

Senate candidates discuss issues

By LARRY ELLIOTT
UD Reporter

Democratic U.S. Senate candidates Bob Krueger and Joe Christie managed to find some issues to disagree on during a three-way panel discussion Tuesday night before the League of Women Voters of Texas.

Christie, Krueger, and Raza Unida Party candidate Luis Diaz deLeon outlined their issue stances and answered questions from the group, which included local League presidents from towns across Texas.

Christie said he differs with Krueger over several issues, most notably the Panama Canal treaties, which Christie supports as "in the best interest of the nation," and Krueger opposes.

Christie said he is surprised Texans are more interested in the governor's race than the U.S. Senate contest, where either he or Krueger will face Republican John Tower and the Raza Unida's deLeon in November.

"The governor has largely a ceremonial office," Christie said. "The irony is clear. We do not pay enough attention to the stand of candidates on the important issues of the day."

On most of the issues, Krueger and Christie differed on small points, not basic stances, but deLeon was another story.

The Raza Unida candidate called natural gas resources "a benefit the almighty gave to us," and said towns like Crystal City, where gas supplies have been shut off since last year, should share Texas' resources.

DeLeon said he also favors bilingual education and public financing of Congressional races.

Campaign finance was another issue on which Krueger and Christie disagreed only on minor points.

Krueger said he opposes a bill that would offer equal amounts of money to incumbents and challengers in Congressional races. He said the bill is "unfair to challengers" because it offers them no chance to raise more money to balance an incumbent's advantage.

Criticizing Krueger's intentions for opposing the public campaign finance plan, Christie said if it were true the bill gave incumbents the advantage, "it would come out of Congress like a rocket."

Christie then went on to take a shot at Krueger, who has often been accused of accepting large donations from petroleum interests.

"It's important to see how contributions are affecting a representative's voting record," Christie said of Krueger, who serves on several energy-related Congressional subcommittees.

Both deLeon and Christie said they oppose recent increases in Social Security taxes paid by workers wage-earners. Christie said the increases were "too drastic" and predicted Congressmen who voted for the tax hikes would come under increasing pressure from the public.

Krueger, who said he is one of 172 Democrats who voted for the increases, told the group he had to make "a choice of unpleasant decisions."

"We had a choice between letting Social Security go broke or funding it," Krueger said. "I chose to fund it and I still support it."

Both Christie and Krueger told the women's group they are trying to keep the campaign from becoming a contest of personalities and each listed past accomplishments.

Krueger told the women's group he was "responsible for a sliding parity bill (for farmers) that came out today," and pointed to his being chosen "most effective member of Congress" by the staffs of Congressional offices.

Christie said he hoped Texas voters would not choose their senator through television advertising. He said he has not been able to raise as much money as Krueger, but that he will "stump the state between now and May 6" to become known to voters.

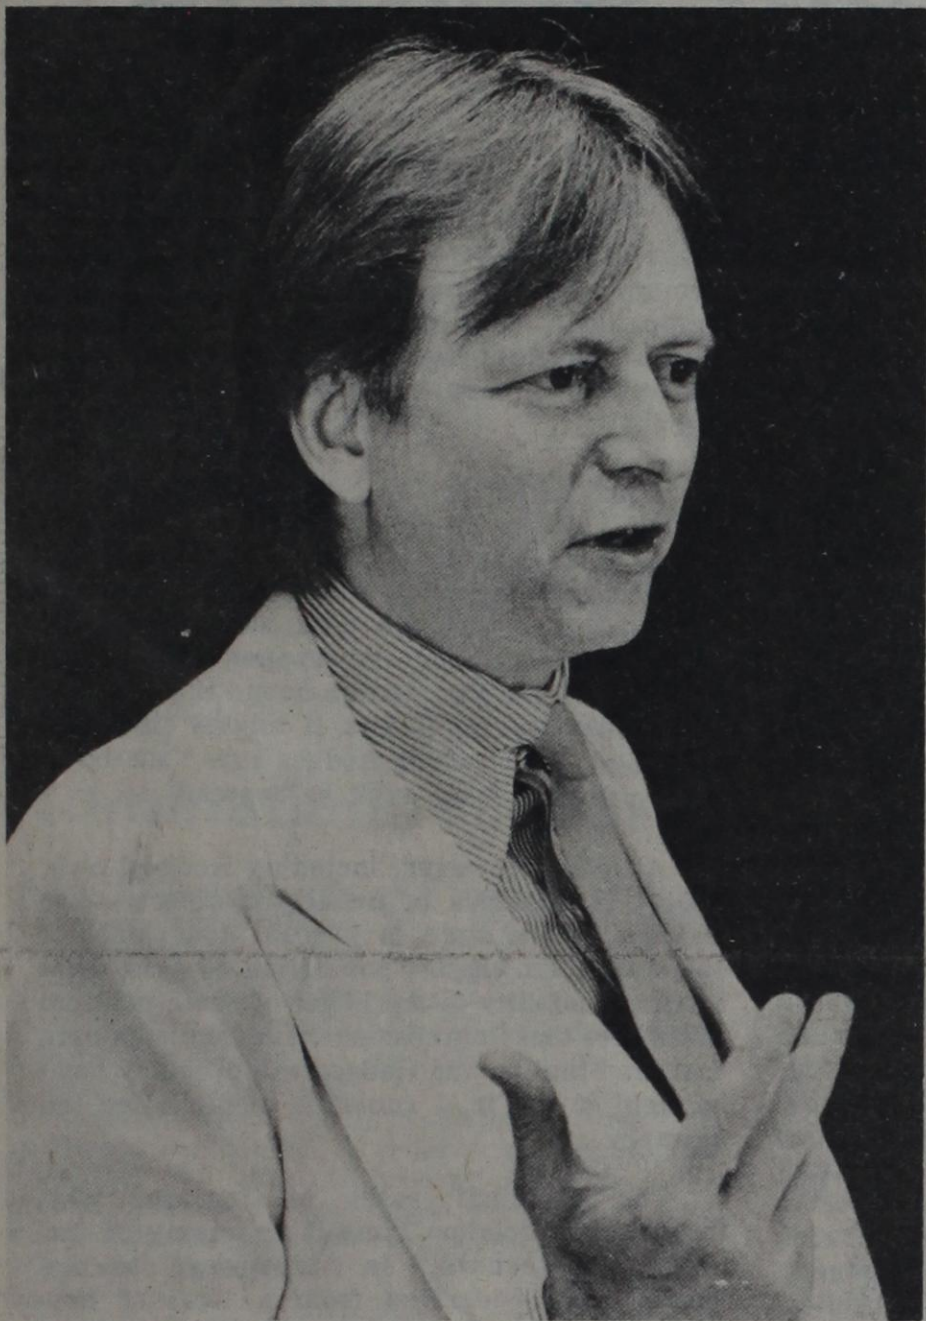

"I do not intend to be chosen in the same way we choose an underarm deodorant," Christie said.

Wolfe 'harpoons' 1970s society

By BILL BALDWIN
UD Reporter

Tom Wolfe, the noted author and journalist, kept an audience of 200 enthralled for two hours in the University Center Theatre Tuesday night.

Quipping and sometimes harpooning American social happenings of the 1970s, Wolfe concluded a four day symposium on "The ME Decade."

He said that the "MEism" that has come to a crest during this decade resulted from economic largess. In turn America now recognizes such cults as the "travel trailer caravans" where no one is under the age of 65 or encounter groups where tired executives "wiggle their fannies around." The

"New Left" which heralded radicalism and communism in the '60s has turned to the Moonie faith or the "Fresno God Squad."

"It is nothing more than what rich people have been doing for years," Wolfe said of the close encounter lifestyle of the ME decade.

At the same time Wolfe recognizes this era as a threat to the institution of marriage, children and the innate belief of serialized immortality.

His almost eclectic style of journalism has brought criticism from many quarters. "The Painted Word", about modern art resulted in so much criticism that he had to "classify" the epithets.

Charges were officially dropped Tuesday night by Weber Baker in the Tech Supreme Court case against SA presidential candidate Wayne Marr and newly elected student senators Robert Bradshaw and Cheryl Martin.

Trial for the candidates, originally scheduled for Wednesday night and postponed Tuesday night by the court because they had no petition dropping the charges, is now formally dismissed, according to Rob Shive, chief justice of the court.

Baker, vice president for Coleman Hall who had filed charges against Marr, Martin and Bradshaw for alleged campaign violations, had given The University Daily a copy of a petition to the court dropping his charges.

However, the court had not received a copy of the petition or been in contact with Baker by Monday night and postponed Wednesday's trial pending communication with Baker.

"I turned the petition in to the Stangel-Murdough office Sunday night," said Baker, "with instructions to give the petition to Rob Shive that night, if possible, and no later than Monday."

The petition never reached Shive and Baker said persons in the office "have no idea where it went."

A spokesman from Stangel-Murdough told The University Daily they were unable to locate the petition and "it's easy to lose things around here."

In his petition, Baker said he realized his "original hope of gaining a general justice and precedent in election procedures will not be realized," and his case had come to look like "a witch hunt against certain individuals" which "was far from my intentions."

He added that he had come to believe, following a preliminary hearing of the case last week, that any injuries caused "have been taken care of," and he thought "the people in question had no malicious thoughts in their violations."

His petition concluded with the request that all charges be dropped and that the presidential run-offs and student senate installments be allowed to proceed.

After contacting Shive Tuesday night and informing him of his decision, Baker told The University Daily that, "I feel it is useless trying to build a new house on a rotten foundation."

Baker said Shive had told him earlier Tuesday in their first communication since the petition was given to the UD, to reconsider the matter before he officially submitted the petition to the court, but Baker decided to let his petition stand because "I don't think it (the trial) would do any good."

According to Baker, the Election Commission told Baker it would be difficult to enforce the rules for all campaign violations against candidates because 3/4 of the candidates would be found guilty of violations.

"To do any good," Baker said, "we would have to be building from the ground up."

Shive said the court dismissed the case with prejudice, meaning Baker can never file this type of petition again.

"Mr. Baker has evidently given this some very thorough thought," Shive said. "He obviously feels it's in his best interests to drop the matter."

Shive said the court had no recourse but to dismiss the case on Baker's request if Baker was satisfied, but he believed "the damage came when the Election Commission failed to carry out their responsibilities."

"None of this would have happened if the Election Commission had followed their own rules," he said. "And if 75 percent of the candidates were guilty of violations, as Baker has been told, then some definite changes need to be made in the Election Commission."

Shive said the Supreme Court, before its term ended, would introduce some suggestions to the Student Senate on future procedure and organization of the court.

Baker told The University Daily last week he had filed the charges because "I just wanted to see things done right and if you have to go through 20,000 students to get an honest Student Association, then do it."

Baker said he decided to file the charges on his own.

"I am a rational human being and I can do my own thinking," he said. "No one has helped me with this."

Rich Richeson, chairman of the Election Commission, said, "I would have liked to have seen the trial carried through, because whatever the court decided would have set a precedent for future campaign procedures."

Approximately three-fourths of the candidates in the elections were guilty of minor violations, he agreed, but he said "I don't like to see these violations occur but I can't kick everyone out of the elections."

Riceson said the Election Commission did not make a ruling on Baker's first petition because Richeson received the petition on a Friday and one member of the commission had left town.

The Commission made a decision on the following Monday but before the commission had a chance to make a formal decision in writing, Richeson said, Baker had appealed the petition to the Tech Supreme Court on Tuesday.

NEWS BRIEFS

Election results postponed

Announcement of election results for the Residence Halls Association executive candidates were postponed Tuesday night because of "minor voting irregularities", according to Don Hase, RHA president.

Because of the "discrepancy," the Rules Committee was unable to announce the total votes from the election, Hase said.

Hase said the Rules Committee, headed by Doug Stover, will probably meet tonight to decide what to do about the situation.

Hase refused to comment further on the controversy.

College costs to go up

NEW YORK (AP) — It will cost an average of 6 percent more to go to college next year than it does this year, says a new study which shows that a resident student at a private, four-year college will spend more than $5,000 in the academic year starting in September.

That $5,000 is equivalent to about one-third the median family income in the United States. And it means that even if there is no further inflation — and that is not likely — a freshman who enters a private school this fall and lives on campus will have to pay more than $20,000 for college education.

The study, released Tuesday, was conducted by the College Scholarship Service of the College Board, a nonprofit organization of schools, educational associations and scholarship agencies. The findings were based on reports from 2,693 colleges and universities.

Costs vary according to the type of institution involved and such factors as whether a student commutes or lives on campus.

The board study showed, for example, that 1978-79 school expenses for a commuting student at a public, four-year college will total $2,604, up 4.8 percent from this year. A student at the same school who lives on campus will spend $3,054, up 5.3 percent from this year.

Other findings of the study include: — Expenses at private, four-year colleges will average $5,110 for on-campus students, up 6.1 percent from this year, and $4,577 for commuters, up 5.7 percent.

— There will be $12.3 billion in public and private financial aid for students during the coming academic year. That does not count possible benefits from congressional and administration proposals to help middle-income families burdened by high education bills.

— Tuition and fees are the items which vary most from school to school. At private, four-year colleges, tuition and fees will average $2,647 next year; at public, four-year schools, the average is $651 although costs can increase sharply for out-of-state students.

— Dollar amounts for items other than tuition and fees are fairly similar from one college to another. As an average, the College Board says students should plan on $245 for transportation, $210 for books and supplies, $470 for personal expenses and either $890 or $1,440 for room and board, depending on whether they live home or on campus.

Carter considers neutron

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has tentatively decided against production of the neutron bomb, a weapon designed to kill enemy troops with radiation while limiting destruction of the surroundings.

There was no indication of a change in his thinking after talks Tuesday with a West German diplomat who wants the weapon in the NATO arsenal in case of Soviet tank attack on Western Europe.

Carter conferred Tuesday with West German Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher, who arrived earlier in the day to press his government's support for production of neutron weapons.

"All these questions are subject to consultation within the alliance," Genscher told reporters after a prior meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

Vance, who accompanied Genscher to separate meetings with Carter and his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, said afterward that Carter had made no decision on the neutron bomb.

But, Vance added, "I should think in the not too distant future that we should be able to make a decision."

Youngster elected to office

McLENDON-CHISHOLM, Texas (AP) — Old guard politicians move over. One newly-elected city council member here hasn't finished high school yet and already has her eyes on the governor's mansion.

Sherri Ellis, 18, became one of the youngest persons ever to win a council seat in Texas when she was elected Saturday in this tiny North Central Texas community of 312 persons.

Now with one successful campaign to her credit, she advises reporters to watch for her to "run for governor in 12 or 15 years."

Although Serri will not graduate from high school until June, the slender brown-eyed brunette said she's not about to be intimidated by older members of the council.

"I received the most votes because I'm well respected and the people in this community believe I have the common sense and the ability to express my opinions and represent them," she said.

Her campaign expenses amounted to just five dollars, and that was spent to buy a thank you ad in a local newspaper after the election.

WEATHER

Weather for Lubbock and vicinity calls for partly cloudy skies with a chance of thundershowers. Highs will be in the upper 70s and lows will be in the low 50s. Probability of precipitation is 40 percent.

Tech turnout in doubt despite increased push

About two months ago, many people were expecting the Tech vote to play a crucial role in the May 6 primaries. Student leaders as well as local politicians were expecting students to finally "break for the long gainer."

It was hailed as a success never fully realized in past election years. If recent indications are true, it may be just a pipe dream again this year.

The main reason for the expected increase in voter registration was student dissatisfaction with the regents' negative vote on the alcohol proposal. Many expected students to show their displeasure at the voting boxes.

JAY ROSSER

Some candidates have felt so sure Tech students would be a crucial faction they have noticeably increased their visits to the campus.

A check Tuesday with Russell Hardin, county tax assessor-collector revealed that the total number of registered voters is running at about the same level as in recent election years. Asked if more students appear to be registering than in the past, Hardin replied "not really. It is not up over past years, but it appears to be climbing."

Students have until Thursday to register to vote in the May 6 primaries and make this year's glowing predictions come true.

It is hoped Tech students will at least take a keener interest in the May 6 primaries than they did in Saturday's municipal elections.

A look at the vote counts from the municipal elections and the Tech boxes in particular reveals some startling and disturbing information.

The first and most disgraceful fact is that figures from precinct boxes 49 and 50 on the Tech campus reveal that only 47 students voted in the mayoral election and only 52 in the City Council elections.

Granted, municipal elections are not taken as seriously by Tech students, especially on-campus students, as those involving congressional and state candidates. But nonetheless, those figures are surely catching the eyes of quite a few politicians.

Other information revealed by the final municipal election figures showed that students tended to vote against the candidates that went on to win or gain a berth in the run-offs.

For example, if students had their way, Bob Kizer would have gained the mayoral seat over Dirk West. Kizer received 23 votes to West's 15. West won the election by a landslide.

In the City Council, place one, position, students gave a clear majority of the votes to Mike Stevens with 31. Incumbent city councilman Alan Henry, who went on to win the election quite handily, received 21 Tech votes.

In the place three elections, students gave the majority of their votes to Maria Luisa Mercado. When the final figures were added up, place three resulted in a run-off between Bob Schmidt and M.J. Aderton.

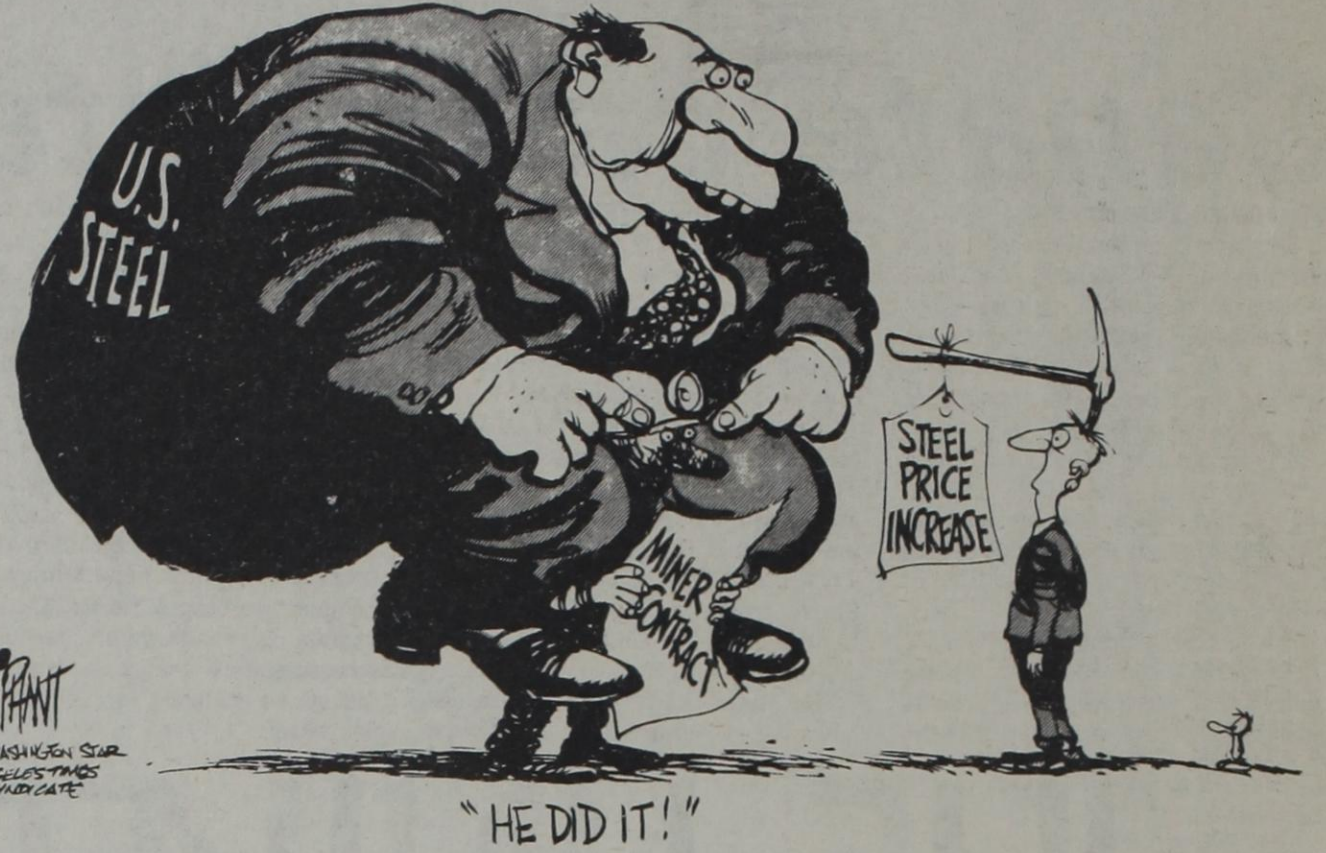

Granted, one cannot characterize the Tech student preferences as wrong votes. In any election, there just is no such thing. One person's vote is as valuable as another's. Perhaps this is what makes Tech-students peculiar. Peculiar and apathetic.

As I have mentioned in an earlier editorial, I differ with many individuals in the philosophy of elections. Some say that voting is a right, and a right that should be earned. I feel voting is a duty and a responsibility. Some live up to that responsibility and some do not.

Without exception, most Tech students do not. But there is still hope. You have until Thursday to register.

Do it for Tech, and do it for yourself. In the long run, you might even be doing it for Tech. Certainly one does not cherish the thought of attending a school known for its perpetual apathy.

Have a responsible day. JR

Tom Wicker Target Califano

RALEIGH, N.C. — Last winter the joke in this state was that Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, facing a hard re-election campaign, was running against Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera of Panama. But now that the Torrijos canal treaties has been ratified, everybody down here seems to be running against Joe Califano.

That includes Jesse Helms and most of the eight — count 'em — eight Democrats who'll compete in the May 2 primary for the dubious honor of opposing him. Right now, the big target is Califano, the despised Secretary of the hated "HEW," which is not an acronym to Tar Heels these days but a three-letter word for (expletive deleted).

Califano announced this week that he was withholding about $10 million in federal funds from the University of North Carolina, with which he is in an extended dispute over desegregation policy. But that's the least of his offenses.

The real zinger was the Secretary's recent attack on smoking, accompanied by the heart-rending tale of his own efforts to kick a three-pack daily habit. In North Carolina, where tobacco is both a big money crop and prime industrial raw material, this was widely considered a low blow, and the fear and loathing thus aroused have not been dispelled by the word sweeping the state that Jimmy Carter — who was in Winston-Salem for a speech last week — gave private assurances that federal tobacco subsidies were as safe as the defense budgets. And why not? Georgia gets the same subsidies.

To Jesse Helms, predictably enough, Califano's crimes are splendid evidence that the whole Democratic crowd ought to be kicked out of Washington. To Luther Hodges Jr., the young banker who is generally ranked the front-runner in the primary, the Califano furor demonstrates, rather, that the state needs another Democratic senator to tell the Secretary to stick to welfare reform and leave the weed alone.

To the voters, l'affaire Califano has enlivened an otherwise ho-hum campaign season that probably won't heat up much until the race has been narrowed down to a single opponent for Helms. The Senator has made something of a national reputation for himself as a leader of the right wing, and his re-election campaign next fall is bound to attract much interest and much out-of-state money aimed at defeating him.

That won't be much of an issue for Helms, although he and his shrewd campaign manager, Tom Ellis of Raleigh, are reputed hereabouts to be able to make one out of almost anything. Helms is piling up plenty of out-of-state money himself, as the conservative community rallies to the challenge.

Ellis is plunging a modest sum from that war chest on an unusual ploy; although Helms is unopposed for the Republican nomination, he is launching a minor television blitz in the middle of the Democratic primary campaign. At a cost of $25,000 or so — Ellis' estimate — a half-hour film devoted to the Senator's "integrity and principles of conservatism" will be broadcast on all save one of North Carolina's commercial television stations, for a total of more than 20 hours, between March 22 and April 4.

Ellis says the broadcasts are needed now because "everybody's been taking potshots at Jesse." Democrats fear it will present a pleasing image of Helms serenely riding high above the primary squabbling of the four principal Democratic candidates — Hodges, State Senators McNeill Smith and Lawrence Davis, and State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

A poll taken for The News and Observer of Raleigh, as well as his own private polls, have placed Hodges — the son of a former governor who was Secretary of Commerce in the Kennedy Administration — out front, but not conclusively. More importantly, the newspaper poll showed Hodges — after a campaign begun more than a year ago — leading Helms, if only by six-tenths of a point, a fact which Hodges says "shattered the myth that Jesse can't be beaten."

All polls, however, including Hodges' own, report large blocs of undecided voters — 46 percent, for example, in a recent Hodges poll of the state's six biggest population centers. That lends plausibility to the belief of some political buffs here that Commissioner Ingram is gaining fast, and that he and Hodges will probably have to fight it out in a runoff a month after the primary.

The principal asset of Ingram, who frequently proclaims himself an enemy of the "special interests," is widespread "name identification," derived from a total of five statewide primary and general election campaigns before this one. Winning re-election in 1976, he polled more than a million votes, and is regarded here as a slambang campaigner. He would be the main beneficiary on May 2 of what The Greensboro Daily News recently called "Jessecrats" — registered Democrats who will vote in the primary, but support Jesse Helms in the general election against anyone.

On Spring break, Greeks, etc.

'Don't forget us..'

To the Editor:

We would like to call to your attention the scheduling of Spring break holidays that was given to the faculty and staff. It seems to us that it would have been more considerate to have given Thursday and Friday, the 23rd and the 24th, as this would have been preceding Easter instead of the 20th and the 21st.

As Easter is a religious holiday, this would have enabled the faculty and staff to attend family gatherings. Of course, we would like to thank the administration for giving us Friday afternoon off, for Good Friday, even if some of us weren't notified until 9:30 a.m. Friday morning. If this sounds familiar, it occurred last year. This makes it most difficult to make last minute plans for the Easter weekend for most of us. Well, we have a whole year to plan for next year. We hope the administration remembers us.

Sincerely,

there are Division I and Division II schools divided according to size. Since success at rush can be so dependent on success at sports, I think making this change would lessen the gap between these frats and improve the system here on the whole.

Questioning process

To Jay Rosser:

Three questions concerning the selection of the UD editor:

- 1) Who or what are the members of the Student Publications Committee?
- 2) What are the committee's criteria for selection of the UD editor?
- 3) Since this committee is concerned with student publications, why doesn't it solicit student opinion (or even nominations) before it chooses a new UD editor?
- 4) Is it a completely ridiculous idea for the editor of the campus newspaper to be elected by the student body, as the editor is at UT-Austin?

Sincerely,
Tommy P. Allen

Editor's note: Members of the Student Publications Committee are both students and faculty members in equal representation. Presumably, the committee's criteria for the selection of the editor are a strong background as well as an interest in the field of journalism. An article appears in the UD approximately a month prior to each selection to insure that any student has the opportunity for the position. Finally, no, it is not a completely ridiculous idea for the editor of the paper to be elected by the student body, but it appears to be the general consensus that such an election would turn the selection process into a popularity contest. JR

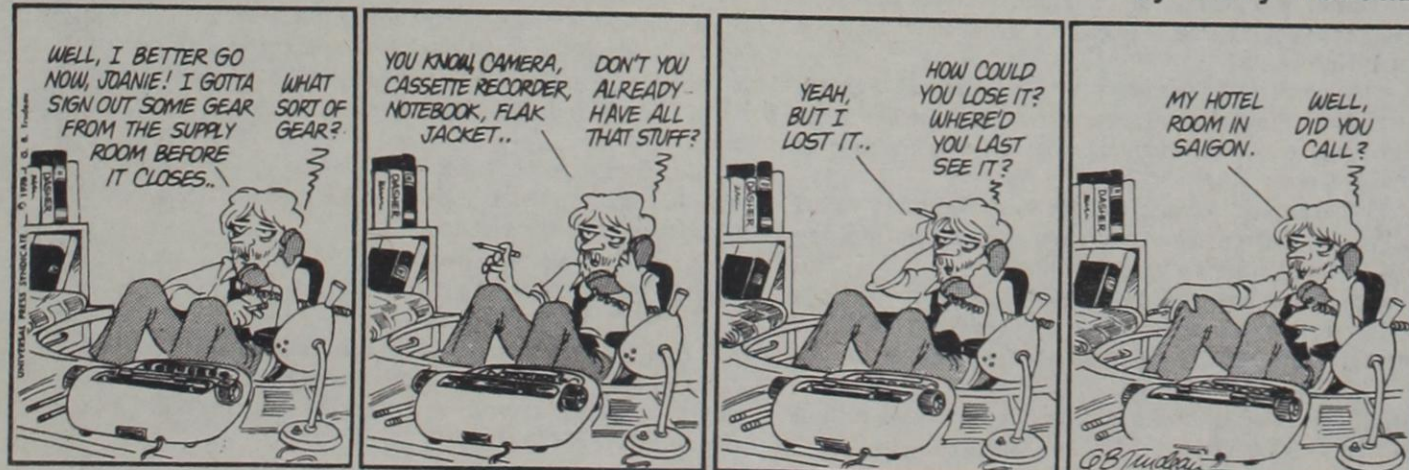

Unfair competition?

To the Editor:

I am not a member of a Greek fraternity here, but I am familiar with some at other campuses. I saw an intramural game (basketball) last month and had to ask myself some questions. Why should a fraternity of 30 members or so be expected to compete in sports with one of a membership of 125 or so? Would you expect a class B school to play football against a 4-A school? I've checked and there are about four-five small Greek frats, five with medium sizes, and four with 100 or more. Why shouldn't they be classed in divisions of sports competition according to these size ranges? Wouldn't this be more fair? Just like in NAIA college football,

Congressmen receiving extra checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government says 18 members of Congress are disabled and it sends them checks every month to compensate for their disabilities.

At least another 14 senators and congressmen get a monthly military pension check or Veterans Administration payment in addition to their $57,500-a-year salary, their travel allowances and other benefits.

Recipients of the extra checks include such well known and powerful members as Sens. John Glenn, Strom Thurmond and Robert Dole and Reps. Olin Teague, John Flynt, John Young and Al Ullman.

The extra checks range from $41 a month to $1,109 a month. And the payments are quite legal.

"When people ask if it is right that I get it, I say, 'Under present circumstances, clearly yes,'" says Rep. James Lloyd, D-Calif., who draws $618 a month in military pension for his 21 years in the Navy. "But is it morally right? No. We need to make a change in the system."

The second checks have been severely criticized by those who say Congress should change federal retirement systems to limit or eliminate the second checks.

"It's high time we got Congress off the Pentagon payroll," said Sid Taylor, the research director of the National Taxpayers Union, a grassroots lobbying group. "We have too many senator-generals, senator-colonels and congressman-colonels in today's U.S. Congress."

Four members of Congress receive military disability pensions, which are based on rank, pay at time of retirement and percentage of disability. Fourteen others receive Veterans Administration pensions, which are based on the percentage of service-connected disability. And 13 others receive non-disability related military pensions.

Four of the congressmen do not keep their checks. Two send the checks back to the government, one turns his over to charity, and one says he is putting his into a charitable fund he is setting up.

The biggest two-check income goes to Sen. Howard Cannon, who gets $1,072-a-month in regular military pension plus his congressional salary, making the Nevada Democrat's annual income from the government $70,369. Cannon was a major general in the Air Force reserve.

"He feels that he earned his pension regardless of how much he makes, that what you do for a living should not affect your pension," said Cannon press aide Mike Vernetti.

The largest second check goes to Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., who receives $1,109 a month from the Veterans Administration. However, Bennett, who contracted polio while fighting in the Philippines and now walks with a brace and a cane, returns the money to the government.

Teague, a Texas Democrat, gets $951 a month in military disability pension for the war wound which eventually cost him his leg.

Dole, the Kansas Republican who was Gerald Ford's running mate in 1976, gets $704 a month, or $8,458 a year. He was critically wounded by a shell fragment in Italy. His right hand and arm are still crippled and he has no feeling in his left hand.

Also, drawing $8458 annually in military disability pension is Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, who lost his right arm when he fought as a major in the Nisei 442nd Regimental Combat Team in Italy.

Cypriot court sentences duo

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A court Tuesday sentenced two Palestinians to hang for the assassination of a prominent Egyptian editor that led to a bloody gun battle between Cypriot troops and Egyptian commandos.

The three-judge tribunal convicted Samir Mohammed Khadar, 28, and Zayed Hussein al-Ali, 26, of premeditated murder and, over their protestations of innocence, set their execution for June 1.

Defense attorney Lefcos Clerides announced he would appeal, arguing that the death sentence had not been carried out on this Mediterranean island for 10 years and therefore had been abolished.

"de facto."

The judicial process was completed rapidly in an apparent attempt to mollify Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. He broke diplomatic relations with Cyprus after the Feb. 18 assassination of his close friend and confidant, Youssef el-Sebaei, and the deaths of 15 Egyptian commandos the next day in a shootout at Cyprus' Larnaca Airport, where the two Palestinians held hostages in a plane.

Presiding Judge Demetrakis Demetriades said in explaining the verdict that there "is no room for doubt in our minds the two accused killed Sebaei in the execution of their well-prepared and preconcerted plan."

The 60-year-old Sebaei was editor-in-chief of Egypt's authoritative Al Ahran newspaper and had accompanied Sadat on his historic visit to Jerusalem in November. The visit was followed by threats from radical Palestinians to assassinate Sadat and all those who supported his peace initiative with Israel.

Sebaei was shot to death in the Hilton hotel at Nicosia, where he had come to attend a heavily guarded conference of the Afro-Asian Peoples Solidarity Organization.

Volunteer services now recruiting

ACTION, Peace Corps and VISTA volunteer services agency, will conduct a recruitment seminar April 12 and 13 on campus.

Volunteers from ACTION will speak to students at the Career Planning and Placement Service, room 156 of the Administration Building, and in the University Center between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

According to Walt Ogrondnik, ACTION representative from Dallas, 2,500 Peace Corps positions are available this summer.

Volunteers are paid transportation, training, medical, housing, clothing and food expenses and receive a six-week paid vacation. ACTION sets aside $125 for Peace Corps members each month of their two-year volunteer period, and $50 is set aside as a re-adjustment allowance for those in the one-year VISTA program.

Peace Corps volunteers are sent outside the United States and VISTA volunteers stay in the states, Ogrondnik said. This is the largest recruiting drive by ACTION since the late 1960s, he said.

Readers theatre present 'Cyberiad', 'Will Rogers'

"The Cyberiad: Fables for the Cybernetic Age" and "I Remember Will: A Will Rogers Montage" will be presented in a readers theatre Thursday through Sunday by the division of speech communications.

According to Dr. Vera Simpson, associate professor of speech communications, "The Cyberiad" is a collection of short stories by Polish playwright Liem. The three stories to be presented reflect Liem's primary interest in a history, philosophy and methodology of science, especially that of cybernetics. Cybernetics deals with the relationship between man and machine, Simpson said, and the plays will center around almost human machines and their adventures.

"The Cyberiad" is directed by Connie Tapp Bandy. Cast members are: Bandy, Julian 'Kip' Hyde, Earnest Barton, Linda Thompson and Joyce Elliott.

"I Remember Will: A Montage of Will Rogers" is a collection of realistic writings about humorist Will Rogers written by his wife and son, Simpson said.

"I Remember Will" is directed by Linda Milam Vancil. Cast members are: Kim Barr, Joan Graves and Donnie Crowson.

Performances are Thursday and Friday, "The Cyberiad," 4:30 p.m., "I Remember Will," 8:15 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, "I Remember Will," 4:30 p.m. and "The Cyberiad," 8:15 p.m. Tickets are 50 cents for students and $1 for the general public and may be purchased in room 263 of the Mass Communications Building.

Chulas Fronteras

Narciso Martinez, accordion player in a Mexican Norteño Group, will be featured in the movie "Chulas Fronteras." The movie is one of two films which will be shown in conjunction with Mexican-American Week.

"Chulas Fronteras" and "Mexico Insurgente" will be shown at 7 p.m. today in the University Center Coronado Room. Tickets are 50 cents for both films and are available in the UC ticket booth and at the door.

UMAS to show films

"Chulas Fronteras" and "Mexico Insurgente," two films, will be shown at 7 p.m. today in the UC Coronado Room. The films are being shown in conjunction with Mexican-American Week which is sponsored by Tech's United Mexican-American Students. The purpose of the week is to promote awareness of the Mexican culture.

"Chulas Fronteras" is about the customs, music and life of the people who live on the Mexican borders. The second film features romanticist John Reed, who took part in the Mexican Revolution. Both films are in English with Spanish subtitles.

Admission for the films is 50 cents. Tickets are available at the UC ticket booth and will be sold at the door also.

Part of the Mexican-American Week activities include the 23-poster exhibit being shown in the UC Courtyard. A Mexican bingo, "Loteria," will take place Friday at 8 p.m. in the UC Well. Prizes from Mexico will be awarded. Elaborately dressed mariachis and Mexican musicians elaborately dressed will perform at the Mariachi Dinner at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the UC Ballroom.

Footballers scrimmage today and Saturday

Freshman runningback Tim Orr, who missed the first three days of spring training, returned to Raider football practice Tuesday.

Orr returned, but standout flanker Brian Nelson left the session early with what appeared to be an injury to his right knee. Nelson was injured as he was observing a drill. "It was just one of those freak things," Dockery said. "A guy just fell into him." The extent of the injury has not been determined.

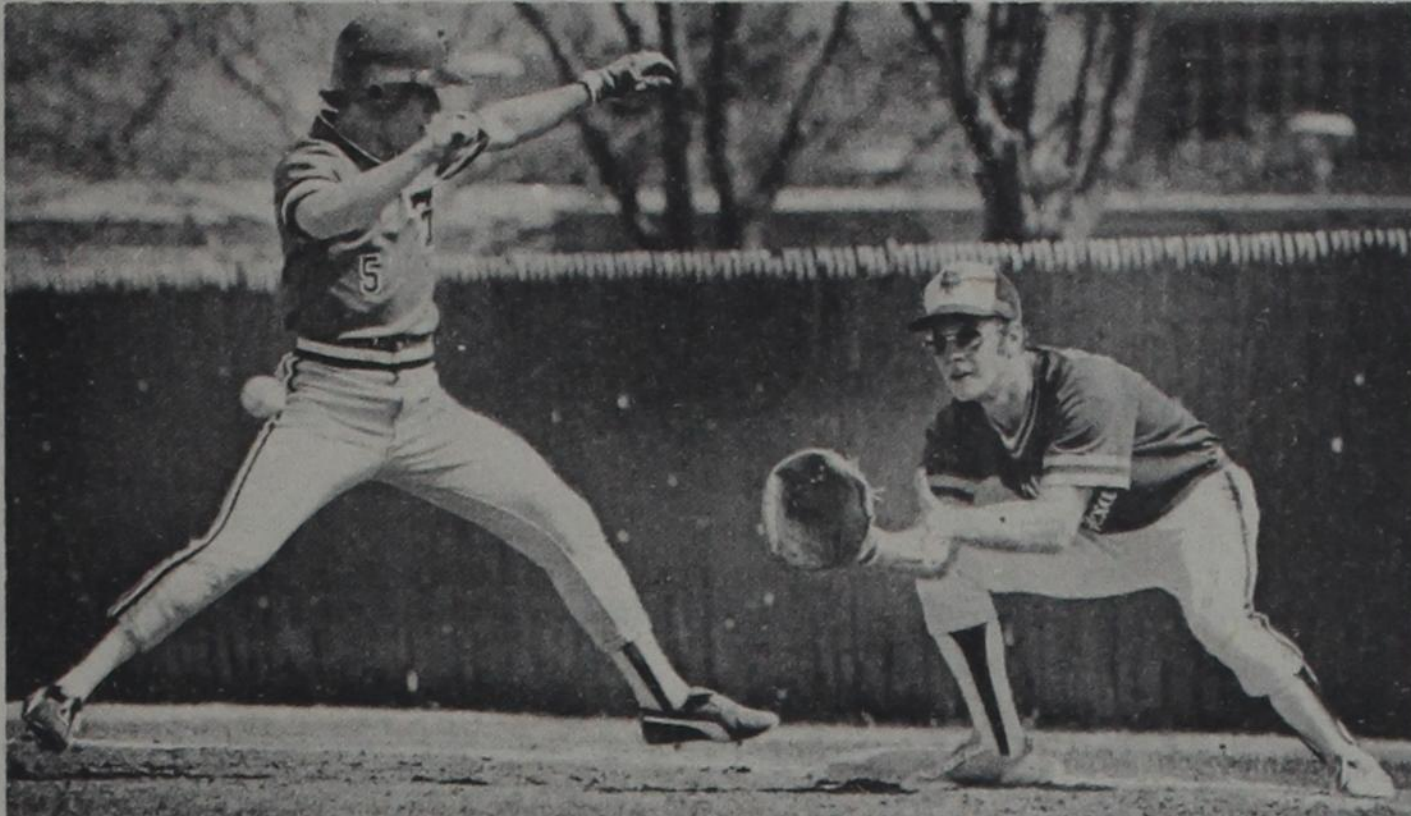

Nelson was the only Tech football player to leave Tuesday with an injury. The Raiders were preparing for today's scrimmage, the first of the spring training schedule.

Dockery and his staff continue to trim the list of walkons and the scrimmage will give them an opportunity to view the walkons in game-type situations.

The original list of 80 walkons has been trimmed to "about 60" according to Dockery.

"We still need to cut down the list a few. The scrimmage should give us a good look at the players," Dockery said.

The Raider scrimmage today will begin at 5 p.m. in Jones Stadium. A scrimmage is also planned for Saturday. "We're just pretty young as a team," Dockery said. "We need time to work all the new people into the program."

Split second

Tech second baseman Johnny Vestal decides that one giant step is better than several short ones as he beats a pick-off attempt from the mound during Saturday's game against North Texas State. Opposing pitchers have had little luck in keeping the Tech junior honest as he leads the Raiders in bases stolen with 13. (Photo by Dennis Copeland)

New faces in majors

A gallery of fresh new faces spice several major league rosters as the major league baseball season opens this week.

Perhaps the team depending most on its rookies is the Detroit Tigers, who move into the American League season with a brand new double-play combination composed of a pair of first-year men, second baseman Lou Whitaker and shortstop Alan Trammell.

Both move to the majors following impressive minor league seasons at Montgomery. Trammell batted .291 and Whitaker .280 there.

The Tigers have so much confidence in the pair that they traded Tito Fuentes and Tom Verzer, their second base-shortstop combination in 1977, to make room for the newcomers.

California made a similar move, unloading an established star outfielder, Bobby Bonds, to make room for rookie flash Ken Landreaux, the minor league player of the year. Landreaux batted .357 with 27 home runs, 116 runs batted in and 20 stolen bases with Angel farm clubs last year.

Spurs quench Phoenix, 125-119

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — George Gervin and Larry Kenon combined for 54 points Tuesday night and ignited a fourth quarter surge to lead the San Antonio Spurs past Phoenix 125-119 in a National Basketball Association game.

The victory was the fifth in a row for the Spurs, who have already clinched the NBA Central Division title. San Antonio trailed 60-57 at halftime, but evened the count at 91-91 at the end of the third period. The Spurs inched ahead slowly in the final quarter, before putting the game out of reach when Kenon ripped off seven consecutive points. That gave San Antonio a 120-108 lead with 2:51 remaining.

Titans trip Tech, 8-3

"We had kind of a rough time here tonight," assistant coach James Keller said, describing the Raider baseballers' 8-3 loss to the nationally-ranked Oral Roberts Titans Tuesday night in Tulsa, Okla.

The loss gives the Raiders a 20-15 season record. A 6-6 SWC mark puts the Raiders in fifth place, one-half game behind fourth-ranked Baylor and four and one-half games out of first.

The first inning of the contest saw back-to-back doubles by Raider catcher Scott Leingruber and right fielder John Keller for Tech's first score.

In the seventh frame, left fielder Larry Selby knocked a 392-foot solo homer over the left field fence of the Titan's $2 million dollar facility.

Randy Newton, who had doubled earlier and moved to third on a Selby single, added Tech's final score on a Brooks Wallace sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Freshman Rick Hall started for Tech and sustained the loss, dropping his won-loss record to 3-2. Junior David Bolton relieved Hall but also gave up four runs.

Rick Stewart went the distance for the Titans and gave up nine hits along with the three Tech runs.

Tech faces Oral Roberts again today in the final non-conference game of the season for the Raiders.

If you have received a survey and not yet returned it, the Rec Sports Department is appealing to you to do so.

If you are an off-campus student you can use the self-addressed, stamped envelope supplied with the survey. If you live on campus, you can return the survey through the Campus Mail.

Please respond if you have the chance.
