CRITIQUE By Glenn Coates

A new volume received at the Book Stall will probably begin showing up on national "best seller" lists in a few weeks. The book is "The Wine of Youth" by Robert Wilder.

Few readers should be unfamiliar with Wilder as two of his previous novels have been made into movies and all of them have enjoyed best seller status.

In this newest writing, Wilder sets his story in Texas and particularly in the oil industry. The best thing that can be said for the book is that it is a much better presentation of our state than is described in Edna Ferber's misinformed book, "Giant."

If you have followed the series of articles on what various denominations or branches of faith believe, the thought may have occurred that this would be useful information to preserve.

Simon and Schuster has put 19 of the articles, which appeared first in Look magazine and then were distributed by a newspaper syndicate, under one cover, Leo Rosten has edited the volume, which is more than a collection of the pieces.

One useful device which Rosten has created is the doctrinal digest. Under such subjects as God, Christ, church, sacraments, Bible, prayer, heaven and hell, sin, divorce and marriage, and social responsibility, capsule statements of the positions of major branches of faith are enumerated.

The dispassionate and calmly stated beliefs by men within the confines of those beliefs makes these articles enlightening reading. They are a far cry from the often intemperate harangues of extremists and thus offer a basis of sober appreciation for the position of others in the exercise of their religious life.

"A Guide to the Religions of America" come either in a paperback edition at $1.00 a copy or in the cloth-back permanent binding at $3.50. The volume makes excellent reference material for your library.—JOE PICKLE

Benson Cancels 'Risk' Label On Ladejinsky

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today withdrew his designation of Wolf Ladejinsky as a security risk.

The announcement of Benson's action came in a letter to Sen. Carlson (R-Kan.), a member of a Senate Civil Service subcommittee investigating the employe security program. Carlson made the letter public.

Benson said he had taken steps to make sure "our record will not show Mr. Ladejinsky as a security risk."

Ladejinsky, a Russian-born land reform specialist, was fired late last year from a post as agricultural attache in Japan. Benson acted then on grounds he considered Ladejinsky a security risk, although Ladejinsky had previously been cleared by the State Department before agricultural attaches had been shifted to Agriculture Department jurisdiction.

Ladejinsky denied all allegations against him and after a considerable furor arose over the matter, the Foreign Operations Administration headed by Harold E. Stassen, gave Ladejinsky security clearance and hired him to work on land reform in Indochina. FOA now has gone out of existence and its functions taken over by the new International Cooperation Administration under the State Department.

Benson said in his letter to Carlson he recognized he Ladejinsky case was "reviewed by two agencies more experienced in security than this department."

He added he also recognized "as expressed in my statement at a news conference on Jan. 5, 1955, that 'it will always be true with respect both to qualifications and to security that reasonable men may not take the same view as to a particular person. It is possible for two equally reasonable and conscientious men to reach different conclusions.'"

Mexican Cotton Farmers Threaten New Roadblocks

MATAMOROS, Mexico, July 2 (AP)—Mexican cotton growers today called off their roadblocks but indicated they would go back up Monday if their delegation to Mexico City failed to get a reduction in the cotton export tax.

Soldiers were posted by the Army on the border town, located across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Tex., late yesterday after cotton farmers blocked all main highways by parking their trucks and other vehicles across the roadways. They allowed American tourists to go through but stopped all commercial traffic. There was no violence.

The farmers are protesting a 22.55 per cent export tax on cotton which the Mexican government has levied. A committee representing the Mexican Cotton Assoc. of Matamoros is now in Mexico City urging the federal government to lower the tax.

Alfonso Pacheco, president of the Mexican Cotton Growers Assn. at Matamoros, said today the roadblocks had been terminated for the present at least while the growers awaited the results of the Mexico City meeting and so that they would not interfere with tomorrow's national elections.

He said, however, that he understood the cotton growers planned to resume their blockade Monday if some satisfactory agreement had not been reached in Mexico City.

Culver Glidden, American consul here, said the farmers met in Matamoros Plaza yesterday before starting the blockade. He said they want a lower export duty on cotton which is now about 5 per cent higher than similar duties on the Mexicali, Baja California, area cotton.

"Growers around Matamoros don't know what to do with their cotton," Glidden said. "Cotton picking has been going on for a couple of weeks."

It Takes Lots Of Everything

Lois Madison stands by one of his 1,000-gallon irrigation wells west of Tarzan. Madison farms 2,000 acres of land — both irrigated and dryland — and strives to make every acre produce its maximum. He finds it takes lots of work, lots of water, and lots of money. Madison's theory has paid off, though.

Tarzan Farmer Tries To Make Every Acre Produce The Limit

By JESS BLAIR
In the Tarzan community of Martin County, big farming is in vogue. The men who produce the cotton, pay the income tax and buy high-priced equipment are farmers who cultivate large acreages. And one of the biggest in the community is Lois Madison, a former Big Spring, who had wanted to get back on the farm for fifteen years.

Back in 1945, while operating a barber shop in Big Spring, Madison bought his first land between Tarzan and Lenora. Help was scarce, as well as money, so he did double duty by plowing a 11 night, then driving madly back to Big Spring to put in a day barbering. Sometimes he almost dozed off while shaving a customer, and as soon as the customer left, Madison took a nap in the barber chair.

"For several weeks that summer," he said, "the only sleep I got was in that barber chair." He made a good crop that year, then laid aside his razor and shears and moved to the farm. He farmed dryland for a year or so, then began to rent irrigated land. Now several years later, he has a big country home equal to some of Big Spring's finest. He owns 917 acres of good farmland, of which a third is under irrigation. Besides his own land, he rents 1,000 more acres both dryland and irrigated. He has six large tractors, keeps 12 men employed during the crop season, and often has hundreds of others working for him at cotton picking time.

It is not an easy job, by any means, because he still works almost as hard as when he was barbering all day and plowing all night.

"It may be worth it," he said, "because I've made some good crops and got a good price for them. But sometimes I wish I could slow down a little. Why, in the last few years, the farthest I've been away from home was a two-day trip to Dallas."

Madison has a theory about irrigation farming which has paid big dividends. This is to make every acre produce to the utmost, regardless of the expense. Last year in following this through, he almost set a state record in raising cotton. On 125 acres of irrigated land, he picked 325 bales for almost a three-bale an acre average.

"In the kind of farming that people do here," he said, "You go out for the highest possible production. This doesn't mean throwing money away, but it does mean putting on plenty of water, applying several hundred pounds of fertilizer per acre, and fighting the bugs from eight to 10 times. When you farm like this, you often have a bale to the acre expense. If you make any money, it's got to be a high yield."

Up until this year, when he bought an irrigated farm, all of Madison's irrigated cotton was on rented land. The rent he paid his landlord in 1953 and '54 was enough to keep an average family comfortably well off for several years.

Yet regardless of the big returns in irrigated farming, it is always a gamble. Just as men make fortunes with cotton, they can also lose them during one or two bad years.

"You're always gambling in this business," Madison said. "This has been a bad year so far. I've planted a total of 8,000 acres already this year, and that means a lot of money already spent. Even after you get a crop up past the blowing and washing out stage, you still don't have it made. There is always the threat of a hailstorm that could wipe out a $50,000 crop in 15 minutes."

Practically all farmers in Tarzan farm by the same method now. They put on more water, more fertilizer and fight the insects oftener than in most other irrigated areas. They have found that bigger profits are made where the water is confined to a smaller acreage. They said that the farmer who tries to stretch his water over too many acres will often lose a good part of the crop during the hot weeks of July and August.

Farming 2,000 acres is big business and a big job, but Lois Madison has never regretted leaving the barber shop.

"Barbering is not a bad business," he said, "but when I was in the shop, I always wanted to be back on the farm. Now that the wife and I are pretty well set up here, I guess that razor and the shears will just keep on gathering dust."

Mrs. Broughton Identifies Farm

Harder or easier? This past week's "Mystery Farm" photo in The Herald, that is.

Might have been harder, as there were fewer "guesses" than usual. But it might have been easier, since only four of the callers gave a wrong identification.

More than a dozen had the right answer, but the first correct identification reached The Herald from Mrs. Harold Broughton, 1004 1/2 Main. She accordingly is receiving two free passes to any local theatre.

Also in Wednesday's paper will be another in the series of "Mystery Farm" photos. Readers are asked to identify the rural place, and the first one to give The Herald correct identification, by phone, in person, or by mail, will receive the show passes.

Big Springers On TWC Honor Roll

EL PASO — Three graduates of Big Spring High School have been named to the Texas Western College honor roll for the spring semester.

They are Barbara Blair, daughter of J. F. Blair, 904 E. 15th; Billie Sue Craig, daughter of Mrs. E. T. White, 304 Johnson; and Donald K. McCarty, son of Clayton E. McCarty, 435 Dallas.

Miss Craig was a June graduate of TWC with a Bachelor of Arts degree. She majored in speech pathology. While in school, she was a member of Women's Athletic Association, Rodeo Club, Psychology Club, Belles, a cheerleader, and was named to Alpha Chi, national honorary scholastic fraternity and Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Miss Blair is a junior radio major and a member of Alpha Epsilon Rho, national honorary radio and television fraternity, and Women's Athletic Association. McCarty is a freshman physics major.

To be named to the honor roll, a student must maintain a grade point average of 3.2, or slightly higher than a "B" average.

MEN IN SERVICE

Buddy Blankenship, who is stationed at San Diego in the U. S. Navy, is home on leave. He is visiting here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Blankenship until July 9.

2nd Lt. Robert P. Byron, son of Paul E. Byron, Colorado City, has completed the officer basic course at the Armored School in Ft. Knox, Ky. He is a former employe of Crescent Oil Company in Dallas and has been in the Army since June of 1954. Lt. Byron was graduated in 1954 from the New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell, N. M.

Pvt. Charles G. Gomez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fabian S. Gomez, 505 NW 4th St. in Big Spring is a member of the 2nd Infantry Division at Ft. Lewis, Wash. He is a rifleman in Company B of the division's 38th regiment and has been in the Army since January of 1955. His basic training was taken at Ft. Ord, Calif. Prior to entering service, Pvt. Gomez attended McMurry College in Abilene.

'Surplus' Milk Price Abolished

Surplus milk prices ended July 1 for local dairymen who market their milk at the Midland processing plant. For all surplus milk above the average produced during three months last fall and winter, they had been receiving half price.

From here on, they will be on what dairymen call "blend" prices. This means that if the company gets more milk than it can sell, the loss in surplus milk will be distributed among the producers.

"The big producer will have a little advantage now," said D. C. Buchanan, who is milking 54 cows at present, "but really it is not much better than it was before July 1."

Most producers who buy all their feed have noticed a few hopeful signs during the last few weeks. While concentrates have remained about the same alfalfa hay and cottonseed hulls have been slowly dropping in price. They say that hay at $30 to $35 per ton is cheaper than silage at $15.

Big Spring Students In Southwest Texas

SAN MARCOS — With the registration of approximately 1,450 students, summer enrollment at Southwest Texas State College has reached its highest since 1951 and only 113 less than then.

Helping to push the summer enrollment to a new high at SWT this summer are two Big Spring students, Mrs. Sadie Sue Beeman and Mrs. Joseph Elrod.

Mrs. Christine Elrod of Trent is also enrolled at SWT. Mrs. Elrod is a senior majoring in English.

Doctors, Nurses Needed By VA

The Veterans Administration is seeking doctors and nurses to meet the expansion of services at the Big Spring and Martin hospitals. Depending upon professional qualifications, pay offered physicians ranges from $5,500 to $12,800 per year. The pay range for eligible nurses in the VA's department of medicine and surgery is from $3,740 to $7,040 per year. In addition, the places offer vacations, sick leave and pension rights, inservice training and professional advancement.

Doctors or nurses interested should contact the personnel officer or chief of medical services in the hospital in which they might be interested in serving.

AS DROUGHT AID Area Farmers Ask 'Incentive Funds'

LAMESA — Farm and business leaders from 10 area counties, meeting here Friday, adopted a recommendation that the Department of Agriculture provide "incentive funds" to encourage the planting of cover crops, listing and other wind erosion control measures.

Requested were payments for cover crops by Aug. 1. The proposed rates for grain and sweet sorghums would range from $1.50 for 40-inch rows to $2.25 for 20-inch rows. Payment for sudan and millet would be at the same rate when seeded in rows, while drilled millet and rye would draw $2.25 per acre.

The farmers also asked payment for listing. If rains hold off until September, because of the lateness of the season for planting cover crops.

The recommendations will be submitted to the State ASC committee meeting at College Station July 11 by Dub King, Farm Bureau director for District II. Counties represented at the meeting were Howard, Dawson, Gaines, Terry, Yoakum, Hockley, Lynn, Martin, Midland and Glasscock.

King, of Brownfield, said Lubbock, Lamb, Bailey and Cochran County farm groups also want to be included in the program.

Seth Rainey, Dawson Farm Bureau president, conducted the meeting at the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce. C. H. DeVaney of Coahoma, vice president of the Texas Farm Bureau; Ralph White, president of the Howard County Farm Bureau; J. H. Greene, Big Spring Chamber manager; and Jimmy Taylor, Howard County farm agent, were among those attending.

Coffee Table Useful Item For Any Home

DO IT YOURSELF

By BILL BAKER
Probably the most useful piece of furniture in the living room is the coffee table. If you are unhappy with the one you have, or if you don't have one, then you're missing a lot of the joys this useful item can bring to your home.

If you are in the big "we need a coffee table" group, you'll especially like the do-it-yourself design I have for you today. It is guaranteed to give your room more beauty.

My pattern package No. 133 will be your guide in this easy-to-do project. For a few dollars in cash and a few pleasant hours in your workshop, you'll own a major piece of furniture worth more than a hundred dollars.

Although this coffee table is in provincial design, it is ideal for any style home. In the strictly modern room, for example, the smoothly curved lines of the table form a perfect accent item. Provincial or Early American homes, naturally, will offer the right setting for the table too.

Here's how you can get a provincial coffee table pattern package: send your name and address (clearly printed), together with only one dollar ($1) to check, cash or money order, to Bill Baker, Big Spring Herald, P. O. Box 1111, Los Angeles 2, Calif. Be sure to ask for Pattern No. 133.

Your finished coffee table will be 30 inches wide and standard coffee table high. The plan is flexible enough, however, to let you select the length that would be most acceptable in your room. My original table, shown in the picture above, is five feet long. You can make it either four or six feet in length, however.

"Easy" is the best word to describe the actual building project of the table. And it's the type of project that even the novice woodworker can handle with few problems.

In my pattern package, for example, you'll find each section of the table duplicated in heavy-weight paper. Like a woman's dress pattern, all you'll have to do is tack, trace and cut.

Only a few basic tools will be necessary to do the job. If you don't own an elaborate shop of power tools — don't worry.

You'll use a coping saw for the curved sections, a straight saw for the top, a screw driver and a hammer. Or you might want to ask your lumberyard to cut the pieces to size — many do this for a low fee. Then all you'll have to do is assemble. Included with the pattern package is an easy-to-read instruction sheet. A full and complete material list and diagrams of each section of the construction project are also included.

Easy To Build

If your home needs a coffee table, you'll do well to add Bill Baker's provincial design, shown above with lovely Hollywood actress Junie Blair. Table is easy-to-build project, ideal for beginning woodworker.

Three Assault Charges Filed

Three aggravated assault cases, one charge of drunken driving and a workless check complaint have been filed in County Court in the last three days.

Charged with assault were Joe Lopez, Elton Bullita and H. C. Wilson. The case against Wilson was dismissed by Acting Judge Joe Moss when the complainant Gladys Crow told the county attorney she wished to withdraw her complaint.

Lopez is charged with committing an assault against Nancy Lopez on Thursday. Bullita is charged with assaulting Nina Bullita on Tuesday. Wilson was charged with committing an assault against Miss Crow on Thursday.

A fine of $50 and three-day jail term were set for Walter Kreisler, who pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated.

Bail was set at $500 for A. C. Cookney who pleaded not guilty to a charge of defrauding of worthless check.

Garden Hose Pulls Indian Rope Trick

DOWNEY, Calif. (AP)—The garden hose that George Di Peso bought isn't watering the lawn. It is giving George the willies. It is doing the Indian rope trick, in reverse.

He'd take it back to the hardware store, if he could handle it. Di Peso made all this known, and more, as follows:

The hose is behaving like a snake, although it is only a half-inch in diameter and made of plastic. It has burrowed itself into the Di Peso lawn, and it keeps going deeper into the ground. Nobody can pull it out. The water hasn't been turned on.

Everybody tried a hand in reclaiming the sinking hose, but the harder they pulled, the deeper it sank into the lawn. Di Peso hitched it to the bumper of his auto and pulled in low gear, but the hose stretched, then snapped near the faucet.

To compound the mystery, the hose then sank another 18 inches into the ground. Di Peso tied it to the faucet last night but today it had gone down two feet more and was bending the hydrant pipe. The hose is now 12 feet in the ground. It has descended cleanly through the clay structure. There is no trace of water action. There are no underground wells in the vicinity and the water table is 120 feet below the surface. Di Peso says he doesn't think anybody is playing a trick on him, and he's not kidding anybody, either.

Dr. Ian Campbell of the California Institute of Technology geology department says he can't explain the phenomenon "but if it were my hose I'd start digging and find out what's on the other end."

Di Peso is thinking of letting the hose go and buying a sprinkler system. Meantime, the neighborhood is agog and Di Peso's phone is driving the family to distraction, he said.

Argentine Antarctic Base Classified Naval

BUENOS AIRES, July 2 (AP)—The government has announced that an Argentine detachment on Antarctic Half Moon Island has been classified as a naval base under control of the naval ministry here. The island is in the southern Shetland cluster. Britain also claims it.

Ed Fisher Buys Into Little Shop

Purchase of a sizeable interest in the Little Shop has been announced by Edward Fisher, thus returning a name long familiar in merchandising channels here to active retail experience.

Fisher has acquired the interest of Mrs. Alice Cravens and Mrs. Mildred (Friday) Corbin in the Little Shop, effective July 1. He will be associated with Mrs. Grace Miller and Mrs. Georgia Johnson in the operation of the shop. Fisher will be actively participating in the management of the store and indicated that the same policies of fashion and quality would be maintained in the operation of the concern.

Fisher is the youngest son of Mrs. Edith K. Fisher and the late Albert M. Fisher, and grew up in Big Spring under the influence of his father's widely known Albert M. Fisher Company. He was vice president of the concern at the time it was sold to Hemphill-Wellis Company.

Shortly after the store was sold, four of the Fisher staff members — Mrs. Cravens, Mrs. Corbin, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Johnson pooled efforts and resources to found the Little Shop. It was opened in August of 1947. Mrs. Cravens had for years been chief assistant to the late Albert Fisher and during World War II when young Albert Fisher and Edward Fisher were in service, she was general manager of the store. Mrs. Corbin's association goes back many years with the Fisher Company, too.

Fred C. McKinnon Services Held At Lamesa Saturday

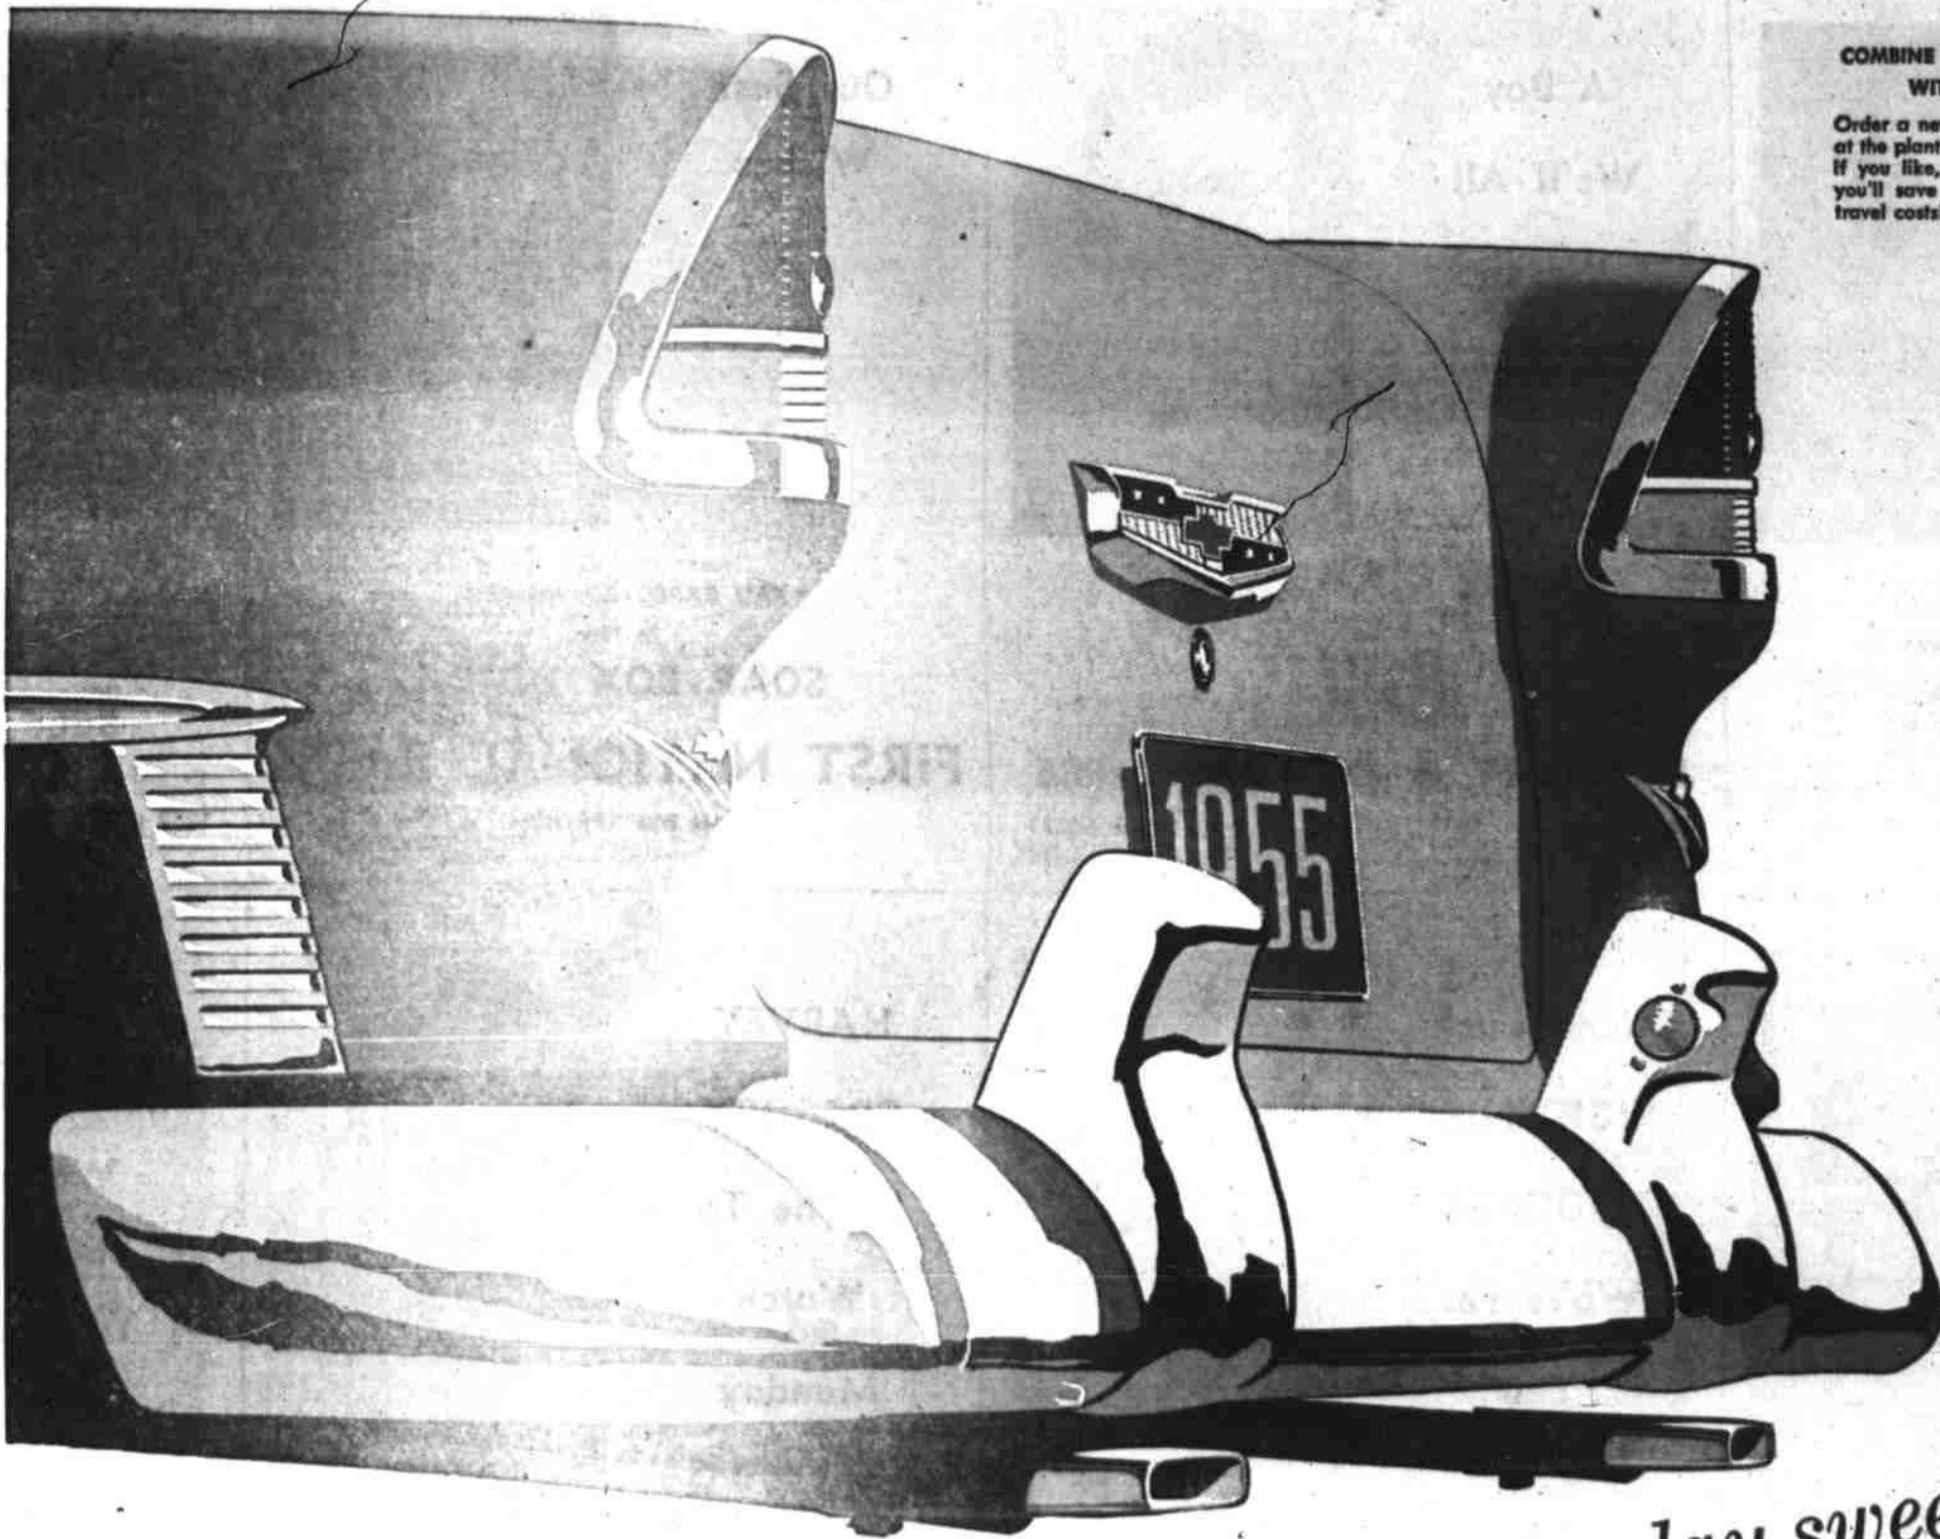

LAMESA — Funeral services were conducted here at 4 p.m. Saturday for Fred C. McKinnon, 70, who died Friday in Abilene.

Mr. McKinnon had been in Abilene for about two months. He had lived in Dawson County for 32 years. He was a former employe of the Lamesa Cotton Oil Mill.

Born Mar. 27, 1885 in Waxahachie he was a member of the Methodist Church for 50 years. He also was active in the Masonic lodge.

Services were conducted at the Higginbotham Chapel with the Rev. J. Lloyd Mayhew, First Methodist pastor, officiating. Burial was in the Lamesa cemetery.

Survivors include five sons, Claude McKinnon of Odessa, Jimmy of Berkeley, Calif., Roy of Farmington, N. M., Kirk of Abilene, Loren of El Paso; one daughter, Mrs. Glenn Huffman of McCamey; 13 grand children and four great-grandchildren. Pallbearers were H. N. Howell, Wright G. Boyd, Johnny Lyons, Sam Jenkins, Bud McDonald, D. O. Huddleston, Raymond Evans and Stanley Wilks.

Twin Pipes that play sweet music!

Chevrolet's Super Turbo-Fire V8 with 180 hp.

Some like it hot... and the hottest of the lot is Chevrolet's "Super Turbo-Fire V8."

You can spot this one by the twin tailpipes. They're easy to see because the back view is just about the only glimpse you get of this astounding performer! No matter what you drive, you're going to have to get used to the idea of seeing twin-exhaust Chevrolets pulling away — in traffic, on the toughest hills, on the long straightaways.

... Unless you have a "Super Turbo-Fire V8" of your own. And then you'll know what it's like to pilot the car that sets the pace for everything else — and doesn't pause to read the price tags!

What makes the Super seat? Chevrolet's superb valve-in-head V8, with the shortest stroke in the industry, the most power per pound, and the only 12-volt electrical system in its field — all this plus a four-barrel carburetor and free-breathing twin exhausts.†

Want to sample this silk-lined cyclone? Just give us a call, any day this week, and we'll be proud to show you just how hot a V8 can be.

*Optional at extra cost.
†Station wagon models have single exhaust pipes.

Furillo Error Opens Door For Bucs' Win In Tenth

John O'Brien Hits Clincher

BROOKLYN, July 2 (AP)—Carl Furillo dropped a fly ball for his first error of the season and Johnny O'Brien followed with a single in the 10th inning today for lowly Pittsburgh's second straight victory over first-place Brooklyn, 7-6, after Carl Erskine and Don Newcombe blew a comfortable lead.

The Dodgers engaged in a story debate in the last of the 10th after Don Zimmer singled and Dale Long made a diving catch of pinch-hitter Pee Wee Reese's bunt to start a double play.

Cubs Defeat Cards 7th Straight Time

CHICAGO, July 2 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis, 4-3, today for the seventh straight time when Randy Jackson and Walker Cooper hit home runs during the winners' three-run eighth inning before 15,623.

But the Cardinals fought back with two runs in the ninth when Nelson Burbrink survived on Gene Baker's error and Pete Whiteant smacked a pinch home run.

Murray Is Bat Leader

DALLAS, July 2 (AP)—Bounding 14 hits in 27 times at bat, Dallas' versatile catcher, Gangling Ray Murray, has shot into the lead in Texas League batting.

Key man of the pennant-driving Eagles, Murray added 24 points to his average during the past week and took over the top spot with .341.

He knocked Eddie Knoblauch, his outfielding teammate, down to second as Eddie dropped six points from his average and is batting .338.

In third place is Les Fleming, Shreveport first baseman, who is hitting .330.

Knoblauch still is the guy with the most hits, however. The fleet Eagle centerfielder has pounded 111 and is one of five players to go over the 100-hit mark this season to date.

Most Courteous Driver Chosen

A. H. Hardin, 1705 Owens, was chosen as "motorist of the month" for June by the Citizens Traffic Commission. Hardin, a salesman who spends a lot of his time under a steering wheel, was picked as the most courteous driver of "Motor Manners Month," which the CTC sponsored. He was cited for aiding a motorist who was stalled in the heat at busy Fourth and Gregg on June 7. While other drivers honked and mumbled, Hardin assisted in pushing the stalled car from the intersection to a garage. The total number of drivers cited for courtesy during the month was 97 — just under the CTC goal of 100. Among the latest cited were Al Kloven, H. W. Smith, a telephone company truck operator, Mrs. Everett Weman, Mrs. B. F. Everett, and an unidentified driver who was in an Oregon car, license number 62107. Selecting the motorist of the month were CTC leaders Roy Reeder, Jack Cook, Bill Cox and George Oldham.

Receive Advancement Awards

Climaxing the junior Royal Ambassador camp at the Baptist district encampment grounds south of here last week was the awards program Thursday evening. Here, with the Rev. Aud Jones of Notreas, they mass on the stage of the tabernacle during the ceremonies. There were 261 youngsters from this area registered for the week's activities. J. A. Lunsford, formerly stationed in Brazil, was the camp missionary and R. A. Chapman, Dallas, state RA secretary, was a program leader. This week Latin-American youngsters will come to the camp on Tuesday. Next week will be the intermediate girls followed by intermediate boys. Two weeks of camp have produced an aggregate attendance of 684.

Parr Faces Civil Suit

ALICE, Tex., July 2 (AP)—A civil suit was filed with the 79th District Court Clerk here today alleging that George B. Parr, South Texas political leader, used $172,500 of Duval County funds in 1947 to pay his income taxes. The suit filed by District Attorney Sam H. Burris on behalf of Duval County seeks recovery of $172,500 plus 6 per cent interest per annum. Defendants named in the suit are Parr; Mrs. Thelma Parr, his former wife; and the now defunct Texas State Bank of Alice, former depository of Duval County funds.

Train Strikes, Kills 2 Boys

MINNEAPOLIS, July 2 (AP)—Two 14-year-old boys were run over and killed by a passenger train early today as they lay sleeping between the tracks in suburban Minnetonka township. The youths, apparently sharing a single sleeping bag, had camped on the Minneapolis — St. Louis tracks after chatting with several teenage girls holding a slumber party at a home near the tracks. Killed were Roger Moeller and Donald Running. There was no explanation as to why the boys had camped between the tracks. Both of them lived in the area and knew the trackage was in regular use. The spot where they were killed is opposite a grassy clearing, ideal for a camping site.

A man told me the other day that I was printing too much bad news about crops and the weather, and should try to write something more cheerful. Reporting on crop conditions right now is like the horse thief who had a rope around his neck just before being hanged. When they asked if he had any last words, he started out by saying, "Well, I'm a little disappointed in the way things are turning out." A lot of people are unhappy about the way crops are turning out, but there is not much they can do about it. However, West Texans live on hope and not many of them ever give up completely. The country south of Garden City received good rains last Tuesday night. Jim Ratliff said he had .81 of an inch at one ranch and about half as much at the other. Clarence Bryan got so much water in one of the draws that a water gap was completely washed out. To the east, near U. S. Highway 87, Homer McKinley got half an inch of rain. "It wasn't much," he said, "but was about as much as I've ever had at one time the last few years."

Library Checks Out 7,761 Books In June

The Howard County Free Library reported Saturday that 7,761 books were checked out in June. Of this total, 2,905 were adult fiction, 409 were adult non-fiction, 2,984 were juvenile fiction, 473 were juvenile non-fiction and 992 were pre-school books, according to Opal McDaniel, librarian. The library received 172 new books last month and 37 donations.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Sometimes I wonder whether I should take up a certain subject. If I do so, I know that I shall receive many letters — too many to publish in the space I have for this column. In regard to parakeets, for example, I have dozens of fine letters which came to me after the last time I mentioned them. Lately I have gone over a batch of those letters, and shall quote from a few of them today. "Pinto Towaco breeds me by calling out my middle name, 'Dee.' He calls my husband 'Poe's Boy.' 'Twice he got out of the house, and each time we picked up his toys and went to look for him. His toys are chiefly bells, of which he owns about a hundred. We rang the bells, and this helped to coax him. The first time we found him in a lilac bush, on the lot where we keep two monkeys, nine dogs and some cats." It seems to me that Mrs. Poe is fortunate to have a special lot on which to keep all those pets!

Terrorists Put Torch To Farms

ALGIERS, July 2 (AP)—Nationalist terrorists put the torch to rich French farmlands in Algeria today and clashed with police and troops at various points. In Paris the government said more troop reinforcements would be dispatched to Algeria to cope with the increasing violence and bloodshed. Varying reports indicated about 15 terrorists were killed last night and early today, most of them in guerrilla skirmishes in the area between Algiers and Constantine. Roving bands of terrorists hit at farmlands around Philippeville, in northeast Algeria 40 miles north-east of Constantine. They burned wheatfields and farm buildings and apparently escaped despite clashes with gun-toting farmers. Most of the farmers a few miles west of Ackery had a planting combination that is difficult to explain. They planted two rows of cotton, then two blank rows, two more rows of cotton, then another two blank ones and then two rows of feed. C. J. King, who owns a grocery store and farms two places, says they usually make higher yields this way than by planting every row in cotton. One of the best looking herds of Angus cattle seen in a long time are the ones that Ray Adams of Ackery has on his 100-acre sudan field. Adams went into the Angus business a few years ago. He now has two registered bulls, 20 registered cows and 10 commercial Angus cows. He says his feed bill has not been too high. During the summer the cattle graze the sudan, and in the winter eat from the two big fields. A farmer can't get rich with a few cattle, Adams says, but there is a little money where he can

Policy Rulings Due On Texas Desegregation

AUSTIN, July 2 (AP)—Far-reaching policy decisions on desegregation of white and Negro students in Texas public schools and colleges may develop from a series of meetings here next week. The sessions start tomorrow when a special subcommittee of the State Board of Education seeks to "get something on paper" for study by the board as a whole Monday.

In the college education bracket, a subcommittee of the University of Texas board of regents meets Thursday to prepare a report for a meeting of the entire board Friday. The regents are wrestling with the dual problems of whether or not to limit general enrollment, and whether to take in undergraduate Negroes.

For several years, since the U.S. Supreme Court broke down racial barriers for Negro graduate students, there have been a varying number of Negroes working on graduate degrees at the university here. Some of them have enrolled in undergraduate classes as part of their graduate work.

The matter of limiting general enrollment in the university has no direct bearing on desegregation. The university is faced with the problem of having more students than it can adequately teach with present facilities.

With public schools at El Paso and several other Texas towns already ordered on a desegregated basis next fall, the Board of Education must soon work out a policy on how to handle funds allocations under the new setup.

Money is now distributed on the basis that the schools are segregated, and average daily attendance is figured separately for white and Negro schools under the Gilmer-Aikin law.

The last session of the Legislature made no change in the law.

Civil War Union Statue In Bad Shape

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP)—The towering Soldiers and Sailors monument, completed in 1902 at a cost of $250,000 has deteriorated so badly a fence now keeps visitors away.

The monument is on a commanding site overlooking the Hudson River on Riverside Drive. It was erected as a memorial to Union forces of the Civil War.

The Department of City Parks has deferred action on allotting the $750,000 to $1,000,000 needed to repair the damage.

INDEPENDENCE DAY . . . 1955

179 years ago our forefathers laid down their arms to grasp their hard-earned freedom. Today the America for which they fought, is large, ambitious and powerful. But her true greatness lies in the spirit of her free men . . . free men who fostered her great system of free enterprise . . . free men who are ever pushing back the frontiers of industry, science and culture . . . free men who developed America's riches to give us all a new American way of life. You and I enjoy the best that America has to offer. Let us not forget the struggles of our forefathers and our responsibilities to future generations. Let us ever hold fast to our inalienable rights of Life, Liberty, and Pursuit of Happiness.

CLOSED MONDAY IN OBSERVANCE OF INDEPENDENCE DAY

We hold these truths...

. . . to be self evident that all men are created equal

Ever since that summer day in 1776, when these famous words of the Declaration of Independence were first written, they have been a symbol of our priceless heritage of Freedom and Equality. As we celebrate Independence Day let us all remember to be thankful for this heritage.

Giles Faces Trial Tuesday On Charges Of Stealing From State

AUSTIN, July 2 (AP)—Bascom Giles, the man who fathered the 100 million dollar veterans land program is scheduled to go to trial here Tuesday on a charge that he used his creation to steal from the state.

The former state land commissioner comes up for trial in 98th District Court on one of more than a dozen felony criminal indictments against him stemming from the far flung scandal which broke around the vets land program late last year.

Delay in start of the trial—expected to attract nationwide attention—is not anticipated. The date was set by agreement, and both state and defense attorneys have said they will be ready.

A 200-man special jury panel will gather in District Judge Charles O'Betts' court at 9 a.m. Tuesday. Guesses on how long it will take to qualify 12 jurors range from three days to a week. No one has hazarded a guess on how long testimony will run. It's expected to be slow and at times highly complex. The indictment singled out by Dist. Atty. Les Procter for trial is one of 11 returned against Giles by Travis County grand juries. A three-count indictment, it alleges felony theft, acting as an accomplice to theft, and conspiracy to commit theft.

They Were Both Surprised, Alright

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., July 2 (AP)—Mrs. W. R. Smith of Port Arthur wanted to pay a surprise visit to her sister, Mrs. Juanita Riedel of Buffalo, N. BUT NOT TEXAS

28 States Now Ban Fireworks

NEW YORK (AP)—The small boy of today doesn't know what he's missing—though his father does. For the Fourth of July ain't what it used to be. An American tradition—fireworks—is only a dim but fond memory in most of the country.

True, the big, spectacular display types of pyrotechnics still can be seen in some areas at fairs, picnics and civil celebrations.

That hardly matches the old-time boyhood thrill of touching a punk to the fuse of a five-inch salute—and then getting loose from it as fast as possible.

This year has seen a once huge industry attain its gloomiest—and quietest—level.

With Georgia joining the ever-growing ranks, 28 states now ban what the trade calls "commercial fireworks."

This is the retail variety, sold in corner stands, filling stations and all kinds of places to (as one industry source puts it) "kids from 6 to 60."

Use of the display types, under handling of experts, is permitted. Fourteen other states have various restrictions, some of them permitting "county option" as to whether fireworks will be sold.

In only six states have no restrictions been imposed by the legislature. They are Nevada, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Missouri. Even in these, numerous communities have their own laws. What has brought all this about?

Mainly the deaths and injuries in bygone years—years in which some manufacturers tried to outdo each other with bigger and noisier products.

Exact casualty figures are hard to come by, though no one denies they were large. Around the turn of the century the death toll was numbered in the hundreds annually; and injuries in thousands.

The industry says things are much better nowadays. Makers generally strive to keep cracker sizes down and their products un-harmful. People too are more careful, particularly in supervising children's play.

Last year Congress banned shipment of fireworks into states which outlaw them. This was to halt "bootleg" sales through mail orders and other schemes.

All this has really dampened the powder for the manufacturers. Production today is estimated to be only half what it was 25 years ago even though sales of display devices have skyrocketed.

In 1948, an association was formed to see what could be done. The organization, the American Pyrotechnic Assn., has a membership of some 50 manufacturers and jobbers—nearly all the big operators.

In addition to voluntary efforts to eliminate fireworks harm, the APA is plugging for "safe and sane laws under national jurisdiction or control," much as are now in effect in Canada.

CAMPUS CHATTER

By FRANCES WALKER

Dear Jayhawkers: I want to apologize for omitting a very interesting news item last Sunday. That being that Doyle Scott and his sister Shirley were visitors in Big Spring the Saturday before.

Rex Gibson called Monday to say that he, Lynn Thames, and Coach Davis had returned from the Marine Reserve Training Camp in San Diego. Rex was planning to return to Chillicothe to help his dad on the farm until July 25 when he and Lynn will be bound for Quantico, Va., and more training.

We're happy to hear that Nancy Milford's dad, who was recently injured at Gay Hill School, is now at home in an improved condition.

I know that all the Jayhawkers who will be in Big Spring for the Independence Holiday will be planning to attend the Beauty Pageant in the City Amphitheater tomorrow night.

Some of our girls who will be competing for the "Miss Big Spring" and "Miss Howard County" titles are Betsy Sims, Judy Douglas, Paula Russell and Joy Miller. Gail Brooks and Peggy Knight Crooks (last year's Miss Howard County) will also participate in the program. Two other members of the cast, Bill Sneed and Don Anderson, are H.C.J.C. execs.

Good luck to Luke Thompson who will be defending his championship title in the City Golf Tourney which begins tomorrow. I understand that Jim Knotts is visiting here for the holiday, but I am not sure. Jim, incidentally, has been working for a construction company in Louisiana.

Another unofficial report is that Sam Dahreshort spent the week-end with Doyle Scott in Denver City. H.C.J.C. will have a celebrity on the faculty next fall. Mr. James B. Frazier has notified me that the book he and Lt. Walter Stewart recently completed will be off the press in September. The book, "Uranium, Magic Mineral, and Where To Find It" will be on sale for about $3.75.

Mr. Frazier also tells me that Donald Denton and Delbert Davidson have been working on a pipeline in Lubbock. If you see Charlie Rose driving his little red convertible again, don't be surprised — he bought it back. Charlie had traded it for another "hot rod," but decided he liked his "old faithful" best.

Also sporting a new car (1953 Ford) is Arlen White, who is working with the Amerada Oil Company in Forsan. Perhaps you'd like to know what some of the other kids are doing. Connie Crow is working at the Little Shop here; "Little Jim" Robinson is employed by the REA in Lovington, N. M.; Wiley Brown has been working for the local Army Surplus Store; Lela Fletcher was helping her aunt at the Bus Terminal Cafe here, but is now at home in Forsan; Wallace Cooper is still working for the Roy Bruce Service Station.

Bobby Fletcher is driving Hester's Supply truck; Frank Hinkley is delivering express packages to Big Spring; and Becca Sewell is doing journalistic work for the Big Spring Weekly; Lynn Laws is ushering at the Lyric Theater, and Donald Anderson is working in the shipyard at Orangefield.

Carol Preston is gaining practical experience toward his future work by drawing for Puckett and French Architects; Phil Stoval is working in the oil field; Bob Patterson is doing clerical work for Neil Hillard, CPA; and Hollis Leonard is driving a City Cab; Robert Short is a game warden in Colorado but plans to enter the service soon.

Homer Lucas is employed by the Highway Department in Lorraine; Paschal Wickard is operating his father's service station in Clovis, while Robert Roberson, Ray Crooks and Earnest Lillard are surveying; Lucy Jacobs is working for the Retail Merchants, and Paula Russell is doing secretarial work in Stanton; Doyle Scott is working for the El Paso Natural Gas Company in Denver City.

John Curtis was visiting in Big Spring Wednesday night and Thursday.

If anyone knows how I can contact Thomas Blakely, please let me know. I have an important message to relay to him.

Bobby McDonald, James Day, Frank Hinkley, and perhaps Bob Patterson are spending their holidays camping out near San Angelo. Bob said that if he did not go to San Angelo, he would visit friends in Meadow.

May I close by wishing you all a healthy and happy holiday. Please keep those cards and calls coming, for it's a little difficult for me to keep up with all the happenings during the summer months.

MRS. WELDON MONROE GARRETT

Miss Glaze Is Wed To Weldon M. Garrett

LAMESA — Mary Carolyn Glaze became the bride of Weldon Monroe Garrett in a wedding ceremony read in the Lamesa Church of Christ, Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Glaze, 205 N. 17th St. and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Garrett, Rt. B, Lamesa. W. T. Hamilton, pastor of the church, read the service before an altar of palms flanked by candelabra bearing white tapers and large baskets of gardenias. A chorus sang "Because," "Faithful and True," "Be With Us, Lord," and "Oh, Precious Love." The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white nylon antique taffeta street length dress designed with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt worn over crinoline. The strapless waist was topped by a bolero jacket brought together at the center front with rhinestone buttons. She wore white accessories and carried a bouquet of white carnations. La Wanda Brooks of Hart attended her aunt as maid of honor. Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Robert Lee and Mrs. Melvin Fielder. The bride's attendants wore identical light blue polished cotton street length dresses fashioned with short sleeved bolero jackets and full skirts. Their accessories were white, and they carried bouquets of white carnations. Verlene Garrett, sister of the bridegroom, and Wilburn Brooks of Hart, nephew of the bride, were candlelighters. Jimmy Hart attended his brother as best man. Ushers were Jackie Cloud of Abilene, Melvin Fielder, and Tommy Hunter and Calloway Hollis, both of Lubbock. A reception, following the wedding ceremony, was held at the home of the bride's parents, Kay Acuff, Oma Lee Anderson, Geraldine Claxton and Nancy Bowers presided at the bride's table. It was laid with a white lace cloth over blue and centered with a tiered wedding cake flanked by white carnations and crystal appointments. Alva Ruth Brown presided at the register.

After a wedding trip to Central and East Texas, the couple will be at home in Lubbock. For the trip, the bride wore a navy blue fallie dress designed on princess lines with scalloped bolero jacket. The high neckline and three-quarter length sleeves were edged with white lace. Her accessories were white and navy, and she wore a white carnation corsage. The bride is a Lamesa High School graduate and before her marriage was employed at McPhaul Motor Company in the clerical department. Mr. Garrett was graduated from high school here and is now employed at the First Federal Saving and Loan Bank in Lubbock.

Flowers On Her Toes

A decorative straw sandal adds flower trim for summer gaiety. Designed by Gustave, it comes in white, black and pastel colors.

Be Careful, There!

Falls often are fatal to people over 65, according to the National Safety Council. They advise having well-lighted stairways with continuous handrails, keeping children's toys off floor or lawn except in the play area, and not leaving garden tools where they will be trip-hazards. Older people with poor eyesight are likely to trip on scatter rugs or grass rugs, too.

Happy Service Offer

BENNETTSVILLE, S. C. — Marlboro County, a state-border haven for North Carolina lovers who want to get married quickly, boasts a new business. "The Happy Time Wedding Service," a joint enterprise run by four misses aged 12 and 13, is available to any couple who want the ladies to make merry at the wedding. Included in the service are songs and rice showers.

A Bermuda House

A new idea for the back yard in summer—Made of aluminum framing, aluminum screen and a mildew-resistant canvas awning roof, this portable shelter can be erected almost any place on the lawn. It provides an airy substitute for a screened porch—an insect-proof retreat for outdoor dining. Blinds can make it suitable for outdoor sleeping or use as a beach house. This model comes knocked down in a kit and measures 9 by 12 feet when erected. The total weight is about 185 pounds.

Plans Late July Wedding

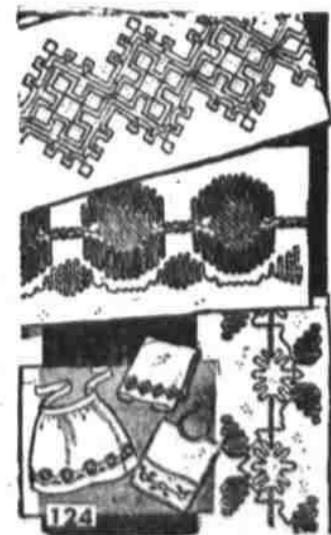

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Rasberry of Ackery announce the engagement and approaching wedding, July 29, of their daughter, Sue, to Pete Grigg, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Grigg of Ackery. The wedding will take place in the home of the bride-elect's parents.

Identical Dresses Are Easily Made

For marketing trips and picnic jaunts this summer, mother and daughter can make a charming picture in matching shirt-and-skirt outfits easy to make at home. Local sewing center experts chose an easy-to-use new pattern with inch rulers printed directly on the pattern pieces for accurate fit and adjustment. Pink plaid gingham was used for the skirts and plain pink chambray with plaid collar and sleeve trim for the shirts. The gathered skirt can be made into a pinafore with the simple addition of a square bib and suspender straps attached to a buttoned front felt. The side zipper of the skirt is easily inserted with aid of the zipper foot attachment on your sewing machine. For growing youngsters, be sure to make the skirt hem deep enough to let down next year. The shirt may be made with either short or long sleeves, the plaid being used for collar and sleeve bands. The buttonhole attachment on your machine will make short work of the buttonholes. Budget-minded homemakers will see the value of such an ensemble during the season when the family washing machine really has a workout, and may want to make several outfits in different colors. The mixable-matchable duos may be teamed with other separates to make more costume changes for Mom and Sis.

Let The Pan Catch It

If you enjoy baking berry pies, invest in a pie pan with a juice-catching rim that will keep your oven clean and turn out a flavor-rich pie.

Talisman, charm, and amulet were all worn by our ancestors in an effort to avoid the plague. Not too many years ago, the bag of odorous asafetida was hung about the neck as protection against contagious diseases. It kept friends at a distance, but whether it acted the same against disease is doubtful.

Male Ankles Now Become Whistle Bait

Newsfeatures
This is the year that the U.S. male comes into his own. Now his well-turned ankles, exposed by shorter trousers and lower-cut shoes and glorified by dazzling socks, rate whistles from the girls.

Socks for spring and summer are being turned out in every conceivable color, pattern and knit—all for the greater glory of the male ankle. Some of the untraditional colors that will be plainly visible this summer include: helio, shrimp, burnt orange, flamingo, lemon, lime and champagne pink.

It seems the men are buying them, too. Since the first conservative male was won over to a pink shirt, all bars seem to be down.

The vivid tints are used in various ways—as a discreet accent against a neutral background, or as a traffic-stopping blaze of color in a bold pattern.

Yarns used in the new socks cover a wide range—dacron, nylon, wool-and-nylon, orlon-and-nylon, as well as the more familiar wool, cotton and silk.

Other new wrinkles in the sock lineup are the stretch-to-fit sock and the built-in garter support.

'ROUND TOWN'

Mrs. J.A. Forrest and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Forrest have returned from a vacation trip to Carlsbad, N. M. and also in the vicinity of Ruidoso. Aubrey Lester Forrest, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mrs. Beytie Herring of Waco has returned to her home after visiting with her sister, Mrs. I. B. Couble, and her family. While Mrs. Herring was visiting here, she and her sister were guests of their brother, Will Johnson of Snyder and also with a sister, Mrs. Doc Bradley, and her family in Roswell, N. M. As a complimentary gesture their aunt, niece of Mrs. Herring entertained with a backyard picnic in the yard of Mrs. T. W. Neel, a daughter of Mrs. Couble.

Wanda Petty is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wilbur on their ranch just out of Miami, Okla. Later Miss Petty will visit friends and her fiance, Warren Lee Wilbur in Waco. She plans to attend the performance of one of the plays in San Antonio given by the drama department of Baylor University where Mr. Wilbur is a drama student. Before returning to Big Spring around July 8, she plans a visit to Port Arthur where she will visit her brother, Bennett Petty.

Dr. and Mrs. W. E. McKiski of San Antonio are the guests of her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tompkins. Other guests in the Tompkins home today are her parents and brother, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. McCord and Blanton of Sweetwater and another sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spencer of Abilene.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Pickle of Lubbock are visiting today with her sisters, Mrs. C. D. Matheny and Mrs. Joe Pickle. Mr. Matheny is ill in a local hospital.

Mrs. J. T. Baird and son, Stephen, have returned from Taft where they visited with her father and other relatives.

Mrs. P. D. O'Brien is hobbling about these days due to a broken bone in her left foot sustained a week ago when she slipped on the sidewalk.

Mr. and Mrs. James Waters of Fort Worth are spending the weekend with Mrs. Maude Waters.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Haygood and Mr. and Mrs. Alan Kernodle are entertaining relatives this week. In the Haygood home are their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. De Bruler of Burlington, N. C. and a sister, and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stuyvesant and children, Skippy and Kenny, of Greenville, Pa. In the Kernodle home are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kernodle and their children, Don and Jean, and a sister, Mrs. C. A. Pattillo, all of Burlington, N. C. Mr. and Mrs. Haygood entertained with a family gathering in their yard Saturday evening.

Lana Wren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wren, is attending Camp Coppess near Denton. This camp is sponsored for intermediate girls by the Polytechnic Baptist Church of Fort Worth.

The hottest thing this summer won't be the weather...

...It'll be sales! Do you know that people buy more in Summer months than most other months of the year? No wonder, since, as surveys show, more than 90% of the people are at home on an average day during the Summer! Predictions are that people this Summer will spend far above the 43 billion retail dollars they laid out so freely last Summer.

Don't miss these sales! Somebody's going to get the business...why not you? Whatever you sell, make sure you plan to promote your product or service all Summer long. Not to a few of your customers—but to everybody in the area who can possibly buy!

That, of course, means in newspapers. There's no Summer replacement for the newspaper! People keep on reading the newspaper all Summer long. They go on buying 54 million or more copies of their newspapers daily through June, July and August.

The surest way to reach the most customers, most often, most effectively, is in the newspaper. If you haven't already planned a steady series of Summer selling ads—call us today!

All business is local... and so are all newspapers!

'Strategic Air Command'

Prison Picture At State Today

'Big House, U.S.A.' stars Broderick Crawford, Ralph Meeker, Lon Chaney, and Charles Bronson. The prison film plays at the State today and Monday.

Meeker discovers a wealthy man's son lost in the woods of Colorado and takes advantage of the situation to extort $200,000. He hides the money away before getting caught and sent to prison. In the prison, he is placed in a cell with Broderick Crawford, a bank robber, and three convicted killers.

The group plan an escape which comes off successfully. They plan to recover the money that Meeker had buried, but before they can do so, they run into trouble. The exciting film has a startling climax.

Another prison picture playing in Big Spring this week is 'Riot in Cell Block 11.' It plays at the Terrace, Thursday and Friday.

Cooper, Lancaster In Mexico

Gary Cooper and Burt Lancaster join forces to assist the highest paying side in the Mexican revolution in the film, 'Vera Cruz.' The picture is filmed in Technicolor and SuperScope. Denise Darcel, Cesar Romero, and Sarita Montiel are also in the picture which starts tonight at the Jet.

'Hell Below Zero' With Alan Ladd At Lyric Today

Alan Ladd and Joan Tetzel are co-starred in the exciting drama 'Hell Below Zero' at the Lyric today and Monday.

The Technicolor film was actually produced with a whaling fleet in the Antarctic seas. Ladd plays an ex-naval officer who is first mate aboard an ice-breaker. Joan is aboard the ship for a ride to the whaling fleet so she can investigate the death of her father.

Arriving at the whalers' fleet, Ladd is transferred to a whale-catcher. Joan joins him. When their ship is hemmed in by ice, they begin to discover who it was that killed Joan's father. The 'rescue ship' that is supposedly coming to rescue them, rams the boat instead and both craft are sunk.

The murderer and Ladd then fight it out on the ice floes with deadly ice axes. Death is a common-place affair on the icy wastes of the South Pole, but Ladd is more than equal to the task of self-protection.

Jungle Picture

A cast of 250,000 join to make 'Sabaka' one of the best jungle pictures to come from Hollywood. Boris Karloff is the star and Nina Foch plays a leading role. The Technicolor film offers exciting animal stampedes filmed on location in India. The picture is ideal entertainment for the entire family.

Allyson, Stewart Featured In 'Strategic Air Command'

All the power of the "Strategic Air Command" will be on display at the Ritz starting today. The picture stars James Stewart and June Allyson and is filmed in VistaVision and Technicolor.

Most of the secrecy that has surrounded the SAC bases in the past has been lifted for the filming of this picture. This retaliatory branch of the Air Force is dramatized as a "peace" force and the film is not a "war picture." SAC is pictured as one of the greatest deterrents to war this country has. Stewart plays a star baseball player for the St. Louis Cardinals who is called away from his well paying job for active duty with the Strategic Air Command. He protests the call to active duty, saying that he is too old for further flying. He had served in the Air Force during the war as a combat pilot.

Stewart is told, however, that SAC is composed of older, more experienced men and the duty of its pilots is to carry atom bombs across international boundaries for retaliatory purposes. It is this strength that the U. S. relies upon for peace.

Stewart resigns himself to life in SAC and his career in the command is traced through his various assignments. The audience is transported inside the secret installations of Carswell AFB at Ft. Worth and the MacDill AFB at Tampa, Florida. Carswell is the home of the B36 and MacDill is base for the B47s.

Numerous flights with Stewart inside these planes make the picture authentic and the company of his wife, June Allyson, keep the film real and human. The movie-goer will experience the frustrations, pressures, demands, and rewards of life in the SAC.

Other stars in the picture are Frank Lovejoy, Barry Sullivan and Alex Nicol. VistaVision, as you may remember, won an Academy Award for "scientific achievement."

Stewart and June Allyson are not new at the game of husband and wife stories. They have been matched together in two other pictures, "The Stratton Story," and "The Glenn Miller Story." They make the same even-tempered couple in "Strategic Air Command."

The picture will play through Thursday.

Lancaster, Cooper In Jet Offering

Billed as a "battle of the giants," Burt Lancaster and Gary Cooper star in the SuperScope and Technicolor picture, "Vera Cruz," at the Jet tonight and Monday. Also featured in the film are Denise Darcel, Cesar Romero, and Sarita Montiel.

The picture is set in Mexico, circa 1926, when the emperor Maximilian was trying to put down a revolution. Lancaster plays the leader of a band of renegades who plan to join the side that offers the most money. He meets Cooper and persuades him to join the group.

They run across Sarita Montiel enroute to the fighting and she falls in love with Cooper, trying to get him to join the rebel forces. They also meet Cesar Romero who tries to get them to join on the side of the emperor.

The clincher is when they meet Denise Darcel who happens to have several millions in gold hidden in her coach destined for the Emperor's forces. She agrees to help steal the money if it is split three ways. Romero, however, absconds with the money and carries it to the Emperor.

The recovery of the gold millions is exceeded in excitement only by the final showdown between Cooper and Lancaster. This is one of the better Hollywood historical films.

Richard Long is the co-star in the horror - thriller. When five American servicemen are in India, they trespass on sacred ground. A priest tells them that they shall all pay for the sacrilege. They return to the U. S. and forget all about the incident. Then, one by one, they die of snake bite.

The answer to the mysterious deaths is solved when the snake goddess is caught in the act.

At The Lyric

Alan Ladd and Joan Tetzel star in the "Hell Below Zero" picture today and Monday at the Lyric.

CINEMA COMMENT

By Glenn Coates

Take your pick this week.

Every type of picture imaginable will be showing. Comedies, musicals, westerns, dramas, crime-thrillers, and even horror films will be featured.

To start off the week at the Ritz, "Strategic Air Command" starring James Stewart and June Allyson will give an account of the SAC bases which are scattered all over the nation. This picture was partially filmed at Carswell AFB near Ft. Worth. Many local Webb AFB graduates are assigned to SAC bases after leaving Big Spring.

Western movies will be playing at almost all the local theaters by the end of the week. At the Ritz, it will be "Cattle Queen of Montana" with Barbara Stanwyck. "Gunfighters" starring Randolph Scott will be the State attraction, while "Wagons West" will play at the Lyric. "Jesse James' Women" will be at the Jet Saturday.

"Ma and Pa Kettle at Waikiki" brings the comedy team together again at the Jet. Two prison pictures, "Big House, U.S.A." and "Riot in Cell Block 11," will play at the State and Terrace respectively.

It is a wide selection and you should find several that you haven't seen or are worth seeing again.

Hollywood just doesn't turn out the gripping horror films like they used to. If you don't believe it, drop out to the Terrace either Tuesday or Wednesday night and see two real classics in the field.

A double feature with two return engagements of the famous Frankenstein films will be here. "Son of Frankenstein" and "Bride of Frankenstein" are the titles and they are both chillers. Boris Karloff of course plays the living-dead man. Just for comparison's sake, compare it with a more recent Hollywood horror film, "Cult of the Cobra" which is at the State Thursday and Friday.

Gerald McBoing McBoing will star twice this week at local theaters. The popular UPA comedy character will play in "How Now McBoing, McBoing" at the Terrace with a double feature horror show. The twin bill comes up Tuesday and Wednesday.

Thursday and Friday, Gerald is "Symphony" at the Jet. The full length feature for the same date is "So This Is Paris," with Gloria DeHaven and Tony Curtis.

Barbara Stanwyck In Ritz Film Friday

"Cattle Queen of Montana" stars Barbara Stanwyck and Ronald Reagan at the Ritz Friday and Saturday.

The Technicolor offering is concerned with the settlement of the Montana Territory in the 1880's. Barbara Stanwyck plays a woman who gives up her feminine pretensions to strap on a gun and defend the property of her father.

Her father is killed and his herd stampeded, but Barbara sets out to reclaim the cattle.

She is rescued from renegades who caused all the trouble by an Indian who has been attending a white man's school. When she tries to find her cattle, she meets with a hired gunman, Ronald Reagan, who first hinders, then helps her.

She falls in love with him and the two bring peace between Indian and white man after many interesting scenes, with thrills and action lasting to the end.

During these exciting scenes, Cameron happens on Peggie Castle and her young brother, Noah Beery Beery saves Cameron's life once which is in return for an earlier favor. Peggie Castle, of course, provided the love interest for the film.

She becomes suspicious of a wagon master and his two nephews who are constantly leading wagon trains through the Cheyenne country. His suspicions prove to be correct and Cameron thwarts their efforts to kill him and make delivery to the Indians.

Prince Valiant IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR by Harold R. Foster

Our Story: WHEN THE SHIPS MOOR FOR THE NIGHT PRINCE VALIANT GOES IN SEARCH OF MUCH-NEEDED FOOD. GIVING ORDERS THAT SEVERAL MEN FOLLOW HIM LATER TO BRING IN ANY GAME HE MIGHT BRING DOWN, HE STARTS OUT.

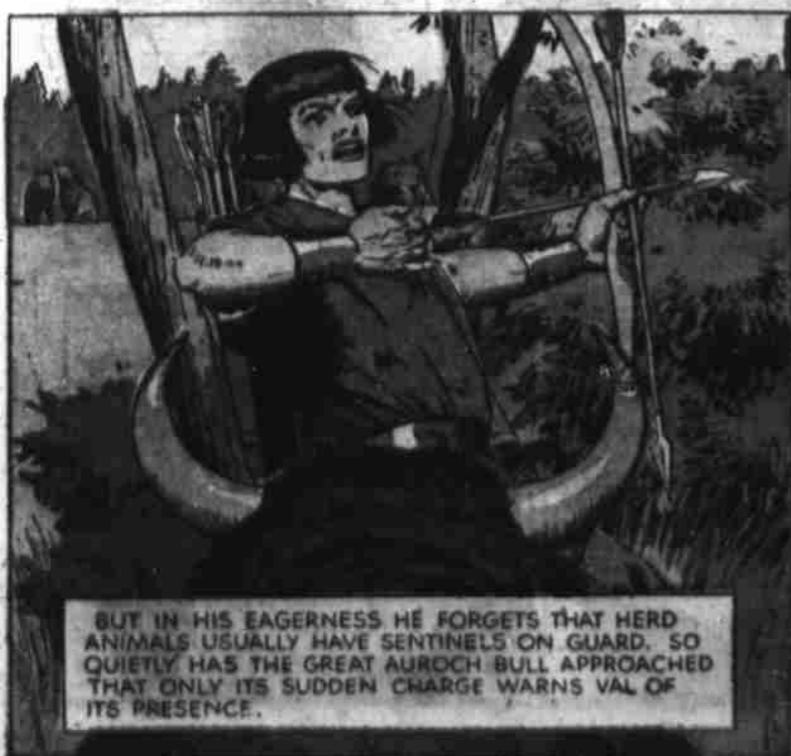

BEYOND THE RIVERBANK THE MARSHES SEEM ENDLESS. THEN, JUST AS HE IS ABOUT TO TURN BACK, HE REACHES A WOODLAND MEADOW.

AND IN THAT MEADOW A HERD OF AUROCHS IS GRAZING!

THE LIGHT IS FADING AND HE MUST CREEP CAUTIOUSLY TO POINT BLANK RANGE TO MAKE SURE OF A KILL.

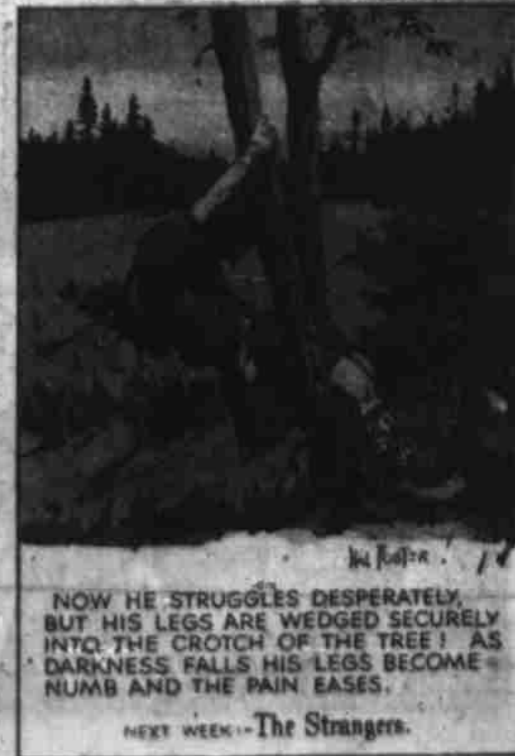

BUT IN HIS EAGERNESS HE FORGETS THAT HERD ANIMALS USUALLY HAVE SENTINELS ON GUARD. SO QUIETLY HAS THE GREAT AUROCH BULL APPROACHED THAT ONLY ITS SUDDEN CHARGE WARNS VAL OF ITS PRESENCE.

THEN VAL CURSES THE WEEKS OF LEISURE ON THE BOATS, THE IDLENESS THAT HAS ROBBED HIM OF AGILITY.

AS THE CRUEL HORNS SEEK TO TEAR HIM HE PLUNGES HIS SAKENKIFE AGAIN AND AGAIN INTO THE GREAT NECK. AT LAST THE KEEN POINT FINDS ITS WAY BETWEEN THE NECK BONES.

NOW HE STRUGGLES DESPERATELY, BUT HIS LEGS ARE WEDGED SECURELY INTO THE CROTCH OF THE TREE! AS DARKNESS FALLS HIS LEGS BECOME NUMB AND THE PAIN EASES.

NEXT WEEK - The Strangers.

Dale and Roy Rogers: Partners of God and Big Business Shares the Wealth

AS YOU WERE SAYING...

Is There a Cure for Taciturn Husbands?

"BE INTERESTED in your husband's work, and discuss things other than household problems or the children's misbehavior." How often I have read that advice in articles devoted to marital happiness. While I have no quarrel with the theory, none of these articles ever explains how to get a husband to talk.

I search the newspapers for items concerning his work, keep informed about world events and politics, and collect human-interest stories to tell him. But while he's willing to listen, he just won't talk, and the "conversations" turn into monologues by me. I've tried the obvious: "How did things go today? Anything new or interesting happen?"

"Nope, same as usual."

I'll ask his opinion: "They're going to elect a new street commissioner. Who do you think would be better, Mr. Brown or Mr. Black?"

"One's about as good as the other, I guess."

So there you are, and here I am, still striving for those stimulating conversations which are supposed to keep a marriage interesting. Won't someone please tell me how to get a man to talk back?—J. F. G., Lebanon, Ill.

Reward Yourself by Helping Others

Recently I spent a week looking after an elderly lady who had had a cataract operation on her eye. While taking care of her, I found time to read many articles from different magazines and newspapers. Since I am a busy career woman, this was a rare experience for me; and I found many interesting, educational, and humorous items which I had never had time to read.

I returned home refreshed and felt I had not sacrificed my time but rather had been rewarded with rich blessings in the printed word. All of which proves that when we do things for others, we reap valuable rewards.—Mrs. J. W., Austin, Tex.

The Scribbling on the Chapel Walls

A new Latter-Day Saint (Mormon) chapel in Provo, Utah, was finished except for the painting and interior decorating. The members were very proud of their new building, but one day one of the sisters noticed writing on the unpainted walls.

She was appalled that youngsters would scribble their names inside a church, and she industriously set about to remove them. The names were Violet, Olive Green, Ivory, Stone Brown, and Off White (similar to Alf White).

"I'll tell them all in meeting tonight," she said to herself as she scrubbed away the last name. And she did tell them!

Imagine the good sister's chagrin after the meeting when she was told that the painters would have to be given new instructions about what colors to use in painting the new chapel.—Melba S. Payne, Provo, Utah.

How to Gain Self-Confidence

I am to be married soon, so I will naturally be expected to prepare three edible meals a day. Unfortunately, I have a long record of failure in the kitchen. Spurred on by your fascinating article, "How to Increase Your Self-Confidence," I charged out to my mother's mixing bowl, determined to succeed at any cost.

As suggested, I set myself an attainable goal: a batch of brownies that would be utterly delicious. And so help me, success was mine! Heretofore I've always attempted things like chicken cacciatore or ravioli or one of the complicated Italian dishes for which my mother is justly famous and of which my fiancé is especially fond.

I see now that I've been setting my sights too high, thereby shattering my confidence. These delectable brownies have restored my self-esteem and my good judgment.—L. A. M., Milford, Conn.

Lesson in Child Psychology

Here's how I introduced a baby sister to my two-year-old son:

Before the happy event, I promised him a new baby and talked with him about caring for it. When I brought the baby home from the hospital, I also brought him a new baby doll, bassinette, clothes, powder. Then, when I bathed little sister he bathed his baby. When visitors came, they were asked to admire his baby, too. We put our babies to sleep at the same time, then had our playtime together.

I have never had any trouble with him being jealous of his new sister, and it was certainly worth the few dollars spent. Now, eight months later, he has discarded his baby and helps take care of little sister.—Mrs. T. P., Moundville, Ala.

I was just thinking...

... ABOUT THE FACE of the crowd. I have seen the face a thousand times. I have watched it undulate in a city street. I have seen its menace in a riot.

And I have watched it in a football stadium in Autumn when the trees are painted backdrops for the pageant at my feet.

The face of the crowd is like music, soft and passionate, loud and angry. The old face of the boy in the wheel chair; the mottled quiver of the face under the sweat-stained hat; the powdery, sugary face of the proud mother; the urchin face of the child.

The face of the crowd is vivid and plain. It rises from damp bodies, pushing bodies, scrawny arms, and hard thighs. Its hands are myriad and its covering a pulsing polka-dot of light and shadow.

Across the face sweeps the path of heat and the tide of emotion. Its mouth widens in lust or loathing, screams in joy or anger.

It is broken by a thousand wrinkles. The cripple jostled by the pretty girl. The spatch-marked boy with a wet cigarette in his weak mouth. The unloved woman, the taste of old longings ashes on her tongue. The tired man bearing failure like a brand

Ewing Galloway

But there is happiness, too, in the face. There are the young dreamers and the children and the gay balloons and the laughing eyes. There are the loved and the lovers and the lips curved with courage and the nostrils flared to hold the scent of air and sunlight and rain.

The face of the crowd has all the ugliness and shame, all the delight and hope, of any of the million parts which are within it. And it is turned up to the heavens and from its still throat there comes a song I cannot hear. But I know it well.

For this is the face of America.

Fantasy in the Sky

Flying saucers again?

No, it's an experiment to give helicopters greater safety at night

by Raymond A. LaJoie

IF YOU'VE HEARD reports of flying saucers in the night skies over northern Connecticut, don't worry about it. These latest "saucers" are merely a manifestation of an interesting experiment being conducted with helicopters.

Working for the U. S. Navy, the Kaman Aircraft Corp. has mounted lights on the tips of a helicopter's rotor blades. In flight, the rapidly revolving blades cause the lights to appear as large, eerie circles, giving rise to the flying-saucer rumors. But while they are spectacular in appearance, the helicopter light experiments are serious and important: the Navy wants to find a way to distinguish helicopters from conventional aircraft during night flights. Because helicopters have unique flight capabilities—they can slow down suddenly, stand still in mid-air, fly backward and sideward as well as forward, and rise and descend vertically—a simple method of night identification is essential to aerial safety.

The revolving lights also would be a valuable aid in the night-formation flying of helicopters. Each pilot would be able to determine the exact location of the rotors of all 'copters in the formation, thus precluding the possibility of a collision with another member of the squadron.

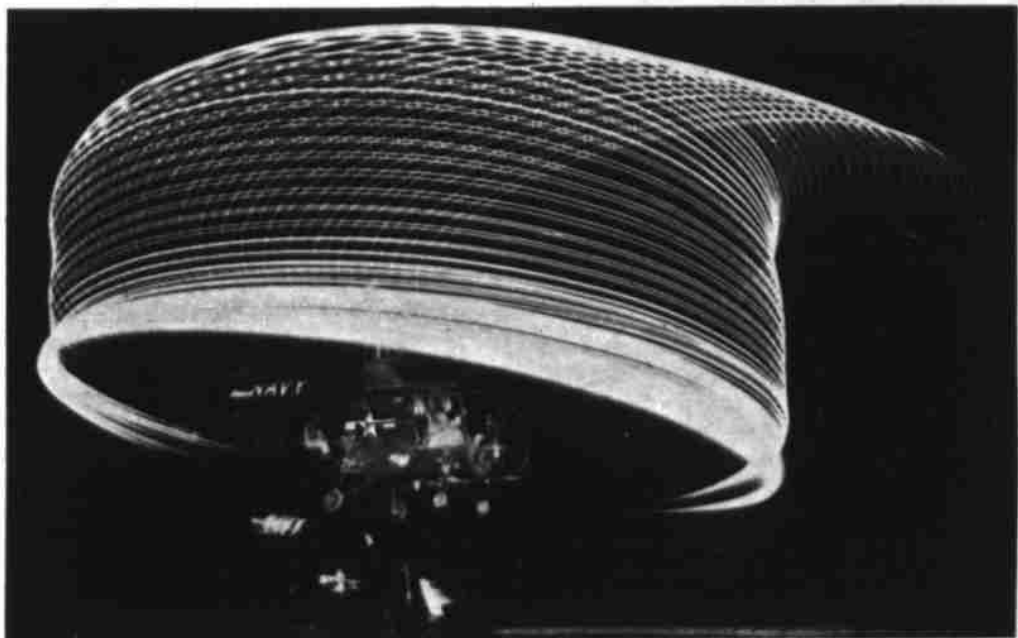

If the current experiments prove successful, you'll probably be seeing a lot more of these "flying saucers" and their weird light patterns around the night skies.

The world's first twin-turborotor helicopter, a joint Army-Navy project, flies with one or both of its 190-horsepower engines operating. Photo was taken during its first flight.

Lights mounted on the tips of a helicopter's rotor blades produce a tornado-like pattern.

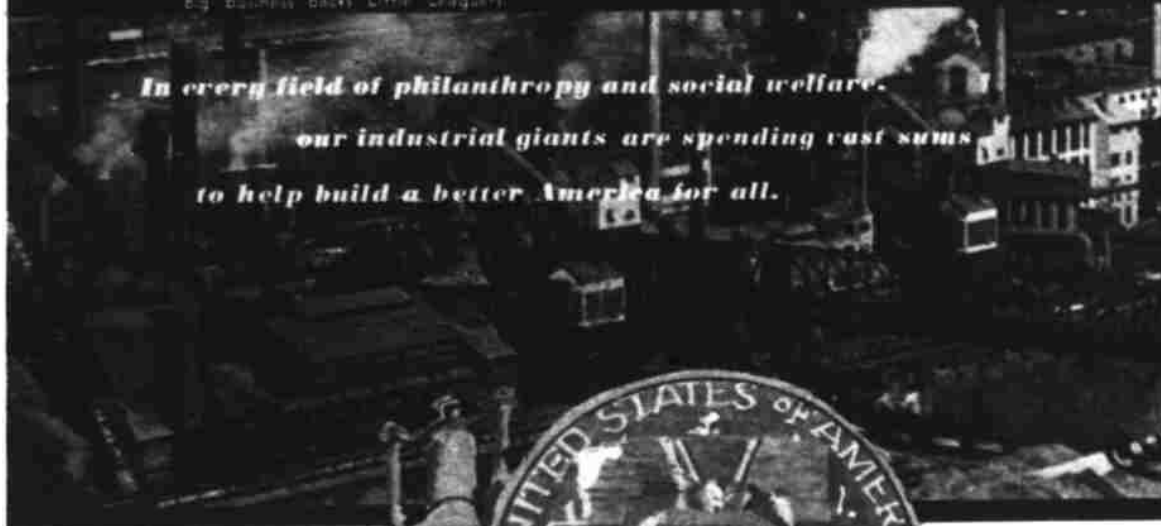

The rotor-tip lights will help distinguish helicopters from conventional aircraft at night.

Big business backs Little Leaguers.

Business and industry will give away an estimated $300 million this year for a wide variety of philanthropic causes. Greeting card publisher J. C. Mall (right), for example, sponsors an international fine-arts competition. Here he shows a prize-winning painting, "Mother and Child," submitted by St. Louis artist Fred Conway.

In every field of philanthropy and social welfare, our industrial giants are spending vast sums to help build a better America for all.

Big Business

FOR MISGUIDED souls who still regard big business as an insatiable beast that devours men whole in its hunger for profit, here is news:

Despite slender profit margins in this day of high operating costs, fierce competition, and stiff taxes, business gives away $7 million every week!

No, you won't find a captain of industry standing at the street corner thrusting cash on all who pass. But according to the Russell Sage Foundation, corporations will donate well over $300 million this year for good deeds to benefit us all in many ways.

President Eisenhower has called this sharing of corporate wealth a means by which industry can help "in the propagation of our American faith." So whatever field of philanthropy you choose—education, agriculture, science, social welfare, even the arts—you'll find business helping to foot the bill.

The biggest batch of greenbacks goes toward better education. This year business donations to students and schools will total some $100 million, but that figure is expected to quintuple itself by the time your baby's ready for college. According to Irving S. Olds, a director of U. S. Steel, "Every American business has a direct obligation to support our free, independent, privately endowed colleges and universities."

There was a time when business firms were interested only in fostering technical knowledge allied directly to their own operations. Today the trend is toward encouraging liberal arts and developing a well-educated America in the broadest sense.

The direction of business aid to education changed in 1952 when Union Carbide and other companies began offering scholarships that were not limited to scientific courses and making donations to colleges' general funds.

Last year—another milestone—Standard Oil of New Jersey "removed all strings" from its $450,000 gift to 138 colleges. General Electric and Walter Kidde & Co. decided to match dollar-for-dollar the donations employees make to their alma maters. Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Columbia Broadcasting System offered unrestricted grants to "repay" colleges for having educated top employees.

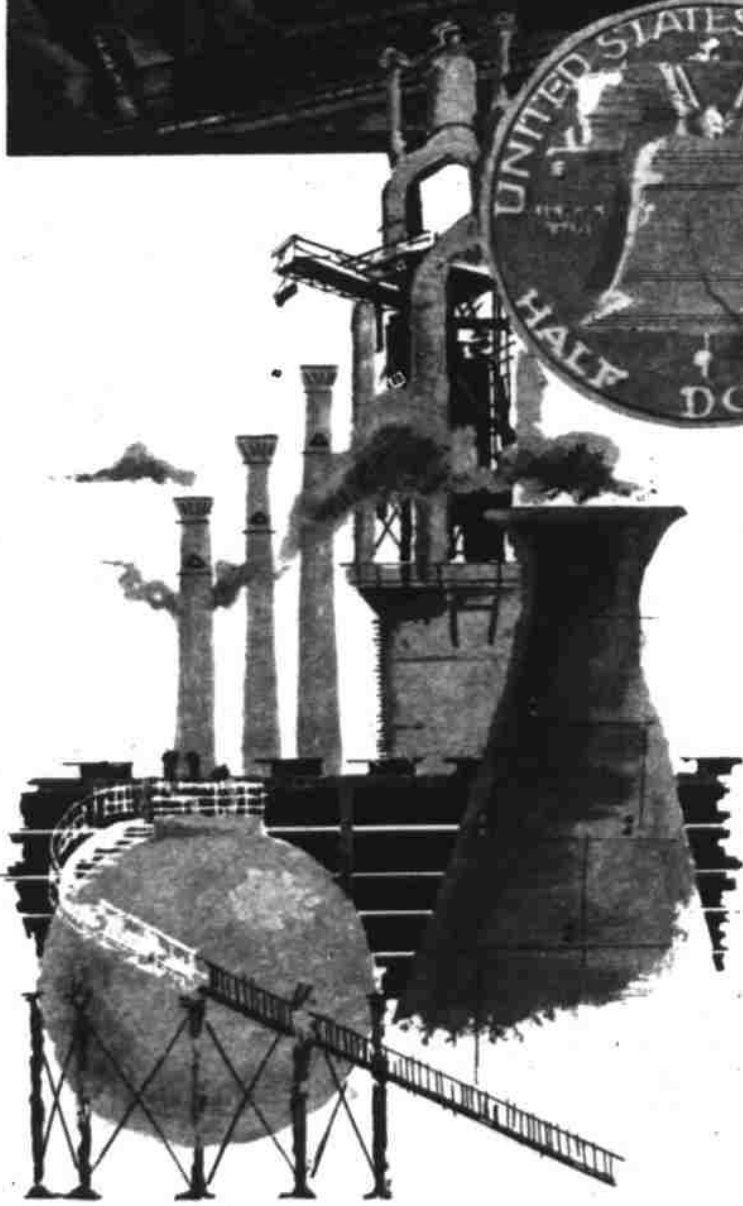

Swift & Co., now celebrating its 100th year as a meat packer, has made more than 350 educational grants exceeding $2½ million. S. C. Johnson & Son, wax manufacturer, has helped more than 1,000 undergraduates and scores of schools in the belief that "corporate philanthropy furthers the objectives of our American ideals."

A completely unrestricted program that will cost a spanking $5 million over the next five years has been announced by Westinghouse Electric Corp., which since 1942 also has conducted a nation-wide Science Talent Search to find and encourage science-minded youngsters.

If your head still isn't spinning at the generosity of these giveaways, here are a few more examples: General Foods' educational contribution this year will be $345,000. Du Pont will donate $800,000, making awards to selected colleges and leaving decisions on use of the funds to them.

Of the automotive giants, Chrysler maintains its own Institute of Engineering for more than 800 students; General Motors spends about $2½ million a year for assistance to education, and the Ford Fund more than $1 million. And GM will increase its con-

by Jerry Klein

Higher education benefits most from the generosity of the nation's industrial giants. The device being studied by students at Rensselaer Tech (above) is a dynamometer obtained from a General Electric grant. Thirty-six colleges received expensive equipment from GE last year.

An artificial heart, used successfully for the first time in 1952 (left), was developed by Detroit medical specialists with the engineering aid of General Motors' scientists. GM offered its assistance as a voluntary public service.

Shares the Wealth

tribution in the next few years to $4½ million annually!

The Ford contribution is in addition to the global giving of the famous Ford Foundation. Backed by some three million shares of non-voting Ford stock, the foundation spends about $1 million a week on a tremendous variety of "Investments in human progress." To mention just a few: It helps democratic publications in divided Berlin, fosters social improvements in Italy, supports the 4-H Clubs' international youth exchange, and sponsors radio-television educational programs which reach millions of Americans.

Obviously, big business is tapping its own till at a rapid rate, and for purposes which eventually benefit us all.

Does your teen-aged daughter take part in a Junior Achievement project? Chrysler has sponsored scores of these. Does your son belong to a Little League baseball team? U. S. Rubber backs these teams in the belief that they help youngsters "along the road to responsible living and citizenship."

Incidentally, U. S. Rubber presents some good examples of how resources that can be attained only by truly big business serve both little business and the general welfare.

The company recently negotiated with the railroads to obtain lower freight rates on coal hauled to its plant in Eau Claire, Wis. The rates also were applied to every other business firm in the community.

In 1910, driving a car 1,000 miles cost about $42 in tires and tubes. Today, as the result of lengthy and expensive research, tires and tubes cost about $3 per 1,000 miles.

When du Pont introduced cellophane many years ago, it cost $2.65 a pound. Now the price is less than one-fifth that amount. Thanks to the mammoth research facilities of this multimillion-dollar corporation, cellophane protection saves millions annually in waste and spoilage.

How many companies can afford, like du Pont, to risk $50 million a year on product development? Yet without such gambles, thousands of today's jobs would not exist; nor would we have many of the products which make our lives so abundant.

The people who have probably benefited the most from "big business" are the rank and file workers. Since 1936, United States Steel has paid to and for its employees more than 16 billion dollars! Steelworkers' wages have risen 325 percent since then, and fringe benefits are 12 times greater. Meanwhile, the average work week at U. S. Steel was shortened by about 10 percent and the accident frequency rate was cut 60 percent.

To explain how big business gets that way, the president of du Pont, Crawford H. Greenewalt, has said: "Business growth comes about only through pleasing the customer by offering him a better product, or the same product at a lower price. Business success is simply a measure of the votes of thousands of satisfied customers. If they like the product and the price, the business will grow. If not, it will fail."

Several years ago, a Congressional subcommittee studying the nation's antitrust laws heard testimony from the then-president of General Electric, Charles E. Wilson: "Some people apparently believe that only through the disintegration of large companies into small companies can free enterprise be preserved," he said.

"We must rid ourselves of the notion that a large company is necessarily inimical to the public interest or that it is a monopoly . . . Just as there are many needs that can be met by small companies only, so there are many which only the large can fulfill."

Business today, whether big or small, promises an undreamed-of abundance for all Americans. Income and inheritance taxes hamper the growth of huge personal fortunes, and the era of the tycoon-turned-philanthropist is over—perhaps forever.

But into the breach are stepping the corporations themselves. With an open heart—and ready checkbook—they are plowing right back into our society much of the fruit which management and labor have cultivated together.

SPORTS

There's something about a PENGUIN!

by Betty Jane Stearns

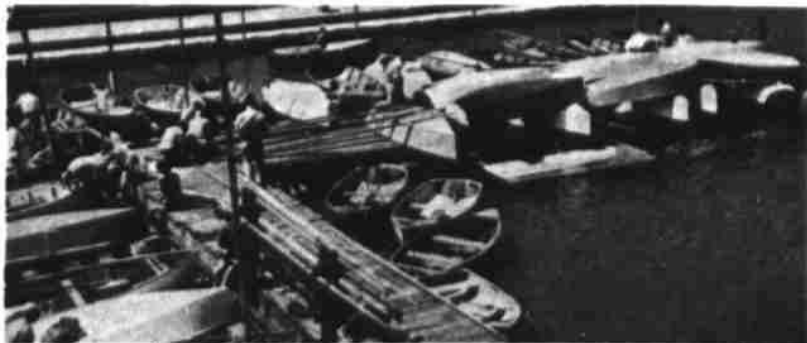

Boating is fast becoming a popular and inexpensive family sport, thanks to a pert little vessel with a colorful sail.

SAILING is no longer a champagne sport. Twenty-five years ago it took a rich man's purse, a gentleman's leisure, and a king's retinue to buy a boat, sail it, and keep it shipshape. But today, thanks to the popularity of a new kind of sailboat, there isn't a lad in the country who can't put an arm around the mast of his very own vessel.

The enthusiasm for these boats, an international class known pertly as Penguins, has spread rapidly from coast to coast. Painted in gay colors, many of the boats sporting red, blue, and green sails, a fleet of Penguins out for a race on a Summer's day is a thrilling sight!

These dinghies are all of 12 feet long, but they carry a 20-foot mast and can speed along at five miles an hour. Not a deep or a dangerous water boat, the Penguin is an easy-to-handle craft that sees its most wonderful moments in exploring coastal areas, and in racing wherever there is wind and another Penguin.

But a "big boat" sailor who might spend thousands of dollars each year in re-rigging his boat to gain a racing advantage is out of place in the Penguin set. Because they are an international class, all these boats are built to identical specifications. In fact, the dinghies must conform to National Penguin Association measurements; otherwise they are disqualified from all regional and national racing events.

On warm, sunny days, the Penguin skippers enjoy working on their boats. Sailing the pert Penguins requires two crew members.

A Penguin skipper soon finds that money is no substitute for skill. The technique he must acquire to handle his boat well gives him a range of knowledge about the quirks of wind and water that the big-time yachtsman may never master.

The country's 4,000 registered Penguins probably cover more mileage each year than the "Queen Elizabeth," but it's not all on water. Because they weigh only 160 pounds, the dinghies are easily hoisted to the top of a car, or aboard a trailer. One Penguin skipper from Racine, Wisconsin, traveled 5,000 miles last season to sail his boat in waters off Baltimore, Peoria, Chicago, Clearwater, and Michigan City.

There's no doubt that the Penguin vogue has answered a lot of family objections to sailing. Their safety record is enviable, and no wonder. The skipper never sails out far from shore, he rarely sails alone, and he is required to carry a life preserver at all times.

Should a dinghy overturn, help in the form of a motorboat is generally close by. And almost every skipper overturns at least once—a soggy pill for miscalculating the wind.

New Penguins cost anywhere from $250 to $425, depending on your location and the boat's state of completion. Many sailors find that secondhand dinghies are quite satisfactory, and their cost frequently depends on the buyer's bargaining ability—and the owner's desire to sell. Some secondhand Penguins in excellent condition have been purchased for as little as $150.

Advocates of the lazy week end like Penguins because they require relatively little care. Their plywood bottom rarely needs calking, and handled with a reasonable amount of care, their seasonal requirements shouldn't add up to more than paint and a new turnbuckle or two.

It takes two to sail a Penguin correctly—both skipper and crew—but the craft can seat three. It's no wonder that families adopt these boats—and love them in the cooler U.S. climates because they have a seven-month sporting season. In the Lake Michigan area Penguins can be seen racing as early as April, and in frost-bite regattas as late as December!

A father in Baltimore who is teaching his teenage son to sail a Penguin put the case for these small new craft neatly:

"Man or boy, we all need adventure. We need the sense of competing against important odds in a contest that depends on our own skill. The older we get, the more we appreciate the fact that neither money, nor luck, nor brawn makes a winning skipper. We must be calm and agile, and above all we must have a perception of nature that our air-conditioned age too often neglects."

Penguins aren't very big, and they won't sail to desert islands—but with a Penguin anyone can enjoy that special Summer's-day dream which includes a gentle wind, a blue sky—and at least one sheet to the wind.

Summer's bounty is coming in a tumbling abundance of fruits and vegetables for succulent salads, cooling dishes, and menus prepared in a trice. Summer is for enjoyment and part of the pleasure is in Summer eating. It is never too hot for the right kind of food.

Here is lobster with flair—a salad seasoned to enhance the king of the catch.

Easy to Prepare for Summer Suppers

Luscious Rock-Lobster Salad

Purchase

3 6- to 8-oz. frozen rock-lobster tails (or use 3 6-oz. cans rock-lobster meat)

If using canned lobster, chill in the can in refrigerator. Drain and cut into chunks when ready to prepare salad.

To Cook Frozen Rock-Lobster Tails—Bring to boiling in a sauce pot or kettle 1½ qts. water
1½ teaspoons salt

Add frozen or thawed rock-lobster tails to kettle. Cover; bring water again to boiling, reduce heat, and simmer for 7 to 12 min.* Drain lobster tails; cover with cold water and drain again. Using scissors or a sharp knife, cut through thin shell on underside of each lobster tail. Insert fingers under meat and carefully pull meat out. Cool meat; chill in refrigerator. Cut into chunks when ready to prepare salad.

*Note: For exact cooking time, cook lobster tails 1 min. longer than their individual weight in ounces. (For example, cook a 6-oz. lobster tail 7 min.) Add 2 min. to total cooking time if tails were not thawed.

To Complete Salad—Prepare

1 cup diced celery
½ cup sliced unblanched almonds
1 tablespoon minced scallions or onion

Put ingredients into a large bowl, reserving about 2 tablespoons of the almonds for garnish.

Blend together

¼ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice and a mixture of

¼ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon tarragon leaves, finely crushed
½ teaspoon white pepper

Add the chilled lobster meat to the ingredients in the bowl. Add the mayonnaise mixture and toss lightly to coat thoroughly.

Line a chilled salad bowl with

Crisp salad greens

Fill with the lobster mixture and garnish with the reserved almonds and

Ripe olives

Serve salad immediately.

6 servings

Summertime Coconut Delight

Set out a 9-in. sq. pan.

Place a bowl and beater in refrigerator to chill.

Set in freezing compartment of refrigerator to chill until icy cold

1 cup undiluted evaporated milk

Place on a long length of heavy waxed paper

4 doz. vanilla wafers (or enough to yield 1½ cups crumbs)

Loosely fold paper around crackers, tucking under open ends. With a rolling pin, gently crush crackers to make fine crumbs. Or place crackers in a plastic bag and gently crush. Set aside.

Empty into a bowl

1 pkg. orange-flavored gelatin

Add and stir until gelatin is completely dissolved.

1 cup hot water

Add, stirring until well blended

½ cup honey

2½ tablespoons lemon juice

½ teaspoon salt

Cool; chill mixture in refrigerator, or chill in pan of ice and water until mixture is slightly thicker than consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. If mixture is placed over ice and water, stir frequently; if placed in refrigerator, stir occasionally.

Meanwhile, heat in a large skillet over low heat

½ cup butter or margarine

Add

1 cup (4 oz.) moist, shredded coconut, cut

Stir constantly until coconut is golden brown. Remove skillet from heat and, using a fork, blend in the vanilla-wafer crumbs. Using back of spoon, press one half of the crumb mixture into an even layer in the bottom of the pan.

When gelatin is of desired consistency, beat the chilled milk, using the chilled bowl and beater, until very stiff. Gently fold into the gelatin mixture; turn into the pan over the coconut-crumbs mixture and spread evenly.

Spoon the remaining coconut-crumbs mixture evenly over the gelatin mixture. Place in refrigerator to chill until firm.

To serve, cut into 2¼-in. squares.

You'll find a taste of the tropics in this cool, refreshing summertime dessert.

A colorful array of hot dishes and cool dishes—easy to prepare and aimed straight at the manly appetite.

Easy to Prepare for Summer Suppers

Creamy Avocado Ring Mold

Lightly oil a 1½-qt. ring mold with salad or cooking oil (not olive oil). Set it aside to drain. Place a bowl and beater in the refrigerator to chill.

Pour into a small bowl
½ cup cold water
Sprinkle evenly over cold water
2 tablespoons (2 env.) unflavored gelatin
Let gelatin stand about 5 min. to soften.

Add and stir until gelatin is completely dissolved

¾ cup very hot water
When gelatin is dissolved, stir it and blend in 1½ teaspoons sugar

1 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
Stir until well blended; set aside.

Rinse, peel, cut into halves, remove and discard pit from

1 medium-size ripe avocado
Cut avocado into several pieces. Force avocado through a food mill or a sieve into a mixing bowl. Add to pureed avocado and stir until evenly mixed

1 teaspoon grated onion
½ teaspoon prepared horseradish
½ teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel (grated through colored part only; white is bitter)

Blend in the dissolved gelatin mixture.

Chill in refrigerator or in pan of ice and water until mixture begins to gel (gets slightly thicker). If mixture is placed over ice and water, stir frequently; if placed in refrigerator, stir occasionally.

Meanwhile, chop and set aside

¼ cup (about 1 oz.) pecans

Dice and set aside enough cooked ham and chicken to yield

1 cup diced cooked chicken
1 cup diced cooked ham

When gelatin mixture is of desired consistency, blend in the pecans, ham, chicken, and

1 cup thick sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise

Using the chilled bowl and beater, beat until cream is of medium consistency (piles softly)

½ cup chilled whipping cream

Gently fold whipped cream into the gelatin mixture. Turn into the prepared mold and chill in refrigerator until firm.

To unmold gelatin, loosen top edge of mold with a knife. Invert on a chilled serving plate. Wet a clean towel in hot water and wring it almost dry. Wrap hot towel around mold for a few seconds only. (If mold does not loosen, repeat.)

Garnish with

Sprigs of water cress

Set in refrigerator until ready to serve.
8 servings

Caesar Salad

A skillet and a large salad bowl will be needed.

Put into a small screw-top jar

¼ cup salad oil
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 clove garlic, cut in halves

Cover and shake until mixture is well blended. Chill dressing in refrigerator about 1 hr. to allow flavors to blend.

Wash, discard bruised leaves from, and dry thoroughly with absorbent paper (using as much of each green as desired)

Curly endive

Lettuce

Romaine

Water cress

Tear enough greens into bite-size pieces to yield about 2 qts. Put into a large plastic bag and place greens in refrigerator to chill at least 1 hr.

To prepare croutons, stack and, if desired, trim crusts from

2 slices toasted bread

Cut bread into ½-in. cubes and set aside.

When the dressing is chilled, remove and reserve the garlic clove.

Heat in the skillet over low heat

2 tablespoons salad oil

Add to the skillet the reserved garlic clove from the salad dressing, the toasted bread cubes, and

1 clove garlic, cut in halves

Increase heat and cook over medium heat, moving and turning gently with a spoon until all sides of bread cubes are well coated with salad oil and are brown. Remove skillet from heat.

Rub the salad bowl with cut surface of

1 clove garlic, cut in halves

Discard garlic clove. Remove salad greens from refrigerator and put into the salad bowl. Sprinkle over greens a mixture of

¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper

Shake the chilled dressing and pour over the greens.

Break into a small bowl

1 egg

Add to the seasoned greens. Using salad fork and spoon, gently turn and toss salad until greens are well coated with salad dressing and no trace of egg remains. Add the croutons and toss lightly to mix thoroughly into salad.

Top with

Anchovy fillets (about 12 to 15)

Serve at once.

6 to 8 servings

Pan-Broiled Lamb Chops

Base Recipe

Heat a heavy skillet.

Wipe with a clean, damp cloth

4 lamb ribs or loin chops, cut about ½ in. thick

Place chops in the skillet and brown slowly. Maintain a temperature which allows juices to evaporate rather than collect in pan. With too low heat, the meat will simmer in its own juices and become dry and less tender when cooked. If necessary, turn meat occasionally for even browning and pour off the fat as it accumulates.

For each pound of meat, mix together

1 teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon pepper

When chops are browned on one side, turn and sprinkle with one half of seasoning mixture. Brown other side and sprinkle with remaining seasoning just before serving. Allow 10 to 12 min. for complete pan-broiling time. Test for doneness by cutting a slit along the bone and noting color of meat.

While chops are cooking, prepare and keep warm

Flavor-Rich Butter Sauce

Serve chops piping hot with the sauce.

4 servings

Broiled Lamb Chops

Use chops cut about 1 to 1½ in. thick, allowing ½ lb. meat per serving. Set temperature control of range at Broil (500°F or higher). Arrange the lamb chops on broiler rack. Place in broiler with tops of chops 2 in. from heat source; broil 1-in. chops 5 to 7 min. on each side and 1½-in. chops 8 to 10 min. on each side. Season when sides are browned, as in Base Recipe; serve with Flavor-Rich Butter Sauce.

Flavor-Rich Butter Sauce

Melt in a small saucepan over low heat

3 tablespoons butter

Blend in

1½ tablespoons lemon juice

¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel (grated through colored part only; white is bitter)

¼ teaspoon garlic salt or curry powder

Serve warm with Pan-Broiled or Broiled Lamb Chops. If desired, sprinkle with chopped parsley.

About ¼ cup sauce

Corn on the Cob

Set out a large saucepan having a tight-fitting cover.

Remove husks, corn silk, and blemishes from fresh ears of corn

Bring to boiling in the saucepan

Water (for mature corn, add ½ teaspoon sugar per quart of water)

Add the corn; cover and again bring to boiling. Boil at a moderate rate about 6 to 12 min., or until corn is just tender.

Remove corn with fork or tongs from water to a hot platter.

Be sure to have

Salt

Pepper

Butter or margarine

Serve the corn piping hot.

Celery Stuffers

The next time you prepare celery, try one of the following delicious mixtures to create appealing relishes. Remember, there's more than one way to stuff a stalk of celery!

Blend together thoroughly

3 oz. (1 pkg.) cream cheese, softened

2 tablespoons milk or cream

Blend in one of the combinations listed below. Cover the mixture and set in refrigerator to chill. Shortly before serving time, generously fill crisp stalks of celery with the chilled mixture. Cut into 2-in. lengths and arrange on a relish tray. Radish roses and pimiento-stuffed olives are colorful additions.

For Lemon-Pecan Stuffer—

2 tablespoons chopped pecans

1½ teaspoons lemon juice

¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel (grated through colored part only; white is bitter)

¼ teaspoon sugar

¼ teaspoon salt

Few grains white pepper

For Zippy Olive Stuffer—

2 tablespoons finely chopped

pimiento-stuffed olives

¼ teaspoon grated onion

¼ teaspoon sugar

2 drops tabasco sauce

Few grains salt

For Bits-o'-Bacon Stuffer—

2 teaspoons chopped parsley

2 teaspoons prepared horseradish

¼ teaspoon dry mustard

¼ teaspoon sugar

Just before filling celery stalks, blend into cream-cheese mixture

2 tablespoons crisp, crumbled bacon

(Each stuffer yields about ½ cup.)

Melbourne Salad Dressing

Toss garden-fresh vegetables with this piquant dressing to create a delectable salad. It's especially delicious when the greens are French endive, Bibb lettuce and celery cabbage. For an extra-savory treat, brush steaks and chops with this dressing before cooking.

Combine in a 1-pt. screw-top jar

¼ cup lemon juice

¼ cup salad oil

¼ cup Worcestershire sauce

3 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon sugar

Cover tightly and shake vigorously. Store covered in the refrigerator.

Shake well before using.

About 1¼ cups dressing

Freedom

The inspired words of the Declaration of Independence are as alive today as they were on that historic Fourth of July in 1776.

the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games and sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward, forevermore."

Adams' prediction was amazingly accurate—except for the date. Actually, the 13 American colonies did declare their independence on the Second of July, 179 years ago. That was the day the Continental Congress passed the resolution offered by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia that "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." But it was two days later, on the Fourth of July, that the Congress adopted the historic document of freedom known as the Declaration of Independence. The stirring words of this great statement did so much to rally the colonists behind the cause of liberty that eventually the Fourth of July came to be celebrated as Independence Day, the nation's birthday.

Written largely by Thomas Jefferson, with minor alterations by Adams and Benjamin Franklin, the Declaration of Independence is a masterful expression of the philosophy of human liberty. Through the years it has become a charter of freedom for discontented and oppressed peoples the world over.

Today the original copy of the Declaration of Independence is encased in a shrine of glass and marble in the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C. The signatures on the Declaration have become almost illegible and its text is faded. But its words will live forever.

Thomas Jefferson, primary author of the Declaration, presents final draft to Congress.

Problem!

If someone is locked in a hut with a bat, a ball and a glove, how could he get out?

Tommy Schneider

Aged 10 Glenville, Minn.

Answer: He could strike one, strike two, strike three—and you're out!

Dear Miss Barrows:

I have a hobby which most people I know think is unusual. I beg, trade and buy pencils—the kind that have an address or name of a town or state printed on it. I want one from each state and its capital and many more.

I have 150 pencils now but I know a man who has 3,500! My hobby is interesting.

Your friend,

Our Pets

I have a dog. He is a toy fox terrier. His name is Sniff. His name is Sniff because he sniffs everything he sees. I play with him when I come home from school. When I am in school my mother said that he chases after my cat, so she is glad when I come home.

We have lots of pets—a canary, whose name is Tweety, a parrot, whose name is Peter. We have a pair of lovebirds. Their names are Tome and Betty. We have two goldfishes whose names are Mary and Jerry. I have a turtle called Pokey and a cat named Snowball. If you wonder why we have so many pets, it's because we own a pet shop!

Oh, I left Sniff out. We got him when he was one year old. We have to put the goldfish up on a high shelf, so the cat won't get them. We hang the canary, lovebirds and parrot out of reach, too. If Sniff sees the cat climbing up, he chases the cat away. Sniff loves to run after a ball.

Dear Miss Barrows:

Here is my story—

Once upon a time a dainty, magic fairy lived in a blue pool in a cool, green forest. Her name was Tinker-belle.

If someone drank from the pool and made a wish, Tinker-belle made it come true.

But there was an old selfish woman who wanted more than her share of wishes. Every day she came to the pool in a different costume to fool Tinker-belle.

Because Tinker-belle was a magic fairy, she knew that it was the selfish woman all the time. She decided not to make any of her wishes come true.

Sincerely,

Diane Reilly

Aged 8 Stony Creek, Conn.

Dear Miss Barrows:

I like stories very much. I made up this one.

The Gibraphant

Once upon a time there was a little boy named Pigmyjim. Now Pigmyjim liked molasses so well. But living in the jungle, he couldn't have any. One day while he was walking along, he saw a strange animal. He thought if he could catch this animal and get a lot of money for it, then he could have all the molasses he wanted. How could he catch this animal with the head and neck of a giraffe, the body of a zebra, the legs of an elephant and the tail of a monkey? He called the animal a Gibraphant. He went home and got a net and he got the Gibraphant. He sold it to a Zoo and he got the money. He bought all the molasses. And he ate and ate.

Stars and Squares

Take strips of white crepe paper and stretch them across the floor, about ten inches apart. Then take red crepe paper and stretch it across the white strips, forming squares. Cut pieces of cardboard into the shape of stars. Toss these stars, trying to get them to rest within the squares formed by the crepe paper, but they must not touch the paper at all. Ten points are scored for each star that rests within the square. The one making the largest score wins.

WORK WONDERS IN TIRED ROOMS

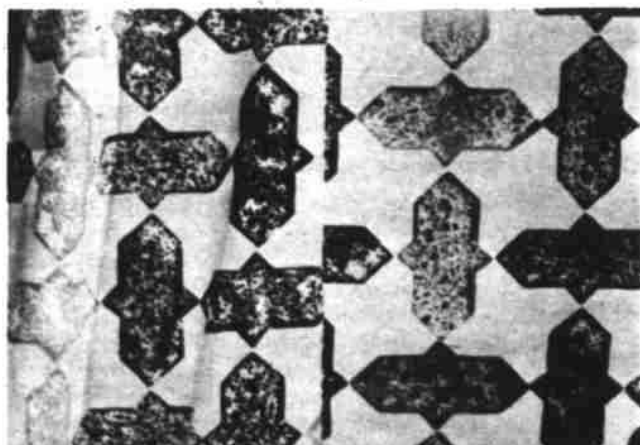

by Ruth W. Lee, Home-Furnishings Consultant

TAKE a tired room, treat it to new draperies, slip covers, or upholstery, and the setting has a fresh lease on life. Credit for this magical change goes to imaginative decorator fabrics, whose bright colors and distinctive designs pace other furnishings to handsome new effects. In traditional 18th-century rooms, delightful florals in scattered, vertical, and stylized patterns strike attractive notes. Designed to accent American- or French-provincial decor, small-scaled florals, medallions, and geometrics are perfect in dining rooms, dens, or bedrooms. But the most exciting new fabrics are dramatically colored contemporaries, many of which show the influences of Italy, Spain, Scandinavia, and the Orient. Available in a vast range of colors and patterns, new decorator fabrics are the key to brighter, smarter interiors.

Crisp, fresh zinnia print in an attractive horizontal design dresses up clipper sailcloth. By Desley.

Spanish in feeling and color, "Cordova" chintz is from new "España" fabric group by Dorothy Draper.

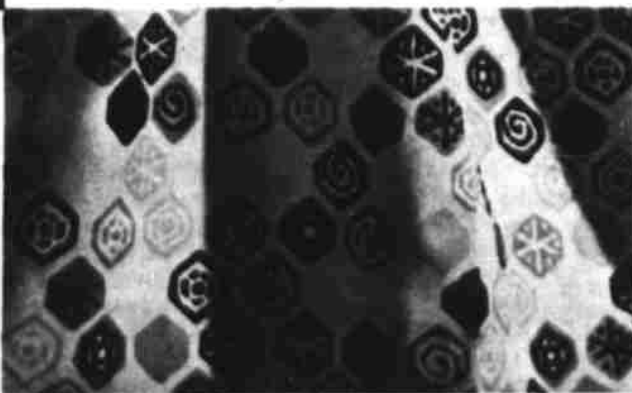

"Cut-Out," a modern pattern on batiste or poplin, was created by Alexander Gerard for Herman Miller.

When they started combining rodeo and religion, the "King of the Cowboys" and his author-wife reached new heights of success.

by Kay Campbell

WHEN DR. BILLY Graham, world-famous evangelist, asked, "Could you come over to London for a couple of weeks?" Roy Rogers hesitated and looked at his wife, Dale Evans. Momentarily, a hush fell over the little group seated in the Rogers' patio. Then Dale smiled and everyone knew the answer.

"It will be a privilege," she said quietly. And it was.

"Participating in the London crusade was one of the most stirring and rewarding experiences we've ever had," Dale Evans Rogers recalls. "Every day was jammed with rich spiritual incidents. Every hour was wonderful."

Coming from a woman whose everyday life is packed with inspiring events, this was a broad statement. As a cowgirl Dale is fast becoming a legend. Undisputed "Queen of the West," she reigns unchallenged alongside "The King of the Cowboys," Roy Rogers. As a writer, she is already a legend in the book-publishing business. Her first book, "Angel Unaware," rolled up sales of 400,000 in two years. The first printing of her second volume, "My Spiritual Diary," was revised upward to 50,000 and more than 30,000 had been sold weeks before publication.

Roy and Dale have succeeded in staying at the top of their particular branch of television for four years while so many other shows have vanished. And in a business noted for neither piety nor sobriety they've managed to combine rodeo and religion.

What's behind this phenomenal success?

Dale's answer is as good as any. "We've learned to wear God on our sleeves."

Roy adds soberly, "I'm not a preacher and I don't figure I was cut out to be one, but maybe I was meant to do a little bit of good right where I am."

"Right where" Roy and Dale happen to be is on the receiving end of the adoration of at least thirty million boys and girls. From this vantage point they can—and do—tell the youngsters to go to Sunday school, and the children respond by going in droves.

"If I can reach kids with some little word from this spot I've been given as a cowboy," Roy says, "then I figure I'm doing a little bit to help the Lord's work along."

God shares all their decisions

To Roy and Dale and their five children, God is no remote theological abstraction, but a loving Father who listens to every plea. No major decision is made without consulting Him first. Family devotions end the day. Grace is said, round-table fashion, at every meal. Religion has become so much a part of their lives that it is difficult to separate it from any of their everyday activities.

This wasn't always so. "My mother lived very close to God," Roy says, "and I was brought up in a God-fearing home. But for 20 years I seldom set foot inside a church. I never felt I was a non-Christian, but somehow churchgoing sort of slipped away from me."

Dale, too, had drifted away from churchgoing. "But when I married Roy," she recalls, "I wasn't merely acquiring a husband whom I adored. I was taking on the job of being a mother to his three young children, and I wanted to be a good mother. The child who has been taught to believe in prayer always has a resource, an added strength, no matter what befalls him. I wanted attendance at church to be a regular part of our children's lives, and I felt I couldn't ask them to do something I wasn't doing myself."

Suddenly Dale found she was looking forward to the services as a pleasure, not a duty. Noting her newly acquired serenity, Roy decided to accompany her and the children to church.

"That was the beginning of a new era of miracles for us," Dale observes.

Roy's addition of religion to an arena show came as a surprise to everyone, even himself. Because he was still unsure of himself at first, he didn't even confide in Dale beforehand.

One night in February, 1952, at the Houston Stock Show and Rodeo, Roy sang his first straight ballad in such a show—"Peace in the Valley," essentially a religious song, based on the passage in Isaiah 11:6. Afterward, he took a deep breath.

"A lot of you kids have written to me," he said simply, "and asked if I didn't think it was pretty sissy for you to go to Sunday school, the way your parents keep telling you to do. I want to say right here and now that I don't think it's sissy at all; I think it's one of the best things you can do."

More pleasing to Roy than the applause which followed was Dale's happy smile when he rejoined her. From then on, the "message" was a part of the show. And when they went to Madison Square Garden that Fall, less than a month after the death of their daughter, Robin, they made hymns a part of their repertoire. That the audience joined wholeheartedly in the new spirit of the show came as no surprise to them.

"Religion is neither stodgy nor grim," was their conclusion. "It is a staff to lean on at all times, a positive approach to everyday living."

They had need of this staff when Robin died. "I don't think I could have lived without it," Dale confides.

Robin's retardation, known to her parents soon after her birth, brought a shadow to their ranch home, but the baby herself evoked only special love and tenderness. Because her delicate heart could stand no excitement or loud noise, a small cottage was built for her just a step from the main house.

From the beginning, the other children—Cheryl, now 14, Linda Lou, 11, and Dusty, 7—adapted themselves cheerfully to her ways.

Like most parents of handicapped children, Roy and Dale prayed for the miracle that would make her well. But when the other children got the mumps, Robin caught the infection and died.

About "Angel Unaware"

Devastating as the tragedy was, it brought great good. Needing to write out Robin's story for herself, Dale wrote it for everyone in a little book she called "Angel Unaware." The title came from Hebrews 13:2—"be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unaware." The small book met with overwhelming success and all royalties were assigned to the National Association for Retarded Children. Dale's second book has been dedicated to the Children's Hospital Clinic in Los Angeles, and all royalties go to aid the lame, blind, and deaf.

A few weeks after Robin died, Roy suggested, "Why don't we adopt a baby to take her place?" When Dale burst into tears, he explained, "I don't mean that any other baby ever could take her place, exactly—but why don't we think about it?"

When they were in Dallas, Texas, they stopped at Hope Cottage, where Cheryl had been found. A black-eyed baby, with blacker hair, raised herself to her elbows and followed them around the room with her eyes. Her name was Mary Little Doe; and within a few weeks she was a part of the Rogers family.

Then another little private miracle took place. For years, they'd been searching for a boy to be a companion to Dusty "because he has only girls to play with." When they reached Cincinnati on a personal appearance tour, a call came from a woman who wanted to know if she could bring her cerebral palsied daughter to the auditorium to meet them. In making the arrangements for the meeting, Roy learned that the woman was foster-mother to 14 other children. On impulse, he asked if she had an adoptable boy of five or six.

The woman hesitated a moment. "One," she answered, "but I'm afraid you wouldn't want to adopt him. He has had the rickets."

"Bring him along," Roy suggested.

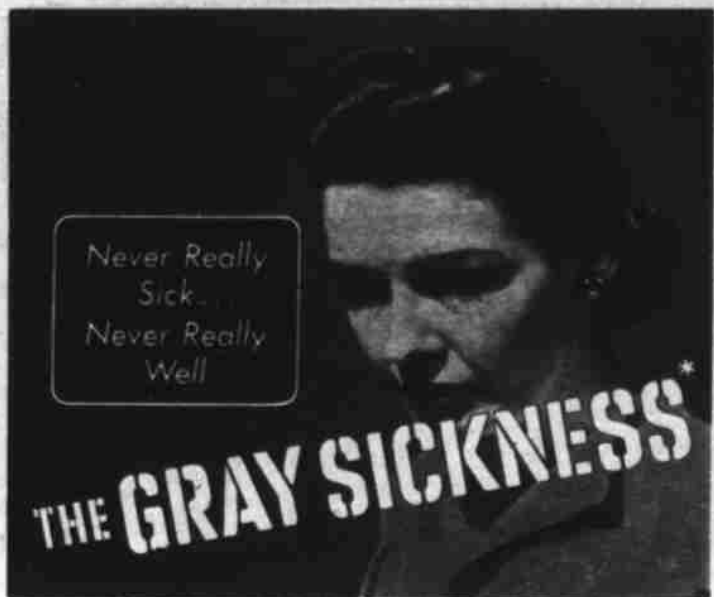

It was love at first sight. Tow-headed Sandy, shy and enraptured, said, "Howdy, podnah." He had on his only pair of shoes, which were too tight, and a brace on his back.

"Almost anyone will take a kid who's 100 percent," Roy said. "This one's got a strike against him. Maybe it's up to us to do something."

So now there are five children in the Rogers household, plus a little visitor from Scotland, Marian Fleming, whom Roy and Dale met when they visited the Scotland Home for Children last year. She will remain with them until she finishes high school.

"There's love enough for all," Dale smiles.
