CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM

Recently the head of one of the departments in the college sent the Toreador Staff a personal letter in which he called our attention to the fact we were not printing enough of a certain kind of news. Although the letter was very plain spoken, so to speak, it was appreciated and the staff believes it will profit by the department head's suggestion.

The Toreador is an institution representing the student body of the Texas Technological college. In covering the news of the entire campus during the coming school year, it will be necessary to have the cooperation of the student body. If something happens that is of interest to the students, it should be reported. The Toreador is the students' paper and not the staff's.

Constructive criticism will at all times be welcomed by members of the staff. We admit our failing in putting out a paper which will please every one, but offer no alibis or excuses for the editions so far this year. So give us your criticism, and let's all work together for a bigger and better Toreador.

FRESHMEN AT PEP RALLYS

Although there is no doubt that the spirit being manifested at our pep rallies and at the football games is improving, the student body is far from showing those loyal Matadors the spirit that it should.

For one thing, more freshmen should attend these pep rallies. Who remembers when even only one, two or three years ago, when about as many freshmen attended these rallies as did students from the other three classes?

It's a certain thing that if the freshmen are not gotten into the habit of attending rallies while a freshman, they will not drift into attending while an upperclassman. It is a well known fact that few freshmen change their ways after they become upperclassmen. If the fish are brought out to these rallies and gotten into the habit of attending, then they've at least made a start toward showing the right spirit that it takes to make a college what it should be.

I WANT A REGULAR MAN

I want a regular man.
He needn't be classic of pan,
But I want a He-one whose muscles are strong,
A man who can be one whatever goes wrong.
He may be a wise guy, he may be a hick,
So long as he knows how to love me and stick.
I want a regular
Two-fisted plan.
Ready-to-fight-for-me, swing - a mean-right-for-me MAN!
I want a regular man.
Finishing what he began
Not too darn clever and not too darn dumb,
One to be ever both lover and chum.
Someone to coddle a bit now and then,
A kid with the wife but a man with the men.
I want a regular
Broad-shoulder span,
Durable, wearable, cheerful and bearable MAN!
I want a regular man,
Whom I will grab if I can
And when I've got him (and get him I will)
I won't allot him to some other fell.
I'll keep him comfy—but puzzled a bit,
So he won't have any longing to sit.
I'll be a regular joy of his life,
I'll be a wise, little sighs little cries, little
Regular guy's "Little wife!"
—Selected.

IN TECH SOCIETY

City Pan-Hellenic Meets On Saturday

The City Pan-Hellenic Club will hold its first meeting for this year at the home of Mrs. Richard L. Douglas, 2123 16th street, on Saturday, October 19, at 3 p. m. The meeting will be a "sorority rush party" and sorority women are looking forward to it with enthusiasm.

All members of national social sororities who are attending Tech are invited to attend. Reservations can be made by calling Miss Erica Peters, phone 1801-J.

There are twelve national sororities represented in Lubbock. Kappa Alpha Theta leads this year with eight members. Several sororities have but one representative. Four meetings are held each year. This year they are to be on October 13, December 13, March 14 and May 9. The groups entertaining for the first meeting will be Phi Mu, Zeta Tau Alpha, Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Alpha Xi, and Alpha Chi Omega. The form of entertainment is left to the hostesses group, so each meeting is different.

Mrs. Hazel Blodgett is the Home Economics teacher at Slaton.

Aggies Give Apron And Overall Party

The Aggie "mule barn" was the scene of a truly old-fashioned, country party, on Friday night, October 12, when the campus "Farmers" entertained the Home Economics girls with their annual "apron and overall" party.

Boys and girls, clad in the accustomed cotton-patch and kitchen attire, were seen hailing old "Bessie" and "Sal" as they drew rumbling hay wagons up and down the main boulevards of Lubbock Friday night. The two wagons left the college campus at 7:00 p. m., one going down 18th to Q and back up 14th, and the other down 16th and back up Main. They arrived on the campus again at 8:00 o'clock, well loaded with students.

Colonel Sparkman served as master of ceremonies. The first event of the evening was a welcome address to the Home Ecs. by Jason Gordon, president of the Agg club. Hazel Gruver, president of the Home Economic club, gave a response to Mr. Gordon, in which she announced the annual party, to be given on November 15, in return to the Agg's compliment.

Stunts and games followed, and there was even a revival of the old Virginia reel.

The party was attended by several hundred students. Faculty members present were: Dean Margaret W. Weeks, Jonnie McCrery, Mable Dean Erwin, Dean A. H. Leidigh, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Mowery, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Bower, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Harbaugh, and Mr. H. M. Bell.

Matadors Muffle Savage War Whoop Of Indians To Win By 10-0 Count

Speed Moffett's Pass To Howell Accounts For Lone Touchdown Of Indian Game

Buddy Brothers Adds Point To Touchdown And Kicks Field Goal

With a savage cry for Matador blood, the Indian tribe from McMurry College swooped down on the Tech Matadors for their annual raid Saturday. After an hour the Redskins were repulsed, and again they returned to their wigwams, in Abilene, defeated. It was by a 10-0 margin that the Matadors turned back the Indians. Although they were the underdogs and Tech managed to score early in the game, the Braves fought with an untiring spirit that was remarkable. The fray, as a whole, was somewhat dull, due to the fact that the Matador offense was below par and the numerous penalties slowed the game considerably. However, the game had its tense moments.

Matadors Score Early
A pass, Moffett to Howell, accounted for six points early in the first quarter. It was a perfect pass that was thrown by the shifty and speedy little back. Not over the goal line but near enough that, when just as Howell gathered it in and several tacklers crashed him, the ball was barely over the line, making the first and only touchdown of the game.

Buddy Kicks
The skillful kicking of Buddy Brothers won the other four points. Buddy kicked the point after touchdown and then later, in the fourth period, booted the ball squarely through the upright from the 17 yard line for an additional three points. His punting during the game was good regardless of the strong southern gale that continued almost through the game.

The McMurry aggregation carried the ball within scoring distance only twice during the game, failing to count in both attempts. Somehow, the Indians seemed best in their territory and when the chance to score came, they were met with a stubborn Matador line that held for downs.

Indians Play Well
The McMurry general is due much credit. The little quarterback is none other than Mickey Pool, all T. I. A. A. back last year and in Saturday's fray, proved his ability at passing. Osborne, captain and tackle, played a nice game. Roberts, end, was a receiver of any of Pool's passes. Isaacs held down the pivot position and also did most of McMurry's punting. Other stars for the Indians were Fulkerson, McKenzie, and Taylor. Outside of Moffett and Brothers, the Matadors had no real outstanding stars. All played a nice game, although they were, undoubtedly, not up to their standard. However, the crashing drives of Doose at the line, the generalship of Woodruff and Franz, and the deadly defensive play of Captain Durham must be complimented. Vincent held down the end nicely. Darr and Ayers handled the guard positions well.

Doose Makes 35 Yards
Late in the fourth quarter, Doose, fullback broke through right tackle and side stepped and stiffened his way for thirty five yards. This was the longest run of the game. The longest pass was thrown by Pool for a distance of forty yards and Isaac, for the Indians, once punned with the wind for eighty yards.

Outside of several high spots of the game, the scrap was largely a punting duel and as a strong wind was blowing, the position on the field was an important factor. The Matadors had this advantage in the first and fourth quarter.

Held For Downs
Late in the first quarter, the Matadors advanced the ball to the Indians 8 yard line, only to be held for downs. McMurry's first chance to score came about the middle of the second quarter after they had brought the ball from the 25 yard line to the 9 yard strip. They were held for 3 downs and Pool's pass was knocked down as the ball went over to the Matadors.

Again in the third quarter, Tech advanced to the one foot line. In two attempts the Matadors failed to push it over and McMurry took the ball. Then in the last few minutes of the fourth period, an intercepted pass on the Indians own 9 yard line gave the Bull Fighters the ball. Moffett went off tackle for 6 yards and Tech was offside as the pass ended.

The McMurry Indians made nine first downs to the Matadors five. Final score: Texas Tech, 10; McMurry College, 0.

El Toro

By JAY TIMMONS

Years ago in Old Mexico Indians of the house of Aztec roamed the plains or whatnot of that rich country as the sole conquerors. Then came the Spaniards and the Matadors today flourish as the Indians once did. Saturday the same event was reenacted in the form of football teams. The mighty invasion of Indians was repulsed by eleven hard fighting Matadors and when the smoke and blaze cleared the scoreboard showed a tie of Ten to Naught. By tie I mean that ten points was just what we should have beaten since we had a scoring machine ten points better than the Indians.

Did you see Doose make that mighty charge that gave the Matadors about thirty five yards toward another touchdown. With the charge of a bull maddened by the sight of red, he hit a perfectly opened off tackle hole and with the grace of a collier dancer side stepped something under a jillion would be tacklers, but being slowed down by cautious safety man was caught from behind by an Indian. Better look next time Doose.

Howell our hats come off to you and to the mighty little man, Moff who tossed that pass making six of the ten points. It didn't take long to make that touchdown. Buddy we were glad to see that toe of yours in action for the other four points. Nice work Fellows.

Nevertheless the victory with the Indians was not without mishap. Dennis Vincent received an injury in the shape of a broken collar bone while trying to stem the tide of six or seven Indians trying to come around his end. Rip lived up to his name, he really ripped their wide open in clean style. Here's hoping the tragic ending of that game will not finish him for the rest of the season.

T. C. U. dedicated their stadium in a large way when they defeated the Arkansas Razorbacks in a one sided affair ending forty to nothing. It looks like those boys mean business in the cow city. However, I am optimistic enough to think that their hopes of no defeats on their own ground will be broken around the 25th. It depends upon the students backing a great deal when the Matadors enter the Frog's city. Let's show them that fight is our middle name on the side lines because they will get a big bite of fight on the turf.

Some people do not appreciate the fact that the yell leaders plead with the students to get the utmost out of them. As a whole the spirit on the sidelines was excellent, but there is always that comeback man who thinks that he knows more about what should be done than the yell leaders. If he will just get up at the pep rallies and express his sentiments I am sure that the yell leaders will lend an earnest ear.

The shirt tail parade Saturday night was well attended by freshmen. The two leading Hotels were the scenes of boisterous noises and out of town guests were well impressed with the fact that Tech not only has a winning team, but also a spirited student body. Thanks Freshmen.

It has been suggested that those of the weaker sex buy referees whistles to go on dates with our fighting Matadors since they are trained so well to stop when the referee's whistle sounds. Not that the Matadors are not perfect gentlemen but just a word of precaution often prevails a news column (with a thousand pardons to real news column writers).

I take this opportunity to congratulate the McMurry supporters who revealed a spirit which could not help but be admired. Their group of men and women made a showing that carried onto the field in a very noticeable manner. Although their band seemed to strike up a tune at the same time the Tech band was playing once in awhile, their spirit was great.

Next Friday will find the city of Lubbock with a group of gold-diggers, under the name of Texas School of Mines, invading it to try their hand at eclipsing the Matadors who have been shining brightly in their last two tilts. Pep rallies for the coming event will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights. A new yell will be practiced so that the yell leaders will not be going through it some this time.

Let's start making our plans to leave on that special for Fort Worth at once. The T. C. U. bunch plan to welcome us in a big way and we would hate to disappoint them. A dance at the University Club will top the entertainment. All Tech Students will be welcome. As the banks preach to us these days, "Save your money", I want to say those words, but spend it when those tickets for Fort Worth are on hand.

Can't you just feel that pride that will leap into your heart when those Matadors come charging from their lockers onto the field at Fort Worth. It's going to be an event of no little worth. El Toro will be there with bells on and if as many go as he has heard say they're going he won't be by himself, not by half of the two thousand enrolled. Start making your plans now.

El Pleador will make it's bow the fifteenth and it will be an article about the life of some of our foremost team members. One of our collegiate artists has made an excellent character drawing of the Captain. Now anybody that has had the patience to read this once in awhile will enjoy what a more pronounced writer has to say about the sports on this campus. (Take your bow big boy; take your bow.)

While walking down the hall in Chert Case I heard someone say: "Wooly passes; Wooly passes." I opened the door expecting to see a game of miniature football taking place in the room. However, the boys were only playing a game of bridge.

Now to make all my two readers happy (Editor and Proof reader), The End.

Three Freshmen, while on their way to class last Friday, were discussing their professors.

First Slim: "See that big blue Chrysler parked over there?" Well it belongs to my English professor."
Second: "Huh, he doesn't rate at all. Why mine drives a swell Buick."
Third: (In a faint voice.) "Notice that bicycle leaning against the Ag building, that's what my prof pushes."

To Organize Class In Chinese Today

Willie: "Can I have a dime for a poor man?"
"Certainly, my boy, where is he?"
"Down the street selling ice cream."

Tech Professor Writes Book Of Early Debates On Texas Constitution

Dr. S. S. McKay Has New Data On 1875 Convention

TEXANS generally and such particular folks as newspaper editors, lawyers, school teachers, students of law and government and history and education, all will welcome the publication of the "Debates In The Texas Constitutional Convention of 1875."

This book is recently off the Texas University Press and is the work of Seth Shepard McKay, Ph. D., professor of history at Texas Technological college. Taken From Newspapers "Publication of the debates of a constitution which formed a state constitution that has been in use for more than fifty years, would seem to require no argument for its justification," so Dr. McKay declares in the preface to his book. He continues: "No official report of the debates was kept or published by the Texas Convention of 1875, and this effort to supply such a report had to draw upon the contemporary newspapers for the material presented. Of those papers the most useful was the Daily State Gazette, Austin. Other useful papers were the Austin Statesman, Dallas Herald, Galveston News, Houston Telegraph, and Panola Watchman, Carthage."

Contains 471 Pages. This book contains 471 pages and offers attractive addition to any library, both with its appearance and contents. Two thousand copies were printed as the first edition.

In explanation of the many and exceedingly long hours of laborous research necessary for compiling, arranging and editing this volume, Dr. McKay states in its preface: "The present work was undertaken while the editor was serving as Adjunct Professor of History at the University of Texas, and was begun in the suggestion of Mr. W. Winkler, Librarian of the University of Texas, and Dr. E. C. Baker, Professor of American history in the same university. I wish to acknowledge their many helpful suggestions."

He further tells that he started the work in 1925, laboring faithfully for three years and completing the index and final editing last summer.

No book prior to this one, has been published on the subject of the convention. The Texas Constitutional convention of 1875, Dr. McKay, however, published "Making the Texas Constitution of 1875," in 1924. This latter volume was his doctor of philosophy thesis in the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. McKay is the author of a three-volume book on the state's history, "Texas During The E. J. Davis Regime." He has contributed six biographies to the "Dictionary of American Biography," and has written a number of articles for historical magazines. He is the only native Texan now living in Lubbock whose biography appears in "Who's Who in America."

In Session 68 Days. The constitution convention of 1875 began on September 6, and closed on November 24, having in session 68 days. From Dr. McKay's thesis book the following is quoted: "The pro-convention papers forecast decisive victory. The election took place on August 2, a warm sultry day all over the state. The oppressive heat and the dislike to 'being compelled to squeeze through a cordon of greasy, filthy negroes to gain access to the polls' are offered as the causes of the light vote in some counties. The official totals gave the convention call a majority of 29,034 in a total vote of 90,132. This was less than one-half of the registered vote of 1875. The returns had come in very slowly, and some of the leading papers thought the governor was not bound to call the convention in session as only a minority of the voters had participated in the election. This position was held for several days, by the Galveston News, which estimated the vote as not more than one-third of the registered total. But as the totals grew and it was seen that the majority was decisive the press refrained from further comment."

Bring Surprises. The election day brought a few surprises. The Corpus Christi Gazette had urged Colonel John S. Ford to make the race as an independent candidate for the convention, and supported him in preference to the Democratic candidates named by the district convention. Colonel Ford was one of the three elected from his district. The Democratic candidates from the Houston district included Dr. Ashbel Smith, who had been very prominent in the affairs of the Republic of Texas. The Austin Statesman had gone so far as to suggest Dr. Smith as the most suitable man for chairman of the convention. The Telegraph urged the Democrats of Harris and Montgomery counties to work hard to avoid defeat at the hands of the Republicans in their district. But Colonel Smith and his colleagues were defeated by some four hundred majority, and the convention lost by a somewhat larger majority. The vote cast for governor Coke had exceeded that of Davis by more than eight hundred in this district in the election of 1875, but the apathy of the Democrats and their confidence in success without a struggle had resulted in a very small vote and a Republican victory in the normally Democratic Houston district.

Majorities Larger. "The Democratic majorities for delegates were somewhat larger than the majorities given for calling the convention. The one hundred and sixty-five counties reported included twenty-nine with reported only one vote for the convention. The Democrats elected seventy-five delegates, the Republicans fifteen. Six of the Republicans were negroes, but one of these was insane, and was replaced by a white Democrat after a special election."

The convention contained 41 farmers, 29 lawyers, and a few merchants, editors, stockmen and physicians. Many of the farmers and several of the lawyers were known to be members of the State Grange, and this gave uneasiness to some of the Democratic papers. About one-half of the delegates elected were Grangers.

Included One Man. "The list of delegates included one man, N. H. Darnell, of Tarrant county, who had been a member of the Democratic Party in the election of 1845. He was 70 years old in 1875. There were several delegates who had been members of the Secession convention of 1861: John Henry Brown, of Dallas county; George Flournoy, of Galveston; S. Stockdale, of Bell; S. Stockdale, of Calhoun; John R. Henry, of Limestone; John S. Ford, of Cameron; Joshua F. Johnson, of Titus; and John H. Reagan, of Anderson county."

The new convention contained only one member who had been a member of the Convention of 1866, convened under the reconstruction policy of President Johnson. This member was General J. W. Whitfield, of Lavaca county. There were no members of the Convention of 1869 elected in the 1875 convention. This it is said that ten delegates had had experience in a Texas constitutional convention. Some nineteen members had had experience in the Texas legislature. Among the best known of these were E. L. Doherty, of Lamar; J. W. Perry, of El Paso; E. H. Hensley, of Henderson; W. P. McLean, of Titus; E. B. Pickett, of Liberty; C. S. West, of Travis; and Jacob Weidner, of Texas county. Reagan and McLean had served in Congress, Reagan and W. B. Wright, of Lamar county, had been members of the federal congress, and Whitfield had served as a delegate in Congress from the territory of Kansas and as a member of the Tennessee legislature.

Served In Other Areas. "Four members, Darnell, Chambers, John Johnson and Lynch had served in other state legislatures. Many others among the delegates had gained recognition in other public positions. General L. S. Ross, of McLennan, later governor of Texas, was known as an Indian fighter and soldier; W. L. Crawford, of Marion, was a well known attorney, as was also Judge W. P. Ballinger, of Galveston; Charles DeMorse, of Red River, was a progressive editor, who had been mentioned for governor in the convention of 1873 which nominated Coke."

"More than a score of the delegates had been officers of high rank in the Confederate army, while three had served as officers in the Union army. Several had had judicial experience in the supreme or district courts of Texas. The people had elected a body of men worthy of the work before them."

"The earth has an elliptical shape," said Dr. Sidwell to his geology class. "Will someone tell us what 'elliptical shape' means?" A student promptly replied, "The shape of lips."

BY MILDRED PRICE. Smoking is a problem not only in Tech, for we notice the authorities at the University of Utah are having no little trouble in finding a solution for solving the same difficulty. In a recent edition of the football paper a diagram was shown designating where smoking was and was not prohibited. As to make law more emphatic, this diagram is to be placed in all student registration instructions, maps, and booklets.

Dad's Day in West Texas was designated as Friday, October 10, and was observed at West Texas State Teachers College for the first time. Every student was urged to invite his Dad to visit the college on that date, the special feature of the day being the light football game in which the Buffaloes clashed with Abilene Christian College.

Fate seemed to have marked the college at San Marcos, Texas, with disaster one day last week when the gymnasium were completely destroyed by fire. The losses, being valued between $30,000 and $40,000 were said to have been the greatest in the history of the college.

Denton Teachers College at Denton, Texas, claims the honor of being the first college in North Texas to stage after dark football contests. They have reported that all football bouts will be held at night.

And again Schreiner Institute goes "on the air." An amateur license was issued to the Radio Club last school year by the Federal Radio Commission, which gives them a privilege that few schools claim. The operator states that the club will be glad to send radio messages free of charge for Schreiner cadets to any part of the United States.

St. Elmo Powell, former student in Texas Tech, spent the week-end visiting friends in the college. Powell's home is in Memphis, Texas.

Miss Edith Bandy was the guest last week-end of her sister, Mrs. U. V. Barnard who lives at Hale Center.

Miss Ethel Jones had as her guests Saturday and Sunday, her mother and sister who live in Memphis.

Miss Ruby Ray Williamson spent the week-end in Spur with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Williamson.

Spencer Wells Gives Talk To Football Men

Meetings Held Each Sunday Afternoon At Five O'clock To Bring Business Men And Team Closer Together

"Within a few years the Matadors will be known as Lubbock's football team just as the Frog's belong to Fort Worth now," according to Spencer Wells, Sunday, when he spoke to the Varsity and Freshmen men at Cheri Casa. "The football men represent the town as well as the college," said Mr. Wells, who has been interested in Tech athletics since the college opened in 1925.

Helps In Later Life. "Football to me offers a wonderful opportunity to the young man because it teaches him to keep his head up, be smart, and gives him nerve, all of which will prove their worth after he leaves college and gets out in the business world where competition is stiffer than on the team. There are more opportunities for the athlete after graduation than for the ordinary student."

Teaches Loyalty. "We must have loyalty, discipline and gameness in the business world, and football teaches that. Team work such as that found on a team is essential if one expects to succeed in the business world today. Now the people in town are really beginning to back Tech athletics, and with a successful football season we will have the entire Plains pulling for Tech teams. Athletics are just now beginning at Tech compared to past seasons because this year we have an unusually strong coaching staff, and with material like this years fish team we will have teams that will go down in the history of the school. Now is the time to get on the Matador football band-wagon and help to make athletics here equal to the leading schools in the Southwest."

Meetings Each Sunday. These meetings which are held at Cheri Casa each Sunday at 5 P. M. are for the purpose of making closer relations between the business men of Lubbock, and members of Tech's athletic teams, according to Pete Cawthon, head coach of athletics at Tech. They provide an opportunity for us to get together and discuss with men from town those things that are of interest to both the school and the town."

SKETCHING IN ORDER. Tree sketching is in order these days according to members of a certain class under Mr. Klein-schmidt, head of the Architectural Department. Ambitious students were seen the past week near the old bookstore with drawing-boards and pencil attempting to put on paper the likeness of a cottonwood tree, while the instructor filtered about to see that no leaves were omitted from the masterpieces.

Miss Jerry Holt of College Inn was the guest of relatives and friends this week-end at Big Spring.

Miss Beth Harper visited relatives and friends in Spur, Texas this week-end.

Students Attracted By Peace Workers (By N. S. F. A. News Service) While European statesmen are discussing the possibilities of another war, and American students are returning from Geneva decked with emblems of peace, reports come from college papers of summer peace activities in the United States. A "School for Peace Workers" held from June 8-21 under the joint auspices of the American Friends Service Committee and the Institute of International Relations afforded an opportunity to attend courses and lectures given by such eminent lecturers as Horrell Hart, Norman Thomas Parker T. Moon, James G. MacDonald and others. There were a number of Peace Caravans, provided with cars and expense money, sent out for a period of eight weeks by various colleges including Swarthmore, Grinnell, Haverford, University of Wisconsin and Mt. Holyoke. These caravans were organized by student committees apart from the university administration or official bodies. The members of the caravans prefaced their field work with attendance at the "School for Peace Workers". Their program included speaking and spreading peace literature in small towns visited. While Bill Ritcheson was telling Cheville Whitehill good by the other night on the front porch of the "Duck Inn" dining hall a voice rang out from up stairs saying: "We don't mind you coming here and courting half the night nor standing on the porch two hours saying goodbye but out of consideration for those that would like to get a little sleep will you kindly take your elbow off the door bell."

Smith was very puzzled during the exam. "What's the matter?" asked the prof. "Don't you know the question?" "Yes, sir," he replied. "What's troubling me is the answer."

And why Christine Carter picks out 3-30 in the morning to wash her teeth is far beyond us.
