SA presidential candidates discuss student government

By BETSY JARMON
Special Reporter

Peaceful demonstrations, the proposed legal aid program and the president's cabinet were among the topics discussed by the five candidates for the presidency of the Student Association (SA) Wednesday.

The candidates — Ben Florey, Polly Kinnibrugh, Rick Merritt, Ronald Orbas and Greg Wimmer — were the featured speakers of the Politics for Lunch Bunch weekly program sponsored by the University Center Ideas and Issues Committee.

Merritt said nonviolent demonstrations are legal. "I'd like to see more of them," he said.

"I am violently opposed to any type of violence," Wimmer said.

"It is not violent to demonstrate," Miss Kinnibrugh said. She said she tried unsuccessfully to organize a peaceful demonstration of campus leaders following the controversial athletic seating policy that was started in the fall.

Florey said students have bargaining power politically now because 18-year-olds can vote, and they should use that power.

Orbas said "a working and viable legal aid program is the whole basis for my campaign."

He said he will hire a lawyer for the students if he is elected. Asked about the legal question posed for student legal aid programs in Texas (presently the University of Texas is involved in a lawsuit over the legality of its program), Orbas said, "if I run into that problem, I'll incorporate (the SA)."

Making the SA a corporation has been proposed so student funds could be distributed as private money, not as state money. Present SA funds are interpreted as state money because the funds come from receipts of a mandatory student services fee collected by the state.

If the SA were a corporation, student contributions to fund the SA would be voluntary.

Merritt said if he is elected, he will strive to raise money for a legal aid program.

Asked how he would select a cabinet, Wimmer said he would choose a strong cabinet.

Merritt said he would hope to inspire each cabinet member "to do his duty and sometimes to exceed it."

Orbas said, "you've got to select some doers" (for the cabinet).

Miss Kinnibrugh said she would talk with each cabinet member about his responsibilities and "not wait for an issue to come up."

Each cabinet member must have specific things to do, Miss Kinnibrugh said.

SA President Bill Scott asked the candidates what they would do about Tech's membership in national or state lobbying organizations.

Merritt said he believes Tech should remain an active member of the Texas Intercollegiate Student Association (TISA).

Wimmer said he also favored continuing Tech's TISA membership. "I can't see at the present time any need to be a member of a national organization," he said. He said Tech sends observers to the meetings of these organizations.

Miss Kinnibrugh said she was an observer at the National Student Association meeting at the beginning of the fall semester. She said the Tech SA gained full value from the meeting by sending observers.

Florey said, "I think we ought to support in any way we can these lobby organizations."

He said the money voted by the Senate to go to TISA should be raised and sent to the organization some way. The Administration has said the Tech SA cannot send $500 allocated to TISA because it is a private corporation.

"It seems to me," Florey said, "that student government ought to raise the money we've pledged them; we owe it to them."

Merritt proposed elimination of the Senate unless it is improved this year. He said he would substitute an executive council, with representatives from each campus organization and from the dorms.

Miss Kinnibrugh said students should ask themselves, "do the people you elect think the SA is their first priority or do their priorities lie with other organizations on campus?"

Orbas urged students to "quit electing petty people."

Senate to consider seminar funding

An act providing $600 for the fourth annual Los Tertulianos Seminar at Tech will be reported out of the Allocations Committee at the senate meeting at 8 p.m. today in room 358 of the BA Building.

"This allocation will cover about half of the cost of the seminar and there will be a $300 scholarship presented," said Eusebio Moralez, Los Tertulianos president.

Moralez said the seminar would provide an opportunity for Chicano high school students to visit Tech.

A bill endorsing the proposed local liquor option election also will be presented for consideration of the Senate.

Student Association President Bill Scott will announce to the Senate his new proposals for football and basketball seating.

SA business manager candidates discuss issues

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following four stories represent the first of a series of four UD features on Student Association executive officer candidates' views and platforms. Today's articles offer sketches of business managerial candidates. Sketches of internal and external vice presidential and presidential candidates will be presented in the UD Friday, Monday and Tuesday. All interviews were conducted by Managing Editor Cass Ray and Special Reporter Betsy Jarmon.)

Ramirez

Student Association (SA) business managerial candidate William Ramirez said he will represent all students on campus, including minorities, if he is elected.

Ramirez made these comments Tuesday in a UD interview.

"The SA needs to be more responsive to all students," said Ramirez.

"I think I would be receptive to new ideas" as business manager, said Ramirez. He said he would be available to hear the comments and complaints of students.

He offered these qualifications for office: Member of Men's Residence Council and of the University Center Ideas and Issues Committee, participation in the voter registration drive and at least a 3.0 grade point average in 18 hours of accounting courses.

He said he would try to get more coverage of the SA in the UD, encourage students to go to SA meetings, recommend that one of the members of the president's cabinet be a public relations officer and solicit advice on SA matters from students not in student government to improve communication.

To communicate better with Tech faculty, Ramirez said the SA could send a delegate to the Association of University Professors. He said this delegate would tell the professors the students' problems and learn about the professors' problems and find out "how we could help each other."

"The SA needs to establish better relations with the Administration," Ramirez said. "Too often we're fighting each other."

Abolishment of the Student Senate is not a good idea, said Ramirez. "It needs to be reorganized because it has become too much involved in personalities and it needs to be more issue-oriented."

However, "it's the only voice we have," he said.

Haney

Candidate for Student Association (SA) business manager Kurt Haney said Tuesday in a UD interview his work on the College Allowance Program (CAP) and the book exchange qualifies him for the office.

Haney said he has been director of CAP for three weeks.

"I've been working with the present business manager and I know his programs and policies," Haney said.

Haney proposed expansion of CAP, continuance of the book exchange, implementation of the legal aid program, a student co-op gas station and a newsletter for better SA communication with students.

"If we get with leaders of student organizations twice a semester to brief them on our policies and give them time to tell us their complaints, communications will be improved," Haney said.

Haney supports the proposed incorporation of the SA. Problems with sending SA funding to Texas Intercollegiate Student Association and the University of Texas legal defense fund "wouldn't have happened if the SA had been incorporated," Haney said. He explained the SA would have then been able to allocate its own funds without administrative approval.

Haney said he favors expansion of the faculty-student council.

The faculty-student council could take the place of the Senate as the SA legislative body as early as next semester, Haney said.

If elected, Haney said he will work with the external vice president and the president to implement programs which will benefit students.

Mickey

If elected, Student Association (SA) business managerial candidate Lynette Mickey will work to make the SA "stronger and more pertinent to its representation of the students," Miss Mickey said Tuesday in a UD interview.

"Despite the recent student referendum which indicated otherwise, the business managerial position is not an obsolete position," she said. "The position is necessary as a check and balance. You're much more careful when someone's watching you. It's really easy to get the records in a mess — in any branch of student government."

Miss Mickey suggested a bi-annual audit of the SA books by the Tech Administration. "I'd also like to take a look at their (the Administration's) books."

Miss Mickey said she has spent "quite a number of years in accounting in various companies, large and small, and for individuals. I make my living at bookkeeping."

"The Student Association should take a particularly strong stand against the Administration in the TISA-UT legal defense fund confrontation," she said. Tech administrators recently demanded the return of a $250 SA check forwarded to the University of Texas legal defense fund and of a $500 check to the Texas Intercollegiate Student Association (TISA). The administrators claimed university funds could not be allocated for private use.

"As for the Tech Legal Aid Program, too many compromises have been made by the students," Miss Mickey said. "The legal aid people should be in a position to sue the Administration. This philosophy is much more attractive to student interest and participation."

Miss Mickey said the College Allowance Program is "very good as it now stands" and proposed the allocation of additional SA funds for the book exchange.

Also proposed by Miss Mickey is the renting "of everything from typewriters to bicycles" to students by the SA.

Cotten

Student Association (SA) business managerial candidate Joe Cotten said Wednesday in a UD interview that he will work for the "expansion and improvement" of the College Allowance Program (CAP) if elected.

"CAP needs overhauling," Cotten said. "We've experienced a failure of communication with this program. The students need to know what stores have what merchandise."

"The new external vice presidential position has stripped some powers from the business manager," Cotten said. "About all that's left is the bookkeeping but I'll be working closely with the external vice president on SA programs."

Cotten called the University of Texas legal defense fund "a cornerstone. If they pull it through down there, it's going to open the gate for our legal aid program."

Cotten said he hoped to work for "increasing student support and interest in student government by appealing to their pocketbooks." He said he hoped to implement "a very effective co-op plan."

"I can't see abolishing the SA even though the meetings often get particularly out of hand," Cotten said. "I think it's (SA) moving in the right direction."

Cotten lists one-year terms with the Senate and Freshman Council as his qualifications.

You have to try everything

FRANCES FARENTHOLD, female candidate for governor, has been picking up some real campaign issues lately.

Ms. Farenthold is running at least third, and probably fourth in the state's top race, but that won't stop her from letting people know she is there.

The Gus Mutscher trial in Abilene will give her much more material to attack her two major opponents, incumbent Gov. Preston Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes. Both men were subpoenaed earlier this week by the defense to testify at the trial.

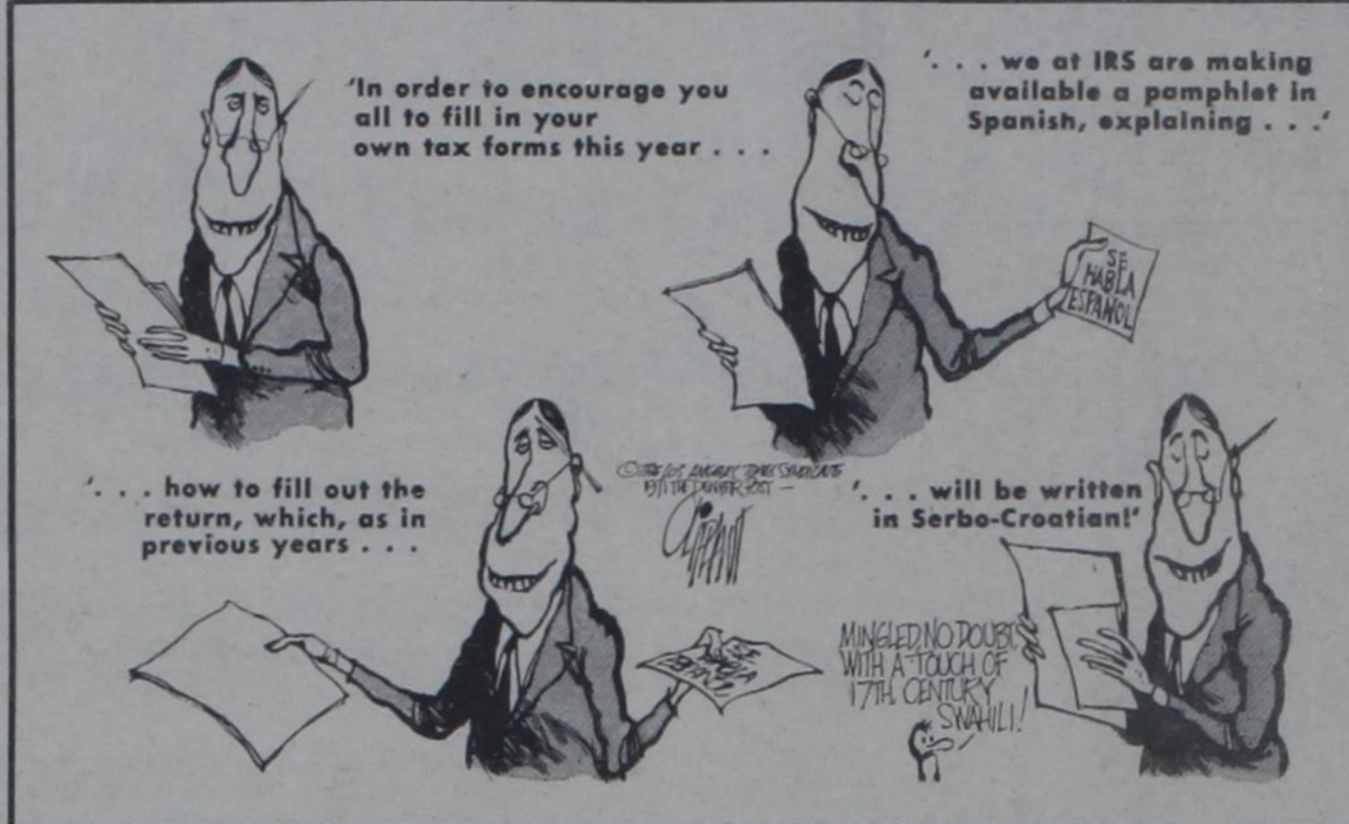

Smith was mentioned in investigations and exposure of the SEC's I-Smell-A-Rat stock scandal. Although, Barnes has never been directly linked to the stock scandal, he has been tainted by the fact that many other comparable top state office holders have been directly tied with the case.

Ms. Farenthold was a member of the original "Dirty 30" who opposed Mutscher in the Texas House of Representatives. She continually tried to set up investigations into Mutscher's and other state officials' part in the stock case. Now the happenings at Abilene give her plenty more ammunition for her campaign.

ONE THING Ms. Farenthold has vowed not to do in her campaign is highway billboards. She is refraining from this type of campaigning in what she says is her part of following the Highway Beautification Act of 1965 that was pushed by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. Her reasoning is that it is hypocritical for politicians to be talking about quality of life in Texas and at the same time polluting the countryside with slick slogans.

However, it is doubtful other candidates will follow her step in this direction. Anyone that remembers the campaign two years ago remembers how Lloyd Bentsen defeated Ralph Yarborough for the U.S. Senate. Bentsen spent loads of money on billboards across the state and the results proved quite rewarding—he won.

But it is a nice little tactic by Ms. Farenthold—when you are running fourth with no money, you don't just try harder, you try everything.

The Russians are happy

By Charles B. Moore

Comrade Boris Zadvolk, chief of the infamous SIA (Soviet Spies in America), recently made a hurried trip back to Moscow for an emergency council meeting.

"Comrade Zadvolk," said Chairman Breeznek, "you'd better have a good reason for calling the Politburo together on such short notice."

"I have, sir," said Zadvolk. "After carefully analyzing all intelligence data to date, I can report that in a few years the United States will be a second-rate power."

"That's the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard," sneered Marshal Raslov, chief of Soviet Military Intelligence. "The Americans have one of the most powerful armies in the world."

"True sir. But not for much longer. The United States is slowly decaying from within."

"Explain yourself," yelled the chairman.

"It's quite simple," answered the SIA chief. "The Americans are so confused, disenchanted and demoralized that should Hawaii be invaded today by a foreign nation, no one would care. If the U.S. President sent troops to Waikiki, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would accuse him of invading another country."

Several Communist leaders gasped and reached for their vodka glasses. One said, "Those are pretty serious charges, Comrade. Surely the Americans haven't become that liberal?"

"Sir, let me give you a few examples to prove my point: 'The United States is in turmoil, bordering on a civil war between the students and the government; a civil war between the blacks and whites; a civil war between Congress and the President; and a civil war between CBS and the Vice President.'

"Every American college is in flames and university presidents are helping to ignite the fires."

John Lindsay, Mayor of America's largest city publicly stated that the 'real heroes' of today are not the young Americans in Vietnam but the draft dodgers.

"Nixon's personal staff writes him nasty letters then leaks them to the press."

"Congress wants to impeach the President and cut off his funds for the war."

"American children are no longer taught the three R's. Now they're taught the three D's — Demand, Dissent and Destroy."

"The Army's popularity is so low that David Eisenhower, the President's son-in-law, rejected family tradition and joined the Navy. ROTC is almost a thing of the past and soon the Army will not be allowed to conscript soldiers."

"Most members of the Silent Majority are afraid to fly the U.S. flag for fear of having their windows broken."

"America has only eight national heroes now — the Chicago Seven and Senator J. W. Fulbright."

"I could go on and on sir..." Chairman Breeznek slowly shook his head. "Your report sounds too good to be true. If what you say is true, then we can break off the SALT talks and perhaps ship a few missiles to Castro. But Comrade Zadvolk, are you sure this is really what the American people believe?"

Comrade Zadvolk smiled smugly. "There's no doubt about it, sir. The American public gets all its news from three major television networks which spend millions of dollars daily just to get all the bad news. What else could they believe?"

The committee cheered wildly. Chairman Breeznek jumped on the table and yelled: "Let's hear it for Windy Krankcase and KBS News."

Letters to the editor

Writer justifies death penalty

I am speaking of the California Supreme Court's decision to remove capital punishment. When capital punishment is removed, the entire basis for government has been undermined to that what remains is a house built on sand.

Here are reasons for giving up capital punishment:

1. The California Supreme Court says it is "incompatible with the dignity of man and judicial process."

2. California Chief Justice Donald Wright claimed it "degrades and dehumanizes all who participate in the process."

3. Capital punishment, says Stanford University law professor Anthony Amsterdam, is "severe beyond all human comprehension."

The statements imply that man is valuable, and to say this there must be an absolute standard. However, majority rule is not that standard. What if 51 per cent of the people voted to execute everyone named (fill in your name.)

By the majority rule standard, it is absolutely right to execute these people, but we would all recognize that that is wrong. Therefore, our very nature tells us there is an absolute standard above man — what we call a god.

This god must be a god of absolute justice, truth, omniscience, and sovereignty (to establish an absolute standard) and he must reveal his absolute standard to man.

The only God who has ever revealed Himself in history by

His own voice and written words is the God of Judaism and Christianity and He has set down His absolute standard concerning capital punishment in Genesis 9:6 of the BIBLE. "Whoever sheds the blood of man, by man (mankind-referring to a legal, judicial process, not an individual act of revenge) shall his blood be shed; for God made man in His own image."

Here, God not only demands capital punishment, He also says why — man has value because he was created by God in His own image, and that is why He demands that government carry out His justice on those who wantonly destroy others.

Therefore, when a man argues that capital punishment must be done away because it is "incompatible with the dignity of man," he had better consider that man has dignity only because the sovereign God says he has value.

That same God commands capital punishment to preserve the dignity of man — the innocent man, not the guilty one.

New magazine has nonserious look at life

A new literary magazine came out this week sponsored by the Honors Council which proposes to "fill the vacuum that long negated serious inquiry and aesthetic expression."

This illustrated booklet named "Reverberations" contains two short stories, a book review, a non-serious history of the world, and several poems. "This is the first issue of the magazine. It was created and published by the Honors Council Committee on Publication and Communication," said Peder G. Christiansen, faculty member of the Honors program. The staff are members of the honors program but anyone can submit entries to be approved for publication. The articles are from faculty, students and non-students.

The publication is financed by money from the Honors Council and advertising. It has not been decided if more issues will come out soon. The editorial board includes Linda McAninch, Barbara Edmiston, and Nephtali De Leon.

Tonight, at 6:30, Sally Baker of KTXT-TV, Channel 5 will interview Nephtali De Leon, part-time Tech student and author of his recent book Chicanos: Our Background and Our Pride.

Also, watch for the University Daily Book review of De Leon's book in Friday's edition.

50th anniversary will be full two-year observance

Tech's fiftieth anniversary will be marked by a two-year observance which will span the period from 1973 to 1975.

The anniversary steering committee made the announcement in its first meeting Tuesday.

The enabling legislation which created the institution was signed by former Gov. Pat Neff in 1923 and Tech accepted its first class of 910 students in the fall of 1925.

Tech President Grover E. Murray, chairman of the steering committee, pointed out the committee's responsibility is to provide broad guidance for the activities, events and ceremonies that will comprise the program.

An activities committee will in turn carry out the detailed planning and implementation of the program.

Among the activities and events being considered are symposia, distinguished lecturers, speakers series, athletic events, special art and music events, academic ceremonies, a scholarly history and the observance of charter day.

The committee pointed out the desire for community involvement and participation in the anniversary celebration inasmuch as the city was instrumental in having Tech located at Lubbock, with the original gift of land and has been a continuous supporter since that time.

Off-campus bus schedules revised to serve more

Tech traffic and parking counselor, Frank Church, announced that off-campus bus routes have been revised.

An advertisement in the University Daily misinforming readers about obtaining information about Australia for $3 was called to the newspaper's attention by Dr. James L. Griffith, Tech math professor.

Dr. Griffith, a native of Australia, said, "It is completely unnecessary for students to pay money to get information about Australia. The country encourages American immigration, and the Australian Consulate will send interested persons necessary information free of charge."

The advertisement was sent from a private box number in Dallas and was printed in the U.D. November 8.

Idle Thoughts

Idle thoughts while thinking that there has never been an organization that does so little, for so many, so much of the time, as the Student Senate.

Time was, you see, when the average American boy was the two-headed Huck Finn type. Understand that was before the invent of riots, athlete's lib, and Jane Fonda.

Perhaps David Johnson is a throw back to other times. He is not a spectacular ballplayer. Fans don't have his name on the tips of their tongues and he hasn't been handcuffed at any ballgames to get his name in the spotlight.

But Johnson is to a ballclub, much like a clutch is to a standard transmission car. They don't stand out but try and get along without them.

"David Johnson is one of the most underrated ballplayers in our conference," stated Texas basketball coach Leon Black earlier in the year. "He is smart, doesn't make many mistakes and can be a very calming factor on the Tech ballclub."

Indeed it has been noticed by this reporter for two years that Johnson possesses an intangible ingredient that spells coolness on the basketball floor.

Perhaps this part of his personality has been refined after many years of basketball games that have taken him from his Austin (McCallum) high school days up to the present.

Whatever the reason, it is indeed a lucky thing for David that he stays cool because of the ups and downs his college basketball days have taken.

During high school Johnson was something of a hotshot. "David Johnson was one of the best, if not the best player that I have seen in many years," said Bill Jones, assistant sports information for the University of Texas last season. "But that was before he was injured," he continued.

Ah yes, what about those injuries? Both of Johnson's knees have been operated which should qualify him for some kind of butchers appreciation award.

The first injury took place during his freshman year. He played four games before the great butcherknife got ahold of his body.

After a redshirt year to recuperate from the operation Johnson joined the varsity where he saw limited action. During his junior year he suffered with the team through the coaching change and a so-so year. And this season has been a totally different experience.

"The thing about this year has been the strangeness of it all, said Johnson. First, all the junior college guys had to form a team nucleus with the returning squad. Then there has been the way Greg (Lowery) has really had to hang on and play with his injury. And finally it has been interesting to watch the way that Little (Richard) and Moore (Don) have really improved to help the club."

Through all the memories could there be possibly one that sticks out in his mind above the rest.

"There certainly is, he replied. The lob pass that I made over Palomar's head in the last seconds of the TCU game is gonna bother me for a long time because I felt that we should have won the game. I just can't believe that I threw the ball away like that.

The past has been fine for David Johnson and he says he would change a thing among the injuries, victories and losses.

The future holds an advertising degree this spring and then its not clear what David and his wife, Mary, will do.

However, if the Huck Finn movies ever become popular again I know where I could find a great lanky lead.

Football passes baseball

NEW YORK (AP)—Pro football has surged past baseball as America's national pastime but baseball's World Series remains the No. 1 sports event, according to a special poll today by The Associated Press.

"Baseball is about as exciting as batting rocks with a stick on a country road," said Ken Booth of Radio Station KEEL in Shreveport, La.

"I vote baseball as still our national pastime," countered John Steadman, sports editor of the Baltimore News-American. "Baseball has a certain simplicity to it that is genuine and good."

Such were examples of the contrasting opinions in the first of a projected series of polls on controversial issues conducted by The AP among the nation's sports writers and sports casters.

The newsmen were presented a simple ballot, asking: What is America's No. 1 sport? What is the top sports event?

Comments and suggestions were invited. With 727 voting, 474 chose pro football. There were 223 votes for baseball with 30 write-in votes for college football, auto racing, track and field, basketball and horse racing.

SWC swimmers at Tech

By LES MOORHEAD
Ass't Sports Editor

Today's schedule includes diving, freestyle, medley

but has had fine times.

Other Raiders to look at are divers Chris Schacht and Steve Hundley. Schacht will battle SMU's Cal Looock and Doug Middleton, Texas' Bill Holloway and others for the title.

TOP MUSTANG TANKERS INCLUDE All-American Jerry Heidenreich, a top freestyler; Ronnie Mills, who won a bronze medal in the 1968 Olympic games in the 100 backstroke; and Looock an All-American and the defending SWC champion in both the one and three meter dives.

In addition to the SMU standouts, other conference individuals include Arkansas' Jerry Shannon, defending champ in the 200-yard butterfly and Felipe Munoz of Texas. Munoz, a gold medal winner for Mexico in the '68 games, won in the 200-yard backstroke.

Tech's Rick Denman and Dave Grimes are expected to shine in the 100 butterfly race.

The Raiders finished fourth in last year's SWC meet, and McNally feels the Raiders may improve on that at their home pool. Tech has been third in eight of the last ten conference meets.

Admission for the conference meet for day events is 50 cents for Tech students and faculty members with an ID and $1.00 for all others.

Admission for events starting at 8 p.m. is 75 cents for students and faculty with an ID and $1.50 for all others.

Donny Anderson, ex-Raider All-American footballer and now with the St. Louis pro team, revealed plans for a pro-am golf tournament at Lubbock's Hillcrest Country Club.

Ex-Tech ace

Anderson announces pro-am golf tourney

A major golf tournament, slated to attract personalities from both the golfing and entertainment world, was announced for Lubbock Wednesday by former Tech athlete Donny Anderson.

Anderson, NFL running back for the St. Louis Cardinals and formerly of the Green Bay Packers, said that the Donny Anderson Pro-Celebrity Classic will be hosted May 22-23 at Hillcrest Country Club.

Anderson made the announcement jointly with the Lubbock Junior Chamber of Commerce. The tournament will be a charity event which will support a home for juvenile delinquents.

Several top name entertainers and sports figures have already committed themselves to play in the pro-am tourney. Among those playing will be Bart Starr of the Packers, Otis Taylor of the Kansas City Chiefs, Roger Staubach of the World Champion Dallas Cowboys and former Cowboy running back Don Perkins.

Show business personalities include TV actor Dale Robertson and Hee Haw stars Archie Campbell and George 'Goober' Lindsey. Rick Barry, controversial 'superstar' of the New York Nets basketball will also be participating.

Amateur players from the Lubbock area will be invited to play with the celebrity participants which will include several touring golf professionals yet to be named.

Each amateur will be teamed by blind draw with other amateurs and one pro or celebrity for each of the two rounds played.

Anderson said the participants and guests will be guests for a dinner and show during the tournament. The dinner will feature entertainment by many of the events start at 8 p.m. Friday.

The swimming and diving meet goes into its final run Saturday at 12 p.m. with preliminaries in the 1,650-yard freestyle, 100 freestyle, 200 backstroke, 200 breaststroke, 100 butterfly, three-meter diving and the 400 freestyle relay that will terminate the SWC meet.

Finals Saturday begin at 8 p.m.

THE SWC SWIMMING COMPETITION HAS SKYROCKETED in the past few years due mainly to the strength of perennial champ Southern Methodist, and this year the same is expected from the Mustangs.

SMU's strength is in its depth at every conceivable position. In a recent poll conducted by a nation-wide syndicate, SMU was rated second in the nation. The Ponies are favored to celebrities present.

The profits from the tournament will be used by the Lubbock Jaycees to start a building fund for a juvenile halfway home for Lubbock. The home will be used by boys and girls that are recommended by the Lubbock juvenile probation office.

Anderson also announced that his brother, Larry Anderson, will be General Chairman of the tournament. Both brothers expressed pleasure that the tourney is being brought to Lubbock and pledged their efforts to make it "a first class tournament in every way".

Baylor's coliseum site of possible SWC play-off

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference announced Wednesday that the Heart O' Texas coliseum in Waco will be the playoff site should the SWC basketball championship race end in a two-way tie.

The winner of the Texas-TCU game Saturday will capture at least half of the crown. Southern Methodist must defeat Baylor Saturday to win the other half.

SMU and the Texas-TCU victor would then play in Waco to determine who would advance to the regional NCAA playoffs.

No game time has been set.

Houston accepts basketball bid

HOUSTON (AP)—Thirteenth ranked University of Houston accepted its seventh invitation to the NCAA basketball playoffs Wednesday and head coach Guy Lewis said he was happier with this year's berth than all the others.

"I'm probably happier about getting in this time than any other time we've been there," Lewis said after accepting the invitation to play in the pre-regional tournament at Las Cruces, N.M. March 11.

"Our kids made a fine comeback," Lewis said of the Cougars' 11-game winning streak that was cut Monday night by Jacksonville in a 110-108 squeaker at Jacksonville.

NMJC pulls upset in Juco tilt

A fired-up New Mexico Junior College team upset nationally ranked and heavily favored Hill Junior College Wednesday night, 98-78, in the Region V Junior College Basketball Tournament.

New Mexico, seeded eighth in the tourney, played a stiff zone defense and shot hot from the outside to eliminate the number six team in the nation.

Ben Garner, a 6'3½" forward, paced the Thunderbirds with 35 points and 19 rebounds. Ron March contributed 32 for the losing Rebel squad.

Hill took an early lead but were eclipsed late in the first half and were never able to overcome the deficit which grew as large as 22 points. NMJC held an edge at halftime of 47-44.

In other games, Amarillo College defeated Schreiner Institute 88-83, South Plains downed Ranger 89-73, and McLennan Community College edged Howard County College 73-70.

Semi-final games will be played tonight in the Coliseum with New Mexico meeting McLennan at 7 p.m. and South Plains going against Amarillo at 9 p.m.

The championship round will be played at 9 p.m. Friday, preceded by the consolation game at 7 p.m.

The winner of the tournament will meet the winner of Region XIV, either Tyler JC or San Jacinto, for a berth in the NJCAA tournament later this month in Hutchinson, Kans.

Standouts in the other games were Archie Myers with 44 points in a losing effort for Howard Co. and Larry Kenon with 37 points in Amarillo's victory over Schreiner.

The Region V tournament is being sponsored by the Lubbock Amateur Athletic Association, Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Texas Tech University and South Plains College in Levelland.

But the main point is you, Saddle

Tramps can make Texas Tech more than just an ordinary college experience. You'll be able to feel pride in your university and yourself.
