Actors' Strike Is Averted By New Work Agreement

Six Major Studios Grant Demands; Craft Unions Continue Their Holdout

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 10 (AP)—The ominous threat of a film actors' strike, with production paralyzed, theatre programs curtailed and a $1,750,000 weekly payroll in the movie capital stopped, gave way today to a working agreement between producers and the Screen Actors' Guild.

Six of the nine major studios granted the primary demands of the guild for a guild shop, improved working conditions and better pay for extras. Heads of these studios—RKO, Paramount, M-G-M, Universal, Columbia and Twentieth Century-Fox—also promised to bring the three others into line.

The Actors' Guild, meeting in the ramshackle Hollywood Legion fight stadium, heard the concessions with a mighty shout of approval from 4,000 throats, accepted its committee's proposal to continue negotiations, and invested its representatives with power to call a walkout against the differing studios unless they fall into line quickly.

Agreement "We have an agreement with the producers but it has not yet been committed to a full contract," guild president Robert Montgomery announced to the meeting. He did not mention the non-conform-

Measure For Aiding Children Recalled

Senate Disturbed Over Possibility Of Increasing Benefit Recipients

AUSTIN, May 10 (AP)—The senate did an about-face today in the matter of submitting to the people of Texas the question of whether the state should take care of dependent children.

It reconsidered a vote by which it had approved submission of a constitutional amendment authorizing assistance to such children and to adult needy blind, having recalled the resolution from the house of representatives.

The senators obviously were alarmed at the possibility of adding many thousands of persons to the rolls of those receiving assistance from the state.

Spending of state money to dependent children estimated between $9,000 and $40,000 would be eligible for aid, but opponents declared, in spirited debate, the total would run to around 100,000.

FD Fishing Off Freeport

Will Land At Galveston Tomorrow For Trip To Capital

GALVESTON, May 10 (AP)—Well pleased with his one-eighth share of a catch of 16 tarpon in ten days fishing off Port Aransas, President Roosevelt set out today to end his piscatorial vacation by trolling for kingfish at the mouth of the Brazos river.

Preparatory to landing at Galveston tomorrow morning for the train trip back to Washington, the chief executive cruised slowly up the gulf coast yesterday from Aransas to a point off Freeport, just south of Galveston, where the Brazos enters the gulf.

He planned to put out in a small boat early to try for the smaller but fighting kingfish, then, with the escorting cruisers Moffett and Decatur, start for Galveston.

He will land here tomorrow around 9 a. m., central standard time, and lead an automobile procession through the island city before boarding his special train for the east. He will be the first president to visit this gulf port since 1881.

A message to temporary White House headquarters said Elliott Roosevelt, the president's third son and fishing companion on his current vacation, left the party last night for his home in Fort Worth.

He will rejoin his father at Galveston when he disembarks tomorrow morning. The president will spend tomorrow night at Elliott's home about 15 miles outside of Fort Worth.

Westex Area Gets Moisture For Planting

Rains Of Varying Amount Cover Large Part Of Howard County

PRECIPITATION HERE AMOUNTS TO .78 INCH

Heaviest Downpour Reported In Coahoma Territory

Planting moisture fell on most of the Big Spring trade area Sunday evening and Monday morning, soaking fields and leaving ranges in good condition.

Rains, varying from one-quarter of an inch to as much as four inches, fell in Howard county, benefitting three-fourths of the area. The southwest portion of the county alone miss out on the heavier rains.

The U. S. department of commerce weather bureau station at the airport gauged the precipitation to 7 a. m. at .78 of an inch. To the north it was a bit heavier.

Coahoma, where the most intense fall was reported, was visited by rains totaling from two to four inches. The four-inch fall was in the Iatan lake area where more than a foot and a half of water went into the tank.

Communication to Vincent was disrupted as raging creeks washed out roads and telephone lines. Estimates, however, placed the amount in the county's largest wheat area at around two inches.

Several miles to the west of Vincent the fall slackened to an inch and a half and still further west, near the Lutter area, to about an inch and a quarter.

In the Coahoma Point region precipitation increased again to approximately two inches and sent roaring torrents down draws. The draw near Center Point was 200 yards wide at one time Monday morning.

Good rains were reported north at Fairview, and at Knott who reported an inch and two inches were reported. To the southwest in the Hartwells area an inch and a half was reported.

Ackerly was in one of the light spots with an estimated half inch. Most of Dawson county came in for a general downpour with Lamesa receiving .78 of an inch. Tahoka reported an even heavier rain.

Stanton reports varied between half and three-quarters of an inch while moisture amounted to only a quarter inch south and half an inch to the west. Rains were more spotted to the north of Stanton in Martin county with various localities reporting from a quarter to almost two inches. Virtually all farmers in that area said they had enough moisture for planting, however.

Southwest of Big Spring the amount of rain grew steadily less until it was about a half an inch at Elbow and a quarter of an inch at Lee's on the Howard-Glasscock line. Lomax got only a light rain. See RAIN, Page 6, Col. 8

NEGRO WOMAN A 'LIVING CORPSE' AT OWN FUNERAL

TENARKANA, Ark., May 10 (AP)—Zenobia Campbell put her coffin back in storage today and reflected on the pleasant things said about her at her funeral.

The negro farm woman was the "living corpse" at her own last rites in St. James African Methodist Episcopal church here yesterday.

Hearse, coffin, pallbearers preaches played their parts in the unusual drama. Absent only were flowers and a number of friends Zenobia had expected to attend. The small attendance was attributed to the fees Zenobia had arranged to collect to defray the expenses of her obsequies.

Taylor Named Special Judge Of Court Here

Cooper Case Is Called, Knox Trial Passed To May 17

W. M. Taylor, one of the senior members of the Big Spring bar, was named by the Howard County Bar association Monday to set on the 70th district court bench this week as special judge in the absence of Judge Charles L. Klapproth, who is holding court in the 106th district court at Lamesa.

Taking up the docket, Judge Taylor called to trial the case of W. E. Cooper, charged with attempt to rape. Absence of five defense witnesses delayed the trial to 1:30 p. m. when selection of a jury was begun. Shortage on the regular panel necessitated additional veniremen.

Case of Hiram A. Knox, charged in 11 counts with forgery, was passed to May 17 on request by state's attorney Cecil Collins. The delay was asked to give Knox more time to attempt restitution to Templeton and Cannon, contractors, on whom he is alleged to have forged instruments.

The passing of the Knox case left only one other criminal case slated for a hearing during the week. It is the forgery count against Donald A. Drake.

J. H. Stokes, indicted for perjury by the grand jury last Friday, Monday posted $1,000 bond at Abilene. Collings was unable to say whether the case against Stokes, an alibi witness in the Curtis Lamar burglary case here last week, would be tried this term of court.

Rosendahl Is First Witness Before Board

Asserts Atmospheric Conditions Satisfactory For Landing

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 10 (AP)—Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, the navy's outstanding lighter-than-air expert and an eyewitness of the Hindenburg's fiery destruction, today told a department of commerce investigation board that "a small burst of flame on the top" was the first sign of the disaster that befell the dirigible.

Spelled Doom "My feeling was at once that it spelled the doom of the ship," he declared.

Himself the survivor of one of America's major airship disasters, the destruction of the Shenandoah in 1925, Rosendahl was the first witness called as the investigation opened in the great hangar. Rain drizzled down on the Hindenburg wreck on the airfield a third of a mile away.

"It is, of course, obvious," Rosendahl said, "that I have no knowledge what was the origin of the fire."

The present commandant of the U. S. naval air station here, Rosendahl preceded his description of the actual disaster by telling the three-man investigation board and its staff of technical advisers that the Hindenburg came down to her last landing under atmospheric conditions that were "entirely satisfactory" and with the ground crew proceeding in a normal manner.

The ship's prelanding maneuvers were nothing unusual, he added.

After noticing the first small puff flame from the stern, Rosendahl said, "I saw practically the whole stem of the ship take fire first. x x x then she fire spread progressively forward."

"Light Explosion "As for myself, I ran from the vicinity and shouted for the ground crew to do likewise. The main concern of the ground crew was to get clear of the wreckage and not get hit by it."

"I saw the ground crew return immediately to the wreckage."

He saw some passengers and crew members emerge from the inferno of the blazing hull unscathed, he related, adding: "Because of the intense heat from the fire, it was impossible to

Texan Slain, Wife Wounded By Intruder

Statement Given By Woman To Officers, But Is Kept Secret

THORNTON, May 10 (AP)—B. F. Bradford, farmer and variety store owner, was killed and Mrs. Bradford was seriously wounded early today when a man armed with a shotgun broke into their home.

Mrs. Bradford crawled from bed to the front porch and spread the alarm by screaming.

County Attorney Roy Lewis and Sheriff Roy Simmons said she had made a statement to them in connection with the shooting, but that the information in it would not be made public pending developments.

Officers said the man who shot Mr. and Mrs. Bradford about 3:30 a. m. as they were sleeping, entered the house through a rear door. They said the man had used a 20-gauge shotgun.

Mrs. Bradford was taken to a Marlin hospital where she was given a blood transfusion. Her condition was regarded as critical.

Coahoma P.O. To Be Advanced To Third Class Rank

The postoffice at Coahoma is one of those that will be advanced from fourth class to third class status, according to a Washington announcement reported today by the Associated Press.

Postal officials said 322 fourth class postoffices would be thus advanced, effective July 1. Twenty-five other Texas towns, besides Coahoma, were included in the list. The change in status is automatic.

"It looks as though happy days are here again," a postal department spokesman said. "It is an unprecedented number of promotions and more accurately than any other index reflects the return of prosperity to small communities."

ACTION DUE SOON ON ECONOMY PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Two factors caused congressional leaders today to predict crystallization this week of a program to cut government expenses:

1. The house appropriations subcommittee may take action on President Roosevelt's recommendation for $1,500,000,000 for relief spending in the fiscal year beginning July 1. Chairman Woodrum (I-Va.) favors cutting this sum by one-third.

2. The president has summoned leaders to a general legislative conference Friday when he returns from his fishing trip. The question of relief appropriations and economy is expected to be one of the major topics.

London Trip Is Completed In 21 Hours

Merrill And Lambie Reach Destination After One Forced Stop

PLAN RETURN FLIGHT AFTER CORONATION Hope To Bring Pictures Of Event Back To US By Thursday

CROYDON, AIRDROME, Eng., May 10 (AP)—The American coronation fliers, Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie, landed at Croydon at 6:38 p. m. (11:38 a. m. CST) to complete the eastward leg of an ambitious trans-oceanic flight that may put them back in New York by Thursday.

Radio Damaged They had landed first at North Weald airdrome, 15 miles outside London, to repair damaged radio apparatus and then sped on to land here 21 hours, two minutes after the takeoff from Floyd Bennett Field in New York Sunday.

A large crowd greeted them upon their arrival. The pair planned to pick up pictures of coronation day and fly back to New York after the ceremonies Wednesday.

Neither showed the slightest sign of fatigue. Merrill popped out of the plane first and was rushed by a woman admirer who planted three resounding kisses. He took some minutes to remove the lipstick and remarked it was a "pretty tough trip."

"We flew blind," he asserted, "the entire way." Both fliers said they felt fine and expected to land back in New York Thursday.

The first land they saw, Merrill said, was the southwest corner of Ireland. An air ministry official greeted the fliers and gave them an unusual grant, permission to fly anywhere they desire while in England.

The girl who kissed Merrill was Dorothy Daye, American correspondent here for the Philadelphia See AIRMEN, Page 6, Col. 3

Resolutions Discussed By WTCC Group

Brownwood 'Filling Up' As Delegates Stream In For Conclave

BROWNWOOD, May 10 (AP)—Resolutions to be submitted to the West Texas chamber of commerce convention were discussed this morning by the convention works committee, headed by Houston Hartie. Proposed resolutions were on soil and water conservation, Big Bend International Peace park, increased West Texas allotment in soil-building payments, increased industrial development of Texas, sit-down strikes, farm tenancy problems, national advertising by state appropriation, remission of ad valorem taxes to counties for general fund purposes and the proposed constitutional amendment on the sales tax.

Directors planned final action on the resolutions today as the convention, expected to draw an attendance of 10,000, got under way.

Bids for '38 Session Many delegates are already here, arriving in a steady stream yesterday and this morning and local hotels were rapidly filling. However, no shortage in accommodations was anticipated because the Brownwood chamber arranged for 700 to 1,000 rooms in private residences to care for any overflow.

Two cities were bidding for next year's convention. President E. M. Crump of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce headed a delegation seeking the 1938 meeting. "We have made bids for the conventions since the Big Spring meeting of 1933 and are confident we will be successful this year," Crump said.

A special train of 106 Wichita Falls boosters accompanied by a band will arrive tomorrow morning in a concerted effort to win the host title for 1938. Abilene, the other contender, will also send a delegation tomorrow morning with a 200-car motorcade and two bands.

"We are delighted at the number of advance registrations which aggregated more than 1,000 through last night and expected the largest crowd in several years," D. A. Bandeen, general manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, said.

ANSON WOMAN'S TRIAL UNDER WAY

ANSON, Tex., May 10 (AP)—Mrs. L. Danahy, charged with murder of her aged landlady, Mrs. J. T. King on April 2, was ordered to trial late a morning by Judge W. B. Chapman, who overruled a defense motion for change of venue.

Examination of veniremen got underway immediately. The state charges Mrs. Danahy killed Mrs. King by giving her poison in a drink.

Elizabeth And Margaret Rose, With Crowns, Robes May Give Most Regal Performance Of Coronation

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—Two queenly princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret, the 11 and 10-year-old daughters of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, are expected to give the most regal performance of coronation duties at the coronation of their father and mother on May 12. They will wear crowns and robes and will be crowned by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Elizabeth is the elder and will be crowned first. Margaret is the younger and will be crowned second. The girls are expected to be crowned at the coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey. See PRINCESSSES, Page 6, Col. 2

Revue Slated For May 18th

City's Representative In 'Sweetheart' Contest Will Be Named

Tuesday of next week, May 18, was set today as the date for a revue at the Ritz theatre in which a Big Spring girl will be chosen as the city's representative in the "Texas Sweetheart No. 1" contest sponsored by the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta.

The city's "sweetheart" and an alternate will be named by judges who will watch the local entries in an evening dress parade on the stage of the Ritz. The winner will be given a trip to Fort Worth, with all expenses paid, to compete there in the final contest, slated May 22, in which Showman Billy Rose will pick the state's "Sweetheart No. 1."

Arrangements for the local event were completed today by Manager J. Y. Robb of the R&R theatre and chamber of commerce representatives. The C. of C. is hopeful that a large number of girls will enter the event. Those who desire to register may call the chamber of commerce office. Merchants or friends who want to sponsor an entry also are requested to call promptly.

Reading AND Writing

By John Selby

'FEDLAR'S PROGRESS: THE LIFE OF BRONSON OLCOTT,' by Odell Shepard; (Little, Brown; $3.75).

It is Professor Odell Shepard's good luck that a certain publishing firm is 100 years old this year. This circumstance impelled the firm to offer $5,000 for the best non-fiction book sent them. Three hundred eighty-five contestants were disappointed, but Professor Shepard was not.

He should not have been, for anybody capable of wading through five to six million words of Bronson Olcott's insufferably dull journal deserves more than $5,000. This Professor Shepard has done, in addition to reading Olcott's other productions, and the rest of the material one might expect. The author has emerged from his bath of words with the impression that Olcott was not the ineffectual chap we usually hear of, but one of the most brilliant men of his century and one of the most misunderstood.

His own daughter Louisa, author of those indestructible books, did not understand him. Many of his contemporaries thought of him (because he had no gift for making money in spite of youthful training as a peddler as a "drag on his family." His intellectual processes were such as to make him seem an idler to most of the hard-bitten Yankees about him, anyway. How could a transcendentalist seem otherwise to them. And Olcott was "the" transcendentalist, for he became the apostle of the movement when his school for children failed.

He was a teacher rather than a scholar, Professor Shepard points out. He loved books and the things in them, but he was not a scholar. When transcendentalism became his career he lectured far and wide, wherever he could find a few to listen. He made no money, and the movement was a complete failure—but he did make a few friends who were impressed by him, and cautiously put their indorsement on record. Emerson, for example, "As pure intellect, I have never seen his equal."

This is not a biography that will excite one much. But it has a gentle charm, and it is the product of genuine devotion.

Wage-Hour Limits Are Sought For Textile Industry

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Textile labor leaders urged inclusion today of an $18 minimum wage and a 35-hour week in a proposal for federal regulation of the giant industry.

Officials of the United Textile workers were invited to present their views before a house labor subcommittee, beginning hearings on the Ellenbogen bill to set up a "little NRA" for textile mills.

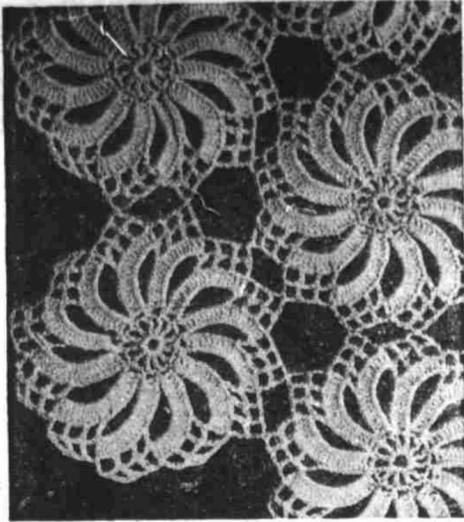

The measure, similar in some respects to the new coal control act, would establish labor standards for 1,250,000 textile workers and would forbid unfair trade practices.

The wage and hour standards sought by the union originally were in the bill, but the subcommittee decided last week to change the minimum pay to $15 and the maximum hours to 40.

Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, opposed the original measure, but said he could not speak for the 800 cotton mills in the organization until his executive committee meets later this week.

The house subcommittee will hear opponents next week.

Motif For Many Uses

By RUTH ORR
Pattern No. 436

An attractive motif like this one is the sort that has unlimited possibilities. It will make a tablecloth, bedspread, luncheon set, chair set, or practically any crocheted piece. The design is a convenient one to make because every motif is exactly the same; so you'll soon have the directions memorized. Using crochet and knitting cotton, as for a bedspread, each motif measures 6 inches in diameter; with No. 30 cotton, it will be about 3 inches across.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, with diagrams to aid you; also what crochet hook and what material allow how much you will need.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 436 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (postage preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needlework Department, P. O. Box 200, Station D, New York, N. Y.

Pastor Urges Prompt Attendance At All-Church Night Meet

Prompt attendance of those who plan to attend the First Christian All-Church night dinner at 6:30 o'clock this evening in the church parlors was urged by Rev. G. C. Schurman, pastor.

Royal J. Dye, prominent missionary speaker, is to address the group and will have to complete his part of the program in order to board the 9 o'clock train.

Courtney Juniors Give Play At Stanton School

STANTON, May 10—Forsaking their school books for the footlights, the junior class of Courtney high school presented a three-act play, "Eyes of Love" at the school auditorium Friday night.

A large crowd was in attendance at the play, second in a series of four to be presented by the high school, representing each of the four years' classes.

Isabelle Story Works In Order That Americans May Cavort

By SIGMUND ARNE
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Isabelle Story, one of the few women who head divisions in the interior department, is the person who tells millions of Americans every year where to vacation in the national parks—and where to fry their eggs once they get there.

Last year 10,000,000 persons cavorted in the parks. But not Miss Story. She hasn't had a vacation in years. She never made a camp fire.

She gets into "the parks," of course. She has seen them all. But she gets through them with her notebook open much like a busy traveler looking over his window in the morning.

Job grew like Topsy. She came to pavement service in 1914, a blue-eyed youngster from Chicago with blonde, curly hair about her ears. She was somebody's secretary. Then too many queries came in about the parks and somebody else said, "Let Miss Story answer them." She did, and now she has a suite of six offices, and a staff of 14.

She can tell where to find a picnic ground near a Spanish mission in Arizona; where to register at an inexpensive hotel in the Rockies, and how to get permits to fry in New England.

Gets Nowhere On Visits. These facts pour out from Miss Story's office in boozies, magazines, articles, posters for railway stations, radio speeches.

To gather her information, Miss Story has visited all the parks, except Hawaii and Alaska. And she hopes to get to them, too. Sometimes the inspection trips are a bit rough and ready. She had to learn horseback riding, for instance, but did it pretty much the way she took her job. Just got on the horse and rode.

She has found, too, that Indian sign language comes instinctively to anyone who needs it badly. The time her car bogged down in southern Utah, there wasn't a living creature in sight. After three hours at an ancient Indian camp, but he couldn't understand English, Spanish, or any of the half dozen Indian dialects Miss Story knows. So she made her hands go like a man riding horseback.

Horse Monument To Her. The Indian's face lit up. Two hours later he returned with two mules and three grandsons. They soon had Miss Story's car out of the mudhole.

Isabelle Story Knows Her Parks

ment to Miss Story. He's four-footed, has a long smooth tail and two front ears. His name is "Lamb." "Lamb" park tanger named him for her. They wrote in about him recently, saying, "Isabelle has developed a real sweet disposition just like yours."

Mr. and Mrs. Todd Crain of San Angelo were guests of Mrs. Crain's mother, Mrs. J. B. Hall, Sunday. The Crains were accompanied here by Miss Lillian Hall who had spent the week with them in their home.

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing gas, indigestion and many restles, sleepless nights.

If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adierika. Adierika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adierika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused gas, pain, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months. Adierika relieves stomach gas at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adierika once half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvellously refreshed.

JUGGLING IN HIGH FINANCE

It was announced Sen. Burton K. Wheeler will be "interested" in the latest deal, by which a fruit-jar manufacturer, who acquired the Van Swearingen railroad empire for about 1 cent on the dollar, has sold it all to a group of young attorneys and brokers at about the same price.

This is one of the best illustrations in recent times of the need that the government, or a senate committee, or somebody should be "interested" in the super-corporate juggling of high finance.

Thousands of miles of railroad; hundreds of thousands of persons whose livelihood is involved; cities whose welfare is concerned with the service of railroads, and all dependent on the juggling of a few voting shares of stock in a super-holding company.

News reports said the young fellows, all inexperienced in railroad operation, who bought the whole railroad empire for about $6,000,000, would have their "first headache" over trying to disentangle the complex corporate set-up created by the "Van Swearingens, masters of the devious."

Obviously, railroads capitalized at somewhere in the hundreds of millions of dollars, vast enterprises whose operation is affected with a public interest, ought not be subject to the juggling we have seen recently in this case. The public concern is not only for stockholders denied any share in control of the property, nor alone in the continuity of service and employment by the system. It goes deeper than that. It demands a better order of regulation than one leaving control of such vital public utilities to the whims of promoters, to the absolute judgment of a bottle-maker, to the amateur adventures of some young lawyers and brokers.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—Maxwell Anderson is being permitted all the ice cream he cares to eat these days—his tonsils have just been yanked.

That was an exciting moment in Burgess Meredith's dressing room the other Saturday matinee... A surprise gift, from some admirer, had just been delivered by a drayman... That's how large it was.

"Don't open it until you read instructions," he was warned... But Meredith eagerly tore the wrappings away—and clapped them back on just in time to forestall an hilarious interlude... The gift was a beehive, well tenanted by a swarm of the genuine article... Now they're on his 40-acre farm.

One of the things about actor Meredith that amuses people is his confessed antics with a toothbrush... For instance, he kills time by putting paste on the brush, brushing up a thick foam, and then acting before his mirror, while he suds run out.

There's a luggage factory in New York which makes trunks only for actors... And near it is a little leather shop dealing chiefly in wallets... You can get billfolds made of everything from alligator and ostrich hide to heavy, durable wax paper... Another shop (so I'm told) which catches the eye of visitors is one in 6th avenue which has for sale risqué sketches... But the fellow who told me said he didn't make any purchases... "Why?" I asked... "Well," he explained, "the proprietor of the shop was a girl, and I was embarrassed."

It is almost impossible to get in to see a radio star when he is about to go on the air, but one fellow successfully entered his way past guardsmen to Peter Van Steeden just before a recent broadcast... "Eh," ejaculated Peter, amazed at seeing the intruder.

But the fellow only smiled... "I am," he said, "a tree you, and I want to sell you this baton... It is a lucky talisman, and the one who owns it will..."

"Scram," warned Van Steeden... And, to his surprise, he fellow did.

Estelle and LeRoy, the dancers, were in New York only 10 hours this time... They tarried just long enough to collect their wardrobes and catch a fast boat for Europe... It's a six-weeks' engagement at a smart London hotel for these two, and then they're coming back to open at Ben Gardner's new Riviera, which is now being built on a magnificent rise commanding the Hudson... Marden's other tub you'll recall, burned down last winter when he opened to give, gratis, hot steaming dinners to a long queue of homeless, hungry men... Which proves, possibly, that vice isn't always its own reward.

Significance seen in Borah's attack on fascism.
Senator's speech linked with Wallace's theory.
Agriculture secretary favors control of industry.
Roosevelt held unlikely to support plan.

Spears Man—

WASHINGTON, May 10—Senator Borah has his own private method of statesmanship. He generally knows about things before they happen and has an uncanny way of speaking them before they are apparent.

For instance, just a couple of days before President Roosevelt nominated his supreme court packing plan, Borah went to a microphone and told the country it would be a national calamity to destroy confidence in the courts. Such Borah coincidences have developed too often to warrant any suspicion that the Idahoan is clairvoyant. Rather, he has developed the reputation of being exceptionally well informed.

Hints—

Kunners have been going around for some time that Mr. Roosevelt's most advanced thinkers have advanced their line of thought to an idea of controlling the production of industry. There is even some talk on the inside, but no one has been found who claims to have seen it. The supposition is that it represents an alternate new NRA plan, such as the president has mentioned frequently (He has never mentioned this particular extreme suggestion, and there is no veridical evidence that he is symbolically considering it as one of his possible new NRA proposals.)

One of his cabinet members, however, is not only mentioning it, but advocating it. The least that Senator Borah knows is that Agriculture Secretary Wallace has made three lectures at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, recently laying down a completely thought-out argument for control of industry. It has escaped public attention because he failed to offer the formula for it. That is, he had no mechanical arrangement putting it into easily understandable form. But he had everything else.

In fact, he gave all indications of being an advance agent for a new movement.

Theory—

What Wallace seemed to have in mind is this: the government, if effect, if not in fact. At least it is establishing the machinery for such control. It is also establishing machinery for some similar measure of labor control through its new found strength in the national labor relations board. So what it now needs to complete its economic control over everything is to get control of industry. Wallace wants particularly to control its production and prices.

Now, Wallace pretests specifically that this is not fascism. He says he is thinking about some arrangement whereby industrialists (meaning, apparently, all corporations) could co-operate among themselves like the farmers do through their county committees.

That is, the farmers elect their representatives to the governing county committees and the corporations would presumably be permitted to do likewise. Wallace says fairly he would abolish corporate rights, and of course the federal government would be the guiding and enforcing power over the whole business.

In other words, Wallace is careful to preserve the name of democracy, but not the substance. He would not call his new set-up fascism. In fact, he has already officially titled it "social democracy."

But what difference this would make to the ordinary citizen is not apparent. All would live in a wholly federal-regulated state, where prices, production and wages would be largely controlled by elective councils under federal domination instead of a Duce or a Fuhrer.

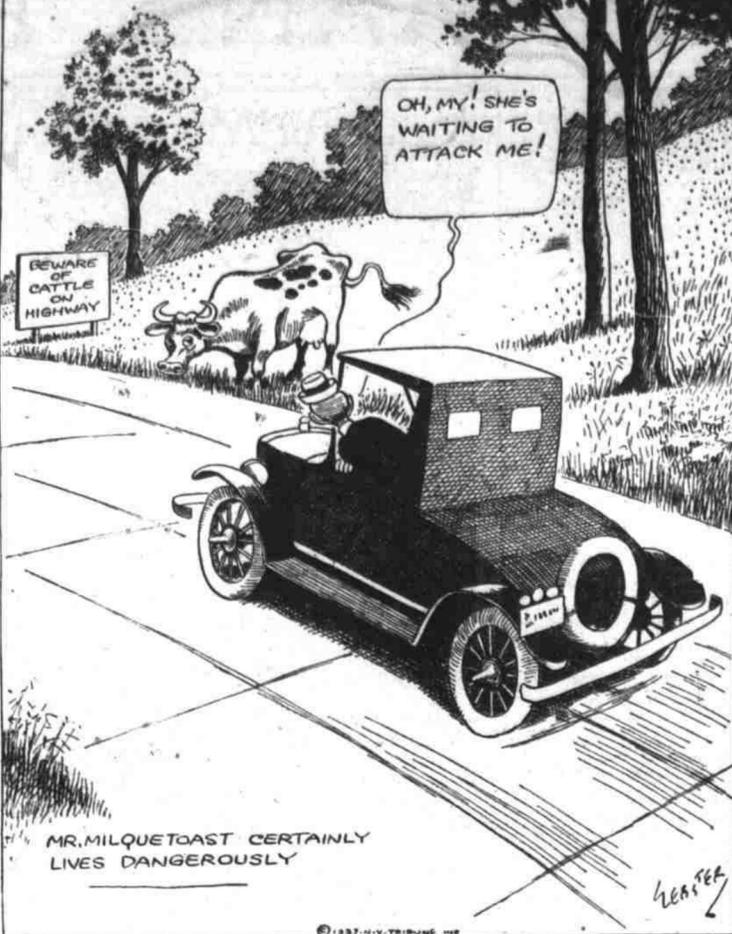

Few authorities believe the president will go for the idea, even in modified form.

Helium—

Unpublished testimony before the house military affairs committee will disclose that the Hitler government sought to purchase the safe, non-explosive helium gas in the United States more than a year ago.

This was impossible, as congress, some years ago, threw protection around Uncle Sam's world supply of helium by prohibiting its export. Only last week did congress move to modify this restriction by allowing export for municipal pur-

HOLLYWOOD—The peeping of the birdies and the popping of the poppies are no surer signs of film-land spring than these:

Betty Burness pops up with another of those gold-darned hats. Last spring it was "Vegetables... Now it's flowers... She does 'em herself and admits it.

The same girls who last Christmas posed with Easter bunnies are posing with Independence Day firecrackers... Producers go into huddles on football stories... The bars at Malibu beach houses are getting polished for the summer season... And Marion Davies' colonial colonial house by the water's edge prepares anew to be the Grand Hotel of the elite, the Mecca and Medina of all who would be in the swim, social and aquatic.

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER

Chapter 36
"I MISS HIM HORRIBLY"
"We're talking as idiotically as if we were Seymour," said Eve.

"Are they really idiotic?" George asked then with mild curiosity. "The only one I ever see is Lance, the poor kid who's always skulking round here under the impression that he still somehow has rights to the place, the one who tried to steal his ancestor's portrait from mother last spring—remember? If they're all like him they're pretty far gone."

She interrupted him. "Is Lance around still? Do be careful of him, George, he has an ugly temper."

"As a matter of fact, he was having a run-in with Mattie this very day about some peonies he wanted to dig up. They were a special rare variety, one of the plants I bought the place for. He was making a clean sweep."

They were interrupted by a honk, heralding the young Gardner brother and sister, driving in with raquets and bathing suits on the back seat: an attractive pair of slim young dandies, enough alike in their shirts and shorts to be twins. Anne's hair was curled tightly over her head and Wallace's slicked smooth, that was about the only difference.

"Hello, you lazy loafers!" Wallace yelled. "The Warrens are practically on top of us with a couple of guinea pigs. Get up and let's cop the best court before they do."

Anne pranced a little, thrusting a thin brown arm through George's. "I grab George for a partner," she said. "You and he play together so much it's a racket, Eve."

"Fackel! Gosh, women, people are shot for less than that," said her brother. Whereat Anne laughed and went on dancing restlessly, still holding on to George. Eve smiled at her. She felt a million years older than careful, 19-year-old Anne. George glanced at her over the tight-curl'd head as if they understood each other, partner or no partner.

"We saw that poor Seymour boy down by the gate," Anne said. "He was muttering to himself the funny way nuts do. Wonder why there are so many crazy people out in the country?"

"Well, the Gardiners would come—" George began teasingly. "Make him stop, Eve."

Eve laughed and then her head as the four ran across the turf. It was all warm and pleasant. She liked life. She hoped she wouldn't see Denny, and have all the pain of him brought back. She had September weather and George's kindly brotherliness; she had a good game of tennis ahead of her as a swim after that. It was all easy and happy.

Perhaps she was a shallow sort of girl to be so easily contented. But if she couldn't grieve over Denny all the time like somebody in a book, wasn't it better for her?

And, after all, she had—she knew now—the life she loved, if not the husband she wanted. She had never really loved the life that was a part of Denny's happiness...

And then the Warrens, Jim and his new wife May, and four strange guests, caught up with her and there was an end to meditation.

A Natural Mistake
They played till everyone was hot and drenched, they swam on top of that, which should have killed them but didn't. When the twilight came, bringing the cool wind of a Connecticut September evening, George and Uncle Henry built the fire in the outdoor fireplace; Eve made salad and Anne Gardner ran to and fro from the Cleveland house bringing things inevitably forgotten; Eve's chocolate cake, left in the hall; the salt, extra paper napkins. They sat on the grass in the sweaters that were welcome now, eating more than seemed possible.

George, moving round the circle with the immense gray coffee-pot, said, "All gone now, another cup, didn't you, Warren? Mattie has more in the house. I'm up, I might as well go—"

"Oh, George, bring my coat, will you?" Eve called after him. "In the hall." But George was out of hearing. "Judge, dear, run after him."

One of the stranger girls, mixed on the very sketchy wholesale introduction, said hastily, "Oh, ask your little boy to get mine too, Mrs. Cleveland, in the car."

"Judge—get all the coats—"

Then Eve took time to explain elaborately that she was not married to George and Judge was not their son, and that she was in the darkness, as she told herself petulantly, like a grammar-school girl.

"Well, anybody would have thought so," said the little girl with the Warrens, unperturbed.

"What Kay means is that if you and George aren't married, you ought to be," said young Wallace Gardner, all very proper, Mr. Eve's keeping Judge while his parents do something thrilling in Hollywood. Nobody's any relation to anybody—"

"Here's the coffee," George's voice said placidly above them in the dusk. "Here's your coat, Eve." He dropped it over her shoulders as he passed, and threw Judge his sweater with "Put your sweater on, son. Right away!"

"I leave it to anybody!" complained Kay. In the laughter and confusion of teasing and explanation Eve sat very still, George, so far as one could see by starlight, was quite unembarrassed.

Well, it was a natural mistake; George and she, severely intimate with the fatherly old man and devoted small boy belonging to them all.

Later still, when everyone, even Judge and Uncle Henry, had gone, leaving Eve and George to clear up the last things and wet the embers, George spoke slowly, out of the darkness.

"I thought it was a nice mistake, Eve. How did you feel about it?"

She did not answer. She was scarcely paying attention to what he said. She was staring up at the stars, dreamily happy in the September night.

"Eve?"

"She came out of her dream, and answered at random, 'You're an angel, George; you pulled us out of the Kay girl's blunderings without the quiver of an eyelash!'"

"All right," George said shortly. "But I'm damn tired of the role of angel. Good night, Eve." He strode off to the house.

Eve laughed to herself as she went her own way. George was no angel, certainly—but there was something funny and endearing to her always about his flashes of up-and-over temper. She wondered why he had suddenly turned cross, and decided that he had been working too hard lately.

"Gosh his heart," she said as she ran into her own house, "I'll scold him tomorrow."

George leaves abruptly
But the sudden orders. And before she had a moment to use the telephone on her own account, Judge, teetering on the doorknob as he waited for the basket of morning deliveries, said:

"Oh, say, George drove off to a house party in Sharon last night after we all went home! Adriano says he's staying till Tuesday, he thinks."

She felt a little dashed... But after all, George was showing his usual good sense. He had been looking tired and strained lately.

"What do you think of that?" she said to Uncle Henry who was coming in with a basket of eggs. "Our George off and away! I'm glad, aren't you?"

"He's so homey we forget he has a life besides the one he lives here," said Uncle Henry. "Yes, a break will do him good."

They smiled together, pleased that their George was having a rest and change. Eve went on with her work, cutting cut ginger cookies, deftly, row after row on the enamelled table, and singing lightly the old song Uncle Henry whistled so much:

Plaisir d'amour ne dure qu'un moment...
Chagrin d'amour dure toute la vie!

She worked hard that day, feeling a queer lack. It was so strange to have no George, sunburnt and stalling, leaning on her sill, resting as he talked and waited for his glass of milk or square of gingerbread, telling her some scrap of village gossip he had heard, or passing on a piece of scientific information, or delightedly boasting how right he had guessed about which suckers to keep... Noon came. She fixed the usual snack for her menfolk. She thought she would go for a swim; they were in for a spell of hot weather apparently.

It proved to be a stupid swim. No George swimming alongside, teasing her with spiced water, racing her out for a game of tennis, or lying on the cement parapet, a little sad because his too-white skin never would tan evenly for stay tanned long; playing about with her as if they were a couple of children, there on the grass and in the water.

"It's awful dull without Mr. George," Mattie said when Eve came into her pantry for last night's cake plate.

"Isn't it?" Eve said with fervor. "I miss him horribly already—"

Something stopped her. Perhaps it was Mattie's little watchful gray eyes, fixed on her with a meaning interest. She said another idle word or two and went off through the window with her plate, the wind blowing her rose-colored linen that George liked and lifting her hair. Suddenly her heart stood still and started racing again. She stopped, there on the path through the orchards, gasping, staring ahead. The words she had said were true.

United To Stage Birthday Event Opening Thursday

Climaxing nine years of continuous growth and expansion, the United will celebrate its ninth year in business with a sale, slated to start at the local store on Thursday, May 13.

Just nine years ago, the United came into being as a commissary store serving a mining community in Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and Southern California. Sol Krupp, manager of the Big Spring store, said "this year's birthday event of the United will be outstanding for several reasons. The merchandise we will offer was ordered after consultations with manufacturers who offered to cooperate with us to make this event successful. Consequently, our prices at the sale will be extraordinarily low. Special arrangements have been made to serve every visitor with the minimum of delay. Extra sales clerks will be on duty, and the store has been arranged so that merchandise can be quickly found by the shopper."
