Price Declines As Larger Cotton Yield Is Forecast

Estimate Up Sharply Over A Month Ago

Indicated Production Over Nation Placed At 12,400,000 Bales

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. (AP)—An indicated cotton crop of 12,400,000 bales by the department of agriculture, an increase of 791,000 bales over the forecast a month ago.

Over 10,000,000 bales were produced last year.

The Texas crop was indicated at 2,500,000.

Losses ranging from $1 to $1.50 per bale were reported on the New York and New Orleans markets.

Today's forecast brought the indicated national yield to near the 12,451,000-bale level predicted in August, the year's first crop forecast.

September's prediction represented a sharp drop, production being placed at 11,212,000 bales. The indicated yield jumped again in October, the figure being set at 11,609,000 bales.

Local Price Is Lower; Harvest On The Wane

On the strength of the market report, cotton prices tumbled off here Monday, dropping from an average of 12.25 for snaps to 11.10. Other grades were off proportionately.

Seed held steady at $30 per ton, retaining a dollar gain posted Saturday.

Ginners were able Monday to discern a retarding influence in the movement of cotton to gins and regarded it as an indication that the season here was definitely on the home stretch.

80 Pct. Gathered

Estimating that 80 per cent of the crop had been gathered, one ginner said that once the stream of cotton to gins began to lessen, the end of the ginning season would follow not many weeks behind. He qualified his statement by saying that practically all the crop this year had been pulped, thus leaving no late holler crop which follows a picking year.

Should the estimate prove accurate, total production of the county would be approximately 15,000 bales since little more than 12,000 bales were believed to have been ginned in the county through Saturday. Even 15,000 bales would represent a gain of 3,000 to 5,000 bales over estimates on yield at the opening of the ginning season.

SAN ANTONIO MAN HELD IN FORGERY

JENNINGS, La., Nov. 9. (AP)—A San Antonio man was under arrest here today in connection with a $20,000 check police said was forged.

The Texan was arrested, police said, in Deridder, La., a few hours after he had cashed the check on the local branch of the Calcasieu Marine National Bank. They said the check had been forged in the name of the man's brother, who lived in Lake Charles.

Found upon the man when he was arrested, police said, was $9,500 in cash. The check had been cashed for $15,000 in cash, a $30,000 cashier's check, and the remainder on deposit. The size of check prompted inquiries.

STEEL'S WAGE HIKE OFFER PROTESTED BY JOHN L. LEWIS

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 9. (UP)—John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial organization, today warned the steel industry its wage increase offer of last week will be protested by the CIO because "under the wage agreement the worker is bound to the wheel of economic circumstance."

The steel industry's offer of an approximate 10 per cent wage increase will satisfy neither the steel workers nor labor because the workers are not given "the benefit of increased productivity," Lewis said, his eyes flashing under his heavy eyebrows.

Lewis and his nine "rebel" union leaders suspended from the American Federation of Labor because of "insubordination" for allegedly promoting dual unionism, met here for a two-day conference to outline their fight for industrial unionism and to define their policy with reference to the quarrel with the A. F. of L.

He charged the "steel barons" are "shadow boxing with their self-created company unions in an attempt to mislead the steel workers and the public to believe they are bargaining collectively with their employees."

"They are fooling nobody by their mental gymnastics," he said. "Instead they are making fools of themselves."

Lewis particularly attacked that part of the wage agreement which makes the cost of living index as of July 15, 1938, the basis of wage increases. He said present wages are frozen at a sub-standard level.

By gauging the wage scale on the cost of living index, the worker, Lewis said, is bound "forever and always to the present unequal relationship between wages and the cost of living."

"If the price of bread advances one cent," Lewis said, "labor eventually may have that cent. The same applies to clothing, homes, etc. Thus the social and cultural advancement of the steel worker is prevented. It gives labor no participation in the fruits of genius."

He charged the wage adjustment prevents the worker from receiving his just share of the increased wealth or profits of the industry and that the adjustment was "arbitrarily" decreed by steel management. The future of the worker, he tied down to a point too low for decent living.

CHANGES IN AGRICULTURE AND NEUTRALITY LAWS FORESEEN; FD TALKS ON LABOR PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. (AP)—Spokesmen for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration disclosed today a definite decision by administration farm leaders to seek changes at the next session of congress in the present soil conservation program.

It was said they also would discuss changes in crop insurance and a revival of the old program.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. (AP)—President Roosevelt said in a message to the third national conference on labor legislation today that he believed the "country is not yet given a mandate by legislators and executives" to adopt needed labor legislation.

He said they were directed "to proceed along those lines until the people throughout the nation are assured of decent working conditions."

The conference was urged by the president to "give serious consideration on how these objectives are to be achieved." He said, "I assure you the federal government is willing to do its part."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. (AP)—Given impetus by developments abroad, a move was under way to hurriedly tighten at the forthcoming.

Coloradoans Offer Program Tonight

Free Entertainment Scheduled At Auditorium

Confident of a large crowd, Shine Phillips planned to stage the first of a series of free entertainments known as auditorium night in the municipal auditorium today at 7:30 p. m.

Colorado entertainers will furnish the talent for the first program under the direction of Jimmie Greene, secretary of the Colorado chamber. As in all subsequent auditorium programs here, there will be no admission charge.

The series is being planned as a good will project by the chamber of commerce.

Program Features

Included on the program for today are such numbers as a Sally Rand dance by a small girl, Russian dances, imitations, saxophone duet, tap dances, songs, guitar music, and a roller skate dance. There will also be two special numbers.

Among those appearing on the program are Hunter Brandon, Mary Frances Mackey, Elizabeth Pidgeon, Nina Katherine Quinney, Mrs. W. R. Martin, Vivian Giddens, Juanita Cook, Betty Hodge, Frances Merl Cooper, Fannie Fay Porter, Billy Margaret Gregory, Mary Ellen Jones, Dr. C. L. Root, Mrs. Wojnack, Tommie Ratliff, Devada Majors, Gloria Martin, A. R. Miles, and the Redwine brothers.

In a telephone conversation with W. T. Strang, Jr., manager of the local chamber, Greene today said several cars of Colorado people were planning to accompany the players here.

ENGLAND TO STAY BY NEUTRALITY PACT

LONDON, Nov. 9. (AP)—Informed sources said here today that Great Britain would continue her policy of non-intervention in the Spanish civil war despite reports that Premier Leon Blum of France was ready to rush aid to Madrid.

Blum asserted he was ready to scrap the non-intervention agreement and supply arms and munitions to the Madrid government if Great Britain would agree to follow suit.

Annual Feeding Tests To Start This Week, 40 Calves Secured

Forty Hereford calves averaging 425 pounds will go on feeding tests at the U. S. experiment farm this week, Fred Keating, superintendent, said Monday.

The calves were cut from the George Glass herd in Martin county and were top stuff. They have been on preliminary feed for the past few days, getting accustomed to the feeding routine to which they will be subjected for the next 180 days.

23 ARRESTS HERE OVER THE WEEKEND

Local peace officers had a busy week end, particularly the constables' department.

Twenty-three names for drunkenness, of the number 22 were Mexican cotton pickers, one whom carried more than $300 on his person.

The city rounded up nine men at one time Saturday afternoon for gaming.

LITTLE DAMAGE AS AUTOS CATCH FIRE

Firemen made two runs to car fires Monday morning, neither of which caused appreciable damage.

One was a Ford V8 at 200 Benton and the other a Chevrolet at Big Spring Motor company. Sunday fire burned the roof off the home of G. M. Curry at 1009 Seary street. The blaze originated from a hot water heater.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Beale returned early Sunday from a two week's fishing trip on Lake Don Martin in Mexico.

Temperatures Rising Again Over State

Nine Lives Lost During Week-End Wintry Blast; Fires Are Cause

The state's weekend cold wave was moderating today, with freezing weather only in the Panhandle. Higher temperatures were prevailing in Big Spring, after the mercury had dropped Sunday morning to a low of 32 degrees. Ice was reported over most sections of the county Sunday morning.

The weather forecast gave indication that clear weather might prevail by Tuesday. No marked change in temperature was foreseen.

Nine lives were lost in the state during the wintry blast, Associated Press dispatches reported. Five of the deaths were blamed directly on the cold.

Abilene Woman Victim

Mrs. Clara Harris, 81, was fatally burned Sunday at Abilene when her dress caught fire from an open stove. She was the mother of T. T. Harris, ice company executive.

At Brady, Carl Seif, 32, and his four-year-old daughter, Wanda Nadine, were burned to death in a fire originating in the explosion of an oil cook stove.

Police at Kilgore Sought to Identify the Badly-Burned Body of a man found early Sunday in the ashes of a two-room which burned which burned to the ground. Police were investigating possible foul play after indications were found that the man's skull had been fractured.

Four Children Burn To Death

Joe Roosen, 57, was burned to death at Houston Saturday night after taking shelter with a companion from the cold. Both men were asleep when the blaze began. Jim Casey, who escaped with minor burns, said he was unable to arouse Roosen. Roosen was a World War veteran.

At Dallas Friday night, the four children of Mrs. Cleo Neria burned to death when a fire trapped them in their beds at their home. They were Jose T. Cecilia, 5, Dolores, 3, and Felipe, 2.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hussey were critically burned at Dallas Sunday morning in a gas explosion at their home. Firemen blamed a faulty hose for the blast. Mrs. Hussey was burned over her entire body.

The cold wave over the state was not extreme, but was aggravated by a stiff, damp wind and heavy clouds.

County Entitled To More Representation In State Convention

Howard county will be entitled to more representation in county state democratic conventions by virtue of the record vote polled for the party nominees in the general election last Tuesday. Grover C. Cunningham, county chairman of the executive democratic committee, said Saturday.

According to the law governing representation in conventions, the county will be entitled to one more delegate to the state convention, having added more than 200 additional votes in the democratic column. Fourteen precinct delegates will be added to the county convention on the basis of one for every 25 democratic votes.

The republican state convention strength is unchanged although the vote showed a gain of 81 votes over the general election total of 1932. These precinct representatives will be in order for the republican county convention.

While confident of a democratic victory, Cunningham was amazed at the wide sweep the party made with county predictions, saying before the election that the democrats would take about 90 per cent of the total vote. Actually they took about 92 per cent.

Local Methodist Ministers Remain At Present Posts

Bickley To Serve At First Church For Fourth Year

Big Spring's Methodist pastors—Rev. C. A. Bickley of the First church and Rev. W. G. Anderson of the Wesley Memorial church—will remain at their local posts for another year. They were reassigned Sunday night when all assignments were made at the closing session of the joint meeting of the six conferences of the Methodist church in Texas, at Houston.

Assignments were made for all districts in the Northwest Texas conference, in which Big Spring is located.

Five conferences of the Southern Methodist church and the Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church were represented at the Houston meeting, the first joint gathering of the two branches in Texas since the church split in 1844. Approximately 10,000 delegates and visitors were at the meeting.

Fourth Year
Rev. Bickley will be serving his fourth year as pastor of the First church. He came to Big Spring in 1934, after having served as presiding elder of the Lubbock district.

Rev. Andrews came here several months ago, to assume the Wesley Memorial pastorate as successor to Rev. J. E. Peters.

Rev. Peters will serve during the ensuing year as pastor at Westbrook.

Also retained at his present post was Rev. D. A. Ross of Coahoma. He was assigned to the church a year ago.

Other Assignments

Other assignments in the Sweetwater district are as follows:
Presiding elder, Sam H. Young; Andrews, George H. Bryant; Blackwell, Luther Kirk; Colorado First church, C. E. Jameson; Colorado circuit, Rufus Kitcher, supply; Dunn, C. D. Dameron; Flannery, Atticus Webby; Hensleigh, Ira T. Huckabee, supply; Gardner, City, W. A. Cox; Lorraine, Hamilton Wright; Midland, C. M. Epps; Nolan, S. A. Sifford, supply; Post, Clarence Bounds; Roscoe, W. B. Swin; Snyder, H. G. Gordon; Sparanck-Ackerly, Wayne W. Cook; Stanton, Raymond Van Zandt; Sweetwater First church, C. T. Hope To Take Madrid Today; Battle Rages

Shells Fall In Heart Of Capital; Fighting Moves Into Streets

(By the Associated Press)

Thousands poured into the front lines of the insurgent army, indicating that a desperate attempt will be made to capture Madrid today.

Facist shells rained into the heart of the capital. Socialist guards and facist snipers fought gun battles in the streets.

Thirty were wounded in an assault on the theatrical district. Twenty-three were killed Sunday when apartment buildings collapsed in the Puente Vallecas section.

Many Killed In Air Raid

The insurgent command said the early bombardment was a prelude to one of the biggest battles of the Spanish civil war.

Today's fighting followed an air raid of Sunday, when facist aviators killed an estimated 200 inhabitants of the capital and wounded hundreds of others.

Women sniped from balconies at the facists, it was reported, after the insurgents advanced from the west bank of the Manzanares river over the Puente de Segovia bridges leading to the capital.

A heavy land bombardment of Madrid followed the swift air raid. Tanks and infantry led the facist final attack supported by a second line of speedy tanks.

The strongest government resistance, the facists said, was in the Manzanares valley between the bridges and the Toledo and Aranjuez roads.

Batteries Step Up Speed

As the battle progressed the insurgent batteries stepped up the speed of their firing from one shot every fifteen seconds to one every ten seconds.

Shells from Madrid batteries whistled overhead as eight insurgent fighting planes circled over the advancing units.

No government planes were to be seen during or after the attack of seven facist war planes which dropped 18 bombs on the capital.

Hardly had the screaming wounded been carried to hospitals when facist shells into the heart of Madrid's business section.

Unofficial estimates placed the dead at 200 in the four-minute bombardment by the facist planes which dived and carried out their deadly mission through bursts of anti-aircraft bombs.

None of the attacking planes were brought down.

The facists hauled their field pieces into Carabanchel, just outside Madrid proper, and their shells shrieked into the capital with indiscriminate aim.

One struck near the French embassy in Recoletas street; another scored a direct hit on the presidential palace; a third landed in Cibeles square in front of the Ministry of War and one block from the Associated Press offices.

Facist aviators apparently aimed at workmen hastily throwing up additional fortifications and barricades in the southwest section of the city.

Piles of mangled bodies sprawled on the streets as the airplane motors whined away toward the insurgent landing fields.

Flames sprouted from buildings struck by the artillery shells. Aerial warning sirens screamed over the city, and ambulances speeding to the damaged areas.

Panic-stricken crowds, their terror increased by memories of other aerial bombardments rushed through the streets, shoving one another aside in their stampede for cover.

Business Of Nation Still On Uptrend

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Business throughout the country continued on the upgrade during the early days of November, according to reports to the department of commerce from key cities.

The maritime strike was a disturbing element along the Pacific Coast and led to considerable unemployment but business even there was largely maintained in normal volume.

San Francisco reported that business improved. Even more optimistic reports came from Los Angeles where both wholesale and retail trade continued active. Business in southern California in every single instance continued to show gains.

The motion picture industry, it was said, is experiencing one of the most profitable and active seasons in years. Portland reported the closing of sawmills and logging camps with 10,000 lumber workers in Oregon out of employment; business was adversely affected and similar conditions prevailed in Seattle, although most department stores in that city gained in sales volume over the same period last year.

Retail Reports

Retail trade in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, New Orleans and other leading cities surged forward while wholesale lines generally followed the same course. Radio production in Philadelphia was 20 to 30 per cent ahead of last year. Reports from Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and other large industrial centers indicated a general expansion of industrial activity and absorption of unemployment.

Reports from a large number of cities gave evidence of sustained building operations during the fall season. There were heavy increases of permits issued in a number of large cities while declines were noted in number and of comparatively small amount. All of the reports indicated that distributors were preparing for one of the heaviest holiday seasons since the beginning of the depression.

TAX COLLECTION MACHINERY SET UP

AUSTIN, Nov. 9. (AP)—The state today set up machinery to collect approximately six million dollars annually in new taxes to pay old age pension costs, and indications were the system would be functioning by the end of the week.

The new taxes include levies on vending and music machines and on places of amusement. The state will ask a ruling on slot machine taxes, since these machines have been held to be illegal.

BECOMES OFFICER IN RESERVE CORPS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. (AP)—Frederick William Henry Wehner of Big Spring, Texas, was among 17 Texans accepting appointments as second lieutenants in the reserve corps, it was announced by the war department. Wehner was assigned to the infantry.

COURT IN SESSION

County court continued in session Monday morning, recessed until 1:30 p. m. at which time Judge J. S. Garlington was to call the docket.

Hearst Loses Court Fight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. (AP)—The United States court of appeals here ruled today in a suit brought by William Randolph Hearst, publisher, against the senate lobby investigation committee that the courts are without authority to enjoin a congressional committee.

Hearst appealed the case from a ruling of the federal district court refusing to enjoin the committee from retaining and making use of telegrams from telegraph company files.

In its probe of lobbying, the committee had obtained telegrams revealing business of the Hearst publications. The publisher went to court in an effort to block use of the telegrams by the committee, contending such was an invasion of private rights. Hearst thus today lost the second round of the court fight.

Pay Area Extended With Completion Of Continental 2-A Eason

Additional drilling in territory immediately south of the Eason field near the Howard-Glasecock line was seen Monday after the completion of Continental's No. 2-A Eason, outpost which was ready to go into steady production after a protraction test Sunday.

The well gauged 1,333 barrels daily on an official test.

The new producer is one-half mile south of the other Continental wells on Eason's land, and thus opens a new strip for drilling.

The well was bottomed at 2,455 feet. Pay was topped at 2,420. Oil rose 1,000 feet in the hole when pay was first encountered, and the well swabbed 20 barrels hourly immediately afterward.

Arkansas And Horned Frogs Lead Southwest Conference Grid Show

AGGIES OFF ON A LONG ROAD TRIP

DALLAS, Nov. 9.—Much as they dislike the situation, the Arkansas Razorbacks and Texas Christian University have taken the position of favorites in the wide open Southwest conference race.

The Frogs trampled Texas under a one-sided score and thereby earned themselves a good shot at the crown. They have met and defeated Arkansas, Baylor and Texas and have lost their only game to A. & M., while the Hogs have smashed the hopes of the Aggies, Baylor and the Owls and have lost their only game to Texas Christian.

Saturday the Porkers come to Dallas to take on the battered Mustangs of Southern Methodist, who fell from the highest perch in the standings Saturday.

The Hogs will be the favorites but that should please Matty Bell since he can arouse his Ponies to their greatest fighting pitch when he has his back to the wall.

The other teams are in for a busy week-end. Texas Christian, Centenary, the Longhorns, beaten four times in the conference, are in for another licking at the hands of Minnesota, while the Aggies play two games before returning home. They meet San Francisco University in San Francisco, and Utah in Salt Lake, and will be favored in both clashes.

The Owls take a breather in the Sam Houston Teachers.

DUTCH BAUMGARTEN, coach of the Midland Bulldogs, was a visitor here Sunday and is pulling for the Steers to beat the Bobcats.

ALTHOUGH THE records indicate that San Angelo has a vastly superior football team, the game Wednesday will not be as one-sided as the majority of fans expect.

GEORGE BROWN figures that San Angelo's main offensive weapon will be a flood of aerials.

ASSISTANT COACH Brandon furnishes an interesting angle. Just before the game at Breckenridge he told us that it looked bad for the Steers.

SPIKE HENNINGER'S idea of promoting a football game between the Cosden Oilers and the high school Steers is a good one.

"The Steers have a very, very slim chance of upsetting the Cosden's applicant"—Bob Cooke in Sweetwater Reporter.

IT APPEARS now that the game to see will be that TCU-SMU game.

Frisch At 38 Not To Yield Regular Role

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (UP)—Although his legs have lost their former spring, Frankie Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, expects to be back at second base again when the 1937 baseball campaign opens.

Frisch, who was 38 years old in September, played in fewer than 100 games this past season—the first time in 18 years he failed to appear in the lineup more than 100 times. His batting average was .271, his lowest since 1919.

But despite these failures, Frisch says he will be back at second base on baseball's most colorful team, probably because he feels he is better there than anyone else the Cardinals have, or else that he can improve on his 1936 showing.

Martin Hit Slump

Stuart Martin, Al Cucinello and Wally Allison all will be trying to clinch the position when the Cards open training next spring. Martin, a sensation in the first half of the season, fell off in the latter half of the campaign. His batting slumped, he weakened in the field and he was suspended for breaking training rules. Some observers believe that Martin, who batted .298, may be transferred to the outfield or to third or first base.

Cucinello, a younger brother of the Boston Bee infielder, played second for Rochester last year and is reported to be vastly improved over the days when he was with the New York Giants.

Allston More Powerful

Allston is a tall rangy player who fills in at first and second and in the last month of the season while he was with the Cards, Wally showed tremendous power at the plate.

Frisch, it is believed, feels that no one of this trio is as good as himself at second and some believe that Frankie will have Martin and Johnny Mize battle it out for first base. Mize, like Martin, Frisch is one of the most popular men on the Purdue campus, where he is majoring in history and economics. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, as is his brother, Cody, who is a Ballermeier backfield reserve.

That the ivy-draped towers of Princeton are in danger of crumbling because he has elected to play professional football, strikes Kaufman, yesterday's Tiger star and today's New York Yankee backfield ace, as a highly amusing thought.

"I don't feel a bit like a fellow who has committed a crime, or has been in the least untrue to the football traditions of his alma mater," Kaufman said when asked about it in the dressing room just prior to the daily practice.

"Football is now one of the higher ranking professional sports. The type of men engaged in it, and the support given it by the football fans everywhere have lifted it beyond reproach—it has become a sporting enterprise basically no different from that offered on the college gridirons.

Cecil Isbell Is Leading Ball Toter

With Purdue's Boiler-makers

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Don't be misled by that soft-spoken, mild and courteous manner off the field or by that first name; Cecil Isbell of Purdue's Boiler-makers can raise plenty of trouble for opponents on the gridiron without asking any quarter.

Isbell, who with John Drake makes the Purdue offense something to be feared, has demonstrated he is one of the nation's outstanding backs by standout performances thus far this season. He does everything well—kicking, running, passing and blocking—and ready has Purdue supporters call him one of the finest open-field sprinters ever to play for the institution.

The handsome, auburn-haired youngster was a halfback last season. This year, due to the tragic death of Tom McGannon and the loss of Lowell Decker through the shower-room explosion, Isbell was shifted to the fullback spot, where he combines the speed and elusiveness of a halfback with the slashing drive of a fullback.

The breaks went against Isbell in 1935. A sophomore then, he had gone through his entire high school career at Sam Houston High, Houston, Tex., without a serious injury of any kind. But in his first collegiate game, "Cece," as he is known to his mates, dislocated a shoulder.

For the remainder of the season he saw service as a kicker and passer, but his running style was handicapped by a chain that practically mangled his left arm to his side.

This season his shoulder is in shape again. In the first two games he averaged more than 13 yards a try on running plays. In the third game, against Chicago, he scored one touchdown and shot passes for three more. He tosses a soft ball instead of a heavy one that is hard for the receiver to handle.

Isbell is one of the most popular men on the Purdue campus, where he is majoring in history and economics. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, as is his brother, Cody, who is a Ballermeier backfield reserve.

That the ivy-draped towers of Princeton are in danger of crumbling because he has elected to play professional football, strikes Kaufman, yesterday's Tiger star and today's New York Yankee backfield ace, as a highly amusing thought.

"I don't feel a bit like a fellow who has committed a crime, or has been in the least untrue to the football traditions of his alma mater," Kaufman said when asked about it in the dressing room just prior to the daily practice.

Cosden Oilers Would Play Hi School Football Team

BUCKAROO-EAGLE TIE WOULD GIVE BOBCATS 'CLEAR TRACK'

With the San Angelo Bobcats heavily favored over the Big Spring Steers, district dozers are busy figuring out possible hitches and tie-ups in the sector as the race draws to a close.

When Breckenridge and Abilene tangle Wednesday, San Angelo fans will be hoping for a draw, because the Buckaroos and Eagles have each lost one game, and San Angelo is undefeated. If Breck and Abilene should play a tie game then the Bobcats could lose one game and still win the district title. The tie game would give San Angelo the margin of victory.

Steers, however, are hoping to blot San Angelo's record with a victory Wednesday afternoon on the Cat gridiron.

Steers Have Been Tough For Bobcats

Longhorns Upset The Dope In 1930 To Tie San Angeloans, 0-0

By BLONDY CROSS

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 8.—Big Spring and San Angelo High Schools return to the football field of strife in annual conflict Wednesday afternoon. The bout is bracketed for San Angelo's cemetery gridiron, starting at 2 o'clock.

The San Angelo team, Oil Belt leader, is the favorite. Big Spring teams almost invariably arouse themselves to a demoniac pitch when scrapping with San Angelo. The Howard County entry, if it didn't win a game except the one with San Angelo, would consider the season a success.

Mechanically and physically, San Angelo's team is the better. But Coach George Brown's strapping youngsters will be in there struggling stubbornly all the way.

In the long, long ago, Big Spring football teams were soft touches for San Angelo's molekian warriors. Then over a string of years there was no contact. The season of 1928 saw Big Spring's stock advancing. The Howard County Steers came to San Angelo and lost by a 14-to-0 score, but it was a downright all the way and wound up with Vic Poteet, pee-wee Bobcat guard, waging a one-round fistfight with a Big Spring player.

Pep Rally To Be Held Tuesday

The old song, "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight," will ring true again Tuesday at 8 p.m. when a giant pep rally will be held on the high school grounds around a big bonfire.

Coming on the eve of the all-important clash with the conference leading San Angelo Bobcats, the rally will be the beginning of 24 hours of enthusiasm that local fans hope the team and pep squad will carry through the game Wednesday.

It is hoped that all cars going to San Angelo on Wednesday will go in the motor caravan leaving here around 10 a. m. The Chamber of Commerce will distribute hat bands and banners for all local people who travel in the motorcade.

Junior Aggregations Clash In Steer Stadium Tomorrow, 3 P.M.

The Big Spring Devils, who were defeated in Coahoma last week for their first loss of the season, hope to bounce back today when they meet their strongest opposition of the year in Steer Stadium at 3 p.m. They take on the Lubbock Cowboys.

Ben Daniels is unfamiliar with the Lubbock material but has received reports that the Panhandle juniors are big and tough. The locals' record is still perfect on the Steer gridiron.

LOSE GAME PREDICTED BY MENTORS

Leave Wednesday

Penalties, Steer coaches believe, have been in a large measure responsible for the poor showing of Big Spring gridiers this season. Although unable to point out the direct cause, the mentors have worked to eliminate that trouble and do not expect to lose much yardage against San Angelo Wednesday because of penalties.

In the six games the Steers have played this season they have been penalized almost five hundred yards.

Although refusing to predict anything like victory, Coach George Brown and Carmen Brandon do not hesitate to pick a close game. All players have been pronounced in fine physical condition (for the first time this season) and they have been pointing for the Bobcat game for the past three weeks.

Charles Ray Settles, halfback who suffered a broken arm in the Breckenridge game, will be able to play against the Bobcats but will not start the game, Coach Brown stated. Brown said he would not decide on a starting line up until Tuesday.

A heavy workout was scheduled for this afternoon, consisting of review work on offensive tactics and defense, and the wind-up on Tuesday will be light with more checking of plays.

Young "Spike" Henninger, a back, who was very erratic in early season games, is one of the most improved players on the squad and has been looking fine on the defense.

Lou H. Mahony, Denver university athletic manager, says the D. U. football team has played only two games on snow-covered fields in the past seven years at the Florneer stadium. One of the two contests was with Temple of Philadelphia.

on a percentage of 200. The Lions' percentage is 500.

Performance, Beauty and Safety Mark Chevrolet's Completely New Cars

Chevrolet's 1937 engine is completely new, but adheres closely to time-proved Chevrolet engineering principles. It is of six-cylinder valve-in-head type, smoother, more powerful, more economical, and lighter.

A representative model from Chevrolet's new line, typifying its beauty and grace—the Master De Luxe Sport Sedan with trunk. Note the distinctive "speed line" extending back from the side of the hood.

Unisteel construction joins the floor, cowl assembly, panels, and Turret Top of Chevrolet's all-silent, all-steel body, to form one integral structure, welded in all joints, and reinforced and braced for permanent silence and safety.

Beauty and utility mark the new Chevrolet instrument panel. The windshield is of greater area, with narrow corner posts, affording better vision.

Luggage capacity in Chevrolet's new trunk models has been greatly increased, as has interior luggage space in other models.

New power, economy, durability, safety and comfort, coupled with striking new beauty, characterize Chevrolet's new models for 1937. They are offered in two series, Master and Master De Luxe, virtually identical in appearance.

Chevrolet's fully-enclosed Knee-Action is furnished at no extra cost on the Master De Luxe models; and new Synchro-Mesh transmission, and safety plate glass all around at no extra cost, feature all models of both series.

Trains, Buses, Autos Carry Texas Children to Exposition

Happy and carefree, school kids by the thousands are forming a modern cavalcade to the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas these autumn days. They come by train at half cent a mile, they come by bus and in private autos. They get in for half price, they see the shows for half price and they view free attractions that educators have declared are worth weeks spent in school. One hundred thousand children have visited the exposition since the invasion began. None has been hurt, none has lost a piece of luggage, all have been comfortably housed. Officials expect half a million before the exposition closes November 29.

CLEAR OUT DOCKET

Having approved five of the six amendments to the constitution by their vote November 3, the people of Texas have given the legislature something to do, which should be done promptly, and in keeping with the understanding of the voters when approving the amendment.

The amendment increasing the salaries of the governor and other state officers needs no action, being self-enacting with the figures stated in the amendment, and the liquor amendment being rejected there need be no time wasted on that subject.

The legislature will have to enact laws governing the teachers' retirement fund, the procedure before the board of pardons and parole which is to relieve the governor of much work not properly laid on him, the provision for compensation for injured state employes and the limiting of membership of large counties in the legislature.

It is to be hoped that the legislature will not follow the neglect of its two predecessors and fail to redistrict the state for members of the lower house at the coming session. This should have been done five years ago, and because it was not done large areas, especially in West Texas, have been derived of representation to which they are entitled and which in common fairness and in compliance with the constitution they should have had.

Based on the 1930 census, before adoption of this amendment, Dallas would have eight instead of five representatives and another in partnership with two other counties. Harris would have nine instead of five, Tarrant would have five instead of four and another in partnership with another county, and Bexar seven each under redistricting, and no more. Tarrant would have five, and the areas now unrepresented would get their fair representation.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Strike me if this hasn't been a season for bedlam on Broadway. Not satisfied with the gabble of a lot of actors eager for work, the producers—those sur-realists in a make-believe profession—have gone in for sound effects reminiscent of the Marne.

Norman Bel Geddes, with his ill-starred "Iron Men," was the worst offender. This short-lived drama carried you right up the skeleton of an unfinished skyscraper where riveters, with their infernal machines, were riveting girders and beams.

To achieve this Geddes took a sound truck up to the Bronx and placed microphones right up next to an authentic rivet gang. The spat-at-tat-tat-tat-tat leaps out of the amplifiers in plunging nightmares of ear-splitting sound. It's a jarring, pittery experience—and it came when you least expected it.

Not To Be Outdone... "Idiot's Delight," where French artillerymen turn their guns on an armed Italian border sector. This is Verdun italicized, with a few bombs and explosions left over.

For plain and fancy street shooting, I give you the G-men episode in "Dead End." A dozen or so of the federal boys bob up unexpectedly and start shooting at a Dillinger-like party, and when those automatics ally themselves in an assault against one's hearing, not even cotton wadding is of help.

No selective group of anti-quid schemes would be complete without the cannon scene in "Ten Million Ghosts," Sidney Kingsley's new drama about munitions-makers. Here you are led behind the walls of a munitions factory where the bore of a great fort gun is being ground. The hum and throb of the metal-biting apparatus is like the roar of a Broddingnagian dentist's drill in the mouth of a panic-stricken Lilliputian.

Other Niagara noises along the rialto include the blacksmith scene in "Swing Your Lady," when the lady blacksmith, a mere lass of about 3 feet tall, pounds vigorously on an anvil. Too, there are countless salvos and volleys poured into hapless individuals in a dozen or so murder mysteries.

It's bedlam, with lots of casualties threatened, but it might also be a shot in the arm for one of our industries—the ear-trumpet one.

Hollywood's Broad-Minded
Now that our ears are merrily ringing, let us proceed to a luncheon with Merle Oberon, who points out how broad-minded one must be in Hollywood. It was she who gave the party for Doug Fairbanks' new wife, the former Lady Ashley, when that pair arrived on the coast. Inviting scores of guests, additional parking space became mandatory for the dozens of limousines. Fortunately, there was a vacant acre or so next door and Merle called the owner for permission to turn it into a temporary parking lot. Permission was promptly and cheerfully granted, but that isn't the point at all. What Merle wanted to say was that the lot belonged to Mary Pickford, the "ex" of that debonaire actor.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW FEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON—With election over, the nation's capital is getting down to the only serious business which, year in and year out, really absorbs it.
Congress may debate the problem of peace or war, diplomats may negotiate treaties, the president may denounce the supreme court, but all that matters to one section of Washington is the goings and comings, the cocktail parties and the amours of the petty people who hold the social spotlight of the capital of these United States.

And no matter how many tears they may shed over high taxes, or how bitterly they may curse the president, it is incontestable that the new deal has saved their dinner parties—and their lives.
The new deal may have kept thousands from starving, put homeless youngsters in CCC camps, prevented forest fires, flooded started social security, but—as the people de resistance—it has restored Washington society to all the pomposity of its pre-war preening.

Run-Down Society
There was a day, during the embargo, they alone had both the champagne and the cash.
Big blonde Juliette Letter, whose husband once came near cornering the wheat market of the world, and who has cracked the whip over Washington society for three decades, actually closed her house and had to give up part of her country place to the government in lieu of taxes.

Mrs. Laura Curtis, patron saint of those who play for a thousand dollar limit, turned her beautiful colonial house into a night club, while Alice Roosevelt Longworth, "Queen Alice" to Washington society for years, hung out a "For Sale" sign on her brick mansion on Massachusetts avenue.
But the new deal has now changed all that.

Carpenter-Baggers
Its first filip to social Washington came with the "carpet-bagger" of the "carpet-baggers" was the height of Mr. Hoover's administration, when Washington society was very much down at the heels. Coupons could not be clipped. Dividends were not being declared. People had to scrape along with a butler and only one footman— which was tough.

For a time the only big parties in Washington were given by the name applies to the horde of democratic lobbyists which swooped down on the capital.
They were green and gauche, but they had money and what was more important—the ear of the White House. So high society, which lacked both, welcomed them to its bosom.
There was Arthur Mullen, democratic committeeman from Nebraska, who got big fees and gave bigger bonuses at one of which a guest, waving toward the rivered footman, remarked: "What will the folks back in Nebraska say to this Arthur?"
Then there was Bob Jackson, of New Hampshire, secretary of the democratic national committee, who related Mrs. Fahnstock's famous pink palace on Massachusetts avenue, married his daughter to the uncle of Mrs. Roosevelt, and gave fabulous parties in the manner if not the quality of the Vanderbilts.

There was Bruce Kremer, democratic committeeman from Montana, who helped Attorney General Cummings reorganize his justice department, and profited handsomely by representing large companies.
And there was George Marshall, former tap-dancer and vaudeville manager, new laundry king of Washington, who, with more humor than the others, sent out Christmas cards showing himself scaling the social ladder with a laundry bag over his shoulder.

Biarre Phillip
The filip they gave to Washington society was bizarre, though welcome. But their benediction is gone. No longer do their parties stand out as the only ones where champagne is limitless.
For coupons are being clipped again. The new deal not only has brought back dividends, but it has reared some of the most famous palaces in the capital.

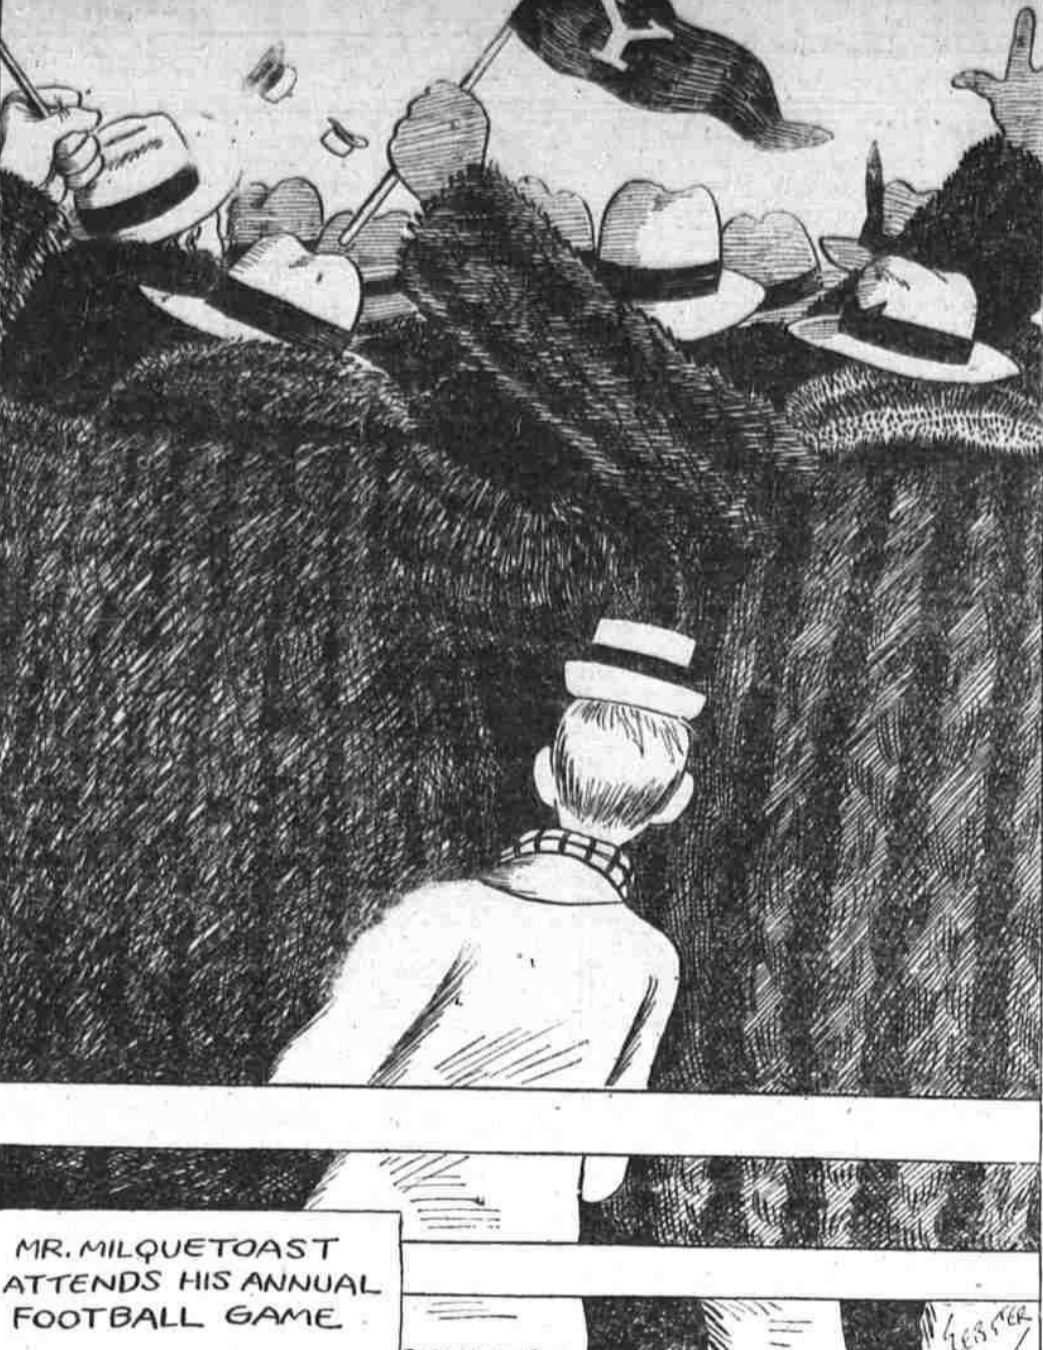

Among these are the James G. Elaine mansion, the Walden palace, built by the famous gold-miner of Cripple Creek days, and the McLean mansion, once owned by Ned McLean, his son-in-law.
There was a day when two bands imported from New York jerked alternately at opposite ends of the McLean ballroom, when several hundred bottles of champagne were opened in an evening, and when the select of social Washington uncertainly danced the New Year into dawn.

Now, as many typewriters as once there was champagne bottles click out a steady stream of WPA red tape. Harry Hopkins is the new landlord.
His $1,000 a month rent, however, now helps Mrs. McLean not only to retain the Hope diamond, but to resume her entertaining of thought on a scale far more modest—at her third mansion, Friendship.

Gayest Season
The coming social season is slated to be the gayest, glidiest and most hectic on record. The cave-dwellers are back in the money—even though they have Roosevelt dollars, which they so despise.
A new congress is about to descend on the capital. Every congressional wife has to leave a card on every senator's wife, and every senator's wife must leave a card on every cabinet member's wife, and every cabinet member's wife leaves a card on every ambassador's wife, and vice versa.

So it goes, round and round, among the petty pleasing people who like the merry-go-round of Washington society.

Grid for the Frisco Bridge Celebration puzzle with numbers 1-53 in various positions.

Frisco Bridge Celebration Is Scheduled

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9 (UP)—On November 12 San Francisco, Oakland, and California in general will begin a four-day celebration in honor of the realization of a dream of almost a century's standing.
This will be the formal opening of the San Francisco East Bay bridge, connecting San Francisco with Oakland, described as the longest bridge structure in the world.
San Francisco proudly admits that it is taking the celebration seriously, as is the nation, for the bridge, with the one being built among the Golden Gate, possesses strategic advantages that are almost unparalleled to the United States.

Speeding Up Pro Game Ousts Many Veteran Gridders

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—The speeding up of the pro football game in the National league has been responsible for the disappearance of the names of many veterans from the line-ups. Speed and more speed is the cry in the pro ranks. To that end National teams signed one of the youngest groups of rookies ever to be rounded up.

The result is that the move cut two years off the average age of the professional football player. Last year the average pro griddler was 26, but with one freshman college entry only 20 and seven others only 21, average for the circuit now is down to slightly more than 24, the youngest in the history of the league.

Fortmann Is Prodigy
To Danny Fortmann, guard of last year's Colgate eleven, goes the distinction of being one of the youngest players to see service with the pros. He is 20, weighs 210 pounds and is 6 feet tall. Fortmann was one of the outstanding linemen for the college all-stars in the two 1936 games against Detroit and the Giants and is playing a stellar game for the Chicago Bears at present. He was a Phi Beta Kappa in college.

The professional football player rarely is seen in action after passing his 30th birthday, but there are three "old men" in the National league today who still command starting posts. Bill Owen, Giant tackle, is the oldest at 33 and has seen 10 years of service in four cities. Walt Kiesling, Green Bay guard, is 32 and in his seventh season. Jules Carlson, in his seventh year at guard for the Bears, is 31.

These players, who have not given way to the theory that youth must be served, have one thing in common. They are all heavyweights, but have retained enough speed to satisfy the demands of their coaches for fast charging lines.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Jacobs of Sonora were guests of friends in Big Spring Sunday, returning to their home late Sunday afternoon. Mr. Jacobs was formerly business manager of The Big Spring Herald.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

Chapter 32

FATTY BASSETT

The injured constable had been removed into a house to await the arrival of an ambulance, and the constables who had been attending to him were hurrying up the street now with the ambulance.

"You slip along, Mister; don't stay with me; let me take my chance on me own," he urged Mahony. "The cops aren't likely to know you. I'm thinking you'll get away much better without me."

"I'm damned if I will," he said. "Right you are, me boyo," he replied. "But I'm thinking you'd do better..."

"Where? Where?" a dozen voices asked the question. A police sergeant grasped the bow-legged man by the arm.

He led Mahony along a narrow passage that ran between the back of a warehouse and a row of small, grimy back gardens.

"Who's there?" Mahony asked. "Barney Flynn and another," answered the Irishman. "The cops is out after us."

"And who's yer pal?" asked the fat man. "I don't remember to 'ave seen 'im before."

"Why, 'is Mr. Brown himself," answered Barney with some pride. "He had a bit of a friendly argument, and the spalpeen laid me on the flat of me back. After that the police came and we got out by the roof."

affectionately on Mahony's shoulder. "Bigob, he's a foine fighter is Mr. Brown."

"No, I'm not," answered Mahony. "I told Barney I wasn't, but he wouldn't believe me."

"Taller than you, and darker, with a little moustache. And 'e got a little scar on the back of 'is left 'and," answered the fat man. He scowled at Mahony suddenly.

"I was sent there by a fellow named Milson; he told me that if I called there at ten Mr. Brown would give me a job," answered Mahony.

Before Mahony could answer there came three sharp raps on the outer door, followed by another rap. The man who had admitted Mahony and Barney went to the door and opened it. A man entered.

He came into the room, stopped short, and stared at Mahony and Barney with the expression of one who cannot believe the sight of his own eyes. Mahony stared back at him; there was a smile about his lips; but the expression in his eyes was hard and dangerous.

"What's there?" Mahony asked. "Milson, or rather Lake, made a little nervous movement with his hand. He was afraid of Mahony and the big Irishman, and to conceal his fear he tried to bluster."

"Who's yer pal?" asked the fat man. "I don't remember to 'ave seen 'im before."

"Why, 'is Mr. Brown himself," answered Barney with some pride. "He had a bit of a friendly argument, and the spalpeen laid me on the flat of me back. After that the police came and we got out by the roof."

Reading And Writing

By JOHN SELBY

It requires a good deal of courage to be as superbly honest about a novel as Vera Brittain is about "Honourable Estate."

"Honourable Estate," the third of her books to be published in America and the first of them to be a novel.

The second marriage is that of Stephen Allynene, a Staffordshire master potter, who is married for his money by a sharply mercenary governess.

Miss Brittain writes rather coolly, excepting when she slips over into the field of ideas. With a less intelligent writer the book would have been a complete failure, just because of that fact.

Charles Atkins And Charlotte Carriger Wed

Charles Arthur Atkins and Miss Charlotte D. Carriger were married Saturday evening at the home of Rev. Forrest R. Waldorf, minister of the Church of Christ of this city.

Miss La Velle Carriger, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. Mrs. Atkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Carriger who reside in the Knott community. She attended the local school and at the time of her marriage was employed as an operator in the Paradise Beauty Shop.
