Midnight deadline nears; Iraq, U.S. refuse to 'blink first'

By The Associated Press

Iraq and the United States appeared locked on a course for war Monday. Both sides insisted the other must yield a day before the U.N. deadline for Saddam Hussein to pull his troops from Kuwait or face attack.

Yemen, meanwhile, tried to keep hopes for peace alive by sending a high-level delegation to Baghdad with a new proposal.

Around the world, anti-war protesters took to the streets, and Israel called up more reservists.

Stocks and bonds tumbled and oil prices soared on world markets.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who said he lost hope for peace after meeting with the Iraqi president on Sunday, scheduled a briefing for the Security Council on Monday night.

"We declare here and now that we are ready to sacrifice everything for the cause of Palestine. Palestine should be liberated and rights of Palestinians restored," National Assembly speaker Saadi Mehdi Saleh said.

The lawmakers voted to give Saddam full authority over the gulf crisis. "It is either life with dignity or death," said one deputy, Muslim clergyman Abdulwaham al-Hitti.

President Bush called Iraq's apparent intention to keep troops in Kuwait beyond Tuesday midnight EST "a tremendous mistake."

Saddam said Sunday, "A last-minute initiative is up to the Americans... If they are bent on war, no one can prevent it." But Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Monday only Baghdad can avert war.

Baker, in Ottawa on the final stop of a tour of nations allied against Iraq, told reporters he was disappointed by the failure of Perez de Cuellar's trip to Iraq.

He said he hoped that "as the clock ticks down to midnight Jan. 15th that there will be opportunity to resolve this crisis peacefully and politically. That opportunity now must come from Baghdad."

The international coalition against Iraq "is fully prepared politically, economically and militarily to deal with possible alternatives," Baker said.

"There is total solidarity among the coalition," he said.

Also Monday, the European Community foreign ministers met in Brussels and decided not to try another peace initiative.

However, the official Yemeni media said President Ali Abdullah Saleh on Monday told lawmakers of a new plan aimed at resolving the crisis.

Saleh was quoted as saying the proposal calls for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, deployment of Arab and international forces in disputed border areas, the departure of the multinational force and a pledge by the U.N. Security Council to implement resolutions on the Arab-Israeli conflict through an international conference.

Saleh sent his prime minister and foreign minister to meet with Saddam in Baghdad.

He was quoted as saying the United States had agreed to the plan, but there was no confirmation from the Bush administration, and no word from Iraq on Saddam's reaction.

En route to Washington, Baker's aides disclosed he met secretly in Cairo last Friday with Foreign Minister Abd el-Karim Iryani of Yemen.

Baker said in Ottawa he was aware Yemen had been "trying to develop some sort of a proposal" for Iraqi compliance with the U.N. deadline.

Prof: War not a solution Action could bring only death, destruction

By JULIE COLLINS
The University Daily

War with Iraq could only bring death and destruction, not a solution to the current Middle East crisis, said William Richard Casto, a law Professor at Texas Tech.

Casto said President Bush has acted within the limits of his authority as president, but tied Congress's hands on the issue of the Gulf crisis. Casto said the stagnation caused by Bush created a situation in which Congress was almost forced to declare war.

Casto said Bush claimed to have the authority to start a war without involvement from Congress. This, he said, creates a bad precedent that may have serious repercussions on the American people.

Under the Constitution, Congress has the sole ability to declare war. Bush approached Congress last week about approving action for military force against Iraq. Congress approved the resolution Saturday, giving Bush the authority to carry out action against Iraq if necessary.

"President Bush seemed to have (overdosed) on male hormones with unfortunate consequences for thousands of young Americans, as well as a number of civilians who would be needlessly squandered," Casto said.

Secretary of State James Baker recently reported that war with Iraq would save American jobs.

"U.S. jobs are not worth all the bloodshed to say nothing of the hundreds of thousands of innocent lives, caught in the middle," Casto said.

Two possible scenarios might ensue

if military force is used in the Persian Gulf, he said.

The first scenario would involve a U.S. land war in the Middle East. The capability of a land war could carry 30,000 to 40,000 casualties. Ten thousand American soldiers would lay dead with thousands more horrendously and permanently injured.

The second scenario would involve a naval blockade and air war strength to exert pressure on Saddam Hussein, Casto said. Strategic warfare of this type could result in a stalemate. U.S. allies might eventually abandon the United States, leaving it holding the bag.

Casto's solution to bypassing war with Iraq would be to negotiate with Hussein, leave him in power and cut the U.S. loss of life statistic.

"Negotiation would directly save thousands of American and hundreds of thousands of civilian lives," Casto said.

This form of solution is superior to that of a bloody victory that could set the stage for another evil and corrupt government such as Syria or Iran, he said.

While he rejects war in the Middle East, Casto said he supports the United States and is deeply committed to its ideals. He also supports the hundreds of thousands of young American soldiers in the Persian Gulf.

"The best way to support them is to prevent their lives from being needlessly squandered," he said.

Casto teaches technical matters related to the operations of courts, unlawful business conduct, a course in foreign affairs and the workings of the U.S. Constitution.

Activist warns Tech students to prepare for war

By JENNIFER SANDER
The University Daily

It is God's will that the United States will go to war in the Persian Gulf, Kemuel Ben Elijah told Tech students Monday at the free speech area at the University Center.

Elijah, an activist for the homeless, warned students that war is coming and that everyone must prepare for it. He said the Bible said war was coming. He quoted several passages from the Bible that related to war, such as "As Babylon hath caused the slain of Israel to fall, so at Babylon shall fall the slain of all the earth." (Jeremiah 51:49). He said that today, Iraq is Babylon.

Elijah distributed a letter he wrote to President Bush when the U.S. troops were first sent overseas. The letter quoted the same passages. He was very much against Bush's decision to send troops and wrote that "the Lord's curse will prevail over you (President Bush) and all that follow him." He said that God told him to send the letter.

"The people who follow President Bush in this are not following God," he said. "He is a man of sin, and he is a beast that is taking our country to war because our troops will not fare well."

However, Elijah said that his main purpose was not to speak out against Bush but to inform the students that they need to be prepared for war. His father served in World War II. He said he knew first hand what war can do to a country. He also was involved in the military at Texas A&M, but did not serve in Vietnam for the preservation of his family's last name.

"People need to be prepared for war. I don't think anyone is ready," he said. "I am here to prepare you because I am ready, and you need to get ready too. Our water supply will be low as well as our electricity. We need to store back food, water and gas because soon it will all be hard to get."

Elijah also said that the United States selling weapons to Israel a few years ago is coming back on its head and that if more people read the Bible they would have known war was coming and could have prevented the things that brought the country to this point.

Elijah did not draw a big crowd during his speech.

Even facing possible war, Selective Service System not likely to reinstate draft

By TARA MULDROW
The University Daily

With the United States possibly facing war, the initiation of a draft dominates the thoughts of many young men.

Larry Waltman, a spokesman for the Selective Service System in Washington, D.C., said Monday there were no signs among federal officials of draft reinstatement.

"There are, as of now, no plans to instigate the draft," Waltman said. "We have had no indication from anyone that it would be reinstated."

A spokesman for the U.S. Department of Defense also said Monday that he has not heard of any draft proposals.

In the event of a draft instigation, only certain men could be drafted, and several exemptions apply.

"Persons turning 20 within the year the draft is reinstated is the primary draft age. Those turning 20 within that year would be called first. For instance, if the draft were reinstated in 1991, all men turning 20 in 1991 would be considered for the draft. This means that some men could be drafted at 19 years of age," Waltman said.

If a man is not drafted within the year, then he falls into the second priority category. Each succeeding year he falls into a lower priority group until he has his 26th birthday. No one more than age 25 is eligible for the draft, Waltman said.

"The first step in the resumption of inductions would be to hold a lottery drawing, based on dates of birth, to determine the order in which men would be called for induction," he said.

"Registrants receiving induction orders will be ordered to report to a military entrance processing station for examination and possible immediate induction. A registrant can file a claim only after receipt of an induction order," Waltman said.

Various exemptions apply toward the draft. The Selective Service postponements, deferments and exemptions policy states these exemptions:

- Conscientious objectors
- Ministers
- Ministerial students
- Surviving sons or brothers in a family where the parent or sibling died as a result of U.S. military service, or is in a captured or missing in action status, are exempt from service in peacetime
- Hardship deferments, for men whose induction would result in hardship to persons who depend upon them for support
- Certain elected officials, as long as they continue to hold office
- Aliens and dual nationals, depending upon place of residence and country of citizenship

If a man believes he should not or cannot report for examination and induction, he may request a postponement, deferment or exemption.

Students are entitled to postponements.

"Conscientious objectors perform service to the nation in a manner consistent with their moral, ethical or religious opposition to participation in war in any form. Depending upon the nature of his beliefs, a conscientious objector serves either in a noncombatant capacity in the armed forces or in a civilian job contributing to the national interest," the exemptions policy says.

The history of the draft dates back to 1940. In preparation for World War II, Congress enacted the first draft. The draft ended once the war was over, but Congress reinstated it in 1948, and it continued until 1973. The Selective Service System has remained in a standby status since 1973, so the draft could begin almost immediately during an emergency situation.

Anyone wanting further information can phone the national headquarters of the Selective Service System at (202) 724-0790.

MLK remembered Dean of students office commemorates King's birthday

By CHARRIE SOUTH
The University Daily

To celebrate the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr., the Dean of Students office will commemorate Wednesday the civil rights leader's humanitarian contributions.

The program recognizing King will begin at 7 p.m. in the home economics building room 169 and the reception will follow in the El Centro Area in the same building.

Phillip Birdine, assistant dean of students, said the tribute will try to touch base with both the Tech and Lubbock communities by including speakers from both areas.

Among the speakers will be Birdine; Robert Ewalt, vice president of student affairs; Fulton Berry, director of social services for Lubbock Housing Authority and chairman of Lubbock's Martin Luther King Jr. Committee; Black Student Association President Shannon Mills; and Hispanic Student Society President Andres Bustillo.

The Lubbock Martin Luther King

King

Mass Choir, under the direction of Sam Curtis, will also participate in the program.

Birdine said the speakers will remark mainly on King's accomplishments in the fields of education and humanitarianism.

This ceremony marks Tech's second year participating in a commemoration of King.

Birdine said interest in celebrating King's birthday continues to grow.

"People started to feel last year that some sort of Tech-related ceremony was in order, and fortunately the ceremony is happening again this year," Birdine said. "Maybe support for the ceremony will one day progress enough to warrant a standing committee for its organization."

Birdine said the Lubbock community usually holds a four- or five-day ceremony commemorating King, as well as participating in the Tech program.

Birdine said that of all the people asked to participate in the program, he received only positive responses.

"I feel really good about the Tech community's response," he said.

The Black Student Association will hold a candlelight procession from the administration building to Memorial Circle preceding the program.

U.S. urges Saddam to avert war White House: Iraq on 'borrowed time' after midnight deadline

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House said Monday that Iraq will be living on "borrowed time" after tonight's deadline for withdrawal from Kuwait. The administration urged Saddam Hussein to take "dramatic action" to avert war.

"Everyone has to assume that military action could occur at any point" after tonight, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said.

Pentagon sources said the number of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf had topped 400,000, an increase of 30,000 from the total announced last Thursday.

There was no sign that Iraq would pull back. United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who met in Baghdad with Saddam Hussein, said, "I don't see any reason to have real hope."

"It's time to rally behind the forces in the field," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who had opposed the congressional resolution endorsing the use of force. He said the time for debate was over, but warned there could be bad news from the battlefield if war breaks out.

As the U.N.-set deadline neared, Bush summoned congressional leaders to the White House.

"If conflict occurs, there will be full support for the men and women of our armed forces," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, who also had opposed the congressional resolution. "Conflict is not inevitable and we hope it does not occur."

Fitzwater said, "We all share a sense of deep concern and somber anxiety about reaching this 15th deadline."

Dozens of antiwar protesters marched in front of the White House.

President explains views of crisis to Techsans

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a message from President Bush on his view of the Gulf crisis written exclusively for college students and sent to colleges and universities across the United States.

If armed men invaded a home in this country, killed those in their way, stole what they wanted and then announced the house was now theirs — no-one would hesitate about what must be done.

And that is why we cannot hesitate about what must be done halfway around the world: in Kuwait.

There is much in the modern world that is subject to doubts or questions — washed in shades of gray. But not the brutal aggression of Saddam Hussein against a peaceful, sovereign nation and its people. It's black and white. The facts are clear. The choice unambiguous.

Right vs. wrong

The terror Saddam Hussein has imposed upon Kuwait violates every principle of human decency. Listen to what Amnesty International has documented. "Widespread abuses of human rights have been perpetrated by Iraqi forces ... arbitrary arrest and detention without trial of thousands ... widespread torture ... imposition of the death penalty and the extrajudicial execution of hundrreds of unarmed civilians, including children."

Including children. There's no horror that could make this a more obvious conflict of good vs. evil. The man who used chemical warfare on his own people — once again including children — now oversees public hangings of dissenters. And daily his troops commit atrocities against Kuwaiti citizens.

This brutality has reverberated throughout the entire world. If we do not follow the dictates of our inner moral compass and stand up for human life, then his lawlessness will threaten the peace and democracy of the emerging New World Order we now see: this long dreamed-of vision we've all worked toward for so long.

A year after the joyous dawn of freedom's light in Eastern Europe, a dark evil has descended in another part of the world. But we have the chance — and we have the obligation — to stop ruthless aggression.

I have been in war. I have known the terror of combat. And I tell you this with all my heart: I don't want there to be war ever again. I am determined to do absolutely everything possible in the search for a peaceful resolution to this crisis — but most of them. Doing tough duty for something they believe in.

Let me tell you about one of the soldiers over there, S.F.C. Terry Hatfield, a young man from Georgia. He sent me a Christmas card. And this is what he wrote.

"Mr. President, I just wanted you to know my soldiers and I are ready to do whatever mission you decide. Freedom as we know and enjoy has been taken away from another country and must be restored. Although we are separated from family, friends, loved ones, we will do what must be done ... We stand ready and waiting. God Bless you and the U.S.A."

Terry understands the moral obligation that has compelled our extraordinary multi-national coalition to make this stand in the Gulf. To look this international terrorist straight in the eye and say: no concessions. To proclaim for now and for the future: no compromises. To bear witness by our presence to the fact that aggression will not be rewarded.

Terry waits thousands of miles from the White House, yet we share the same thoughts. We desperately want peace. But we know that to reward aggression would be to destroy the United Nation's promise as international peacekeeper. To reward aggression would be to condone the acts of those who would desecrate the promise of human life itself.

And we will do none of this. There are times in life when we confront values worth fighting for. This is one such time.

Each day that passes means another day for Iraq's forces to dig deeper into their stolen land. Another day Saddam Hussein can work toward building his nuclear arsenal and perfecting his chemical and biological weapons capability. Another day of atrocities for Amnesty International to document. Another day of international outlaws, instead of international law.

I ask you to think about the economic devastation that Saddam Hussein would continue to wreak on the world's emerging democracies if he were in control of one-fifth of the world's oil reserves. And to reflect on the terrible threat that a Saddam Hussein armed with weapons of mass destruction already poses to human life and to the future of all nations.

Together, as an America united against these horrors, we can, with our coalition partners, assure that this aggression is stopped and the principles on which this nation and the rest of the civilized world are founded are preserved.

And so let us remember and support Terry Hatfield, all our fine servicemen and women, as they stand ready on the frontier of freedom, willing to do their duty and do it well. They deserve our complete and enthusiastic support — and lasting gratitude.

Alum in desert remembers Tech

LeAnna Efrid Editor

I got a letter from a young man the other day. He is a 1989 graduate of Texas Tech. Current occupation? Soldier stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Although his handwriting was a little hard to decipher, he apologized.

"...in this time of conflict in the Middle East, my unit didn't see fit that a typewriter was that essential to our mission," he wrote.

Yeah, I guess I can forgive him. After all, the last thing I would be thinking about on my way to war would be a typewriter.

He asked me if it would be alright to send first hand reports (all information unclassified, of course) of what is taking place overseas. Thought Techsans would be interested to hear from one of their own, he said.

I can't help but admire the man. A soldier sent to the God forsaken deserts of Saudi Arabia to risk his life for a cause we're all still trying to figure out and all he can think about is the interests of the people at his alma mater.

All he asked in return was that copies of the issues that his articles appeared in be sent to his parents in Friona.

I consider that tried and true Red Raider spirit.

But there was something else that the young man wrote that really disturbed me.

"I just hope my name doesn't appear in Memorial Circle anytime soon." Signed "Guns up forever."

That part really hits home. With the Jan. 15 ultimatum just a few hours away, the Texas Tech campus could be affected in so many ways if war breaks out.

Fellow Techsans could be dying as we're studying chapter one of our new textbooks.

Analysts are now saying that anytime after midnight tonight is just "borrowed time" before the United States enters a war with Iraq.

Many Americans have resigned themselves to the fact that there will be a war, it's just a matter of when.

According to calculations from the Dean of Students Office at Tech, currently 65 students have been called to active duty in the Persian Gulf. In addition, I'm sure the number of Techsans overseas will increase exceedingly if Tech alumni like the soldier who wrote me the letter are included.

I'm going to write back to the soldier and tell him I'd love for him to let us know what's going on. Maybe even send him something from his ol' stomping grounds — Texas Tech, because I want him to know that we Techsans care. After all, I don't want to see his name in Memorial Circle either.

Bush has time to consider consequences of Iraqi war

Anthony Lewis Columnist

It is like a film in slow motion. Any time after Jan. 15 there may be a war, with terrible human and political consequences. We move toward that deadline, trancelike, as if there were no way out.

President Bush would plainly prefer not to use military force. He has threatened war on Iraq in order to avoid it — to persuade Saddam Hussein that he must withdraw from Kuwait.

But the strategy has put Bush in a box, and with him the international coalition that he rallied to resist Iraq's aggression.

If the Jan. 15 deadline passes without a resolution of the crisis, and Bush does not use force, some will call him "weak."

That is the result, no doubt intended, of the date set by the U.N. Security Council at his behest. It is a deadline not only for Saddam Hussein but for George Bush, pushing him and the world toward war.

But it cannot be too late for Bush and the rest of us to think clearly about the consequences of war. It can never be.

Think of the effect a war of the enormous forces arrayed in the Persian Gulf would have on the hope that Bush has raised in the crisis.

That is the hope of what he calls "a new order," of collective security against international aggression.

A war would be justified as necessary to establish the principle of collective security, but it could have the opposite result. So Prof. Stanley Hoffman warns in a compelling article in the latest New York Review of Books.

All-out war, with its likely devastation of the Middle East, would turn many members of the present anti-Iraq coalition against the idea of collective security, Hoffman argues.

And it would affect American opinion the same way.

"Collective security will be the casualty, not the winner," he writes, "if we lose a sense of proportion, if we launch a war that will divide the coalition and the public far more than a protracted reliance on sanctions ... Only a miraculously successful war — a swift victory through a limited resort to force — would dispel all these dangers. Miracles rarely happen ..."

"Any other kind of war risks pushing states away from collective security and — with predominantly American losses on the U.N. side — almost ensures that the U.S. will not again provide the leadership ... required to make it work."

The alternative to marching on toward war is diplomacy. And again, it cannot be too late for that course.

Nor is diplomacy excluded by the apparently irreconcilable positions of the parties today.

There is as much room for maneuver here as there was in the Cuban missile crisis and other grave moments of international tension.

For example, Bush has rightly rejected Saddam's attempt to link the Gulf crisis to the Palestinian issue, as if he had invaded Kuwait to help the Palestinians.

But Bush could on his own do what he wants to do anyway: propose a new initiative for Arab-Israeli peace.

Or another example: Bush says that any partial Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait would be inadequate. It would be.

But Rep. Les Aspin, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, who has been very supportive of the Bush policy, is surely right when he says that Americans would then be unlikely to "believe that war was still necessary."

The Jan. 15 deadline really raises a question about George Bush: Does he have the inner strength to be patient?

Will he understand, and be able to convey, that his commitment to undo Iraq's aggression does not require immediate war?

Bush told Time magazine in a year-end interview:

"I know the promise of a new world order if it is done right. I know the devastating effect on the world if it is done wrong." Yes. But the "wrong" that would have a devastating effect is premature war.

"Giving a free rein to aggression would turn the world into a jungle," Hoffmann writes.

"But so would the equation of collective security with the kind of all-out war that rules out diplomacy."

Stop stereotyping

To The Editor

Casey Johnson ("Open Mouth, Insert Foot", 12/5/90 UD) did not read my letter carefully ("Shame on You!", 12/4/90 UD).

I said nothing about "plastering a rape victims (sic) story all over the headlines," nor did I challenge reporting statistics, nor did I "speak out against an organization." The efforts of Becky Cannon of the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center and Gene Minnick of the University Police Department in helping women after they have been the victims of a physical assault are entirely commendable. The point of my letter was that those same people could do more to help prevent physical assaults against women simply by changing their verbal behaviors (both oral and written).

Johnson also assumed that since I dared criticize the staff of the LRCC, I know nothing about such organizations. That is an incorrect assumption, not to mention a logical fallacy. I have been actively helping other women with my time, effort and money for over 12 years. Before you tell me to walk in your shoes, Casey Johnson, why don't you find out the size of mine?

My final point concerns Johnson's consistent reference to me as "Mrs." Nothing in my letter hinted at my marital status, hence I can only assume that Johnson inferred my marital status from my gender and my reference to the 1960s (indicating my approximate age). That inference is a stereotype and as harmful a one in its own way as referring to an adult female as "girl." My association with Tech is a direct result of my doctorate, not my marital status.

Raising requirements for grads tops agenda for senate meeting

By CHARLES POLLET
The University Daily

Raising Graduate Record Examination (GRE) entrance scores and comparing administrators' salaries to faculty salaries will top the agenda at the next Texas Tech Faculty Senate meeting.

The meeting will be at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the University Center Senate Room.

Tech President Robert Lawless and Provost Donald Haragan will address the senate, and council and committee reports will follow.

Daniel Nathan, representative to the Graduate Council, said there will be a continued discussion of raising the requirements for GRE scores for entering students. An official report has not been completed.

Shelby Hildebrand, chair of the senate study committee B, said an official report will not be ready. However, the committee is studying the accuracy of GREs and other Tech entrance exams for predicting academic success, according to the minutes from the last Faculty Senate meeting.

The senate budget study committee is examining the rise in administrative salaries. The committee will chart the growth of administrative salaries in relation to faculty salaries.

Brink

Brink said faculty members may discuss the copying services in the library.

Currently, the Ex-Students Association contracts an external copy service for the copy machines in the library. Problems have cropped up with the copy machines and complaints are received by the Ex-Students Association. If Tech were to contract the copy services directly, the library would then handle all problems or complaints.

The Faculty Senate also will consider written clarification of the Faculty Senate Report on Teaching, which was offered in the previous faculty senate meeting.

High admissions standards result in quality transfer students

By CHARLES POLLET
The University Daily

Higher admissions standards for students who transfer to Texas Tech have resulted in better quality students without lowering the number of transfer applicants, said Virginia Sowell, vice president for academic affairs.

Requirements for entering upper-level courses were raised to a 2.5 minimum GPA for the 1991 spring semester. Lower-level courses retained a 2.0 minimum GPA for admittance.

Higher standards will make Tech a more productive teaching institution because harder-working students will be admitted, Sowell said.

"We believe students who have more abilities will benefit more from college," she said. "They can do college work better."

Admissions for transfer students increased from 818 in the 1990 spring semester to 843 in the 1991 spring semester.

Dale Grusing, director of undergraduate admissions, said he expects approximately 15 to 30 more admissions by Jan. 18, the deadline for transfer admissions.

He said several of the late applicants will not be admitted because of failure to meet admission requirements.

"A lot of times, at the last minute a problem comes up. Sometimes (transfer applicants) apply but never send us a transcript. They send us a transcript just before the beginning of a semester, and we can't admit them because their grades aren't good enough," Grusing said.

Grusing and Gene Medley, director of admissions and records, said they expect approximately 70 to 80 percent of all transfer applicants to be admitted.

Sowell said that transfer students have a higher rate of graduation than four-year Tech students. She credits the higher rate to more personal preparation at junior colleges.

"For one thing, (attending junior colleges) is cheaper," she said. "In a community college you have teachers with master's degrees who teach extremely well. Also, the classes are usually smaller, and each student has more personal attention."

Admissions to Tech most likely will not increase if more high school students opt for college, Sowell said.

Gorbachev says military commander decided to use troops in republic of Lithuania

By The Associated Press

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Monday that a local military commander decided to use force in the breakaway republic of Lithuania, where an assault by Soviet troops on Sunday claimed 14 lives.

"The manner of defense was decided by the commandant," Gorbachev said of the assault. "I learned only in the morning, the early morning, when they got me up. When it happened, no one knew."

Lithuania's foreign minister, who is in Poland with instructions to form a government in exile if Moscow takes over the republic, said the army is taking control in the Soviet Union.

"In Vilnius, the Soviet army is the enemy and nobody knows who is commanding it," said Foreign Minister Algirdas Saudargas.

Gorbachev said Sunday's assault came after a group of what he called "workers and intellectuals" had asked the military commander in Vilnius, the Lithuanian capital, to "give us protection."

He appeared to be referring to opponents of Lithuanian independence who have formed a self-declared National Salvation Committee.

Sunday's deaths were the first in the 10-month-old standoff between the Kremlin and the republic of 3.7 million people, which was annexed by the Soviet Union at the start of World War II.

The storming of the republic's main broadcast facility provoked harsh condemnation from the United States and the European Community. Western governments expressed renewed concern Monday about the situation in Lithuania.

"I don't see how we could continue with the kind of programs of help for reform in the Soviet Union ... if the Soviet Union has turned its back on the West and on the ideas of reform and gone back into its Stalinist shell," British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd told the British Broadcasting Corp.

ON THE CAMPUS

KTXT-FM seeks aspiring disc jockies

By KIRK BAIRD-PARKS
The University Daily

Looking for radio experience but you're just not sure where to turn? Look no further than Texas Tech's very own campus radio station, KTXT-FM.

KTXT exists to give students a chance to learn the ins-and-outs of the jock world. In addition to the slots available to aspiring disc jockies, there are positions for news and sportscasters as well as for promotions and productions.

In order to join the radio staff you must be a student enrolled in at least three hours. You also must attend the meeting at 6 p.m. Wednesday in room 101 of the Mass Communications building.

This spring marks the 30th anniversary of KTXT, which is only fitting since the station is coming off one of its best semesters yet.

The New Rock Spot actually placed first in some demographics as printed in the Birch radio ratings book.

"I think people in Lubbock are tired of hearing the same stuff on the radio," Station Manager, Peter Cross said. "We're an alternative to people's listening habits."

For a college radio station to make such a dent in the market is quite a feat, Cross said.

"If I was a program director at a commercial station in Lubbock, Texas, I would be embarrassed that the college station is able to take away as many listeners as we do."

Future plans for the station include two new specialty shows. The New Rock Shop debuts the latest from cutting edge bands every Wednesday night at 7:30, and an all-request show is scheduled between 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. Saturdays.

The station is planning its fourth annual blood drive and has a new newsletter, Earwax, to replace The UD for toilet paper use.

For further information or if you would just like to chat with some radio-types call Cross or Greg Rogers at 742-3916.

Museum to show medieval art

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — A treasure-trove of priceless medieval art will be displayed at a Dallas museum next month in the first public display of the works since a soldier stole them from a German church at the end of World War II.

The nine works, taken from the Lutheran Church of Quedlinburg, Germany, will be displayed at the Dallas Museum of Art from Feb. 16 through April 14, museum director Richard Brettell said.

The art, made of gold, silver, ivory and crystal, was crafted from the 8th to the 16th centuries. Some of the works were created during the rules of Charlemagne (768-814) and Otto I (936-973).

The collection includes a jeweled reliquary box with carved ivory panels and an ivory comb ornamented with rubies. The two works were fashioned during the rule of King Henry I, who unified the German states under his Saxon dynasty in the early 10th century.

"That is extremely old. These objects are rare examples of medieval religious art," said Emily Sano, the museum's deputy director. "The Ottonian period is the true beginning of the German Renaissance period. It's really a tremendously important era."

She said the art is well-preserved considering its age.

"They were in pretty good shape," Ms. Sano said. "We're doing a little bit of very minor restoration before it goes on display."

Museum officials said the exhibit will include extensive information on the art and the Quedlinburg church.

There will be a "nominal" fee for non-museum members to view the exhibit, but the amount has not yet been set, officials said.

Fees collected will go to the museum to pay for storage and exhibition costs. The remainder will be paid to the church, officials said.

The museum also will publish and sell a 32-page, full-color book with photographs of the art, Brettell said.

The art has been stored at the museum since last summer, when a legal battle between the German church and the heirs of Army Lt. Joe T. Meador of Whitewright began.

Surgery successful on Rockets' Olajuwon

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston Rockets center Akeem Olajuwon underwent successful surgery to repair damage to his right eye suffered when he was elbowed in the face by Chicago Bulls center Bill Cartwright, doctors announced Monday.

"There were no surprises, and with proper healing everything should go as planned," said Dr. Robert Wilkins, who performed the surgery.

Olajuwon, the Western Conference all-star starting center for the past four seasons, should be able to resume workouts with the team in

Olajuwon

Olajuwon would be lost three to four weeks and that no surgery would be required, but further examination revealed a need to insert a piece of Teflon shield to help repair the damaged bone structure around Olajuwon's eye.

Patterson said Olajuwon is expected to be dismissed from the hospital late Monday or Tuesday and could resume conditioning on a stationary bike as soon as he wished.

"He can begin some sort of exercise in roughly four weeks and in eight weeks he will be able to play basketball after that," Patterson said.

eight weeks, Rockets general manager Steve Patterson said.

Olajuwon suffered a blowout fracture on the bottom right eye orbit Jan. 3 when he and Cartwright went for a rebound under the Rockets' basket in a game in The Summit.

The Rockets originally thought Ola-

Tech women take aim at low-flying Owls

By ANDREW HARRIS
The University Daily

Texas Tech women's basketball coach Marsha Sharp entered Monday morning's weekly press conference with a different topic on her mind than what she had planned.

Sharp hoped to talk about Saturday afternoon's win over Arkansas, but Lady Razorback post Delmonica DeHorney's 29-point effort guided Arkansas past the Red Raiders 64-62 and spoiled any chance of a Tech upset bid.

"I was hoping we could talk about our big victory today," Sharp said. "But unfortunately we were about two minutes and two or three points short of that Saturday."

The Raiders gave up a 12-point second-half lead in their first Southwest Conference loss of the season.

Tech dropped to 3-1 in league play and 11-3 overall, while the Lady

Sharp

Razorbacks took over sole possession of first place and improved to 4-0 in conference and 13-2 overall.

Sharp was disappointed about the loss, but hoped the women could bounce back and play well during the upcoming week.

"I really felt like our kids played well enough to win," Sharp said. "I hope maybe we at least came out of it with the feeling that we could compete with some of the Top 20 teams and maybe gained a little bit of confidence from that aspect of it."

Sharp was also quick to praise the dominating play of DeHorney.

"We maybe out-played Arkansas for the majority of the game," Sharp said. "But unfortunately Delmonica DeHorney got loose in the second-half and we really didn't do a very good job of controlling her. I obviously think that was the difference in the game."

Sharp said junior-college transfer Tami Wilson's play of late has added a new dimension to the Raiders' inside game.

"We've been so excited about the things that she's been able to contribute to our program already," Sharp said. "To be a 5-foot-11 post player, she plays more like a 6-2 player and we really feel like she's done a great job in giving us a dimension that we didn't have on our basketball team."

Unfortunately for Tech, things do not get any easier as the Raiders take to the road for two games in Houston in a four day span.

Tech first travels to Rice's Autry Court to take on the Owls at 5 p.m. Wednesday, then returns to Houston Saturday to take on the Cougars.

"We've really got to put last week behind us and come out and really do a great job of focusing in on the Rice Owls because they really do a great job against us," Sharp said.

The Owls are currently sharing the bottom spot in the conference standings with Southern Methodist at 0-3 and are 6-6 overall.

Rice began the year winning six of its first seven games, but has faltered of late, losing five straight.

Sharp said this weekend's contest with Houston presents another challenge as the Raiders take on a Cougar team that Sharp feels is possibly the most underrated team in the conference.

Raiders recover from loss Prepare to face Rice, Houston

By MIKE PENDER
The University Daily

When the No. 2-ranked Arkansas men's basketball team entered the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum Saturday during the Texas Tech/Lady Razorback game, a hush of silence fell over the 2,189 in attendance.

Fans of all ages flocked to get the autographs of center Oliver Miller, forward Todd Day and guard Lee Mayberry. The autograph-seekers seemed dwarfed standing next to the trio that would later lead a second-half scoring barrage over the home team.

All the attention the Razorback players received was indicative of the dominance they would display later that evening.

Although the Raiders hung with Arkansas throughout the first half, the popular threesome took charge after the intermission.

Miller, Day and Mayberry combined for 42 points in the second-half, as the Razorbacks expanded their eight-point halftime lead to 27 by the end of the game.

Miller finished the 113-86 win over the upset-minded Tech team with 27 points. He went 9-of-11 from the field and 9-of-10 from the charity stripe.

"If we had a big center; someone who could half-guard him (Miller), then we could defend the other guys," Raider coach Gerald Myers said at his weekly press conference Monday. "But he is so big and handles himself so well under the basket, we just don't have anyone big enough to guard him. We can only guard about one-third of him."

Myers also said when the Raiders doubled-teamed Miller, he was talented enough to find the open man.

Those open men were Day and Mayberry, who each finished the contest with 20 points.

The Raiders had a scare early in the contest when sophomore Will

Although Flemons played only 28 minutes, he led the contest with nine rebounds.

Flemons has also scored in double figures for six consecutive games.

"He (Will) does still have some soreness in his foot after games, so he has to rest some during practice," Myers said. "We just can't get out there and bang on him, so to speak, everyday."

"We're trying to work him out and keep him in shape and have him ready to play the games, but he can't really go out there and get it everyday."

The setback to Arkansas leaves Tech at 2-2 in the SWC and 5-11 overall while the Razorbacks improved to 4-0 (tops in the SWC) and 15-1.

Tech must now pick up the pieces and travel to Houston to take on Rice Wednesday and Houston Saturday.

Myers is weary of the Owls, citing the fact that Rice has already played the Southwest Conference leaders in Arkansas, Texas and Houston.

Rice lost all three, but played especially well in the game with the Longhorns. The Owls held leads throughout the contest.

"They're 0-3, but they're not the worst team in the league by any means. I still think they're a middle-of-the-league team," Myers said.

"We'll really have to play well and play hard and play good defense against Rice to even have a chance."

Last season the Owls won both meetings.

Brent Scott had 20 points in Rice's 74-71 victory in Lubbock and Tech fell 75-56 in Autry Court (The Jungle) in the second meeting in Houston.

The Raiders will also face a tough opponent in the Cougars Saturday.

Houston is 10-4 overall and 2-1 in the SWC.

Sports Briefs

San Antonio forward sidelined by injuries

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Injured forward Terry Cummings is not expected to play when the San Antonio Spurs face the Jazz in Utah Tuesday, team officials said.

Cummings, suffering from lower back pain and a groin pull, has missed the last four games and is listed as day-to-day in the Spurs injury report.

Cummings has averaged 18.8 points per game and is 37th in the NBA in scoring.

"He is going to tell us when he is ready (to play)," Bob Bass, Spurs vice president for basketball affairs, said Sunday. "He'll play whenever he tells us he is ready, but I definitely know he's not going (to Utah) unless something changes."

Spurs assistant coach Gregg Popovich also said he did not expect Cummings to play in Utah.

The game is the Spurs' second in four days against the Jazz. The Spurs defeated Utah 112-92 Saturday in San Antonio.

Graf, Becker breeze through first round

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Boris Becker and Steffi Graf, more predictable than the weird weather, stylishly kicked off the Australian Open on a day when courtside temperatures plunged from 110 degrees to 60.

Midday winds took the edge off the heat, blue skies turned purple, feathery clouds gave way to rain. Through it all tennis balls kept flying, outdoors and indoors, for 13½ hours Monday.

Becker paused only during a brief sprinkle and the closing of the retractable roof above center court before beating Jeremy Bates 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.

Graf slowed down just long enough to allow her opponent, Jennifer Santrock, to catch her breath in their 48-minute, 6-3, 6-0 match.

Also, fourth-seeded Gabriela Sabatini, putting behind her memory of the severely sprained ankle she suffered here a year ago, defeated dangerous newcomer Linda Harvey-Wild 6-3, 6-1.

Oak Hills considered as Texas Open sight

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Oak Hills Country Club may again host the Texas Open now that the Club at Sonterra has withdrawn from consideration as the site of the tournament.

"Sonterra wants to know if the tournament is coming or not," said Andrew Iosue, president of the San Antonio Golf Association, which organizes the event. "I can't blame them for doing this because the decision has dragged on for so long."

Kiyonori Higa, a Japanese real estate executive who owns Sonterra, said in a prepared statement Sunday the country club was pulling out because the decision "has become so controversial."

After the 1990 Texas Open, questions arose about whether the PGA tournament would be held again at Oak Hills, which had no black members. Oak Hills since has accepted a black member.

Oak Hills hosted the tournament for six years in the 1960s and became the permanent site of the Texas Open in 1977.
