Robbins comments on party reaction

BY KEITH MULKEY
UD Reporter

Representative Joe Robbins Wednesday declared the action taken by the local Republican Party Executive Committee Tuesday night was "anti-climatic, really making official what they really did months ago on their discussions on the equal rights amendment, medical malpractice, and my selection of personal friends."

The committee met Tuesday night to officially withdraw all support from Robbins as a result of his political stands.

Robbins informed members of the press during a Wednesday afternoon news conference there is still a possibility he may run for re-election but at present he is undecided.

"I could run as an independent or as a Democrat," said Robbins. "It's just something I haven't made my mind up about yet."

Although Robbins was unsure as to whether or not he would run for re-election as a representative, Robbins did say he would not run against Senator Kent Hance, if Hance were to seek re-election.

Robbins said he feels the local party reacts with emotion rather than reason and the chances of the Republican Party in this area getting another candidate elected to the state house of representatives are "nil."

"The Republican Party in this area believes that a government should be run as a government of crisis," said Robbins, "and I feel that a government of crisis is a government of fools."

The party system shouldn't limit the ambitions of the candidate and should either accept or reject him, Robbins said.

Robbins has been a controversial figure in the state government since his election. He and the local party have clashed on a number of issues including his stands on the Equal Rights Amendment, medical malpractice insurance and Robbins' association with a number of his close personal friends.

Robbins declared the party made a major shift in its attitude only from the public standpoint. The attitude of local republicans has remained the same behind the scenes according to Robbins.

"The Executive Committee has officially withdrawn support, but I feel they were never really with me to begin with," Robbins said.

Appeals policy sparks council controversy

BY JANET WARREN
UD Reporter

The impending uniform grade appeals policy became a controversial topic Wednesday when Dr. Charles Hardwick, vice-president for academic affairs, presented a draft of the policy to the Faculty Council Executive Committee.

Several committee members voiced concern that the proposed grade appeals boards could not determine if the student's exams had been subjectively graded. According to Hardwick, the appeals board members will only determine if there was arbitrary or capricious action by the professor in awarding the grade.

The proposed appeals process involved discussions between the student and the professor assigning the grade. If the student is not satisfied by the meetings with the professor, he or she may contact the chairperson of the department or division in which the course was offered.

If still dissatisfied, the student may make a formal grade appeal to the office of the dean of the college administering the course. The dean of the college will request written information about the case from the instructor involved and present the grade appeal information to the college grade appeals board.

The college grade appeals board will consist of a voting chairperson, two faculty members and two students. All board members will be appointed by the dean.

The grade appeals policy draft states that the dean may attend all deliberations of the appeals board except when the recommendation is decided. Chuck Campbell, student association president, voiced concern that according to the proposed policy, the dean could interact with the board members. The dean acts on the final recommendation of the board, Campbell said, so his input is unnecessary at any earlier point.

Council members plan to discuss the grade appeals process at the next meeting after receiving input from other members.

A recommendation will be made to Hardwick at that time.

Council members adopted a negative stand on the proposed changes of the Coordinating Board of Texas Colleges and University Systems' policy concerning academic freedom, tenure and responsibility.

Dr. Jacquelin Collins, co-author of the Faculty Council's position paper, will represent the committee at a Coordinating Board meeting Monday in Dallas where the proposed policy changes will be discussed.

As stated in the paper, "The Faculty of Texas Tech University urges that the currently proposed revision of Policy Paper One: Academic Freedom, Tenure, and Responsibility be abandoned and that the paper adopted on Oct. 16, 1967, be retained in its original form or revised in line with the recommendations of the Advisory Committee of 1974-75."

According to Collins, the recommendations of the Advisory Committee in 1975 were favorably received but none of the recommendations were added to Policy Paper One.

Dr. Fred Maxwell, chairman of the tenure and privilege committee and co-author of the Tech faculty position paper, said the proposed changes are too general and could create interpretation problems.

According to Hardwick, any policy endorsed by the Coordinating Board will have no legal or binding force on the tenure policy at Tech. Any changes at Tech will be through normal procedures, Hardwick said, with interaction of the administration, faculty, and the Board of Regents.

In other action, committee members voted to have several open hearings on the proposed constitution of the Faculty Senate. The Faculty Council is expected to change to a senate structure this year.

The open hearing will be on Sept. 19, Sept. 21, Sept. 27, and Sept. 29. Dr. Clarence Bell, chairman of the Faculty Council Executive Committee, will schedule the times and locations of the meetings.

IRS paranoid of movement

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part in a two-part series dealing with tax evasion and the Internal Revenue Service. Today's article deals with alleged "paranoia" among members of the IRS concerning the tax evaders.

BY JIMMY TATE
UD Staff

Most attorneys for tax protesters and federal prosecutors agreed that the organized tax protest groups are led primarily by ultra conservative right-wing types who display a certain degree of paranoia. But The University Daily has found evidence suggesting the IRS had a certain degree of its own about the tax protest movement.

"They're like the Nixon administration; they will go to any costs to preserve their system," said Buford Terrell, tax attorney.

One tax protest group obtained through the Freedom of Information Act, minutes of a Feb. 9, 1973 meeting that suggests the IRS in California may have launched a campaign to discredit and jail tax protesters.

In the meeting, 14 area officials gathered in California to discuss what they called the "Tax Rebellion Movement."

Frank Busalacchi, Regional Public Affairs Officer for the IRS in San Francisco said of the 14 officials at that meeting, he is the only one still working for the IRS today.

On Aug. 9, 1977 Busalacchi talked with the University Daily about that meeting, commenting on a transcript of the meeting, provided to the UD by a source within the tax rebellion movement.

One part of the transcript suggests that the IRS was concentrating on the leaders of the tax protest movement and that the IRS had begun a counter-offensive against the movement.

Busalacchi said in the UD interview that the IRS had no definite numbers of how large the tax protest movement was, but believed it was growing.

"We did not investigate anybody simply because they were against the IRS or the income tax system, but because we did not want a lot of good citizens to fall for their claims," he said.

In the opening paragraphs of the transcript, Homer O. Croasmun, who at that time was the Western Regional Commissioner for the IRS, presented a history of the tax movement, stating, "... we do not have unlimited manpower so we must focus on the total program and concentrate on the leaders of the movement attacking IRS."

Quoting directly from the minutes:

"Mr. Croasmun pointed out that seven months ago we changed our direction on Tax Rebellion cases from a defensive posture and have now seized the initiative by infiltration of their organization so we now know in advance of their plans before they execute them. This is vital and we must continue to stay aggressive if we are to enforce the revenue laws and to protect the Service from attack by tax rebel militants."

Busalacchi said in the UD interview that the Posse Comotatis and other groups had threatened physical violence to IRS employees. He said the IRS received notes saying "IRS employees will be shot." However he said he knew of only one or two actual attacks on IRS employees.

Busalacchi also said in the interview that the IRS also received threats on its computer center. He did not know of any instances where the IRS infiltrated tax rebel groups.

One part of the transcript suggested the IRS was not going to follow just the Revenue Code, but was going to use other means as well against the tax rebels. The transcript stated:

"Mr. Croasmun stated that we are not limiting ourselves to the sanctions in the Revenue Code, but are using all available law enforcement machinery whether it be federal, state or local laws..."

Busalacchi said the reference to cooperation with state and local officials meant only that the IRS would exchange information with other law enforcement officials. He said he did not know of any incidents where the IRS used other law enforcement officials in the investigation of tax rebels.

The transcript also said an IRS official had talked about working with state tax officials against tax rebels

Quoting directly:

"Mr. Howard (IRS Chief, San Francisco) advised he has been conferring with state tax officials who are anxious to cooperate with IRS in the attack on tax rebels who also do not pay state taxes; often the state can move quickly to close up a tax rebel's business or revoke his license; that we should see that the state uses its enforcement machinery on those cases which are not our targets."

Busalacchi told the UD there were no incidents of working with state officials, but said the IRS did share information with state officials. He said he did not know of any closures of tax rebel's businesses by state officials.

The transcript also suggests that IRS officials attempted to influence federal judges to give prison sentences to tax rebels.

The transcript stated: "Mr. Croasmun reported on his discussions with Assistant U.S. Attorney Couris and Judge Crocker, Fresno, and of their interest in enforcement of the law in tax rebel cases. . . Mr. Howard reported on a change of attitude in federal judges in San Francisco after he met with a number of them and discussed the gravity of the Tax Rebellion Movement and the importance of giving prison sentences as deterrents."

Busalacchi said in the UD interview that the meeting with Croasmun and Judge Crocker was the only instance he knew of where the IRS talked with a judge about tax rebels.

Busalacchi said in the interview that nothing "identifiable" came out of the meeting. He said he did not know if any other regions knew of the Western Region meeting or if any other region held tax rebellion conferences.

False alarms upset residents

By KAY BELL
UD Reporter

Clement and Hulien Hall residents have a new alarm system this semester but they aren't too happy with the times it goes off.

The new alarm is a smoke detector system. But so far this semester the system has served as an alarm clock and at some very inconvenient times.

Pranksters have set off the dorms' fire and smoke alarms 13 times this semester. The latest false alarm was at 3 a.m. Wednesday when someone taped a cigarette to the smoke alarm.

Matt Hutchins, head resident of Clement Hall, said the residents are very upset about the false alarms and several have volunteered their services in catching the miscreants.

Some Hulien Hall residents have even offered a reward for information leading to the capture of the persons involved.

"We have a few leads on individuals," Hutchins said, "and have taken some precautions. The Housing Office and University Police are working closely with us."

"Residents are still evacuating the dorms quite quickly," he said, "but their gut reaction now is 'Oh no, it's another false alarm' instead of 'fire.'"

But the ultimate joke may be on the pranksters. According to Bill Haynes, manager of the Residence Halls Operation, once the perpetrators are caught they will be sent to the proper officials for disciplinary action.

And the disciplinary action could be severe, at both the university and city levels.

Setting false fire alarms is a violation of the Code of Student Affairs. According to the code, students charged with violations of the code may be punished by a reprimand, probation or suspension from Tech or a combination thereof.

And tampering with fire-related equipment, including alarm systems, is also a criminal offense.

According to the new Texas Penal Code, any person who knowingly initiates, communicates or otherwise assists in the issuance of a false alarm regarding a fire, bombing or other disaster may be charged with a class A misdemeanor.

If convicted of the misdemeanor charge, a person could receive a sentence of one year in jail or be fined $2,000 or both, according to Jim Farr, student legal counsel.

And a student charged with setting off the false alarm could be prosecuted at both the university level and city level, Farr said, without being placed in double jeopardy.

WEDNESDAY

NEWS BRIEFS

Daniel announcement

Price Daniel Jr. announced his candidacy for Texas attorney general at a campaign kick-off barbecue Wednesday in Liberty, his hometown.

Daniel, 36, a Democrat, served three terms in the Texas House of Representatives and was House speaker, 1973-1975. He presided at the Texas Constitutional Convention of 1974, which attempted to overhaul the 100-year-old state constitution.

A graduate of the Baylor University School of Law, he is now a partner in a Liberty law firm. His father, Price Daniel Sr., is an associate justice of the Texas Supreme Court, and a former Texas governor and U.S. Senator.

Daniel will face Texas Secretary of State Mark White in the 1978 state Democratic primary. The present attorney general, John Hill, has been mentioned as a likely candidate for governor.

Driver testifies

AMARILLO (AP) — A former ambulance driver Wednesday quoted a frightened, wounded Priscilla Davis as telling him Cullen Davis is "killing my kids and everyone else. He's gone crazy."

Testifying over defense objections and outside the presence of the jury, Thomas Southall, 24, told of responding to a post-midnight call at a home near the Davis mansion Aug. 3, 1976.

Southall said Mrs. Davis rushed toward the ambulance and said, "I've been shot."

And after assisting her onto a stretcher, she appealed to him further saying, "Please, let's get out of here. He is going to come get me."

Trial Judge George Dowlen ruled portions of the testimony admissible, but blocked the witness from later repeating the most damaging statements in the presence of the jury.

Southall appeared as the fifth witness for the prosecution in the capital murder trial of Cullen Davis, a Fort Worth millionaire on trial for the slaying of his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12.

Davis, 43, also is accused of capital murder in the slaying of his estranged wife's lover Stan Farr, 30. Mrs. Davis, 36, and Gus Gavrel, 22, were critically wounded in the midnight shooting spree.

Southall said he received a call at 12:49 a.m. the morning of Aug. 3, 1976, and drove to a residence across a field from the $6 million Davis mansion.

New Birth

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The Panama Canal treaties that Gen. Omar Torrijos will bring home from Washington this week are viewed either as the birth of a child or the death of a friend, depending on whether one stands on the Canal Zone or Panamanian side of the border.

"This is a new beginning for our country," said one Panamanian sitting on a park bench in Fifth of May Plaza, where a welcome-home rally for national leader Torrijos on Friday is expected to draw hundreds of thousands.

"This is also the birth of a new relationship with the big country, the United States, and between the United States and Latin America," the Panamanian said.

Across the border in the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone, an American walking her dog down a residential street said, "We are in mourning. This is the death of American democracy in the zone and to me that is more important than Latin American harmony or anything else."

She said she would be in a "Candlelight Rally of Mourning" planned Wednesday by anti-treaty residents of the zone to coincide with the Washington signing ceremony. "It is a funeral march," she said.

Torrijos left Monday for Washington, where he and President Carter on Wednesday will sign the treaties replacing the 1903 pact at a giant gathering of Latin American leaders.

Play it again

OLDBURY-ON-SEVERN, England (AP) - Empire-builders sat a top a nuclear reactor in "clean" coats and protective hats Wednesday to match wits and daring in one of the world's great challenges - Monopoly.

The setting and outfits were futuristic, and the place names on the board would be foreign to Americans, but the strategy was the time-honored cutthroat buy-and-sell, and Frederick Brown emerged as British champion of the ever-popular game of real estate make-believe.

The 34-year-old, gum-chewing draftsman from southern England outsmarted 119 other contestants ranging in age from 10 to 67 to win a silver tray and an expense-paid trip to Monaco on Oct. 22-26 for the championship tournament.

There Brown, who plays in his stocking-fee, will test his entrepreneurship against 19 national winners, including the American entry who wins in New York later this month.

Robbins: good ideas but rotten timing

When the Executive Committee of the Lubbock County Republican party met Tuesday night, much of the discussion centered on State Representative Joe Robbins of District 75-A.

When the meeting was over, the party had voted unanimously to denounce Robbins and issued a statement urging him not to seek re-election. In effect, they cut all ties with Robbins and said they would try to thwart any bid he might make for re-election in any way they could.

The action came the same day The University Daily carried an interview with Robbins. In the interview, Robbins was critical of politicians in general, and the Lubbock County Republicans in particular.

JAY ROSSER

The Executive Committee, which met Tuesday, apparently took it as a slap in the face. It pertains to a basic law of human nature that has gradually developed into a time-worn cliché, "never bite the hand that feeds you."

It is doubtful that the Republican group took the following statement as praising, but instead as indicative of the individual who has caused them a lot of concern since his election.

"They (the Republicans) have always been an exclusive society that meets once a month devoting their time to patting themselves on the back and saying how ideologically pure we are."

Sure, that irked them quite a bit, but that is not what they gave as the major reason for pulling their support from Robbins.

They claimed, following the Tuesday meeting, that much of Robbins goals and ideologies are not consistent with those of the Lubbock County Republicans.

Specifically, the group was irked by the statement Robbins made in the interview concerning a state income tax:

"What I'm getting at is that it naturally leads to a state income tax based on a person's ability to pay. I think the thing that had been misunderstood was that I was talking about an additional tax. I'm not talking about that at all. We are talking about the state income tax replacing the property tax, period."

Robbins is the first individual the local Republicans have succeeded in getting to Austin. It takes a lot of politicking to get an individual elected, and you do not make friends easily when you talk about the wrong things. To the Republican Party, taxes are the wrong thing to talk about.

Nevermind that Robbins' ideas concerning the state income tax are not all that bad. It is something you just don't talk about prior to an election year.

One problem Robbins has had in the past is the fact that he seems to have his mouth in motion before his mind is in gear. He just does not give enough thought to what he wants to say. Discussions about a state income tax could possibly be the best thing to hit this state since Lubbock first discovered cotton.

A state income tax could actually lower overall taxes. One of the most unfair ways to levy a tax is on the basis of property. Property tax cases have been taken through every court level there is, including the US Supreme Court.

It is the basis for school funding. Individuals in some districts have a higher property value level than other districts, thus their schools get more money. More money means more services for their particular district. Other districts suffer.

With all the commitments Texas has made to education, surely we do not mean for services or funding to be given on such a disproportionate basis.

What I'm saying is this. The Lubbock County Republicans have rather closed minds. Granted, Robbins might not have presented his state income tax plan fully prepared, but it is wrong for the group to disown him for his views on the matter.

Robbins committed political suicide. He has no one to blame but himself.

Robbins is a peculiar individual though. Many of the things he says make a great deal of sense. He just says the right things at the wrong times.

But Robbins may have best written his own political obituary in his UD interview:

"I'm never going to be a politician and if you've got to be a politician to be a representative they can take it and stick it. . ."

In reply: You do, you do, and they did. Have a good day. JR

DeBusk puzzled by gruesome incident at Memorial Circle

Manuel DeBusk, Dallas attorney and Tech alumnus, is completely mystified as to why he was singled out by the unknown person or persons who left the severed head and disembowled carcass of a hog, along with a copy of the University Daily, at Memorial Circle early Tuesday morning.

University Police patrolman Juan M. Gomez discovered the animal's remains about 7:45 a.m. Tuesday when he came to the circle to raise the flags.

According to Gomez's report, the hog's head was resting atop the Memorial Stone between the two flag poles. Underneath the animal's head was a copy of the August 29 University Daily open to a page 4 story about four distinguished Tech alumni.

DeBusk, who also served as a Tech regent several years ago, was one of the alumni named in the story. His picture was covered with a felt-tipped pen "X" and the words "DEATH" and "SLA" were scribbled above the photographs.

In a phone interview with The University Daily, DeBusk said he had no idea why his picture was chosen by the perpetrators of the bizarre hog mutilation.

"It could be a hangover from the time when I was on the board," he said. "The stands I took made friends and enemies."

"I once was hung in effigy by the students but that's okay. It's a free country."

DeBusk said the incident did not bother him. "If someone disagrees with me, that's fine," he said.

And he said he is planning to attend this year's distinguished alumni dinner despite the strange occurrence.

"I hadn't even thought of changing my plans," he said. "I'm coming this year like I have in past years."

"This incident is probably just some little prank," DeBusk said. "I think you people are making a mountain out of a molehill."

Tom Wicker Off the rails

(c) 1977 N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — When the Senate gets back to work after its summer recess, it will take up an administration energy program that the American people apparently do not believe is necessary. That's the sad conclusion to be drawn from a New York Times — CBS poll in which 57 per cent of the respondents said they did not believe the energy situation was as bad as President Carter said it was, and 49 per cent suggested that the "crisis" was only a plot to get higher prices for oil and gas companies.

So much wishful thinking suggests that neither Carter's leadership nor the program he has put forward has as yet made the kind of demands on the citizenry that would force them to realize the seriousness of the energy situation.

He did call the other day for enforcement of the 55-m.p.h. speed limit as a gasoline - saving measure. Combined with the gradual elimination of gas - guzzlers, that would make a considerable difference in the nation's profligate consumption of gasoline in private automobiles.

But the Carter energy program offers no incentives or penalties designed to get people out of automobiles altogether and into mass transit or longer - haul rail facilities. To top this failure, Amtrak — quasi - governmental National Rail Passenger Corp., which runs such intercity trains as there are — has announced extensive cuts in service and a rise in fares. Obviously, the left hand knoweth not what the right hand doeth.

Cutting service and raising fares is the classic pattern by which ridership on any transit system is inevitably reduced. Those were the steps the private railroad companies took when they were trying to kill off passenger service, an effort in which they mostly succeeded; so it's ironic in the extreme to see Amtrak, which Congress established to rescue passenger service, embarking on the same course.

It's even more ironic in the midst of the energy crisis — which so many erroneously believe is not a crisis at all — that this energy - saving mode of transportation is being cut back instead of extended. Why should anyone believe the crisis is real when such contradictions are permitted?

Worse, Amtrak has not been failing; in fact, it has been extending its passenger train network, improving its equipment and schedules, and attracting increased ridership (up from 16.6 to 18.6 million annually). But the revenues do not as yet cover expenses, making federal subsidy necessary. And for fiscal 1978, beginning next month, Congress inexplicably reduced Amtrak's fund request from $534.1 million to $488.5 million.

Since Amtrak had added major routes this year, the 1978 fiscal year appropriation is, in effect, a cut from the $482.6 million subsidy for 1977. How the deep thinkers in Congress reconcile that with the new taxes and restrictions that will be decreed in the energy program will be painful to watch.

The announced service cuts will affect 26 states but appear to be concentrated on the Boston - Washington line along which, to complete the absurdity, the federal government is spending hundreds of millions to rebuild the so-called Northeast Corridor roadbed. These cuts

"may well destroy what's left" of Connecticut's passenger service, Gov. Ella Grasso said; they will also reduce weekend runs on one of Amtrak's most successful projects, the Metroliner between New York and Washington.

Even so, the announced cutbacks will account for only $28 million of the shortfall in subsidies and revenues that Amtrak faces for 1978. Other cuts may have to be made and Amtrak says, a prime candidate is the Floridian, which now provides service — albeit not very good — between Chicago and Miami.

The Floridian loses about $9.5 million a year, illustrating another of Amtrak's problems — the private railroads. The train could pick up major additional ridership and revenue if it were routed through Atlanta, the traditional Southern transportation hub. But the Louisville and Nashville won't let Amtrak use its line from Chattanooga to Atlanta, owing to heavy freight traffic, and the Southern Railway would permit the use of tracks it controls only if Amtrak puts about $20 million into upgrading the line. Amtrak obviously doesn't have the money.

In the West, for another example, Amtrak may sue the Missouri Pacific Railroad to force decent service and schedules on the Inter-American, which Mo - Pac runs on much of the important route from Chicago through St. Louis and north - south across Texas to Laredo on the Mexican border. Mo-Pac operation has made the Inter - American legendary for lateness, slowness and surliness.

On top of such problems, the reduced federal subsidy, forcing service cuts and fare increases, is nothing less than weird. How do Carter and Congress expect ever to convince the public that there's an energy crisis — much less that they know how to cope with it?

Placement service aids graduates

For many students at Tech this will be their last year in the role of college student and they will soon begin playing the role of "Job Seeker."

Many of these job seekers haven't taken advantage of the Tech Career Planning and Placement Service that offers free advice and referrals to any Tech student, alumni, or faculty member.

Any student that is within a year of graduation may go to the Career and Placement Center and complete a file. In the file, the student lists completed courses and names several references. Completing the file in the center allows students to interview on campus with representatives from various businesses.

Businesses often call the placement center with specific job openings. From the files, the center can refer names of students whose qualifications fit the employer's requirements. The employer is then able to contact the student.

Students desiring on-campus interviews need to sign up at the placement center for an interview time before the employer is scheduled to arrive on campus.

The center also offers a credentials service and will keep a student's file for 10 years after graduation. This service makes it easier for a future employer to obtain a graduate's records.

For the student, the center keeps a Career Library that lists general information about major companies. This helps the student to become familiar with background information on an employer before an interview with them.

According to Truman Bell, acting director of career placement, "Students have to sell themselves, the placement office just acts as a catalyst between the students and the businesses."

Full-time non-degree job vacancies for Tech students and their spouses may be located on a board outside of the placement office. The placement office has a new location in room 152 of the Administration Building.

All part-time jobs on or off campus are handled by the Financial Aids Office in West Hall.

Solicitation tops police investigation

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles about crime prevention on campus. Matt Matthews, director of training and investigation for the University Police, has gathered information on crimes on campus ranging from magazine soliciting to bicycle theft to dormitory break-ins. Magazine soliciting in the residence halls will be discussed in the first part. Matthews will be teaching a series of self defense classes beginning Saturday in Wall Hall.

By KANDIS GATEWOOD
UD Reporter

"Soon as we find out that they are here, we track them down and kick them out."

Matt Matthews, director of training and investigation for the University Police, explained in the above statement how the campus police try to keep solicitors out of the residence halls and off campus when the Student Association has not given approval to the solicitors.

At the first of the year, the residence halls are hit by magazine salesmen trying to rip-off the student, Matthews said.

The problem involves underhanded sales practices, he said. The salesmen sell subscriptions for as many years as possible, and the students end up paying twice the going price.

Sometimes the student unknowingly signs a seven-year subscription for his dormitory room and cannot stop the subscription in four years.

Last year, one group was selling pornographic magazines in a women's residence hall.

The male salesmen were told to leave by the residence hall personnel, and no formal charges were filed, Matthews said.

However, if the charges had been filed, the salesmen could have been sent to prison because the material was pornographic, Matthews said.

Soliciting without a permit can fall under two classifications. It can be a Class C misdemeanor, which could be a fine up to $200, or a Class B misdemeanor, which could be a fine up to $1,000 and 90 days in jail, Matthews said.

The Class B misdemeanor is for soliciting in a habitation, such as a dormitory room.

Two things should be done if the student is bothered by unauthorized solicitors, Matthews said. "First, don't commit yourself to buying anything, and secondly, call us (University Police) as quickly as you can," Matthews said.

should not say, 'Hey, wait here while I go call the police,'" Matthews said.

But the residents have not been pressing charges against the salesmen. The police have not been able to catch the salesmen because the residents are not calling in the information as soon as possible, Matthews said.

Inserting magazine ads under dorm doors is normally permitted because the customer is buying directly from the company. Other solicitors often stand outside the University Center. Most of them turn out to be outsiders looking for a rip-off, Matthews said.

Matthews said the number of solicitors on campus is not what it could be and most people ignore them.

"Ordinarily, we first ask the solicitor to leave," he said. "If they come back, we get stricter because they are trespassing then."

Sweet Chariot.
I'm an Air Force officer and this is my sweet chariot. When I visit home people are happy to see me. And proud they say I'm doing my part in the community by showing the young people and the adults that you really can make it. You really can get your share of A Great Way of Life.
I also feel good about my position in the Air Force community. I'm a leader there, too. I'm someone the other brothers and sisters I meet in the service can look to. And it reassures them to know they have a voice in Air Force matters that concern them.
The Air Force needs more leaders: pilots, aircrew members, math majors, science and engineering majors. You might be one of them and the best way to find that out is in an Air Force ROTC program. There are two and four-year programs. Scholarship and non-scholarship. Why not look into all of them and see if one fits your plans? It's worth it, brother.

Blue Maguey cactus hearts ripe and ready for distilling at Tequila Cuervo's La Rojeña plant.

Since 1795 Cuervo Gold has been made in only one way. And in only one place.

In Tequila. Where the pampered Blue Maguey plant still flourishes amidst the rich, volcanic soil and perfect climate as it has since 1795.

Where over 182 years of tradition is still a way of life. This is what makes Cuervo Gold special. Versatile and adaptable. Neat, on the rocks, with a splash of soda, in a perfect Sunrise or Margarita, Cuervo Gold will bring you back to a time when quality ruled the world.

Cuervo. The Gold standard since 1795.

Women attracted to small rears

SWANSEA, Wales (AP) - Mr. Muscle who struts along the beach flexing biceps and kicking sand in Skinny Weakling's face is no longer Betty Bathing Beauty's ideal man, says an American psychologist who specializes in studying love.

The traditional He-Man ideal glorified on everything from celluloid to cereal boxes is a myth today, says Dr. Sally Beck, a professor at Butler University in Indianapolis.

Dr. Beck conducted a study involving 115 female undergraduates who were shown a series of male and female profile silhouettes. She hoped to determine which kinds of physique carry the most attraction.

The results of the survey indicate women are most attracted by men with small derrieres, Dr. Beck told 200 participants at the International Conference on Love and Attraction here Wednesday.

"Gentlemen," she told male delegates, "you may be sitting on your greatest asset."

Women most prefer a moderate-sized male with small buttocks, she said, while "the Mr. Atlas physique is given only slight endorsement."

Her 1977 study supports previous research which indicated only 1 per cent of women interviewed report sexual arousal when seeing muscular chests, shoulders and arms, said the psychologist.

She was one of nearly a dozen persons who presented papers on the second day of the four-day conference attended by scientists and academics from Europe and North America.

"Large males are preferred by women who enjoy sports, physical activity, and see themselves as less traditionally feminine," said Dr. Beck. "Moderate-sized males appeal to more traditionally feminine women who have interests centered in the home. The small male is selected by reserved women who come from higher backgrounds where thinness is highly valued."

Women attracted to men with small bottoms and large chests have a desire to achieve, especially academically, she added, while women who prefer men with smaller chests and legs tend to be passive and indecisive.

Her study also indicated women admire other women who have small, trim figures, while a similar study conducted on male undergraduates indicates men are most attracted to women who have generous bust sizes.

Bazaar to feature original artwork

Fiesta '77, a benefit bazaar featuring original arts, crafts and handwork, is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday on the park grounds of the Municipal Garden and Arts Center at 4215 University Ave.

Artists and craftsmen from West Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma will exhibit numerous items including paintings and drawings from all media. These and other art works will be on sale during the bazaar. Booths will be set up for the sale of the works.

Garden and heritage groups will sell plants, home canning, quilts, needleworks and antiques and there will be entertainment during the day.

Auditions open for 'South Pacific'

Male chorus members are needed for the Civic Lubbock Inc. production of "South Pacific" to be staged Oct. 21 and 22.

Chorus members must be able to sing and move well, though formal dance training is not required, according to publicist Evin Mires. Students interested in auditioning should call Mires at 747-9409 for more information.

"South Pacific" will be presented in the Civic Center

Theater and directed by Ric Brame. The show's music director is Charlotte Greson and choreography will be directed by Steven Mann.

Roberto Silvano has been cast as Emile De Becque, Janis Geddes as Nellie Forbush, Evin Mires as Lt. Joseph Cable, Tom Francis as Luther Billis and Doreen Hutton as Bloody Mary. Also cast are Chi-Chi King as Ngana and Shannon Adams as Lia.

Alien amnesty spurs smuggling hike

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Forgery, bondage and drugs are by-products of an unparalleled smuggling operation of Mexican aliens into the United States spawned by rumors of presidential amnesty. Authorities said that in Texas alone last week agents confiscated 23 counterfeit alien resident cards, nine altered cards and seven more that were stolen and given to aliens who resembled the original owner's photo. Also, 525 border crossing cards used by aliens to shop and visit within 25 miles of the border were picked up because their owners abused their privileges.

Jerry O'Connor, deputy director of the El Paso Intelligence Center, a federal unit that supplies information to all border law enforcement agencies, said Wednesday that Mexican-U.S. border points from Texas to California broke up 8,392 separate smuggling operations that handled 49,165 aliens during 1976.

"This thing is skyrocketing," he said when asked about the misunderstood amnesty rumors. "There's no question about it having an impact. The Mexican border mayors are all complaining because it hurts their economy and living conditions."

President Carter's proposal has yet to be considered by Congress. If passed, it would allow aliens who have been in the country at least one year to remain under certain resident classifications.

But O'Connor said the program has been misinterpreted by Mexicans who are willing to try almost anything to enter the country. The result, he said, has been a tremendous boon to smugglers, many of whom have deliberately misinterpreted the amnesty program to boost business.

"They're dealing in human lives," he said. "One group we know of has gotten into smuggling cocaine, Colombian aliens and now they are even supplying counterfeit identification cards. They are also counterfeiting American money and selling it to the aliens who don't know any better."

O'Connor said some aliens are virtually "kept in bondage" by the smugglers until they can be dumped at various "drop houses" where they begin making their own ways into the country's interior. He said the smugglers have been charging up to $75 per alien per day to keep from turning them over to U.S. authorities.

Law test slated

Midnight Friday is the final deadline for mailing applications for the first Law School Admissions Test (LSAT) date for 1977-78. The first test date is Oct. 8.

TV documentary to study 'Cuckoo's Nest'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you saw "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and wondered if the movie accurately depicted life in a mental hospital, you'll definitely want to see public TV's "Inside the Cuckoo's Nest."

Filmed at Oregon State Hospital, where the 1974 movie starring Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher was made, the show's aim is to study if what we saw in the movie was the McCoy or merely good drama.

Aiding the study with occasional narration and explanation is Dr. Dean Brooks, who played the head of the movie's mental hospital and in real life is superintendent of the Oregon State Hospital in Salem.

I suspect some in his field will view his participation in tonight's show as a belated effort to counter whatever bad image of mental hospitals Nicholson's powerful movie caused.

But I'd call it a valuable effort to help lay viewers understand the actual treatment of mental illness, at least in his hospital, and in the process show how it differs from the make-believe of the movie.

The program starts slowly, with various comments by several supporting actors in the movie about their experiences making the film. Miss Fletcher, who won an Oscar for her portrayal of stern, authoritarian Nurse Ratched, also discusses her role briefly.

Bear with all this, because the show immediately improves as it juxtaposes key scenes from "Cuckoo's Nest" with what KQED's film crew shot at the hospital.

Example: The movie showed patients docilely lined up for their daily medication. They weren't told what it was, but it clearly was dispensed to control them, not help them.

The "Inside" view: Patients know what they're getting, why and discuss it with a hospital "treatment team" of experts.

One of the strongest, most terrifying scenes of "Cuckoo's Nest" showed Nicholson receiving electro-shock treatments.

Strong drama, but technically wrong, Dr. Brooks says. The patients don't get the treatment cold, as in the movie, but are first anesthetized and given drugs to reduce convulsions.

An ensuing scene of such a treatment is an extremely disturbing sight, but infinitely more humane than what folks saw in "Cuckoo's Nest."

You may worry that "Inside" grossly invades the privacy of the patients it shows. But KQED says no filming was done until the patients, their doctors and the patients' families all gave permission.

Art display to feature varied works

Migrant crews remain living in 'slavery'

(c) 1977 N.Y. Times News Service
 BENSON, N.C. — Despite a substantial tightening of the nation's 14-year-old migrant worker protection laws in 1974, many migrants continue to live in squalor and work under conditions that legal aid officials here describe as little better than slavery.

Migrant field crews continue to be drawn together from society's disinherited — alcoholics recruited off the streets, old men with no place to go, illegal aliens who cannot complain for fear of deportation, even the retarded and insane, lured off the grounds of mental institutions.

Once recruited, many of them are held in virtual bondage through intimidation, threats of beatings or because they find, after months of work, that they owe money to their crew leaders for meals, housing, cigarettes and wine. "It's like slavery — it is slavery," said George Carr, a young lawyer with Florida Rural Legal Services Inc., a Congressionally funded agency that is looking into conditions here. A number of migrant crew leaders operating in Florida also bring crews to North Carolina. "The laws are generally adequate," he added, "but nobody enforces them; you might as well not have laws. The migrants don't have any power, they don't vote, they don't have any money or organization, and they're kept too ignorant and scared to complain to anyone." Visits to camps, talks with migrants and interviews with officials have disclosed that while some migrant camps were clean and passably operated, much of the migrant system is still characterized by extraordinary human exploitation and degradation. Living conditions are crowded and filthy. In several instances, crews of 40 workers rely on two outdoor privies, one for men and another for women. Single men, many of them alcoholics, are housed in the same buildings with migrant families. Families of six and more sometimes occupy a single 9-by-9 foot room with two beds. Garbage, cans and bottles litter some sites, garbage cans are uncovered, flies swarm and doors and windows are often without screens or are protected only by badly damaged screens. Beds, particularly those slept in by the alcoholics, are sheetless, stained by sweat and urine. The worst housing ranges from concrete block bunkers with bare concrete floors to ramshackle frame outbuildings, some with holes in the floor and walls. Cleanliness varies from passable to filthy and foul-smelling. Health inspections are sporadic and have failed to correct the worst abuses. Although Federal laws require registration of migrant crew leaders and routine monitoring, the laws are not enforced. Two crew leaders operating in the Benson area have previously been convicted of violating post-Civil War anti-slavery statutes mandating penalties for involuntary servitude and peonage. Some crew leaders operate under registrations granted to relatives, and a number apparently do not register at all.

Many migrant workers routinely become indebted to crew leaders. Although the practice is illegal, many crew leaders charge 75 cents for a pack of cigarettes that cost 30 cents in North Carolina, and as much as $2.50 for an 80-cent pint of wine. Many illiterate migrants have no idea how much pay is due them, and end up owing hundreds of dollars at the end of the season. They must thus go on to the next job.

Besides economic intimidation, some migrants are kept docile through threats of beatings and are rarely allowed off the camp property. Visitors are kept out by no-trespassing signs.

Local field labor is being displaced by migrant crews, which are both cheaper and easier to control because they can be held within the camps, totally dependent on the crew leaders. The hardest working and most easily exploited workers are the illegal aliens, and 500 to 1,500 "illegals," as they are called, are reported working in the Benson area.

The lower estimate comes from a Mexican-American who cannot find work or decent housing because of illegals. The higher comes from James Wells, head of the area office of the Employment Security Commission.

At the heart of the migrant system is the "crew boss" or labor contractor, who is usually a black. The crew boss recruits workers for growers, transports them from job to job and runs the migrant crew camp, providing most of the necessities of life.

In most cases, he is both the boss and the sole provider. Money paid by the grower for the crops the workers pick goes through the crew boss's hands and he keeps a commission, as much as half the total. What is left is supposed to go to the worker, although in practice the crew leader's bills for necessities can exceed the money the migrant earns, keeping him in eternal peonage.

Upsets shake-up high school rankings

By The Associated Press
Sherman, Mount Pleasant, Yoakum, Poth and Wheeler, the top ranked teams in The Associated Press preseason schoolboy football poll, held on to their top billings after the first week of the season but there were some shakeups below them.

started, created the biggest waves by knocking off highly touted Bryan 38-7 to knock the Vikings from their No. 2 preseason ranking out of the top 10.

SAN ANGELO'S performance earned the Bobcats the No. 8 spot in this week's poll.

Mount Pleasant polled 10 first place votes and easily held its top billing in 3A but two other teams stumbled.

Andrews, ranked No. 3 last week, fought Class 4A Big Spring to a 14-14 tie and dropped to ninth this week. Dickinson, ranked sixth last week, disappeared after a 36-35 loss to Huntsville.

BROWNWOOD, which defeated 4A Abilene Cooper 15-6 and Gainesville, have moved into a share for the lead in 3A.

Rockdale, No. 7, and North Lamar, No. 8, were Class 2A losers and both dropped out of this week's list. Their replacements as the Nos. 9 and 10 teams are Caldwell and Columbus.

Yoakum continued to rule the 2A ranks with a 28-12 victory over Edna.

Poth blanked Yorktown 30-0 to protect its Class A billing but Mart, tied for third last week, and Dilley, No. 9, suffered first week setbacks. Mart fell to 10th this week after losing to 2A McGregor 20-13 and Dilley disappeared after a 26-3 loss to Laredo United.

GRAPELAND MOVED in as the No. 10 team in A.

The biggest shakeup came in Class B where only three of the top 10 teams escaped unbeaten. Top-ranked Wheeler shutout Shamrock 27-0 to keep the No. 1 ranking, No. 3 Italy beat Wortham 22-14 and moved up to second this week.

D'Hanis, No. 9 last week, was the only other winner in B and advanced to fourth this week. Five new teams were moved in this week. They are Groom, Motley County, Ropesville, Roby and Axtell, ranked No. 6 through 10.

Sherman remains top 4A team

Astros on streak, too late this year

HOUSTON (AP) — The League's Western Division. Houston Astros, after belting The Reds, however, are not the Reds in two straight seriously this season but Cincinnati's second place Manager Sparky Anderson standing in the National believes they will be a threat next year. "Our goal is catching the Reds," said Joe Ferguson, noting the Astros had won 11 of its last 12 games as of Tuesday.

"I'd say they are a contender for next year. Look what they've done this year and they got almost nothing out of Cesar Cedeno and Joaquin Andujar has been hurt since the All Star game.

"We've got 25 games to do it but we have to beat them every game. And we've got to beat everyone else every game too." Houston trailed Cincinnati by only 4½ games after Tuesday's 5-1 victory while Cincinnati's sights remained on division leading Los Angeles. "They (Houston) can't catch us this year," said Anderson.

Cedeno has been hitting a .240 clip. "We felt if we could beat the Dodgers and the Reds we'd be solid contenders," said Astros first baseman Bob Watson. "We did that but we forgot about beating the other teams."

On the run

season. In the next two months the trio along with four other Raider harriers will compete in nine meets ranging four to six miles each. (Photo by Dennis Copeland)

Harriers open season

With a roster which contains a host of returning lettermen and a crop of promising newcomers, and a schedule that includes meets from Stillwater, Ok. to Spokane, Wash., the Tech cross country team under the direction of Coach Bob Hamrin, begins its 1977 fall campaign.

Among the veterans for the Raider harriers is senior Marc Johnson. With bests of 52:20 for 10 miles and Tech's second best three-mile at 14:17, Johnson could be heading for the best season ever.

Also returning to the Tech squad is 1975 State High School mile champion Ricky McCormick. Last spring McCormick, a junior this season, landed a personal best of 4:09 in the mile and anchored his distance medley relay team to a second-place finish at the USTFF Indoor Championships in Oklahoma City.

ANOTHER RETURNEE is sophomore Greg Lautenslager, the 1976 State

High School champion. As a freshman at Tech Lautenslager set school records in the indoor two mile (9:10.8) and the outdoor three mile (13:51.6).

Sophomore Randy Yates is also back for the Tech cross country team. Last track season Yates darted to 1:52.8 in the half mile and was a member of the school record setting and third-place in conference finishing mile relay team.

HEADING THE list of newcomers for the Raiders is Tony Lozano, a transfer from Southwest Texas State. In preparation for the upcoming season Lozano logged up to 140 miles a week in training over the summer.

Also a newcomer is freshmen Robert Wilson of Midland. At the 1977 State High School Track Championships, Wilson's 4:15.5 clocking in the mile run earned him third place.

Another freshman is Amarillo's Richard Postma, whose 4:18 mile at the regional track meet missed qualifying for the state championships by a mere 15 yards.

ONE OTHER freshman on the Tech cross country roster is Mark Hull, a product of Fort Worth's Southwest High School. Appointed by head track coach Corky Oglesby to coach this year's cross country team is Bob Hamrin. Hamrin is a member of the West Texas Running Club.

The Tech cross country team will open their 1977 season with a 4 mile race in Plainview Thursday. The remainder of the season will include meets in Stillwater, Okla. Oct. 1; Arlington Oct. 7; Canyon Oct. 15; Lubbock Oct. 22; Austin Oct. 27; the Conference meet in Waco Nov. 7; NCAA District meet in Georgetown Nov. 14; and the NCAA meet in Spokane, Wash. Nov. 21. Each of the final three meets will consume approximately six miles.

Red Raiders' confidence high with injuries at a new low

New recruit?

By FRED HERBST
UD Associate Sports Editor
With two days of injury free practice behind them, the Raider footballers seem to have risen to the level of confidence that they possessed going into the fall workouts.
"There was a mental letdown when there was so many injuries," head coach

Steve Sloan said. "But with everyone coming back, the confidence has returned."
Sophomore Kenny Walter (6-4, 228) has been tabbed by Sloan as a starter on the offensive line. Walter, who will be starting his first game for the Raiders against Baylor, will replace the injured Kenny Thiel, who is still recuperating from a severely sprained ankle. Sophomore James Hadnot (6-2, 236) has been elevated to the number one tight end position over senior Gregg Adkins.

According to Sloan, the move was instigated because of the practice time Adkins missed due to injuries (shoulder, knee and neck) and to the excellent fall workouts Hadnot had in Adkins' absence.

Wednesday's workout was termed a little more successful than the two earlier workouts this week, according to Sloan. "We had better concentration," he said. "We ran through our plans (for Baylor) pretty good... We also ran through them (drills) injury free."
Safety Greg Frazier, who injured a knee in Monday's workouts, has missed both Tuesday and Wednesday workouts. "They (the trainers) keep telling me he's going to be alright," Sloan said. If Frazier cannot start against the Bears, sophomore Larry Flowers will fill in.
