no "deals" were made.

One other objection the candidate had for the story was the fact that The Daily Texan article mentioned the fact that he was a Greek (Phi Kappa Psi).

"It is general knowledge," he said, "that Greek affiliation is not a political asset on this campus."

The Election Commission threw out the complaints and certified the elections.

Letters respond to runoff election candidates

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Yesterday the UD announced that it would open the editorial page today to any letters of response or support from runoff candidates and those candidates that ran in last week's executive election. The following are the letters that we did receive. No letters of endorsement will be accepted or run in Wednesday's paper, the day of elections.)

The president's race is one of great concern to Tech students. Both Greg and Polly are two qualified candidates for the office. I feel that in my position in student government that Greg Wimmer would be most able to carry out the programs for the benefit of all students as president of the Student Association.

Bob Craig

I would like to urge all my supporters in last week's election to vote for Miss Polly Kinnibrugh in the runoffs this Wednesday. It is my belief that Miss Kinnibrugh is the best candidate for the job. She has proven herself through her past work. If there are any changes that can be brought to the Tech campus, under Miss Kinnibrugh's leadership, it can be done.

Onnie Kirk

I am grateful to all students who helped me during my campaign for the presidency of the Student Association. I am apologetic for not doing more myself, but apologies and thank you's are a thing of the past; we must select a president for tomorrow.

I firmly believed that many students on this campus were in support of my candidacy because they realized that there are more important issues facing today's student than simply the superficial personality clashes that presently constitute the Student Senate's agenda. We students must elect a president who will liberate this student body from trivialities and dedicate it to progressive and worthwhile programs. We must make our representative responsive, or they will continue to make a farce of their leadership and will continue to misuse and squander your money.

This Wednesday you will be asked to vote again for a student body president. Don't be fooled and elect a non-leader; be smart and elect Polly Kinnibrugh. With her as your president, you (the student) will be recognized and your interest protected.

Rick Merritt

I want to thank the 25 per cent of the student body who showed their responsibility to themselves and to their immediate community by voting in the executive student government election. I also want to express my sincere appreciation to the people who offered their assistance in my campaign for Student Association president.

Last week's executive election was in reality what one may consider as a primary for all but one of the executive positions. This is indicative of a healthy student government system in that a relatively large number of students showed their genuine interest in our student community by running for a position in which they may be of benefit to that community. The small per cent of voter turnout, however, was not indicative of such a student government.

Now, in the case of SA president, there remain two qualified and competent students between whom the voter must choose. The University Daily has been consistent in its endorsement of Greg Wimmer for this position. However, the rationalization and ethics are not clear as to how the UD, a student financed publication, may justify its endorsement of any student government candidate.

The UD endorsed one of the candidates because of his past experiences with the student government. But one should look at the past performance of our student government which has been largely trivial to the expectations of the majority of students.

This triviality is the cause for student apathy and lack of interest in our student government. Unfortunately, the triviality of our past student government and the small turnout at the polls run in a circle.

Polly Kinnibrugh has also had past experience with the student government and is well qualified for the office. So it seems that the criteria for choosing between these two candidates is their attitude toward and sensitivity to our student community as a whole. During my association with the two candidates, I can objectively say that Polly Kinnibrugh is best qualified in this area.

But again, the only way to change our student government from its triviality is to make its leaders responsible to the majority of students. And this can be done only if the majority of students vote.

Ben Florey

In the past few weeks many accusations and changes have been brought against the Student Senate, stating that it does not represent the interest of the students. But as every country deserves the government it has, so does this university.

Many students have been quick to bring criticism against the Student Senate, and in many cases the criticism has been justified. But how many of these students vote when they have the opportunity? In last week's election only 4,586 students voted. If this school is ever to have a representative student government it is time for all students to act.

Consider the candidates and decide who to support. Then take a few minutes of your time tomorrow to vote. Only in this way will student government improve.

I strongly urge all students to vote for the candidates of their choice. Vote!

William Ramirez

Going into this next session of the Student Association Senate, I strongly feel that we should not spend our time worrying about what has happened in the past session, but to start fresh with the new Senate to work for the best advantage of the student.

My qualifications include Engineering Senator, Allocations Committee, Engineering Council, steering committee of the Architecture Student Council and chairman of the University Week Committee. I don't feel that senate experience is a qualification for leading it; but I have gained the leadership experience I need in work outside the senate itself by leading committee work.

I believe with this experience that, I will be able to get the ball rolling right by making the best committee appointments and leading good committee work which will carry its work atmosphere into the Senate chambers to benefit you.

—Jim Nader

I feel that the Business Manager must serve as a representative of the students in the financial matters of the Student Association. He must maintain an accurate set of financial records which would be open to all students.

I would also work closely with Bob Craig, the new External Vice President, to improve and expand the CAP program, to implement the Co-op and Legal Aid Program, and to assist him in his other proposed projects.

I think that the office of business manager requires a person who has had experience in student government. I have had this experience and can effectively fulfill the responsibilities of this office.

Qualifications: Student Senate—member of the Allocations Committee; Freshman Council—freshman representative to the Allocations Committee; Weymouth Hall Council; banking & finance major.

Joe Cotten

I am running for the office of internal vice president because I feel that my qualifications are indicative of my potential. According to the SA Constitution my duties would be to preside over the Student Senate of Texas Tech. This duty requires experience and maturity—this I feel I have attained through my two years as a student senator.

Decorum, respect and responsibility for and by your elected representatives is my goal; progress and consideration to others is my utmost concern. The Student Association this year has done much to further the cause of students, however, much remains to be done if we are to truly become the viable, concerned body that the students demand.

To these ends I devote my efforts, and in so doing ask for your support as well.

Freddie J. Williams

May I express my appreciation to the UD for at least acknowledging the fact that there is another candidate for president of the Student Association other than Mr. Wimmer.

I ask you the students to consider more than a UD editorial in making your choice for the executive positions. Is it the right or the responsibility of a campus newspaper which is not privately financed, but instead receives its funds from all students of this university, to express preferences for any office?

I firmly believe the answer to this question is no. The responsibility of a campus newspaper should be to approach the elections objectively and unbiased, presenting each candidate's platform and ideas in order that the student may then make the decision to support a candidate of his own choice. In the future I sincerely hope that the UD will reconsider this policy and that students who are concerned will voice this concern to the staff of the UD.

I appreciate very much the confidence expressed in my abilities by those students who voted for me in the first election. I ask for your continued support in the runoff on Wednesday. I want very much to serve the students of this university as your president.

Polly Kinnibrugh

This coming year is going to be the most important year in the history of the student Association. It could also be the most progressive and prosperous or it could be the worst.

The Student Association is on the verge of greatness. It is now in a position that it can provide needs and services never before possible. The only factors that can keep the Student Association from accomplishing those things that it should are the basic petty squabbles and personality conflicts that have arisen over this past year. Many of these fights are still with us.

I am running for President of the Student Association because I feel that I best fit the qualities and qualifications that the office requires. I also feel that I can contribute to building the integrity and the worthiness of the Student Association up to a level where it should be. One of my main duties as your student leader would be to rid the Student Association and the Senate of many of the petty squabbles that many members seem to want to perpetuate.

I feel that the office I am seeking entails a great deal more now than it ever has before. The duties will increase much more before they ever become less. It is going to take a person who has the ability to communicate with all segments of the campus including the Administration, Athletic Department, the Office of Student Life, housing officials, etc. I feel that through my past experience I can draw from former contacts to be able to work with these different areas.

One last comment, I feel, as I am sure many others do, that many times the Student Association and the Senate become too involved within themselves. One program I would like to see is a student government self-study program to evaluate the Student Association. It would be manned by people wholly disassociated from student government. I feel this way we can get an unbiased opinion of student government on our campus.

I feel I can do the job and I feel I am qualified. I would appreciate your consideration when you vote Wednesday. Thank you.

Greg Wimmer

Lip from the Library

It is amazing how teachers, librarians, and students associate a particular index service with a specific subject. For example, people needing periodical articles in the area of education use basically the Education Index or if they need articles in psychology, the use Psychological Abstracts. For this reason many of the lesser known but valuable indexes get overlooked.

One such index is Selected Rand Abstracts published by the Rand Corporation which is an independent organization engaged in scientific research for agencies of the United States Government and local and state governments. The Abstracts, which are summaries of the Rand reports, memoranda, and papers, are a complete guide to the unclassified publications of the corporation. The subject index to the abstracts covers such topics as aerospace industry, airports, drugs, Middle East, urban problems and many others. For persons wanting to read the entire Rand report, the Tech Library which has been a depository for the Rand reports since 1969, has them shelved in the Reserve Room and arranged by abstract number. The patron must use the index in the basement of the library and get the abstract number before going to the Reserve Room for the report.

Another valuable index is published by the Council of Planning Librarians which is an association engaged in research for various aspects of city and town planning. Periodically they publish bibliographies which cover such subjects as administration, aerial photography, citizen participation, disaster relief planning, hospitals, recreation, and zoning. These bibliographies are shelved in the Reference Department in the basement of the library.

I suppose I should attempt to defend my column and my point of view after the mild assault both of us suffered at the hands of Cliff Burnett in last Friday's paper. First, yes I did notice "Voodoo Chile", Hendrix's trademark, but unfortunately the final 2 paragraphs were cut at the press. And the effect is somewhat weird when you end a column in mid-thought...

As far as music is concerned, I really don't like to place people in slots and say this cat's number one or he's the best, since all this implies a sense of competitiveness which often doesn't really exist, and shouldn't, especially in music. But, Cliff, anyone who cannot see Hendrix as the finest guitar player around, has simply not listened to him and his music, and this applies to you apparently. People like this are those who still get off on "bands" like Chicago, Grand Funk, and think that "American Pie" is the finest song around. These people just are not listening because they obviously have become hung up in the total hype surrounding groups and songs such as these. For example, Grand Funk has been MOULDED into what they are by a man named Terry Knight for the purpose of maximum monetary gain. They have become a media hype, and nothing else. And if you don't agree with this, what do you think of the block-long sign they had erected in New York — or did you know about it? It is unfortunate that most people, particularly in this area, still cannot transcend the way the media has seemingly total control over their minds.

Now, Johnny Winter was a good guitarist, and I guess we should all stand behind our good ol' Texas boys, but Hendrix did it all first, Cliff. His lessons came, not from Winter, but from old black blues masters of whom most people have never heard, much less listened to. He never really mentioned any names (besides Albert King). But tell me, were you listening to Freddie King before Leon Russell put him on his Shelter Records? Or, how long were you listening to B. B. King, King of the Blues, before he appeared on the tube? Answer truthfully now.

In rock, you have to work past the hype in order to get to the good parts. It acts sort of like a shield for people who use music as background noise — no demands are made upon them. But once you get to the point where you are able to work past the constant hype, then one day you'll hear the real artists, those who don't appear on AM radio, because they are beyond the comprehension of the mass audience. And you will really be amazed at what you had been missing all this time. And you'll wonder how anyone could possibly ever get off to the popularity puberty rock of nonsense like Three Dog Night and Chicago, — the two most popular groups in Lubbock.

Mass audiences are not where it's at. You've got to listen to the music on your own and make your own decisions. As Frank Zappa ("who's he?") once said — PEOPLE ARE STUPID. Try to find out for yourself what is going on. If you do, you'll dig it.

Hendrix did play the blues, man. But he had this image of a sexy Black playing guitar with his teeth and then burninghph — and he couldn't escape this. This is what killed him. In a concert I attended in Houston a couple years ago, he began playing his best and most well-known slow blues number — "Machine Gun" — and the AM radio-oriented audience went to sleep. It was really a fine piece, man, but the audience couldn't get into it. So he suddenly swung into "Foxy Lady" and they all woke up and cheered, because they had heard that one a couple times, and it was more into what they felt was his style. This is something all artists have to put up with if they intend to "make a living" off their art. The audiences, for the most part, don't really have any idea about what's really going on, since all they can see is the image, rather than the person. What it finally comes down to, is that so much of Hendrix is beyond the comprehension of the rock audience as a mass. And when someone like myself who has sat down and spent some time with him and his music, and as a consequence, calls him the greatest guitar man alive, I get all this negative feedback from people who haven't listened at all, apparently. But...this is just something we music lovers have to put up with, since, again, the audience usually doesn't know that of which they speak. And I feel sorry for them (and you) because they haven't yet experienced the ecstasy.

NANCY MASON

As A&S Senator I would work for a variety of improvements for Texas Tech University. One of these would be to elect a student to the Board of Regents who would have equal voting privileges with the other members...

Students should be allowed to evaluate and choose their faculty by means of polls taken by a Faculty Evaluations Committee. This program is already being used effectively in the Honors program...

The Free University has been a success and should be continued. If more publicity were given to the Free University, a greater number of people would realize its value.

JAMES MCEWEN

In attending the last 14 meetings of the Senate I have realized the Senate may not be the best but is the only bridge the Students have to reach the Administration with wants, needs, and grievances. With this understanding the Senate should take a more objective relationship with the Administration...

On the other hand the Senate has been hampered in their implementation of programs by outside factions which sometimes disregard Student's interest. It is time to face these factions with determination and the fact that the Student is number one...

SHANNON McWILLIAMS

The major issues facing this up-coming Senate session are: Athletic seating, Health Center prescription fee, Legal Aid program, Intramural improvement and the current mandatory living in dorms.

The Intramural facilities are the areas of greatest need, and I feel that these facilities could be helped by cooperation and work of the Senate.

More research should be conducted on the prescription fee that we now have to pay.

The Senate should try to work closer with the Administration on a faculty-student basis.

I feel that I am well qualified for the Senate position because I have been involved in campus government during the last two semesters as Freshman Council President and by working close with the Senate.

RANDY ROUSE

Usually, this space is set aside for the candidates to state platforms of how they will immediately upon election handle the problems of legal aid, athletic seating, pavement of parking lots and so on. Handling problems and implementing new programs takes time. All I can promise is the effort to take the necessary time to handle these problems...

I would like to share with you a quote which means a great deal to me and which

I think is relative to the need for a new breed of senators. "an organization is renewed from the bottom not the top; that the genius which springs from the ranks of the unknown man is the genius which renews the youth and energy of the people" Let's renew our youth and energy. Let's get a new senate.

CHARLES SIMPSON

The existing senate is in a continual state of havoc. In this state, objectives are not as easily obtained and utilized as they could be, should the senate become a more cooperative body. I hope to bring the stabilization of the senate needs.

If elected A&S senator, I would support allocations to student organizations, specifically the Music department, ROTC, and Rodeo Association.

support the student position in regards to the ticket lottery rather than the athletic department.

support legal aid to students.

work for a student position on the board of regents.

support the student bill of rights.

work to insure the allocation of student funds for the purpose and amount originally designated to the students.

MIKE THOMAS

1. Work for and insure fair student treatment with respect to the ticket lottery.

2. legal aid.

3. Work for better promotion of CAP.

4. Improve senatorial aides, involving more people.

5. Help promote the A&S Council.

6. Upgrade intramural facilities.

7. Work for a more stable and responsible Student Association.

Although some of these won't be feasible this year I hope to begin initiating these programs.

MIKE WARDEN

Having served on the Senate this past semester, and working on the University Daily my past three years at Tech have given me the experience and insight into many problems facing each of us as students. I intend to watch out for students' interests in such areas as:

1) University Center expansion - the controversy is far from over.

2) A student regent - with work, it is feasible in a year.

3) Students' rights - right now a piece of paper, I want to enforce them.

4) Liquor in the UC - I co-authored a bill to make this possible.

5) Apartment Commission - with Legal Aid Program, the commission has teeth.

I not only SAY I will do these things, I will DO them. I have fought for them in the past, both in the UD and on the Senate floor. I want to fight for them in the future - as your representative.

PETE YBARRA

My motives for running lie in the improvements of more maturity, seriousness, and responsiveness of the student senate toward the student body. Issues, and proposals brought before them. Petty politics and senate bickering have held up too many issues already. I favor a student-run lottery system providing fair means of seating allocating and assuring students an equal choice of obtaining good seats.

Regulations concerning hours and disciplinary measures for women living in dorms should be reduced to reflect the maturity and responsibility of young people. Being restricted to campus residence, punished for infractions, and treated like children denies these students their rights and dignity. We need more responsiveness and support for the legal aid, co-op bookstore, and gas station programs, and the need for increased student representation and a stronger voice on campus affairs.

GARY BAILEY

As a candidate for Senator, it is my belief that the outgoing senate had become so involved in petty politics, and individual power seeking, that it had become blind to real issues, and unresponsive to the desires of the student body. If elected I would make every effort to open doors for better communication between the senate and the student body, and would push for a more responsible handling of monetary funds and a better upholding of the constitution.

Increased funds should be allocated to the tutorial program in order that it may become a more effective and beneficial operation. There should also be an investigation into the possibility of instituting a grading system which would allow grades of A-, B+, C+, and D+ to be given. This program would be beneficial in the fact that it would allow an additional 5 grade points to be considered in a student's G.P.A.

A concentrated effort should be directed toward a system of Self-Determined Hours with parental consent for entering Freshman women and in order to give the Freshmen better representation in student government, Freshman Council members should be appointed to serve on each of the standing committees of the Student Senate.

MIKE BEDWELL

I believe that a new student senate that earns the support of the student body can be effective. I am interested in working for: 1) Analysis and evaluation of required courses, 2) Effective academic recruitment, 3) Student interest in fine arts, 4) Student senate newsletter.

As a senate aide I believe I understand the responsibility a senator has in representing his constituency. I will assess each issue, weigh both sides, and vote to satisfy the real needs of the student body.

SHAD BROOKS

If elected Arts & Sciences Senator I will work for the following issues: 1. Support a stronger College Allowance Program, 2. More student involvement in campus affairs, 3. Improvement of the Arts & Sciences Council, 4. Stronger Book Exchange Program, 5. Work for Legal Funding.

QUALIFICATIONS: President of the Freshman Class, Senate Advisory Council, University Center Committee, Freshman Council Advisor.

VAL BROWN

I would like to be elected to the Student Association because I want to help work toward more student involvement and a more effective Student Association.

If elected, I will support the Book Exchange, the Legal Aid Program, Better Student-Faculty-Administration Communications, Teacher Evaluation, and an

A&S Student-Faculty teacher selection board. Qualifications: Senate Advisory Council, University Center Committee, Free University, Athletic Recruiting.

QUIN BUENGER

One of the factors that has caused the students' resentment or even apathy of the Senate is a lack of communication. Most students are not aware of Senate bills or allocations. To help prevent this situation, a monthly report of Senate spending should be printed in the U.D. More publicity should be given to Senate programs such as the legal aid and the book exchange.

There are many improvements the Senate should make on the campus. Several bills have been introduced and passed to investigate and improve the dormitory food, but they have never been carried through. Since this seems to be a main concern of many students, I would like to see immediate improvements. The E.A. parking lot needs to be paved, and the facilities in the art building should be improved.

Students should be allowed to select their teachers at registration. Classes could be made more beneficial to the student if he could select the teacher with whom he might best identify. All students should be given the chance to evaluate their teachers at the end of each semester.

TOM CARR

Texas Tech can have the greatest Student Government in the southwest, but the Student Association presently needs more, honest, and hardworking Senators. I have the time plus the initiative to help get things done. The Student Association last term did not fulfill its obligations to the majority of the students.

It is necessary for new Senators to pass bills that will assist the minorities as well as larger groups. I also feel dorm students, who make up 40 percent of the student body, need legislation passed to benefit them.

GARY CARSON

Any government that is going to be effective must be one that involves students and their desires instead of status seekers and their personalities. The Student Senate should be working for the improvement of the University, and drastic improvements are needed in many areas at Tech.

This University needs less restrictive housing and a more diversified academic program, as well as changes in administrative policies and faculty qualifications. Also, the rights of students must be respected if a healthy and productive environment is to be attained.

However, promising improvements means nothing, and I have mentioned things that have been mentioned before. If I am truly sincere, I will work for the betterment of students at Tech. If I'm not, I won't. Vote for me and let me prove my sincerity.

MIKE FIELD

It has been my personal experience to find that many students look upon the student senate as a detached body which functions independently of the feelings of the students. It has also been my experience to find that a good many students consider it futile to become involved in student government activity because they feel that such involvement will avail them nothing. It has become apparent to me that we are faced with a two-fold problem. First of all, the student's view of the senate as a detached body defeats the very purpose for which the senate was created, that being to make the student's voice heard. The second problem is a result of the first, that being student apathy. If apathy is permitted to grow, then nothing can be accomplished.

It is the premise of my platform to increase communication between the student and his senator. If I am elected, I shall do my utmost to avail myself to you, the students. It shall be my purpose to bring about a better understanding between the student and the senate and thereby encourage the student to involve himself in a system designed to serve him. As students, we have the right to be heard as rational human beings, the right to be heard as rational human beings, rather than herded. It is on this basis that I seek election to the student senate.

BUBBA HARRISON

The student senate needs to concern itself with the needs of the people they represent, the students. Programs such as the student on the board of regents, expansion of the free university, the legal program, abolishment of P. E. requirements, and others of the sort, are what the students are interested in, and should get.

The student senate has been given a bad name through the petty politicking that goes on there. Texas Tech should not be a proving ground for such practices. So many other universities have killed themselves through a weak and politicking student senate. A strong student senate makes for a strong university, and I feel I am most qualified to do the job.

LARRY HIGHTOWER

For three years, I have been watching the Student Senate and its means of achieving the proposed programs and innovations. It is my belief that the Senate has been stymied in the past by a lack of properly qualified administrators. The recruitment of new senate and committee personnel will provide the students of this institution with a responsible and legitimate governing body. By bringing new faces and responsive representatives, the student senate would respond to the following needs of this university: 1. Legal aid program, 2. Legitimate athletic seating, 3. Strong Academic Recruiting, 4. Better Business Bureau coordinated by the students with advice of the Resident attorney.

In conclusion, it is my belief that only the senate as a body can respond to the needs of the student. Therefore, it will be my personal goal to serve the student by serving as a pluralist senator.

STEVE HODGES

There is a need in the Student Senate for more student-oriented representation. Senators should make a sincere effort to ascertain and then act upon the desires of their constituents. Senators should be able to work with one another, with their constituents, and with the Administration toward workable and equitable solutions to student problems. As a Senator, I will make frequent and sincere efforts to gauge the desires of my constituents. I will then take any necessary action within my power to see that these desires are realized. I have consistently attended Senate meetings; I know many of the individuals involved and I feel that I can work effectively with them.

I feel that I can present a voice of reason, responsibility and determination to the Administration. I respectfully ask for your vote. I will be receptive, responsible and effective in your service. On March 15, cast your vote for Steve Hodges. Thank you.

S. PAT KENNEDY

1) I am tired of the "Mickey Mouse" crap that has been going on in the Senate. I am going to try and make the Senate a legislative body deciding the student policies rather than a circus.

2) I will be more representative in my Senate Seat. I will hold meetings for all the students to attend and for them to express their thoughts and ideas to me. Then bring these thoughts and ideas into the Senate in the form of legislation. In other words more efficient Student representation from me.

3) More cooperation and effective use of the delegated power in dealing with "the Administration."

4) Work for more Student expression and representation in Administration decisions.

5) Obtain a better athletic seating system.

JAMES L. LITTLETON

For too long the Tech Student Senate has represented only a minority of the Tech student body. To this end they have been given charge over appropriations and this responsibility has been misused to such great extent that even an appropriation such as the ROTC drill meet can be overlooked in the midst of the great deliberations of the day. It is time to put an end to such legislation as the "Dirty Duck" and "Clean Up the Student Association Office" bills and to get down to representing the whole of the student body.

The Tech Student Senate is not the place for deliberation of the great moral issues of our day, but a place where with greatest care the student may best be represented.

It is time for the members of the Student Senate to come off their thrones and represent the whole of the student body in a rational, mature manner. not in the childish displays of personality which have been so abundant in the past year, and it is to this goal that I pledge my candidacy.

CANDY C. HALL

In the year that I've been your Senator, I've worked hard on the Voter Registration Conference, the University Self-Study Steering Committee (mainly trying to get student participation accepted throughout our educational network, and on the Senate Allocation Committee. As a Freshman Council advisor, I've encouraged these future campus leaders to be aware of their constituents and responsive to them.

to seek out the truth and gather enough facts to back it up before they take a stand on an issue, and to learn legislative form and procedure so that they can be independent of interest group representatives in student government. I've supported programs that would benefit the most students, especially in my school, A&S, such as a free legal counselling program, free university, the book exchange, and the other few good programs from this last year.

This next year I want to help set up a workable legal service, build and improve our recreational facilities, and continue work on earlier programs proven to be beneficial to us. Most of all, I pledge myself to listen and act on what you, my constituents, want. I ask you to place your trust in me and vote for me.

DENISE WESTBROOK

My platform is based around two basic areas: Better Communications and Student Life.

Better Communications: Enforcement of Senate Bills with monthly reports made to students, Bi-annual report of allocations to students, Set up a complaint Board of SA members for the benefit of the students, Each senator responsible to 2 or 3 organizations on campus.

Student Life: Better facilities for Advertising Art Students, the elimination of freshman hours for women, the continuation of the Book Exchange, and an expanded Free University.

Qualifications: Officer on Freshman Council, Past member of President's Cabinet, A&S Senator, Chairman SA Leadership Retreat-2 years, Chairman of Dad's Day, Committee for Free University-2 semesters, and Academics Committee-SA-2 semesters

Greeks honor English dean

Dr. James G. Allen, dean of the English department, was honored at the Sigma Nu open house Sunday at their recently acquired lodge at 2012 Broadway.

He was presented a plaque by the Interfraternity Council and the Panhellenic Association in gratitude for his efforts while dean of Student Life in 1953 for bringing Greek letter social organizations on campus. Presenting the plaque was Larry Adams, president of Interfraternity Council.

Boyle gives party advice

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Do you want to play a new game? It will help chuckle up a dull party. It's called the cliché game. All you need is a knowledge of trite and hackneyed English words and phrases—which practically all of us have, since they seem to make up a major portion of our daily language.

The game is easy and almost any number can play. First, you fill a pitcher with Martinis or molasses and pour a drink into every player's cup. The game usually goes faster if you use Martinis rather than molasses. Everybody now stretches out on the floor. Then one player asks a question, a question which any other player must answer by turning it into a recognizable cliché.

Here are a couple of examples:
Q. What kind of instrument did the mugger strike his victim with?
A. A blunt instrument.

Q. What kind of a bystander saw the crime committed?
A. An innocent bystander.

Simple game, isn't it? But if the Martini pitcher doesn't run dry, the game can last forever. Certainly the supply of clichés won't run out.

Here are a few more examples just to get everyone into the precedent was set at Tech under the guidance of Dr. Allen when the local social clubs chose which sororities or fraternities they wished to affiliate with rather than allowing the national Greek officers to decide which organizations would be put on campus.

Dr. Allen, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, upon accepting the plaque, said, "Greek organizations have a contribution to make to Texas Tech, helping it become as great as possible."

spirit of the party:
Q. What did the mayor point to his record with?
A. He pointed to it with pride.

Q. What did he view the tactics of his opponents with?
A. He viewed them with alarm.

Q. What was it the critic couldn't do with the book that delighted him so?
A. He couldn't put it down.

Q. How would you describe a 45-year-old bookkeeper who ran off with his neighbor's wife?
A. As a gay Lothario or a middle-aged Romeo.

Q. And what about her?
A. She was socially prominent.

Q. How were they linked?
A. They were linked romantically.

Q. What has the political poet been doing again?
A. It is boiling or bubbling again.

Q. What kind of story does a poor boy have who becomes a millionaire?
A. A Horatio Alger-like story, or a rags-to-riches story.

What kind of bore would really enjoy playing this game?
A. A crashing bore.

On the other hand—if you're good at it—you'll be the life of the party, become a legend in your own time, and have more fun than a barrel of monkeys.

Segrist impressed with Tech's road trip

By LES MOORHEAD
Ass't Sport Editor

Coach Kal Segrist said Monday he was real pleased with the performance of the Raider baseball team over the trip to the hot and barren footlands of Arizona and El Paso and added that the next two weeks of work will play an important role in the way Tech will perform in conference.

Segrist said, "For this time of year, we played as well as we could have. I was impressed with the outstanding effort of the team on the whole trip, despite some things we did that hurt us. This trip let us see the things we need to work on for the rest of the season."

Tech had a 7-7 road finish, dropping five to Arizona and two games to University of Texas at El Paso in its longest trip of history. The Raiders' record is 9-7 and open at home Friday against New Mexico Highlands at 1 p.m. in the first of two doubleheaders scheduled.

Segrist said, "We got real good effort from everybody. We had 90 degree weather everyday and the crowds were good."

"They came through the trip mentally confident. Arizona had a good ballclub, there was no doubt about that, and they played them real tough. Our pitching worked out real well despite the fact we didn't have a lot of help.

"I saw some things we need to work on this week. Our outfielders weren't playing the fences as well as they could. We got some people picked off base that hurt us. It was these mental mistakes that hurt us, and that's why we make this type trip."

It was the first time Tech had seen Arizona, Segrist explained, and it wasn't until the second day that Tech knew how to pitch to the Wildcats.

Arizona took five of six games, losing only the first contest, 5-2, to Raider hurler Bick Bickley.

"Defensively, we played real well. I think Steve Morris has established himself in right field now and Robin Kilmer had a good trip at third base, so I think we worked those two positions," Segrist said.

"After a trip like this, it matters on how we do from here on. We have to gear up and play Highlands, and then we'll know how we'll do in the conference."

Aggies add females to baseball program

COLLEGE STATION, — Texas A&M reached a milestone in its athletic history Monday, and Texas A&M baseball coach Tom Chandler hopes the new feature will put some zing into his team's bats.

The Aggies hosted St. Mary's in a doubleheader. And Monday also marked the debut of the "Diamond Darlings," nine lovely A&M co-eds who will act as batgirls. As far as is known, this is the first time in A&M history that girls have been associated as an official part of an athletic team.

Duties of the batgirls will include handling the bats for home and visiting teams, shagging foul balls for the umpire and making player introductions over the public address system.

Chandler hopes the appearance of the girls will inspire the team to improve their .242 team batting average. The Aggies have won four and lost four thus far in the young season, but the four losses were by a total of six runs, two in extra innings.

The pitching and defense has been the only bright spots. The hurlers have allowed only 22 runs and 41 hits in eight games for an opponent batting average of .189. Three of the infielders—shortstop Carroll Lilly, second baseman Jimmy Langford and first baseman Butch Ghutzman—have not made an error in 141 chances.

Centerfielder R. J. Englert is the only regular batting over .300 with a .370 average. Englert also leads the team in runs batted in with eight and total bases with 17.

The Aggies host Lamar University Tuesday, and begin Southwest Conference play Friday and Saturday against TCU in College Station.

Raiders sign speedy juco back

George Smith, a fleet 6-0, 180-pound running back from East Los Angeles Junior College, has signed to play for the Tech Red Raiders, Coach Jim Carlen announced Monday.

Named to the Junior College All-America team, Smith runs the 40 in 4.5 seconds. He piled up 880 yards rushing in 1971, averaging 6.07 yards per carry and scoring 11 touchdowns. Smith also caught 13 passes for 168 yards and a 12.92 average.

He returned two punts for touchdowns and led his team in scoring with 78 points.

Smith led the Southern California Junior College Conference in rushing and was named to the All-Conference first team offensive unit. He also was named to the California Junior College All-State team and was selected as the most valuable player at his school.

The latest Tech recruit received offers from numerous major schools including USC, UCLA, Stanford, Oregon State and Washington State.

Smith is the third junior college player signed by the Red Raiders. The others are Charlie Beery, a 6-2, 195-pound All-American linebacker from Mesa, Colorado Junior College and Steve Owens, a 6-1, 180-pound offensive end from New Mexico Military.
