

Reagan takes command Carter retreats to Camp David

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan took command Wednesday in a conservative dominion that will stretch from the White House to a new Republican Senate, his lieutenants vowing a wholesale housecleaning of officeholders installed by the Democrats.

President Carter, the incumbent overwhelmingly repudiated by the voters in Tuesday's election, retreated to Camp David, Md., saying he needed time to be alone and think.

Carter said he would work for a smooth transition from his one-term administration to the one Reagan will begin on Jan. 20, when he is inaugurated 40th president of the United States. At nearly 70, he will be the oldest man ever to take that oath of office.

As the nationwide tally in a low-turnout election neared completion, the dimensions of the Reagan landslide — and mandate — were in the numbers.

With 99 percent of the precincts counted, Reagan had 43 million votes, or 51 percent; Carter 34.7 million or 41 percent; independent John B. Anderson 5.5 million or 7 percent, and Libertarian Ed Clark 1 percent.

That translated to 483 electoral votes for Reagan, who led for six in Arkansas, the only state still too close to call. Carter had only 49. Reagan needed only 270 electoral votes to win.

The former California governor swept every one of the 10 biggest states, winning even in such solid Democratic territory as Massachusetts. Even Carter's native South, save his home state of Georgia, turned against him.

Reagan captured 43 states; Carter won only Georgia, West Virginia, Rhode Island, Maryland, Minnesota, Hawaii and the District of Columbia.

Carried on Reagan's coattails, and the campaign drive mobilized by "New Right" conservative organizations, Republicans seized Senate control for the first time in a quartercentury.

They turned out of office eight Democratic senators, among them such liberal stalwarts as George McGovern, Frank Church, Warren G. Magnuson, Gaylord Nelson and Birch Bayh.

Republicans had won 52 Senate seats and led for another in Georgia. When the 97th Congress takes office on Jan. 3, they will run the show for the first time since 1955. That was a net gain of at least 11 seats, probably 12, for the Republicans.

The GOP scored a startling 33-seat gain in the House, where Democrats nonetheless held onto their majority. Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts called the election a Democratic disaster.

The new House will be made up of 243 Democrats and 192 Republicans.

Only 52.3 percent of eligible Americans cast ballots on Tuesday, the lowest turnout in 32 years. The total vote of more than 84 million was a record, but it represented a decline in the percentage of those who cast ballots from the 54.4 percent of 1976.

Reagan was at his Pacific Palisades home, conferring with vice president-elect George Bush, who flew in from Houston.

Aides in Los Angeles said Reagan already was at work on transition planning, and would announce at a Thursday news conference the team that will represent him in arranging the change in government. Carter said his chief of staff, Jack Watson, would manage the transition for the outgoing Democratic administration.

Edwin Meese, chief of staff for Reagan, said the new administration would replace all appointed agency heads in Washington. A new administration always installs its own appointees, but usually with a holdover or two for the sake of unity and continuity, particularly in the case of people or positions considered non-partisan.

"Out of humanitarian concern for all the time and effort they've put in recently, we think the only decent thing to do is to allow them a well-deserved rest," Meese said in announcing that this turnover will be total.

He also said Reagan would not be naming Cabinet members before late November or early December. He said Reagan aides would screen potential Cabinet nominees, and submit the names of three to five top prospects for each job to the president-elect.

Reagan planned to take a 10-day respite at his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch before he comes to Washington.

Reagan win may prolong hostage crisis

By The Associated Press

The spiritual adviser to the militants holding the 52 American hostages in Iran said today the crisis may be prolonged as a result of Ronald Reagan's victory in the U.S. presidential elections, Tehran Radio reported.

"Because (President) Carter was already in office, we would have reached a solution faster if he were re-elected," the radio quoted deputy parliament speaker Hojatoleslam Moosavi Khoeniha as saying in an interview with Greek television.

"With Reagan's victory this will need a long time."

"I think Carter's policy has failed in the United States and this has no effect on the hostage issue," he was quoted as saying.

Khoeniha said the hostages would be put on trial if America did not act on Iran's conditions for the captives' release, said the radio announcer, reading what he said was a transcript of the interview. Khoeniha was the chairman of the committee which drafted the conditions, approved Sunday by Parliament.

Parliament said the hostages will be released if the United States: unfreezes Iranian assets held in American banks, returns the wealth of the late shah, drops lawsuits against Iran and pledges non-interference in Iran's affairs. The hostages today began the second day of their second year in captivity, the 368th day.

However, both Khoeniha and Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai said in interviews conducted by the Iranian news agency Pars the U.S. election would have no effect on Iran or on its conditions for release of the hostages, Tehran Radio reported.

"The conditions for release of the hostages is a law passed by the Majlis (Parliament) which has to do with our country," Rajai was quoted as saying. "We don't care who is ruling in the U.S. government. These conditions were passed by the Majlis and approved by the Imam (Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini) and we will carry them out."

Tech voter turnout high, most vote Republican

By INEZ RUSSELL and JOEL BRANDENBERGER
UD Staff Writers

Tech polling places stayed open as late as two hours past 7 p.m., the official poll closing time, in order to accommodate a record number of voters, a Tech election judge said Tuesday.

Tech voters were following a general Lubbock County trend of high voter turnout. Pre-election predictions said the turnout probably would be about 50-60 percent. However, approximately 74 percent of eligible voters participated in the election.

At the two Tech boxes, students overwhelmingly favored Republican candidates by margins of 80 to 20 percent in many races.

In precinct 50, where approximately 1,060 students voted, the Reagan-Bush ticket won 74.6 percent of the vote, or 791 votes, to 16.8 percent, or 179 votes for Carter-Mondale.

Ed Clark garnered only 11 votes, or 1 percent of the vote, while Independent John Anderson won 79 votes, or 7.4 percent of the total.

Tech students also favored Kent Hance for re-election to the U. S. House of Representatives by an 86.6 percent margin to 13.3 percent for Libertarian candidate J. D. Webster.

Republican Buzz Robnett, who won re-election to the Texas House, also was chosen by Tech students. He won 682 votes, or 73.2 percent, to Democrat Carolyn Jordan's 249 votes, or 26.7 percent.

In other local races, Tech voters chose Sonny Keese for sheriff by 69.4 percent to 30.5 percent for 12-year incumbent Choc Blanchard.

The Tech margin for Keesee was considerably larger than that of the county-wide totals, which had Keesee winning with 50.8 percent of the vote to 49.1 percent. The race for sheriff was so close that at 1:30 a.m., when The UD went to press, a winner had not been decided.

In state races for judge seats and Railroad Commissioners, Tech voters again voted Republican, going against state results.

Tech voters chose Republican judge candidates Jim Brady and Will Garwood over Democrats Jim Wallace and C.L. Ray, although the Democrats won the state races.

Republicans Doc Blanchard and Hank Grover also won at Tech in their Railroad Commission races, although they lost statewide.

Tech voters added to Republican strength by voting straight tickets. Two hundred and ninety of the students who voted went straight Republican, compared to 60 for the Democratic ticket, 6 for the Libertarian party and 40 Independents.

Precinct 49 voters also overwhelmingly supported Reagan and the Republicans.

Of the 695 students who cast votes in the presidential election, 247 voted for Reagan. Carter received 102 votes, or 14.6 percent, while Anderson received 40 votes, 5.7 percent. Clark received four votes, or .6 percent.

Hance won a landslide victory in his re-election bid. He received 332 votes, or 83.6 percent to Webster's 65 votes, or 16.3 percent.

Grover, although losing the statewide election, won handily in Box 49. He had 448 votes, or 79 percent to Buddy Temple's 119 votes, or 20.9 percent.

In the race for an unexpired Railroad Commission term, Blanchard won at Tech with 448 votes and 76.3 percent of the vote, but lost at the state level. Jim Nugent garnered 123 votes or 20.9 percent of the vote, and Libertarian David Hutzleman had 16 votes, or 2.7 percent of the votes.

Robnett swamped Jordan in the race for District 75-A, winning with 478 votes, or 78.7 percent to 129 votes, or 21.2 percent.

The sheriff's race was a landslide at Tech, unlike the rest of Lubbock. Keesee won with 428 votes, or 73.5 percent, to Blanchard's 154 votes, or 26.4 percent.

In Box 49, Republican Brady beat Wallace 450 votes to 121 votes, although he lost the rest of the state. Republican Garwood also won at Tech, garnering 441 votes to Ray's 115 votes.

One reason the Republican candidates swept Tech boxes was the number of students who voted a straight party ticket in Box 49. Nearly half of those voting in Precinct 49 voted a straight Republican ticket.

Two hundred and forty seven students voted the straight Republican ticket while 41 voted the straight Democratic ticket and 15 voted the Independent ticket.

Khomeini rejects new peace offer

BAGHDAD (AP) — Iran's religious leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, on Wednesday rejected a "peace now" offer from Iraq. He declared "many of our youths have died in the war, but this is for Islam."

The 80-year-old patriarch of Iran's Islamic revolution ordered his generals to continue the war "until the infidels (Iraqis) are defeated."

His speech in Tehran to a visiting group of Moslem clergy came a day after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein declared he was ready to "withdraw our forces as from tomorrow if Iran unequivocally recognized our full national rights." The broadcast was monitored in Beirut, Lebanon.

Hussein told the Iraqi Parliament he would push his territorial claims beyond the Shatt al-Arab estuary, the disputed border waterway used by both Iran and Iraq to ship oil into the Persian Gulf, if Khomeini chose to fight on.

"Conquest confers new rights," said Hussein. "The longer a nation stays in a territory, the more rights it gains. Khomeini must realize that war creates additional rights over and above the pre-war rights."

Both nations reported heavy casualties in land and air combat as Iraq pushed on the northern and eastern gates of Iran's major oil refining city of Abadan on the eastern coast of Shatt al-Arab.

Iranian communiques said Abadan's defenders repulsed fresh Iraqi assaults across mobile bridges thrown across the Bahmanshir River to storm the city's eastern gates while hand-to-hand combat raged on a highway juncture on Abadan's northern outskirts.

Capture of Abadan appears to be the main objective of the Iraqi offensive. It is the last Iranian stronghold on the Shatt al-Arab's eastern coast, which Hussein's regime is claiming as part of Iraq.

Survey shows Reagan elected because public trusts him

NEW YORK (AP) — Ronald Reagan won the presidency because people believed what he had said all along — that he could do a far better job on economic and foreign policy than President Carter and that he was not the extremist Carter had portrayed him to be.

An Associated Press-NBC News survey of voters leaving polling places across the nation Tuesday said many of them did just what Reagan and his advisers had hoped they would do — make Jimmy Carter the issue.

Reagan's landslide victory was not a sudden, end-of-the-campaign phenomenon sparked by the situation in Iran, as some Carter strategists have said. Instead, voters said they have been positive about Reagan for most of the year, particularly on the two issues troubling them the most — inflation and strengthening America's position in the world.

For example, the voters saw Reagan as a man who would take action when needed, but not the trigger-happy extremist that Carter had painted him.

Just about half of the Reagan voters said they chose him in part because he would be firm and decisive — that intangible quality called "leadership." And 48 percent of the entire electorate said they believe Reagan could be trusted to do the right thing all or most of the time, interviews with more than 11,000 voters said.

The composition of the winner's support suggests strongly that he defused the Democrats' portrayal of him.

Reagan appears to have convinced voters that he is not the war-mongering, right-wing boogeyman but rather is the moderate, mainstream politician his advisers have been selling since he lost the Republican nomination to Gerald Ford in 1976.

Reagan actually got 27 percent of the vote Tuesday from those people who consider themselves liberal, and he led Carter by a margin of 49 percent to 43 percent among people calling themselves moderate. He won 58 percent of the independent voters to 29 percent for Carter.

Conroy named associate vice president

William Conroy, professor of geography and associate dean of Arts and Sciences, has been named interim associate vice president for Academic Affairs.

Tech President Lauro Cavazos announced Conroy's interim appointment Wednesday.

Conroy will be filling the office vacated by Len Ainsworth when Ainsworth was named interim vice president for Academic Affairs in October.

Conroy served as chairman of the geography department from 1971-79 and associate dean of Arts and Sciences from 1973 to the present.

Conroy also served as interim dean of Arts and Sciences from August 1979 to April 1980 when Arts and Sciences Dean Lawrence Graves was serving as interim president.

Today will be fair and warmer with the high near 80 and the low in the upper 40s.

Laborers always out to build character

New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Do you remember what happened the last time you got up at 7 o'clock on a Saturday morning because the carpenter, or the painter, or the man who fixes the stove said he would be there at 8? He didn't show up at 8, did he?

Didn't show up at 9, either, I'll bet. Along about 10 a.m. you telephoned him, and not in a very good humor either. You wanted to say, look here, I got up at 7 o'clock—7 o'clock on a Saturday morning, for Lord's sake!—just because you promised you'd be here at 8, and here it is 10 o'clock already. And so on.

Russell Baker

None of which you actually said, of course. What you said was something like, "Do you think you can get around to that little job of mine today?"

Well, naturally, he was not going to be able to get around to it. Not this Saturday. He had come down with a bad case of flu right after work last night. He had strained his back. His car had gone dead at the curb and he was going to have to spend all day at the garage.

Maybe you didn't even reach him; maybe you got his wife who told you he had been stricken with acute laryngitis and couldn't talk, or he had been called to the bedside of his sick mother.

This familiar episode is usually misinterpreted by the workman's client, who thinks, "This workman detests me and is out to make my life intolerable." This is a libel on the American craftsman.

He has no malice toward his customers. Quite to the contrary, he is deeply concerned about the great mass of his compatriots who do not work at the manual crafts. He sees them as poorly exercised, flabby, sluggish and lazy.

One of his missions in life is to improve the physical well-being of the Republic at large. For this purpose he is constantly devising schemes for getting people up early instead of letting them lie abed like so many contented slugs.

Hence, the workman who makes the 8 a.m. Saturday appointment. Without it, he knows, you would probably still be wallowing in the sheets at 8:30 or 9 o'clock instead of turning out at a salubrious 7 a.m. to enjoy the healthy Saturday morning spectacle of derelicts snoozing on the sidewalks of abandoned thoroughfares.

The same impulse explains why, if there is any construction going on in your neighborhood, the noisiest part of the job always takes place at 7 a.m. For 30 minutes the neighborhood is treated to the insensate banging of hammers and the clatter of old plaster and bricks being shunted down metal chutes and the joyous cry of construction men greeting the dawn.

At 7:30, you may have noticed, the uproar subsides so that it would be possible to sleep again if you were not already on your feet with blood pressure soaring, head throbbing and all muscles straining to keep a civil tongue in your head.

Why does the din subside at 7:30 a.m.? Because the American workmen have done their duty to the national health and laid down their tools for a well-deserved cup of coffee. You may have noted that when they resume, the uproar never rises to the ferocity it reaches during the 7 to 7:30 a.m. period.

This is because during that first half hour the American craftsman is not only doing his job but also performing a civic duty.

I cite here only one example of the many ways in which Americans who work with hammer and wrench, wrecking bar and paint brush, chisel and soldering iron all do double duty to perfect the character of the rest of us while also constructing, repairing and maintaining the nation.

They are aware, these men, of the besetting vice of impatience which afflicts the American people today, and they toil ceaselessly to instruct us in the ways of patience. Thus, I am not angry anymore at the painter who last Christmas promised to paint the front of my house by last spring, put a primer coat on in September and may or may not complete the job by next summer.

Oh, I was angry at first. Was I not like most Americans? When I wanted a house painted in the spring, and the summer faded into autumn with the painting still undone, I was tempted to storm and say, "This painter mocks me for a fool."

And I was a fool, of course. An impatient fool, for the painter showed me quite clearly that no amount of storming and fuming could produce one stroke of fresh paint on my house. As he stayed away, month after month, season after season, I gradually realized that he was pursuing a higher calling than mere housepainting. He had a mission. He was teaching his customers patience.

The building craftsman struggling to keep us on our toes, the painter instructing us in the virtue of checking our impetuosity, the home improvement contractor teaching us the pointless folly of losing our tempers about trifles like bills that exceed estimates by 80 percent—these men are building character.

They are the modern successors to the football coach, who seemed pretty hard to tolerate, too, until you realized that he was toiling at nobler work than sportswriters ever dreamed of.

University Daily staffers wish to be disassociated with headline

EDITOR'S NOTE: This editorial was signed and supported by The University Daily staff members Joel Brandenberger, Jeff Rembert, Jon Mark Beilue, Kim Lemons, Doug Simpson, Dennis Ball, Bob Heugel, Carmon McCain, Tod Robberson, Pete McNabb, Clay Wright, Mike Keeney, Inez Russell, Mike McAllister, John Hardwick, Ronnie McKeown, Laurie Massingill and Octavio Molina.

Many members of The UD wish to disassociate ourselves with the red skyline headline that appeared in Tuesday's edition: "Get your ass out and vote."

Other than the fact that the headline was tasteless, embarrassing, unnecessary, and unprofessional, we liked it.

The decision to use the now-famous headline was not a unanimous agreement by the entire staff, but only by a powerful few.

Of course, the word had some impact, but it's hard to believe that the word had a positive impact. Using the word "ass" is perfectly legal, but ethically, it has much to be desired.

We do not claim to be prudes or ranting "holier than thou," but having the totally unnecessary word "ass" screaming at the readers is unprofessional. We doubt that many polling places in Lubbock admitted donkeys, anyway.

Of course, we realize that it is now fashionable and trendy for a wild and crazy college newspaper to see how many off-color words can be put in one issue, but not in 72 point headlines.

The readers would have received the same patriotic urging with just a simple "Get out and vote," despite claims to the contrary. Students don't like to be told to do anything, especially in the manner presented Tuesday.

The word would have been acceptable had it been an integral part of the story or within the quote, e.g., Carter to Kennedy: "I'll whip his ass," but not just for the sake of being controversial.

Whether the word offended many people on a college campus, which is doubtful, is a moot point. The fact remains that the word was uncalled for and reeked of classlessness. And we want the readers of The UD to know that we had nothing to do with the decision.

Letters to the Editor

Red Carpet refused, abused

EDITOR'S NOTE: Copies of this letter also were sent to the UT Athletic Director, UT President, The Daily Texan (UT newspaper), The Austin American Statesman, Tech President Dr. Lauro Cavazos and the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Dear Coach Akers:

This past week your team was greeted at the Lubbock International Airport by the members of the Saddle Tramp organization, a Texas Tech Spirit group. As is their tradition, this group of fine young men greet the players and coaches of the visiting team upon their arrival in Lubbock. The Red Carpet was rolled out for your group and the Saddle Tramps applauded you as you deplaned. This was a genuine gesture of sportsmanship extended to you and to your players.

Your actions, however, and those of your players left a lot to be desired. You and most of your players opted to avoid the Red Carpet and muscled your way through the crowd. The few players who did walk on the carpet did so only to stop and spit on it.

The behavior of your traveling party certainly tells us a great deal about the quality of people associated with the University of Texas at Austin Athletic Department. Having a "class" program involves being successful both on and off the field. This past weekend your program failed to impress anyone in either area.

Sincerely,
Jim Douglas

Story on radios questioned

To the Editor:

I am of the opinion that Kevin Parker, writer of, "Local Radio Listener Ratings Vary," Oct. 31, is either a very sick person or was on drugs when he wrote that biased article.

I would like to question some of his sources, and if I'm wrong, I'll apologize. He states that, "The average time listening to a rock format on the radio is very short, usually no more than 45 minutes." A summer Bill Board Poll says, average rock listening time is less than 30 minutes, and country western average listening time is less than 55 minutes.

But my biggest gripe is how Kevin Parker read the Arbitron ratings. Note last paragraph, "Arbitron ratings show Lubbock's number one station is KSEL-FM." Mr. Parker needs to finish that statement. It should read: "Arbitron" ratings show Lubbock's number one station is KLLL, except in the 12-24 age group, where KSEL-FM is number one." Also, the ratings show that 36.7 percent of the metro area listen to country western music, as compared to 30 percent for rock. Not to mention that the Average National Person Share for country is 33.0, while the National Average Share for rock is only 10.2.

And if Mr. Parker wants a more complete breakdown, I'd be more than willing to go into hourly, Monday-Sunday Programming. It's obvious to me that Kevin drives a Chrysler with a radio that only picks up KSEL.

Voting headline rude

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to the Nov. 4, "Get your --- out and vote." This headline is rude, insensitive, and not respectable. We live in a free country and it is our right and obligation to vote, IF WE WANT TO! We do not have to be demanded upon to do so, especially in that manner.

Also, Texas Tech University is a respectable school and should have a respectable newspaper, with responsible people on the staff. Printing headlines like you do shows how little you respect and care for other people's rights. What has happened to good journalism?

Headline in very poor taste

To the Editor:

I have seen good journalism and I have seen bad, but this takes the cake. Tuesday's headline was in poor taste, to say the least. There is such a word as "tact" you know. Do you really think this was the most effective way to prompt students to vote? Would any of the "professional" newspapers use such tactics? I think not.

"OH, WHAT THE HELL— IF HE'S NOT A REAL ARAB, WE'LL SCREAM ILLEGAL ENTRAPMENT!"

Who's Who selection revised from past year

By KIM LEMONS
UD Staff Writer

The process for selecting Tech Who's Who members has been revised this year after allegations last year that the selection of members was done haphazardly and unfairly.

Mary Reeves, assistant to the Dean of Students, said the Who's Who selection process this year is being handled entirely by the Dean of Student's office and an effort is being made to obtain applications from a wide variety of students across the campus.

Students are selected to Who's Who on the basis of leadership, scholastic achievements and service, and they receive both national and campus recognition.

The names are listed in the annual publication of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges and on college graduation programs, and the students' pictures appear in the La Ventana.

Last year, when the selection process was directed by the Student Association, seven of the eight members on the Who's Who Selection Committee were chosen as Who's Who members.

The eighth committee member did not apply.

Also, a check by the University Daily found that most of the organizations notified about the availability of Who's Who applications were sororities and fraternities.

This year, Reeves said announcements of the Who's Who selection procedures and deadlines have already been sent to all deans, department heads, registered student organizations and student organization faculty sponsors.

Almost 600 announcements were sent out altogether, Reeves said.

The new selection committee will consist of three administration members, three faculty members and three present Who's Who members, Reeves said.

Under new guidelines, Who's Who members aiding in the selection process will not be able to re-select themselves as members.

"We are now considering selection to Who's Who to be a one-time process. Once you are selected as a member, you are always a member," Reeves said. Reeves said the selection process this year will be very systematic.

"You must have a certain grade point average to be considered, but in making the selections, leadership will probably be weighed first," Reeves said.

"We've developed guidelines for committee members to help them to compare various activities and leadership positions."

According to the announcements, students wishing to apply for Who's Who can obtain an application, due Nov. 14, from the Dean of Students' office.

Conference features medical ethics

By DOUG SIMPSON
UD Staff Writer

Area health professionals will discuss the ethical issues involved in the practice of medicine at "Medicine, Morality and Ministry," a conference that begins tonight and continues through Saturday at the Tech Health Sciences Center.

The purpose of the conference is to provide physicians, nurses, clergy and other health professionals with an opportunity to share concerns related to patient care occupations.

Tech President Lauro Cavazos will welcome conference participants at 7:30 p.m. today in the Health Sciences Center auditorium. Cavazos' speech will be followed by a talk by Dr. Tristram Engelhart Jr., who will discuss "Moral Implications of Developments in Medicine."

Engelhart, professor of the philosophy of medicine at the Kennedy Institute of Ethics, Georgetown University, will speak on "Implications of Medical Technology" at 9 a.m.

Friday. Dr. Eric Cassell will speak on "Preserving the Patient's Personhood" during Friday morning's session.

Cassell, professor of public health at Cornell University

Medical College, also will speak on "A Clinical Perspective on Morality in the Practice of Medicine" at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The Thursday night and Friday night lectures are open to the public.

The conference is designed to help participants evaluate health care in terms of moral implications and appropriate strategies of ministry in patient care.

The conference is being sponsored by University Ministries, the Health Sciences Center departments of Internal Medicine, Orthopaedic Surgery, and Psychiatry and the Offices of Continuing Medical Education and Continuing Nursing Education.

Although many students may feel sharp pains in their pocket-books simply by looking at a 1981 car, more than 500 new cars and trucks will be on display this weekend at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Two Lubbock car dealers are sponsoring the car show, which is scheduled to run from 4 to 10 p.m. Friday, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday.

There is no charge to get into the Coliseum, but, if you're not careful, it may cost something to drive out.

Cindy Barr, who is handling the publicity for the show, said the two Lubbock dealerships sponsoring the show will have their entire sales staffs working at the Coliseum.

However, neither car dealership wants to reveal any of the 1981 sticker prices until Friday.

The cars expected to be the hottest attractions at the weekend show are the new Ford Escort and the Mercury Lynx.

Ford has been promoting its Escort extensively since September as "the new world car—a car built in America to take on the world."

Barr said she thought West

Texans would buy the Escorts, not so much because of their "world" appeal, but because of the good estimated gas mileage they get—30 mpg in the city and 44 mpg on the highway.

"This is going to be very competitive with Volkswagen's Rabbit," Barr said, "and because it's made in America, it should have added appeal to this area."

Although Mercury's Lynx may not have the attention of the world, Barr said it should not have too much trouble gaining attention at the Coliseum car show. In a drawing Sunday, the local Mercury dealership co-sponsoring the event will give away a 1981 Lynx, Barr said.

The Escort and Lynx are very similar cars. Both have the same estimated mileage ratings, both are about the same size and weight and both come in hatchback models.

Other 1981 automobiles on display will include Cougars, Capris, Lincoln Continentals, Mustangs, Granddads, Fairmonts and a wide selection of pick-up trucks.

Tech majority drinks alcohol

By KIM LEMONS
UD Staff Writer

More than 80 percent of Tech students drink alcoholic beverages, usually to enjoy the taste, to be sociable or to relieve tension and fatigue, according to a recent survey by Tech's Alcohol/Drug Abuse Advisory Board.

Seventeen percent of the 307 students surveyed said they do not drink.

The survey was taken during the recent Alcohol Choice or Chance Week, which was sponsored by the Advisory Board to promote responsible drinking among students, said Board member Judi Henry.

The survey elicited student comments on what and why they drink, how often they found themselves encouraged to drink more than they want to and what percentage of their fellow students they think drink to excess.

Fifty-three percent of the students responding were male, and 66 percent were between the ages of 17 and 20. Thirty-nine percent were between the ages of 21 and 25.

Beer was the preferred beverage among the students who said they do drink. Forty-six percent of the students said they most frequently drink beer, while 30 percent said their most frequent drink is liquor and 24 percent said they most frequently drink wine.

Out of a number of reasons listed on the survey as possible reasons for drinking, enjoyment of taste, sociability and relief of tension and fatigue, in that order, were listed by students as the leading reasons for their drinking. Most of the students responding said they seldom drank to get along better on dates, to get drunk or to achieve a sense of well-being.

Facilitating study, overcoming shyness and relieving aches and pains were the reasons least frequently listed by students as reasons for drinking.

Of the students surveyed, 55 percent said they never found themselves in a situation where they were encouraged to drink more than they wanted to.

Thirty-five percent said they found themselves in this situation one or two times per month, and 10 percent said they were in this situation three or four times per month.

A comment on one questionnaire read, "If something good happens, I sometimes drink more than I'd like to, but this doesn't happen frequently."

"I can always find these situations if I look for them, but the idea behind mature drinking is to know your limit and stick to it," said another respondent.

Survey results show students, on the average, believe less than 9 percent of their fellow students never drink, anywhere between 10 to 60 percent drink occasionally, between 25 and 60 percent drink frequently and 10 to 24 percent drink to excess.

Henry said the main reason for conducting the survey was to get students to think about why they drink, and that no immediate actions would be taken on the basis of the survey results.

Musicians to perform

The Tech Baroque Ensemble will perform music of the eighteenth century at 8:15 p.m. tonight in Hemmle Recital Hall. The ensemble is comprised of Michael Stoune on baroque flute, Richard Meek on recorder and bassoon, Judson Maynard and William DeLavan on viola da gamba and Gladys Maynard and Jane Ann Wilson on harpsichord. Admission is free. Pianist John Wustman, internationally-acclaimed accompanist, will be performing with Tech assistant professor of voice, Sue Arnold, at 8:15 p.m. Friday in Hemmle Recital Hall. Wustman will be conducting master classes on Friday and Saturday. No admission fee is charged for concert or classes.

Detective Trotter, played by Matt Posey, interrogates a frightened Mollie, played by Joanna Neel, in the Backstage Dinner Theatre production of "The Mousetrap," which will run on the UC Theatre stage at 7:30 p.m. tonight through Sunday. For ticket information, call 742-3621.

Comic-mystery 'Mousetrap' at UC Backstage Dinner Theatre

By JOHN HARDWICK
UD Staff Writer

Tonight through Sunday, the UC Backstage Dinner Theatre will present The Mousetrap, which has the distinction of being the longest running play in the world.

"The Mousetrap has been running in England since 1952," said Tech student Laurie Willis, director of the UC production. "It's the longest running play in the world. This month marks the end of its 28th year."

Willis said the play's phenomenal run came about by accident. "At first the play was popular, but then it became an institution in England. People would make pilgrimages to London to see it every year. Now, it seems like it might never close."

The mystery-comedy, written by Agatha Christie, will be presented tonight through Sunday at the University Center Theatre stage. Show time for all four performances will be 7:30 p.m. Although the dinner tickets are sold out, show-only tickets remain for $2 with Tech ID.

The show has been in production for almost six weeks, with the actors rehearsing six to seven nights a week. As director, Willis had the difficult task of developing a concept for the UC production. Willis said, "At first, I had no idea how to approach the play. After reading The Mousetrap and several other Agatha Christie works, I saw her style and realized that the plot is the most important aspect of the show."

"We are working towards a mental exercise for the audience," Willis said, "that is worthy of the Agatha Christie genre."

Although she has encountered many directoral problems in the production, including the difficulty of achieving realism on a limited budget, Willis said the actors encountered the hardest problem.

"The characters are very two-dimensional," Willis said. "If the characters became three-dimensional, it would give away too much of the plot."

Cast members of the Tech production include Ray Green as Giles Ralston, Joanna Neel as Mollie Ralston, Matt Posey as Detective Sergeant Trotter, Darren Walker as Mr. Paravicini and Brent Adams as Christopher Wren.

'You can't judge album by its cover'

By CLAY WRIGHT
UD Staff Writer

When the new album by Franne Golde, "Restless" (CBS) first arrived at the UD newsroom early last week, it was shuffled between the members of the Lifestyles staff for nearly a week.

By combining the reviews, the reader would be provided with a review of the new material being released by the various record companies, but at the same time no more space than was absolutely necessary would be afforded to the record(s). After a few albums had been

The following excerpt from, "Looking For The Stranger" suggests, as the song's title implies, some of the internal conflicts faced by a lonely woman:

I've had it with the same old routine
I've had it with the same old faces, places

I started feeling washed up washed out
Hung up wrung out left to dry

produced. The music seems to be orchestrated rather than just played. One reason the music has such quality is that it incorporates not only the dynamic vocals of Franne Golde, but also instrumental accompaniment of nine musicians.

blues type, with floating transitions. The first album Golde made was a failure. However, she has re-evaluated herself and her music. The result is an album of superior quality.

Review: Album

No one wanted to review the album. The cover was so dull everyone thought the music also would be dull. Finally the staff came to a solution: a review of the album would be combined with several reviews of other albums.

After the first song, it became apparent "Restless" was not an ordinary album. A review combined with several other record reviews would just not do the music justice or be fair to the reader.

The music on the album was so impressive, a "full" review of the album became necessary.

The songs deal with the internal feelings of a woman who has lost love, a woman who seeks true love, the naivete of young adults or the pain suffered by women.

Upon reading the lyrics, one notes the lyrics are like poetry verses. It is pleasant to hear a song where the lyrics truly reflect what the artist feels rather than the typical rhyming scheme so prevalent in today's songs.

Most of the songs have few breaks between stanzas. When the breaks do occur, they are well-timed, but the listener is left wanting more of the excellent guitar work used in the musical breaks.

The album is very well-

Picadors battle West Texas

By MIKE KEENEY
UD Staff Writer

The 14th annual Khiva Shrine Bowl begins tonight when the Tech Picadors host the West Texas State Baby Buffs at 7:30 p.m. in Jones Stadium.

The Shrine Bowl is sponsored each year by the Lubbock area Khiva Shriners. Proceeds from the game go to the Burns Institute in Galveston. The hospital is one of 22 Shrine units in North America which treat children with orthopedic problems or severe burns. Otherwise, many children might not be able to afford proper care.

14th Khiva Shrine Bowl tonight

From this area 172 children have been cared for this year in various Shriner hospitals across the state. Shriner Mel Lisman said that each child cared for at one of the hospitals will cost the Shriners over $5,000.

The Picadors and the Buffs have met once before in the Shrine Bowl. Tech took a 22-19 victory in the 1978 game. John Greve, now the Tech varsity kicker, kicked a 30-yard field goal with seven seconds remaining to give Tech the victory.

In all Tech has won seven games, lost five and tied one in the 13 Khiva Shrine games played. Since 1972, the Picadors have a record of 6-2.

Currently on the year Tech is 2-1 with victories over New Mexico Military Institute, 17-16, and over Garden City Community College, 19-0. Tech's lone loss came at the hands of Ranger Junior College, 28-13.

The Buffs are 0-2 on the year with losses to the Panhandle State Junior Varsity and Garden City Community College.

On offense the Picadors will start Larry Cipriano at split end, Harland Maisel and Danny Buzzard will open at tackles, Tim Hendrix and Kelly Grammer will start at the guard positions and Alan Buster will open at center.

Roderick Smith will start at tight end while Rick Sharrock will hold down the flanker spot.

The backfield will be composed of Perry Morren at quarterback, who has thrown for 284 yards in the first three games, Wes Whitman at fullback and Ronald Johnson at tailback. Whitman leads the Picadors in rushing with 146 yards on 53 carries.

The defense will be led by linebackers Bobby Amaro, Rob Wills, Keith Porter and Bryan

Lambert. Down linemen will be Brad White and Kenneth Sternes at the tackle positions with Ronald Byers between the two at noseguard.

The secondary will see Steve Heniford and Paul Rodgers at the corners and Craig Caudle and Chuck Alexander at the safeties.

Tech students may get in the game for $1 with a Tech ID.

Softball tryouts, today, Friday

Spring season tryouts for the Tech women's fast-pitch softball team will be conducted from 4-6 p.m. today and tomorrow at Mose Hood Park.

Interested softball players, ready to play with gloves, should report at the park located at Ave. Q and 24th.

Before athletes can participate in the tryouts, players must have a physical form filled out at Thompson Hall and returned to Kaye Cosby, women's athletic trainer. The trainer's office is located in Room 20 of the Naval Reserve Building.

Coach Cindy Carleton said that because tryouts were on Aug. 18, prior to the school year, many students were unable to attend the tryouts. Carleton said that enough interest was expressed to require another tryout.

Among the highlights of the upcoming season are the New Mexico State Softball Tournament and the regional softball tournament. Both tournaments will feature some of the top teams in the nation.

For more information, persons should call Carleton at 742-1949 or the Tech women's sports information office at 742-2312.

Tech spikers sweep ACU, travel to state tourney today

The Tech volleyball team geared up for its important upcoming divisional championships this weekend by defeating Abilene Christian University Tuesday night in Abilene.

The spikers downed the home Wildcats 15-6, 15-8, 15-9 to improve their record to 37-8 on the year.

But more importantly, the win gave the Raiders momentum for the TAAIW Division I Volleyball Championships at College Station today through Saturday.

The top teams in Texas will be competing in the tournament. Seeded number one is The University of Texas-Arlington, which will be in the same pool as fourth-seeded Tech. In the other pool, the favorites are the University of Houston, seeded second, and the University of Texas, the number three seed.

Along with Tech and UTA in the first pool is Texas A&M and North Texas State. In the other pool, besides UT and Houston, are Texas Women's University and Lamar.

Each team will play the other three teams in its pool once and the top two teams in each pool will advance to the championships finals, where single elimination play will take place.

Tech's first game will be at 11:30 p.m. Friday when the Raiders take on Texas A&M.

The tournament is designed to award spots in the Southwest AIAW Regional Tournament in Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 20-22. Because of the quality and quantity of volleyball teams in Texas, the Raiders are almost assured of a spot in the regionals if they can make a good showing this weekend.

"Everybody played well," said Tech coach Janice Hudson of her team's recent effort against ACU. "We're gaining momentum for the state tournament."

The starting Tech lineup will probably be the same as it has been for most of the year: Foydell Nutt, Sonja Pittman, her sister Connie, Rhonda Farley, Irene Solano, and Christa White. The top substitute will most likely be Rhonda Hubbard.

Harriers finish 7th in SWC meet

Bert Torres finished in 14th place Monday to lead the Raider cross country team to a seventh place spot in the Southwest Conference Cross Country Meet at Las Rios Country Club in Plano.

Torres ran the 10,000 meter course in 32:22, two minutes behind individual winner Mark Andersen of Arkansas. Geoffrey Koch of Texas outlegged Pedro Rivera Flores for second place with a time of 30:42. Flores finished four seconds behind Koch.

Arkansas made shambles of the team race. The Razorbacks won the team championship with 23 points to runnerup Texas' 71 points. Baylor was third, Houston fourth, Texas A&M fifth and Rice sixth. Following Tech were SMU and TCU.

Other Tech finishers were Steve Tidrow in 27th place with a time of 33:20; Glenn Morris, 34th in 33:46; Jose San Miguel, 39th in 34:29 and Joseph Mutai, 42nd with a time of 34:42. There were 57 runners in the race.

Coach Gerald "Corky" Oglesby will send his Raiders to run again next week in the District VI NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) meet in Georgetown.

TCU secondary to test Raiders

By MIKE KEENEY
UD Staff Writer

When Tech and TCU lock horns Saturday afternoon in Fort Worth, spectators will be looking at the top defensive team against the pass in the Horned Frogs against the leading pass receiver in the SWC in Renie Baker of Tech.

Like they say, "something has to give."
Though the Frogs are 0-8 on the year, their opponents haven't been very successful throwing against the team from Cowtown.

After eight games TCU leads the conference in pass defense, allowing a stingy 122.2 yards per game through the air ways. Tech is second in that department, allowing only 123.9 yards a game via the pass.

The ironic thing is that the Horned Frogs' secondary is made of sophomores, which makes the defensive backfield very young, but not inexperienced.

Three of the four regulars, Thomas Bell, Ken Bener and Darrell Patterson, lettered as freshmen at TCU. The other starter, Joe Breedlove, was a member of the varsity last year but failed to earn a letter.

Patterson played linebacker last year and at the beginning of this year, but coach F.A. Dry saw his speed and talents could be better suited in the defensive backfield.

The secondary has allowed nine touchdown passes this year and has five interceptions to its credit. They have allowed 66 completions in 119 attempts and given up 978 yards through the air.

Tech boss Rex Dockery is well aware of the talent that is back there, but he said that won't keep the Raiders from doing what they do best - throw the football.

"They have a very good scheme defensively. Their secondary is good and they have good athletes back there. They can cause problems for an offense," he said.

Dockery, though, is not going to put Ron Reeves on the shelf though. Reeves ranks third in the conference in passing efficiency but he leads the league in passing yardage with 894 yards.

"We'll do whatever it takes to win the game. Whatever goes good during the game is what we'll go with. I think our passing game is one of our strongest points and we'll stick with it," he said.

Those words were echoed by the league's leading pass catcher Renie Baker.

"There pass defense is considered the best in the conference. We want to show them what we can do, just like we showed Texas," he said.

Tech's Ron Reeves options right and prepares to squeeze through the grasp of Texas defenders Robin Sendlein (60) and Kiki De Ayala (31) in the Raiders' 24-20 win over the Longhorns. Reeves was 10 out of 17 in passing for 102 yards and scored a touchdown on a two-yard run against Texas. (Photo by Max Faulkner)

Watts receives defensive honor

DALLAS (AP) - Ted Watts would rather make a big hit than return an interception for a touchdown.

He got to enjoy both Saturday. He made a 34-yard interception return for a touchdown and made a tackle that led to another interception. Such timely heroics earned the senior from Tarpon Springs, Fla., the satisfaction of helping Tech to a 24-20 upset victory over the Longhorns and The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week Award.

"Ted has just been a great leader for this team," said Tech coach Rex Dockery. "I don't guess I've ever had a player with the knack of being around the ball like Ted. He's up there at the top of the chart on making tackles and reads the passing plays well enough to be on hand to break up the passes."

Watts received the "big hit" award for the game against the Longhorns. A Raider receives the "big hit" award on a tackle "where everybody in the stadium knows about it," said Tech sports information director Joe Hornaday.

Watts made the tackle at the Tech 10-yard line late in the game as a Rick McIvor pass caromed off the receiver's hands into teammate Tate Randle's arms.

The All-SWC Watts knocked down two passes, once skying high to bat a ball away from Texas tight end Lawrence Sampleton, and was credited with three unassisted tackles and five assists.

Watts

For the year, Watts has made a total of 50 tackles - tops on the Raider team - and has broken up eight passes.

Watts said of his interception, "I wasn't sure I could go all the way but I decided to give it a run for the money. It kind of surprised me I scored but I got some great blocking."

He started up the right sideline, then cut across the field for the score that gave Tech a 14-0 lead.

Watts was part of a Tech defense that allowed zero yards in the final quarter. Texas passed eight times in the final period for one yard and rushed seven times for a minus one yard.

"You know, I think I'd rather make a big hit then intercept a pass and return it for a touchdown," said Watts. "There's just something about stopping a running back or a receiver in his tracks."

World Series saviour declares free agency

NEW YORK (AP) - Tug McGraw, one of the heroes of Philadelphia's rush to baseball's world championship last month, declared for the free agent re-entry draft Wednesday, charging that the Phillies are not willing to pay him at the same level as the team's other top players.

McGraw and outfielder Steve Braun of the Toronto Blue Jays pushed to 52 the number of players declaring for free agency with the deadline for filing at midnight Wednesday.

Only one other player, Texas pitcher Charlie Hough, was eligible to join the free agent list but the knuckleballer was reported close to signing a contract with the Rangers.

McGraw issued a statement to explain his situation.

"I have entered the free agent draft as of this afternoon, Nov. 5," it said. "My request to the Phillies was this: My contribution to the first world championship in 97 years was equal to that of any person or player on the team. I want to be in the norm with the salaries of these players. To date, the Phillies have declined to make me a proposal of salary comparable to those salary levels of the other key players of the team. I didn't want this, but at this point there was no other choice."

McGraw and his financial adviser, Phil McLaughlin, plan to meet with Phillie officials again Friday and perhaps over the weekend, as well.

McGraw, apparently, would prefer to remain with Philadelphia, just as Los Angeles outfielder Dusty Baker.

SWC at a glance

TEXAS TECH (4-3, 2-2 in SWC) at TCU (0-8, 0-5 in SWC), 2 p.m. CST - Frogs lead series 18-17-1. Tech has won two of last three including last week's 24-20 win over Texas. TCU looking for first win of season, with four of its eight losses coming by less than seven points. TCU leads SWC in both passing offense and passing defense, but ranks last in league in both total offense and total defense. Tech quarterback Ron Reeves is hitting 52.6 per cent of his passes and ranks third in SWC total of fense. QB Steve Stamp has thrown for more than 1,000 yards for TCU, averaging 270 yards the last two games. TCU opponents have completed just eight passes for 122 yards. Tech is second in SWC pass defense, allowing 123.9 per game. Tech ranks eighth in offense and second in defense. Raider junior Renie Baker leads SWC receivers with 4.2 per game just ahead of TCU's Bobby Stewart. Punters Stan Talley of TCU and Maury Buford of Tech average over 40 yards per kick.

SMU (6-2, 3-2 in SWC) at RICE (4-4, 3-2 in SWC), 2 p.m. CST - Both teams care coming off back-to-back wins. Owls, whose fourth-quarter surge gave them victory over Arkansas last weekend, could win three straight for first time since winning four straight at end of 1973 season. SMU's tailback position, manned by Eric Dickerson and Craig James, combines to average over 150 yards per game. Rice coach Ray Alborn plans to remain with three-QB system, playing Randy Hertel, Robert Hoffman and Doug Johnson. Hertel passed Owl-ex Tommy Kramer in SWC career completions last week, now second with 516. Eighteenth-ranked Mustangs lead series 34-24-1, lead 16-13-1 at Houston. Mustang CB John Simmons continues exceptional season with six interceptions for two touchdowns, 312 yards on 22 punt returns for two touchdowns and three kick blocks. SMU freshman Lance McIlhenny is in his third start after quarterbacking victories over Texas and A&M.

ARKANSAS (4-3, 1-3 in SWC) at BAYLOR (7-1, 5-0 in SWC), 11:35 a.m. CST (ABC-TV) - Bears seek to move to within one game of clinching SWC championship, with mathematical possibility of clinching tie Saturday. Baylor victory coupled with Texas win over Houston would give Bears a two-game lead on field with two games to play. Bears lead SWC in three categories, are fourth nationally in total offense at 456 yards a game. Bears also lead SWC in rushing offense (280 yards a game) and rushing defense (108), but fell to third in total defense (275) and eighth in pass defense (183), although best in SWC in completions allowed (40.7 per cent) and interceptions (20). Arkansas' Tom Jones, the SWC's passing proficiency leader, missed last week with a toe injury and was questionable as starter early this week. Bears haven't beaten Razorbacks in Waco since '63 as Arkansas holds 29-27-2 series lead after winning three straight.

HOUSTON (5-3, 4-1 in SWC) at TEXAS (5-2, 2-2 in SWC), 1 p.m. CST - Cougars, with one loss, have best chance to overtake Baylor. Neither Houston nor Texas can afford another loss in quest for at least a co-championship. The teams rank 2-3 in SWC total offense, Texas at 393 yards per game and Cougars at 365. Texas' A.J. Jones leads SWC rushers at 105.5 yards per game. Texas leads SWC in defense (275 yards per game) while Houston is fifth (306). Houston soph Brent Chinn has developed into strong veer QB since replacing injured Terry Elston in September. Texas coach Fred Akers said he'll decide late in week between regular QB Donnie Little, the SWC total offense leader at 163 yards a game, and Rick McIvor, who brought Texas from 24-0 deficit to 24-20 in six minutes of second quarter vs. Tech. Houston's Lonell Phea ranks second nationally in punt returns.
