Larger Oil Quota For State Is Seen

AUSTIN, July 17 (AP)—Texas, already producing considerably more than 1,400,000 barrels of oil a day, may receive an even larger allowable output for August after the monthly prorating hearing here Monday.

It will be the first statewide hearing before the commissioner since Thompson returned from the world petroleum congress at Paris. The state's allowable at the start of July was 1,385,476 barrels. It always increases considerably during a month because of well completions.

District Agent In Conferences Here

Miss Kate Adele Hill, District No. 6 home demonstration agent, spent the weekend in this area, conferring with a group of county officials and agents, and succeeded in securing restoration of home demonstration work in Martin county.

After a conference with the Martin county judge Friday afternoon, she announced that an appropriation for the work had been reinstated and that an agent would be on the field September 1.

Earlier in the day she had conferred with the Midland county agent. Saturday she scored the winner of the Dawson county girls' bedroom contest for the district contest. She also attended a Dawson county 4-H club reporters conference.

She was here Saturday evening and planned to spend Sunday with Miss Lora Farnsworth, Howard county home demonstration agent.

Texas Railroad Commission's Far-Flung Activities Mean Supervision Of Billion Dollars In Business

By HAYMOND BROOKS
Herald Austin Correspondent
AUSTIN, July 17—Over a billion dollars of business a year is supervised and regulated by the three-man Texas railroad commission.

So far as Texas has public utility regulation, the railroad commission is its supervisory and enforcement agency.

Utility control covers rail and motor transportation, and the sale of natural gas. But the big end of the railroad commission's task is the conservation program for oil and gas, specifically recognized as not being public utilities, yet subject to state regulation and proration.

The railroad commission has, with the sole exception of the state board of control, the broadest and most varied scope of work in the entire field of Texas public administration, and the values involved in the industries it supervises, the wealth produced in oil and gas under its regulatory powers, far exceeds the entire volume of all business and industry under such direct regulation of all other branches of the government combined.

Complex Organization

The rail commission has an elaborate and complex internal organization to carry on its vast range of duties. The department is headed up by three commissioners elected for six-year terms, all men trained by years of public service.

The late John H. Reagan fought the battle for state regulation of the railroads; and when the state commission had been created, he regarded its work important enough to leave the United States senate and return to Austin to organize and start it off. Generally, except in case of the readjustments resulting from appointments to fill vacancies, changes in the commission personnel are very gradual. The late Allison Mayfield and the late Clarence Gilmore served for many years, until death claimed them.

O. V. Terrell is the chairman-member of the commission this biennium, under the two-year rotating plan of the chairmanship. Each man, in the final two years of his term, serves as chairman. Col. Ernest O. Thompson, member, was chairman during the past two years. The third member, Lon A. Smith, has served as chairman, and will succeed to the same title on expiration of Terrell's term.

The Commissioners

Chairman Terrell was a member of the Texas senate from Decatur, and state treasurer before he went upon the railroad commission a decade ago.

Commissioner Smith was a member of the senate from Henderson in the pre-oil days, then state comptroller, before he went to the commission 13 years ago.

Colonel Thompson had won national wide renown as the fighting mayor of Amarillo before he was chosen to fill out the term of the resigned member, Pat M. Neff, who became president of Baylor university.

The commission is in fact a collection of five or six distinct agencies of government, put together under the state's nearest approach to a public utilities body. There have at various times been efforts to create a state natural resources commission, which would have taken oil and gas supervision from the railroad board. There have been other efforts to create a public utilities commission, which would have the effect only of withdrawing the gas utilities division from it. The utilities commission effort will be resumed this fall. If a separate commission is created, it will take over a division which has the record of having never lost a fight to reduce a gas rate, and never lost a rate litigation in the courts.

Glance At Setup

Here is a thumb-nail sketch of the vast machinery which is included when one says "railroad commission," with each agency a major unit of state administration.

The oil and gas division is directly responsible for the conservation and proration program, supervising 625 distinct oil fields, and close on to 100,000 producing wells. Allowable orders for each field and each well are made monthly, based on hearings held by the commission.

Laten Stanberry is chief supervisor of this department. Besides the Austin headquarters, there are 11 district headquarters over the state, including a big East Texas office at Kilgore. These deputy supervisors' offices are located at San Antonio, Refugio, Houston, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Kilgore, Abilene, San Angelo, Midland, Wichita Falls and Pampa.

A recently-established bureau is that of oil production, transportation and refining, which keeps a check on the production and handling of oil and oil products. This is the division that deals with the tender boards, and which works with federal authorities in administering the Connally interstate oil law. Capt. E. N. Stanley, Kilgore, is chief enforcement officer.

Interstate Compact

Besides direct state supervision of the oil industry, Colonel Thompson is chairman of the interstate oil compact, operating under treaties approved and authorized by congress, for mutual protection of the industry in all states, directed, as is the proration law, at the prevention of waste.

The gas utilities division supervises the fixing of gas rates for consumers of Texas, under a combination of appellate and original jurisdiction. Either the division or the city governments may originate a rate change proposal. Finally, the commission's order governs the rate; but in most cases, litigation has tested out reasonableness of the orders.

Olin Culbertson is director of the gas utilities division.

When commercial motor transportation—trucks and buses—went under state supervision and regulation, it naturally was put in charge of the railroad commission, because of its similarity to rail competition. A big division which administers the common-carrier law, and issues licenses to commercial trucks and buses, regulates routes, schedules and rates of the common carriers, has been built up. Mark Marshall, former Wise county business man, was chosen at the beginning to head this division, and has remained in charge ever since its organization.

The commission regulates as well the rates of common carrier pipelines.

Original Function

These functions, oil proration and enforcement, gas utilities and motor transportation, all are outside the original field of function, which was to regulate the rates and services of railroads. The post of chief engineer of the railroad branch of the service was long held by Louis F. Gueringer, until his retirement last year; and has not been permanently filled. C. R. McNamee is chief of the tariff division, which passes on and approves and regulates the freight, passenger and express rates for rail transportation. A. J. Scrivner has charge of a phase of the work of integrating state rates with interstate rates regulated by the interstate commerce commission. His title is interstate rate expert.

W. A. Weeks is auditor of the commission, and C. F. Petet secretary.

Robinson Had No Premonition Of Death, In Opinion Of John Garner

TEXARKANA, July 17 (AP)—Vice President John N. Garner said here tonight he believed Sen. Joseph T. Robinson had no premonition of the death which struck him down in Washington.

The vice president stopped overnight to rest enroute from his home in Uvalde to Little Rock, Ark., to attend funeral services for the senator who had been his close friend and associate in congress for more than 30 years.

"I had two letters from Senator Robinson the week before he died," Mr. Garner said. "Also saw him just before I left Washington, and he appeared in good health. I think he had no premonition of death."

Speeding overland to join the nation's last tribute to the democratic senate leader, the vice president avoided talk of politics, in accordance with his custom of long standing when outside of Washington.

In answer to a question as to when he thought congress would adjourn, he smiled and said, "you answer that one."

A possible indication that the situation created by Robinson's death was pressing for attention was seen, however, in the intimation he might terminate his automobile trip in Little Rock, going to Washington by train with members of congress who accompanied the senator's body from the national capital.

The vice president planned to leave Texarkana about 7 a. m. tomorrow and arrive in Little Rock as soon as possible.

Long before sunup Mr. Garner left his tree-shaded home in the hills of Southwest Texas where he had been vacationing since the middle of June. Mrs. Garner did not accompany him.

Throughout the day his car rolled through Central and East Texas over an unmarked road in order to avoid crowds. He was unrecognized generally at the few stops he made, although in Palestine, where he had lunch, several persons pressed forward to shake hands.

When another stop was made for gasoline two men rushed up, explaining they had been following his car for several miles and wanted to greet him. Again the vice president shook hands affably.

D. Price Carter And Miss Montgomery Married Here

In an impressive ceremony marked by simplicity, Miss Maureen Montgomery became the bride of D. Price Carter at the home of Rev. C. E. Lancaster, First Baptist pastor, at 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Reeves.

The bride was gowned in navy blue marquisette with white accessories.

Mrs. Carter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery, long time residents of this county. She was graduated from the Big Spring high school in 1936. Carter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Carter, members of pioneer families. He was graduated from Denton high school in 1935.

They will be at home at 701 Lancaster. Carter is associated with the Courtesy Service station.

FEDERAL AGENCY'S BUDGET REDUCED

DALLAS, July 17 (AP)—The economy axe will be felt in the resettlement administration's forces in Texas and Oklahoma shortly, in the opinion of acting regional Director Paul V. Maris, but is not expected to reduce farmer's benefits.

Maris said today the region's budget for next year was set at $1,022,351, a reduction of 12 per cent. He said he thought rural rehabilitation would be on the same scale as last year.

47,500 Radio 'Hams' Help In Big Disasters

"FIVE METER DAY"
Atop a hill overlooking San Francisco, Robert Reimus gets set to communicate with other radio amateurs on an experimental five-meter wave length in an attempt for greater distance.

By SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer
SAN FRANCISCO—Is a five-meter day? Is a ship on fire? Have floods cut off a city from normal communication with the outside world?
In emergencies like these some 47,500 amateur radio operators or "hams," as they like to call themselves, swing into action over the nation to backstop rescue work.

"They know that the big commercial and government radio probably will pick up all distress messages," says Robert Reimus who operates W6IXZ here.

"But there is always the chance that at some little amateur station conditions will be just right for reception of a life-or-death appeal that otherwise would be lost."

When Amelia Earhart was forced down in the Pacific many a set was tuned to her frequency of 2,405 kilocycles and many a hopeful but dubious message reported to the coast guard.

Today, says the American Radio Relay league, "practically an exploring trip starts to remote parts of the world without arrangements to communicate through amateur radio."

"The government encourages and licenses amateurs, less for their peace time value than to provide a skilled communications staff in time of war. In 1917-18, though ham stations were in their infancy, they contributed 3,500 radio men to the army and navy.

Amateurs are assigned the "short waves" that commercial companies once thought they didn't want.

Now operating mostly on bands at 160, 80, 40, 20 and 10 meters, the "hams" are exploring the possibilities of wave lengths of 5 meters and less. Occasionally a whole state holds a "five-meter day." Operators take their sets to hilltops and seashore and try desperately to extend the wave length's normal range of one or two hundred miles.

When there are no emergencies the amateurs spend their time fishing for distant stations and chatting back and forth.

They also have an organized message system, available to the public, but accept no money for commissions.

Girls' Club Members Map Contest Plans

4-H Clothing Event To Be Staged In Big Spring July 24

Complete plans for the 4-H club girls' clothing contest to be held here July 24 were formulated Saturday afternoon at conference of club sponsors and Miss Lora Farnsworth, county home demonstration agent.

The contest will be opened at 10 a. m. in the basement of the First Methodist church and the morning session will be devoted to classification of dresses for the revue, and a program of entertainment by the various clubs.

At noon the girls and guests will stage a basket dinner at the city park.

Beginning at 2 p. m. clothing work will be judged by Miss Christine Czako, Sweetwater, Nolan county home demonstration agent. Competition will be in three classes: (1) Demonstrators—records, improvements and clothing; (2) co-operators—suits and sheer dresses; and (3) co-operators—suits and tailored dresses. Three prizes will be given to winners of each division, and the winner of the demonstrators section will be given a free trip to the A. & M. short course by the women's clubs of the county.

Mrs. H. C. Reid, chairman of the sponsors, presided over the Saturday meeting. Miss Gertrude Cline served as secretary and Mrs. Cecil Hull as reporter.

Discussions of girl club members' poultry records were postponed until July 24 when an attempt will be made to secure a larger attendance of sponsors.

Henry Frick, who died at the age of 102, and was buried in Old Tugalo cemetery, near Texaco, Ga. lived in the eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Waggoner Resists Labor Complaints

VERNON, July 17 (AP)—Waggoner Refinery and Waggoner estate today had begun a defense against charges of unfair labor practices by testimony at a national labor relations board hearing here that employees were discharged for inefficiency and not union activity as the government alleges.

B. W. Morgan, chief operator of the Universal Oil Products company of Chicago, as first witness for the defense, testified that after spending five months at the Waggoner refinery attempting satisfactory operation of a newly installed "cracking" unit he had told officials "something must be done" about certain inefficient employees. Morgan said after mechanical flaws were eliminated unsatisfactory operation continued because of inefficiency of a number of employees. He said he recommended one man be discharged.

The hearing resumed early in the afternoon, until 9 a. m. Tuesday, after J. L. Couter, vice president of the International Oil Worker's Union, testified concerning organization activity at Electric.

VEGETABLE, POTATO GROWERS WANT HELP FROM UNCLE SAM

Congressmen Divided Over Method To Be Followed In New Farm Measure

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—Vegetable and potato growers urged today that federal and state governments enact legislation to improve their incomes.

The recommendations came at a time when congressional advocates of farm legislation were divided over the method that should be used in the new bill.

President Roosevelt went over the situation with Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) of the house agriculture committee during the day, but Jones declined to say what was discussed at the conference.

More than 60 representatives of vegetable and potato growers, who have talked with agriculture department officials during the week urged that special quotas be set up for them under the soil conservation program.

Potato growers said the prospect of a 404,000,000 bushel crop this year threatened "disaster to the industry." They asked the agricultural adjustment administration to establish a diversion program for lower grades of potatoes and establish a special committee to work out a federal potato program.

They asked Secretary Wallace to seek legislation requiring all potatoes moving in interstate commerce "be branded, tagged, or described in terms of United States grades or as unclassified."

Wallace was asked to seek additional federal funds to improve marketing reports, crop estimates, and price studies in the vegetable field. The group said vegetable growers should establish large cooperative marketing organizations able to bargain on equal terms with mass buyers of their products such as canneries and large retail stores.

James said his conference with the president had no bearing on when he would introduce a long-awaited general farm bill but that he hoped to have a tentative draft ready for his committee's consideration when it meets in executive session Tuesday.

House advocates of farm legislation at this session have split three ways over production control, though in general agreement with the proposed "every normal granary" program designed to prevent price fluctuations.

Jones heads one group demanding a voluntary program under which participating farmers would be paid cash benefits financed by a processing tax.

Another group is urging compulsory legislation which would give all farmers marketing quotas in right-hand side of the car easily when parked.

WORK PROGRESSING ON SCHOOL BUILDING AT GARDEN CITY

N. P. Taylor, Glasscock county superintendent, just returned from a several weeks visit in East Texas, said that the $48,000 high school building under construction at Garden City was progressing according to schedule.

The building, authorized by an almost 3-1 vote, three months ago, will contain several classrooms, laboratories and complete equipment for home economics and other vocational courses.

School likely will open in Garden City on September 6.

MAN INDICTED IN HIGHWAY DEATHS

BURNET, July 17 (AP)—A Burnet county grand jury has returned indictments against James K. Cokrell in connection with the traffic deaths June 20 of Ace Lee Bird, 4, and Walter Bird, 7.

The indictments charged murder and failure to stop and render aid. The accident happened while the children were walking along highway No. 66 between Lampasas and Burnet.

Judge Raymond Gray fixed bond years when surplus crops threaten the price structure.

The third group wants the federal government to fix cost of production prices on farm commodities needed for domestic use and the "every-normal" granary program.

In the murder charge at $2,500 and in the failure to stop and render aid court at $1,500.

OLDSMOBILE ANNOUNCES THE NEW AUTOMATIC SAFETY-TRANSMISSION

First News of the Most Sensational Transmission Development in 20 years... An Astonishing New Automatic Gear-Shift That Sets a New World-Standard of Driving Ease, Performance and Economy... New! Nothing Else Like It in the World!

OLDEST MANUFACTURER IN THE AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS—pioneer of scores of important advancements over a period of forty years—Oldsmobile again offers the public a new and startling engineering development of far-reaching significance to motorists—the Automatic Safety-Transmission!

THE GOAL OF ENGINEERS FOR YEARS
The idea of an automatic transmission is not new. It has been the dream and inspiration of automotive engineers for years. Many makeshift automatic devices have been tried from time to time. But it took Oldsmobile with its advanced thinking and its corps of competent engineers to perfect the first and only really successful automatic safety-transmission ever to be presented to the American public.

Conceived more than five years ago, Oldsmobile's Automatic Safety-Transmission has been checked, tested and perfected by more than five hundred thousand miles of driving on the General Motors Proving Ground through all conditions of road and weather.

NO GEAR SHIFT LEVER
Oldsmobile's Automatic Safety-Transmission is entirely new and different. It completely eliminates the gear shift lever, thus making it possible for three to ride comfortably in the front seat. Nor is it necessary for the driver to select the gears.

reduced upkeep and maintenance expense.

NEW STANDARD OF ECONOMY
With all its marvelous advantages in simplified driving and in flashing performance, Oldsmobile's Automatic Safety-Transmission actually saves you money. Comparative figures show savings of 18% to 20% in fuel consumption, and increased oil economy. In addition, lower engine speeds mean longer life and

ASK FOR THIS INTERESTING BOOKLET
Your Oldsmobile dealer has a free booklet which tells all about this sensational new Automatic Safety-Transmission, in clear, non-technical language. Ask him for a copy, or write to the Oldsmobile factory, Lansing, Mich. Then take a drive in an Oldsmobile with an Automatic Safety-Transmission. There's nothing else like it in the world.

NOW BEING DEMONSTRATED

- 1. AUTOMATIC OPERATION: Gears shift themselves automatically. The Automatic Safety-Transmission selects the correct gear for most efficient operation.
- 2. NO GEAR SHIFT LEVER: Obstructs Front Compartment: Three people can ride in the front seat. It is easier to get in and out from the right-hand side.
- 3. SAFE, TWO-HANDED STEERING: You may keep both hands on the wheel at all times. The result is better car control and greater safety under all conditions.
- 4. MINIMUM USE OF CLUTCH: Reduces clutch action 66 per cent in starting. Once the car is under way, you never need use the clutch again until you stop.
- 5. NEW SUPER-PERFORMANCE: Under all conditions of traffic or speed, performance is more brilliant and more flexible with the Automatic Safety-Transmission.
- 6. "SUPER-DRIVE": A special fourth speed which results in incredible new smoothness, quietness and economy at cruising speeds—and reduces engine wear.
- 7. SPECIAL "PICK-UP GEAR": This extra accelerating speed provides an extra burst of pick-up and power for passing cars or trucks when safety requires it.
- 8. SAVES MONEY ON GAS AND OIL: Actual tests show 18% to 20% savings in gasoline—and considerably greater mileage on oil. Upkeep is also reduced.

Wardrobe For Hot Weather Is Completed With These Costumes

A tailored shirtwaist frock is a boon to any woman's hot weather wardrobe. It is cool, simple in cut and smart for both town and country. This one is made of ivory-beige rayon with beet-root red buttons and belt.

Shorter skirts are a sign of chic and comfort in summer evening gowns. Many of the new ones have hemlines varying from ankle length to 10 inches from the ground. A dancing frock of yellow net is designed with a full skirt which swirls about the ankles. Its décolletage is rimmed with brown-centered daisies.

You can go to market on a hot day in this two-piece frock looking both chic and cool. The dress is made of sheer navy blue rayon crepe, pin-striped in and worked on the diagonal. A sleek sailor of white slit celulose film trimmed with a dark ribbon goes with it.

Varied Interests Occupy Attention Of Society During The Summer

Varied interests occupy the attention of society during the mid-summer season when warmer weather takes vacationists to the mount tains, lakes and other resorts. California and the coast cities claim the attention of many from Big Spring. Other states and Texas cities share in popularity of summer travelers.

Museum Undergoes Spring Cleaning, Interior Changes

The annual summer cleaning and changes on the interior of the West Texas Memorial Museum began Saturday under direction of Mrs. Mary Bumpas, director.

During the spring months a number of new exhibits were placed in the museum. A large buffalo head from the Charles Goodnight ranch, an eight foot set of horns from the early Texas stocks of cattle known as the "long horn" breed, a massive elk head by George Hall, a leopard head from southern Mexico by E. L. Binda, taxidermist; two hawks from West Texas, mounted by Carl Hill; a black tail deer killed in the Davis Mountains by M. M. Mance.

Re-marking of exhibits with new cards is another feature of the renovating work. Pre-historic bones and leather relics will be gone over with preservers and old guns will be cleaned and reset in cases. The exhibits of various woods in Howard County, collected by students in science classes in Big Spring high school is unique. A block of red cedar measuring 33 inches in diameter and 16 inches thick, a gift from Jones Lumber company has added interest to the student collection. This block of cedar is from a forest 28 miles from Beltingham, Wash. Such a tree, according to tree experts, registers several hundred years of growth.

The museum will be open to the public every day except Sunday, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Carriers Of Mail Honor Mrs. Velder

Secretary Of National Organization Given Banquet Here

Mrs. E. J. Velder of Bonesteel, South Dakota, secretary of the National Star Route Mail Carrier's Organization of America, was honored at a banquet given Friday evening for mail-carriers of this district.

The affair was held in the banquet room of the Crawford Hotel and Nat Shick, local postmaster, delivered the welcome address. Other speakers were the honoree, Mrs. Velder, and Paul Attaway, rural letter carrier of Big Spring, former president of the state organization of rural letter carriers.

The purpose of the organization is to bring information to bear on congress to do away with the present bidding system and install a sanitary basis with permanent tenure of service. The average price being paid for star route carriers on contract is less than seven cents per mile while the rural free delivery brings twenty cents per mile. It is hoped through this organization of carriers to do away with the present cut-throat system.

Guests present other than Mrs. Velder and Mr. Shick were W. F. Fletcher and C. E. Whorton of Sogewater, J. L. Spralls of Stanton, A. L. Cooley of Monahans, H. L. Ford and W. P. Leeper of Midland and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Evans, Simp Grubbaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Pines Bankhead of Big Spring. Bankhead is president of the state association of star-route carriers.

READING AND WRITING

By John Seiby

"HOME IS WHERE YOU HANG YOUR CHILDHOOD," by Leona Zugsmith; (Random; $1.50).

Leona Zugsmith has not had a collection of short stories published before or rather "selection," since the publisher insists on that word. She has, however, published five novels, the last of which was a deposition on the labor question called "A Time to Remember."

This novel was a success below Fourteenth street, and there is no doubting the earnestness which went into its composition. Just the same it seemed to this reader the eager attempt of a newcomer in a movement to make and justify a place for herself like many of us who, not born in New York, had once become more New York than he natives.

And now there is gentle proof that the labor question is not at all Miss Zugsmith's field. There are no stories in "Home is Where You Hang Your Childhood," and yet farther they are from the labor question the better they are.

Incomparably the best story in the book is "King Lear in Evansville," which like all of Miss Zugsmith's short pieces has nothing a all to do with its setting. She has no gift for making places actual. Evansville might just as well be Fort Wallow, Saska, Chewan. But she has a great touch when it comes to people and their interlocking, intertwining emotions.

"King Lear" is the story of two aging people, one awkward girl who "sacrifices" herself to her elders, one girl who got out of it all and went to—yes, to Greenwich Village. These are unimportant people, indeed they are minor capitalists and probably publishing a story about them in which they are not sacrificed will cost Miss Zugsmith her niche in the Fourteenth street hall of fame. But if there is a person more than 14 mental years old who can read about these people without a shiver of horrified recognition, we admit a serious mistake and bow out.

SCHOOLS AND TAXES

Eyes of Texas taxpayers likely will be fixed on Austin early this week, when the automatic tax board convenes to set this year's ad valorem tax rate. They are interested more than ever because of the complications growing out of the recent increased school per capita apportionment set by the board of education.

The state's ad valorem rate for general revenue purposes cannot be raised, being at the constitutional limit. It cannot well be reduced, in the face of a mounting deficit and of growing revenue needs, due to age pensions and other causes. That makes the school rate the key factor.

The board had indicated it would reduce the school rate from 20 to around 17 cents on the $100 valuation. It has been urged by various taxpayers' organizations to take such a step; and on the other hand it is being flooded with protests against such a reduction from persons connected with the public schools.

The ad valorem rate for the schools at the present is producing, in conjunction with other revenues, enough to maintain the per capita at this year's $19, highest in the state's history. It would appear that here is an appropriate time to give the taxpayer some relief without harming the cause of education in Texas.

Public sympathy is naturally with the schools. Everybody wants our public education system to get all it needs to maintain a first-rate program of primary and secondary training. The additional money accruing from the increased per capita no doubt would be put to good use. Speaking locally, the greater state aid would be of help to Big Spring's schools, whose financial situation is far from bright.

But the public schools must be reasonable and just in their dealings with the people who furnish funds for their existence. There is firm ground for the belief that there is no justification in an unprecedented increase in the per capita at this time when the general financial condition of the state is so unsatisfactory; and when the per capita could be maintained at its present high level with a lower tax.

It is largely a question of which is more important: the state's need of a lower total tax rate, or a higher per capita apportionment. Texans in general probably will throw support to the policy of setting a school rate sufficient for the schools' need and low enough to give the taxpayers a break.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It is not re-echoing the whimsy of a song writer to say "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" when one considers the turn in the career of black-thatched Billy Rose. It would not surprise this observer if he never came back to Broadway except, perhaps, to attend one of Fannie Brice's openings or to confer with his staff of theatrical agents.

And to understand it you have but to spend a day or so in and around Fort Worth, where Rose and a sizeable contingent from Broadway are summering for the second year in succession. As he himself put it in an address the other night "the only way to get along with a Texan is to be on the square with him."

That's what he has done, and that is why he can't walk down any Texas street today without being hailed by a friendly and appreciative populace.

Take the "Frontier Fiesta," for instance. When Texas wanted to celebrate its Centennial last year by summarizing its vast achievements, its wealth, prosperity, hospitality, and genius for creating a state of well-being, it shrewdly placed a large part of the responsibility in the hands of this enigma whose energy and imagination are as flawless as twin Diesel engines.

"Gentlemen," said Rose. "I will make Texas the biggest state in the Union." Well, Texas always has been that, in more ways than one, but he wasn't far wrong when after assembling his staffs, he went to work and finally said, "Gentlemen, here it is."

"It" was a measure of theatrical entertainment such as New York has yet to see. "It" was a revue so dazzling in scope and vast in conception that a combination of the Ziegfeld Follies, George White's Scandals, and Earl Carroll's Vanities, in comparison, would seem like an obscure side-show at a state fair.

Hearing of this, and with a frankly skeptical air, a coterie of New York critics hastened down to Texas to glimpse of what Rose had done. There wasn't a single dissenting voice when they came back and wrote their reviews. That was last year, and now Rose has done the same thing again. It is doubly hard to succeed twice on so vast a scale where "Colossus" is no longer a novelty.

When the Fiesta opened, with its Casa Manana, seating 6,000 dinner guests at one time, its "Thrills of Death," its frontier dance-halls and its Silver Dollar saloons, a number of us hurried down for a day to the Fort Worth sector where Rose is always arm-weary from shaking hands and exchanging salutations.

What we saw convinced us that, so far as Broadway is concerned, Billy Rose is Good-By-Mr.-Chips.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

CONGRESS SHOULD ADJOURN

With the death of Senator Robinson the only sensible thing to do is for congress to finish up its routine business and adjourn.

There is no doubt that this is what congress would do if the president nodded his head. Why should he not do it? If he believes that the large controversial measures, the judiciary bill, the reorganization bill, the farm bill and the wages-and-hours bill cannot wait for the regular session in January, what can he possibly lose by agreeing to an adjournment until the autumn?

The obvious fact is that the climate of Washington in midsummer is dangerous to the health and even worse for the nerves of men who have to carry heavy responsibility. No one who has not spent a summer in Washington can fully appreciate the cruel, sodden and exasperating heat which smothers the capital night and day, makes the streets hideous and the nights without rest. Most men cannot think straight when they are so dreadfully uncomfortable, and only saints are amiable.

In a great emergency like that of 1917-18 or of 1933 men have to make the best of the Washington emergency. But at least in such emergencies they are working in unison with every one else and they are uncomfortable in a common cause. Today, however, men are at cross purposes. They are irritable, impatient, suspicious and resentful. Surely it is wrong to ask them to make great decisions when those same decisions can be made far more intelligently after they have had a rest, have cooled off and have composed their minds.

It is necessary to choose a new leader of the democrats in the senate. There is no leader now in sight who commands as much respect as did Senator Robinson in both wings of the democratic party. With the judiciary bill in its present status, the struggle over the court must surely become a struggle for the leadership of the party. Unless it is the president's purpose to split his party, to seek to crush the dissenters here and now, and to establish his personal ascendancy over what is left of his party, the obvious thing to do is to recommend the judiciary bill, postpone the other bills, and by these concessions to narrow the feeling, and restore a little good feeling.

For what will be the position of Senator Robinson's successor if he has to inaugurate his leadership by attempting to override a passionately convinced minority in his own party?

To ask for an adjournment is even better than to conduct a filibuster. For no one can honestly say that congress is more fit to decide these great issues in July than it will be in October. If, as the president no doubt believes, the people are with him, why should he hesitate to let congress adjourn? Will the people care less for his measures in October than they do in July? Has any reason to fear that the tides of opinion are running against him?

It may be that he has reason to believe that they are but that is not a good reason for insistence now on laws that a calmer and cooler opinion might not support. (Copyright, 1937, New York Tribune, Inc.)

SIT-DOWN TACTICS USED BY WORKERS FOR MEXICO FIRMS

MEXICO CITY, July 17 (AP)—Because they were given their weekly pay checks after banks had closed, employees of the Mexican Telephone and Telegraph company started a country-wide sit-down strike today. The company is United States-owned.

Failure to settle difficulties between the Mexican Aviation company and employees meanwhile threatened to sever passenger plane service out of Mexico. The last plane left for Brownsville, Texas, at 1:25 p. m.

The telephone strike did not disrupt communications in the capital, as Mexico has another telephone system (Ericsson) and most business houses and government offices have both telephones.

More than 30 laboratory employees of the Pierce Oil company, a Sinclair subsidiary at Arbol Grande, Tamulipas, also resorted to sit-down tactics demanding salary adjustments.

With a strike of more than 250 of its 358 employees set for midnight tonight, the Mexican Aviation company announced discontinuance after today's flight of passenger and mail services to Merida, Tampico, Tapachula and Los Angeles, and passenger service to the United States and Guatemala.

Officials discussed with post-officer authorities the maintenance of international airmail service, in view of the fact that Pan-American Airways planes will continue their flights between Brownsville and Guatemala, with refueling stops at Mexico City.

Sights and Sounds By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—A star is born. ... You saw now it was done in the Janet Gaynor movie. The story of Evelyn Daw... Evelyn Daw, 21-year-old Evelyn could play like a pro... Her screen test revealed that red-haired, 21-year-old Evelyn could play like a pro...

Evelyn Daw Her friend had no "in" at the studios, and Evelyn didn't want to join the extras. She tried for and got bits in local operettas. For two years she studied and worked. A month ago she began telephoning Victor Schertzinger, who was looking for a voice that could act...

So Schertzinger finally gave her an audition. He was giving many of them, anyway, because he still had no leading lady. After she sang, he asked: "How much do you weigh?"

"Hundred and eight," she said. "Then 107 pounds of you is voice!" Her screen test revealed that red-haired, 21-year-old Evelyn could play like a pro...

But so often—not to discourage Evelyn Daw—directors find the public doesn't agree about their prodigies. I remember Irving Cummings' enthusiasm for Rosemary Ames. "If she doesn't go over," said Cummings, "then..." And his gesture indicated the futility of further quest for talent. Watching her work, talking to her, I had to agree with him. But the public somehow didn't.

Anna, of course "I'm exaggerating.") But Anna's coming back now on a different tack, and maybe she'll show Sam Grand National's doing a thing called "Gorgeous" and the accents on glamor. They'll take her away from the cabbage patch, rub off the peasant soil whicharty Goldwyn laid on heavily, and give her the satin gloves.

The other day the GN still man went out to Stan's home to take pictures and suggested, as still men inevitably do, that a beach outfit—or—a swimming suit—or—would make a nice picture.

And she appeared in a flowered beach robe which draped just right, and they got some nice pictures. "Leg art" being the art of arts in Hollywood, perhaps here, too, it can be reported that—a star is born...

SUSPECT IS HELD ON FEDERAL COUNTS

WICHITA FALLS, July 17 (AP)—Ray McInturf, 30, was held in Wichita county jail tonight in lieu of $2,500 bond on a charge of forgery and passing a government obligation.

McInturf's arrest by city officers Saturday morning followed a nine-year investigation by federal agents. Leo J. Williams, secret service agent, filed the complaint with United States Commissioner Melville E. Peters.

The secret service agent said a world war veteran, Frank Brown, lost his ex-service papers in 1927 at Fort Worth and that in 1931 the papers were used in securing a $255 loan from the government. Similarly, in 1936, a man posing as Brown presented the papers to secure five "baby bonds" which were cashed for $25.

E. V. Spence left Friday evening via American Airlines plane for Fort Worth. The wolf-eat-a-southern-California fish, has teeth resembling those of a large dog.

FLAME TRAIL

By Marie De Nervaud

Chapter 21 A FIGHT FOR LIFE

Bending down, Josh Hastings loosened the fingers of the hand that still gripped the gun Kay had given to Ted. He held it gingerly with his bandanna, so that no touch of incriminating fingerprints could possibly get on it, and slowly he creaked back to the spot where Ted lay. He pushed on to a small clearing that appeared unexpectedly through the trees.

At the far end of it he could see a tumbled down and apparently deserted shack. Making for it, in a blind instinct to reach shelter, Ted struggled over to this goal, muttering in incoherent delirious phrases.

As he approached, there was a slight movement behind the shuttered window. The next minute, a feminine figure appeared in the broken down doorway, she pushed open a small clearing that appeared unexpectedly through the trees.

For a terrified second, the girl on the threshold and the exhausted and delirious man stared at each other. The girl clutched the jagged wooden frame of the door. Her brown eyes were wide, and her dark hair seemed in sharp contrast to her face, which showed up without a murmur of pity, and examined his wound. Her fingers worked with a gentle expertness.

Rising to her feet, she stepped into the basin and filled it with water. She pulled a clean cloth from a drawer of a rude wash-table in one corner, and deftly proceeded to wash Ted's wound.

The rain, gathering with the swift intensity of mountain storms, beat a wild tattoo on the roof, and gusts of wind shook the tiny shelter to its foundations. But the girl was oblivious to the elements outside as she bent, with absorbed attention, to her battle with life and death.

Then, with one last mighty effort, she pulled Ted inside and managed to lift him onto the cot, just as the first heavy drops of the storm splashed on the roof of the shack.

Panting from her exertion, she leaned back a moment against the wall, and studied the face of the man she had brought in. Evidently reassured by what she saw, she dropped to her knees with a murmur of pity, and examined his wound. Her fingers worked with a gentle expertness.

Rising to her feet, she stepped into the basin and filled it with water. She pulled a clean cloth from a drawer of a rude wash-table in one corner, and deftly proceeded to wash Ted's wound.

The rain, gathering with the swift intensity of mountain storms, beat a wild tattoo on the roof, and gusts of wind shook the tiny shelter to its foundations. But the girl was oblivious to the elements outside as she bent, with absorbed attention, to her battle with life and death.

He tried to pull himself over to the water, but fell back with a groan at the intolerable pain in his chest.

A wild look came into his eyes and he muttered incoherently: Slumping down again by the water, that was so near and yet so far, he seemed on the point of giving up. But with a mighty effort, he roused himself and rolled over so that he was able to reach the edge of the stream.

Sucking in a great gulp of the life-giving drink, his mind cleared for a moment. He remembered distinctly where he was and had happened in his third encounter with Scrap Johnson, on his way over to the Clear Water basin to collect his family.

Ted had dismounted to get a drink at the headwaters of the pass. Just as he was in the act of quenching his thirst, he heard a rasping challenge behind him. Whirling about and drawing at the same time, he had seen Scrap Johnson standing a short distance away.

The next instant there had been the roar and blaze of two guns. Scrap Johnson's bullet had reached its mark first, while Ted's was wild. From that point, memory registered nothing but a blank void shot through with excruciating pain and horror-filled night-mare. Doubtless Scrap Johnson had decided to ride on, and leave him here to die.

All details of the night blurred into delirium, as the pain in his chest swept over him again. But while the delirium persisted, he did not completely lose consciousness.

Through the delirium ran a sub-conscious will to live, a determination to pull through for Kay's sake. She needed him. He must not fail her!

By a gigantic effort, and propelled by this insistent inner force Ted pulled himself up on his hands and knees and began slowly and painfully to drag his aching body along the rocky edge of the stream.

Two thoughts possessed him above all others. He mustn't lose the trail of the water. He must stay by it, so that he could quench the thirst that burned in him. And he mustn't let himself relax and lie down. Once he did that, he would never get up again.

Gradually the dawn lightened across the sky. Dull clouds scattered across the sky and no sun appeared to glisten on the headwaters of the Bitter Root and Clear Water rivers. Ted had managed to drag himself 500 yards or more through the scrub pines that dotted the southeastern slope of the divide.

At the point of exhaustion, but still animated by that mysterious will to live that functions without any conscious control, he pushed on to a small clearing that appeared unexpectedly through the trees.

At the far end of it he could see a tumbled down and apparently deserted shack. Making for it, in a blind instinct to reach shelter, Ted struggled over to this goal, muttering in incoherent delirious phrases.

As he approached, there was a slight movement behind the shuttered window. The next minute, a feminine figure appeared in the broken down doorway, she pushed open a small clearing that appeared unexpectedly through the trees.

Curtains To Crochet

By RUTH ORR
"Pattern No. 462"

Every housewife likes to have curtains that she knows will wear well. You can be sure of the wearing qualities of these. This pattern has a great deal more to recommend it than durability; the design is simple enough to suit all kinds of furnishings, and is easy to make, but at the same time is as attractive as you could wish.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy to understand illustrated directions, with block and space diagrams to aid you; also what crochet hook and what material and how much you will need.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 462 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needlework Department, P. O. Box 172, Station D, New York, N. Y.

MARKETS

SLIGHT CHANGES IN STOCK ISSUES ON DULL TRADING DAY

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—With the temperature high and vitality low, traders in today's brief stock market session merely made technical motions.

While a few steels, rails, copper and specialties managed to creep upward sufficiently to put the Associated Press average ahead of a point at 61.6, there actually were 183 losers at the close against 169 advances. Only 50 issues changed hands and 153 of these ended unchanged.

It was the second slowest day of the year, 248,340 shares passing over the crawling ticker tape. Transfers last Saturday totaled 297,580.

COTTON
NEW ORLEANS
NEW ORLEANS, July 17 (AP)—Week-end trading up comprised the bulk of trading in the cotton market here today and the close was steady, net unchanged to 1 point up.
Weather conditions over the cotton growing region continued favorable with scattered showers in the eastern and central sections and temperatures high.
Liquidation by recent buyers and covering by shorts about offset each other and in the absence of any pertinent development most floor brokers preferred to remain inactive.

Oct. contracts closed at 12.02, Dec. at 12.04, Jan. at 12.05, Feb. at 12.12, and May at 12.15. Spots were unchanged with middling at 12.37.

NEW YORK
NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—In quiet trading cotton fluctuated narrowly today. December after rallying from 11.94 to 12.02, eased to close at 11.95 with final prices net unchanged to 2 points lower.
The opening was steady unchanged to 2 points lower with steeper Liverpool cables offset by renewed speculative liquidation and hedge selling.

Continued favorable weather in the south and nervousness over the French monetary and Chinese situations seemed to bring in some selling and there was little disposition to make fresh commitments. Declines of 2 to 5 points attracted sufficient trade buying, and local and New Orleans covering to impart a fairly steady undertone, but prices failed to move far from the 12 cent level.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, July 17 (AP)—Wheat barely maintained the week's 4 to 5 cents advance today.
Prices rose a cent a bushel at the opening but later reacted and closed a shade lower. The opening advance was partly in sympathy with a three cents upturn at Liverpool reflecting yesterday's action of North American markets.
Wheat closed 1 1/8 to 5/8 lower compared with yesterday's finish.

July 12th, Sept. 1.27 3/4 to 28, Dec. 1.29 1/4 to 28, corn lost 1/4 to 1 3/8, July 1.27 5/8, Sept. 1.12 3/8 to 1 1/4, Dec. 80-80 1-8, oats 3/8 to 1 7/8, July 1.01 1/2, rye gained 3/8 to 3 1/4, July 1.01 1/2, and lard was 3 to 5 cents higher.

Massachusetts, California, Virginia and North Carolina pay their governors $10,000 a year.
Sorghum smut causes an estimated damage of two million dollars every year to Kansas farm crops alone.

There Is A Difference!

Cheap, make-shift automobile repairs, bought perhaps because the price indicated that you could "save money" have always proved to be the most expensive repairs in the long run.

The quality of the parts, the skill of the labor, the completeness of equipment used in the service on YOUR car are, in the final analysis, the factors which decide whether or not that particular mechanical trouble is definitely ended or whether a repetition of motor grief awaits you in the near future.

It has been a life-time policy of this company to use the BEST of everything obtainable when your automobile has been left in our hands for a repair job... the best materials and parts, the best skilled labor, and the best mechanical equipment. It is due to that policy, and the strict adherence to it by every member of our organization, that a BIG SPRING MOTOR CO. repair job has become synonymous with SATISFACTION to the automobile owners of the Big Spring territory.

Big Spring Motor Co. prices are as low as is consistent with this type of service.
