SAN DIEGO M-State Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd asked today for a court order to prevent officials of Duval County and the Benavides Independent School District from destroying records. His petition charged that since the state began investigating use of the school district's funds, various books, records, accounts, canceled checks and receipts and invoices in Duval County and the school district have disappeared. This was Shepperd's second legal maneuver in two days in what he calls his fight to clean out "boss rule" in South Texas.

Carpenters Go Back To Jobs On City Project

Carpenters stayed off one con-struction job, but reported for work at another today in the midst of a School District: Alberto Garcia, Still without carpenter help was the Eitze-Kitchens Construction Company which has a big project started at the Big Spring State Hospital. However, spokesmen for the concern said they weren't working today anyway, due to the blowing sand.

All workers on the project took the day off, because of the Carpenters were back on the job today for A. P. Kasch & Sons. firm which is enlarging the city filtration plant. It was unofficially reported that the workmen returned to the Kasch job at $2.121/2 per hour because contract for the job was let several months ago when that was the carpenters' published scale.

Eitze-Kitchens, which offers $2.25 per hour for carpentry, said it also submitted its bid under the old $2.121/2 rate. The Carpenters Local here raised its scale to $2.371/2 on

The State Hospital constructor said $2.121/2 was the "published rate" when his bid was made, and that to raise the rate now would result in a serious financial loss. Floyd Jones, business agent for the carpenters union here, denied Tuesday that the union had ordered a work stoppage. He said some of the carpenters might be "sick." Executive committee of the local met last night and it was reported that the wage rate misunderstanding was discussed. Jones said a special meeting of day night at the Carpenters' Hall, at which time the wage situation will be discussed. He said some action by the local is expected at planes "for civilian cargoes."

County, a rugged brush land of SAN DIEGO M-An imported ranches and some oil wells whose political kingpin is millionaire George Parr of San Diego.

Shepperd carried the offensive into Parr's balliwick yesterday with a petition seeking dismissal of the Duval County grand jury. He claimed seven of its members are tied too closely with Parr to conduct an impartial investigation.

His petition today was addressed to 107th Dist. Judge Arthur Klein of Brownsville and attorneys began arguing it immediately. Judge Klein was expected to rule today.

Klein was transferred here today, to the 79th District Court of Judge C. Woodrow Laughlin, by W. R. Blalock, presiding judge of the 5th Administrative Judicial District. Judge Laughlin is in Austin for oral arguments before the Supreme Court in an effort by a group of South Texas lawyers to have him kicked off the bench.

The attorney general's petition said that unless the parties he named are restrained he has reason to believe certain books, records, canceled checks and other data will be unlawfully destroyed.

The petition named the following county officials: A. Garcia Jr., Duval County clerk; F. Saenz Jr., county treasurer; E. B. Garcia, county tax collector, and C. T.

Stansell Jr., county auditor.

Members or officials of the Benavides Independent School District named in the petition are: O. Saenz, J. G. Garza, Santiago Garcia, Troy Carey, W. C. Kelly, T. J. Green and Richard Barton, all on the board of trustees; Oscar Trevillo, secretary of the district, and D. C. Chapa, district tax col-

At the Houston Fat Stock Show some things went mighty well for the boys from the Stanton FFA Chapter, and other things didn't go so well.

In 1953, at Houston, a chapter member came within just a few birds of having the grand cham-pion capon in the singles class. This year one of the Stanton boys was right up next to the top. Delbert Donelson had the reserve champion and sent the bird through the sale at $5 a pound.

But best of all, another of the Stanton boys, Ivan Chandler, had the grand champion trio of capons, and the trio brought him $825, which was a little more than $200 above the total price received by other chapter members for a couple of steers.

"You can't talk to us about feeding out steers," comments Elbert Steele, vocation agriculture instructor in the Stanton High School, "when we can outsell them with capons." He smiled. "and I believe we can feed capons a little cheaper than steers, too. On top of this the original investment is not quite as much either."

The capons were all White Rocks and all were either bred by the Stanton FFA Chapter or members of that chapter, and were hatched out in the incubator in the Agriculture Building at the Stanton school. Truly home-produced projects.

Steele and the boys are also confident they would have had the grand champion capon, too, if the 14-pound bird of Archie Butler hadn't died at Brady on the way down there. He just got too hot and turned up his handsome toes and Chandler's grand champion trio was the heaviest trio ever shown at Houston, Immediately after being hauled about 500 miles trio weighed in at 38 pounds, almost 13 pounds to the bird.

Arichie Butler had the 13th place trio of capons at Houston and Delbert Donelson had the trio in the 14th place. Being 13th and 14th may not sound like being so high up on this list, but listen to thisthere were one thousand capons in that show! And taking the show throughout, in the singles and trio classes, Stanton FFA members had 10 of the first 20 place capons. Steele and his boys really have

A-Powered Locomotive Plans Made

SALT LAKE CITY UP-An atomie locomotive that would run for a year on only 13 pounds of uranium will be described today to railroad and manufacturing representatives by a University of Utah nuclear scientist.

The scientist, Dr. Lyle B. Borst, yesterday made public plans for what could be the world's first atomic-driven locomotive. He said the plans were developed during his advance physics course at the university.

Today he will outline the plans to representatives of the five railroads and nine industrial concerns which cooperated with the project.

At a press conference yesterday, he said the locomotive would be driven with steam-produced electricity and would cost an estimated $1,200,000. It would look much the same as the diesel locomotives now in use and would develop 7,000 horsepower.

The scientist said the engine could run for a year on approximately 13 pounds of uranium. He said that even if the uranium cost $11,000 a pound the fuel expenditure per year for the locomotive would be about $150,000, compared with the present $240,000 that is spent annually on a diesel developing the same horsepower.

He said he did not know the cost of uranium but said a recent published report estimated it at around $9,000 a pound.

He emphasized that the project was still in the classroom stage but predicted that "we will have atomic locomotives before we have atomically produced electric energy of an industrial scale."

Truman Will Confer With School Officials

COLUMBIA, Mo. W - Former President Harry S. Truman planned to meet with University of Missouri officials today to discuss the possibility of housing his private papers at the university.

He said at Kansas City last night the university arranged the meetmag and he was coming here "simply to see what they have to say." Truman said his visit here had no connection with reports that he might become president of the

More Money Than Two Steers

"I think it should be. For security is like a pendulum. It swings one way for a time and then the other. It has been so underplayed in the last few years that it must be emphasized now." McLeod is scheduled to speak at other, similar Republican rallies tonight at Worland, Wyo., Thurs-

declared the Texas gas transmission tax to be an unconstitutional burden on interstate

This not only means that more than $25 million will have to be refunded to the gas companies who paid the tax under protest while the case was in litigation. It means that the state has around $1 million per month in revenue upon which it may no longer count.

Certainly the decision is a serious blow. Perhaps the worst part of it is not that it has removed this mode as a possible contributor to the teacher pay reservoir, When the Legislature is convoked to consider the compromise raise of $402 per annum to teachers, some tax will be conjured to finance this. But there was strong sentiment in the last Legislagure to use part of the gas transmission proceeds for an increase in pay to the rank anf file of state employes. Hopes for them are dim indeed.

In handing down the decision-an unanimous one, by the way-Justice Clark hinted strongly that a tax upon the processing might be upheld. "The tax here is not levied on the capture or production of the gas." he wrote in the opinion, "but rather on its taking into commerce after production, gathering and processing..." At another point he took occasion to stress the word "not" in saying that tax in question

Attorney General John Ben Sheppard thinks his department can come up with some tax laws which, in light of this and other U. S. Supreme Court decisions, will not be subject to successful attach. Assistant Attorney General W. V. Geppert and associates have come up with a measure to tax gas 1.5 cents at the well head, a device estimated to yield $50 million per

While his proposal may or may not be enacted, it does offer some attractive features, the greatest of which is sizeable revenue. On of the drawbacks is that it would impose the tax upon all consumers alike, whether in Texas or New York, but that is a bit of realism which Texans must face, especially in view of the current decision. Any constitutional tax must have all licking from the same log. The offsetting feature is that under the tremendous and still growing export of gas, the exporter will be licking much, much more heavily. Hence their tax bite will be much

Of course, the additional tax does not have to come from gas, but with some $23 million needed to finance the increase in teacher pay, it must come from some source. Best bet is that it will be upon a natural resource and that gas will be the favorite target.

Congress Should Ponder Trends Of Civil-Military Authority

In a series of articles by its former publisher, Davis Merwin, the Bloomington (Ill.) Daily Pantagraph asserts that civilian control of our military is declining, and that the generals and admirals are rapidly getting in position to centraltre effective control in their own hands.

Mr. Merwin makes out a persuasive ease for his thesis. He points out that the three civilian secretaries of the armed forces-Air Force, Navy and Armywere not only thrown out of the Cabinet and replaced by a single secretary of Defense, but were also excluded from the highest policy-making group in our government in military matters, the National Security Council. This group is now composed of the President, the vice president, the secretaries of State and Defense, and the administrators of Foreign Operations and Defense Mobilization.

The civilian heads of the armed forces are thus reduced to the status of mere administrators, with no direct access to the highest policy-making body. Revision of the Key West Agreement spelling out the missions of the three branches, the paper asserts editorially, "further insulates the civilian heads of the three military services from the policy-making function."

It follows that the military chieftains of three services are in position to exercise more influence in policy matters, through the Secretary of Defense, than the three civilians who are supposed to be bossing them. The Illinois paper points out aptly that under such a situation centralization has been promoted rather than dissolved. Congress should have a prompt and thorough look at this situation

Washington Calling-Marquis Childs

Power Issue Is An Additional Irritant To Nation's Farmers

senhower Administration has had an exceptionally favorable press. The great majority of newspapers that advocated the President's election have given the first benefit of every possible doubt. There are in fact those in the Administration who feel that this determinedly charitable view may even be a disservice, since crificism is often helpful corrective.

But one conspicuous exception to the rule has more or less escaped notice. Increasingly the papers published by labor and farm organizations have moved from a skeptical or critical to a more or less openly hostile tone.

That is not true of all of them, by any means. But in one field in particular-public power-the attack is being carried to the Administration by a number of publieations that get down to the grass roots. And this could be decisive in those districts where the margin between Republicans and Democrats is 5 per cent or less,

The controversy warmed up after the Department of Interior took certain steps last year that seemed to many public power advocates, including leaders of the rural electrification movement, calculated to cut down the supply available to "preference" users-farm co-ops and municipalities. The fear is that ultimately rates will be raised. But the dispute got hot following an Aministration move regarded as meant to split the biggest co-op organization in the power field.

Fred G. Aandahl, former Governor of North Dakota and now Assistant Secretary of Interior in charge of water and power resources, went to Miami, Florida, to address the convention of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. More than 5,000 delegates representing about 3,500,000 farmers heard him accuse Clyde Ellis, executive director of the association, of crusading fos a Federal pow-

"I am deeply disturbed." Aandahl said, "when I see those who even at this early stage are crusaders for a Federal power monopoly try to use the rural electric cooperatives and their associations to foster Federal monopoly. It is my suggestion and request that you work copperatively with us in a more reasonable program of Federal power built around such amounts as come logically with wise water resources development."

Since Aandahl had identified Ellis as the erusader, this seemed to the delegates an invitation to break away from their leadership. Ellis promptly sprang up to challenge Aandahl, denying he had ever advocated a Federal monopoly. So did several delegates who demanded to know whether the Administration's power policy would mean less power and higher rates for farm users.

In the weeks since the convention, the newspapers published by the rural electric co-ops in 25 states and Alaska have begun to take up this issue. They have a combined circulation of about 1,800,000.

Editorials in these publications hit hard at the farmer's pocketbook nerve, pointing out, as Ellis did at the convention, that electric co-ops now purchase power exceeding 14 billion kilowatts a mon'h at a cost of more than $9.000,000 a month. A raise in the rate of even as much as onethird of a cent a kilowatt-hour would mean a boost in the farmer's electric bill of $40,000,000 a year. And this is in the face of the current squeeze of high prices for the things the farmer buys and lower prices for what he sells. This line of attack is particularly effective in the Missouri River Basin, where the Interior Department's new criteria for power rates have caused alarm, and in the West where water and power are vital to future development. Significant politically is the fact that uncertainty over power supplies and rates coincides with the broader dissatisfaction over farm prices and the Eisenhower farm program. It is an additional irritant that makes farmers mad regardless of whether they are Republicans or Democrats. The Democrats, and not merely the socailed liberals of the North, are already exploiting this discontent. One of the speakers at the co-op convention in Miami was Senator Burnet Maybank of South Carolina, Maybank charged the Administration with destroying the partnership between the Federal government and the local power systems. He went on to make the accusation that while the co-ops were being handicapped, the Administration is giving private utilities fast tax write-offs "Federal taxpayers will pay for the cost of at least two or three private dams

-plus a fat bonus.' This is politics of a specialized kind. But the power Issue alone could determine the control of Congress next Novem-

Edison Made Greatest List Of Contributions To His Country

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

Tomorrow is the anniversary of the birth of one of the most remarkable men the United States has ever produced.

He was Thomas Alva Edison, a native of New Jersey who moved to Michigan while a lad and became a trainboy at age of 12. Despite the absence of formal schooling, he became so literate through reading that he acquired a small job press and published his own paper, "The Grand Trunk Herald," with 400 circulation.

Because he rescued the child of a station master, he was rewarded with a course in telegraphy. Edison became a tramp operator, not through lack of ability but due to his insatiable reading habits. He migrated to New York and, while working, developed four telegraphic pat-One of these he sold for $40,000.

With these funds he set up an electrical laboratory, given both to research and manufacture. Fortunately, he suffered a period of ill health—fortunate for the world, that is, because he restricted his activities to invention in 1876.

This seemed to have been a tonic to his body as well as his soul, for over the years discovery after discovery cascaded from his laboratories. At the time of his death he had 1,200 patents registered in his name. When, in 1928, the U. S. Congress awarded him the Gold Medal, that worthy body placed a conservative value of $15% billion on his inventive contribu-

A few of his products were an automatic telegraphic repeater; a quadruple repeater that permitted simultaneous sending of several message's over a single wire; a typewriter (Remington later took it over); a phonograph; incandescent electric lamp (75 years ago); electric dynamo; electric locomotive; kinetographic camera (the movie camera): color movies (and an early sound movie, for that matter); method of making a concrete building; self starter for automobiles; electric safety lanterns for miners; storage battery; carbon telephone transmitter, microphone, mimeograph.

Of course, each of these-and many of his other inventions-promptly branched into various fields and industries. None, however, had the force and effect as his discovery of what he called the "etheric force," and what others terms the "Edison principle." He observed that an independent wire or plate, placed between the legs of the filament of an incandescent lamp, acted as a valve to control the flow of current, In 1883 he patented the forerunner of the modern electronic tube and what science now knows as transitors. Eventually the radio, long distance telephone, television, sound pictures, X-ray, electronic musical instruments and a host of other developments stemmed from this discovery. Edison possessed an unusual personality. He was a tireless worker. Once while spending five years on a storage battery project, he arrived at his laboratory at 7:30 a.m., and the coachman who called at 11:30 p.m. sometimes had to wait three or four hours. One secret of his great ener gy was occasional cat naps or short periods of complete relaxation. Edison always maintained his boyish enthusiasm. He never started an experiment until after he determined exactly what he was seeking. Nor did he turn a hand until he had read everything that he could find on the subject. Thus, he avoided needless experimentation, but he was not above making thousands of experiments because, as one biographer said, "failure spurred him on." Charles F. Kettering has called Edison the father of organized research. No one has contributed as much to the building of American industry as this great genius who once cryptically described gen-ius as being "two per cent inspiration and 98 per cent perspiration."

Coffee Still Not Used By Over Half Of The World's Population is too expensive, tea might be used. I also said that if tea becomes costly we might switch to beer for breakfast. Whereupon my mail became swollen with anger. First of all, the milk people set forth the argument that milk, cream, butter and cheese supply the essentials of any breakfast. There can be no two ways about that, provided one enjoys milk, etc. My own objection to milk and milk products is that I like them too rich and too much. Given a free hand at any refrigerator, I can put on 20 or 30 pounds in almost no time. Skimmed milk I do not like. The Chinese prefer "Chuk" for breakfast. For many years I ate "Chuk" occasionally with cut-up bits of dough-like cake. "Chuk," if properly made, is a rice and chicken soup cooked for many hours until it is a thick gruel. When I used to cook it, I would include bits of fresh gin-lotus hearts. Some of my correspondents ovarreled with me about beer at the breakfast table. My severest critics were those who attributed to me such virtuous perfections as no man should possess. Nevertheless, here is a very early breakfast food, used for centuries before Europeans tried coffee which was propagated by returning Crusaders who encountered the liquid.

"The English house-wife," published in London in 1649, tells how catmeal might be used for breakfast: some eat it with hony, which is reputed the best sauce; some with Wine, elther Sacke, Claret or White; some with strong Beere or strong Ale, and some with Milk as your ability or th accomodations of the place will administer." I have never tried beer on oatmeal and suspect that I never shall, but I produce this paragraph from E. Parmalee Prentice's learned book, "Farming For Famine," as evidence that human beings have used beer as a breakfast food. Coffee for breakfast came in some time at the beginning of the 17th century but was used without milk, as it still is in Oriental countries. In fact, milk was for many centuries dreaded in most parts of Europe and in some parts of Asia is still not used.

I received a letter from one reader complaining bitterly that I was misleading mankind by suggesting tea as a breakfast food when, according to this reader, everybody knows that coffee is "the universal breakfast beverage." How vain can mortals be? More than half the human race uses tea not only for breakfast but as its principal hot beverage. In fact, the entire Soviet Universal State is tea-drinking, the Russians having contracted the habit from the Chinese many centuries ago. The caravans that carried tea from Hankow to all the cities of Russia were famed in the days of the Czars and the greatest merchants were those dealt in tea. Odessa, celebrated for wheat, was also a tea port, as Boston, Philadelphia and New York were at the time of the American Revolution.

In my youth, coffee was cooked, as it is now in some parts of Europe and in New Orleans, with chicory, which fortifies the coffee, making it possible to purchase less expensive brands without losing the flavor. In fact, those who like coffee with chicory care for no other. Out of this brew is made coffee au lait, to mix a couple of languages. This is a delightful beverage which reduces the cost of coffee considerably as half the cup is boiling hot milk. The milk and coffee are poured into the cup simultaneously. Vienese coffee au lait is usually regarded as the best, possibly because the milk is so rich, although I enjoy the New Orleans variety, particurarly if fresh doughnuts are dunked in it.

There is one queer thing about the present coffee crisis; while prices are going up because Brazilian coffee bushes suffered a frost, there is no shortage of coffee in the stores. If there is no shortage of coffee, why should the price go up? It is difficult to understand the economics of that because generally price reflects the law of supply and demand. Perhaps in the middle of the 20th century everything is topsy-turvy because politicians not merchants, move the goods that we

Exercise Speeds Use Of Oxygen

Now and then, we may hear a person

"It is a good thing that the air is free!" I certainly agree with that statement! If we had to pay one cent a pint for air, the average man would need to spend about $9.50 an hour, or $228 a day, for the pleasure of breathing!

That would be a costly kind of living. Millionaires might be able to afford it, but most of us would die within a few days or a few weeks, or else go into debt. When I give those figures, I am supposing that we have an "average" man, and that he breathes only fresh air. If he breathed the air over and over again, the cost would be less. We use up hardly one fourth of the oxygen in the air each time we breathe.

A pint of air per breath is close to the average for a man who is at rest or moving slowly, and it is usual for him to breathe from 14 to 15 times per minute. Fast walking or running or other exercise will speed up breathing a great deal. Tests show that, after extreme use of the muscles, a person may take in more than 100 pints of air in one minute!

Exercise causes us to burn up oxygen at a faster rate. That is why we need more air when we make strong use of our muscles.

Air passes through the nose, reaches the windpipe and goes down to the lungs. The windpipe divides into two good-sized tubes, and these branch into smaller and smaller tubes.

The tubes end in "air chambers" which are so small that the head of a pin is large compared with one of them. The chamber walls are very, very thin, and on the other side are tiny blood vessels. Oxygen passes to the blood, and the blood takes it around the body to the cells which

In exchange for the oxygen, the blood gives carbon dioxide to the lungs. The lungs do not care for the gift, and in the course of breathing they send the carbon dioxide to the outer air. Tomorrow: Our Musices.

The AFL Executive Council gave tentative approval to the plan be-fore winding up a winter meeting yesterday. It was obvious that several AFL unions were reluctant paign to establish machinery for settling feuds between the AFL and CIO as a preliminary to a merger. Then he was instructed by the AFL to try for a similar peace plan within the AFL itself.

Neither plan has matured, although Meany still is pushing both and is hopeful they can be accom-

The rub comes mainly within the AFL, among unions jealous of their of ten-conflicting jurisdictional claims that a particular union's members should perform a certain type of work.

The Teamsters Union, for example, headed by Dave Beck, has announced plans for doubling a present membership of nearly 1,500,000 within five years. The Teamsters are reportedly reluc-tant to abandon the possibility of expanding work opportunities in fields now occupied by members of CIO or other AFL unions.

The Teamsters will decide both plans at a meeting of that union's international executive board here next week. On their decision will largely depend wheth-er Meany's hopes for orderly settlement of interunion rivalries can be accomplished.

It was with this underlying conflict that the AFL council yesterday approved a plan to let whatever unions desire to go along

The baseball coaching job at Snyder High School is supposed to pay in excess of $5,200 annually.

Vince DiFrancesca, Iowa State's new head coach, played one season for the Galveston Air Base football team during World War II.

One of the towers of strength on the Seventh Grade basketball team here is Jackie Phillips, a splendid all-around performer. He could be one of Big Spring's all-time best cagers. Vernon Gomez, who made a fortune in baseball by popping off whenever reporters were in hearing distance, tells this story of his former boss, Joe McCarthy:

McCarthy was a great gum-chewer. And the flavor didn't last long with him. One day, Gomez sat alongside him on the bench and chanced to brush his hand across the bottom of the seat. "It felt like a hornet's nest from wadded gum, and I looked inguiringly at Joe," recalls Gomez.

Pepper doesn't believe in creating a scene just for the sake of arguing. He thinks the average baseball game is long enough, as it is a remainded by the reasons an arbiter is loafing, however, he'll not hesitate to tell loading.

With Pepper, that's an inherited trait. His father before him, Floyd Martin, always believed in speaking his piece on a baseball diamond. Most ball players will act as if they'd fight Rocky Marciano if given the chance, then slink back to the dugout if the opportunity is presented them. Not Pepper.

He, no doubt, has been involved in more actual scrapping than any other two players in the circuit. His brawl with Tony Traspuesto here years ago remains the classic of Longhorn League history. A lot of the patrons thought Martin was in the wrong. Others said Tony needed cooling off. Whoever was in the right, Traspuesto went down for the count that night. Duncan Turns In Resignation

COLLEGE STATION UP-Resignation of end coach Bill Duncan yesterday apparently had nothing o do with appointment of Paul (Bear) Bryant as head football roach and athletic director.

Even so. Duncan was the fourth A&M football coaching staff member to bow out in six months and became increasingly evident Bryant will have a staff principally of his own choosing.

There just isn't enough of the old regime around: the staff needs building up and Bryant, naturally will probably bring some Bryant-trained men down from Kentucky.

Close friends said Duncan's res ignation had nothing to do with Bryant.

"It is my desire to retire permanently from the coaching profession, to enter private business," Duncan said in a letter dated Feb and addressed to Barlow (Bones Irvin. Bryant's $15,000 a year sixyear contract is for head coach and athletic director. Irvin was still sitting in as athletic director yesterday while Bryant was getting acquainted.

The series of resignations began last September when offensive backfield coach Dalton Faircloth quit to become coach at Greenville director at Texas A&I. On Jan. 4 ers. the head coach himself, Ray George, bowed out.

BULLETIN

Here is the One Beer that Gives You All Natural Carbonation All the Time!

Those thousands of tiny bubbles fizzing and soaring in your glass of Budweiser are put there by Mother Nature in the costliest brewing and ageing process

Budweiser is the only beer in America with all natural carbonation all the time.

You see, there is something that we could do, but don't. We could artificially carbonate our beer after fermentation and package it. It would be beer, but certainly not Budweiser.

Instead, our beer goes through a second fermentation. During this much, much longer ageing, Nature carbonates it as she does the finest champagne. There is no other way to produce Budweiser . . . the beer that has pleased more people than any other beer in history.
