Tech Housing Office may be discriminating

By PETE McNABB

UD Staff Writer

The Tech Housing Office may be in violation of federal and university sex discrimination regulations involving its policies with the Gaston Apartments and Bromley Hall's 'C' Wing.

In both housing institutions, Tech shows preference to female students and may have violated the U.S. Code of Federal Regulations, as well as Tech's Code of Student Affairs.

The 36-unit Gaston Apartment complex, in the northwest section of the main campus, is exclusive to women residents. There are no similar on-campus apartments available for male students, indicating discrimination on the basis of sex, according to federal and university regulations.

However, two Tech administrators said they will work in the spring 1981 semester to study the need for a men's on-campus apartment complex.

Tech's use of the 'C' Wing in Bromley Hall, an off-campus residence hall at 1001 University Ave., is another possible violation of federal and university regulations. The wing is leased from the privatelyowned Bromley Hall by Tech.

Tech used the wing in the 1978 and 1979 fall semesters as an "overflow" residence hall to house female residents, charging the women less than what other residents pay. This year, Tech leased rooms from Bromley for men for the first

However, the men were "leaned on" to move on-campus as soon as space was made available, said Cliff Yoder, assistant vice-president in charge of auxiliary services. All the men who were in Bromley initially this fall were moved to oncampus residence halls by Sept. 20, Yoder

Federal and university regulations both specifically state that there shall be no sex discrimination in university housing

In the U.S. Code of Federal Regulations, Section 86.32 states, "A recipient (of federal funding) shall not, on the basis of sex . . . offer different services or benefits related to housing. . .

All the on-campus residence halls, as well as the Gaston Apartments, were initially constructed with funding provided by Department of Housing and Urban Development loans, Yoder said.

Although Bromley Hall is privatelyowned, Tech's use of its 'C' Wing for female students only may be in violation of another part of the federal regulation dealing with sex discrimination in housing. Housing must be, as a whole, proportionate in quantity and comparable in quality for both sexes, according to a part of the housing section dealing with "other

In addition to federal regulations, Tech's "Policy on Nondiscrimination" in the Code of Student Affairs also prohibits discrimination based on sex.

The policy, listed in Part II, Section G, states, "...in no aspect of its (Tech's) programs shall there be differences in the treatment of persons because of . . . sex, and equal opportunity and access to facilities shall be available to all.'

However, the enforcement of all regulations in the code are primarily handled by the Office of Student Affairs, the same office that indirectly oversees the Housing Office.

Both Robert Ewalt, vice-president of student affairs, and Yoder offered reasons for the university's dealings with both Bromley Hall and the Gaston Apartments in an interview with The University Daily. But they said they would study the Gaston Apartment situation to see if any changes are warranted.

The biggest action the two said they will probably undertake in the spring is a survey of male students to see if enough men would be interested in living in oncampus apartments.

The only time a similar study was conducted was in November 1976. Yoder termed the interest shown by males for on-campus apartments then as "limited."

However, the interpretation of the surveys in a report on file at the Housing Office may be misleading.

Of the 470 surveys sent randomly to sophomore and junior males that year, only 98, or 21 percent of those sent, said they would be interested in living in apartments similar to the Gaston ones, the report states. However, only 160 of the 470 surveys were returned to the Housing Office. Therefore, 61 percent of the men who returned the forms said they were interested in on-campus apartments. However, this was not mentioned in the

Despite any descrepancies with the percentages, Yoder said an updated survey is in order.

"No matter what the survey says," Yoder said, "it doesn't speak right now. In many ways, I feel it may be time to reassess the men's attitude on on-campus apartments."

Cost could be a problem if the university decides to build any on-campus apartments for men. The Gaston Apartments complex was originally a men's residence hall before its conversion in 1971. The median cost, in 1971, of converting the rooms into 1-, 2- and 3-bedroom apartment units was about $10,000 Yoder said. He estimated it would cost at least 50 percent more to complete similar conver-

While Yoder and Ewalt said they would work to update the survey on the Gaston Apartments, they defended the university's actions with the Bromley Hall

Ewalt cited the university's position of "attempting to provide as many students as possible with housing accomodations" as a reason for leasing the Bromley Hall rooms each fall in recent years.

Yoder said the decision of whether to rent Bromley Hall each year is made based on how quickly the on-campus residence halls are filled. He said that many times the women's on-campus halls are filled by early June while many more women continue to apply for rooms. Tech has leased Bromley Hall's 'C' Wing to accomodate the overflow of women for the fall semester, under the condition the women will be moved back on to campus in the spring. Tech leases the rooms from Bromley at a $65 discount per semester and passes the same savings on to the students. This fall, about 125 women are staying in the off-campus hall, one of the smallest amounts since the university has been leasing the private facility. The men's halls, however, generally fill up much slower than the women's, Yoder said. Before this fall, the "oveflow" men were advised by the Housing Office to try to find some temporary form of housing for their first few weeks at Tech in the fall semester until room could be made available on campus.

This year, about 20 men, who could not find temporary housing at the beginning of the year, were accomodated on a dayto-day basis at Bromley Hall through the university until room could be found on campus for them, Yoder said.

"As we had vacancies develop on campus at the beginning of the semester," Yoder said, "we leaned on them (the men staying temporarily in Bromley Hall) to move on campus.

Yoder said vacancies also were made available in women's on-campus halls at the beginning of the semester, but no pressure was put on the women to move on campus during the semester.

"We will lean on them (women residents of Bromley) at the end of the semester to move on campus, however," Yoder said.

But if any women living in Bromley's 'C' Wing now want to stay there for the spring, they will probably be released from their contractual obligations with the Housing Office, Yoder said.

Ewalt would neither acknowledge nor defend accusations that Gaston Apartments and Bromley Hall's 'C' Wing were discriminatory, saying he would make no official university response to the two

Soviet President Brezhnev offers plan for peace in turbulent Persian Gulf

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev offered the United States and other countries Wednesday a five-point plan to guarantee peace in the turbulent Persian Gulf in place of the "Carter Doctrine" for U.S. defense of the oil-rich

In a major policy speech concluding a state visit to India, Brezhnev rejected Western claims of a "Soviet threat" in the gulf and called on the United States, China, Japan and others to join Moscow in renouncing force, military bases and nuclear weapons

Brezhnev told the Indian Parliament that, "In contrast to the imperialist doctrine with regard to the Persian Gulf countries, we propose a doctrine of peace and security." In Washington, State Department spokesman Jack Cannon said the issue of military withdrawal from the gulf would have to be addressed by the Reagan administration

"To the extent that the Soviet president was talking about maintaining peace in the Persian Gulf, our interests would coincide. We are highly supportive of maintaining peace in the Persian Gulf and elsewhere," Cannon said.

Last January, responding to Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, President Carter announced that the United States would erect a military shield around the Persian Gulf to safeguard oil supplies vital for the West. In what was called the "Carter Doctrine," the United States sent aircraft carriers and other naval units to waters near the gulf and declared the region off-limits to the Soviets.

Brezhnev belittled as "pure invention" the idea of a Soviet threat to Middle East oil. He challenged the United States and other interested nations to undertake a series of "mutual obligations" to assure peace in the region and guarantee open sea lanes to the U.S. officials have said America and its allies would defend Middle East oil supply lines against any threat and that the United States would defend them alone if Brezhnev's sweeping proposal thus could be seen as a move to build sentiment for dismantling the U.S. military presence in the region.

The wording of his 30-minute speech was vague, however, on whether the proposed guarantees would be limited to the Persian Gulf or take in nearby waters. It also was not clear if the proposal would apply to existing military installations as well as propos-

Faculty Senate indignant about appointments

By KIPPIE HOPPER UD Staff Writer

when it takes office Jan. 20.

Many Faculty Senate members are apparently indignant about Tech President Lauro Cavazos' appointment of the members of the search committee that will find a new vice president for academic

On a selection committee of this importance, the faculty should appoint the members by the faculty's constituencythe Faculty Senate, Jack Collins, associate professor of history, said.

"The faculty chosen to represent the faculty (through the Faculty Senate) should be appointed by the faculty," one senator said at Wednesday's Faculty Senate meeting.

"The president has snubbed us. In effect, he is telling us that we're too childish to worry about such matters," another senator said.

Cavazos, in replying to faculty complaints about the committee members' selection, has said he wants people chosen by him as committee members, so that no one constituency will dominate the committee, Roland Smith, senate president, said.

"We're back to where we were when a committee was chosen to pick a new president," Smith said.

Smith, who is a member of the search committee, said he is willing to resign from that position, "if it will do any

In other business, Smith presented a proposal to appoint a Faculty Senate committee to investigate alleged "illegal and immoral practices" in the College of Business Administration. The proposal will be considered at the next meeting. Smith referred to a recent series of articles in The University Daily that dealt with the investigation of the BA College.

Smith said he is particularly concerned with the practice of punishing dissidents. discouraging faculty members through salary injustices and "cheating by using TA's as research assistants.

Smith said investigating the published allegations and other allegations he has heard personnally should be a concern of the Faculty Senete.

Many faculty senators were concerned with the recent rash of bomb threats and wondered what the administration is doing to discourage the threats.

"Every student should have the opportunity to take his final exams," Len Ainsworth, interim vice president for academic affairs, said.

Authorities will carefully assess the situations before evacuating the buildings. Police are actively trying to deter this "childish behavior," Ainsworth

The first alternative after evacuating a threatened building is to move classes to a different location, Ainsworth said.

Ainsworth noted that the bomb threats are a Class B misdemeanor, with up to a $2,000 fine and/or two years in jail if con-

Ainsworth said as little publicity as possible would be helpful, and that The University Daily has been "responsible with its bomb threats coverage.'

The current activities of the Ex-Students Association were reported to the Faculty Senate by Bill Dean, executive director.

Several Faculty Senate members commended Dean on his "dynamic work" with the Ex-Students Association.

BA students say changes needed

Susan Hurd

This article was signed by Hurd and 27 other business administration majors

Doug Nurse has done a tremendous job on his story about the problems in the College of Business Administration. It took a lot of courage and a lot of work to find and to print the hidden dirt, lies and smut in BA. Doug produced hard core facts, with the evidence to back them up, and not lies or smut. These facts can no longer be denied, covered up, lied about or ignored.

Tech President Lauro Cavazos has stated that no one has presented him with specifics. The three articles are pretty specific. Something has to be done.

When Cavazos was appointed, he stated that he wanted to better Tech better it for the students and the faculty. Looking into and taking some action against Stem's shenanigans is definitely an area that could use improvements.

Cavazos has made some changes and he has been criticized by some people for those changes. It's a damned if you do, damned if don't situation for Cavazos. Personally, with the things that have been exposed, it will definitely be a damned if you don't situation if something is not done.

Replacing Stem will not solve the problem. It's a good place to start but not the place to end.

Another sore spot with BA students is the accounting department. Accounting 2300 and 2301 are required for all BA students, and for the most part the class is hell for all but a few. Half the people that enroll in the course at the beginning of the semester end up failing or have to to drop.

Accounting 3304 is required for all accounting majors and it too, in result, is a "weed-out course." On the first test that was given this semester, about 275-300 people took the test. Reportedly there were three to six people who made an A on the test. A lot of the people dropped the course and will pick it up next semester along with those who couldn't even get it in the first place.

The people who failed the intermediate test were A or B students in the two course that are prerequisites to the course. Gary White, head of the accounting department, said the reason for this is to produce quality students. I find it very inconsistent that a student who has had a 4.0 GPA for two years suddenly makes an F in a class.

Producing quality? I find this a shallow excuse. Shallow and full of excuses seems to be synonymous with BA administrators.

Wilkes stated in the second article that "those who are not performers can always come up with excuses . . . " Stem, Wilkes, White and Dukes are filled with excuses. I agree these "administrators" are not performing, but I never expected them to come out and openly admit it.

There are few supporters of the Stem administration, though getting fewer everyday. Of course, you don't bite the hand that gives you raises and promotions. If you speak out you don't get your raise, ask COBA-9.

Raises are given on the fact that you get them if you're a supporter and you don't if you are a dissenter. There is no initiative to be a good teacher, just to do research and by all means don't disagree with the "system." Somewhere we got mixed up and thought the university existed for the students. All the state money the university received is based on how many students are enrolled and the number of hours they are taking.

I've been told that all the funds are reallocated on the basis of research. I agree there needs to be research but the students are the prime concern. I guess the reason they like to "weed out" a lot of students is so there is more time for research and less time wasted on those undergrads. Then there is the opposition, which are becoming more numerous all the time. It's not right to have so may unhappy professors in just one building.

Not everyone can take all the bull and the good professors don't have to. They are in demand and can get better paying, more challenging and more rewarding jobs at better universities and with corporations. Good professors are leaving in

About the only professors that are staying are Stem's buddies, the marginal professors, or the diehards that love teaching, love Tech students and love

After reading some of Stem's comments, I find it is more than evident his main concern is not with the students but with covering his behind right now. The morale of the faculty is not the only one in a poor state. It is also in a sad shape with the students. Some don't care because they don't feel anything will be done. We have to admit it cannot be ignored any

There are a few staggering facts that I can't believe have been ignored for so long. One fact is that the number of students is not increasing significantly. This year the enrollment is close to what

Another fact is the high faculty turnover rate. Doug discussed the turnover rate in his first article and someone tried to justify it by saying money was the reason. Face the facts, the administration is chasing the good guys off.

Believe it or not, I don't think everything about Tech or the College of BA is awful, but right now the bad outweighs the good. It's really sad that the professors in Doug's articles have to remain anonymous because of the fear of getting on the "black list," not getting raises, or fear of losing their jobs.

Doesn't that say something about the tyrant that is in control in the BA? People have accused me of looking for trouble. I wasn't, but as you can see, one does not have to look far.

One of my professors, unaware of how attentive I was to his lecture, commented that every time change is initiated in an organization, it usually brings about conflict. Conflict can be positive or negative. But conflicts have to be resolved in order to progress. Well, it's plain to see that someone has initiated change. It brought about a lot of negative conflict and now we are all waiting for the conflict to be resolved positively in order for the college to progress. Stem was told this little formula lots of times. He says he listens, but I guess it all ran out the other side.

After all the other clever excuses that have been given, I was wanting someone's reaction to the grafitti in the elevators in the BA. We have such comments as "F-k Stem," "Fire Stem," "For the fun of it, Fk Stem" and finally, "Stem gives good h-

." These comments have been crossed out, and then rewritten. This shows just how deeply people are divided on this issue. It's not just the students who are upset with the current administration. The proof is scrawled all over the elevator, so the excuse, "I haven't seen it" can't really be believed

Something is chasing the good guys off. My guess, along with a number of others, is that it is the administration. It is creating a very unhappy environment in the college.

Another area that could use immediate action is the class scheduling for the next semester. If it is assumed that 580 people are expected to try to enroll in a given class, would it be possible to schedule more than one class with a capacity of 50

This is a very frustrating situation for students. It is not right that a student has to wait three or four semesters to get one class. It is not right for a student to be able to get only three or six hours when he needs and wants to take 12 or 15 or even 18 hours in the college. And especially don't count on add-drop.

At the beginning of the fall semester, there was not add, just drop in the BA. This spring won't be any better. Profs are leaving because they don't have to put up with it. A lot of the professors that are expected to be here next semester may pick up and leave during Christmas. Now there are a few questions I'd like to

to be done?

Does anybody really care? And is Tech for the students or the researchers? Why are there not more women associate professors or women in highly respected positions? After discussing the article with the people that have pledged their support, there is some student and faculty imput that needs to be presented.

One student commented that she would never recommend Tech for a BA major. One professor said it was time someone stood up for his own beliefs. It doesn't matter if you are right or wrong, it's whether you have the guts to support your opinion.

One professor was negative towards the series of articles because he felt it attacked everyone in the college. I really don't want that to be the feeling. There are problems and they need to be taken care of.

One professor commmented on an additional problems that has not been covered in any of the articles: professor absenteeism. This absenteeism has to be stopped. Students pay to have someone there to teach, make the effort to come to class only to have no one show up. Four walks in a row before final exams in a senior level course should not be

Article offensive

To the Editor:

In reference to the article on "Frederick's of Hollywood," printed on Nov. 17, entitled, "All I Want for Christmas is...."

We felt that this article was in very poor taste. A student newspaper is not a place for a description of sex devices and sensual clothing. We were especially offended by the fact that Christmas was used to promote these items (whether done deliberately or not, the association was nonetheless made via the title of the article). It is unfortunate that the true meaning of Christmas has become increasingly obscured through the years, but this article has taken commercialism to a new low.

It hurts us greatly to see people dishonor Christmas as we feel was done through this article. The birth of Christ was a most sacred event; therefore, we feel that the Christmas season, which is a time to celebrate this great event, should absolutely never be associated with anything lustful or otherwise wicked. We invite everyone to join with us in the joyful celebration of the most wonderful event the world has ever known: the birth of Jesus Christ, the Savior of the Arab view misleading

To the Editor:

This letter is written in response to Ziad Malaeb's article, "Arab View of the Palestinian Situation Outlined," which appeared in the Dec. 10, page two of The UD. Mr. Malaeb does not seem to know the whole history of Israel, nor does he seem to realize the strategic importance of Israel to the industrial West. His appeal was a name-calling article without a

Israel has been a land controlled by sword and blood. It has had a history of people and conquerors that gained control of the land through superior force of arms and through the willing expenditure of blood. Some of the people who conquered Israel successfully were called Hebrews or Jews, others were called Greeks, and still others were called Romans. Whoever the people were, and whatever they represented, they paid the price for the land in blood, sweat, and tears.

Today, through superior skill and ability, the Jewish people have regained control of Israel. They have paid the price in blood, sweat, and tears. If Palestinians suffer in Israel today, it is because they are the losers. The "dreadful" events Mr.

Malaeb spoke of are the actions of a winning people in a war which is a race between two daimetrically opposed peoples. This is an aspect of armed conflict that can never be changed.

Israel is of paramount strategic importance to the industrial nations of the free world. By agreement, the United States and Russia are not selling weapons and supplies to Iran and Iraq. Yet, Russia is selling millions of dollars worth of weapons and supplies to Jordan who is then reselling the same weapons and supplies to Iraq. Israel can and probably will become the middleman for weapons and supplies going to Iran from the United States. True, Iran is not America's favorite household word, but Khomeini is temporary, and Iran is important to the industrial West's oil jugular. Also, Israel can help the Saudi Arabians maintain their oil fields by defending them from terrorist attack and by helping the ruling house of Saudi Arabia keep control of its nations. Israeli intelligence and military forces keep the Saudi Arabian rulers informed on the activities of terrorists and on the actions of hostile nations. They can do this because Israeli forces are top notch forces. The Strategic Balance Institute in London rates the Israeli intelligence and military forces second only to the Soviet Union in quality.

There is too much history, too much blood, and too much oil at stake for the West to deny Israel its right to exist. The Palestinians were not strong enough to keep their lands, so they lost them. By keeping Israel strong in the '80s and '90s, America and her allies will have a strategic springboard from which it can secure its oil jugular.

Abortion not safe

To the Editor:

"Inexpensive," "gradual" and "new technique" are the words to describe, not a new computer system, but a process to terminate a human life. We are addressing The UD article of Dec. 4, pertaining to abortion techniques. The article conveys the idea that abortion procedures are simple and safe. Not mentioned in the article are facts concerning the physical safety of the mother and the psychological wellbeing of the mother and father. Physical effects of abortion can be seen when studying the methods used. When a suction abortion is performed, the baby is removed piece by piece. The possibility of remains of the baby being left inside the mother exists. If this occurs, as is often possible when an abortion is performed quickly, the result can be a minor or even fatal infection. An instrument called a curette may be used to scrape the uterus wall clean. The danger to the mother is that the uterine wall may be punctured leaving the uterus in an impaired state. The uterus must then be removed and the woman can no longer have children.

Another method mentioned was using prostaglandin. This method uses artificial hormones to induce premature labor of a child too young to survive without medical aid. This new method has not been researched in depth and the side effects are yet to be determined.

Nothing was mentioned of the emotional effects of an abortion. Studies have shown that 11-23 percent of those having an abortion later experience serious selfreproach and guilt.

For the above reasons, we feel that the article, in stating that an abortion is very simple with minimal danger, was misleading. We do not pretend that any easy answers exist to the unwanted pregnancy, but one alternative is adoption. Willingness to go through a full pregnancy requires courage and support. especially for the single mother. There are people in Lubbock who are ready and eager to give that support and to inform people of pro-life alternatives. We feel the life of a child is worth the effort.

Well, Lubbock doesn't have to put up with boring radio stations anymore! I listen to KFI from Los Angeles. After KFI was the very first station to play songs like "Time Is Time" by Andy Gibb and "The Tide Is High" by Blondie. KFI started playing those songs about a month before they were played here in Lubbock. And there are some songs that KFI plays but none of the Lubbock stations play at all! In my opinion, the disk-jockies at KFI are much more interesting than those at

Let Lennon be

I hate long letters, but I especially hate long funerals. My point is this: John Lennon was a man who changed not only music, but you and I as well.

Lennon did things that he believed were right and good for the world, and he was happy with that. His death was tragic and unneeded, and his effect on the generation he touched will be sorely missed and remembered in an untypically

May John Lennon rest in peace. But everybody, do something for John Lennon and Yoko Ono that America has failed to do on similar occasions: do not exploit his death. Let John Lennon rest in peace.

Let what we remember be his inspiration for the world to "live together" and in peace. Do not let happen to Lennon what happened to Elvis Presley and Buddy Holly after they had passed on. Remember, they are mortals, just like you

I never knew John Lennon and now his widow. Yoko Ono. I can't say how he felt or how she feels. But, I can say what I feel-John Lennon did not want to be exploited or revered, only remembered for what he tried to do. And LET IT BE - just like he did.

HOUSTON (AP) - If the recommendations of the Coordinating Board for the Texas College and University System are accepted by the legislature, higher education will have a new focus in the next decade.

Among the board's proposals are recommendations that there be no new law schools, medical schools or other units of higher education in the state.

And, faculty members will have a louder voice in policy making decisions while getting the job security of tenure. The board spent about eight hours last week in Houston considering a bulky educational plan to embrace the next 10 years. The proposals will be discussed with Gov. William P. Clements Jr. Dec. 17 and then finalized in a January session.

A few changes are expected between now and then. Some members of the board are disgruntled about the proposal's wording, saying it takes a negative approach to funding for higher education and the value placed on a college degree. How much weight the plan will carry in the legislature is a legislature, and they may never may be read.'

She also said some longtime board members are reluctant to vote on controversial matters "because they don't want to get crosswise with the legislature.'

The long-range plan also came in for some criticism from L. F. Peterson of Fort Worth, a board member who said the "whole proposal is pessimistic and I get a sort of a doomsday feeling from it."

If the proposals ever become law, it will mean an increase in state tuition rates with the additional money going for higher faculty salaries.

And it will close the door on the creation of additional senior colleges; halt the expansion of existing medical schools and the establishment of a statewide test as a condition for high school graduation.

One of the most significant sections of the 10-year proposal centers on the possibility of a taxpayer revolt against additional spending for higher education.

Airline passenger 'bumping' common around Christmas

KANSAS CITY (AP) - The flight attendant's voice fills the plane as passengers buckle their seat belts, ready to fly home to the folks for the holidays: "We're overbooked, ladies and gentlemen, and we need volunteers to take a later flight.'

For many air travelers, that announcement may signal a new chance to wheel and deal for coupons better than cash toward future plane tickets.

Passenger "bumping," voluntary or not, is common especially around Christmas. A savvy bumpee can negotiate himself a deal worth 150 percent of his ticket price, maybe more - some airlines won't divulge their ceilings for the coupon payoff.

Many major air carriers started offering the coupons, or "travel vouchers," earlier this year as a way to ease cash-flow problems. To get passengers to bite they upped the ante, offering as much as 50 percent more than what the bumped traveler would get in cash.

"The certificates have been very popular, and people are willing to take them," said Don Canalte, a United Airlines spokesman in Denver. "Our purpose is to reduce our cash outlay, and we hope it will improve the passengers' perception of our Added Frank Stephan, passenger services manager for Trans World Airlines in Kansas City: "By giving out coupons rather than cash, sooner or later we get it back. If it's cash, people can spend it at another airline or at the supermarket, for that matter.

But the coupons are new and relatively unregulated. Pat Kennedy, a consumer protection staffer for the Civil Aeronautics Board, suggests that passengers make sure they know what restrictions the airlines have put on the vouchers before they accept them.

Questions she says to ask: Is it transferrable? ("Can you give it to your mother for Christmas?" she asked.) Will it expire after a certain period? Can you use it anytime, or is it void on holidays? Can you use it to buy a discount ticket? On an average day hundreds of travelers with confirmed reservations are told they can't get on their flights. Airlines routinely promise seats to 10 percent to 20 percent more passengers than a plane will hold because of the no-show factor, which increases dramatically during holiday periods, officials say.

The CAB requires airlines to pay cash penalties - they call it "denied boarding compensation" - to such passengers. The procedure came about as protection for passengers on those occasions when everyone who has reserved space on a flight shows

The penalty is equal to the ticket price, with a minimum of $37.50 and a ceiling of $200. If the passenger has to wait more than two hours for the next flight, the amount is doubled. Last year, airlines paid out some $32 million to bumped passengers.

Earlier this year the CAB approved a new wrinkle in compensation. The agency granted the airlines' request that instead of cash they be allowed to issue payment coupons good toward purchase of future airline tickets, if the passengers agreed.

"It's the same logic as merchants who'll allow you to exchange something, but would rather not give a refund," said Dean Witt, the CAB's representative for 10 Midwestern states, based in Des Plaines, Ill. "If they give you a voucher, maybe you'll be back in two weeks and fly with them.'

Among major airlines offering the coupons are United, TWA and American. United, which claims credit for originating the idea, says the new practice has increased the number of voluntary "bumps."

United will not say how much it's prepared to offer passengers for giving up their seats. TWA uses a ceiling of 150 percent of what the mandatory cash payment would be, 125 percent if the amount is more than $300.

Because the coupon scheme is so new, there are no overall figures available on how passengers like it. Pro Life organization informs about abortions, alternatives

The most likely candidates in college for suicide are the male freshman and the female senior.

"The male might feel his career future is in question or he can't cut it in college like he thought he could," Gordhamer said. "The female senior is worried about the social aspects. If she has no close relationships she may feel deeply depressed and lonely.' Gordhamer explained that when a student speculates about taking his life a counselor must look at the risk factors involved in each case.

"The risk goes up depending on whether or not the person has a plan or scheme to kill himself," Gordhamer said.

If he does, the counselor must find out if there is a predetermined weapon and whether it is available to the student.

Another factor depends on whether the student has made an earlier attempt at suicide.

"If the student has attempted suicide before he is more apt to try again," Gordhamer said. The counselor then determines if there are support systems available to the person. "If he doesn't have any friends or anyone to talk to about his problems the risk gets higher," Gordhamer said.

The best thing to do when confronting someone who is contemplating suicide is to talk to him and let him know someone cares and then refer him to a professional counselor.

The Best and Worst Movies of the Semester

Well, here it is, the moment nobody has been waiting for. It's time for...(drum roll, please)...the first ever, and probably last, Best and Worst Movies of the Semester Including the Films That Started This Summer but Were Still Showing When School Began.

John Hardwick

Editor's note: please do not pay too much attention to Mr. Hardwick's column today. You see, he has these delusions of grandeur and believes that people care about what he thinks is "good" and "bad." Actually, if you want to know the absolute truth, Mr. Hardwick has seen maybe half of the movies this semester. I know for a fact that he didn't see "Cheech and Chong's Next Movie," "Cheaper to Keep Hor," "Ordinary People," "Oh God! Book II" and "Somewhere in Time," to mention just a few. Doesn't it

Empire Strikes Back-the most obvious choice for the top five and a movie I actually saw. The special effects are better than the original (which was called Star Wars for you movie trivia fans) and Darth Vader gets a little more character development. A thoroughly enjoyable film.

My Bodyguard-a refreshing, humorous look at the adolescent crisis of a small boy who is taken advantage of by the school bully. All of the performances are good, the humor is mostly subtle and the plot ingenious. Definitely the sleeper film of 1980.

Airplane!-a silly, slapstick, satirical spoof of many recent movies, Airplane deserves to win because it shows up the "fad' movies for what they really are: stupid. Besides, any movie that casts Barbara Billingsley as a woman who "speaks Negro" is an

Ordinary People-I didn't see it, but I've heard this is a really great movie. Pat Barton, UD Staff Writer, says that it stars Mary Tyler Moore, Donald Sutherland and Timothy Hutton. He also says that rookie director Robert Redford needs work, but overall the film is a fine dramatic work and deserves to be in the Urban Cowboy-this is a controversial choice, but I believe a movie must be judged on several levels, not the least of which is its effect on the public. Urban Cowboy has brought about a renaissance of the cowboy culture that has swept the nation. Sure, it may not seem that spectacular to someone born and raised in Dime Box, Texas, but the movie is good, the performances are good and the music is great.

The Best and Worst movies of the semester are reviewed in the UD today by the admittedly ignorant staff writer John Hardwick. Shown here are scenes from "Motel Hell," "Cheech and Chong's Next Movie," "My Bodyguard," "Urban Cowboy" and "Airplane!"

Lennon's life profiled

By DAVE GOLDBERG

NEW YORK (AP) - Comparing John Lennon to the average rock star is like comparing Abraham Lincoln to Millard Fillmore. The Beatles, of whom Lennon was the most dynamic and perhaps the most creative member, were more than rock stars they were innovative and original musicians whose arrival changed the face of popular music.

Bob Dylan, who stood at the top of the '60s rock pyramid with the Beatles, has openly acknowledged he didn't think about changing his style until he heard the Beatles.

The Beatles didn't think about it - they simply breached the barriers, those previously sacrosanct boundaries of rock and folk and country and jazz and classical.

Growing up in Liverpool, England, they were weaned on rhythm and blues and early American rock - on Bill Haley and the Comets, Elvis Presley, Carl Perkins, Chuck Berry, Roy Orbison, Buddy Holly, Little Richard, Fats Domino, Performing in the seamy cellar night clubs of Hamburg, West Germany, they fused those styles into a distinctive sound that even today can be recognized as "early Beatles."

Some testimony from Dylan, who was a folk singer with a relatively restricted following that frowned on rock'n'roll as childish frivolity when the Beatles exploded onto the International Top 40 in 1964:

"We were driving through Colorado and we had the radio on and eight of the Top 10 songs were Beatles songs. 'I Want to Hold Your Hand,' all those early ones. They were doing things nobody was doing. Their chords were outrageous, just outrageous, and their harmonies made it all valid.

"But I kept it to myself that I really dug them. Everybody else thought they were for the teenyboppers, that they would pass right away. But it was obvious to me that they had staying power. I knew they were pointing the direction where music had to go. In my head, the Beatles were IT."

By 1966, they had gone far beyond what anybody in rock had done before, both instrumentally and lyrically. "Yesterday" and "Eleanor Rigby," for example, both emphasized the cello, of all instruments. In rock music?

Those songs, as were most Beatles tunes, were credited to Lennon and Paul McCartney. But they were usually the work of one or the other, and Beatles aficionados could spot the difference.

McCartney was sweet, melodical, lyrical, whimsical, sometimes bordering on the saccharine. Lennon was harddriving, tough, often angry and irreverent toward queen and

"Yesterday" was typical McCartney: "Yesterday, all my troubles seemed so far away ...

Typical Lennon was "Her Majesty," a ditty less than a minute long that ended the 1969 "Abbey Road" album: "Her Majesty's a pretty nice girl but she hasn't got a lot to say." Post-1966 Beatles songs were analyzed to death for covert

"I Am the Walrus" was said to contain the words, "Paul is dead" if played backwards. The rumor that McCartney was indeed dead and had be replaced by a double swept the Western

The Beatles broke up in 1971 and the subsequent careers of the individual Beatles - Lennon, McCartney, George Harrison and drummer Ringo Starr - demonstrated that the whole was greater than the sum of its parts. McCartney was the most successful commercially, but without Lennon, his music was cutiepie pop-rock, appreciated by teen-agers but not by most critics.

Lennon was only moderately successful, in part because, at age 30, he was tired of writing and performing for teen-agers. His music meandered into the eclectic and he insisted on teaming with his second wife, Yoko Ono, whose talents, to be kind, are

His new album, "Double Fantasy," his first in five years, was made with Miss Ono, and is number 16 in the Cash Box Top 100 Albums with a single - "Starting Over" - sixth among singles.

Lennon, who played rhythm guitar for the Beatles, was never considered a great instrumentalist. But he understood music. In explaining how the Beatles built layers upon layers of music, he cited basic 12-bar blues as the root of rock'n'roll. As he told an interviewer in 1970:

"The blues is a chair, not a design for a chair or a better chair. It is the first chair. It a chair for sitting on, not chairs for looking on or being appreciated.

"You sit on that music. We don't sound like anybody else, that's all. ... 'Please Please Me' and 'From Me to You' and all those were our version of the chair. We were building our own chair."

The chair lives on. Praised by highbrows like Leonard Bernstein and Aaron Copland, performed by classical orchestras, jazz and pop artists like Ella Fitzgerald and Frank Sinatra, lumped with Gershwin and Porter, the ultimate tribute to Lennon and McCartney may be more subtle.

Two decades after they came together, 16 years after they became a legend, nine years after they broke up, on the day of Lennon's death, their music lives subliminally, seeping daily into the public consciousness - on elevators, in department stores, in doctor's offices, wherever background music is played.

Georgia finishes 1st in final poll

By The Associated Press

Led by All-American running back Herschel Walker, the Georgia Bulldogs strengthened their hold on the No.1 spot in The Associated Press' final regular-season college football poll. But the Bulldogs need one more victory for national champion-

Georgia, the nation's only major college unbeaten and untied team, has held the No.1 spot for five weeks, this week receiving 60 of 64 first-place votes and 1,274 of a possible 1,280 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The Bulldogs's game against Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl Jan.1 has lost some of its luster, but Georgia, 11-0, can clinch its first national championship if it beats the Irish. The Bulldogs will have plenty of challengers for the mythical championship if they lose.

Notre Dame was beaten by Southern California 20-3 last Saturday and fell from second place to seventh.

Orange Bowl-bound Florida State, meanwhile, jumped from third place to second by defeating unranked Florida 17-13 and finishing with a 10-1 record. The Seminoles, ranked No.2 for the first time ever, received the other four first-place votes and 1,208

Pittsburgh, also 10-1, climbed from fourth to third with 1,127 points, while Oklahoma, 9-2, Florida State's Orange Bowl opponent, went from fifth to fourth with 1,027 points.

The national championship will be decided after the bowl games when the AP releases its final poll Jan. 3.

Jennings leads Tech to victory

By JON MARK BEILUE

UD Sports Editor It took six games but 3,795 fans finally got to see Bubba Jennings do what Bubba Jennings does best: red-hot shooting. The Clovis N.M. freshman had connected on only 32 percent from the field during Tech's first five games, but against U.S. International all that changed. Boy did it ever change.

Jennings hit 11 of 15 field goals, with most coming from beyond 20 feet, as the Raiders put on their highest offensive output of the year in defeating U.S. Internaional, 77-60, last night in the Municipal Coliseum.

In addition to his long-range bombs, Jennings dished out four assists and had only two turnovers in 33 minutes of playing

The win brought Tech's record to 5-1 as the Raiders won their fourth straight game. The Gulls, in only their second year of basketball, dropped to 2-4 on the year.

Jennings' 22 points led the Raider attack. Jeff Taylor added 17 more points and reserve guard Nelson Franse, who was five from eight from the field, was also in double figures with 10.

Both teams had no trouble getting the ball to go in. Tech shot 63.2 percent, including 70 percent from the field in the second half. The Gulls were not exactly cold either, shooting 58.5 percent for the night.

But the hottest, and most spectacular, was Jennings. "He really got hot in the second half and inspired their team," said USI coach Freddie Goss. "He was putting the ball in the hole and really was a leader for them.'

To begin the second half, Jennings hit five consecutive shots from 12, 21, 23, 25, and 15 feet. It wasn't until just over seven minutes remained that Jennings finally missed a second-half

"Bubba's just a good shooter. He's not a streak shooter don't pin that tag on him," Tech coach Gerald Myers said. "He's

Despite the Raider's accurate shooting, Myers said Tech's defense was the key to the victory.

"The turning point of the game was the way we played defense in the second half," Myers said. "I was proud of Steve Smith. He played great defense on their guards. He kept the pressure on them and forced a number of turnovers."

Yet it was defense, or more accurately, the Raider's press, that got Tech in trouble in the first half.

Tech seemed to have things its own way when Franse hit a 15footer to give Tech a 27-19 lead with 3:35 left in the half. But the Gulls found openings in the Raider press and scored their next four times on layups.

"Our press hurt us in the first half," Myers said. "We were overcommiting and gambling. Nobody was protecting the basket. Our guys got impatient and thought they could steal the ball anytime they wanted. There was a breakdown tonight."

Tech led by only three, 32-29, at halftime and Myers indicated that a poor frame of mind to begin the game could have hindered

"We came out a little cocky to start the game," he said. "Our guys were feeling their oats and didn't have the right attitude to begin with. But they got some respect from us after that first Tech outscored USI 45-31 in the second half. But USI was like the cheap peanut butter that is hard to rid from the roof of the mouth. The Raiders couldn't really shake the Gulls until 11:43

Ahead by nine, 50-41, Tech outscored USI 12-4 over the next 51/2 minutes to stretch its lead to 62-45 and finally put the game out of reach. Jennings and Smith combined for eight points dur-

The closest the Gulls could get after that was when Stan Montgomery executed a dunk with 1:24 left to cut the lead to 68-56. "They (USI) had some good athletes," Myers said. "They just lost their confidence in the second half. That will happen when a team plays on the road all the time."

Mark Bryant had 14 points and Charles Smith totaled 11 more to lead the Gulls.

The Raiders take their 5-1 record on the road to Tuscaloosa, Ala. to play the Alabama Crimson Tide Saturday night. Follwing that game Tech will play in the Pillsbury Classic Dec. 26-27 in Minneapolis, Minn.
