Music System Hampers White House Listeners

By BRONSON HAVARD

Editor

(Copyrighted by The Daily Tornado, 1965)

One of the major problems facing the White House intelligence staff is keeping the place from being bugged, Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton said Friday.

"We have found many efforts to bug the White House . . . efforts made by enemy agents as well as other persons seeking information," Maj. Gen. Clifton, military press aide to President Lyndon Johnson, said.

He said the entire White House is wired with a music system to offset bugging efforts.

The music when amplified interferes with electronic instruments snooping in on telephone and office conversations, he said.

"The music is played 24 hours a day," he added.

Gen. Clifton said the white House could be "bugged" in a number of ways by persons with different motives.

He said enemy agents are interested in political and military secrets while agents of American companies are interested in the government's economic policies and plans.

Journalists who want information may also try to bug the White House, he commented.

A problem of outside electronic equipment "beamed" in on the presidential offices was also cited. The music would also interfere with that equipment, he said.

Counter Bugging

"Every time the President makes a telephone call he can turn up the music a little to counter the bugging."

Commenting on the bugging efforts Gen. Clifton said definitely, "We could be bugged, and we have found them."

The subject of bugging came up in the question and answer session following Clifton's address when a student asked him about reports of the President bugging Press Secretary George Reedy's office to listen in on press conferences and what is being said.

In answer to that question, Clifton said the President denies bugging and has no reasons to do so "because you can hear what's going on anyway."

'Flows Freely'

About the releasing of information from the White House, Gen. Clifton said, "I have been there for the past 20 years and information is now flowing more freely in Washington than any time since I have been there."

He said the White House reporters are close to the President and are kept well informed of what the government is doing.

One reason why the President calls press conferences only once every two months is because many non-White House reporters come to show off, Gen. Clifton commented.

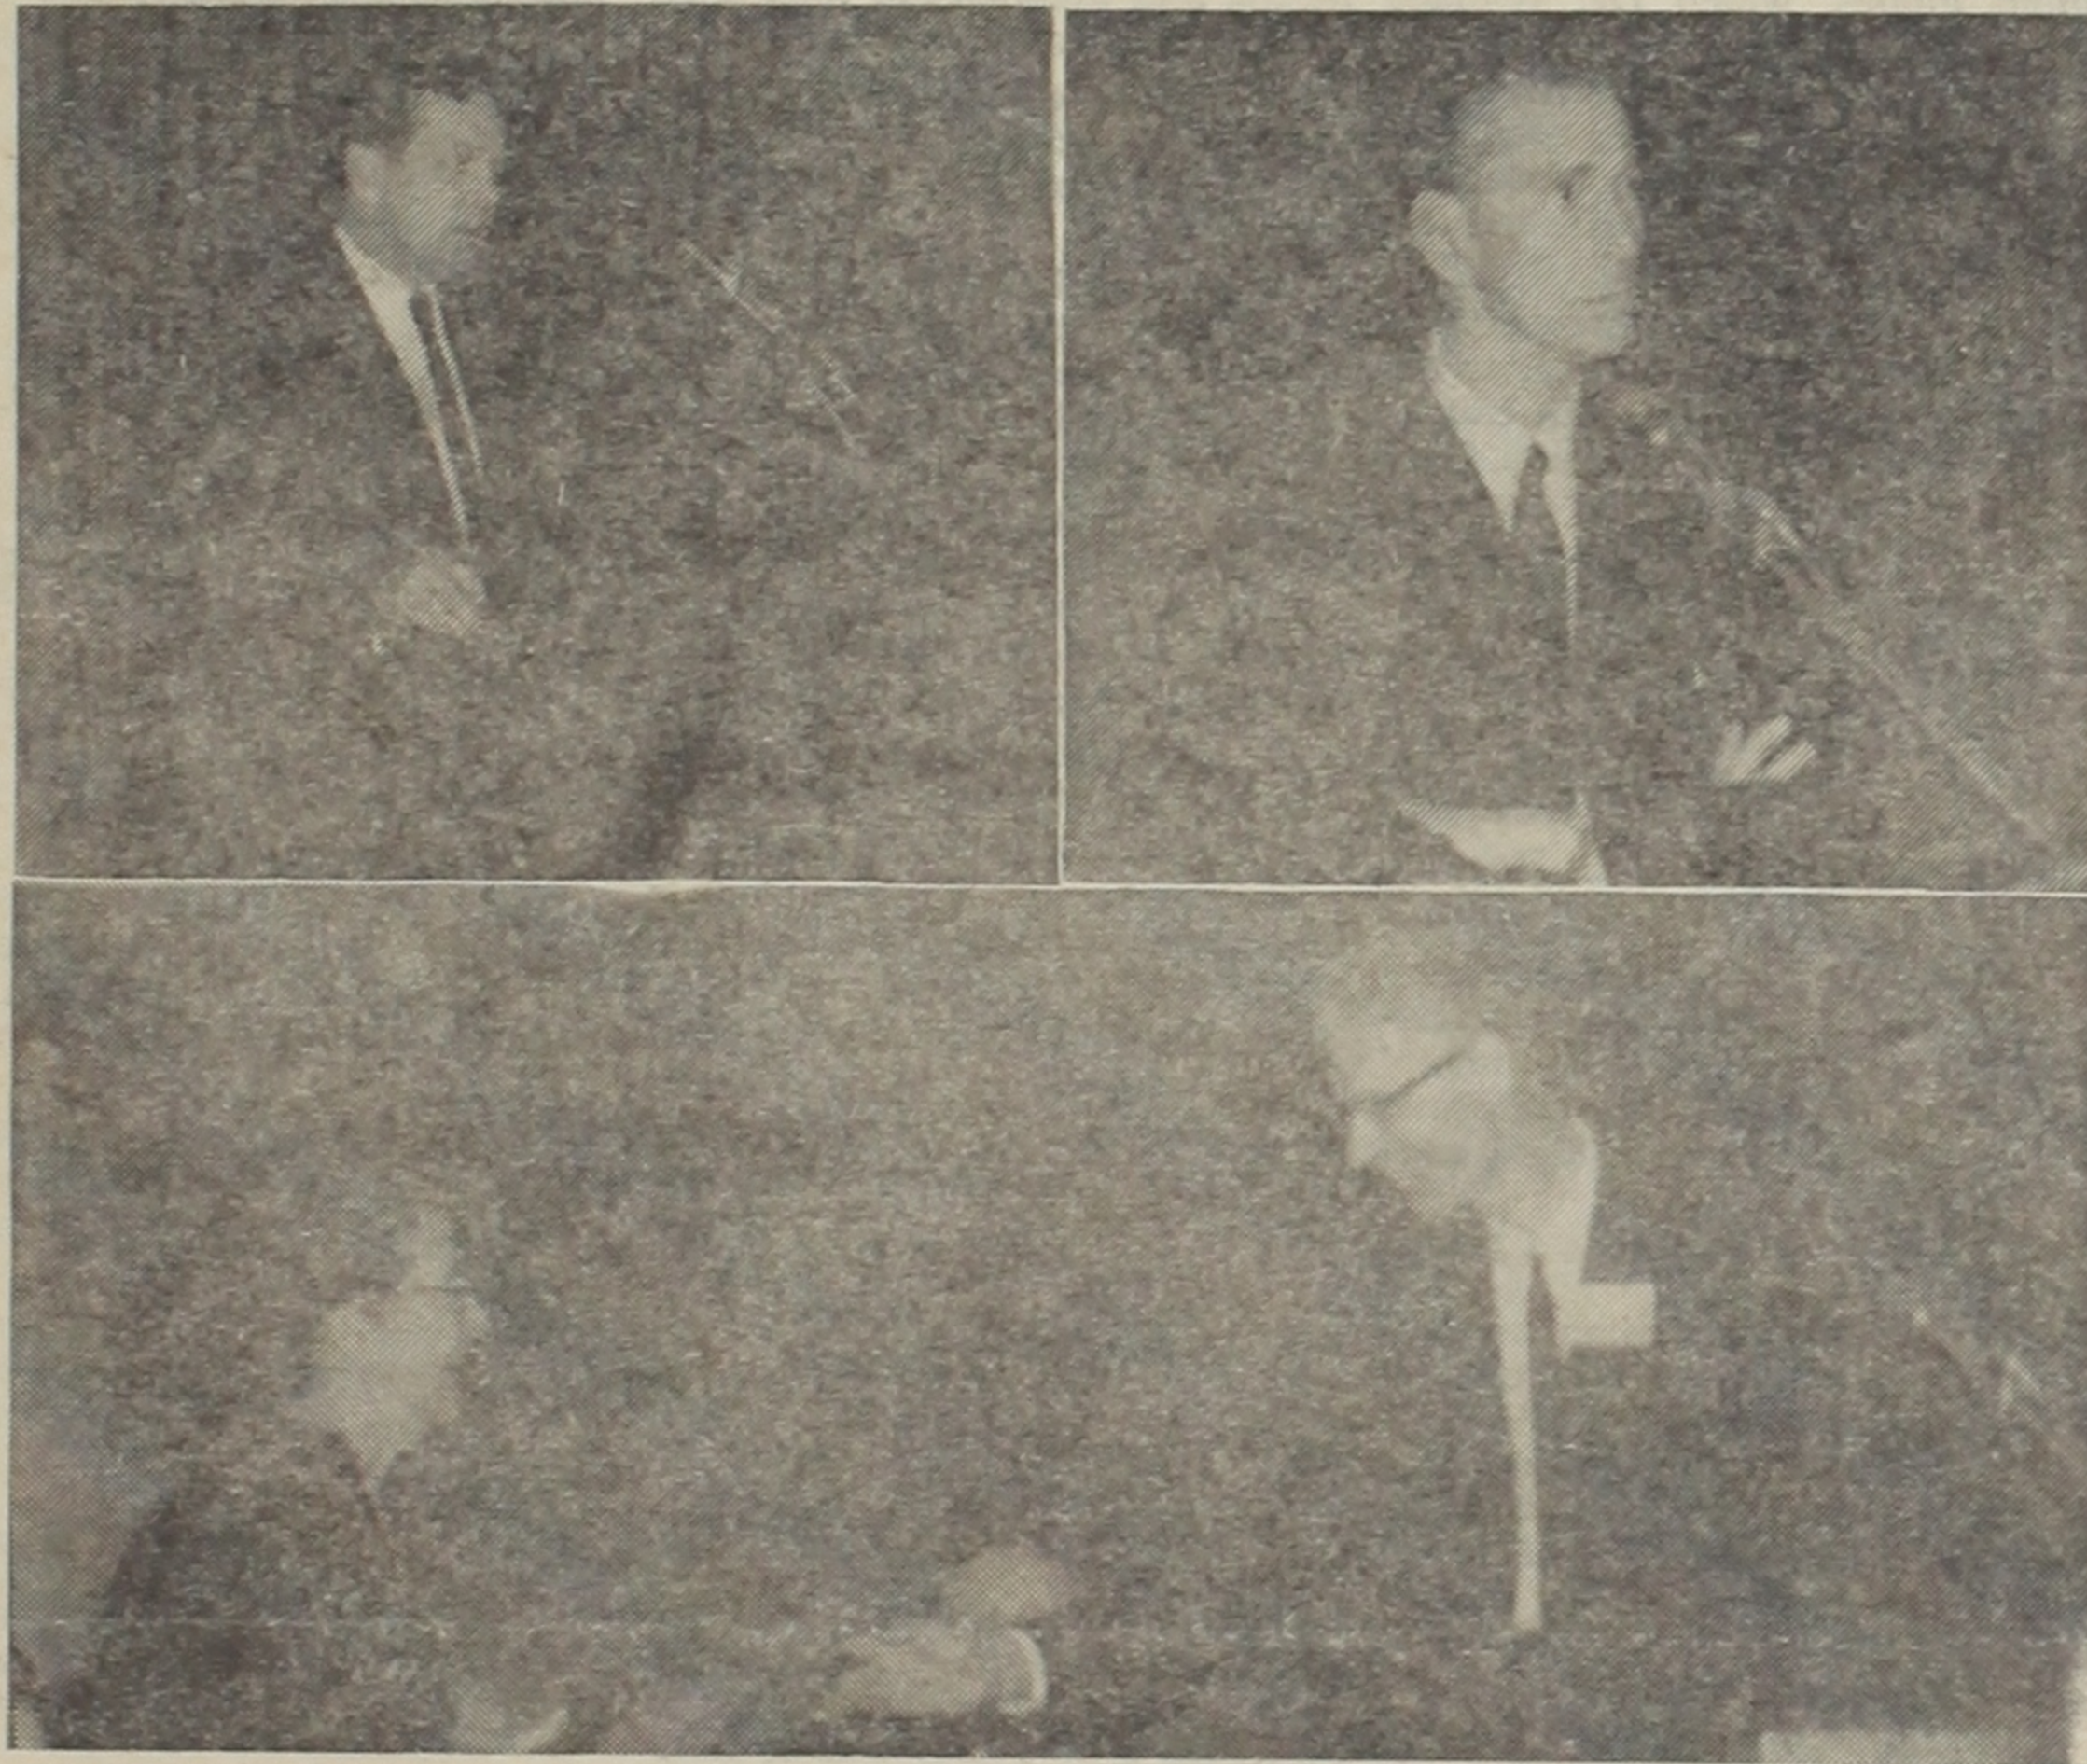

KTXT To Air SC Revamping

"Reorganization of Student Government" will be the topic of discussion on KTXT-FM's "Audio One" at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Panel members will be Dr. William M. Pearce, vice president for academic affairs; Ronnie Botkin, Student Council president; Mary Behrends, Association of Women Students president; Roland Anderson, Student Council representative; Bronson Havard, Tornado editor; and Ken Hyndrix, KTXT representative. Academic freedom, campus food, AWS and the students' right to know were topics of discussion on earlier programs.

Journalists Urge Students To Study, Protect Freedom

Will Harrison, Santa Fe, N.M., columnist, told delegates to the 35th Southwestern Journalism Congress Friday night to "re-examine yourselves and know what you are getting into."

Harrison spoke at the congress awards banquet in the Union Ballroom. Awards were presented to prize-winning student writers to climax the banquet.

A final business session for both college advisors and student delegates will be at 9 a.m. today in the Union Blue Room and Ballroom, respectively.

Harrison's remarks about the thrilling life of a journalist — and the responsibilities — were also demonstrated in the speeches of the other congress speakers:

Journalists Told To Keep Abreast

Bill Payette, southwestern regional manager for United Press International, told visiting journalists and journalism students Friday they must acquire and utilize a broad education and a desire for keeping abreast of the rapidly changing times.

Payette said, "The most important thing in the world to you as students and professionals is that three pounds of brain tissue in your head, to develop or ignore, as you please."

Payette stressed the importance of education to future journalists, saying education should be broad and intensive, with "a dip into the sciences."

Rafferty Speaks On Representation

Too many conservative and not enough liberal newspapers exist today, resulting in a lack of "gray" or in-between representation of news to the public, Keen Rafferty said Friday at the journalists' noon luncheon.

"The great fault with the conservatism of the American newspaper lies not in the fact that this or that paper is conservative, but that nearly the whole press is," he said.

Chronicle Editor Urges New Ideals

The total effects of science and the flowing pattern of history must be accepted as the backbone of journalism in this time of challenge and change, according to Bill Steven, editor of The Houston Chronicle.

Steven urged students and faculty advisors attending the congress to accept two philosophies in their teaching and reporting to present the complete picture.

"As thinking people, accept the total impact science has on society and on your life," he said.

"What we need in the journalism field is journalists who can report, explain, illuminate and enlighten the people," Steven said. "The kind of world we're living in today and, God willing, will live in tomorrow, requires educators, economists, scholars, linguists and businessmen."

AP Bureau Chief Scores Challenge

The greatest challenge that faces the press today is keeping the basic concept of freedom before the people, Bob Johnson chief of the Dallas Bureau for The Associated Press told delegates Friday.

"A recent survey showed that one-third of the people polled favored a central government agency as a censoring committee over the news press," Johnson said. He emphasized that is the duty of the news media to make the people realize the value of a free press.

Pre-Meds Will Hear Top MD's

Area high school and junior college students who are interested in careers in medicine will join Texas Tech's pre-med students in hearing talks by authorities in the field at the 8th annual Pre-Med Day here today.

Here to confer with students and to speak at the morning session will be Dr. William J. McGarrity, dean of the medical faculty at the University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston, and Dr. Reuben H. Adams, University of Texas professor, Southwestern School of Medicine, Dallas.

Sessions will be in the Coronado Room at Tech Union where registration will begin at 9 a.m.

Society Hosts

Hosting the one-day event will be Tech's Pre-Med Society, headed by J. Harvey Harris, Lubbock senior, and the Tech chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-med honorary fraternity, headed by Bill E. Allison, senior from Fort Worth.

Visitors will be welcomed by Dean S. M. Kennedy of the School of Arts and Sciences, and Ronnie Botkin, Student Council president.

Dr. Obie Stalcup, Lubbock physician, will give the opening address at 10 a.m.

Speakers at the afternoon session will be Dr. J. J. Scull, Jr., Lubbock oral surgeon, and Dr. Andrew D. Gwynne, Lubbock pathologist.

Visiting Consultant

Following their addresses, college students will meet informally with visiting consultants and speakers while high school students are taken on a tour of the campus.

Dr. John H. Selby, Lubbock physician, will be main speaker at the Pre-Med Society's Awards Dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the Coronado Room.

Announced at this time will be the winners of the Dr. E. W. Jones Memorial Scholarship and the Dr. Alfred H. Rogers Scholarship. Each carries a stipend of $300.

Also presented will be the Jack Price plaque to the top honor senior pre-med student and the Pre-Med Society's awards to outstanding junior and sophomore students.

Invitations have been extended to more than 130 schools in the area, a spokesman for the sponsoring organizations said.

Faculty advisors are Miss Margaret Stuart, associate professor of chemistry, and Dr. Robert L. Packard, assistant professor of biology.

'Orphan' Center Supplies Teachers' Education Aids

By EUGENE SMITH
Staff Writer

There's an orphan on the Tech campus, and some area teachers and prospective teachers are glad it is here.

This neglected child is the Curriculum Center, located in a government surplus building behind the Home Economics Bldg. It is an offspring of the education department.

The "orphan" tag was applied by Dr. Morris Wallace, head of the department, because the center subsists almost totally through handouts.

"Almost everything here was furnished by various people for various reasons free of charge," he said.

The purpose of the center is to supply student and teacher with information and materials dealing with education which they cannot get from a regular library.

The center is used mostly by students in the education department, especially student teachers. It contains audio-visual aids, textbooks approved for use in Texas schools and some out of state books, records, tapes, film strips, and catalogues. The catalogues include the "Educator's Index to Free Materials," which the center's secretary Sue Bownds says the teachers consider invaluable.

The center also contains curriculum guides, which Dr. Wallace says may be the most important thing in the building. These are outlines of curricula used by schools throughout the state and country. Most are furnished by the schools on request.

Copies of doctor's dissertations and master's theses and other research papers dealing with education are also in the center's files.

There are also professional books and encyclopedias.

"The center is not just for teachers and education students," Wallace emphasized. "Students in all areas have found information here that they cannot find anywhere else."

The center was originated in 1953 by Dr. Doyle Jackson. It was originally located in another surplus building behind the Chemistry Bldg. The idea grew out of the needs of a teaching materials lab suggested by the student education organization.

The center has no budget and is not included in any.

"There are times when we consider something important enough that we have to have it," said Wallace. "Then we may spend some of the department's funds."

Wallace hopes that someday the center will have not only a budget with which to operate, but a good place to operate in.

"We hope to have a building of our own or a place in the library," he said.

Study Required

Dr. Raymond Davidson, who is in charge of the Audio-Visual Education center in the same building, said the teaching students are required to make a study of all the materials available in their teaching area and level.

Sue Williams, who teaches history and geography at Petersburg, is another example. She was making her own card catalogue of materials and audio-visual aids from the center's catalogues.

The center also furnishes information to schools in the area about the curriculum of other schools.

Wallace said they hope someday to produce their own materials. Davidson's main job is to teach education students how to do this on their own.

"Our main interest is new ideas," said Wallace, "such as the ungraded schools being experimented with now, and the teaching of Chinese in some public schools."

He also has hopes of someday having on hand an example of all the teaching machines in existence.

The center is open five days a week, and smoking and soft drinks are allowed.

"We don't have enough materials to allow them to be checked out," said Mrs. Bownds, "but anyone is welcome to use what we have here."

KAT's Kites To Fly Sunday

Kappa Alpha Theta, social sorority, has set up a strange obstacle course for its pledges to overcome before they can be initiated. The pledges must fly a kite.

The annual Kappa Alpha Theta kite flight is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. Sunday on the field west of the Women's Gym. Everyone is invited to go fly a kite.

SWIMMERS IN DALLAS

Twelve tankers are representing Texas Tech in the SWC Meet at Southern Methodist in Dallas this weekend.

Jesse Marsh, San Angelo junior, is defending the 3-meter diving title he won last year. Phil Simpkins, Houston senior, took the 100-yard freestyle event two years ago.

Another strong threat should be sophomore Robert Graham of Tyler, who lost only one 50-yard contest this season.

Reception To Honor Artist

Peter Hurd, New Mexico artist, will be in the rotunda of the West Texas Museum, 2 p.m. Sunday for an autograph party.

Hurd painted the mural depicting early pioneer life on the South Plains which now decorates the rotunda of the museum.

Hurd will be on hand to sign copies of his recently issued biography, "Peter Hurd, A Portrait Sketch From Life," written by Paul Horgan.

Hosts for the event will be officials of Texas Tech and members of the West Texas Museum Association.

Student Gets Wilson Award

Kay Thornton Irwin, senior English major from Lubbock, has been awarded a Woodrow Wilson Foundation Fellowship for graduate study in 1965-66, according to an announcement by Dr. David Vigness, campus representative for the Foundation.

A member of the honors program for four years, Mrs. Irwin will use the reward to prepare for a career in her chosen field—teaching at the college level. The fellowship carries a stipend of $1,800 plus tuition and fees.

She is a member of Sigma Tau Delta, English honorary, and has been editor of the group's publication "The Harbinger." She has also been secretary and president of the Honors Council.

Raiders Slip By Highlands Track, Tennis Teams In Competition Today

In Two Extra Innings, 6-5

The Red Raider baseball squad opened their 1965 season against New Mexico Highlands Friday afternoon, but had to go 11 innings before finally chalking up a 6-5 win in the record books.

The second game of the scheduled twin bill was called because of darkness. Another doubleheader with the Highlands crew is tentatively set for 1 p.m. today at Lowrey Field.

The second contest Friday was called for darkness in the sixth, and although Highlands had scored one run in that incompleting frame, the outcome reverted back to the last complete inning when the score was 4-4.

in the first game. With runners on first and third and the score tied 5-all, Watts singled into left-center to score the winning tally.

The Raiders trailed in total hits 10-6, and their only extra base hit came in the seventh when Donnie Anderson tripled.

Robert Hayes, who entered in the seventh, was credited with the win. Hayes didn't give up any runs, and allowed Highlands only two hits for the remainder of the contest. He walked three men.

The losing hurler was Jerry Humpart. Although he did not deliver the pitch which Watts hit, he did allow the two Tech runners to get on base.

On the mound for the Raiders today will be "Moose" Dudley and Stan Coffee, a pair of righthanders. Other starters will probably be Larry Anderson catching, John Dudley at first base, Ronny Holly at second, Richard Perry at third, Foy Williams at short, Anderson in left, Eldon Fox in center and Bob Fielder in right.

In the bullpen and ready for action on the mound will be David Tarter, Robert Hayes and Larry Thorne.

Raider track and tennis teams are each engaged in meets today.

Texas Tech is competing in 10 track and field events in the Border Olympics at Laredo. Don Sparks, filling in for Coach Vernon Hilliard, still sidelined while recovering from a heart attack, believes the Red Raiders' best chances for points lie with the 440-yard relay team, miler Ronnie Davis of Brownwood, and sprinter Kenneth Coleman of Dallas.

Teamed with Coleman on the sprint relay are Clark Willingham of Dallas, Richard Vogan of El Paso, and Richard Hardy of Dallas. They were clocked in 441.9 at the Southwestern Recreation Meet last week. Robert Kitchens of Silverton, however, may replace Hardy, suffering with a groin strain.

Davis last week ran the mile in 4:21.2, over his career best of 4:18.6 but about five seconds better than he was running at this time last year.

By event the Raiders will also enter: three mile run—Davis, 880

Picadors Travel

Texas Tech's freshman baseballers take a 2-0 mark into their doubleheader with Odessa College at Odessa today.

Coach Doug Cannon will probably start Mike Murphy of Abilene and Robert Weber of Midland on the mound.

Murphy and Tom Wilson of Houston limited Lubbock Christian College to a pair of hits in the Picadors' 17-1 opening triumph Wednesday. Weber and Ray McKinney of Littlefield combined forces in Tech's 9-1 nightcap victory.

Next week the Picadors have a pair of doubleheaders with South Plains College, at Levelland Tuesday and at Lubbock Saturday, on tap.

—Scott Wood of Stockton, Calif., 440—Jerry Gilbreath of Muleshoe or Hardy, high jump—Russell Durham of Comanche, javelin—Durham, 100—Coleman, Willingham and Kitchens, 220—same as 100, mile relay—Willingham, Vogan, Wood and Gilbreath.

TENNIS MEET

Dub Malaise, who won an intercollegiate tennis match one day after making all-Southwest Conference as a basketballer, will play for Texas Tech in the Red Raiders' matches with Abilene Christian and Hardin-Simmons at Abilene.

Malaise, who won No. 4 singles from Hardin-Simmons here last week, is playing his first competitive tennis since his Odessa High School days. The Red Raiders' leading pointmaker had toyed with the idea of playing varsity golf — another sport he starred in at Odessa — but when Coach George Philbrick turned up with only two lettermen, he cast his lot with the netters.

In the top two slots for the Raiders will be their returning lettermen, Robert Peterson of Wichita Falls and Greer Kothmann of Junction. Rounding out the lineup against the Abilene schools will be Malaise, still bearing blisters as reminders of his varsity debut; Charles Bowers, an Odessa College transfer; and Mike Jones, Lubbock Monterey graduate.

WEIGHT LIFTING

Texas Tech has six entries in the Southwest Collegiate Weight Lifting Meet which starts at 1 p.m. today in the Intramural Gym.

Dr. Richard Berger of the men's physical education department, meet director, said Tech would be represented by Flavell Chastain, Ed Jackson, Cris Nichols, Rick Price, Dale Vick and Jim Copperwaith.
