Tornado destruction

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes ripped a path of death and destruction across North Texas Tuesday killing three and injuring approximately 60 near Vernon, injuring about a 100 in Wichita Falls and trapping an unknown number of persons in two demolished shopping centers.

Department of Public Safety spokesman Barbara Henderson said the twister leveled two busy shopping centers as it swept through Wichita Falls. She said an unknown number of persons were trapped in the debris.

Wichita Falls Record-News City Editor Bill McGee said the tornado heavily damaged an apartment complex, two residential areas and also damaged Midwestern University, a high school, and the Texas Electric Power plant, knocking power out in a large portion of south-west Wichita Falls.

California-Texas pipeline

Commerce Committee Chairman John Dingell has decided to bring the Texas-California oil pipeline bill before the full House Committee for a vote the week after Easter.

The bill would be an amendment to the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978, and would preempt any state laws obstructing construction on the Standard Oil of Ohio crude oil pipeline which would carry oil through Long Beach, Ca. to Midland.

"We hope to have a vote on the bill by the week of the 23rd or 30th," said U.S. Congressman Kent Hance.

"Gov. Brown (of California) had given the committee chairman his word that he would testify at the hearings a week ago Monday and when he didn't show, it really made a bad impression on the committee members. Of course it helped my case (to get the bill passed)," said Hance.

"We are hoping to get the bill on the president's desk by July 1, but California may grant permits for construction before then," said Hance.

Tax limits possible factor in city's bond rating

By MIKE VINSON
UD Reporter

Lubbock's AA bond rating is secure for the present but if Lubbock Property Owner's Association proposals to limit the city's taxing power are approved, the city will have to demonstrate it can live within its means.

Ben Phillips of Moody Investor's Service Inc., a New York firm which sets Lubbock's bond rating, told city council members Tuesday the city's bond rating was contingent on a number of economic and political factors.

Primary among those factors, Phillips said, is a healthy and stable general fund.

If the general fund dwindles for any reason, including a limit on taxing power, then city services would eventually be curtailed and the local economy suffer, Phillips said. The rating firm would not act to lower the city's bond rating just because its taxing powers were restricted, Phillips said. If the city could maintain services and continue to grow with the tax ceiling, the bond rating would remain secure.

would be a consideration. Anything that inhibits the city's financial posture or ability to borrow could be detrimental to its bond rating."

The LPOA is currently circulating petitions calling for a city election to limit the tax rate to $1.12 per $100 evaluation; limit the valuation which could be taxed to 60 percent of total valuation; and limit the general fund balance to $7 million.

However, LPOA officials are being closemouthed about the number of signatures they have obtained or their target date for a city election.

"We are not releasing any information about the petitions because that would just give city hall something to fight," LPOA

President Bob Greene told the UD Sunday. "All I can say is that we are satisfied with the petition's status now."

Sterling Miller, director of city finances, told the council he could not recommend the sale of $8.8 million in municipal bonds currently being considered until more is known about the LPOA proposals.

However, the consensus among the council members was that the bond sale would be approved in the near future.

"This city has always voted for continued growth and expansion," Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan said, "and we have to go on planning to progress until the people vote to stop it."

Carter supports excess profits tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Tuesday that even with a proposed new tax, the oil industry will gain $6 billion in new income from higher fuel prices.

And he warned that "the nation has a right to expect that all of this new income will be used for exploration."

The president told a nationally broadcast news conference that failure to pass an excess profits tax would be "a wholly unjustified giveaway to the oil companies."

Carter said the new income to oil companies would be realized over the next three years during which price controls on domestic oil would be phased out.

On another subject, Carter predicted, "We will see a turn very shortly in the inflationary trend downward."

He stressed the importance of adhering to his voluntary wage and price guidelines and said that most of the so-called Fortune 500 corporations — the largest in the nation — are doing so.

The president also pledged his continued support for nuclear energy after the nuclear accident at Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island power plant, saying: "There is no way for us to abandon the nuclear supply of energy in our country for the foreseeable future."

He repeated his promise to establish quickly a presidential commission to look into the accident, but said he has not decided yet on who will serve on the panel.

No holiday allowed for Easter

Despite a plea from the Student Association to make Monday a holiday, Tech will have classes as originally planned, Charles Hardwick, vice president for Academic Affairs, announced Tuesday.

"We felt that since Monday was scheduled to be a class day that we should keep it that way," said Hardwick. "It is really too close to the end of the semester and we felt that a day off would be disruptive."

The effect of the holiday was the administration's main consideration, Hardwick said.

"I contacted each dean and discussed the proposal. I received an overwhelmingly like reaction, that is a break right now would not be academically sound. The semester is closing and students will begin concentrating on their studies. We all felt that in the best interest of the students, a break would not be beneficial," he said.

No decision concerning releasing school early on Friday has been announced. Last year, Gov. Dolph Briscoe released public school at noon, Good Friday. Some officials around the state are expecting Gov. Bill Clements to extend the same holiday this year.

RE: Dying plants, fire alarms

Q: "Who takes care of the plants in the Foreign Language and Math Building and why are the plants dying?" Name Withheld.

A: The grounds maintenance department is in charge of taking care of the plants in the FL&M Building. Grounds Maintenance Director Dewey Schroyer said there are two problems with the plants. First, there is not enough space in the greenhouse to take the plants and rejuvenate them. Schroyer said another reason for the dying plants is that some of the plants do not get enough sunlight.

Q: "Where are some indoor tennis courts?" Tom Silva.

A: There are no indoor tennis courts on the Tech campus at this time. But five indoor courts will be housed in the multi-purpose gym of the recreation center currently under construction, according to Joe MacLean, recreational sports director.

The Racquet Club, located at 9000 Memphis Drive, has eight indoor tennis courts. Individual memberships for The Racquet Club cost $175 for the initiation fee in addition to a $35 monthly fee. Family memberships are $300 for the initiation fee and $45 monthly. These fees also include use of The Racquet Club's swimming pool, whirlpool, sauna, restaurant and lounge.

The Lubbock Country Club has four indoor tennis courts. Memberships for the club are $1,500 for the initiation fee and $75 per month.

Q: "What can be done about the malfunctioning fire alarms in Bledsoe Hall?" Name Withheld.

A: The fire alarms seldom malfunction, according to Tech Fire Marshal Charles Whittler. A person must break the glass and pull the handle down to ring the alarm, so setting off the alarm is never accidental, Whittler said.

"Ninety-five percent of the problem is students playing with the alarms," Whittler said. "I can't do anything about it unless I catch whoever pulls the alarm."

Setting off a fire alarm when there is not a fire is a misdemeanor, Whittler added.

Officials see demand 'good' for summer help

By CHINO CHAPA
UD Reporter

With the dismissal of schools and summer just days away, most employers around Texas have begun a call for help, a call that spells J-O-B-S for many Tech students.

EMPLOYMENT agencies in Lubbock and on campus are receiving job applications daily and expect the demand for employees to increase as the month of April nears an end.

"This is usually the time of year that employers request summer help," said T.K. Morris, head of placement for the local Texas Employment Commission (TEC). "This is also the ideal time for students to line up jobs. The earlier they apply, the better jobs they are likely to receive."

MORRIS said his office accepts many applications from Tech students who are looking for summer work and encourages more students to apply.

"We serve everybody," Morris said. "That's why we're here: to find jobs for people who want them. In most cases we can do that."

"We have a program especially designed for people under the age of 22. YES, Youth Employment Service, will be set up to find the three-month summer jobs. Currently, we don't have an office but by June we expect to move into a building," Morris said.

IN THE meantime, Morris said, a person could apply for work through YES at the TEC office, 1602 16th St. A student needs to say he is interested only in summer work when applying at one of the employment offices.

"We are not discriminating," he said, "it's just that we have shorter, more simple application for summer workers."

Jerry Phaenuf, assistant to the director at the Career Placement Center on campus, expressed similar advice to summer-job seekers.

"STUDENTS should begin applying now," said Phaenuf. "We have a complete list of jobs here and many will be jobs for students. Last year we had 300 to 400 vacant positions. We just didn't have enough people in school to fill the demand."

The Placement Office, located in Room 152 of the Administration Building, has a bulletin board solely used to list summer openings.

"We can also counsel. If a student cannot find a job, we can offer more ideas and tell him where to look for other jobs," said Phaenuf.

If statistics are correct, then few students will need counseling. Local figures show that almost anyone who wants to work can find a job in Lubbock.

ACCORDING to statistics accumulated by Jerry Boudreau of the TEC, Lubbock's unemployment rate is below the state level and far below the national rate. The most recent findings, released in March, showed Lubbock with a 3.6 unemployment rate. The Texas rate is 4.8 and the national rate is 5.7.

"Lubbock has a healthy economy," said Boudreau. "The constant expansion and growth in Lubbock has helped to keep a steady unemployment rate for the past years. It has fluctuated from 3.8 but it stays about one point lower than the state level."

THE THREE employment officials agreed personal applications were better than trying to apply for jobs by phone.

"So many things need to be discussed in person that it is almost impossible to apply by a phone call," Phaenuf said. "The potential for a good summer job market exists. All we need now is summer employees."

Planning? What planning?

Gary Skrehart

Notice to Tech faculty members: Don't expect large attendance in your classes Monday. As a matter of fact, this may be a first-time opportunity for many faculty members to try one-on-one teaching.

Unless more than a handful of die-hard instructors plan pop quizzes or other forced attendance techniques, the Tech campus will probably be sparsely populated Monday.

The problem originates with the Tech administration. Once evidently is not enough for Tech to make a mistake. Last year about this same time, the administration realized Tech students would be rushed to return from Easter vacation because class would resume the Monday after Easter Sunday. In their "wisdom," the administrators canceled Monday classes.

With foresight, the administration could have looked down the road then or even when this year's calendar was being determined and realized the same problem would exist.

This would have represented pre-planning - not in the proud tradition of Tech. The administrators had a second chance to correct the problem and cancel classes again this year.

In an effort to compound the mistake, the administration has refused to cancel classes. The administrators will spend Easter Sunday with their families. Many Tech students will ignore the decision and spend Easter Sunday with family.

And that special breed of dedicated student will remain in Lubbock, away from family and friends. A special "thanks" should go out to the Tech administration.

The sad part of the whole affair is that planning would have prevented this scene. The administration is criticized and often wonders why. Just stop and think about it - here is one reason why.

Hopefully, faculty will not back the administration's decision and enforce attendance.

The administration and the faculty would serve themselves by facing the fact. The administration has not. Perhaps the faculty will show better judgment.

Momentum for peace carries Mid-East hopes

Anthony Lewis

(c) 1979 N.Y. Times News Service

JERUSALEM - "Something happened in Cairo," a member of the Knesset said. "Begin is euphoric, and he is not just performing. The mood has changed. It is not a grudging peace any longer."

What did happen? A visit that looked to be purely ceremonial, and really unwanted by the Egyptians, ended in some concrete new agreements and a display of comradery with President Sadat. One man on the Israeli delegation said the trip had lifted his spirits more than anything since Sadat came to Jerusalem. Why?

The explanation probably lies in a simple fact. The Cairo visit was strictly an Israeli-Egyptian show, without Americans. All along Begin had wanted to negotiate bilaterally, but the attempts after Jerusalem were mostly disasters, and the Americans had to be called in. This time it worked.

"It shows they can deal face-to-face and get along," a diplomat said. "That is, they can emerge from a meeting with things in better shape, not worse."

Seen in that light, the Cairo visit supports what has been an optimistic theory of the peace process. That if it once took hold, it would produce its own momentum. As realities changed, so would underlying attitudes.

What happened in Cairo suggest that the reality of the treaty, of the new relationship between the two countries, is already taking hold.

The force of facts is the one real basis for hope in the much more difficult problem that lies immediately ahead: the negotiation over "autonomy" in the West Bank and Gaza. Right now Palestinians seem set against taking part in the plan, which their leaders denounce as a fraud. And the Begin government seems set on defining "autonomy" so narrowly, with so much authority retained by Israel, that Palestinian doubts are reinforced.

American diplomats will take part in the autonomy negotiations from the start, but there will be no miracles of American persuasion this time. Feelings on the West Bank issue run too deep, and the United States government simply does not have the power to talk either side out of its views.

Consider, for example, the small but psychologically crucial question of further Israeli settlements on the West Bank. President Carter has tried repeatedly to get Begin's agreement to a freeze on settlements, but he has had no success. Israeli politics as well as ideology simply make it impossible for Begin to agree. If the peace process is to go any further, the most likely prospect is Gaza. Sadat suggested last year that at least the Gaza Strip get a self-governing authority if it proved impossible to negotiate one for both areas. The Israeli government at first rejected the idea out of hand, but it now appears more interested.

Suppose that Egypt were able to negotiate a self-governing authority with significant powers for Gaza. Supposed Israel ended its military government in there and withdrew its forces to a few specified locations. Suppose Israel put a de facto freeze on settlements in the strip.

At that point Palestinians on the West Bank might take a different view of their own situation. The options realistically open to them would not look the same. If autonomy actually brought some political benefits for the Gazans, and reduced the daily frictions of military occupation, West Bank leaders might feel some pressure to join the process - and so might King Hussein in Jordan. However bitter feelings are, reality usually has its effects.

Of course it will not be easy to accommodate the opposing view of "autonomy" even for Gaza alone. Though the strip has much less emotional importance for Israelis than the West Bank, the Begin government will understand perfectly well that anything done there may be taken as precedent.

What might shift Israel's position, in time, is another reality: peace with Egypt, if it flourishes. Understandably, in light of history, many Israelis have doubted the possibility of living on safe and friendly terms with any Arab state.

Challenge to Tech

To the editor:

Commitment to Tech's future? What future? Academic freedom is dying at Tech, witness Equus. J. Fred Bucy, Kapitalist, wants to eliminate foreign students and English courses. The best way to attract students is to provide a progressive, exciting educational environment. No amount of money can buy that. Not when the ones in control (Bucy and certain Administration people) stand for the last stronghold of conservatism. I'll keep my seven dollars, please...At least until Tech shows me it does have a future.

Audience endured

To the editor:

Becky Stribling wrote a good review about a bad play when she reviewed "Pancho!" Terry Marrs performed brilliantly in the title role in spite of the very poor script.

Becky could have mentioned many other problems with the play. It must have been difficult for her to decide where to begin to criticize such a poor performance. The idea that God divinely inspired Pancho Villa (as well as Lenin and other less than savory revolutionaries) is ludicrous. This ludicrousness was heightened by having God take his own name in vain and also say things such as "Can you think of a better way to end the first act?"

Becky said that the vulgar elements of the revolution could not be ignored. I disagree. I don't think the very crude language, the repetitious innuendo, and the horny-handed fondling of the players were any more essential than going to the bathroom or vomiting to achieve realism. The conversation concerning sodomy with a pig and the accompanying pantomime failed to add anything positive to the play.

Perhaps worse than the script and the music was the obnoxious overacting of an actor who played among other parts: George Patton, Woodrow Wilson's advisor and a mariachi. His overdone acting was reminiscent of a high school cast in front of a videotape machine for the first time. Worst of all, he acted as queer as a three dollar bill most of the time he was on stage. In all fairness though, his exaggerated facial expressions did remind me of some mariachis I had seen in Juarez.

Perhaps it was space and not kindness that prevented Becky from listing all of the flaws in the play. The only time throughout the night that I applauded was when the cast was singing about the rape of the women during the revolution. I wouldn't have applauded then if I knew I was sitting next to Dean Culp and his wife.

When at last the three hour ordeal was over, the cast concluded by shrieking "We shall endure!" The audience already had.

Make room

To the editor:

I am astonished at the demands that were placed on me to reserve a room for myself for the fall and Spring Semesters of the 1979-1980 school year. Over half of the rooms in Hulen were reserved for Freshmen. This left an insufficient number of rooms for current occupants like myself. Contract signing began at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday but I was in line at 4:30 a.m. and others were in line at 10:30 p.m. Monday just to be sure to secure a room in the dorm. This is ridiculous! At 12:45 a.m. Hulen Hall had been filled but an extension was made and 50 more contracts were received. This proved profitless for persons like myself with classes from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and others with more important work to accomplish than to stand around in line all morning. This is unfair. Housing students is a problem, especially with requirements for Freshmen to live on campus. Tech should have a better organized plan for making arrangements to house upperclassmen and freshmen alike.

New assistant law dean aims to increase recognition

By JOEL BRANDENBERGER
UD Reporter

It's not very often that a successful criminal lawyer will give up private practice to become an assistant dean at a young law school with a limited reputation around the state and country.

BUT THAT'S exactly what Mike Irish, the newest assistant dean of the Tech Law School, did.

In 1978, Irish took the position of external assistant dean. With the title came a job that involved a placement service for graduating students, extensive work with the alumni, and public relations with lawyers around the region.

"This is an entirely different job from private practice. Obviously the work is more into the area of public relations than legal. But, I still keep in touch with the legal aspects of my job through the teaching I do."

Irish also teaches courses in prosecuting crimes and juvenile delinquency.

SINCE HIS arrival at the Law School, Irish has placed quite a bit of emphasis on getting graduating students good jobs and furthering the school's reputation. Irish graduated from the Tech Law School in 1972.

"Tech graduates are getting very good jobs for a school that is this young," Irish said. "Firms are now actively competing for our graduates. Not just the area firms, but larger markets like Dallas, El Paso, and Houston."

WHEN IT comes to the question of the Law School's reputation around the state, Irish agrees with Dean Frank Elliot's opinion that Tech is definitely the second best law school in the state, and even goes a little further.

"In many ways, Tech may have the best law school in the state now. The quality of education here may be superior to Texas. The faculty-student ratio is smaller here and because of that our faculty is much more receptive to our students outside of class."

IRISH attributes this excellent reputation to the performance of previous Tech graduates.

"I have been told by firms that Tech graduates enter into the legal profession quicker than graduates from other schools."

Despite Irish's efforts in public relations for the Law School, he sees room for improvement in his job and the school itself.

"We definitely need to get more funds from the alumni. They have given as much as they can in the past, but we still rely much too heavily on the money the Legislature appropriates us. Our lack of funds is one of the reasons why Texas is able to maintain a better reputation than us."

EVEN THOUGH Irish seems settled and happy in his law school position, he still yearns for the old days on occasion.

"I do miss private practice some, especially being around the courthouse and trying cases. After all, it's what I was trained to do."

IRISH' FIRST three years of law experience were as first assistant district attorney for the Lubbock District Attorney's office. During those years, he prosecuted numerous criminal cases. However, one in particular stands out in his mind.

"There was one murder case that Alton Griffin (former Lubbock District Attorney) and I prosecuted that will probably stick in mind forever."

"It involved three defendants who were charged with beating a retarded man to death with a bumper jack and then sexually abusing the body. I don't think I'll ever forget that case because of the brutality of the crime."

Irish and Griffin won the case.

WHEN HE left the District Attorney's office, Irish spent two years in a solo private practice where he found almost 75 percent of his time devoted to criminal cases.

In addition to that, he did some contract work and even things as simple as handling traffic tickets for his clients.

Faculty Senate to discuss calendar

By ROD MCCLENDON
UD Reporter

The fall semester schedule for 1980 will be a topic of discussion when the Faculty Senate meets Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in the University Center Senate Room.

THE SENATE will also elect officers for the coming year and make nominations for Senate and university committees and councils.

Margaret Wilson, president of the Faculty Senate, said the 1980 fall schedule may present the same problems that were found in the 1979 fall schedule.

Wilson said the Senate will look at the 1980 fall schedule and "see what we would like the academic council to do with it."

THE CALENDAR for the 1980 fall semester currently lists Dec. 15-19 as the week of final exams. Final grades are due Dec. 20.

Earlier in the semester, the Senate passed a resolution that helped lead to a change in the 1979 fall semester schedule.

In other business, the Committee on Committees will nominate persons to fill vacancies on Senate and university committees and councils.

The Senate will vote on the nominations and send its recommendations to Tech President Cecil Mackey.

The Committee on Committees tries to make nominations so that all colleges are represented on all committees, a person does not serve on more than one university committee at a time and all persons who indicate a willingness to serve on university committees are allowed to serve.

At the meeting, Senators may amend the list of committee nominees by moving to strike a name and substitute another.

Any Senator who nominates a person must have obtained the consent of the person to serve as evidenced by a completed nomination form. The completed form must be given to Helen Brittin, chairperson of the Committee on Committees, when the amendment is made.

Lawyer discusses 'women's place'

By KARLA SEXTON
UD Reporter

The attitude that a women's place is in the home still dominates society today, Marilyn Phelan, Tech legal counsel and law professor, told a group of about 40 women of the University Quarterly Club Tuesday.

"THE DOORS are open to women, but it is up to us to walk through those doors on our own because the courts are not going to help us anymore," Phelan said.

Phelan outlined the current status of cases now before the courts dealing with the status of women and discrimination in employment and hiring practices. Her topic was

Comments on the Status of Women, A.D. 1979."

"CURRENT CASES indicate that the courts are looking at affirmative action in a different way," Phelan said. "That women should be treated equal is obvious, and that they should not be passed over when qualified or accept a lower salary. But not that they should be hired over someone else when they are not as qualified."

Phelan quoted employment statistics which showed that though the numbers of women involved in positions that were traditionally male dominated have increased changes have come slowly, especially in colleges and universities.

THE MAIN obstacles

have been the societal attitudes of men and women, but mainly women. Women have been their own worst enemy," she said.

"But we can't give up. We must persist. It involves more of a challenge to young women to break into these positions; however, the majority of young women seem to feel that marriage is the main goal in their life," Phelan said.

Phelan responded to a question on the Equal Rights Amendment with tentative approval. "I feel that the Equal Rights Amendment will do a great deal because existing law can be revoked very easily. A Constitutional amendment is a higher category of law that is more difficult to revoke."

"Women should think of themselves as people rather than women and should not demand special working conditions or benefits. They will be treated equally and get chances for advancement," Phelan said. "And they should not be reticent about applying for a position of advancement when they are qualified for the position," she said.

general counsel, and was appointed to the Tech Law School faculty in 1974. She left private law practice in 1967 to join Tech's College of Business Administration faculty.

A TECH honor graduate, Phelan received her degree, with honors from the University of Texas. She completed her master's and doctorate of business administration at Tech. She also is a certified public accountant.

Homosexual male asks to take 'date' to prom

CUMBERLAND, R.I. (AP) - Paul, an avowed homosexual, wants permission to take another boy to the junior prom at Cumberland High School, and school officials are in a quandary over what to do about his request.

PAUL'S PLAN, which a homosexual group says may be unique, also pits him against his father, who opposes the son's request.

"I feel I have every right to go, just as any other junior does," Paul, 17, said Monday. "I thought it's about time somebody did it. It's time I stood up for what I believe in."

THE SCHOOL administration has asked the system's lawyer for a legal opinion and planned to have a tentative decision for Paul today, said Robert G. McGinnis, assistant school superintendent for Cumberland, a town of about 30,000 people in northern Rhode Island.

Paul, whose father asked that his last name be withheld to protect the family's privacy, said students are not allowed to go to the prom alone.

HE SAID the school's principal refused to let him take another boy, a student at another school, to the May 4 prom, so he asked the school committee to review the case. The principal declined to comment.

"Quite frankly, we're in a quandary," McGinnis said, adding that Paul's father opposes his son's plans.

"There's some complication vis-a-vis individual rights versus parental rights," McGinnis said. "I think the parents obviously have rights. I'm not at all clear which rights prevail."

MC GINNIS said he also feared Paul might be harmed by other students at the prom.

"I have been threatened, but that's not going to stop me," Paul said. "It really doesn't bother me. I want to make a point and I also want to go."

"My father is not liberal-minded. He thinks a junior prom is for a guy and a girl," Paul said.

THE FATHER said: "It's a touchy subject. I object to his going. But it's a private thing and I'd rather not talk about it."

Charles Noice, representative of the National Gay Task Force in Rhode Island, is working with Paul to help him get permission to go.

"He's gotten a lot of ridicule but he's decided to make a matter of principle of it," Noice said. "It's very clearly discrimination. He's not being allowed to go with the date of his choice."

Noice said he believes this is the first case in the United States of a homosexual asking to go to a high school prom with a male escort. He said dances for homosexual college students are relatively common.

Smoothness, control marks respected poet's reading

By DOUG NURSE
UD Staff
 Galway Kinnell—in informed literary circles the name is synonymous with poetic excellence.
 The contemporary giant of poetry spoke and read some of his much-lauded work Monday to a large crowd in Room 101 of the Mass Communications Building.
 His reputation is well-deserved.
 He read smoothly and with control. His rich voice and precise intonation accentuated the poetry, whether his own or that of others.
 Kinnell mixed poems by Phillip Levine and other colleagues with his own, the bulk of which came from his newer works. The lack of older material distressed some of his admirers, yet they seemed pleased with his more recent writings.

Performance: ...ON STAGE

 The presentation culminated in his reciting Part 10 from his tour d'force "Book of Nightmares" which led to Kinnell's receiving the Poetry Society of America's Shelley Memorial Award in 1973.
 Kinnell's poetry has, as creative writing professor

Walter McDonald put it, a musical quality. His rhythm and diction lends a lyrical quality to the poems.
 In contrast, Kinnell's themes tend to express the pain and anguish of being human in an isolated universe. But he adds a humanistic element of admiration that mankind persists in spite of the loneliness and adversity that accompanies human existence.
 Love is another of Kinnell's favorite themes—love of life; love of self; love of nature; love for another. The love theme was exemplified best in the "Book of Nightmares" reading.

Comedian Pat Paulsen to appear

Pat Paulsen wasn't a serious contender for president when he ran against the likes of Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey in 1968. In fact, Paulsen isn't very serious about anything.
 That's why he's been able to make a living as a comedian for the past couple of decades.
 Paulsen, best remembered for his tongue-in-cheek presidential campaign, will appear Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Civic Center Exhibit Hall as part of a program called "Lubbock Laugh-in." The event is sponsored by Phi Delta Theta.
 Also on the bill are comedian George Miller and a dance band named Rumors.
 Paulsen has not been the visible figure he once was as a regular on "The Smothers Brothers Show," a program which went through some political turbulence of its own.
 But the comedian hasn't been idle since the politically active days of the sixties. He has taken two college lectures on tour, "Pat Paulsen Looks at the '70s" and "A Lecture in Humor."
 Paulsen has appeared in theatrical productions as well, including "Play it Again Sam," "Three Men on a Horse" and "Last of the Red Hot Lovers."
 His first real interest in performing came while Paulsen was in California. He quit San Francisco City College and joined a Santa Rosa theater group. That and two other attempts were unsuccessful.

 Paulsen's successes began to accumulate once he assumed his now famous dead-pan facial expression, to which he attached a monotonous vocal delivery. The bored, bureaucratic look he cast soon became his trademark.
 Paulsen sold a song to The Smothers Brothers in 1966 which was included on their million-selling album "The Two Sides of The Smothers Brothers." He later hooked up with them as a regular on their late 1960s show.
 His job was to give an editorial a week, the first of which led to 4,000 viewer responses. Request for copies of his editorials once reached 15,000 a week.
 Paulsen won an Emmy award for his work during the 1967-68 television season.
 He also worked on other shows including "Glen Campbell's Good Time Hour" and "The Carol Burnett Show."
 George Miller is a young comedian who has made several appearances on Johnny Carson's "The Tonight Show" in addition to receiving several positive reviews from critics.
 Tickets for the show are $5 and $6. Tickets are available at B&B Music, Al's Music Machine, the UC Ticket Booth and the Civic Center box office.

Rockets glad for home court

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets defeated division winners San Antonio and Washington in their final two regular season games to earn the home court advantage against Atlanta in the National Basketball Association playoffs beginning tonight.

And Calvin Murphy, the littlest Rocket, figures the home court advantage could be pivotal for the Rockets. "It is a must to have the home court advantage in a mini-series," said Murphy. "Anything can happen in a mini-series. The way Atlanta played us this year, if they had the home court, let's face it, it was almost summertime for us."

But the Rockets, who blew big leads in several key games that could have given them the Central Division title over San Antonio, apparently weren't ready to plan their summer vacations.

"The key is that we are playing together now, everyone is playing within his limitations," Murphy said. "Everyone is contributing from his strength. I'm shooting from outside, Mike Newlin is driving inside, Rick Barry is doing the great passing, Slick Watts is coming off the bench to keep us in a great tempo, Moses Malone is gobbling up every rebound that comes anywhere near him."

The best of three game series begins in the Summit tonight and moves to Atlanta Friday night. A third game, if necessary, would return to Houston Sunday. The series winner advances to the second round against the defending NBA champion Washington Bullets.

"We've been tough when it counted," Newlin said of the Rockets' season ending surge. "The past three days, we were faced with the absolute necessity of winning three games in three days. We did it and we finished it by winning on the home court of the winningest team in basketball.

"What we've accomplished has been nothing short of amazing."

Gaining the home court advantage against the Hawks may have been the most amazing.

Ninth inning blast clips Raider baseball fortunes

Frustration must have settled on the Tech pitching staff after it suffered another last inning loss at the hands of the St. Mary's Rattlers 8-6 Tuesday night in San Antonio.

Clay Stolte, St. Mary's right fielder, knocked a Steve Ibarguen pitch out of the ball park with a teammate on base to win the game. Ibarguen suffered his fourth loss of the year against three wins.

four pitchers in the contest. The second game of the scheduled doubleheader was called off because of Tech's injury situation in the pitching corps.

Jamie Miller started for Tech and lasted three innings. He allowed three runs in the first and third innings to give the Rattlers an early 6-0 lead.

Chuck Johnson relieved him in the fourth and fired two innings of shutout ball. Tech outfielder-designated hitter Bobby Kohler then stepped in and threw two more innings, allowing the Rattlers no runs.

Larry Selby and John Keller each went three for five for the Raiders and Ron Litzner went two for four with three runs batted in for the Rattlers. Tech's Brooks Wallace had two RBIs and Randy Newton had three.

Today the Raiders will play the Trinity Tigers in a doubleheader at 1 p.m. The games will be played in San Antonio and the Raiders pitching rotation has not been announced.

PRESS BOX

Roup announces resignation

The Tech women's tennis program was dealt a severe blow Tuesday as first-year coach Donna Stockton Roup announced her resignation.

Roup cited personal reasons for her resigning, stating she "was unsuited to the environment here in West Texas and would be much happier elsewhere."

"My husband and I just didn't think we could settle permanently in Lubbock, which would be necessary in developing a first rate program. It would be unfair to the department and to the new girls coming in to start something and then leave," Roup said.

Roup's resignation came as a complete surprise to women's athletic director Jeannine McHoney.

"Donna never mentioned anything about being unhappy here at Tech until the day she first talked to me about resigning. I am saddened that Donna has decided to resign. She has great potential as a collegiate tennis coach."

Roup will continue as tennis coach through the remainder of the season. Although Roup is undecided about her coaching future, she and her husband will move to Florida at the end of the season.

Netters face WTSU

After a week off from match play, the Tech women's tennis team resumes action today with a dual match against West Texas State University in Canyon.

Tech will try to improve on its 9-10-1 dual match record. The Raiders defeated WTSU convincingly, 9-0, last fall. In 1979, however, the Raiders have won only two of nine dual matches.

Of greater concern to Coach Donna Roup is that only Sandra Carrillo is over .500 in singles play this spring.

The doubles story is much the same, as the team holds an 8-26 record in pairs play.

Rice snares net victory

The Rice Owls fought wind and dust for six hours at the Raider tennis courts Tuesday before securing a 5-4 victory over the Raider tennis team.

The loss left Tech with a 9-11 season record and an 0-4 Southwest Conference ledger.

The Raiders earned a 3-3 split with the Owls in singles competition, but Rice took two of three matches in doubles play to wrap up the win. The final few games were moved to the Racquet Club because of darkness.

Singles: Doug Davis, Tech, def. Rocky Royer, 4-6, 6-3, 7-6; Jay Evert, Rice, def. Chow Wah, 7-6, 6-7, 6-4; Dan Rastland, Rice, def. Harrison Bowes, 6-7, 6-3, 6-1; David Crissey, Tech, def. Mark Holland, 6-1, 6-4; Randy Clayton Tech, def. Bob Paulsen, 6-7, 7-6, 6-4; Mark Smith Rice, def. Reobert Davis, 6-7, 7-6, 7-6.

Doubles: Everet-Royer,

Rice, def. Doug Davis-Bowes, 6-4, 6-1; Holland-Paulsen, Rice, def. Crissy-Wah, 6-7, 6-4, 6-3; Robert Davis-Gregg Davis, Tech, def. Rastland-Smith, 6-1, 3-6, 7-6.

Pride & Crew hoop champions

Joe Baxter hit a close-in jumper with two seconds remaining in the third overtime to win the Bookstore Basketball Tourney for Texas Pride, 97-96 over the Spartans.

The game was close from the opening tip-off with neither team ever leading by more than four points. The score was knotted 37-37 at half, 58-58 at the third quarter mark and 82-82 at the end of regulation. Eric Felton almost single-handedly won the game for the Spartans as he scored eight points in the final overtime. Felton led all scorers with 42 points while Baxter had 33. Ben Hill of the Spartans and Kelly Newsome of Pride both contributed 24 points.

In the women's finals, the Wrecking Crew demolished the O.D.'s 54-33 to claim their first championship. Leading the way for the winners was Ronda Farley with 23 points. Lynn Webb had 16 points for the O.D.'s.

Sixty-two teams competed in the week long tournament sponsored by the Tech Bookstore and Recreational Sports.

Tennis singles players to take over Saturday

Now that the doubles tennis players have competed, it's time for those racquet buffs who think they can handle the competition on their own to take the court in the Saturday Morning "Live" tennis tournament Saturday.

All competition will take place on the Intramural Gym courts and there will be three divisions of competition. The men will have two divisions of action, an "A" division and a "B" division. The women will have just one division.

Entries for the tournament are due Thursday at 5 p.m. in the Recreational Sports Office, Building X-17. All Tech students, faculty and staff are invited to enter.

A pro set will be played in determining the winners of the matches. The person which wins eight games first, by a two game margin, will be declared the winner. In cases of a tie at eight, a nine-point tie-breaker will be played.

Each player competing in the tournament must bring a can of unopened balls to his match. Forfeit time will be game time at all the matches.

All other tennis rules will apply.

Outdoor program develops contest

The Recreational Sports outdoor program is conducting a photography contest and entries for the contest are due Friday at 5 p.m. in the Outdoor Shop of the Intramural Gym or at the Recreational Sport Office, Building X-17.

Each entrant will be allowed to enter three prints in the categories of black and white and color prints. All entries must deal with subjects relating to outdoor recreational activities.

Judging will be based on the relevancy to the quality of the print, layout, lighting and composition. Each print will be judged on its own merits.

All prints must be framed, matted or mounted on heavy paper or cardboard. The name of the entrant, phone number and address should be placed on the back of each print. Each entrant must fill out an entry blank, listing all entries as well as other pertinent information.

The prints will be on display in the Outdoor Shop, Room 101 of the Intramural Gym, during the week of April 16-20. The Outdoor Program will accept no liability for the value of the entries.

Prizes will be awarded to the top two places in both categories and the entries may be picked up April 24 between 3-5 p.m. The prints will be available in Room 101 of the Intramural gym.

Winner's circle

WRIGHT RETAINS TENNIS TITLE

Deana Wright of Stangel Hall emerged as the winner in the round robin playoffs of the women's intramural tennis singles championships. Only the finalists of the tourney participated in the playoffs.

Wright beat Angie Railsback, an independent, 6-4 and 6-3 and Julie Fowler of Chi Omega 3-6, 6-4 and 6-1. Fowler finished second in the tourney when she defeated Railsback in their match 6-1 and 7-6.

SUPERSTAR CROWN GOES TO COTTON

Christy Cotton, an independent, became a "superstar" at Tech after competing in the weeklong women's tournament. Susan Harrington of Delta Gamma took second place honors.

Cotton and Harrington were battling neck-and-neck through the last event. Cotton however pulled ahead. The ten events included: tennis, bowling, swimming, inner-tube racing, obstacle course competition, 880-yard racing, miniature golfing, badminton competition, softball throwing and basketball free throw shooting.

PHI DELTS CROWNED VOLLEYBALL CHAMPS

The Phi Delt's "A" team won the men's intramural volleyball championship against the Piranhas, winning two games 16-14 and 15-10.

In the semifinal round the Phi Delt's defeated the Sneed "X" squad 15-12 and 15-12. The Piranhas beat Sigma Phi Gamma 15-2 and 15-1.

Tech's tennis coaches offering free sessions

Donna Roup, the women's head tennis coach and Mark Hamilton, the men's head tennis coach will conduct free tennis clinics for those who wish to improve upon their overall play, April 16 and 23.

The clinics will be conducted on the Intramural Gym Courts and the sessions will start at 4:30 p.m. on both dates.

The clinics are for anyone wishing to improve, whether they are a beginner or an advanced player. All the potential Wimbledon champs need do is bring a tennis racquet to the sessions. The instructors will furnish the tennis balls.

Each clinic will concentrate on different facets of tennis. In the first session the coaches will emphasize ground strokes and the serve. In the second class the coaches will concentrate on volleys and overhead shots.
