Reagan beats Bush

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Ronald Reagan swept to victory in New Hampshire's primary election Tuesday night, reclaiming command of the race for the Republican presidential nomination. President Carter held a substantial lead over Sen. Edward Kennedy among Democrats.

Reagan outpolled former United Nations Ambassador George Bush by a landslide margin in partial returns, with five more GOP entries trailing them.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee was running third.

Hours before his victory, Reagan announced a startling shakeup of his organization, firing his long-time campaign manager and installing a new one.

Kennedy sought in New Hampshire to rekindle his flickering challenge to Carter's renomination. But the president led from the outset and threatened to pin another defeat in Kennedy's next Tuesday in Massachusetts, the senator's home state.

NBC News called Carter the winner. With returns counted from 110 precincts, or 37 percent of the 299 New Hampshire precincts, the Democratic race stood this way:

Carter 12,707 votes or 50 percent.

Kennedy 9,509 or 37 percent.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. 2,208 or 9 percent.

Two minor candidates had a scattering of votes.

That put Carter ahead for 10 New Hampshire delegate votes for the Democratic nomination, Kennedy for 9.

On the Republican side, 111 precincts had reported, and the count was:

Reagan 15,717 or 55 percent.

Bush 5,771 or 20 percent.

Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker Jr. 3,643 or 13 percent; Illinois Rep. John B. Anderson 2,346 or 8 percent; Former Texas Gov. John Connally 465 or 2 percent; Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois 389 or 1 percent, and Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas 127.

Former President Gerald R. Ford, had 54 write-in votes.

That put Reagan in the lead for 17 of New Hampshire's Republican presidential nominating votes, Bush for 3, Baker for 2.

Techsans pick Carter, Bush in UD presidential straw poll

By PETE McNABB
UD Reporter

Jimmy Carter defeated Edward Kennedy by a more than two-to-one margin in the Democratic vote and George Bush took 38 percent of the Republican vote in The University Daily Straw Poll Tuesday.

More than 1300 students voted in the poll, with the majority voting on the Republican ballot.

Carter won 60.3 percent or 192 of the 315 Democratic votes. Kennedy's 82 votes amounted to slightly more than 25 percent of the vote. Jerry Brown finished a distant third place with 30 votes or 9.4 percent of the Democratic vote.

Bush's 378 vote total was well ahead of any other Republican candidate. John Connally finished second with 206 votes or 20.7 percent. Ronald Reagan, who won the New Hampshire primary, came in a close third on campus with 194 votes or 19.5 percent.

John Anderson, who is often ridiculed in the Doonesbury comic strip for running for President, captured fourth place and 13 percent of the vote.

The poll coincided with the New Hampshire primary and all 12 candidates on the state's primary ballot were included on the straw poll ballots.

Lyndon LaRouche, a New Hampshire economist and editor received three votes. Richard Kay, the only other Democrat on the ballot, did not receive any votes.

Howard Baker came in fifth place with 41 votes, while Philip Crane came in sixth with 20 votes.

Although he was not on the ballot, Gerald Ford claimed 14 votes and edged out Bob Dole, who was on the Republican ticket.

Polls were set up in Holden Hall, the Journalism Building, the Law School and the University Center.

The UC had the largest voter turnout with 468 votes cast, while 300 votes were cast at Holden Hall. At the Law School, 273 ballots were cast and 111 votes were cast at the Journalism Building.

Overall, Bush came in first out of all four polling places, while Connally was third. Reagan and Anderson alternated at second and fourth places at each voting booth.

Reagan narrowly won the Holden Hall and UC polls, but he lost in the Law School and Journalism Building balloting. In the Law School, Anderson defeated Reagan by more than two-to-one.

The Law School votes also varied from the rest of the campus in the Democratic race. Although Carter's votes doubled Kennedy's overall, the two front runners tied in the Law School poll with 41.5 percent each. The Law School also reported five write-in votes for Law School professor U.V. Jones.

Jones votes were cast on both party ballots.

About half the law school students voted in the poll. About 5.5 percent of the student body — 1300 students — voted. However, the 1300 student votes were more than many other elections at Tech.

In Tech's November 1978 general election, less than 900 students voted at campus booths.

Campus campaigns for Bush, Connally and Reagan have been active since October. Some of the organizations report more than 100 registered members.

Tech's Bush campaign chairman Ron Miller said he was surprised that some of the other candidates did not do so well.

"Frankly, I'm surprised," Miller said. "I originally thought we were going to find a very strong showing for John Connally. However, I think it's indicative of the kind of momentum that George Bush has carried throughout the country."

Bush spoke on campus in November to about 300 students and Miller said he thought that aided Bush in his victory.

Although Connally has not fared particularly well in the earlier caucuses across the country, he was expected to do well on the Tech campus by his supporters. His 20.7 percent second place finish was well behind Bush's 38 percent. However, Tech's Connally campaign co-chairman Hank Clements said he feels the results may not be indicative of Connally's actual support on campus.

"We still feel we have the majority of the votes on campus," Clements said. "Out of 23,000 students, we have a lot more supporters that didn't make it to the polls."

Clements said he had expected Connally to finish close to Bush.

Although Reagan finished third in the poll, Tech campaign chairman Russell Little said it was not discouraging.

"We didn't expect to win the thing," Little said. "I thought it was pretty close."

Little also said he felt Bush should have won by more since he came to Tech.

"If Reagan had come to Tech, he would have done better than Bush," Little said.

Although there are no campaigns for individual Democrats on campus, there is a Young Democrats organization with a growing membership, according to Lisa Bainum, secretary-treasurer for the group.

"It doesn't surprise me that Carter won, but it did surprise me that Kennedy fell behind that far," Bainum said.

Class assignment asks students to interfere with campus poll

By JOEL BRANDENBERGER
UD Reporter

The University Daily learned Tuesday during the straw poll balloting that at least one concentrated effort was made to materially affect the results of the UD's poll.

In an experiment for a news reporting class, 23 students made a check of the four polling places between 12 and 1 p.m.

The students were told by lecturer Freda McVay to determine whether the polling places were operating within the announced guidelines by trying to vote more than once.

Almost all of the students who checked the polls reported they were able to vote more than once and to vote on both the Democratic and Republican tickets, McVay said.

The University Daily had announced that a person would be allowed to vote only once in the election and could vote either Democratic or Republican.

"The class members probably were able to tamper with the ballot results by voting more than once because of several reasons," UD editor Shauna Hill said.

"For one thing, Tech IDs were used in place of voter registration cards. Tech IDs are regularly borrowed and passed around."

"Secondly, many of the students working at the polls were journalism students who were in a position to aid the class even unknowingly. And, then, too, some volunteers were not able to work at the polls and other volunteers replaced them. It looks as though the volunteers were not instructed in the seriousness of the poll."

McVay said she asked her class to make the check of the polls to show that no straw poll could ever be considered "100 percent accurate."

"These polls may not be binding," McVay said. "But they certainly do count for something. When a candidate wins one of these straw polls, he gains momentum and it's easier for him to get people on his bandwagon."

A check by The University Daily showed that McVay's class apparently was the only group to attempt such a concentrated attempt to stuff the ballot boxes.

Information Hill received by telephone anonymously also indicated Tuesday that one and possibly two other groups had tried to tamper with the ballot results. This information could not be confirmed, however.

Some group representatives did say they worked to improve their candidates' standing in the polls.

Ron Miller, campus chairman for the George Bush campaign, said his organization called Bush supporters and other Republicans before the poll and asked them to vote.

Miller also appeared concerned upon hearing the poll had been tampered with.

Mike Hester of the Young Democrats organization said his group called its workers and asked them to work at a booth in the University Center during the poll. Hester said the booth was located away from the polling area, and his workers only encouraged those who stopped at the booth to vote Democratic.

Two other campus chairmen for candidates said their groups had not planned any special campaign effort.

Commission to license power plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is ready to begin licensing nuclear power plants again for the first time since the Three Mile Island accident, NRC Chairman John F. Ahearne told Congress on Tuesday.

Ahearne said his agency's self-imposed moratorium — he called it a "pause" — could end in the next few days when the NRC considers granting an interim operating license for a plant near Chattanooga, Tenn.

Barring unforeseen complications, a license will likely be issued to allow the plant to begin "low-power" operation within the next few weeks, Ahearne said in testimony to a House Appropriations subcommittee on energy.

The plant — the Tennessee Valley Authority's Sequoyah Unit No. 1 — is first on the NRC's list of 14 new plants that could be put into operation in 1980.

SMU advertising refuses Playboy adds

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University's student newspaper Monday refused to accept an advertisement from a Playboy Magazine Photographer who was seeking student models for a pictorial feature.

David Chan, soliciting SMU women to pose for a feature called "Girls of the Southwest Conference," was told he could not place the ad in the Daily Campus.

Conversational Spanish offered

A beginning conversational Spanish class will be starting today through the Division of Continuing Education.

Class times will be 7 to 9:30 p.m. every Wednesday until May 7. Steve Corbett of the department of Classical and Romance languages will teach the course which will be devoted mainly to conversational listening and speaking. Some reading and writing will also be covered in the course.

For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education at 742-2354.

SA vice president candidates file

Two candidates have signed up to run for the position of Student Association internal vice president. The candidates are Bob Deming and Mike Nipper. Nipper is not an incumbent running for the office as reported in the University Daily Tuesday.

Deming is currently senate aid to the publicity committee of the SA. He is a sophomore pre-law major.

Nipper is currently a senator representing the College of Arts and Sciences. He is a junior pre-med major.

University Forum

Students vote for beer on campus

By REAGAN WHITE
UD Reporter

By a majority of 104 to 42, participants in Tuesday's University Forum supported the motion that beer by the drink should be sold at a university-sponsored pub.

Speaking for the resolution was senior marketing major Gary Hanson, president of the Student Association.

Don Workman

Speaking against the resolution was Don Workman, a member of the Texas Tech Board of Regents.

Hanson opened the debate by citing a survey made in February of 1978 that indicated 86 percent of all Tech students favored establishment of an on-campus pub.

Hanson said 60 percent of the 307 students who responded to the poll indicated they would visit the University Center more often if there were a pub there, and 94 percent of the respondents said they felt their study habits would not be adversely affected by the presence of an on-campus pub.

Thirteen institutions of higher education in Texas currently allow on-campus pubs, and none of these has reported problems from having alcohol on campus, Hanson said.

Hanson maintained an on-campus pub would not become a drain on the University's budget, because 32 of 44 on-campus pubs at various colleges across the nation reported a profit in 1978. Only four lost money, he said.

Hanson said Tech students simply want a quiet place where they can gather and have a few beers with friends in an atmosphere better than that usually found in off-campus bars and clubs.

Hanson said a pub would be respectable and would present no discipline problems.

Concluding his remarks, he said "Objectively, we can find no evidence that alcoholic beverages consumed on campus would adversely affect the educational opportunities offered at Texas Tech."

Gary Hanson

In response, Tech Regent Don Workman emphasized he was speaking as an individual. He said his remarks did not necessarily reflect the opinion of either the Board of Regents as a whole or any of the other individual regents.

Workman also said his appearance at the Forum was the first time a Regent has had the opportunity to offer feedback to the students concerning the issue of on-campus alcohol at Tech.

Election fraud proven; future effect risky

Shauna Hill

Election fraud is not pretty. Not even when the deception is done to promote a "qualified, very astute" candidate or to attempt to prove a theory about the United States election system.

The University Daily straw poll conducted in conjunction with the New Hampshire primary is an example of what can happen when those within the system deliberately and calculatingly attempt to corrupt that system.

Statisticians and the poll takers themselves have said the accuracy of straw polls, primaries and even elections themselves are not accurate.

The results depend on who gets his supporters to the polls, the integrity of the poll workers, the accuracy of the machinery for reporting results, the image of the candidate and the state of the nation at the time of the election.

But to deliberately set out to corrupt that complicated system is election fraud and a direct affront to the principles the candidates and the populace theoretically support.

Three separate attempts to fraud the straw poll are said to have existed and one of those attempts is completely documented.

The journalism classes of lecturer Freda McVay of the mass communications department made an effort to see how many times the participating students in the class could vote at different polling stations and what effect those votes would have on the outcome of the election.

THE RATIONALE for the ruse was to prove the vulnerability of the election system, to show the journalism class students the inner workings of the system and to prove statistically how much a group or groups could affect the outcome of an election.

The results of the class effort were documented and records were kept.

The two other instances of fraud that have been reported to the editor of The University Daily are said to have been done with a specific candidate in mind. Two political groups on campus are said to have attempted, through careful coaching of their own members and persuasion of other people, to weight the polls in favor of their candidate or party.

The groups support Republican candidates.

THEIR ACTIONS may border on the unethical, but are far enough within the bounds of the usual coercion practiced by partisans to be excused, if not exonerated, as normal campaigning for their candidate or party.

But the deliberate, documented election fraud is scary. The straw poll was by no means as carefully controlled as a regular election, but there were safeguards.

Voters were supposed to show their Tech identification at the polling place and have the back of it marked Democrat or Republican, much like the system used in the primaries.

But the safeguards were difficult to enforce when many of the poll workers were members of the class that was conducting the exercise to discredit the election process.

The overall effect of the fraud is minimal. There are at least eight months of hard presidential campaigning left and the results of the New Hampshire primary, the UD straw poll and other such early indicators will have little effect on the outcome of the election.

IF SUCH A PATTERN were repeated in all the primaries and straw polls, then maybe an effect on the presidential election would be possible.

The real danger in the election fraud is that it has been proven and documented that it can be done. And in the past, large campus organizations have tried to influence the campus Student Association elections.

And with fewer restrictions on this year's SA election, the very real possibility exists that fraudulent activities will again become commonplace.

The rumors of who will take the election already are being heard, even though the final list of candidates only recently was finalized.

And if people again make a mockery of the election system at Tech, the legitimacy of those elected and the system itself may be lost.

Hello typewriter; hello Tech

Carmon McCair

Hello typewriter. (Oh no, it's you again. Look cold fingers, it's my day off. Why don't you go somewhere and leave me alone?)

I've only got just a little bit of typing to do.

(I could care less. I'm still not going to do it. Listen, why don't you go shovel the dirt and junk out of your car. Anyone who would leave a window open and the lights on during the last few days deserves a brown interior and a dead battery.)

I realize it's your day off but I need to get this typed and on the editor's desk. (If you touch one of my keys, so help me, I will scramble everything you type into an unintelligible mess.)

I've had enough! I'm not going to let a hunk of metal and plastic hassle me around. All I want is to get one simple little column typed —

(Column? You're doing a column? Hee hee ha ha ho ho! You didn't get enough of that last year? Hee hee ha ha ho ho snicker snicker.)

I can tell it's going to be a long semester.

Hi Y'all — I'm Carmon McCair and I know what you are thinking. You were expecting a female, right? Having a first name like Carmon has been interesting and misleading at times.

People have done double-takes and expressed surprise when they see a male when actually they expected a female. Also, you should see some of the samples I've received in the mail.

I moved from Midland and the Permian Basin to Lubbock and the South Plains several months ago. Journalistically, I've been on the staffs and have edited the newspaper and magazine at Midland College.

As a relative newcomer to the South Plains area, I hope Techsians can direct me toward sources of column material.

Off the Beaten Path is going to be a potpourri of people, places, events and humor. All of which help shape our lives in West Texas.

That is, if I get that typewriter to cooperate.

Original spirit

To the Editor:

In the February 19 issue of The University Daily, a news brief stated that an old Tech tradition had been revised creating the Student Fanfare. This "new" Student Fanfare is an imitation of one of A&M's strongest and most effective traditions of "humping" during a yell.

Although the news brief did not directly connect the revised yell to A&M's tradition, it did, however infer it by referring to the intense pride and school spirit of Aggies.

I realize that the Saddle Tramps, Cheerleaders, and Pom-Pon Girls try to instill spirit in all of us Techsians, but must they copy another school's tradition simply because it works at that school?

"Humping it" during the Student Fanfare may become very popular and I realize that the Saddle Tramps do a modified version at football games, but I believe if Tech wants to prove that it is not a second rate school as one of Clement's aides inferred, it will find a new and original way to fire up the crowds.

Hey, Tech, let's be initiators not imitators

Credit at home

To the Editor:

In response to the letter published for the Organization of Arab Students (O.A.S.) on February 19, I must make the following comments.

Where does the O.A.S. muster the gall to "demand apology" from the United States government? By offering congressmen forbidden fruit, posed as Arab businessmen, the F.B.I. has merely echoed the often occurring truth.

The fact that real Arab businessmen have gratified Congressmen with wealth in exchange for legislative favors cannot be denied. The precedent set by some Arab businessmen being used as the standard for the F.B.I. "sting" operation is nothing short of commendable.

That the F.B.I. can take advantage of these previous occurrences to clean the congressional laundry can hardly be construed as a "campaign of distortion and slander" directed at the Arab people.

So take another look O.A.S. Before condemning your host

Letters:

Blacks in combat

To the Editor:

Now that we've stopped discussing the importance of greeks and whether or not all sorority girls are bitches, let's get into something a lot more important, such as the situation in Iran, Afghanistan, and Russia.

Since Jimmy Carter has reinstated registration for the draft, I've heard a lot of discussion about whether or not women should be drafted and if they should go into combat, but what I haven't heard is whether the minorities have some feedback on the situation we're in today.

That's why I'm writing this letter because, I (being black) don't feel that we should go to fight for this country when we're treated like dogs by white people.

Blacks have fought in the Civil War, World Wars I and II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War and yet we still experience prejudice and racism in the country we've helped fight to save.

Some people will say the United States is not a racist society, but when you read about the problems with integration in Boston, Columbus, and even Texas (the good ole state of friendship), the rising of the KKK all over the country, the Bakke Decision, and the firing of Andrew Young—the handwriting is on the wall.

And to get a little closer to home the problems at Tech with the recruitment of minorities (excluding athletes). I've been called "nigger" so many times here at Tech that I can't begin to count them. I've experienced discrimination at clubs, discos, and restaurants from whites.

The thing that irks me the most is that it's from Tech students that I receive the most prejudice from.

A rational person would think that relations between blacks and whites would be better with the younger generation of whites, but instead here at Tech things seem to be getting worse. I work on campus and it's a shame the way my own peers treat me and I know many others like myself.

The white women at this school are so prejudiced and afraid of blacks that they won't dance with you at a club, sit by you on the bus, and in class. They don't even have enough respect to speak when you say hello. Judging from the way blacks are treated by whites at Tech and in the U.S. there is absolutely no way I'd go fight, even if I am drafted.

I'm just not prepared to die for people who hate me and my people. What would a black person be fighting for? The right to come back home and be called "NIGGER" by white people. Of course I know that not all white people are prejudiced and racist, but there are enough to make a person feel the way I feel.

In closing I would like to ask the writers of "Tech Gentlemen", do your comments include the black men? The reason I ask this is because it just so happens that the day before your letter appeared I gave up my seat to a girl and held the door for girls from Holden Hall to Chitwood and I didn't receive not one thank you.

Therefore, all I can say to you is that you probably don't deserve chivalry and also being the gentleman that I am, when the bus or plane leaves for Afghanistan, you can have my seat because as the ole saying goes "LADIES ARE ALWAYS FIRST."

U.S. 'republic'

To the Editor:

The framers of our American system sensed the great need for public responsibility as an equal and balancing force to human freedom. They realized that if a nation's people were not willing to take on the burden of the public good, no free and popular government could exist.

Any people that abdicated this responsibility would only be fit for kings and despots, and truly they would get what they deserved, for their lack of responsibility would be the loud invitation to all despots.

It would seem that we have a large group of these people here. Under the cloak of "democracy," which they interpret to mean that we can do anything we wish, these attempt to show that the government has no rights over us and cannot force us to fight for its sake.

I submit that the United States was not founded as a "democracy," but as a limited republic, and that the founding fathers established a legitimate government with the power to defend itself.

It has the authority to call us at any time for that purpose, without endangering its status as a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people." Moreover, at this point, the will of the people is to have the draft ready for the time when it is needed.

Modern man, who has lost the idea that there is a "virtue" or "goodness" which ought to be preserved, naturally does not want to expend effort to preserve it, much less be forced to fight. These have an appearance of virtue in their cry to "save lives," and that a war must be avoided "at any cost."

However, even if saving lives is the only criterion, it is better to die to keep tyrants out than to perish under their oppression after they have conquered. More than that, I will assert that it is good and right to defend our system against the Soviet one; ours at least permits you to speak and object.

(Why don't you go join one of those "popular movements" that the Soviets "champion"? There is one going on right now in Afghanistan.)

As for Jesus, He gave precepts for our personal behavior toward enemies, but concerning the role of the state, he commended a high-ranking soldier as the one in whom he found the greatest faith, and he reminded us to render to Caesar what is his, as well as what is God's to God.

His kingdom is not of this world until He comes back; the kingdoms that are of the world may command our allegiance. What it seems you people

National census considered most costly ever

(c) 1980 N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — In New York State, teachers are under orders to prepare lessons on the census.
 And, all over the country, census workers are setting up cardboard desks and poking into narrow alleys and remote ravines to list every last shack and trailer in the land.
RADIO and television advertisements are appearing with such celebrities as Kirk Douglas, Roger Staubach, Luis Tiant and Mickey Mouse singing: "Answer the Census. We're Counting on You."
 It is all part of an intricate effort that will reach a crescendo April 1, the reporting date for the nation's 20th decennial census—by far the largest, most costly and difficult head count in American history.

 Top Census Bureau officials express confidence that, despite some problems, they will be able to "capture" in census jargon, all but a relative handful of the nation's estimated 222 million residents.
NINETY percent of all households will get their questionnaires in the mail, and if many more than 20 percent of these fail to respond in a short time, the bureau's plans will be severely upset because costly and time-consuming personal follow-ups will be needed.

 Another question is whether the bureau will be able to hire enough of the 275,000 temporary workers it needs, at $4 an hour, particularly Spanish-speaking people, blacks and other minority representatives needed to work in minority communities.
 No one expects or promises a perfect census. The task is staggering: to ferret out and record information about every last man, woman and child in a far-flung country in which one of every five families moves every year and in which many resent being asked whether they have any "physical, mental or other health condition" that prevents them from working, or whether their house has a sewer or cesspool.

WHILE much publicity has focused on getting members of minority groups to respond, census officials say they have a bigger worry. "My main concern is not minorities; we've knocked ourselves silly for them," said Dan Bailey, head of the Census Promotion Office. "My big problem is, some unknown percent of middle America thinks Washington is Sodom and Gomorrah. We don't know how many conservative, salt-of-the-earth Americans are going to say 'a plague on you.'"

Numbers alone suggest the magnitude of the task. The 120 million forms took 5,000 tons of paper and 85 tons of ink to print; they fill 425 tractor-trailer trucks. Census workers will use 228,000 dozen lead pencils in 409 offices. The 3.3 billion answers on completed forms will be transferred to 5,000 miles of microfilm for electronic reading. Computers will work round the clock for nine months so that figures on state populations can be delivered, as the law requires, by Jan. 1, 1981, so Congress can be reapportioned.

(THE FORMS will ultimately be shredded and dissolved in acid. No names will go into the computer, though they will be kept on microfilm and held secret for 72 years.)
 The results are likely to confirm trends in migration, living arrangements, housing and other phenomena of American life

For example, because of a drastically reduced birth rate, total population is expected to be counted as nine percent higher than it was in 1970, which would be the smallest increase in American history except for the 1930-1940 period of the Great Depression. But, because of the trend toward living alone, the number of housing units is expected to be 25 percent greater than in 1970.

IN ADDITION to their use in reapportionment of Congress and every state legislature, the results are the basis for distribution of $50 billion a year in federal aid. For example, no less than nine federal programs and laws use figures on how many families have piped water and flush toilets. Moreover, the census data will be the basis for business decisions and scholarly studies for a decade.

THE LATE GREAT LOST RECORD REVIEW

(OR... ALBUMS YOU MIGHT HAVE MISSED)

By m.w. clark

New York Dolls' album revisited

It was a Saturday night in November, 1973. No one would sit on the front row in the small club. They had seen the album cover, and the transvestite overtones put an uneasiness in the back of their minds. But the music was good, and that is what the crowd came to hear — the powerful and intense sound of the New York Dolls.

The Dolls came on, and although the band dressed radically the crowd was relieved to see no feminine attire. The Dolls gave a legendary performance featuring the songs from the band's debut album. The audience was in shock. There was just so much energy there.

The album was the "New York Dolls" by the group of the same name. It was produced by Todd Rundgren. This may very well be one of Rundgren's greatest productions. The full, even sound of the arrangements and mixes adorn the album.

The Dolls consisted of five highly talented individuals. Three of them are still recording, though the group has since disbanded. Johnny Thunders plays lead guitar, Sylvain Sylvain guitar, Jerry Nolan drums, Arthur Harold "Killer" Kane on bass and David Johansen does the vocals and plays harmonica.

The songs on the album carry the same gut level feeling of the old raunchy Stones at their best. The album opens with "Personality Crisis," a very rhythmic tune, and like the rest of the songs on the album, very rocking. Johansen's voice is reminiscent of Mick Jagger's and delivers quite a punch. Crisp and alive is the only way to describe these songs.

"Lonely Planet Boy" is the slow song of the album. One may wonder if David Bowie wrote "Heroes" after listening to this song. The blend is excellent and there is this neat little whistling sound in the background.

The Dolls were performing a song called "Frankenstein" for a year or two before Edgar Winter recorded a song of the same name. Hence on this album the song is slightly retitled Frankenstein (original).

The closing song "Jet Boy" tells the sad tale of a jet boy who stole the singer's "baby," a jet.

"Jet boy's flying, jet boy's gone, jet boy stole my baby, running around New York City so high, Lockheed was my baby..." The energy of the song is indeed equivalent to that of a jet.

The "New York Dolls" was one of the original punk albums of the '70s. Anyone into new wave or punk at all should not overlook this album.

The "New York Dolls" will be presented in its entirety between 3 and 4 p.m. today on KTXT-FM.

Holly miniature statues available

Holly statue

By INEZ RUSSELL
UD Entertainment Editor
Orders now are being taken for the bronze miniature of Buddy Holly, Larry Corbin, spokesman for the Buddy Holly Memorial Foundation, announced at a news conference Tuesday.

The miniatures are replicas of the seven-foot statue of Holly that will be placed in front of the Civic Center. Corbin said only 250 of the miniatures will be made. Each will sell for $1,000. Nationally known artist Grant Speed created the bronze.

The large bronze of Holly will be unveiled at the next Buddy Holly Memorial Concert. The Buddy Holly Memorial Foundation is not sure of the date of the next show, Corbin said.

"It's not really tied to September, but that would be ideal," Corbin said about the concert.

Part of the uncertainty about the date stems from the committee's uncertainty about which artists will appear at the concert.

Last September, Waylon Jennings and the Crickets headlined the show, but there has been much speculation that Paul McCartney would be appearing this year.

"We hope to have him, but there's a lot of it's in it. He's interested. It's kind of in the we're-thinking-about-it stage. If you get McCartney, where are you going to have him? If he says 'I can come in January,' then we're having it in January," Corbin said.

Until the artists to appear at the concert commit themselves, Corbin said, there is no way the committee can set a date for the next concert. He said they should reach a decision by June.

The Holly statue will be unveiled at the next concert, however.

Proceeds from the sale of the bronze miniatures will go to fund the Holly memorial, Corbin said.

Most of the miniatures probably will be sold in England and to musicians, Corbin said. But he said he would like local citizens to invest in the works as well.

With each of the 250 statues selling for $1,000, $250,000 should be made. Of that, $50,000 and the seven-foot bronze will be given to the committee for upkeep of the memorial. The other $200,000 will go to the artist.

Corbin said he hopes the next concert will be a television special. Eventually, he said, the Holly statue will include such West Texas musicians as Mac Davis and Texas Walk of Fame that will Waylon Jennings.

Concert dates set

Local club Rox has confirmed dates on two major upcoming concerts.

Rock guitarist Roy Buchanan is scheduled to perform March 23. The guitarist is highly acclaimed by critics, but remains relatively unknown to most of the public.

The punk band, the Ramones, will be returning to the club April 6.

Thorpe leads women swimmers to state meet

By JEFF HOLLOMAN
UD Sports Staff

The Tech women's swim team is currently in competition at the Texas Swimming and Diving Meet being held at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

Tech faces all the other conference schools which include two of the top swimming powers in the country,

Texas and Houston. But, freshman Amy Thorpe from Kelso, Washington said that she is not intimidated by Houston or Texas.

"We have been working as hard or harder than anybody in the country," said the Design Communications major. "Sure, you have to be realistic and know that there are some people that will be better than you in a natural sense, but as far as physical conditioning and mental preparation is involved, Tech has a good chance to take every race we enter."

Ideally, Tech should place as high as third behind Texas and Houston if the Raiders have an excellent three days of swimming, according to coach Anne Goodman.

"We're going to have to have some outstanding performances to beat SMU for third," said Goodman. "We're expecting a lot from Amy in all after races this weekend. All we can expect is to do our best and then see how the point totals come out."

"I think Amy will be able to help us out a lot now that she has recovered from some of her injuries," said Goodman. "She can provide us with some valuable points in the state meet."

Thorpe has been injured during the first part of the season, but has come on strong lately in practice. She knows what has to be done to compete against tougher opposition and succeed.

"In high school, I swam against people that were supposed to be real good," said Thorpe, "but I always did well against them."

Indeed, Thorpe's high school accomplishments are worth noting. She qualified for the National AAU championships from 1974 through 1977. She was named as an All-American in 1976 in the 100 meter freestyle and also qualified for the Olympic time trials.

"I really feel like Tech will be a team to be reckoned with in a couple of years," said Thorpe. "Our team is made up almost completely of freshman and sophomores and we are really close. There's probably not another team with the spirit and closeness that we have. And I think that is an asset to any winning program."

Thorpe feels that coming to Tech provided an important change in her life.

"My attitude was really poor when I first came to school," said Thorpe. "I wasn't excited about anything and was apathetic toward studies."

"But through my friends on the team and the people I've met here in Lubbock, I've been able to develop a new outlook on myself, my studies and life in general," said Thorpe. "I feel like a part of a unit, a family because of the attitudes expressed to me by my teammates and Coach Goodman."

Quintet yet to lose in basketball

AUSTIN (AP) — A quintet, who will become the 1980-81 varsity basketball team at Austin Johnson High School, has never lost a game.

Five players remain from a 7th grade team that started a winning streak at Pearce Junior High School in 1975.

In four years the team has stretched its record to 78-0, including a 21-0 junior varsity mark during the recent season.

The Johnson varsity was 8-22 this season, and Coach Morris Mayo said, "It took a lot of guts not to cut some of the seniors and bring these young kids up, but I felt it would be more valuable for them to win this year. Winning builds winning."

"One day," he said, "they were scrimmaging the varsity and giving us a pretty good working over. I stopped it and said, 'Hell, I'm coaching the wrong team.'"

TCU's Kemy Hart (30) looks like he's ready to take a jab at the stomach of Tech's Thad Sanders. It would have taken more than a poke to the mid-section to stop Sanders Monday night. The Port Arthur senior closed out his home career with 18 points to lead all Raider scorers. With the 71-52 win over TCU, Tech advances to the quarterfinals of the SWC Tourney to face SMU this Thursday.

LCC baseball series postponed

The Tech baseball team's scheduled four-game series against Lubbock Christian College Saturday and Sunday has been postponed one day until Sunday and Monday.

Tech Head Coach Kal Segrist agreed to the schedule change when he learned LCC's basketball team had a playoff game Saturday. Larry Hayes, the LCC baseball coach, serves as the basketball coach.

With the schedule changes, the two teams will play doubleheaders on Sunday and Monday. All four games will be played at the Tech

Diamond and the doubleheaders will start at 4 p.m. each day.

Tech will then go on the road to Tulsa, Okla., where it will play Oral Roberts in a single game at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday. Fayetteville will be the Raiders' next stop Friday when they play the Arkansas Razorbacks in a single, nine-inning game at 3 p.m.

We spend a little more time to do a lot better job. Alamo Tune-Up, 747-5521.

Tech receives at-large bid

Tech was among six Texas schools selected for the 12-team Southwest AIAW Regional Basketball Tournament on March 5-8 in Baton Rouge, La., Coach Gay Benson announced today.

Tech, 23-10, was selected as the seventh seed and will play Arkansas in the opening round. It will be the first regional appearance ever for the Razorbacks. Arkansas, the only division one school in the state, was automatically seeded without a state tournament.

Louisiana Tech earned the top seed. The Lady Techsters, Louisiana state champions and the second-ranked team in the nation with a 36-2 record, will draw a bye in the opening round.

Texas state champion Stephen F. Austin, 21-5, and runners-up Texas, 30-2, and Wayland Baptist, 19-11, will fill the next three spots and will also have byes into the quarterfinals.

Fifth-seeded Louisiana State, 15-14, will play Southeast Louisiana State, 13-12, which was the last school selected.

Benson, a member of the five-person seeding committee, was elated with the bid. "After state, it was good to get another chance. Most of all I'm excited because the six teams from Texas got in," Benson said.

Basketball to highlight 'Live'

This week's "Saturday Morning Live" program will feature a one-on-one basketball tournament. The event is open to all students, faculty, and staff. The deadline for entries is 5 p.m. Thursday in the Recreational Sports Office, located in Building X-17.

The three divisions of competition included are the men's six feet and under division, the men's over six feet division, and the women's division. The action will take place this Saturday morning in the Women's Gym.

Individuals are responsible for keeping their own scores. The first person to score 10 baskets by a two-basket advantage will be declared the winner.

There will be no officials. Fouls will be called by the individual players fouled.

All-university playoffs begin

Men's and women's intramural basketball championships will be decided this week with the conclusion of the all-university playoffs.

In men's basketball, the Greek division winner will play the club division champion at 6 p.m. Thursday in the semifinals. Also in semifinal-round action, the residence hall winner will take on the open division representative. That contest will take place at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The two survivors will collide at 4:30 p.m. Sunday for the men's all-university championship.

Four women's teams will play at 7 and 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the Women's Gym to decide which clubs will compete for the women's all-university championship. The title game will be played at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Women's Gym.

Competition has been narrowed to four teams in the men's Greek division. At least, that's the way it stood until Tuesday night. In competition Tuesday, Pikes "A" played Phi Deltis "A", and KA "A" met the Sig Eps.

The two survivors meet in the Greek finals tonight, and the winner will advance to the men's semifinals Thursday.

In the club division semifinals Tuesday, IEEEE "A" squared off against IEEEE "B," while Kappa Alpha Psi challenged FCA "B." The two winners meet at 7:30 p.m. today for the club division championship, and the winner of that game will advance to the all-university semifinals.

The Zoo, which upset the number-one ranked Aloha Brothers, played Shootist Tuesday night in open division semifinal action, and the Best-of-the-Rest met Off-the-Wall. The survivors play at 8:45 p.m. today and the winner will represent the club division in the men's semifinals Thursday.

And in the residence hall division, the Murdough Mo Fo's battled Weymouth No Flack Tuesday, while Weymouth Wolfpack squared off against the Motleys. The two winners collide at 5 p.m. today in the residence hall title game.

Going into last night's action, eight teams were still alive in the women's all-university playoffs.

KK Gamma challenged the DG's at 7 p.m. Tuesday, and Knapp squared off against Rodeo. BSU played Hulen in Tuesday night's women's quarterfinals, and the Hot Dogs vied against the Shooting Stars.

The winner of the KK Gamma-DG's contest will battle the winner of the Knapp-Rodeo game at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the Women's Gym. The BSU-Hulen winner will face the winner of the Hot Dogs-Shooting Stars shootout at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Both of those contests will be semifinal-round games.

KK Gamma advanced to the semifinals by virtue of a forfeit by Kappa Alpha Theta. The DGs beat the Tri Deltis 45-41, the Hot Dogs beat Swish 38-26, and the Shooting Stars beat the Playgirls 60-43.

Sports Briefs

CANOE TRIP

Next Wednesday is the deadline for signing up for the spring break canoe trip through the lower canyons of the Rio Grande River. The trip is being sponsored by Recreational Sports' Outdoor Program and will be led by Dr. Bill Kitchen of Park Administration.

Participants will leave Lubbock March 15 and return on March 22. The cost of $80 includes transportation, equipment, and food while on the river. Canoeing experience is required.

Persons interested in going on the trip can sign up in the Outdoor Shop, which is located in Room 101 of the Intramural Gym. The shop is open every afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m.

For further information, call 742-2949 or 742-3351.

RULES CLINICS

All individuals participating in the co-rec softball program are urged to attend a rules clarification clinic at 5 p.m. today in Room 207 of the Men's Gym.

A second rules clarification meeting will take place at 5 p.m. Thursday in Room 207 of the Men's Gym for all individuals participating in the men's and women's slow pitch softball leagues.

VOLLEYBALL CLINICS

All intramural volleyball officials are urged to attend a pair of officiating clinics scheduled for next Tuesday and Wednesday in the Women's Gym.

Tuesday's clinic will begin at 6 p.m. in Room 106 of the Women's Gym, and Wednesday's clinic begins at 7 p.m. in the Women's Gym.

Those persons who officiated volleyball during the fall semester must attend the Wednesday session dressed to ref. Currently, volleyball officials are paid $2.90 per game.

WATER POLO OFFICIALS

The Rec Sports Department needs water polo officials. Those interested in making $2.90 per game may contact Betty Sackbauer at 742-3351. Competition begins at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Aquatic Center.

Winners' Circle

Terry Kirk defeated Tim Yates 21-5, 21-12 for the "CC" racquetball championship.

In men's eight-ball pool, Dusty Womble defeated Jake Weber three games to one.

Katherine Janet won her fifth consecutive table tennis singles crown by defeating Betty Bellah 21-12, 21-8.

Claire Dean downed Bonnie Crouse for the women's backgammon championship. Chuck Conaway defeated Steve McNeil in the men's division.

The women's badminton division gets underway at 7 p.m. today. Men should report at 7:30. All matches will be played in the Women's Gym.

Women's three-on-three volleyball schedules are ready and may be picked up in the Recreational Sports Office, located in Building X-17. Competition will begin March 12.
