3 races go into runoffs 9 candidates still in running

By BETSY JARMON
Special Reporter

At UD deadline Wednesday night members of the student senate government operations and relations committee were still counting ballots cast in the Student Association (SA) executive officer election.

Candidates who were observing the ballot count reported the vote total were close, and run-offs may be necessary.

"Three candidates were chosen at random to watch the ballots being counted, to insure fairness," said SA president Bill Scott. At press time Scott said Bob Craig was leading the race for external affairs vice president and that it "looks like a run off between Wimmer and Kinnibrugh" for the presidential race.

Races for internal vice president and business manager were still too close to make any predictions.

"It looks like all seven of them (candidates for business manager and internal vice president) are still in the race," Scott said.

Supreme Court pushes Smith into special session

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court dashed Gov. Preston Smith's hopes Wednesday of avoiding a special legislative session before the May 6 primaries.

In a 12-page opinion, the court ruled that tax dollars cannot be spent on primary elections without prior legislative approval. Secretary of State Bob Bullock, the governor's chief political lieutenant, sought to avoid a special session by paying primary costs through his office at his own initiative.

But the high court ruled Wednesday he had no such authority.

"We cannot find anything in the statute (the Texas Election Code) writing such a blank check to the Secretary of State," associate justice Tom Reavley—a former secretary of state who's for the unanimous court.

Smith issued a statement 2½ hours later saying he would call the legislature into a special session to vote funds to pay for the primaries.

But "just when that will be, I must truthfully say I do not know at this time," the governor added.

Bullock said his staff was checking with local party chairmen to find out how much money they will need and more important from Smith's standpoint, how soon they will need it.

The governor has indicated in the past that if he had to call a special session to provide money for the primaries, he also would have the lawmakers work on a state budget for fiscal 1973.

Smith, however, said in an interview Wednesday he might limit the session to primary financing and, possibly, highway beautification to get the legislature out of town as soon as possible.

The primary financing issue arose when a three-judge federal court in Dallas struck down candidate filing fees, the customary source of money to pay primary election costs.

Bullock submitted several vouchers for primary expenses but State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert refused to honor them and declined to write checks to pay for the items.

Bullock then filed suit, asking the Texas Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus commanding Calvert to issue the checks. A hearing was held Monday, and the court took the issue as an "emergency matter" for a rush decision.

The high court upheld Calvert's—and Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin's—view that state funds could not be spent without an appropriation from the legislature.

"Since we can find no statutory provision empowering the secretary of state to expend state money for the conduct of party primary elections, it becomes our constitutional duty to deny the petition for mandamus," the court said.

It said it would not accept a motion for rehearing.

The high court also overruled its 1916 decision that tax money cannot be spent on primaries, which it then considered private—not public—concerns.

To be on Senate ballot

Liquor question omitted

A question on the sale of liquor in Lubbock that was to be on the election ballot Wednesday was omitted because there was not enough time to print the additional question, said Student Association (SA) election secretary Jim Boynton.

Boynton said the question will be placed on the March 15 Senate election ballot.

Legislation sponsored by Law Senator Hac Brummett and passed by the Student Senate Feb. 24 provided for the question addition.

Three choices are given the voter by this question: sale of liquor by the drink and in package stores, sale of liquor by the drink only or no sale of liquor at all in Lubbock.

Before the ballots could be printed, Boynton said he had to wait for a Government Operations and Relations Committee ruling on five protests filed against SA presidential candidate Greg Wimmer.

The committee discarded all five protests Tuesday.

Bobby Hall, candidate for SA vice president for internal affairs, was notified Tuesday he was not certified because he did not have the minimum required grade point average of 2.0.

Hall's name was not printed on the ballot.

Last year, the legality of crossing out a name that had already been printed on the ballot was questioned, Boynton said. He said the ballot was not printed until all names were certain to avoid any legal question.

Boynton said the entire ballot, including the liquor sale question, was too long to be printed by regular process. He said the print would have to have been reduced in size.

Boynton said facilities for printing by reduced process were not available Tuesday night.

A legal size page printed in regular size type would not have been large enough to contain the entire ballot, Boynton said.

Printing a separate page early with only the liquor sale question was impossible because the SA did not have enough paper, Boynton said.

He said only about eight people helped with the ballot preparation, and usually there are about 200 to prepare the ballot.

Primm announces for council post

Oscar Primm, senior sociology major from Lubbock, filed for Lubbock city council place 1, Wednesday. This brings to seven the total number of Tech students running for city positions.

Primm said he hoped Lubbock citizens realized he was interested in the future of the city and its expansion.

"I believe in Lubbock, and I want every concerned citizen to ask himself if he really does also," Primm said. He said the apathy in Lubbock is holding the city back.

Primm said his platform would be aimed toward the Tech student body, but he will also rely upon the general populous of Lubbock.

"I would like to see more youth involvement in city government on the council level," he said. "I will also try to stop the alienation of youth which has been seen in recent years."

Concerning the main issues of his campaign, Primm said he felt city financing and social problems would be most important.

"The problems students have faced can be overcome," he said. "Being a student, I understand the students problems and can better relate them to city government."

Primm said he thought this would be a great opportunity for Tech students to express themselves in their city government. "This is an area which has been taboo to us for some time," he said.

If elected, Primm said he will strive to bring the city government and Tech student body closer together. "I am interested in the future of the city and university," he said.

Primm said the council should work together with the Chamber of Commerce in drawing more industry and businesses to Lubbock and the South Plains. "Lubbock is growing rapidly," he said, "and we must secure its economic future."

CELL drive collects 20,000 signatures on liquor petition

By SUZI PATTERSON
Staff Writer

Petitions containing approximately 20,000 signatures were submitted by the Citizens for Enforceable Liquor Laws (CELL) to the county clerk Friday, according to attorney Gerald Anderson, legal counsel for the group. CELL is seeking on-premise consumption of liquor by the drink.

Anderson explained it is the county clerk's job to certify that requirements of the petitions have been met. "That is, it is his job to count the signatures," said Anderson. "At least 10,500 signatures must be those of registered voters." Anderson said his staff had run the petitions through a computer containing a memory bank of registered voters. "Our computer printed out the names of 13,000 registered voters," he said.

After the petitions have been certified, the county clerk will prepare the agenda containing the petitions as an item of business for the March 13 meeting of the County Commissioner's Court, explained Anderson. "The law requires that the petitions be submitted at a regular meeting of the County Commissioner's Court, which is held on the second Monday of each month," Anderson said.

Anderson added it is the duty of the commissioners to order an election no less than 20 nor more than 30 days from the date of primary elections, it becomes our constitutional duty to deny the petition for mandamus," the court said.

It said it would not accept a motion for rehearing.

The high court also overruled its 1916 decision that tax money cannot be spent on primaries, which it then considered private—not public—concerns.

Anderson stated legalized liquor by the drink would stimulate restaurant business, causing construction of new restaurants, expansion of existing ones and creation of new jobs.

"You may not realize it, but 90 per cent of the nation has liquor by the drink," he said, "more and more people are moving into Lubbock from other cities and they like to find it as it is elsewhere."

Regarding the efforts of a group on campus seeking legalized sale of liquor inside the city limits Anderson said, "It is not a matter of choice between their issue and ours. Liquor forces must stand together. Eventually, we may all win."

At Faculty Club

Yarborough praises Tech

Senatorial candidate Ralph Yarborough, speaking before 80 members of the Tech faculty and students at the Faculty Club, said, "Texas Tech is one of the best politically conscious campuses in the state of Texas, if not the best."

He said, "My hat is off to you (Tech for the great interest you have shown in what is happening now and what will happen in the future.)"

Following a brief address to those present, Yarborough answered questions concerning major national issues and in some cases state issues as well.

He said he was opposed to forced busing rulings and said he would like to see Washington Senator Henry Jackson's amendment bill proposal followed through and adopted.

Yarborough said, "I think more important than debating the question of busing is the emphasis of opportunities available to the young people and their possibilities of attending college and receiving a good education."

Asked to comment on the Nixon trip to China, he said the trip warded the attention of the people away from the economical problems of the nation to the main bases overseas.

He said, "Nixon is a great TV performer. His administration has promised many things, but they have yet to produce results."

Yarborough also stressed that ecology laws be impartially enforced and applied as equally as possible.

"I think marijuana laws are too harsh and should be modified to a misdemeanor. However, I do not favor the modification of laws against those who sell and push marijuana."

Asked if his age would be a factor in his campaign against "Barefoot" Sanders, Yarborough replied, "That's not an issue as far as I am concerned. What is Sanders going to do if he does get nominated? He is going to have the same issue to fight Senator Tower, since he (Sanders) is older than the Senator."

He said the war in Vietnam was still an issue that should be confronted and done something about. He added that the manpower in West Germany was twice the size it should be. "We should reduce the number of men there and concentrate on the dollar and trade, which is dragging presently."

Letters to the editor

Labels committee decision 'whitewash'

I am writing to voice an opinion concerning the "whitewash" of Mr. Greg Wimmer which was perpetrated by the Government Operations and Relations Committee and their friends.

No less than four counts of illegal campaigning were brought against Mr. Wimmer and all were dismissed. Granted, evidence to be presented on two of the counts did not materialize. Some of the witnesses decided suddenly that they didn't want to testify. Other evidence which had been entrusted to the care of the secretary of elections was mysteriously "misplaced". But on the last count, that of silkscreened T-shirts with Mr. Wimmer's name and campaign slogan on them, witnesses were produced showing that such a shirt was on campus (before the date set for campaigning to begin) and that Mr. Wimmer had knowledge of the existence of similar shirts. The election code of the senate defines such gimmicks as illegal. This may seem to be a small thing, but since at least one of the shirts was worn at a public gathering, it did serve to give Mr. Wimmer an unfair advantage over the other candidates.

The issue of handbills being circulated in dorm cafeterias also gave him an advantage. Although no witnesses came forth at the time, I am sure there are some students who were aware that it occurred. Just last year, a candidate was disqualified from the vice-presidents' race for exactly the same type of thing. Tuesday, however, the members of the Government Ops. Committee (no- all of them) apparently decided that they didn't want to "rock the boat". They didn't even so much as slap his hands. This, I particularly regret because I picked this committee when I was vice president. I selected them because I felt they would be objective and examine evidence.

Yesterday the committee obviously did not do this.

This, to me is just another example of the "Circus" which has gone on continuously in student government. I felt I could do something to stop such an atmosphere, but obviously I've done little good. I intend, however to try one more avenue before I give up, and I ask for some help, any help, from the students of Texas Tech.

Writes of all-dorm room check invasion

In my second year of college life I thought I was resigned to all the outrages of living in a dorm, this curiously unnatural life in which your sensibilities are at the mercy of several dozen neighbors (all of your own sex), and your life habits are at the mercy of a hierarchy of strangers who would like to tell you what you may and may not drink or smoke in the privacy of your room and at what hours you may entertain a friend who is not of your sex. I say I thought I was resigned.

This morning I was told that what I supposed at the time was an absurd dream was in reality part of an all-dorm check. My memory of it goes like this: It was sometime after closing hours, and my roommate and I were asleep. Our door was opened and the light turned on. I semi-awakened abruptly to see someone whose face I can't remember holding out a paper for me to sign. I did so, and as they left, asked Sallye, "What was that?" She didn't know, so I went back to sleep. I've had stranger dreams than that.

What were they looking for? Sallye and I have SD-hours, so it was none of their business to see if we were here. They could have been looking for liquor, illegal animals, etc., and I suppose they were in here long enough to see we were not displaying any full bottles or plastic bags.

This morning I reflected that if our door had been locked, and if they had knocked, and if I had been awake, I could have told them to do something besides come uninvited into our room, but I feel sure they were armed with a pass key for just such emergencies.

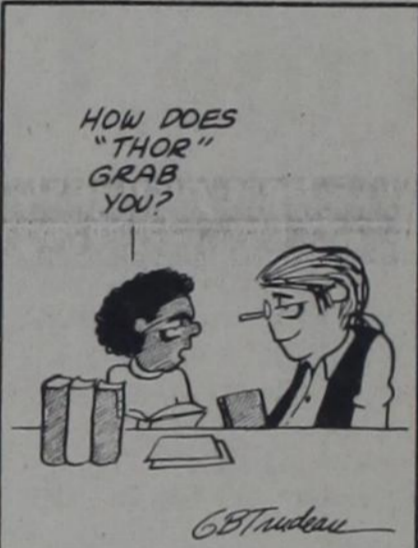

I see where we are being granted (maybe, someday) some no-overgenerous visitation hours, which is a giant step for Tech womankind. Nevertheless, I would like to see someone explain away incidents like last night's, and meanwhile, isn't it nice to know you don't have to leave the country to lose your rights?

Congratulates team

I would like to congratulate our basketball team for their tremendous effort and victory over Texas. I know that we lost the conference, but the win over Texas is still fantastic. Congratulations on your win over the University of Texas Armadillos—or is it Longhorns? Well, who really cares about them anyway.

Stupid bricks

Why doesn't the University use those stupid bricks from Ave. Q for something more useful than a bunch of sculptures? Like, maybe, to pave the parking lot at the Business Administration Building for those poor, defenseless Tech students?

Special session may stop Mutscher trail

If Gov. Preston Smith calls a special session of the legislature to begin before the bribery-conspiracy trial of Speaker Gus Mutscher is concluded, Mutscher has two choices.

He can stay in Abilene and continue his court battle or he can go back to Austin and fight for his power base as Speaker. If he stays in Abilene, the House will have to elect a new Speaker or an acting Speaker.

This would ruin or damage Mutscher's power base, thus reducing his stature at his trial. On the other hand, it might cast him in the sympathetic role of a man fighting for his innocence while events beyond his control are attacking his career.

If he decides to go back to Austin, he has two choices.

He can demand that the trial be interrupted until after the legislative session has concluded or he can ask the judge to declare a mistrial and come back later to be tried before a different jury.

A legislator can demand a continuance in any trial where he is a party or attorney if the legislature will be in session within 30 days.

A continuance would mean that Mutscher and his co-defendants, Rep. Tommy Shannon of Fort Worth and Mutscher aide Rush McGinty, would return to be tried by the same 8-woman, 4-man jury now hearing the case.

If the defense thinks it can get a better jury with a new trial, it could move for a mistrial on the ground that the present jury could not be expected to avoid all news stories on the case for several weeks.

District Court Judge J. Neil Daniel likely would grant a motion for mistrial because a refusal would increase the chance of reversal on appeal after wasting everybody's time and money by completing the trial.

Any one of the defendants could ask for a mistrial. And Shannon could demand a continuance even if Mutscher did not.

There is another far out possibility.

Mutscher could decide to continue his court fight and yet be forced by the House to attend the special session.

Under House rules, a majority of those present can vote to put "a call on the House," compelling representatives to attend in order to assure a quorum.

The House can do this even if it already has a quorum to assure a continuance of a quorum.

If necessary, law officers will arrest representatives under a "call on the House" and take them to Austin.

If a mistrial is declared, the defendants might ask that any new trial be moved to another city on the ground that Abilene residents now have been exposed to so much news of the case it would be difficult to get jurors that have not already made up their mind one way or another.

The trial was moved from Austin on this ground. A special session may not be necessary until after the trial is over.

But the Governor cannot hold off much longer than the first week in April, when the money crunch for financing the May 6 primaries will begin to mount.

The Session is necessary because federal courts threw out Texas' filing fee system of financing elections, and the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that state funds cannot be used unless the Legislature appropriates them for that purpose.

Several of Mutscher's enemies have predicted his continuance as speaker will be challenged the first day the Legislature is in session on the ground he is under indictment.

But many of those enemies—mostly members of a coalition of Republicans, liberal Democrats called the "Dirty 30" would like to see him remain speaker until the May 6 primaries. This would allow them to continue to campaign as reform candidates fighting a speaker charged with a felony.

One report several weeks ago denied by both the governor and Mutscher said the speaker threatened Smith with impeachment if he called a special session before the trial was over.

Basis of the impeachment supposedly would be Smith's permitting a special session in 1969 to consider bank deposit insurance legislation wanted by Houston promoter Frank Sharp.

That action by the governor followed his investment with a loan from Shrp's bank in an insurance company controlled by Sharp.

Smith vetoed the legislation upon recommendation of the Texas Bankers Association and others—after he made a $62,500 profit on his 45-day investment in the insurance company stock.

Mutscher, Shannon and McGinty are accused of accepting bribes in the form of loans from Sharp's bank in exchange for their help in winning approval for the legislation. The defendants also made huge profits by investing their loans in the same stock.

Muskie wins NH primary

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine pulled ahead in his fight to gain a majority of New Hampshire's Democratic National Convention delegates as the votes were counted Wednesday.

It was Phase 2 of a Tuesday presidential primary Muskie won with 48 per cent of the vote, while Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota was strengthening his rival White House bid by securing an unexpected 37 per cent.

With 91 per cent of the state's precincts reporting, Muskie held a 15-5 lead over McGovern in the balloting for delegates.

The close race for the delegates was even more surprising than McGovern's preferential primary showing, as Muskie managers had expected a sweep of the 20 convention slots. New Hampshire will cast 18 nominating votes at

Bomb explodes in empty jetliner

By LEE GOULD
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A bomb ripped a hole in an unoccupied Trans World Airlines jetliner here Wednesday, the second bomb in two days attributed by authorities to a $2 million extortion scheme against the airline.

The incidents were the first time bombs actually have been placed aboard jetliners in an attempt to extort money, airline sources said.

The bombing triggered an intensified search of TWA's 238 planes at airports all over the world. At some airports all passengers boarding all planes were searched, as was baggage and freight.

Some airports employed X-Ray machines to check luggage, metal detectors to scan passengers and dogs to sniff for explosives inside planes.

Some travelers cancelled reservations as delays of two hours or more were reported in TWA flights.

The bomb aboard the Boeing 707 exploded at 3:55 a.m., about seven hours after the plane arrived nonstop from New York City with 10 passengers and a crew of seven. The blast blew a large hole in the front fuselage, throwing debris about 100 feet at McCarran International Airport. It was parked about 300 yards from the main terminal.

Tuesday, a plastic explosive device was sniffed out by dogs in a cockpit of a TWA jetliner called back to Kennedy International Airport in New York from a flight to Los Angeles.

An anonymous caller had warned of the bomb and directed officials to an airport locker where they found a note saying that four TWA planes would be blown up at six-hour intervals unless $2-million ransom was paid.

The succeeding deadlines passed without incident. The bombing in Las Vegas came an hour before one of the six-hour periods.

The FBI, TWA and local authorities have refused to say if they would negotiate with the extortionist or whether any money has been paid.

Sources close to the investigation said authorities were checking TWA personnel records for any employees experienced in handling explosives or with a possible grudge against the company.

Airline personnel had access before the flights to both the New York plane and the Las Vegas jetliner.

The bomb that exploded aboard the Las Vegas jetliner was somehow smuggled aboard even though the plane was searched in New York and Las Vegas and armed guards were standing nearby.

It apparently was planted in the cockpit or in the restrooms behind it, authorities said.

"We just have no idea how it got aboard," said Charles Wyre, TWA general manager in Las Vegas.

Bomb squad investigators were collecting pieces of the shattered fuselage to try to determine the type of explosive used.

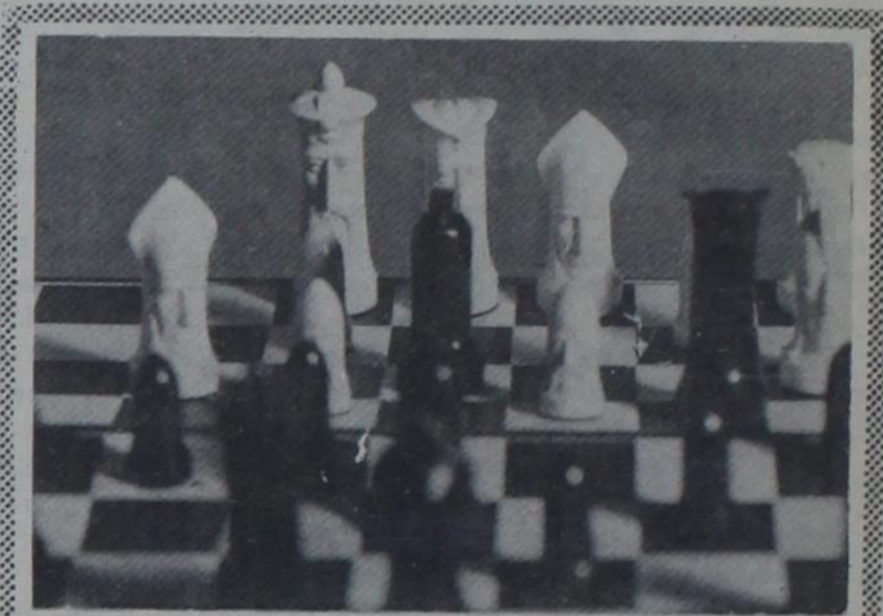

At airports around the world, TWA planes were ringed with guards and searched.

At Kennedy Airport in New York, the takeoff Wednesday of an Eastern Air Lines flight to Miami, Fla., was delayed for an hour after an anonymous telephoned bomb threat. Passengers were unloaded and police searched the plane. No bomb was found.

Virtually every TWA flight was delayed.

Passengers didn't always mind.

"I don't mind waiting in fact, it's a relief," said a passenger at the Las Vegas airport after becoming delayed by a search.

Tech program features weekend's artistic events

"TECH TANSY RAGWORT", a weekly television program designed to inform and entertain the Tech community, tonight will highlight this weekend's artistic events.

The first part of the program features a cutting from "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch". Participating in the cutting are Larry Wolf, who plays Sneaky and Joe Leard, director of the Laboratory Theatre, who plays Doc Burch. Richard Gabish, director of this final laboratory production of the spring semester, is featured in a short interview prior to the cutting.

The second half of the show features an interview with Mundell Lowe, noted guitarist, composer, arranger and music educator. Mr. Lowe's most recent work has been to compose, arrange and conduct the music for the motion picture BILLY JACK.

He is at Tech for the Texas Tech Stage Band Festival this weekend. Professor Paul Mazzacano, Tech director of jazz studies, will also be discussing the Festival with Sally Baker, "TANSY" interviewer.

"TECH TANSY RAGWORT" is seen every Thursday evening at 6:30 on channel 5.

The Movie Scene

By Bill Kerns

It seems that the rash of rodeo films instigated by "J. W. Coop" has turned into a full-scale epidemic. And, like the "Easy Rider" and "Sound of Music" proteges, the copies are obvious. The latest (but definitely not the last) offering is THE HONKERS, probably the weakest offering of this still young film year.

Taking the title role of Lew Lathrop is James Coburn—a good actor, to be sure, but even he couldn't breathe life into this sketchy script. Coburn's best pictures remain the war movies in which he had small but significant parts. He has yet to win a leading part that was even worthy of his efforts (this includes his "Flint" private-eye series).

In "The Honkers", he plays a cowboy riding the rodeo circuit, using his spare time to both court available females and humor his wife enough to keep her away from the divorce lawyer. It is precisely at this point that the complications start popping up. Coburn's character is never really established. The film opens with him high-tailing it down the road in his underwear, making his slapstick escape from an irate boyfriend. Then we are supposed to believe that he loves his wife and wants to settle down, even though he lets himself be duped into spending the night with a young woman, the result being the loss of both his family and his best friend.

Steve Ihnat and Steven Lodge further plague their screenplay with subplots and characters to such an extent that the "coincidences" are simply impossible to believe. And when the film falls to such a depth that the coincidences actually become predictable, the whole idea becomes a futile effort.

Ihnat also chose to take on the directing duties himself, and his lack of experience is apparent from the beginning. His photographic direction gives one the impression that someone gave him a dolly and he is simply passing his time with a new toy. He has an insatiable craving for dolly shots and slow motion that is absolutely revolting.

Time and time again we are given stretches of film involving nothing more than a camera dolly back so as to follow Coburn walking up a city street. There was absolutely no need for this in the first place; why Ihnat chose to waste his and everyone else's time by repeating the process time and time again is beyond me.

Slow motion filming simply for the sake of slow motion is about the most amateurish thing any film-maker can do—but it's quite evident here. Ihnat uses his slow motion during the filming of rodeo events such as bronc riding, but the distorted time adds nothing to the individual sequences. Ihnat and photographer James Crabe, never once try for an angle that might at least reflect the skill demanded to participate in the event. Even using real-life rodeo cowboy Larry Mahan in a few scenes didn't bring his reasoning across.

The only thing "The Honkers" has to offer is a chance to see Slim Pickens tackle a major role. The established character actor makes the most of his ridiculous lines and unbelievable role as Coburn's sidekick and rodeo clown.

Pickens also wrote one of the songs in the film: "I'm A Rodeo Cowboy." Unfortunately, ole Slim's comically serious rendition of the tune (taking necessary precautions with the high notes) was really the only truly enjoyable segment in the entire movie. We can only hope that the future rodeo pictures show a little more respect toward movie audiences and cinema itself.

"The Honkers" is currently playing at the Lindsey. Rated GP. Admission price: $1.50

FILM FACTS: "The Honkers." Stars James Coburn, Slim Pickens, and Lois Nettleton. Special appearance by Larry Mahon. Photographed by James Crabe. Edited by Tom Rolf. Music by Jimmy Haskell. Written by Steve Ihnat and Steven Lodge. Directed by Steve Ihnat. Filmed entirely in Carlsbad, New Mexico.

A full column will be dedicated later to the yearly bribery contest commonly called the Academy Awards. But, just for a little fun, let me point out the most obvious booboo this year. Last year "Investigation of A Citizen Above Suspicion" was nominated for best foreign picture of the year...and took the Oscar going away. This year that same film is nominated for Best Screenplay. OK all you Academy members, ya wanna explain to me how the same picture can be nominated two years in a row? More later on the (groan) nominations.

Viola virtuosos and Tech symphony to play tonight

Paul Doktor, a distinguished viola virtuosos, will join the Tech University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Paul Ellsworth, in a concert performance 8:15 p.m. tonight in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium. The concert is open to the public without charge.

Doktor is from Austria and the only violist to have been awarded first prize at the International Music Competition in Geneva. He began studying music at the age of five under the direction of his father, the late Karl Doktor, violist with the Adolf Busch String Quartet. Doktor received his diploma from the State Academy of Music and toured as a violinist with the Adolf Busch Chamber Orchestra. He has also performed extensively throughout Europe and America, as a soloist, recitalist and chamber musician, including appearances at the Salzburg and Edinburgh Festivals.

Doktor will perform the Handel "Concerto in B Minor" for viola and orchestra and a suite for viola and orchestra by Ralph Vaughn Williams. The orchestra will begin the program with Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony No. 8" and will end with Moussorgsky's "Night on Bald Mountain".

The concert is sponsored by Tech's Department of Music and the Fine Arts Committee of the University Center.

Elections March 15

Senatorial candidates state platforms

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following are statements of the Senate seat candidates themselves, who brought their platforms to be printed in The University Daily. Candidates are listed in alphabetical order.)

HOME ECONOMICS

John Hamilton

Through my involvement with various committees on campus I have come to realize some of the problems that we, as students, face in student government. I feel that perhaps the most important problem we face is student apathy. This apathy has been created by the ineffectiveness of the Senate.

I am tired of hearing our current senators promise to "restore credibility" in the Senate when they were the ones who created a Senate without credibility. If I am elected to the Senate I will promise nothing more than to represent my constituents in the school of Home Economics. The only "special interest" group I represent is the school from which I am running. I feel that the school of Home Economics deserves more representation and recognition than it has received and that is what I'll work for.

I feel that many of the expenditures of the Senate are made without the knowledge, much less the consent of the students. This has to stop! If you as students feel as I do, then cast your vote for a new brand of representation.

EDUCATION

Bruce Barrick

I will give no platform of promises to our school of Education. I can only hope that they judge if I am qualified enough by my previous term in the Senate. In most of my dealings I tried to listen to all sides of an issue and make the most honest and intelligent decision.

It is impossible on my part to promise anything because new elements can arise that could change my decision on any issue. I hope I have represented you well enough for you to give me a second term this up coming Senate election

Ricky Knox

My platform for the position of Education Senator is built on one basic principle: COMMON SENSE!! If elected, I pledge to use my common sense in the duties as a Tech Senator. Using my common sense would mean that I would THINK before I spoke, took action, voted, or did anything as a senator. My common sense also tells me that I should talk and listen to the students that have elected me to represent them and who expect me to do the best for them. I would certainly remember that I am a representative for the students!

I am to reasonably and sensibly represent the students of Texas Tech. It is not an award to be elected to the position of senator, but it is a job that requires work and honest effort. If I am elected, I will work! I will give my best! I do understand that it is hard to decide whether a person is sincere simply by reading a column he has written in the UD. The only thing I can say is: I am sincere and honest in what I have stated. I do care about the Senate! I have the best for students in mind! I do care about Texas Tech! Yes, common sense is the key to my campaign. I think that if I use a little thinking, understanding, and reasoning, I could do a good job! I would appreciate your vote!! However, even if you do not vote for me, DO VOTE!!! Take part, become involved, be interested in your Senate!

Jed N. Reed

With the present conception of the Student Association and the Senate the loser has been the student population at Texas Tech. To turn around this apathetic tide of non-representation the Senate needs to redirect itself to student problems and campus issues. The Student Senate needs to represent a force to solve campus problems through responsible action and not through chaotic, childish behavior. Let the Student Senate represent the whole of the student body in its allocations and not any specific organization.

It is now time to face the students' needs through an active organization of student leaders who will represent each segment of the campus population. The Senate should concentrate on campus issues and not external international and political policies not directly related to the University Community.

Kay Sewell

I feel the most important issue the student senate needs to work on is to revamp the communication between the students and the senate. I want to reach back to my own constituents and relate to their ideas.

I think the student association CAN make it. We definitely need a student representative on the Board of Regents whether a voting member or not. This would enable the administration to understand the students and how they operate. I think CAP worked well but needs to be made clearer to the student body and extended to more businesses.

I am definitely in favor of the Co-op gas station and feel the book exchange was very successful and needs to be kept up. I am for the Faculty-Student Council.

Gayle Sauer

What is the direction of the Student Association? The Student Senate? The Student Senate has been struggling to keep its name and its identity. Instead, a new image has arisen — that of a do-nothing body. However, if you look back, you can see the beneficial programs sponsored by the Student Association and Student Senate. Included are, the Book Exchange, an attempt to place a student on the Board of Regents, and the beginnings of a good legal program. In being a member of the Student Senate for two years, I have seen it grow from something known only for passing bills, to something that initiates good programs.

As a Senator from the College of Education, I would work for my constituents as well as for others, too, for in the Senate, we represent all. Let us work together (STUDENTS AND SENATORS) for a good legal program, a good teacher evaluation, as well as helping rid this campus of student apathy.

Cindy Stoker

Improve, Develop, Advance: Your Student Senate. Being a Senate Aid and attending meetings for two years, I have watched the introduction of new ideas, debate of controversial issues, and passage of worthwhile legislation. I have also witnessed the trivial politics that often accompany decisive action. I want to help the Senate reform itself into a body of concerned students. Improvement.

The Senate must deal with relevant issues. A change in the pass-fall system is needed: at the end of a semester, a student should be allowed to evaluate a course pass-fall. Required faculty evaluations by the students are a necessary development.

Instead of discussing problems, I want to solve them. Advancement.

Leo Wells

My platform has four points: Incorporation of the Student Association; Formation of an Education Council, similar to that of Arts and Sciences; Expansion of College Allowance Program; If elected, I will serve for the full year, thus assuring continuous service to the students.

AGRICULTURE

B.C. Bennett

The Student Senate should be a representative organization of the student body. Unless petty politics are taken out of the Senate it can't function in this capacity or any other. I would like to work to do this. I would also like to work towards better communication from the Agriculture School to the Senate and then in turn from the Senate back to the Agriculture School. I believe this can be done through the different Agriculture organizations.

I would also like to work for better voter registration within the School of Agriculture and a more extensive teacher evaluation program. If elected, I would also work for continued and expanded allocation of Student Association funds for the different Ag. organizations.

I would appreciate the support of the Agriculture School students by electing me their representative to continue to give them equal representation in university-wide affairs.

Leroy Grauwuder

The agriculture students at Texas Tech have lost their voice in the student government. The problems and needs of Ag students should be voiced and represented as loudly and forcibly as needed to obtain solutions to these problems. Evidently the present Senate has lost sight of its primary function. Rather than attention-seeking politics we need positive action based on programs designed to strengthen and improve the student's position at Tech.

I feel that the Ag senators should work to gain respect and consideration for the School of Agricultural Sciences as a progressive and essential part of man's existence. The various departments within the School of Agriculture must work together to achieve this end. The lack of commuter parking, the athletic seating hassle and the use of student funds are all issues that must be faced, yet your senator must understand the issues that concern Ag students and be willing to stand up and speak out on these issues, whether it be against the rest of the Senate, the administration, or within the School of Ag itself.

If you feel as I do, that a change is needed, then vote for someone who is willing to work for that change."

Jim Hammonds

As a candidate for the Student Senate, I hope to put my experience on campus to use. I have been a "Saddle Tramp" for 3 years, a member of Block and Bridge and I am a junior.

I would like to see the Senate better represent the student body in the College of Agriculture Sciences. I feel I know what Ag students want and I know I can work for them in the Senate. Only hard work and dedication can bring the Student Senate back to the level of importance it should have. I think I can help bring it back and represent well the students in agriculture.

Joe Parker

The biggest issues concerning the Senate election this year will probably be Student Senate effectiveness, communications and image. Although the 1971-72 session of the Senate was very productive, it seems to have lost its student body respect. Through better communications by periodic reports of legislation and allocations, as well as an increased use of student body referendum, I feel this effectiveness can be strengthened.

I also feel it will be necessary to have experienced leadership in the Senate. As a past member of the Senate, I believe that the legislation enacted on such programs as the Legal Aid Program, Gas Co-op, Faculty-Student Committee and the newly formed executive positions.

If re-elected, I will work to help oversee the successful implementation of these programs for the good of the student body and therefore, the image of the senate.

Bill Price

We need to keep working to build onto and improve what we have as a Student Senate. As a past member of the Senate, I believe a lot of things are wrong, but I feel that the change the Senate is presently going through will create a better Senate in the long run. The Student Senate should be relevant and receptive to the needs and desires of the students.

I believe that if I were elected to the Senate, that my influence would help to guide it in the right direction as it is changing to become a better, more effective Student Senate. Through my seriousness about Texas Tech and the Ag School and by conscientiously striving to do a good job, I feel that I would make you a good Senator for the School of Agriculture. Please give me a call if you have any questions. 765-7545

Hyman D. Sauer

It is my opinion that if elected to the position of Senator for agriculture sciences that I could be a true representative to my fellow students. I am basing this contention on the idea that I am more closely associated to the average ag student than my opponents. I feel that this is a definite criteria necessary to develop the interest of the student in legislative actions of the Student Senate.

I am an advocate of organizing the Student Senate so as to be more effective in analyzing issues of significance and avoiding items of trivial value. I will endeavor to implement a program to which agriculture students could take part in a semester's work in an accredited agriculture business directly related to their emphasis in agriculture. It is my belief that a program of this type would relieve some of the problems of a new graduate starting on his career.

I am interested in creating an organized system of teacher evaluation where the students could present their critical reviews of the faculty to a committee that could in turn be presented to the dean. This would certainly be a start as a system of checks and balances between students and faculty.

Darrel Shepard

Qualifications: Dean's Honor List; among the freshmen in agriculture selected to be in the University All-Recognition Service; member of the Range and Wildlife Management Association; Society for Range Management; Phi Eta Sigma, scholastic honor; serving on the Freshman Council where I have become acquainted with the Student Senate

I would work toward more consideration for freshman since they are the largest class and contribute more money to the Student Association than any other class. The present system of the Freshman Council and the Student Senate is good if the organizations work together.

I am against the SA giving financial support to lobby organizations and political rallies because neither could possibly represent the entire student body at Tech and every student pays the same mandatory fee. In general, I feel the Student Senate should be more responsive to the total student body.

Terry Sterling

The Senate at Texas Tech needs improvement in several areas. The areas I will try to support are as follows: I will try to improve communications between the Senate and the students. I will strive for proper allocation of funds to the organizations in the College of Agriculture.

I will support the upcoming programs of the Senate, such as the legal aid program, the gas co-op, and an improved legal aid program. As an Agricultural Senator, I will try to better represent the student in the College of Agriculture and their basic wants.

I will try to promote better organization and procedure in the Senate, and thus provide for a smoother and more effective working body. I feel that I can work closely with the newly elected Senators and the executive officers through past experience with these people.

I feel that I can support better unification and a better image of the Student Senate through the elimination of biased groups within the Senate. I would appreciate the support of the students in the Ag. School in electing me as your representative in the Student Senate.

Washington news woman McClendon visits Lubbock

Sarah McClendon, the Washington news correspondent who is especially known for the sharp and witty press conference questions she directed at the late President John F. Kennedy, will be featured as speaker at a luncheon open to the public at the Johnson House Restaurant Saturday.

Mrs. McClendon, who has a knack for asking pertinent and often impertinent questions, is sponsored by both the professional and Tech chapters of Theta Sigma Phi, a fraternity for women in mass communications. The speaker is a native Texan who has headed her own Washington news and broadcast bureau for 25 years. She is a correspondent for more than a dozen Texas newspapers.

Also included in the luncheon program, four West Texas women journalists will be honored as Headliners with the awards representing these categories: weekly newspapers, daily newspapers, radio, and television.

The luncheon will begin at 12 noon Saturday. Early reservations may be made by telephoning (806) 795-3538. Tickets are $4 per person. They are on sale at the Book and Art Centers in Briercroft and Monterey Shopping Centers, and the Costume Studio, 2422 Broadway. The Johnson House Restaurant is located at 4801 Avenue Q.

State attempting to link Mutscher with Sharp deals

ABILENE, (AP)—The state probed deeper into the twilight zone of Frank Sharp's financial empire Wednesday in pursuing its bribery-conspiracy charge against Texas House speaker Gus Mutscher.

Prosecutors weaved through scores of defense objections and voluminous financial records to link Mutscher, and two political allies to Sharp's insurance and banking enterprises.

The Houston promoter allegedly offered the defendants a sophisticated bribe in 1969 in return for their influence in gaining passage of two bank deposit bills.

Mutscher, aide Rush McGinty and state Rep. Tommy Shannon are accused of conspiring to accept the payoff. Mutscher is named in a separate indictment alleging acceptance of the bribe.

Meanwhile, the defense subpoenaed 28 more witnesses Wednesday afternoon, including 22 state representatives.

State Rep. Charles Patterson of Taylor testified late Wednesday that Shannon told him the day before the two bills passed that they would provide state deposit insurance protection in lieu of a federal program.

Patterson said there "was a little confusion" over this issue and that he also was concerned about the legislation's affect on small banks. He said he wondered also if there was a private corporation in Texas adequate to provide insurance protection under provisions set forth in the banking bills.

He said he questioned Shannon at a meeting of the Committee of Banks and Banking which considered the two bills and that he later voted against the legislation.

7:30 p.m. today in the Blue Room of the University Center. Guest speaker will be State Representative Tom Craddock.

Students interested in applying for editor of the UD, advertising manager of the UD, or co-editor of the La Ventana should go by room 102 of the Journalism Building between 8 a.m. and noon or from 1 p.m.-5 p.m. to pick up an application form. Application forms are due back at 5 p.m. March 24.

Qualifications: UD: To apply for the UD jobs the applicant must be a junior or senior, be either a journalism major or minor, have had or will enroll in J-231, 232, 348, and 336, and be otherwise eligible according to university regulations.

La Ventana: To apply the applicant must either be a junior or senior. It is recommended that they have had Journalism courses in magazine writing and editing. This job is also eligible ac-ording to university regulations.

Ad Mgr: The committee would like to hire a graduate student in advertising, but will consider a senior who is eligible according to university regulations.

The committee may waive any or all of the requirements should a majority feel that circumstances warrant such action.

Now that you can fly to Europe for peanuts, here's how little you shell out to get around:

$130 for Two Months of unlimited rail travel in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland.

You shell out $130, and get a Student-Railpass. All you need is the bread and something to show you're a bona fide student between 14 and 25.

Our Student-Railpass gives you all that unlimited rail travel on the 100,000 mile railroad networks of those 13 countries. For two foot-loose months. So with low air fares and Student-Railpass you've got Europe made.

Our Student-Railpass gets you Second Class travel on our trains. You'll find that there's very little second class about Second Class. Besides being comfortable, clean, fast, and absurdly punctual, the European trains have some other advantages for you. They take you from city center to city center, so you don't have to hassle airports. And the stations are helpful homes away from home, with Pictograms that give you information in the universal language of signs, and dining rooms, bookstores and other helpful facilities.

Now, here's the catch. You can't get your Student-Railpass or the regular First Class Eurailpass in Europe—you have to get them before you leave the country. So see your Travel Agent soon. Meanwhile, send in the coupon for a free folder, complete with railroad map.

STUDENT-RAILPASS

The way to see Europe without feeling like a tourist.

Eurailpass is valid in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland.

Eurailpass, Box 90, Lindenhurst, New York 11757.

Please send me your free Eurailpass folder with railroad map. Or your Student-Railpass folder order form.

SWC play-off aftermath

Texas pressure player credited with win

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Texas senior Scooter Lenox handled the pressure that Southern Methodist sophomore Zach Thiel couldn't control and the Longhorns advanced into the first round of the NCAA play-offs Tuesday night with a 91-89 overtime victory.

Lenox canned two free throws with 39 seconds left in the extra period after Thiel had missed a free throw with 13 seconds remaining in regulation play that would have sent the Mustangs to Las Cruces, N.M., Saturday against Houston.

The Southwest Conference co-champions finished the season with 10-4 records and met at Heart O' Texas Coliseum in a sudden death playoff.

"I said last week that Lenox was a pressure player," said a drained Texas Coach Leon Black. "He'll come through in a tight situation."

Black said he didn't know what to think as Thiel went to the free throw line with a chance to win the game.

"He's a fine shooter," Black said. "I'm not ashamed to say I thought about praying, but I didn't want to put the Lord on the spot."

Sophomore Larry Robinson paced Texas with 30 points before he fouled out along with teammate B. G. Brosterhous in regulation play.

SMU's Ruben Triplett, who scored 20 points, and David Miller and Clayton Korver also fouled out.

Black said, "I'm not sure how long we can keep playing with folks hurt. We are on one leg right now as far as depth is concerned. Larry sprained an ankle and was going at half speed. Lynn Howden also sprained an ankle to go along with his broken thumb."

Black said he knew little or nothing about Houston. Lenox said Texas has something to prove against Houston.

"We've got a lot to prove Saturday because a lot of people don't think basketball is very good in our conference," Lenox said.

Texas blew a 13-point lead to the scrappy Mustangs, who tied it at 59-all on a basket by Thiel. A bucket by Triplett tied the score 82-all before Thiel missed his free throw and sent the game into overtime before 9,200 fans.

"We were bitterly disappointed but I feel the utmost pride for the team," said Mustang Coach Bob Prewitt. "They gave nothing but a

Tech nine drops pair to Arizona

The traveling Tech baseball team completed a three-day six-game affair with the University of Arizona at Tucson Wednesday by dropping both games of a doubleheader by scores of 4-3 and 3-2.

Coach Kal Segrist had planned to send hurlers Steve Brock (1-0) and Jack Pierce (2-0) to the mound against the powerful Wildcats Wednesday. Further results were not available at the UNIVERSITY complete effort. They're No. 1 in my books. They're co-champions and always will be."

DAILY deadline. The pair of losses left the Raider diamondmen with a 6-6 record and gives the Techs a five game losing streak. The Raider nine beat Arizona on the opening day of the series but have dropped the last five in a row. Going into Tucson, Tech had a 6-1 record — the best beginning ever in Segrist's coaching career at Raiderland.

The Raiders will play the University of Texas at El Paso Friday and Saturday before returning to Lubbock for the team's home opener against New Mexico Highlands on Mar. 17.

Intramural track meet entries due Friday

By BROOKS TINSLEY Sports Writer

A track meet for Tech students will be held Friday and Saturday, Mar. 17 and 18, at the Tech varsity track field. The deadline for entries is Friday, and changes must be made by the following Monday.

The meet will be conducted on a team basis with three or more students comprising a team. Only team entries will be accepted and a team must enter a minimum of three events. A permanent trophy will be awarded to the first and second place teams. The first three winners in each event will be awarded a ribbon. An individual trophy will also be given to the high point man of the meet.

The meet will be conducted according to NCAA rules with the following exceptions:

- (1) no team may enter more than three men in any one event except the relays.
- (2) each team may enter only one relay team in each of the two relays.
- (3) no contestant may enter more than five events, of which no more than three may be running events.
- (4) decisions of the judges will be final.
- (5) all ties will be determined by a coin flip to see who gets the ribbon.
- (6) spiked shoes will be allowed (track shoes or intramural touch football shoes only).

Three special events will be offered. These include a 440 and 880 yard co-ed relay, which will be a part of the regular track meet, and the other is a graduate-faculty mile run. The co-ed events are being offered since the Women's Intramural program will alternate running events at the meet.

The grad-fac mile will include two divisions. One division will be for the graduate student or faculty member with the fastest time being declared the winner. The other division will be for the faculty over 30 with the winner of this division being determined by most accurately predicting his own finishing time.

Listed below are some of the present standing intramural track records which will be on the line at the meet. Also listed are the record holders and their team affiliation.

- Broad Jump, 23' 10 1/2, 1965, Gary Schovajsa, Men's No. 9.
- High Jump, 6' 5", 1967, Jim Brown, Wells Hall.
- Shot Put (12' 57" 6", 1969, Fred Perry, Double T Asso.
- 440 yd. relay 43.7, 1968, Johnson, Smith, Stuart, Zimmerman, Gaston Hall.
- 100 yd. dash, 9.9, 1964, Rich Hardy, Thompson Hall., 9.9, 1969, Walter Mason, Weymouth.
- 440 yd. dash, 51.0, 1965, Billy Allison, Phi Delts.
- 220 yd. dash, 22.5, 1968, Blair Zimmerman, Gaston.
- 880 yd. dash, 1:58.5, 1962, Wayne Phillips, BSU.
- Mile Run, 4:53.0, 1969, Noe Villarreal, BSU.
- 880 yd. relay, 1:34.9, 1970, Minnick, Blankenship, Gilliam, Delevan, Tannery, Chapparrals.
- Mile Relay, 3:35.2, 1963, McDonald, Avery, Milburn, Allison, Phi Delts.

The schedule of events is as follows: On Friday, March 17, at 4 p.m., the finals will be held in the three field events—broad and high jumps plus the shot put.

The other events are scheduled for the next day, beginning at 1 p.m. These include all relays (mile 440, 880, 440 co-ed and 880 co-ed), the dashes (100, 220 and 440), the mile run and the grad-fac mile run.

Five points are given for a first place, three for a second, two for a third and one for a fourth in all events except relays. For relays, the point system will be 10, six, four and two for the first four places.

Female tennis team in tourney

The Tech women's tennis team will travel to Dallas this weekend for a four-team tournament. Other schools participating are Southern Methodist, University of Texas at Austin and Amarillo College.

Team matches will begin Friday morning and continue through Saturday morning. Members of the team competing are Sue Perry, Sylvia Mann, Cheryl Cheves, Debbie Lohman and Carolyn Carter. The team is coached by Mrs. Emilie Foster.

The fem netters will also compete against Trinity in San Antonio Mar. 16, and in the UT-Austin Invitational Meet Mar. 17-18. The team is aiming toward the district tourney to be played here Apr. 7-8. The winner of the district meet will play in the state contest to be held at Rice University later in April.
