Military Coup D'Etat Ousts High Officials

Staff Writer

In a startling military coup d'etat Wednesday afternoon, the Texas Tech Air Force ROTC arrested and executed the president of the Texas Tech Student Association and his executive advisor.

At 2:50 p.m., the Air Force ROTC arrested Roland Anderson, president of the Student Association, and Max Blakney, student senator serving as the president's executive advisor.

Arrests Anderson

A ten-man Air Force detachment under the command of Cadet Col. Bob Vacker broke into the student government office and, at gunpoint, told Anderson he was under arrest. He was arrested for creating "an extremely bad situation in the government." Blakney, in the office with Anderson, tried to stop the arrest and was arrested also.

The two were escorted from the Administration Building to Memorial Circle. At 2:55 p.m. Anderson was blindfolded. The unit of Air Force men formed a line and, at a signal from squad leader Winston King, shot the president.

Blakney Executed

A moment later, Blakney was taken to a spot next to the president's body. He was blindfolded and shot by the firing squad also.

At 3 p.m. an ambulance raced onto the campus, around the circle, and halted as close to the dead persons as possible. As they were placed in the ambulance, the detachment of troops marched away.

Vacker, the leader of the coup, took over in the president's office as the president was being shot. Troops guarded the office as he sat at the president's desk giving orders.

At 3:20 p.m., a unit of Texas Tech Army ROTC troops burst into the president's office, searched and disarmed everyone, and arrested Vacker and his men.

Peking Blasts Soviet Union

TOKYO (AP)—Peking loosed a new blast Wednesday at Moscow, accusing the Soviet Union of plotting with the United States to encircle China and to sell out the Vietnamese people. The Chinese denounced Soviet "dirty deals," "tricks," and "chauvinism."

In a letter to Moscow broadcast by Radio Peking, the Chinese rejected an invitation to the Soviet Communist party congress in Moscow in terms so harsh as to seem to bring the two nations closer to an open split. Albania, Peking's only ally in Europe, also bluntly declined to go to Moscow.

The Chinese said the Russians distributed an anti-Chinese letter to world Communist parties recently and said: "In these circumstances, the Chinese Communist party, which you look upon as an enemy, cannot be expected to attend your congress."

Lt. Bill Beuck, led the Air Force men to a police car.

The Army unit re-instated the government under Scott Allen, vice president of the Student Association.

The unsuccessful Air Force men will be tried for murder and high treason. The trial is scheduled to begin next Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

The presiding judge will be Chris Hickey, president of Texas Tech's Pre-Law Society. The prosecution will be headed by Elata Ely and Frank McLaughlin. The defense will be conducted by Jack Leebrick and Lyn McClellan.

IFC Court Renders 'Not Guilty' Verdict

By MACK SISK
Feature Editor

A five-member Interfraternity Council court Wednesday afternoon ruled unanimously that Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity was innocent of violating a rule on alcoholic beverages as stated in the Code of Student Affairs.

The court also accepted SAE's former plea of "guilty" to infractions of two rules, those prohibiting unscheduled and unsponsored social functions, and levied a fine of $100, payable to IFC no later than April 30.

Decision Read

Chief Justice Alan Murray read the decision during a meeting in the Blue Room of Tech Union attended by members of the court, SAE representatives and Fraternity Adviser Thomas Stover. Stover had no comment on the decision.

"The court took this case with the understanding from the college that the court was only to follow the rules of the Code of Student Affairs as stated, not to make an interpretation of them. The rule on alcoholic beverages at social functions only states that serving alcoholic beverages at these functions is not allowed," the decision said.

The rule from the Code of Student Affairs under the heading "Alcoholic Beverages" says:

"The College prohibits the possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages on the campus or in college buildings, and in student residence, both on-campus dormitories and off-campus housing. Students are held individually responsible for compliance with this regulation. Under this rule the College does not permit student organizations to

SMU Thanks Tech Students

Dr. William M. Tate, President of Southern Methodist University, this week expressed appreciation for the support shown the Mustangs in the recent Regional NCAA basketball tournament here by Texas Tech students and faculty.

Dr. Tate, in a letter to Tech President R. C. Goodwin, said he understood that the Tech "student body, athletic officials, faculty and staff supported the Mustangs as if they were your own team."

"This attitude," he wrote, "makes it easy to understand why your institution has been awarded the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship Trophy several times in the past decade."

"The support, no doubt, had a great deal to do with the all-out effort of the Mustangs to represent the SWC in this tournament."

serve alcoholic beverages at student functions or meetings held either on or off the campus."

Letter Written

Accompanying the court's decision was a transmittal letter to James G. Allen, dean of student life, whose office filed the charges at an IFC meeting two weeks ago. Allen, who was out of town Wednesday, was not available for comment.

Other members of the court were Bill Beuck, Bob Chrismer, Ray Cravy and Walter Cunningham. IFC President Larry Strickland was an ex officio member, but had no vote.

Charges Filed Against Frat

Thomas Stover, fraternity adviser, Wednesday night presented charges to the Interfraternity Council filed by the Office of Dean of Student Life against Sigma Nu fraternity.

Sigma Nu was charged with infraction of Code of Student Affairs rules dealing with unscheduled social functions, social functions outside the city limits without special permission and the alcoholic beverage rule.

Larry Strickland, IFC president, referred the charges to the IFC court which Wednesday found Sigma Alpha Epsilon innocent of the alcoholic beverage statute. SAE had pleaded guilty to the unscheduled and unsponsored clause in their charges.

Student Goes To Peru

annual Junior Year in Peru program.

The American students, all with special interests in Latin America, represent nine United States universities and colleges.

They attended briefing sessions at the Foreign Service Institution in Washington prior to leaving for Peru.

The program, jointly sponsored by Indiana University and the State Department, gives the students an opportunity to study the Spanish language in the Peruvian vernacular, as well as the history, customs and literature of Peru and other Latin American countries.

In all, each student will take six courses, earning 30 hours of college credit.

Accompanying them was T. E. Dorf, associate professor of Spanish at Indiana, who will teach a course in Spanish-American literature at San Marcos and act as resident director of the Junior Year program.

Most of the students in the program are sophomore or junior Spanish language majors. However, majors in government, history and medicine also are participating.

Worley Wins Post At Journalism Meet

A political coup at the University of Arkansas last weekend resulted in the election of Barbra Worley, Tech junior, to the post of treasurer for the Southwest Journalism Conference Student Press Club for 1966-67.

The coup, initiated by the delegates from Texas Tech with support from the Texas Woman's University and Texas A&M delegations, consisted of the dissolution of a block vote set up by East Texas State University to win all the offices in the four-state conference. In the final results ETSU gained the two officers provided it by the SJC constitution as host school for the conference next year—president and secretary.

Becky Stark of TWU was elected vice president, and Tommy DeFrank of A&M was elected parliamentarian.

At the annual SJC Awards Banquet Friday the Daily Toreador was awarded four third place positions. Topping the list with two awards was Mike Lutz, who won third place in the "Best Sports Column—Daily" and "Best Sports Story—Daily" divisions.

Judy Fowler, Toreador Copy Editor, won third place in the "Best Feature" division.

Third place for the best single edition went to the Toreador for the Friday, Sept. 17 edition.

Delegates to the three-day convention in Fayetteville included John Armistead, Judy Fowler, Cecil Green, Carmen Keith, Bill Shrader, Diane Weddige and Barbra Worley. Sponsors were Phil Orman, director of student publications at Tech and Ralph Sellmeyer, assistant professor of journalism.

Member schools in the Southwest Journalism Conference include the major colleges and universities in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Quail Habits Studied

Texas Tech seniors Jack Carroll and Derrick Cooke are participating in a bird-marking project designed to study the dispersal habits of a wintering covey of quail.

The students, members of a Wildlife Projects course offered by Tech's agronomy and range management department in the School of Agriculture, are making the study under a permit granted to range management professor Dr. Thadis Box, by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

More than 75 Blue Quail now are on the Tech College Farm. The students are attempting to determine how far the birds move, locations of nest sites and general nesting habits in the locations where they rear their broods.

"We are also studying techniques of marking quail for scientific study," Carroll said. Project findings will be reported to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Dr. Box said.

The birds are marked with a red-orange paint on the back and wings. In addition, some birds carry brightly colored leg bands. Others have plastic streamers attached to their wings.

"It would help us a great deal if persons spotting the birds would report their location," Dr. Box said. He can be reached at PO2-8811, Ext. 6148, in Lubbock.

Dr. Box terms the research project a "great asset" for the students. "It gives them practical application of the principles taught in their undergraduate courses."

J T King To Speak At Reese Graduation

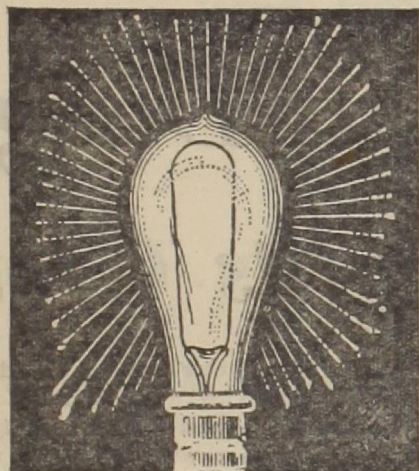

J T King, Texas Tech football coach, will speak at the graduation of Class 66-F from undergraduate pilot training at Reese Air Force Base Saturday. He will be presented by Col. Dudley E. Faver, Reese wing commander.

He went to Tulane University in 1946 to aid in rebuilding the grid fortunes there. He recruited in Texas and 14 Texans were on the 1948 team which compiled a 9-1 record, the school's best record in 24 seasons.

In 1950 he went to Texas A&M College for a year and then returned to his alma mater, Texas University. In his 1950-56 period the Texas Longhorns won three Southwest Conference titles. At Texas King served successively as end coach, line coach and head defensive coach. Coach King came to Texas Tech in 1958 as head coach.

Breaking The Ice...

THIS YEAR THE ICE was broken in the communications gap between the administration and student body through such programs as the open Senate meeting with Board member Al Allison and the closed Senate luncheons, but the surface is a long way from being cleared yet.

These two programs—Allison's candid speech before the Student Senate and visitors and the two Senate luncheons with Dr. William Pearce, vice president for academic affairs, and James Allen, dean of student life—did a great deal to clear up the air of misunderstanding prevalent between the two groups.

The Senate luncheons are a new program initiated at the first of this semester. Under the program Senators meet with a member of the administration for a luncheon once each month. During the first 10-15 minutes, the administrator speaks to Senators giving a short speech on his area of the campus.

Then, Senators are allowed to question him on any phase of his work they choose. The response to these luncheons by both senators and administrators has been very good, according to Senate Vice President Scott Allen.

However, these Senate luncheons have been closed and only the Senators and guest speakers are allowed to attend them. The reason, according to Allen, is that the Senate wants administrators to feel more free to talk and to answer questions put to them by Senators.

The closed luncheons have been effective in enabling Senators to become better acquainted with administrative officials and in finding out where and to whom they should go for specific problems.

However, since these meetings are closed, perhaps additional meetings should be sponsored by the Senate—meetings where students as well as Senators could talk to administrators and question them. These meetings could be similar to the speeches last year by President R. C. Goodwin and could be set up on a regular basis, perhaps twice each semester or more frequent.

But the problem does not end with establishing open meetings between students and administrators. Before the Senate can approve and sponsor such a program they must be reasonably sure that students want such meetings and would be willing to participate.

With the upcoming spring elections, we would like to issue two challenges. First to the officers for next year that they continue the monthly Senate luncheons and expand the program, and second to the student body that they encourage and work for Senate sponsorship of regular meetings between students and administrators.

College Students Disagree With Civil Rights Groups

(Copyright 1966 by Playboy Magazine)

A majority of U.S. college students tend to disagree with a number of the principal actions as well as proposals advocated by civil rights organizations. This is the finding of the Playboy College Opinion Survey, covering 200 campuses.

While agreeing that federal legislation is necessary to assure that jury members be selected on a nondiscriminatory basis, 63.2 percent of the students do not consider such legislation needed to declare murder or assault of a civil rights worker a federal crime.

The students take a strong stand against civil disobedience to the extent of blocking traffic, with 83.1 percent disagreeing that it is justifiable as a means to an end. Further, 79 percent are opposed to the bussing of Negro children to schools out of their neighborhoods if this is the only way to obtain school integration; and an overwhelming 94.5 percent do not agree that qualified Negro job applicants should be given preference over qualified applicants of other races as a means of speeding up equality. Moreover, 66.7 percent of the students believe that the diversity of civil rights organizations is more of a hindrance than a help to the civil rights movement as a whole; and 54.8 percent believe that the Negro civil rights leadership has, by and large, not acted wisely and responsibly in trying to achieve racial equality.

The Playboy Opinion Survey also asked the students if they considered intermarriage as the ultimate solution to the "Racial Problem." Only 12.4 percent expressed agreement.

The Playboy College Opinion Survey, which measures opinions of both students and faculty members, is based on responses from a representative sample of approximately 1,200 students from all classes, ages and backgrounds, who serve as a permanent "sounding board" on questions of current interest, and a permanent panel of 200 faculty members—one representative from each campus—comprising a wide variety of educational fields.

Playboy Opinion Survey proportionately takes a more positive pro-civil rights stand than the students, they basically tend to agree with the position taken by them. While 75.3 percent believe that federal legislation is necessary to eliminate discrimination in the selection of jury members, only 52.6 percent see the need for such legislation to declare the murder or assault of a civil rights worker a federal crime. Also, 75.0 percent of the faculty do not believe that civil disobedience to the extent of blocking traffic is justifiable as a means to an end; and 81.8 percent said that qualified Negro job applicants should not be given preference over qualified applicants of other races as a means of speeding up equality. As to bussing of Negro school children, 60.6 percent said they were opposed and 75.9 percent disagreed that the ultimate solution to the "Racial Problem" is intermarriage.

Differentiating from the students, 53.9 percent of the faculty do not believe that the diversity of civil rights organizations is more of a hindrance than a help to the civil rights movement as a whole, and 75.4 percent said they thought that the Negro civil rights leadership has, by and large, acted wisely and responsibly in trying to achieve equality.

The Playboy College Opinion Survey also reflects opinions from campuses on a regional basis—in the East, Midwest, South, Southwest and West. Analysis of the returns shows that in the South, the students tend to be more "conservative," while in the Southwest, the faculty took the "conservative" point of view. The most "liberal" stand among students was taken in the Midwest, and among the faculty, in the East.

Only 34.8 percent of the Southern students thought that the Negro civil rights leadership acted wisely and responsibly in trying to achieve racial equality, and 61.5 percent of the Southwestern faculty thought that it has. This percentage, while higher than that of the Southern students, was still the lowest percentage return among all the regional faculties on this question. Also of interest is that none of the Southwestern faculty thought that qualified Negro applicants should be given preference over applicants of other races, while 5 percent of the Southern students agreed that they should.

In analyzing the regional returns, it is also interesting to note that only 10.7 percent of the faculty on Western campuses—scene of a number of demonstrations during recent years—thought that civil disobedience to the extent of blocking traffic is justifiable as a means to an end. This is the lowest return on this question among all the students and faculty.

Banquet Honors Five

Five pre-med students received scholarships and awards Saturday at the annual pre-med awards banquet.

Joe Kintz received the memorial Dr. E. W. Jones Scholarship of $300, and Mike Freeman received the $300 Dr. Alfred H. Rogers Scholarship. The Tech chapter of the American Chemical Society awarded Miss Lola Page with a $50 scholarship.

The junior scholarship recipients received their scholarships through application.

Two hand-engraved sterling silver letter openers were presented to Preston Harrison, Senior Award winner, and Andrean Welch, Junior Award winner. The awards were given for academic achievement based on scholastic grades from the two previous semesters.

Harrison plans to attend the Baylor University School of Medicine at Houston in the fall.

Miss Margret Stuart, permanent pre-med advisor, received from the pre-med honorary Alpha Epsilon Delta and the Pre-Med Society, a plaque in recognition of her contributions to pre-medical education.

Guest speaker was Dr. Harold Cummins, former assistant Dean of Tulane University School of Medicine, and presently Tulane's professor Emeritus of Anatomy.

Cummins used remembrances of the past to illustrate the many and varied opportunities open to today's medical students. Cummins said that when he began teaching at Vanderbilt in 1916 cadavers were not available for dissection to the medical student. Individuals had to resort to robbing in order to procure the bodies for the students.

He said that in his 50-year career he had received only $900 in research grants, while today it is not unusual for grants of $150,000 to be awarded for just one year's study.

Concerning marriage and the medical student, much of the success of the marriage depends on the wife. "She must realize that as a doctor's wife she will have to share her husband with the world," he said.

Chi Rho Fraternity Celebrates Founding

The "Brothers of Chi Rho" yesterday marked the second anniversary of the official founding of their fraternity on the Texas Tech campus.

On March 23, 1964 Texas Tech extended recognition to Chi Rho as a service fraternity for Catholic men, culminating two years of work which began in 1962 by six undergraduate men at Tech.

Chi Rho has been called a unique idea originating at Tech that has both the attributes of a new kind of college fraternity and a new kind of movement among men students.

With an original 14 charter members, Chi Rho has grown in only a period of less than two years to the present 65 members, alumni and pledges.

Plans are underway to establish an alumni association and Chi Rho chapters at other colleges and universities.

"The thing that makes Chi Rho so unique," according to Frankie Claunts, a 1964 Tech graduate and one of the co-founders who is now on a Peace Corps assignment in India, "is the organization's trinity of purposes and the philosophy built upon them."

Chi Rho has three purposes—faith, service and brotherhood. Briefly the philosophy of the three ideals is outlined as follows:

Faith—Faith in God is a vital and dynamic force that guides men morally by providing basic guidelines to follow in everyday life.

Service—Service to one's fellow man and community as a citizen is a form of involvement in the world today. The way to be a better man is to be a better citizen trying to build a better world.

Brotherhood—Chi Rho teaches the personal brotherhood among its members and a universal brotherhood among all men. The Chi Rho Constitution calls for its members to "encourage friendship."

On the Tech campus the "Brothers of Chi Rho," as the members call themselves, work on projects in co-operation with Alpha Phi Omega, Circle K, Saddle Tramps, WSO and other organizations to help Techsians during campus elections, homecoming, the spring bike race and other events.

Curtain Rises Friday On Modern 'Hamlet'

By MARGARET EASTMAN
Staff Writer

Shakespeare's melancholy Dane will appear in a business suit as the curtain goes up at the Laboratory Theater Friday.

Perry Langenstein, director of "Hamlet," said he is using the modern dress in an attempt to make "Hamlet" fresh and new, and because a college audience will have greater empathy with a modern "Hamlet."

Often Modern Angle

"Hamlet" has "gone modern" more often than any of Shakespeare's plays.

In some productions, highballs have been served from a tidy portable bar, and tennis rackets are carried along with revolvers and flashlights.

Richard Burton's "Hamlet," directed by John Gielgud, played on a bare stage with the actors wearing rehearsal clothes, as if they were having a final run-through before opening night.

An avant-garde "Hamlet" was presented at Baylor in 1956. Burgess Meredith acted Hamlet along with three alter egos.

Popular On Broadway

A freely cut version, called "The GI Hamlet," was a 1946 Broadway hit with Maurice Evans as Hamlet and Frances Reid as Ophelia. It was costumed in late 19th century dress and, needless to say, was performed often overseas.

In the summer of 1963, "Hamlet" was performed in Minneapolis with George Grizzard as an Ivy-League Hamlet. Mourners wore top hats to Ophelia's funeral.

Then there was the surrealistic Italian production of "Hamlet." Directed by Franco Zeffirelli and acted by Giorgio Albertazzi, it became a long-run smash hit all over Italy in 1964. Hamlet gave his soliloquys from a large hole with only his head and arms showing.

'Hamlet' Spanish Style

In 1951 Alec Guinness grew a beard for his London "Hamlet," which was in Spanish style.

One of the most unusual performances was given by actress Sarah Bernhardt, who stunned

New York for eight performances in 1900 with a highly emotional Hamlet in French.

Most great actors have played the Dane at one time or another and with each actor and director comes a different interpretation.

John Barrymore was a Broadway sensation in 1922 with his handsome, hellfire Hamlet. In contrast, Peter O'Toole's popular Hamlet was boyish and sensual.

The first American Hamlet was John Howard Payne, a 17-year-old, who later wrote the words to "Home Sweet Home." He "took to the stage" during the craze for child actors and presented a young, but melancholy, Hamlet. His Ophelia was the young English actress, Elizabeth Poe, mother of Edgar Allan Poe.

Some Radical Views

With all of these interpretations, there have, of course, been radicals. One of the theories was that Hamlet is a girl dressed up as a boy, secretly in love with Horatio.

Then there are those who think Hamlet was very fat because he bewailed his "too too solid flesh."

The real questions seem to deal with Hamlet's character. Is he strong or weak? Is he an irresolute dreamer? Did he delay too long in avenging his father's murder? These questions are answered only in interpretation.

Drysdale, Koufax Criticized By Managers

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Bragan, outspoken manager of the Atlanta Braves, said Wednesday that if Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers continue to hold out and sit out the season it will be their loss—not baseball's.

At the same time, Manager Chuck Dressen of the Detroit Tigers, who a few years back left the Dodgers because he couldn't get a multiyear contract, said Koufax and Drysdale should "never have gone about things the way they did."

Game Stays Same

"If they stay out and don't play," Bragan said, "they'll miss the game more than the game will miss them. The game is the thing."

Bragan then used an example to emphasize his point that the show will go on—with or without the two ace pitchers.

"Branch Rickey made about the biggest contribution to the game that anyone has," Bragan said. "He died in 1965. In 1966 all the training camps opened on schedule. That's the way it is."

Bragan also commented on the Dodgers' gate appeal without Koufax and Drysdale, preparing to make a movie after getting nowhere in their reported search for three-year contracts with a total worth in the neighborhood of $1 million.

Predicts Drop

"I think the immediate effect of their not playing would be to cause a drop off in the draw the Dodgers have," Bragan said. "But not over the long run. People don't have long memories."

"Soon as they get accustomed to it—to seeing the Dodgers without Koufax and Drysdale—they'd forget about the Dodgers with Koufax and Drysdale. That's just human nature."

Dressen also discussed human nature in talking about the tactics Koufax and Drysdale have employed in their salary battle.

"If you're a holdout by yourself and trying to get what you think you're worth for your work, that's well and good," Dressen said. "But don't go around signing stuff like a movie contract."
