Rate hike could double phone bills

By KEVIN SMITH
University Daily Reporter

Like other Texas residents, Lubbock telephone customers now face a possible doubling of monthly residential bills instead of the tripling originally requested by Southwestern Bell.

Southwestern Bell Monday cut $330 million from its original rate hike request, bringing the total increase requested to $1.36 billion instead of the original $1.7 billion raise request originally filed with the Public Utility Commission (PUC).

Phil Bode, a local spokesman for Southwestern Bell, said the decrease in the rate hike request was because of new figures concerning depreciation expense released by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Bode said Southwestern Bell bases its calculations for its rate request on the FCC figures. The figures recently were revised, changing the company's calculations and subsequently lowering the rate increase request.

What that means to local telephone customers is that their current monthly access charge will double, rising from $8.80 to $17.40, if the request is approved by the PUC.

Under its original request, Southwestern Bell asked for an increase of $19.60, which would have hiked residential bills to $28.40 per month.

The access charge is a fee charged the consumer for access to the telephone network, Bode said. The fee is a flat monthly rate that is figured in with the monthly telephone bill.

Bode said the rate increase is necessary to supply local telephone companies with much-needed revenue relief. The access charge increase is intended to replace income generated by long distance revenue that Southwestern Bell will lose after American Telephone and Telegraph Co. breaks up at the beginning of next year.

"This charge is a pool of money to subsidize the company," Bode said. "We are in bad need of some source of revenue relief, and this raise will help supply it."

The raise still is pending approval by the PUC. Bode said if everything goes smoothly the raise will go into effect next year, probably in March or April.

Bode also said the length of time involved in getting the raise request approved is blocking the revenue relief that Southwestern Bell badly needs.

"We've been trying to get the request filed and approved since June 24," he said. "The hearing for the new request isn't set until Oct. 24, so the clock hasn't even started ticking for the rate increase."

The new information pertaining to the rate hike was filed with the PUC Monday after a PUC examiner had requested more information.

The PUC and the FCC had voiced objections to Southwestern Bell's depreciation expense proposals and wanted substantial reductions. A PUC examiner is expected to decide later in the week whether enough information pertaining to the rate increase has been provided by Southwestern Bell.

Flare-up endangers cease-fire

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Gunmen fired mortars and rocket grenades at Lebanese army positions Monday, forcing Marines deployed nearby to scamper into bunkers and foxholes on maximum alert for the first time in a week-old truce.

In another flare-up later in the day, army tanks fired at Shiite Moslem militia positions in a southern slum after the Shiites fired mortar rounds and rocket grenades toward the Christian-populated area of Ain Rummeneh.

President Amin Gemayel called an emergency Cabinet session, saying procedural disputes have stymied his efforts to convene a national reconciliation conference among Lebanon's feuding sects. The delay has threatened to further unravel the civil war truce that began Sept. 26.

Marine spokesman Warrant Officer Charles Rowe said about 30 Marines of Charlie Company went on "condition one," when Lebanese army positions just south of Beirut international airport came under fire at midmorning. The shooting stopped after 30 minutes, Rowe said, but it was unclear who was responsible.

It was the first time the Marines serving with the multinational force patrolling Beirut went into their maximum state of alert since the cease-fire took effect.

Several hours afterward, Ain Rummeneh residents said the Lebanese army began firing tank cannon in attempts to stop Shiite gunmen in the nearby Shiya slum from shooting mortars and grenades at Christian targets.

Army sources said fighting started after Shiite fighters allied with Druse militiamen in the mountains began sniping at army positions.

Gemayel's administration has said it is willing to hold at least the opening session of the reconciliation conference in Saudi Arabia, but that site is opposed by Syria, which has backed Druse leader Walid Jumblatt's leftist Druse militia in the civil war.

"President Gemayel told the ministers the date of holding the national dialogue has not been set yet because preliminary efforts by mediators have not overcome the new difficulties that arose from the need to choose a new venue," a statement from his office said after the Cabinet meeting.

It also said the Cabinet issued a warning, apparently aimed at Jumblatt and his eight-man committee in the mountain area controlled by his Progressive Socialist Party militia. The Cabinet said those participating in the reconciliation conference "should not become captives of military or administrative conditions dictated by one party."

Gemayel's administration has denounced Jumblatt's creation of a "civic administration committee" in the Chouf Mountain district, calling it a Syrian-backed attempt to partition the country.

But Jumblatt said his civil administration is "purely of an administrative nature to help the population cope with water, electric power and food shortages." He denied he wanted to break up Lebanon, saying it is "too small to be partitioned."

Reagan offers new plan for arms reduction

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan proposed Tuesday that the Soviet Union and the United States each destroy at least 5 percent of their strategic nuclear warheads each year. "We want to reduce the weapons of war, pure and simple," Reagan declared.

The president, outlining a new U.S. bargaining position in the deadlocked strategic arms talks, said that "everything is on the table." He specifically offered, also, to negotiate limits on long-range bombers and air-launched cruise missiles. The United States holds an edge in bombers of 410 to 343 and also is ahead in the cruises they carry.

Earlier, Reagan sought to require substantial cutbacks in heavy missiles, which account for about two-thirds of the Soviets' strategic strength, while pro-missing to take up bombers at a later stage.

"We have removed the dividing line between the two phases of our original proposal," Reagan said.

But he accused the Soviets of "stonewalling," and Rep. Les Aspin (D-Wis.), who played a key role in White House consultations with Congress, predicted "a very cold reaction" from Moscow.

The Soviets have proposed limiting each side to 1,800 missiles and bombers combined. Currently, the United States has about 1,600 missiles compared to 2,340 for the Soviet Union.

The president met for 45 minutes with a group from the House and Senate before announcing the revised U.S. position in the Rose Garden. "Let me emphasize," he said, "that the United States has gone the extra mile."

At Reagan's side was Edward Rowny, who will open a fifth round of talks with the Soviets on Thursday in Geneva, Switzerland.

"There will have to be trade-offs and the United States is prepared to make them," Reagan said as he outlined Rowny's instructions to reporters.

Reagan adopted the proposal for a guaranteed "build-down" in U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear weapons at the prompting of Aspin and other members of Congress. It was backed by 45 senators.

Michener plans interview with Tech students

Pulitzer prize-winning author James Michener will be interviewing students and faculty here today. Michener is researching background material for his forthcoming novel about Texas.

The author's on-campus interview with students and faculty will be conducted informally from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. today in the University Center Courtyard.

Michener has come to West Texas to study water resources and the cotton industry. He visited Levelland and Shallowater Tuesday, looking for possible settings for use in the historical novel. His visit is being coordinated by the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS).

Michener won the Pulitzer Prize in 1948 for his book, Tales of the South Pacific. He is the author of several well-known novels, including Hawaii and The Covenant. His latest work, Poland is a best-seller. Many of his books became the basis of movies; Centennial was serialized by NBC.

He said he has no idea what the title of the Texas book will be because he leaves that matter in the hands of his publishers.

Michener and his wife Mari have lived in Austin for more than a year while he researched the Texas book, and the Micheners have traveled all over Texas to become familiar with the state.

He plans to visit Texas Tech's Southwest Collection before completing his stay in this area.

AIDS no threat to blood donors, UBS employee says

By GILBERT DUNKLEY
University Daily Reporter

Although blood donations have diminished nationwide since AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) was given priority at the federal Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, a blood agency employee says donors face no danger of contracting AIDS.

Declining blood donations are the result of public fears about AIDS because people think there is a connection between giving blood and contracting AIDS, an employee of United Blood Services (UBS) of Lubbock said.

"People have been afraid because they don't understand the problem and the media doesn't explain it as they should," said the UBS employee, who declined to be identified.

Although no cases of AIDS have been reported in Lubbock County, blood donations have declined in Lubbock, he said.

"It's impossible to get it (AIDS) from donating blood," he said. "The only way to get it is from getting the (contaminated) blood."

AIDS cannot be contracted by donating blood, a Lubbock Health Department spokesman said, because collection equipment — syringes, etc. — are discarded as soon as it is used on one donor.

The Texas Department of Health and the CDC identify four groups as being high risks for contraction of AIDS: homosexual and bisexual men, intravenous drug abusers, Haitian immigrants and hemophiliacs who depend on frequent blood transfusions.

Outbreaks of AIDS among some Haitian immigrants continue to puzzle researchers.

An April 18 Newsweek magazine report states that the disease may be transmitted by sexual contact and by hypodermic needle-sharing among intravenous drug abusers.

Part of the mystery of the AIDS connection is the group labeled "other cases" by Newsweek. That category, with 75 cases, including "36 seemingly risk-free heterosexual men," does not conform to groups identified by the CDC as being high-risk.

Most homosexual AIDS victims are mainstream gays who have had multiple anonymous sexual contacts, Newsweek stated.

The CDC and the local and state health departments discourage persons who fit any high-risk category from donating blood for purposes other than research.

Texas AIDS cases recorded in Texas Register Number 9, dated Sept. 24, total 65, with 39 new cases reported during 1983. Texas has had 34 AIDS fatalities.

As of July 18, 1,902 cases of the disease and 732 resulting fatalities have been recorded in the National AIDS Registry.

The July 18 statistics from the Lubbock Health Department indicate the states that have the highest AIDS-case count are New York, with 915 cases, and California, with 401.

The city of New York has reported the most AIDS cases. Cases of AIDS have been reported in 12 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. The CDC reports cases in 20 foreign countries.

Because the disease affects mainly homosexual and bisexual men, a perception exists that AIDS is a gay disease, Newsweek stated.

"Why should AIDS be called the gay plague? Nobody calls sickle-cell the black plague," gay Tech student Dean Schaner said.

Sickle-cell anemia mostly affects blacks.

"There is concern in the Lubbock gay community about the risks of AIDS, but the attitude is not fearful because (gay) relationships in Lubbock have tended to be monogamous," Schaner said.

"(AIDS) has unified the gay community," he said. San Francisco's AIDS Fund was founded to raise money for assisting research of the disease.

Prejudice result of ignorance

ROBIN RYNN CHAVEZ

Most of my childhood years were spent in Alabama, and I was exposed to a lot of prejudice. People from the South are, for the most part, prejudiced against everyone, from blacks to Mexicans to Republicans. I suppose it dates back to the days of the big slave plantations; prejudice seems to be inherent in many Southerners.

I got out of 'Bama as fast as I could, settled and lived for close to 11 years in El Paso, where American and Mexican culture exists hand in hand, out of necessity if for no other reason. I was, therefore, horrified upon coming to Texas Tech and noticing that nearly everyone's favorite words were "nigger" and "spic."

Although I am of hispanic decent, my point of view is somewhat unique when looking at the problem of prejudice. I have blonde hair, blue eyes, and fair skin. I do not fit the stereotypical image of a Mexican-American which seems to be lodged in the minds of many Tech students. This allows me to see sides of people I would not see if I was your typical dark-haired seniorita.

I have asked people to refrain from telling "spic" jokes, or any other racial jokes demeaning not only hispanics, but any other minority group, when I am around. At first they assume I am a liberal Democrat out to give away the riches of the world to the poor oppressed peons. Most people can live with that, hoping that someday I'll come to my senses and see the light.

However, when I explain that I object not for political reasons, but because I am of hispanic descent, I invariably get one of two responses. I either get a look of incredulity and total disbelief, or I get, "well you don't LOOK Mexican." Either way, it's exasperating.

I am firmly convinced that prejudice is the result of pure unadulterated ignorance, and a good measure of fear as well. As for those students on this campus who believe that they are directly in line behind God Almighty because of their lilly-white skin and "American" background, I pity them their ignorance and the loss of knowledge they could gain from understanding another culture.

Unless you are an American Indian, or a descendant thereof, you are not a "true" American. Your family immigrated to this land from one foreign country or another and reaped the benefits of the greatest governmental system on earth. Now, however, Americans have grown greedy and dislike sharing those same benefits with people who haven't had the same opportunities, who have lived under a dictator, or in a communist regime.

People who carry prejudice around like a banner remind me of a child who hears unfamiliar noises in the night and is afraid. Even though the child knows there cannot be anything in the dark that can harm him, the fear of the unknown is still paralyzing. Fortunately, most children get up and turn on the light to reassure themselves.

Prejudice is like the unfamiliar noise in the dark that frightens people and paralyzes their minds. More people should turn on the light and realize that no matter what the surname, color of the skin, language or religion, we all are humans trying to survive in an increasingly difficult world. In doing this we would educate ourselves, and the ignorance that breeds prejudice eventually would disappear.

Flies may be responsible for Tech's nickname

LAURA TETREAU

Red Raider. People who have never visited Texas Tech's campus envision a Red Raider as a skilled, sleek horseman (or horsewoman, as is the case with this year's mascot) who grandly parades around the football field on a jet black stallion.

But I have a theory about how the mascot was chosen, and it has nothing to do with such a noble myth as just mentioned. I believe we are called Red Raiders because of the West Texas flies.

One Saturday mid-morning I was sitting on the park bench outside my dorm waiting for the Citibus to come by.

Out of nowhere, a little fly came by and landed on my jeans near my right kneecap. When a fly landed on me in my hometown of San Antonio, all I had to do was slightly move and it would go away. But not so with West Texas flies.

These pesky creatures have suction cups on the bottom of their feet. They think the Homestead Act applies to man, animals, and insects alike. I shook my knee, but to no avail.

Much to my dismay, he not only refused to move, but he began to take surveying notations in order to construct a "place of his own." He was very industrious; he had his own carpenter tools with him. I heard him hum an insect version of "Home on the Range" while he started the foundation work.

My shock soon transformed into disgust, and I ran back up to my dorm to find a can of insect repellent. By the time a maid gave me a can of Raid, the little infester was completing finishing touches on the roof.

My first shot of Raid was retaliated by a kick to the shin. As my foe gave a fierce battle cry, I held my breath, took a better aim, and flooded his homestead with liquid Raid for 30 seconds. He drowned and my jeans were soaked.

Probably the worse part of a battle is the cleanup, and mine was no exception.

I already had missed the bus, and I needed to change my jeans. As I trudged to my humble domain, I looked back on the incident and figured that I must have been a sight, running around campus red faced with a can of Raid in my hand.

When I went back outside to wait for the bus again, I saw another student running by, and as you probably guessed, he was red in the face and had a can of Raid in his hand.

Lightning bolts flashed and the clouds parted as the realization of why Tech is known as the home of the Red Raiders came to me.

Sometimes, a myth is a whole lot better than the actual truth.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Jesus forgives

To the editor:
This letter is against sin. As I was recently in Lubbock speaking for Jesus, I saw many signs on your campus. There were ads for beer, young girls in tight blue jeans, and much talk of sex for fun. As an old timey Christian, I am sad. But I must tell you that Jesus will forgive sinners.

He forgave Lot for getting drunk and sleeping with his own daughters. He forgave Solomon for sleeping with 1,000 wives and prostitutes. He forgave Paul for not liking women.

Like that fine young fellow Burt Bradley I, too, confess to sinning. As a youth I also tore down folks' good name. I stole. I drank. I took the Lord's name in vain.

When I got married more than fifty years ago there was already "one in the oven" as they say. I could not go on through school. She was just 13 and the Lord saw fit to take her and the child from me. So I stand punished.

Now I stand anointed by Jesus. Hallelujah. As for this talk on birth control and sex education I don't know about that. The Lord said if you bring up a child in the way he shall go, he will not pass from it. If the papas and mommas won't tell the children and the churches won't tell the children, then somebody has got to, it seems to me.

That will let them get old enough to find out they were wrong maybe and God will forgive them. Children who are not wanted get beat up on or farmed out to their kinfolks a lot, it seems to me. Then they are sometimes put in the same situation. They stay poor and uneducated and aren't good for anything except having more babies. A cycle.

There are some people who will tell you that birth control is a plot by the non-Christian religions and the non-white races to take over from the white people and the Christians. I don't think so. That seems like Hitler talk to me.

Such like planning may not be such a bad idea. It is a bigger sin to have sex and have a little baby you don't want than to just have sex. In either case Jesus will forgive you. It seems to me that is what the Christian religion is all about.

God bless you
Rev. Darl Whitfield

Liberals speak out

To the Editor:
In response to Mrs. R.H. Stewart's cancellation of The UD and to A.E. Blakemore's continued complaints of the continued run of Ben Sargent's political cartoons, Mr. Blakemore has taken on the task of complaining about Sargent's cartoons all by himself. He appears to be the only one of the "conservative majority" that is complaining. Mrs. Stewart has cancelled her subscription to The UD because it is a liberal paper. I suggest to Mr. Blakemore and Mrs. Stewart that if they want to read a conservative paper, read the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. Let the "liberal minority" have some form of expression too. Isn't that one of the reasons for the founding of the United States of America — freedom of expression?

Jenny A. Edwards

To the Editor:
In response to A.E. Blakemore's criticism of Ben Sargent and his suggestion of William F. Buckley Jr.'s daily column as a substitute, I can only say this: if Blakemore wants to expand his vocabulary, he should read a dictionary. If he wants to think, he should read Ben Sargent.

Melvin A. Hunn

Extinction distinction

To the Editor:
In The UD (Sept. 29) a student who found an ill pigeon was quoted as saying, "...this pigeon is a passenger pigeon, which is an endangered species." In the interest of accuracy, it was most likely a domestic pigeon, (Columbia livia) which is not a protected species.

Billions of passenger pigeons (Ectopistes migratorius) once inhabited eastern North America; migrating flocks reportedly darkened the skies for days. In the 1800s, millions of passenger pigeons were slaughtered yearly by setters moving westward. The species officially became extinct when the last representative died on Sept. 1, 1914, in the Cincinnati, Ohio, zoo.

It is unfortunate that the bird could not have been a passenger pigeon, for it would mean that remnants of the species still exist.

As an Indian I was flattered to read the article on Mahatma Gandhi in your paper. But it sure would have been nice if you had spelled his name correctly. It is "Gandhi", not "Ghandi".

Courts examine video practices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, taking a second look at a high-stakes battle over home video recorders, was told Monday that the motion picture industry wants to "disembowel" the television taping devices or at least force viewers to pay a heavy tax to use them.

Dean Dunlavey of Los Angeles, an attorney for Sony Corp., urged the justices to reject the movie industry's view and allow increasing millions of Americans to continue to make unrestricted use of the recorders.

The questions to be decided by the court are whether video recorder owners are violating federal copyright law by taping television shows and televised movies, and, if so, whether the machines' manufacturers have to pay for such alleged armchair piracy.

Man faces murder charges

DENTON (AP) — A drifter who claims to have killed 150 women in 16 states faces trial in Denton Oct. 17 in the slaying of a Florida teen-ager he identified as his common-law wife.

Henry Lee Lucas, 47, is charged with murder in the death of 15-year-old Freida Powell of Jacksonville, Fla. The girl's skeletal remains were found in Denton County in September 1982. Lucas had introduced the girl, whom he called Becky, as his common-law wife.

A pretrial hearing in the case was set for Friday in the court of State District Judge Sam Houston.

Lucas was transferred to Denton Monday from Henrietta, where he pleaded guilty last week to the murder of 80-year-old Kate Rich of Ringgold in North Texas. He was sentenced to 75 years in prison in that case.

Investigators collect evidence

PADUCAH (AP) — Minnesota investigators arrived in this North Texas town Tuesday to collect evidence and an 18-year-old suspect in the slayings of two bankers last week.

Steven Jenkins, who led Texas authorities to the body of his father Sunday night, waived extradition and probably will be taken back to Minnesota today, said Cottle County Sheriff Frank Taylor.

He said the Minnesota investigators had "taken charge of the evidence," including a cache of weapons found in the pickup of the teen-ager's father, James L. Jenkins.

The elder Jenkins apparently shot himself to death after the pair ran out of money, Taylor said.

Both father and son were named in Minnesota warrants charging them with two counts of second-degree murder in the deaths of the bankers in southwestern Minnesota.

Reagan's action seen as signal to Manila

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — Opposition leaders said Tuesday the cancellation of President Reagan's Manila visit could signal the beginning of the withdrawal of American support for President Ferdinand Marcos and a tougher crackdown by Marcos on his opponents.

"Now that he is not coming,

I think it's open season," said former Foreign Minister Salvador Lopez. "President Marcos is no longer on good behavior."

Some opposition leaders said privately that the cancellation could prove a boon to the embattled Philippine leader. They explained that Reagan's presence would have provided a target for major anti-Marcos demonstrations that would have dominated foreign TV screens and made headlines in all the foreign papers.

Marcos said he did not think Reagan's action indicated flagging U.S. confidence in him, but diplomatic observers took it as a blow to his prestige at a time of increasing domestic opposition to his authoritarian regime.

Manila's afternoon newspapers carried the White House announcement under front-page banner headlines. A major television network flashed the news on its screen, and coffee shops buzzed with speculation about the impact on Marcos' 18-year grip on the country.

"It could be the beginning of the withdrawal of (U.S.) support for the Marcos regime," said former Sen. Salvador Laurel, president of the United Nationalist Democratic Organization, the biggest anti-Marcos political group.

He said the cancellation "somewhat defused" anti-American sentiment among Filipinos who would have viewed Reagan's visit as condonation of the assassination Aug. 21 of Marcos' chief rival, former Sen. Benigno Aquino.

But Laurel said Reagan would have gained more "points" among Filipinos if he had said he was not coming to show disapproval of the Marcos government. Instead the president attributed his decision to the press of unfinished legislation in Congress.

Aquino's brother Butz said the cancellation was an attempt by Reagan to "distance" himself from Marcos.

Marcos, who said earlier that cancellation of Reagan's visit would be "a setback," tried to minimize the blow.

Murderer to be executed

By The Associated Press

HUNTSVILLE — The execution of James David Autry as scheduled early today would make him the ninth U.S. prisoner executed in the seven years since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment.

In that time, the U.S. death row population has swelled to more than 1,200 men and women.

All the convicts executed since 1976 were men. Four chose death over extended legal appeals.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1976 that the death penalty could be a constitutional punishment for convicted murderers. The decision ended the high court's four-year moratorium on capital punishment. Before then, no prison inmate had been executed since 1967.

A new era of capital punishment began six months after the 1976 ruling, when Gary Mark Gilmore, an arrogant Utah killer, died Jan. 17, 1977, before a firing squad. He said he preferred to "die like a man" rather than challenge his conviction for the murder of a Provo motel clerk.

John Spenklink, convicted of killing a traveling companion, frantically fought for his life before dying May 5, 1979, in Florida's electric chair. He was pronounced dead only 28 minutes after the Supreme Court rejected his last legal appeal.

Jesse Bishop died in a Nevada gas chamber Oct. 22, 1979, after emulating Gilmore's decision to forgo any legal appeal.

The next two men to die reached similar decisions. Indiana murderer Steven Judy was electrocuted March 9, 1981. Virginia killer Frank J. Coppola died in the electric chair Aug. 10, 1982.

Charlie Brooks Jr. became the first prison inmate executed by lethal injection Dec. 7, 1982, when Texas authorities shot a deadly combination of drugs into his veins. He also was the first black man executed in 16 years.

John Louis Evans died in Alabama's electric chair April 22.

Child killer Jimmy Lee Gray was executed in Mississippi's gas chamber Sept. 2 for the rape and murder of a 3-year-old neighbor girl.

Today, 38 states have capital punishment laws; 12 states and the District of Columbia do not.

State authorities and the nation's courts are finding that enforcement of those laws can be a lengthy process.

Astronaut says science is international

By The Associated Press

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Ulf Merbold, scheduled to become the first European astronaut to fly on an American spacecraft, said at a news conference Tuesday that the ninth flight of the space shuttle is an international mission that unites the world in the common pursuit of science.

Merbold, a payload specialist selected to fly on the shuttle by the European Space Agency, said that while training for the mission he found an international unity among scientists, a unity that ignored national borders.

"We are involved now in a real international program," said Merbold, a 42-year-old West German citizen. "It was a surprise to me to learn that scientists are basically the same wherever they are from. There is no French science, or British science. Science is international."

The ninth flight of the space shuttle is set for launch late this month.

Merbold made the comments in a final, pre-mission news conference for the six crewmen of space shuttle Flight 9, a mission that will carry into orbit the European-built space lab. The lab is a module in the cargo bay of the shuttle that is packed with experiments designed by both American and European scientists.

During the nine-day mission, scheduled for launch Oct. 28, crew members will conduct more than 70 experiments, gathering data in disciplines ranging from astronomy to human biology.

In addition to Merbold, the crew includes veteran astronaut John Young as the commander; Brewster Shaw as pilot; mission specialists Owen Garriott and Robert Parker, and a second payload specialist, Byron Lichtenberg.

Merbold said in training for the flight, he, Garriott, Parker and Lichtenberg, all scientists, visited laboratories all over the world. The West German said he found much in common among scientists everywhere.

The travels, he said, "gave us the opportunity to correct quite a few pre-judgments about foreign nations. It was really very educational for all of us."

During the news conference, the 53-year-old Young hinted that he may retire after the mission, his sixth space flight.

New Exhibit opens at museum

A glimpse behind the canvas of the traveling tent shows popular in West Texas from the turn of the century until the 1950s awaits visitors to a new exhibit at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

"Trouping Through Texas: Entertainment for Rural Communities," depicts a time before the talkies brought down the final curtain on tent show life.

The exhibit, composed of items from the collections of both the Southwest Collection and The Museum, is scheduled through Nov. 6 in conjunction with the Fourth Annual Southwest Collection Symposium Friday in The Museum. The symposium, "The American Southwest: Its Music and Entertainment," will cover regional amusements and music.

A University Theatre recreation of the Harley Sadler tent show favorite, "Saintly Hypocrites and Honest Sinners," is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

Coronado activities planned

The Coronado High School homecoming football game against Plainview will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Lowrey Field.

An ex-students' reception will be at 10 a.m. following the pep rally Friday in the Coronado High School homemaking lounge. Refreshments will be served.

Menu pleases students from a panel of student taste testers.

AMES, Iowa — Iowa State University isn't giving up on institutional cooking, but its cafeterias are featuring something new this fall — thanks to good old Mom.

The university has added 19 special "favorite from home" recipes to the menu after screening 200 recipes submitted by students.

The winners were chosen for adaptability to serving thousands and for high marks

Among the winners were American, Mexican, Chinese, Canadian, Polynesian and German main dishes, soups, salads and desserts.

Food service director Steward Burger said most winners were mothers of students. Each will receive two meals on a day their item will be served, a copy of the fall menu showing their recipe and a copy of their recipe — expanded to serve 100.

Local candidates discuss qualifications

Editor's note: This is the first of a two-part series by UD reporter David Leary examining the views of two Lubbock men who recently announced their candidacies for the U.S. congressional seat representing Lubbock. Part 1 deals with both candidates' qualifications for the job and potential problems in the race. Part 2 deals with both candidates' views on the issues confronting West Texas. Interviews with the two men were conducted separately.

By DAVID LEARY
University Daily Reporter

Although the next congressional election is not until November 1984, Democrat Don Richards and Republican Larry Combest are gearing up their political bandwagons, turning out the bumper stickers and constructing the yard signs.

The two Lubbockites have jumped into the race for U.S. Congress, declaring their candidacies to fill the seat that will be vacated by U.S. Rep. Kent Hance as he makes a bid for the U.S. Senate.

Both men are native West Texans who also are former legislative assistants in Washington, D.C. Richards spent three years as Hance's press secretary handling military and foreign affairs, and Combest served U.S. Sen. John Tower (R-Texas) as legislative assistant dealing with agricultural legislation.

Currently, Richards is attending the Texas Tech University School of Law. Combest owns and operates Combest Distributing Co., a wholesale electronics distributorship in Lubbock.

UD: Why do you think you are qualified to represent the 19th District of Texas?

Richards: Basically, I feel like I have the background and experience. I was born and raised in West Texas, went to school here. I know a lot of people and understand the problems we have out here, especially with farming, water and oil and gas.

Just the fact that I was in the newspaper business in West Texas for 6½ years, I've covered farming from the good years to the bad years, and oil and gas. I feel like with my newspaper experience I learned a whole lot about how the (political) process works, what's really happening.

Going to Washington with Hance for three years, I gained an understanding of how the political process works. Not just an understanding of how people think in the district, but also how to apply it politically, more or less the political savvy of how to make it work once you get to Washington. There's more to it than Robert's Rules of Order. I feel like I've learned that now. I don't need to be trained.

Combest: Well, I farmed for 25 years, so I know agriculture problems from that basis, which, of course, is the basis of our economy out here. I taught school, I worked for the branch of the USDA that administers farm programs, I worked for Tower for six years in Washington as a legislative assistant dealing with agricultural legislation, so I know the agricultural problems, both from the producer's level and from the administrative level. I've also been an independent businessman for six years, so I know how hard it is to run a business.

UD: How much money do you think it will take to win this election?

Richards: I've seen everything thrown out up to $750,000, maybe a million. I expect anywhere from $75,000 to $150,000 for the primary, depending on who's in the race. Probably $150,000 to $300,000 for the race itself.

Combest: I think to adequately run a Congressional race it would require a minimum of $300,000, and that money has to come from contributions. If a candidate can't raise the money through contributions, then he shouldn't be in the race.

UD: Do you think you have that kind of support?

Richards: Sure. Yes, I sure do. It's going to be tough this year because I strongly identify with the farmers and what they're going through out here, and they don't have any money. I feel like I'll get strong support from the farmers, and I think that's my main constituency right now, but they're broke. But I grew up in the media, and you learn a lot of things about utilizing your resources the best you can. Money isn't everything. People and the issues are.

Combest: Yes, I do. We feel very confident we can raise the money to finance this campaign. Many people try to buy a race with their own money. But if you can't raise the money, you shouldn't be in the race because people will contribute to good government.

UD: Have you ever been elected to public office? If not, do you believe that presents a problem in your bid for Congress?

Richards: No, I've never been elected to office, but I don't feel like I'm new to the game. In the newspaper business, you cover elections a lot, work with everybody from city commissioners to the school board. I've always felt almost like an elected official; you know you take editorial stands, you get criticized and you're always in the public eye when you sign your name to your work. I've always felt like I've been subject to public scrutiny in that regard, plus I've gotten the hands-on experience in Washington.

Combest: No, I've never been elected to a government position, but I don't think that will affect my chances because of the experience I already have. I never had any interest in the state Legislature. I'm not going to kid people about that. I'm interested in Washington; that's where I want to represent the people of this district.

UD: What kind of problem do you think lack of name recognition will be for you?

Richards: Well, I think it will be the same problem with all the candidates. That's what is unique about this race: the people with the name recognition have chosen not to run, so I don't have any more of an uphill battle than the rest of the candidates. To a certain degree, I've got a head start on them because I know a lot of the farmers, and I've been working with them. I know nearly all the business leaders and the community leaders in Lubbock and the entire area.

Combest: I hope name identification is the worst problem we have. Name identification can be acquired. Most people, unless they've been in the public eye, do not have district-wide name ID to run for this seat. But it can be developed. It's part of the cost of a campaign, along with trying to develop the kind of image the individual wants to portray.

UD: On the political spectrum from conservative to liberal, how would you describe yourself as a Democrat? Republican?

Richards: That's hard, because I'll say just 'Democrat,' and I think everyone tries to push you to conservative or liberal. To a certain degree, I'm a Kent Hance-type Democrat. But I expect we would have voted differently on some issues. As far as a conservative or liberal, I don't know. I want to see a balanced budget, so I guess in that respect I'm a conservative. I want to see the people who need help taken care of. I want to see a good farm program, where the farmers can make money. They've got to have some kind of price supports to protect them, so in that respect I'm liberal.

Combest: I consider myself a moderate conservative. I certainly lean more toward conservative than liberal issues. My basic philosophy is to lessen government's involvement in daily lives, particularly federal government. I think problems can much better be solved on the local level, whether it be local or state government, because they're closer to the problem. Government is inefficient. It's not run like a business, like it should be. I'm very pro-business, strong fiscal policy and pro-free enterprise system.

Vietnam documentary to be broadcast

By JOHN REID
University Daily Reporter

Vietnam, the "TV war," is being brought back into America's living room, this time as a television documentary.

"Vietnam: A Television History," is a 13-hour documentary series that examines America's longest war in the context of France's earlier colonial experience in Southeast Asia and Vietnam's 2,000-year history of resistance to foreign invaders.

The documentary series is based on Stanley Karnow's book "Vietnam: A History." Karnow, currently a syndicated columnist, began covering the French Indochina War as a correspondent for Time and Life magazines in Paris in 1950 and covered the Southeast Asia region for 25 years.

The purpose of the series is to show Americans why the United States got involved, how the United States lost its sense of purpose and why the United States left in 1975.

The six-year project comprises comprehensive film footage of the war in Vietnam from the French colonial period through the U.S. evacuation of Saigon and after. The series includes more than 100 interviews with major and minor figures from the war years — American, British, French and Vietnamese.

The documentary series was produced by a combined U.S.-British unit working out of WGBH public television station in Boston. The music for the main title and closing credits of the series was composed by Mickey Hart, a member of the rock group The Grateful Dead.

A total of 59 scholars and journalists have acted as consultants to the programs. Producers for the programs have logged over 94 hours of film footage. The production budget for the documentary series was $4 million.

The first program, "Roots of War," shows that despite cordial relations between American intelligence officers and communist leader Ho Chi Minh in the closing months of World War II, French and British hostility to the Vietnamese revolution laid the groundwork for a new war.

The second program, "The First Vietnam War

(1946-1954)," shows the French generals expected to easily defeat Ho Chi Minh's rag-tag Vietminh guerrillas.

But after eight years of fighting and $2.5 billion in U.S. aid, the French lost a crucial battle at Dien Bien Phu — and with it, their Asian empire.

"Roots of War" was broadcast Tuesday. "The First Vietnam War (1946-1954)," will be aired at 8 p.m. today on KTX-TV, channel 5, Lubbock's public broadcasting station. Subsequent editions will be broadcast weekly at 8 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Student mugged in dorm

By KEVIN SMITH
University Daily Reporter

A Texas Tech student was the victim of a mugging that took place in her dorm Thursday.

B.G. Daniels, chief of University Police, said the incident was reported by the student's father Friday. Apparently the woman did not report the incident immediately but went home and told her parents, Daniels said.

The student, who did not want to be identified, said the mugging occurred in a bathroom in Knapp Hall shortly after she had finished eating. She said as she entered the bathroom the showers were running, but at the time she thought nothing of it. She said that after a short time two women emerged from the showers fully clothed and demanded her purse.

She said she refused at first, but complied when one of them pulled out a knife.

"I was just scared so I gave them my purse," she said. "They took $15 in cash and threw the rest of the contents on the ground. They also asked me to give them the rings I was wearing and I was so scared I just handed them over."

Daniels said this type of incident is rare on the Tech campus. Earlier in the year, Daniels estimated that of the several hundred crimes committed on campus in a year, fewer than 10 were of a violent nature.

"This is the first time I can remember that we've had this sort of thing reported as happening to a girl," Daniels said. "There have been incidents similar to this reported, but they have all involved male residents."

The student involved described the robbers as being about 5 feet 5 inches tall, of average build, one with blonde hair and one with sandy blonde hair. At the time of the robbery, one of the women was wearing a pink shirt and the other was wearing a blue shirt. The victim said she did not recognize the women and was sure neither of them were Knapp residents.

Historical marker unveiled in ceremony

By ROBIN FRED
University Daily Editor

The Texas Tech Judging Pavilion has served as a facility for events ranging from livestock judging to basketball games to church services during the almost 60 years since its completion. The building was designated as an official state historical marker in ceremonies last week.

The pavilion, one of the four original buildings on the Tech campus, was the first structure built here for agricultural education. Noted Fort Worth architect Wyatt Hendrick designed the building to help formulate an agricultural focus at what then was the fledgling Texas Technological College.

As one of the only structures suitable for social gatherings in Lubbock at the time, the building was used for a variety of purposes.

Lubbock City Councilman M.J. "Bud" Aderton, speaking at the dedication ceremony, said the building in a way symbolizes the "mutual admiration society" between Tech and Lubbock. He said the city and the university have helped make each other successful.

"I don't know what Lubbock would have been if it hadn't been for Tech," he said.

"(Tech) served as a sort of catalyst for Lubbock's growth."

He said the livestock judging pavilion was a center of social life for Lubbock during the early years.

Tech President Lauro Cavazos said the building represents a tie between Lubbock and Tech.

Nighthawks return

Rock and blues are here to stay. They will never die. Any doubters may see for themselves when the Nighthawks hit Lubbock for a one-night double-header at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m., Sunday at Stubb's Barbecue, 108 E. Broadway Street.

For years, the band, with its emphasis on southern-style R&B, was a top draw in Washington, D.C. But, after a frustrating record contract deal with Mercury and several small-label albums later, the Nighthawks took to the road. After 11 years of entertaining audiences in their hometown and numerous other areas, the group is on tour again.

The group released its ninth album, Ten Years Live, last year under its own label, "Chesapeake." Adelphi Records took care of the distribution for the pioneer label.

Harmonica player Mark Wenner and guitarist Jim Thackery formed the Nighthawks in 1972. Two years later, Jan Zukowski on bass and drummer Pete Ragusa replaced the band's original rhythm section.

The Jesse Taylor Band will open the performances for the evening of blues at the local club.

The Nighthawks

Heavy metalist makes racial slur

By The Associated Press

EL PASO — A Hispanic leader isn't accepting an apology from British rock singer Joe Elliott who had referred to this West Texas city as "that place with all the greasy Mexicans."

Elliott, lead singer for the rock band Def Leppard, termed the remark he made during a performance in Tucson, Ariz., "playful chitchat." He apologized to an El Paso radio station for the comment and said because he is English he didn't understand the statement was an ethnic slur.

But Joe Loya, district director for the League of United Latin American Citizens, angrily called for a boycott of Def Leppard records, concerts and T-shirts.

"An apology won't cut it. Anybody who makes that kind of statement is a bigot and a racist. It should have never been said. What good reason can you give me to forgive someone like that? There's no reason," said Loya.

"We are asking all Americans against racism to destroy their Def Leppard records. We are not going to stand for this. They come here, take our money, then insult us," said Loya.

"Whether it was said in jest or seriously is immaterial. I'm not laughing. It's not funny. I hope they don't come back," he said.

Elliott made the remark during a Sept. 7 concert in Tucson, the day after the band played before a sellout crowd in El Paso.

Elliott apologized by phone from Tokyo to El Paso radio station KLAQ-FM, which broadcast the message at 7 p.m. Friday.

"If I've offended anyone, then I'm very, very sorry for it. Being an English person, I didn't really understand that that (expression) was such an insult," said Elliott. "I'm not a Mexican-American, I do not live in El Paso, so I don't really understand what is and what is not a good or bad thing to say."

Elliott explained that he made the comment while encouraging audience cheers.

"What gets the crowd going is mentioning the town the night before and saying they made twice as much noise," Elliott said.

He said both the Tucson and

El Paso audiences were heavily Hispanic, and he thought "I would wind them up more if I actually mentioned their own race of people."

"It was not meant as a racial or harmful statement in any way," said Elliott.

"If I've offended anyone, then I'm very sorry ..."
—Elliott

"Obviously, that night I made a big mistake. It was unintentional," he said, adding that Def Leppard members were proud to be named honorary citizens of El Paso the day of their performance, Elliott said.

In recognition of the band's popularity, Mayor Jonathon Rogers had proclaimed Sept. 6 Def Leppard Day.

"There's no way we're going to abuse that on purpose," Elliott said. "It actually upsets me to think someone out there thinks I've intentionally ripped into El Paso." He promised to send Def

Leppard T-shirts and records to KLAQ for distribution to El Paso fans and said, "At my own expense, we'll fly out two listeners to see our show in Europe, in Paris or somewhere like that, from El Paso."

Rogers said Friday afternoon that the group owed an apology to the citizens of El Paso.

"As far as I am concerned, the band will not be welcome in El Paso again," he said.

KLAQ declared a weekend boycott of Def Leppard records but may extend the boycott if the station's listeners demand it during a phone poll planned for Monday.

Another rock radio station, KSET-95, has decided to erase Def Leppard from its play list permanently. The station conducted a phone poll from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, and 77 percent of the 700 callers voted to boot the band from the airwaves.

"We will never play another Def Leppard record again — ever," program director Cat Simon said. "When we heard about this, we didn't know what to do. It's a hit group, but a lot of people were offended. So we let the listeners decide. They don't want to hear Def Leppard."

Loya said the apology would not affect LULAC's plans to protest the slur.

He said he has contacted other LULAC district directors and the organization's president, who Loya said plans to file a protest with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Def Leppard's concert Sept. 6 in the El Paso County Coliseum grossed almost $100,000, not including revenues from brisk T-shirt sales, said Charlie Cohn, general manager of KLAQ, which co-promoted the show with Pace Concerts in Houston.

In nine hours, El Pasoans bought 8,050 tickets at $12 each.

"It was the fastest sellout in the history of El Paso rock concerts," Cohn said, estimating that the audience was 90 percent Hispanic.

"Saints and Sinners"

Rev. Dean (Charles Addington) finally tells the hypocritical Sister Higgins (Cindy Chaney) just what he thinks of her in a scene from the University Theater's production of "Saintly Hypocrites and Honest Sinners."

The play, a tent show, will be Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the University Theater. Curtain is at 8:15 p.m. each night.

Tickets for Tech students cost are $2, and tickets for the general public cost $5. But if students don't wish to pay the $2 they may try to get in using 'student rush.' Students may get free tickets after 8 p.m. the evening of the performance if any tickets still are available.

For more ticket information, telephone the University Theater box office at 742-3601.

The Video Tech Network will present "Raider Review" for anyone wishing to catch up on the latest news and statistics from the "Tech Gridiron." "Raider Review" can be viewed on the VTN monitor at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. each Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for the remainder of the season. The VTN monitor is located at the west end of the University Center lobby. There is no admission charge for viewing the presentation, and refreshments are just around the corner.

All-star cast of 'Big Chill' creates believable emotions

By KRISTI FROELICH
University Daily Lifestyles Writer

Probably the most promising film of the many recent releases to hit Lubbock would have to be Lawrence Kasdan's "The Big Chill," now showing at the Mann Fox Theater, 4215 19th Street. This is the kind of film that, unfortunately, doesn't come around too often. Even though it probably will be showing for a while, the opportunity to see it shouldn't be passed up.

The movie features eight promising actors, all in lead roles. They are Tom Berenger, Glenn Close, Jeff Goldblum, William Hurt, Kevin Kline, Mary Kay Place, Meg Tilly and JoBeth Williams.

The film revolves around seven friends brought together by the funeral of another member of their old college group. With the unfortunate reunion come mixed feelings of fear, lust, love, memories, sadness and pain. These emotions help make for a powerful film and are played well by the ensemble — and that's what makes seeing this movie so enjoyable. The cast works well together. They should, seeing as how director Kasdan scheduled an unheard-of four weeks of rehearsal for the cast before production of the film actually began.

As I said, the cast is a talented one. Berenger, who stars as Sam Weber, currently can be seen in "Eddie and the Cruisers." Some of his other films include "Looking for Mr. Goodbar" and "Butch and Sundance: The Early Days."

Glenn Close recently was seen in her academy award-nominated screen debut of "The World According to Garp" and stars as Sarah. Jeff Goldblum has appeared in "Nashville," "Annie Hall" and "Between the Lines." He portrays Michael. Hurt, who plays Nick, has been seen in "Body Heat," "Altered States" and "Eyewitness."

Kevin Kline, who plays Harold, made his film debut this year opposite Meryl Streep in "Sophie's Choice" and also appeared in the screen version of the "The Pirates of Penzance." Mary Kay Place, best known for her portrayal of Loretta Haggars on

"Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," plays Meg. She also has appeared in "New York, New York," "Bound for Glory," "Starting Over," "Modern Problems" and "Private Benjamin."

Young Meg Tilly, who plays Chloe, made her screen debut in "Tex" and was seen playing opposite Anthony Perkins in "Psycho II."

JoBeth Williams stars as Karen and can be remembered for her performance as the mother in "Poltergeist." She also was in "Kramer vs. Kramer," "The Dogs of War," "Stir Crazy" and most recently in "Endangered Species."

Writer/director Lawrence Kasdan may be better known for his writing or co-writing on "Raiders of the Lost Ark," "Continental Divide," "The Empire Strikes Back," "Return of the Jedi" and "Body Heat" (which also marked his directorial debut). His idea for "The Big Chill" materialized because he wanted to do a film about what was happening with his generation.

"I'm 34 now and, like a lot of my contemporaries, I felt I was going through a significant change in my life. It was very interesting to me, having been in college during the '60s, that a lot of us at one time had the feeling that whatever we wanted to do, we could do," Kasdan said.

"I wanted to do a movie about how people's values had gone through a kind of shift. I don't think it's unique to my age group, either; every generation goes through a transition."

Kasdan's strong feelings about wanting to make a film such as "The Big Chill" made it a worthwhile project.

The film is well written (credit goes to Kasdan and Barbara Benedek). Actually, that is an understatement. The dialogue seems to be real, not part of a script. This helps the audience relate to the way the characters are feeling. All during the film I couldn't help but compare what they had gone through with what I'm going through now. It makes the film seem real, not celluloid. The movie can make you feel like laughing or crying, but most of all it just makes you feel. Not many movies out now can claim that.

Texan writes songs concerning important issues of our day

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "Red River Dave" McEnery is a ballad-writer man. Now nearing 69, he has composed more songs than a barrelful of Beethovens.

"I've written 12,000 songs up to date," McEnery said. "Suitcases of them reach to the ceiling. I've been writing them for half a century."

A weathered Texan who likens his appearance to Buffalo Bill, Red River Dave lives in North Hollywood and pens ballads about Tylenol, heart transplants and "The Pine Tarred Bat."

Two years ago, he spent his weekends strumming guitar and banjo on the front porch of the Golden Trails Hotel at Knott's Berry Farm. Now he sings his western tunes at the park occasionally, works for Gene Autry's KMPC-AM radio station and writes songs, inspired mostly by news events.

Last week, for instance, over Australian television's "Today Show," he sang his new ballad, "The Great Sailing Race: Australia II vs.

Liberty."

That song begins: "Gather round me, sailing men Hear my ballad once again About a sailing race I'll sing once more

"Tween the Aussies and the Yanks Right off the fishing banks Of America on the Great Atlantic Shore."

Red River Dave has a tune called "The Pine Tarred Bat" (the ballad of Kansas City baseball star George Brett) and "The Ballad of Guion Bluford Jr." (America's first Black astronaut).

Everything is grist for his musical mill — the Korean Air Lines tragedy, late artificial Suitcases of them reach to the ceiling.

heart recipient Barney Clark ("hero with a plastic heart"), victims of the Tylenol poisonings, Giovanni Vigliotto (who wed 105 women) and the perpetrators of the Hitler diary hoax.

"I was born in San Antonio within a rifle shot of the Alamo," he says. "I just sorta drifted into show business. I graduated from high school in San Antonio in 1931, and there weren't any jobs. I had a guitar and I could sing, so wherever anyone would listen, I would sing."

For loose change, he performed on the streets and in honky-tonks and cafes.

In 1937, he recorded his first successful new event song, "Amelia Earhart's Last Flight." Two years later, in New York, he sang western ballads at the World's Fair and appeared on television.

His own television program, "Red River Dave's Barn Dance" debuted in San Antonio a decade later.

He moved to Hollywood in 1970 after the death of his wife, Alberta, who was trapped inside their burning San Antonio home after it apparently was struck by lightning.

Nowadays he studies art and playwriting at a community college. For KMPC, he crafts jingles, introductions and news ballads. Making frequent personal appearances, he also likes to demonstrate the trick roping he learned from cowboys when he was a youngster.

And, of course, he still is composing. For like the news itself, Red River Dave keeps on rolling.

Dangerfield takes fall

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Rodney Dangerfield was filming a spoof of a beer commercial for an ABC-TV fall special when he fell from a 4-foot ledge and sprained his neck.

Dangerfield, 60, was taken to St. Joseph's Medical Center in Burbank and transferred to another hospital.

Texan receives honor

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — A 20-year-old bullfighter from Texas Sunday became a senior matador, a rare honor for a U.S. citizen. But the honor was bestowed after he failed in an attempt to kill a 1,000-pound bull.

David Renk of Magnolia is one of a small number of U.S. citizens ever to have been recognized as a full matador in Mexico.

Veteran Mexican journalists at La Plaza Mexico Sunday said Renk was the first U.S. citizen to perform in the famed bullfighting ring.

Renk tried about six times to kill a 1,000-pound bull named Cuentagotas, but after about 45 minutes of parrying and lancing, Renk was unable to apply a fatal thrust.

The bull was taken back to the corral alive.

As Renk took on his second and last bull, there were boos from the crowd of about 18,000 people. But Renk was able to kill that bull, which at 1,126 pounds, was the largest of eight on Sunday's card.

In a special ceremony at the ring, Renk became a senior matador. A veteran bullfighter touched Renk with a "muleta," signifying the young Texan's confirmation as a senior matador.

A muleta is the red cloth used by a matador to attract the bull.

Renk was born with club feet, and at the age of nine underwent operations to correct the deformity, he and his father, Fred, have said. He had to suffer through a long and painful process of rehabilitation, they said.

Renk estimated he has been in about 60 bullfights since his first public appearance in January 1978 in Reynosa, Mexico.

Record number participate in run

A record 350 runners participated in the "Ambush the Aggies" two- and four-mile fun run Saturday. The previous record was 187 participants in last year's "Stampede the Longhorns" run.

Barry Hughes had the winning time of 11:4 in the two-mile run. Cindy Brawley was the first woman to finish with a time of 14:31. Kent Jones and Chris Williamson were second in the men's and women's divisions with times of 12:08 and 15:22.

Former cross-country runner Glenn Morris easily won the four-mile run with a time of 20:18, followed by David Hammer with a time of 21:32. David McCullough placed third with a time of 21:43. Tech runners Maria Medina and Veronica Cavazos placed first and second in the women's division with times of 22:42 and 23:02. Diane Blanchett followed in third with a time of 26 minutes.

Dwight Goodman was the first person to finish the four-mile run in a wheelchair with a time of 24:30. Joseph Duff was second with a time of 30:20.

Winners take crowns in intramural meet

No Bozos and Landsharks took the crowns in the men's and women's divisions of the intramural swim meet Tuesday.

Events included the 100-yd. medley relay, 100-yd. freestyle, 50-yd. backstroke, one-meter diving and 50-yd. freestyle. Other events were the 100-yd. backstroke, 100-yd. individual medley, 200-yd. freestyle, 50-yd. butterfly, 100-yd. breaststroke and 100-yd. freestyle relay.

No Bozos accumulated 132 points. Members of the winning team were Robert Sheets, Robin Edmunds, Brison Phillips, Robert Colton, Danny Herring and Hugh Putman. Also were David James, Mark Kitzman, Jimmy Bell, Robert Moore, Scott Haire and Scott Smith.

The Landsharks successfully defended their title by accumulating 105 points and breaking several records. Susan Wierba set a new mark in the women's 50-yd. backstroke with a 33.42, lopping .7 seconds off the 1974 record. Carolyn Hyde took .8 seconds off the 1975 100-yd. freestyle record with 1:01.81.

Members of the Landsharks included Carolyn Hyde, Kellie Flood, Jennifer Marshall, Libby Stuyt and Mary Jo Godinich. Also included were Sandy Swain, Cathy Ronaghan, Laura Chuake, Lauren Stull, Donna Barhorst and Cindy Brown.

Joseph Duff maneuvers his wheelchair in the four-mile "Ambush the Aggies" fun run through campus Saturday. Duff completed the course with a time of 30:20.

Pool closes temporarily

The Aquatic Center will be closed today through Oct. 13 while work is being done to erect the air-supported roof over the pool. Hours after the pool reopens will be noon-1:30 p.m. and 3-9 p.m. Monday-Friday and 2-7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Basketball winners announced

Sadarr took the men's title in the 3-on-3 basketball tournament last week, defeating The Fource 20-6, 12-20, 20-12. Members of Sadarr are Greg Fox, Roger Pinson and Ron Courtney. The Hoopsters took the women's crown, defeating Bad Triad 20-14. The Hoopsters' roster was unavailable.

Hiking trip slated

Nature lovers will have the opportunity to hike and camp in the canyon areas of Bandelier National Monument, N.M., during Rec Sports' hiking trip Oct. 21-23.

Participants will visit historical cliff ruins, ancient trails and painted caves. Cost is $35 for students and $37.50 for faculty-staff and covers transportation and equipment. The trip is limited to 11 people. Registration will be accepted from 1-5 p.m. Monday-Friday in the Outdoor Shop.

Tourney winners announced

Several students won intramural tournaments last week.

Sjarlesh Patel defeated Niteen Patkar for the badminton singles championship. John Cox and Debbie Donahoo were winners in the men's and women's divisions of the miniature golf singles tournament. In the frisbee golf singles tournament, Larry Greaves placed first, and Ken Grady placed second.

Fun run Saturday

Race Judicata, a two-mile predicted time fun run, will be at 9

Carlton stops L.A. as Phils win opener

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Mike Schmidt hammered a first-inning home run and Steve Carlton made the single run stand up, with late-inning help from Al Holland, pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in Tuesday night's opening game of the National League Championship Series.

Carlton, baseball's all-time strikeout king, hurled a masterful game into the eighth inning, outdueling Jerry Reuss in a battle of southpaws before a Dodger Stadium crowd of 49,963.

Schmidt provided him with an early run, smashing a two-out homer in the first inning against Reuss, who has been the Phillie slugger's favorite target over the years. It was the 10th time Schmidt has connected against the Dodger left-hander in his career and no pitcher has surrendered more homers to him.

It was to be the only run the NL East champions would get this night but it was enough for Carlton, the crafty 38-year-old left-hander who won the 300th game of his career Sept. 23.

Carlton worked through a jam in the sixth inning and then got help from Holland when the Dodgers loaded the bases in the eighth.

Steve Sax opened the sixth with his second of three singles in the game. Carlton picked him off base the first time he reached and Sax was more careful this time, advancing to second on a sacrifice by Bill Russell.

Then Carlton made one of his few mistakes all night, uncorking a wild pitch on his first delivery to Dusty Baker. Sax advanced to third and came halfway home before pulling up.

Now Carlton was in trouble. The Phillies drew their infield in but the four-time Cy Young Award winner made that unnecessary, forcing Baker to pop up in front of the plate. Three Phillies surrounded the ball but it was Carlton who caught it.

That brought up the Dodgers' cleanup hitter, Pedro Guerrero, who led the team with 103 runs batted in. Carlton worked carefully and, with the count 3-2, he walked Guerrero, barely missing a called third strike.

Young Mike Marshall was next and he was simply overmatched. He fouled off the first two pitches and then swung and missed at strike three, leaving the runners stranded.

In the eighth, Carlton got into trouble again. With one out, Sax punched his third hit. After Russell popped up, Baker dropped a single to right, sending Sax to third.

Now, it was Guerrero's turn again and, again, Carlton walked the Dodgers' slugger. That brought up Marshall and Phillies manager Paul Owens went to the ace of his bullpen, Holland.

The left-hander, who saved Carlton's 300th career victory, got Marshall into a 1-2 hole and then retired him on a line drive to right.

Chicago, Orioles set for AL pennant race

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — The Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles, similar teams with similar records, today will begin the best-of-five American League Championship Series.

Power, pitching and defense carried the teams to the best regular-season records in baseball, with Chicago's 99-63 mark one game better than the Orioles' 98-64.

Chicago, led by Rudy Law and Julio Cruz, have a decided edge in speed, yet in the season series, the Orioles stole nine bases to eight for the White Sox.

The playoff series will feature three of the top sluggers in the American League. Chicago rookie Ron Kittle finished third in home runs with 35, while Baltimore's Eddie Murray had 33 and Greg Luzinski of the White Sox had 32.

In addition, Cal Ripken Jr. of the Orioles slammed 27 homers and Chicago's Carlton Fisk hit 26.

LaMarr Hoyt, the top winner in the majors with a 24-10 record, was named to oppose Baltimore's Scott McGregor, 18-7, in the opener.

Hoyt had a 2-1 record in the season series won by the Orioles, 7-5, while McGregor won his only decision against Chicago.

After a Thursday night game in Baltimore, with Floyd Bannister, 16-10, opposing rookie Mike Boddicker, 16-8, the series shifts to Chicago for the remaining games. There will be no off day.

The remaining pitching matchups include Chicago's Richard Dotson 22-7, against Baltimore's Mike Flanagan, 12-4; Chicago's Britt Burns, 10-11, against either Storm Davis, 13-7, or Jim Palmer, 5-4, of Baltimore, and Hoyt against McGregor in a rematch in Game 5, if necessary.

The playoffs mark the first post-season action for the White Sox since they lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1959 World Series.

Baltimore manager Joe Altobelli said he would decide by Tuesday whether Davis or Palmer, a three-time Cy Young Award winner with a 7-3 postseason record, would start the fourth game.

Davis had been penciled in for the assignment. But he has been bothered by neck and shoulder ailments, and Palmer pitched well in his last start Friday.

Although the Orioles have much more experience in postseason play, Altobelli discounted that as a factor.

"Experience goes out the window in a short series," he said. He also noted that the World Series has included such unlikely hitting heroes as Brian Doyle, Billy Martin and Bobby Richardson.

"You might see a guy like (Rick) Dempsey, (Rich) Dauer or (Todd) Cruz be the hero," he said, reciting the names of the last three batters in the Baltimore order. "There's no reason why they can't."

Lasorda dodges L.A.'s letdowns...

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — When the Los Angeles Dodgers clinched the 1983 National League West Division championship, manager Tom Lasorda acted in typical Tom Lasorda fashion.

The ebullient, expansive Lasorda didn't relax on learning that the San Diego Padres had defeated the Atlanta Braves, giving the Dodgers the title.

"I figured we finally had our first chance to let down and there he was up there shouting, encouraging and managing," said coach Joe Amalfitano, recalling the sixth inning of last Friday night's game against the San Francisco Giants at Dodger Stadium.

When Lasorda did relax a little, as the Dodgers were leading San Francisco 3-0 en route to a 4-3 victory, he marshaled his players out of the dugout for a hat-waving thanks to the fans.

"The umpire (Bob Engel) came over and asked me to make it quick," said Lasorda. "I told him we waited 160 games to do this and he could wait a couple of minutes."

Lasorda had his way with the ump this time.

Looking back, this year might have been Lasorda's best job of managing even though his 1981 team won the World Series and he was named NL Manager of the Year.

"This began as probably his poorest team," said long-time Dodgers' broadcaster Vin Scully. "And still he motivated it. It was a very poor team even into August and he rallied them, showing patience and exasperation — a typical father. He moved them."

In his previous six seasons, after succeeding Walter Alton, Lasorda worked primarily with veterans or players he had managed in the minors.

This year, the club had traded veteran stars Steve Garvey and Ron Cey, moved Pedro Guerrero from the outfield to third base, and put youngsters Mike Marshall and Greg Brock into the starting lineup.

"He had them working long into the evening and even turned on lights," said Amalfitano. "That's probably the hardest they've worked in the spring."

The 56-year-old Lasorda has spent 34 years in the Dodgers' organization and claims he "bleeds Dodger blue" and frequently exhorts "the Big Dodger in the Sky."

He pitched 11 years, mostly for Montreal of the International League, but did have three stints with the major league club. He laughs when saying his career as a Dodgers' player ended only because of the arrival of Sandy Koufax, the left-hander who went on to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

...while Owens wins for Phils again

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Paul Owens is a troubleshooter the Philadelphia Phillies call upon when they are in deep trouble.

Twice the balding, gray-haired Owens has answered that call, and twice he has done the job entrusted to him.

The first time was in 1972, when the Phillies were wallowing in the depths of daily defeat. Owens, the club's general manager for only 37 days, fired manager Frank Lucchesi and added that job to his front office duties.

He made clear that his intention was not so much to win with a young team, but to find out which players would fit into the Phillies' future. He wanted to weed out the players who wouldn't help.

It was the start of revitalizing a franchise that had wallowed in defeat for several years. The Phillies had won only two National League pennants, 1915 and 1950, losing both times in the World Series.

Owens made his evaluation, and with that as a guideline, he developed a team that four years later won the first of five National League East Division titles.

It was the start of the greatest era in Phillies' history.

The team repeated as East champions the next two years

(1977-78), slipped to fourth in 1979, but came back to win the NL pennant and World Series in 1980. They won the first half of the strike-shortened 1981 season, losing to Montreal in a playoff. Last year, they finished second.

This year came the second call for "help," and Owens again responded.

The Phillies were in first place under manager Pat Corrales July 18, but the front office was disappointed in the performance of a team it felt should have been far in front. Corrales was fired, and Owens became the manager again.

His mission this time was different; his job was to win the division.

He had described the team as the best since he became general manager, and set out to prove it.

It wasn't easy.

He inherited a team dependent on veterans, some past their prime, and set in their ways. Owens had to dispel an aura of "I" and instill the spirit of "we."

There was some rebellion. But Owens persisted. He platooned, hurting egos of some of the long-time stars. He refused to heed their gripes. He told them to play to their potential and leave the managing to him.

Sampson key to Rocket's rebuilding

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The National Basketball Association's Houston Rockets will begin preseason play Thursday, and it's likely that new coach Bill Fitch has drawn up a play or two for 7-4 center Ralph Sampson.

But when the Rockets opened preseason practice Saturday, Fitch said the first order of business was to pick a surrounding cast.

"Ninety percent of those plans you make in the summer, you could have been out playing golf or washing windows," Fitch said. "I've watched a lot of film and I have a lot of facts about these people."

"But I haven't made plan one or play one for Ralph Sampson. If you ask me now the first thing I'm going to run for Ralph I couldn't tell you because I don't know any one-man plays."

"Until we figure out who's going to be playing with him we have to wait and see."

The Rockets begin fitting

"I can't miss anything I never had," Fitch said. "I can't miss those players because they've never played for me before. So I'm not missing anything."

Fitch is charged with rebuilding the Rockets from last season's 14-68 finish and his task has been made easier by the presence of Sampson, the No. 1 pick in the draft.

"I'm ready," Sampson said. "I can't wait to get started and get started playing."

Sampson also realizes that he will be a marked man on and off the court. He says he's prepared for the attention.

"I realize it and hope we can get it done and be helpful to all," Sampson said. "I will oblige as many people as I can within the time that we have. It will be difficult and some people will get mad at me because we won't get to see as many people as can in the time that we set aside."

Whatever happens, Sampson intends to be in control of what's happening.

"I keep things at a distance where I can control them, so I can know what's going on in my life and try to handle it myself," Sampson said.

Fitch hopes fans will understand that despite his great potential, Sampson still is a rookie and will be at a disadvantage.

"The first time he goes up against the Jabbar and the Malones, I'd have to give the edge to experience," Fitch said.

"I'm just going to play, whether it's Kareem or any of the other established players," Sampson said. "I'm a rookie coming in and learning. I'll probably make some rookie mistakes."

Youthful Cougars tested in Yeoman's "bowl" game

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — University of Houston quarterbacks Quince Harris and Greg Landry have only one varsity game under their belts but they've already been to a bowl game.

UH Coach Bill Yeoman calls it the "O Bowl" with the "O" standing for opportunity. It is a free-wheeling Monday scrimmage for the young players who didn't get a chance to play in the previous Saturday night's game.

"By the time they get through that, they've seen everything there is to see," Yeoman said. "When you are young you are apprehensive so you are too busy thinking to react."

Harris was a Monday regular last season and although Landry played an important role in Saturday's game against Baylor, he was back for more O Bowl action this week.

"He needs all the snaps he can get," Yeoman said in reviewing Saturday's 42-21 loss to Baylor. "He still had that second of hesitation in some instances. But he'll get over that."

Harris started the game as expected in place of troubled senior Lionel Wilson but it was somewhat of an unexpected move when Landry took control of the offense in the third quarter.

Yeoman hesitated playing Landry this season, preferring to let him gain weight and experience with a red shirt season. But after some seasoning in the O Bowl, Yeoman decided Landry could offer immediate relief.

Yeoman said he left the decision up to Landry. "We talked last week and he said he wanted to play," Yeoman said. "I even asked him in the dressing room before the game if he wanted to play tonight."

Now that the decision has been made, future opponents can expect to see Harris, Landry and other young UH running backs appear more regularly. Yeoman said Harris would start Saturday's Southwest Conference game against the Texas Aggies and that Landry would play.

When Landry reported to Saturday's game he was accompanied by freshmen running backs Raymond Tate and Donald Kennebrew. Earl Allen, another young transfer from Michigan via Houston Westbury, returned kickoffs against the Bears.

"Those kids have got to play," Yeoman said. "I've got to give Earl Allen a couple of pitches and see what he can do. How do you know you can't run better with them in there?"

Yeoman he's not conceding the season and just playing out the string by giving experience to the young players.

"If Dwyane hadn't played the whole game he wouldn't have been able to outrun them all. If one guy is having a good day, you can stay with him more."

Yeoman referred to a 44-yard fourth quarter run by Lovy that was called back by a penalty.

Spikers challenge Baylor

The Texas Tech volleyball team will open Southwest Conference play at 7:30 p.m. today against the Baylor Bears in Waco.

The Raiders were beaten by the Hitachi Club of Japan Monday in an exhibition contest. The Raiders played well before falling 15-3, 15-3, 15-8 to the world-class Hitachi Club.

Tech, 11-15 for the season, will be trying to get back on track against Baylor. Several Raider spikers have been ill in the past weeks, but everyone is expected to be ready for the match with the Bears.

Tech defeated Baylor twice last year to extend the Raiders' series lead against the Bears to 8-1. The Raiders were 4-6 in SWC play last season while Baylor was 0-10.

All 10 Red Raiders are expected to see action in the match. Led by Tana Beall, Megan McGuire, Debbie Vela and Karri Ohland, the Raiders will run a 5-1 and 4-2 offense.

The Bears, 8-9 this year, are coached by Mitch Casteel, who was an assistant at the University of Texas last year. The BU squad returns four of six starters and is led by sophomore Shelly Small, a second team All-SWC pick last year. Four senior outside hitters supply experience to the team.

The Bears already have played one SWC match, losing Monday to the University of Houston.

In other SWC action, the eighth-ranked Texas Longhorns defeated Rice and Texas A&M. Texas is now 11-3.

Following the Baylor match the Raiders will travel to Arlington Thursday to take on the University of Texas-Arlington. The Mavericks, 14-11 on the season and coached by ex-Tech player Lisa Love, handed the Raiders two match losses at the Tech Invitational, including the one that prevented the Raiders from winning the championship.

"UTA has gotten progressively better since the Tech Invitational and they looked especially strong with a seventh place finish at the BYU Preview," Tech coach Janice Hudson said. "But, then, we are a lot better than we were in September, too."

Tech will return home for conference play Monday against Texas A&M and Wednesday against Rice. Both matches are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Coliseum.

Raider netters defeat Hardin-Simmons

The Texas Tech men's tennis team defeated Hardin-Simmons University 7-2 Tuesday in Abilene.

The win gives the Raiders a 2-0 season record. Tech defeated South Plains College 9-0 last week.

Tech relied on strong singles play from their middle players to defeat a scrappy Hardin-Simmons team.

In singles matches Dean Allis (HS) defeated Vince

Menard 6-3, 4-6, 7-6, (10-8); Guy Callendar downed Mike Jolson 6-2, 4-6, 6-3; Trey Byer (HS) beat David Earhart 6-7, 6-4, 6-2 and Decio Lobo defeated Mark Neese 6-1, 6-0.

Also in singles play Steve Leier beat Matt Wallace 7-6, 6-1 and Ted Invie defeated Joey Fuggitt 6-1, 6-0.

The Raiders swept Hardin-Simmons in three doubles matches.

For Tech, Callendar and Lobo defeated Byer and Jolson 6-2, 6-2; Menard and Leier beat Allis and Fuggitt 6-3, 6-4 while Invie and Earhart nipped Neese and Wallace 5-7, 6-3, 7-6.

The Raiders return to action at 2:30 p.m. Thursday with a home match against New Mexico Military Institute at the Tech Varsity Courts.

Freshman QB replaces Mazur

By The Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Freshman quarterback Kevin Murray will start for Texas A&M against the Houston Cougars Saturday, replacing former starter John Mazur, coach Jackie Sherrill has announced.

"Kevin makes things happen. He came into the Texas Tech game and gave us some spark, just like he did for Oklahoma State," Sherrill told a Monday news conference.

Murray has completed eight of 22 passes for 142 yards and two touchdowns, while Mazur has led the Aggies to only two touchdowns in the last two games. Mazur started well against California, but Murray has relieved him in the middle of each of the Aggies' last two games.

Unsteady offense bothers Moore

By CHIP MAY
University Daily Sports Writer

Some Texas Tech fans will remember Saturday's 3-0 victory over Texas A&M as the game that vaulted Tech to the top of the Southwest Conference standings.

Other people will recall the battling Raider defense that prevented the Aggies from crossing the Tech 33-yard line.

Coach Jerry Moore, however, remembers the culprit that killed many Tech scoring drives: penalties.

Penalty flags were on the ground during the game almost as often as they were in the refs' pockets. In the end, each team was flagged nine times for 65 yards.

"We had nine penalties and about 15 other mistakes, like when a player ran the wrong way," Moore said. "That means we made about 25 mistakes in 68 plays. We can't keep on beating good teams when one-third of our plays are mistakes."

The coach said penalties also limited the number of plays that he could call.

"We did some good things on offense, but we also did some bad things when we did not capitalize on drives," Moore said. "We had a lot of seven- and eight-yard rushes that were wiped out by five-yard penalties. That puts us in long yardage and prevents a lot of gadget plays and play-action passes."

The Raiders gained only 25 yards passing of the 248 total yards offense against the Aggies. Tight end Buzz Tatom said he would like to see more passes thrown against New Mexico this Saturday.

"Being a tight end, I wouldn't mind to see passes thrown on every down," Tatom said. "But coach Moore's philosophy is in the running game first. I think that is good as long as we win."

According to Moore, New Mexico looks "every bit as good" as the 1982 squad that finished 10-1.

The Lobos were supposed to be easy prey when Tech tangled with them in last year's season opener. The Raiders' only win in the 1981 season was against New Mexico. As it turned out, Tech was humiliated 14-0 in 1982.

Tatom said New Mexico is a good ball team. "They come at you with stunts and try to confuse you," he said.

Although the Lobos have a 2-3 record so far, Moore said two of their losses came as a result two fumbled punts against North Texas State and two blocked punts against Tennessee.

Yet even with their mistakes the coach said they "have a lot of good players."

In order for Tech to escape the penalty flag barrage against New Mexico, Moore said the team must concentrate.

"Nine times out of 10 a mistake results from not enough concentration," Moore said. "We also must be conditioned, because when players are tired they sometimes make mistakes. I think we are in decent shape."

MOORE NOTES — After a good practice Monday, the team was not quite as intense Tuesday, according to Moore. "They were not bad, but not like I want," the coach said... The Raiders did not suffer any injuries against A&M and will be at full strength against New Mexico.

First-place Raiders share treasured winning feeling

LYN
McKINLEY

So it's the fifth of October, the Dallas Cowboys are undefeated and I'm still trying to find my date for the Texas A&M football game. So why do I feel so different?

Let's see. I've flunked an English quiz (could I help it if Monday night football lasted so late?) I lost my new picture ID card and I wrecked my car. Nope. Just a typical week in the life of a fourth-year junior.

Yet in between kicking my Zenith and thanking somebody up there for sending Reveille to the field by himself, it hit me.

The Texas Tech Red Raiders are in first place in the Southwest Conference.

First place in the land where Earl Campbells and Eric Dickersons once roamed. I keep saying that to myself over and over, just making sure my head wasn't paying me back for four years of Kalf Frys.

But no. There's no mistaking it. And there's no mistake in it. Tech is on top of one of the strongest football conferences in America. What a view.

Somehow, I felt different the Sunday after the Saturday fact. I've left Jones Stadium so many times with so many disappointments — most of them on the field.

How many times has Tech played a tough first half, even led at halftime, only to see their opponents wear down the thin front lines? How many times have the Raiders left the field losers because they were just too young or just a step too slow? How many 10-3, 14-10, 7-3 games has Tech lost?

When Jerry Moore came to Tech from North Texas State, he expected Southwest Conference football to be different. The 45,000 fans and regional TV told him so.

Yet he was greeted with rainbow snaps over punters heads and a makeshift offensive line with more problems than Chevy Chase on vacation. Bowl games? No, just the same ol' games the Raiders always had played.

Think about the 3-0 A&M game. Tech rarely tried the long pass or any pass in between. The option left & option right offense worked. There weren't any statue-of-liberty plays or double reverses. It's just not Tech's style. And it's paying off.

The Raiders have developed character, something they believe in. Something Jerry Moore believes in.

Moore never will be the first person you'd call on for a Lou Holtz roast. He won't give the pre-game quotes that take away from a .500 team. He won't attack with one-liners to cover the team's thin lines. But he won't quit, and it shows in the team.

The Raiders of the 1980s have lacked what their '76 co-championship predecessor lived by — that feeling. Like Roger Staubach in the Dallas Cowboys huddle down by two touchdowns against Washington in 1979. Like Bruce Sutter on the mound for the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1982 World Series. Like finding an acquaintance suddenly a friend. The feeling.

Coaches from New Deal to Nebraska stress the fact that their players must go on to the field thinking they will win. The feeling comes from inside each player. No words need to be spoken. And nothing can get in the way.

Tech has a good chance this year in the Southwest Conference if the players don't let first place go to their heads. They have to realize just how good Texas is. How tough New Mexico and Tulsa may be. And just how vital keeping that feeling alive is.

Even if Tech doesn't win the big game in Austin Oct. 29 or at Jones Stadium Oct. 8, they'll still have something to remember. Something they'll never leave behind.

Someday when they're just on the brink of closing a business deal or making a decision about the life of a child, they'll remember the feeling. They'll recall the elation of an A&M win. The devastation of an SMU defeat. And how they came through both swings of emotion. Strengthening the feeling.

And that's the best thing about football. Something that's lost in the blue chip recruiting wars and buried in the bottom of the conference finish. It's a positive feeling about the game. And about life.

The Raiders have the physical ability to beat New Mexico, Rice and Tulsa and go to Austin 5-1. They'll do it with their bodies if they can win with their minds.

Bold prediction, I guess. But I've just got a feeling...
