City Gains Four Inhabitants In Final Census Announcement.

The official population figure for Big Spring is 13,735—not 13,731. That the city has all of four more inhabitants enrolled on Uncle Sam's official registers, was disclosed Thursday with the official final series population bulletin for Texas.

Preliminary announcement made last spring by the district supervisor at conclusion of enumeration work placed the city's population at 13,731.

Twenty-six cities in Texas are larger. They are: Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Houston, Laredo, Lubbock, Marshall, Paris, Port Arthur, San Antonio, Corsicana, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, San Antonio, Sherman, Temple, Texas, Tyler, Waco and Wichita Falls.

Among cities in the 10,000 and above class showing less population than Big Spring are Brownwood, Cleburne, Dal Rio, Greenville, Harlingen, Palestine, Pampa, Sweetwater.

HOMETOWN TALK

BY BEDDY

Listing all work started in 1930 it is found material progress was made toward providing a connected system of all-weather thoroughfares for Texas. The state highway department, being shown by 128 counties that they wanted good roads, awarded contracts totaling $20,148,171.

Yes! No less than 128 counties got contracts for work. All contracts were let by the department in open session of the commission.

Official canvass of votes cast in the recent election Howard county held in an effort to obtain some good roads. Disclosed 102 would have had to be overcome for the bond issue to have been approved.

We have pondered much upon the case of Coahoma. The people of that town are not unlike voters in other places, at heart. There was some reason for their decisive negative vote against the bond issue.

Coahoma had been given an unprecedented promise by the chairman of the highway commission, in person. This promise was not given casually or unintentionally. It was offered after long study by the department's engineers, who then informed Judge Ely it would be feasible for highway 1 to be routed through Coahoma practically in its present location. The signed statement.

40-Yard Pass Gain, Wilson To Long Leads To Score

OWNBY STADIUM, DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 1 (AP)—Perfect football weather prevailed for the opening kickoff of the third annual Dixie classic, charity bout between all stars of the middle west and southwest here today. The field was dry and fast and there was only a slight breeze lengthwise of the gridiron. About ten thousand were in the stands.

Although the midwest had been victors in two previous games, the southwest eleven coached by Morley Jennings of Baylor took the field a slight favorite over the invaders coached by Bob Zuppke of Illinois. Both coaches stood pat on the starting line ups.

Neither the midwest nor southwest was able to make any sustained gains after the kickoff and there followed a punting duel, with Jake Wilson's quick kicks pushing the invaders back into their own territory. Finally Chatham, midwest safety, fumbled a punt from Wilson and Peterson recovered for the Southwest on the visitors' 37-yard line. On first play from there Hackman was thrown for a long loss on an attempted pass, but on second try Wilson shot a pass to Long, who fought his way 40 yards to the one foot line before he was brought down. Hackman plunged across for the game's first touchdown, but attempt at extra point was blocked. Southwest 6, Midwest 0.

Wilson's great kicking continued to keep the midwest "in hot water." As an exchange he planted one out on the visitors' six yard line, and Molloy's return punt was downed on his own 22 yard stripe. Up to this point the Midwest backfield had lost more ground than they had gained with their running attack. After two running plays by the Southwest had failed to gain, the first period ended with the ball deep in midwest territory. Coach Zuppke sent in seven men to start the second period, including a new backfield.

Second period: It took the southwest only three plays to score again when play was resumed. After one long pass failed, a triple pass from Brown to Hackman to Peterson carried 17 yards to the midwest three yard line, and Bethea carried it over after taking a lateral from Brown. Dale missed the extra point and southwest led 12 to 0. Coach Jennings sent in five new men.

S. U. Receives $50,170 Total

ABILENE, Texas, Jan. 1 (AP)—Concluding today a six weeks' single-handed campaign for Simmons University, his alma mater, Rev. Sam Morris, Baptist pastor of Stamford, today opened envelopes containing a total offering of $50,170, to the university, from 461 donors. Seals of the envelopes were broken by Morris in the directors' room of a local bank, in the presence of Dr. J. D. Sandifer, president of Simmons, and members of the institution's board of trustees.

One-Man Campaign of Rev. Sam Morris Concluded

Coupled with the Simmons campaign, Morris conducted a vigorous one-man protest against what he termed "certain practices in my denomination on the part of a group of men who are administering the affairs of the Baptist church in Texas." Since November 16, date of his opening, he had delivered nearly thirty addresses from church pulpits, in auditoriums and over radio stations and radio hookups. His goal for Simmons was $500,000. To be a purely voluntary offering to pay its debt and increase the permanent endowment fund. In his speeches he announced that if the goal was not reached all contributions would be returned, except those whose donors specifically instructed otherwise.

It was not immediately determined how much of the sum will be returned.

Morris said: "Four years on the football team of Simmons University taught me not to offer alibis or apologies, but to accept the result of the game, which ever way it went. This campaign—born, carried on and ended in prayer—was my own exclusive. It was started without the knowledge of the university, which had nothing to do with it one way or the other. I will take all the blame if there be any, and give all the glory to my savior, and I feel that I have done a million dollars worth of good for the glory of Christ."

Morris said he would make his final speech Sunday afternoon, from 3 to 4 over radio station WCAP, Fort Worth, "giving a full discussion of my campaign."

Missing Boy Of St. Louis' First Family

Great Grandson of Late Adolphus Busch Negro's Captive

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 1 (AP)—Wide-spread search was under way today for Adolphus Busch Orthwein, 13-year-old grandson of August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and great-grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, millionaire brewer, who was kidnaped last night by an armed negro.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy J. Orthwein, was kidnaped from the grounds of the Orthwein home in exclusive Huntleigh Village about 7:30 p. m. yesterday as the family chauffeur, Roy Yowell, was taking him to a New Year's Eve party at the home of August A. Busch at Grant's farm.

"I left the house with Adolphus beside me in the car," Yowell said. "I drove down the private drive toward Washington Boulevard, then slowed down for a turn.

"As I turned south on Lindbergh, a negro, standing at the left of the road, tried to wave me down, but I didn't stop. He then climbed on a trunk on the back of the limousine and pointed a revolver at me; I could see through the rear window. As I halted the machine he climbed down from the trunk, got on the running board and ordered me to get out. I did so.

Negro's Orders "He said, 'give me what you got.' I handed over to him about $5, and then he motioned me out of the way. Bub (the chauffeur's nickname for the boy) made no outcry. I said 'Come along, Bub,' as I saw the negro was going to take the car, but he refused to get in. He then jumped into the driver's seat, took the wheel and drove rapidly away. I hurried back to the Orthwein home to give the alarm. The negro made no remark that would indicate he knew the identity of the boy whose he was kidnaping.

Five blocks from the Orthwein home, a negro and a boy were seen by bystanders to get out of the limousine and get into a smaller car. The Orthwein car was found deserted at that point.

Friends of the family said they could offer no possible motive for the abduction other than ransom. They said the Orthweins had not employed any negroes for some time.

Attractive

The Orthwein boy, an attractive youngster, is a skilled horseman for his age. He has won several prizes at shows. He attended the Country Day School, where he was an average student in every respect, according to Principal Robert H. B. Thompson. His father is vice-president of an advertising agency, a member of the exclusive Racquet Club and a graduate of Yale. His mother was Clara Busch.

Mr. and Mrs. Orthwein were preparing to receive guests when they learned of the kidnaping. Mrs. Orthwein became hysterical, and today was under the care of a physician. August A. Busch, after a brief visit to the Orthwein home, went to police headquarters where he conferred with Chief of Police Geik and Chief of Detectives Kaiser.

Announcement

The Herald with pleasure announces that, beginning today, Mrs. Seth Parsons becomes a member of its editorial staff and will be in charge of news of direct interest to women.

Mrs. Parsons succeeds Miss Ada E. Lingo, who is returning to New York and a position she formerly held with a national advertising agency. The good wishes of The Herald and many friends go with her, with thanks for much effective work in developing the women's page of The Herald.

No introduction is necessary for Mrs. Parsons to a large majority of the readers of this newspaper. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Reagan, pioneer residents and heads of a family long identified with the life of the community in many useful capacities, she is especially equipped by ability and training for this post. Her long residence and consequent wide acquaintance in Big Spring, and her usual training as a business woman especially fit her for her new post here. She formerly was a member of the staff of The Los Angeles Herald.

The women of Big Spring and Howard county are specially invited to confer with Mrs. Parsons on matters connected with their clubs, Parent-Teacher associations, church classes and all other kinds. She is always anxious to help in any way possible.

We also sincerely hope we are proud of you, Mr. Walker.

Friends Pay Tribute to A. C. Walker, Retiring From Official Capacity In County After Service Over 45 Years

One of those rather somber affairs—the public acknowledgment by friends of service a man has rendered during the best years of his life spent in public work—was enacted Wednesday afternoon when a group of friends of A. C. Walker, veteran deputy county and district clerk, honored him with a surprise party and presented him with a gift.

Mr. Walker turned the affairs of the district court over to another person Wednesday afternoon, and today, for the second time in 45 years, he was not connected with the county in an official capacity.

Wednesday afternoon a group of friends—lawyers, peace officers, office girls, county officials, deputies—extended to Mr. Walker a farewell affair. His wife and daughter, Mrs. H. A. Glover of Dallas, attended. Cake and coffee was served by the bar association.

Among those attending were men and women who have known Mr. Walker since he was a "slip of a boy." Others had known him only a short time. Some had worked with him years ago. Others just a matter of a few years. But all of them paid silent tribute to the man who has been characterized as "the best district clerk in the Thirty-Second Judicial District."

Mr. Walker started work in the county and district clerk's office in 1885. At that time his brother, J. M. Walker, was clerk, and Mr. Walker went to work under him. For two years he worked as deputy, then was elected to the office. He held it for 15 years. After going out of office Mr. Walker started ranching, but returned to public life in 1909. Since that time he has been a deputy under J. I. Prichard, and has had charge of the affairs of district court. In all Mr. Walker spent 38 years in the office of county and district clerk.

When the offices were split last year, Mr. Walker was not a candidate for the office, although he did receive a number of votes.

Judge J. B. Litter and S. H. Morrison, who have been life long friends of the veteran county official, spoke at the gathering of friends, and told of their acquaintance with Mr. Walker.

Judge Litter declared Mr. Walker is believed to be one of the oldest office holders, in line of service, in the state.

Mr. Morrison, speaking of the years he has been associated with Mr. Walker, declared, "we are here to answer to the roll call of your friends."

Books Accurate "The books of Mr. Walker challenge the world for accuracy and care," Mr. Morrison said. "His kindness has spoiled me. I would be glad if every one here had known Mr. Walker as I have. I know my life has been improved by constant contact with him."

Mrs. W. D. Carrick, a life-long friend of Mr. Walker, presented him with a gift on behalf of his friends.

"We are proud of you, Mr. Walker."

THANK YOU!

The response to the holiday rate subscription offer of the Herald which ended yesterday has exceeded all previous figures. This in turn climaxed a year in which public demand has forced the circulation of the Herald to the highest level in its history. The Herald is deeply appreciative of these things and grateful for the measure of public confidence of which they are indicative. The fact that they occurred in a year that has not been noted for broken business records makes them of even greater significance.

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD: The once lowly "independent" crimping and casting in movie prominence and casting inside the unsavory memories of the now almost vanished Poverty Row.

They are assembling names as fast as they can, usually as the big studios, and employing a name a day. They can produce talkies with as much production value as the late silent picture, yet more cheaply because their pictures do not have to bear the tremendous overhead expense of the major-league.

And with their rise, believes William Beaudine directors may find a real outlet for their constructive efforts to make good pictures. Beaudine recently has joined the "indies" not only as director but also as associate producer—and therein, he says, lies the difference.

ON HIS OWN
 Working for larger companies solely as director through most of his 21 years with the screen, he has found himself handicapped, he says, by the surplus fingers in every picture, an excess of supervision, and general studio catering to the box-office whims of the studio group mind.

Beaudine recently got his first taste of real directorial freedom when he made a couple of comedies for Mack Sennett. Sennett gave him free rein, did not tell him what to put in nor what to leave out.

In his present affiliation, the entire responsibility of his production rests on his own shoulders, which is as every capable director would have it.

WOMEN WITHOUT MEN
 Beaudine's first venture under the new auspices is fittingly titled, a picture without a man in the cast. It is a war story, concerning a contingent of women canteen workers and the drama will center entirely upon this group of nine women. Men, if present, will be merely off-stage voices.

In the past two years there have been three pictures in which feminine appeal was absent. Of these, "Journey's End" and "The Dawn Patrol" were his, while "Men Without Women," despite its excellence as a movie, did not meet expectations at the box-office.

Excepting "shorts," there is no precedent for a manless picture—and lack of precedent is a quality most movies lack.

WILD BEAUTY
 by MATEEL HOWE FARNHAM

SYNOPSIS: Fanny, Frost is the target of her mother-in-law's hatred and is not understood by her husband, David. She is unhappy even after the arrival of her baby, Sheila. In a moment of weakness she runs away with Bob Daniels, husband of David's cousin, Lella, but repents and returns, only to find her mother-in-law believes her guilty of wrong-doing, and David himself is suspicious. She goes to New York, and works in a store rather than accept aid from her husband. At first she insists on having the custody of Sheila half of each year, but abandons the idea after she sees the plan in actual operation with the child of a divorced woman neighbor, Mrs. Oliver. The divorce is arranged and Fanny assumes her maiden name of Freilburg.

country and abroad. He was now in his early forties; had married in his twenties, and his wife was an invalid who for the last 10 years had had to live in the South.

On his second call Garrett spoke to Fanny of his wife and their enforced separation. "I rebelled at first, but in those days I kept hoping Laura would get well. But the point of this mild confession is that in the course of time I have taken on most of the perquisites and privileges of a bachelor. Even in sisters-in-law—and they are arch co-servatives—grant my right to come and go, call and entertain and be pleasantly engaged now and again, quite as if I had no ties." He smiled, and the smile and his blondness made him seem very young. "I am telling you this," he went on, "because I very much hope to see a good deal of you."

Fanny on the other side of the hearth smiled back. "I hope you will."

"You belong in an age that had leisure for charm and graciousness," he continued. "You are a little impetuous perhaps, and you make mistakes, but I see you are trying to live right; and beautifully."

"You pay pretty compliments—making a living. After several attempts at other things, Fanny had resigned herself to clerking in the stores employing cheap, untrained help."

But this last summer Mrs. Oliver had sent her an advertisement from Hirschberg & Co., wholesale dress manufacturers, for a model. Mr. Hirschberg took one look at Fanny and engaged her at a salary which seemed sheer affluence after the hard-mouth existence of the past years.

Fanny shared a bathroom with a reader for a publishing house, Anne Lawson. A few months after Fanny had moved to her new apartment she went one evening with Anne and two others to a neighboring club to improve her mind by listening to Shakespeare. The place was crowded and Fanny had to take a place by herself at one side.

The reader was a distinguished elderly gentleman with an impressive manner and a dyed moustache who delivered the lines of the ghost of Hamlet's father in an awful bass. Hamlet, in baritone, the queen in tenor and Ophelia in high falsetto. Fanny, crouched low in her chair to hide her uncontrollable laughter, finally sat on the floor burying her head in her arms. "Hurry, you better get out of here—before you're put out," said an amused voice at Fanny's ear. Fanny had noticed a tall blond man in a dinner coat leaning against the wall with folded arms; he was her rescuer. Fanny managed to pull herself together as he led her way out by a side door.

"It was exactly like the story of the three bears," she gasped in explanation. "It was impossible after that to be friendly. The man introduced himself as Garrett Wentworth; Fanny gave her name. "Look here," he said at her door. "I've had an awfully good time. I know Anne Lawson. If she says I'm all right may I come to see you? I'll bring Anne if you like but I'd much rather come alone." Fanny learned his story next day. He was the son of a one-time famous editor of one of the best literary magazines, and held an important position in a well-known conservative publishing house. He was educated in this

It isn't 1930 any more. 1930 and the 1931 are snapping yards, fire hose and no fire. Were we not the possessor of such a gentle nature, it might behoove us to shout. However, composed as we are, we'll let the matter slide gently by, and accept 1931 in its entirety. It's just another year, anyway.

The year, 1930, has brought many thrills to this department. It was in 1930 that this chronicler made his debut at Dusty Diamond. One really hasn't made a debut until one pulls the trick at Dusty D. That great estate greeted us in a whirlwind of sand, but not a whirlwind of baseball playing. During those hot summer months, we witnessed such ball shaggers as Willie the Shining Sammy Sain, the invincible Lois Madison, the up and coming Country Boy Burns, and numerous other ambitious clouters.

As 1930 rolls out of existence, we leave a sigh for Dusty Diamond. Not a sigh of regret, but a huge heave of satisfaction. They say happiness pays more dividends than sorrow six days out of the week anyway.

Having progressed from the baseball season to the football season, this department was quite littenish. Football surely would be a soothing salve to the baseball playing optical appliances had witnessed during the season. Was it? Nope, it wasn't. Football, that shining that started out to be a rose, turned out to be a milkweed. Something happened to the Big Spring aggregation and each game took us back in memory to the time Jim Payne tried to pitch baseball for the Bankers in the City Baseball League. We'll never forget that day if we live to be a hundred, which we won't if we keep on writing such as this.

So the year passes, and the hamburger we munched on Wednesday was one of last year's products, according to the calendar, which you can believe or ignore. The year rushes by, locally, with a couple or three basketball games in the sack. Only tomorrow night the Big Spring Basketballers gallop into the limelight to clash with a flashy quintet from the W. C. Stripling high school. The school is one of the many maintained by Fort Worth tax payers. Fans going to the conflict not only will see what Bill Stevens has to offer, in the hoop department, but will see a couple of amateur aggregations maul each other lovingly. The Couden Refinery gas aggregation, composed of Steelman and West, forwards, Baker and Mr. America Potter, guards and Spikelet Henninger, center, will toss its prowess against the Big Brothers Sunday School class team after the main event. The high school hoop brigades will tangle again Saturday night.

As soon as the New Year's hallogens are cast aside, fans can get all the basketball they want anyway. Midland's choicest cagers are expected to visit this village within the near future to demonstrate that basketball may be a game to some folks, but it's a profession to Midlandites. The Couden aggregation will go to Midland Jan. 8 for a game. We conferred with Marcus Williamson, one of the Midland supporters, only Wednesday, and he furnished us with three good alibies in case the Couden

Dixie Classic Scheduled Today

Two Elevens In Excellent Condition for Charity Contest

By GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Jan. 1.—Everything done that needs to be done, including the election of rival captains, two powerful squads of mid-western and southwestern football stars today awaited the starting whistle of the third annual Dixie classic charity contest, at Owbny stadium here this afternoon.

After completing their final workout in a drizzling rain Wednesday, the Southwestern stars got their heads together and elected Buddy Hackman, Tennessee halfback, and Jack Dale, University of Arkansas fullback, to act as co-captains.

Three outstanding linemen voted the most valuable men of their respective elevens the past season, were chosen to share the captaincy of the Midwest crew. They were Robert Clark, center from Northwestern; George Stears, big Purdue guard, and Stanley Bodman, University of Illinois tackle.

Adhering to his policy of work and more work, Coach Morley Jennings of the Southwest gave his huskies both barrels right to the last. They had been led to anticipate a sort of tapering-off process today, but what they got was a stiff session in the morning and another in the afternoon.

Coach Bob Zuppke, who got a team takes the count. Mr. Williams spoke heavy words, not knowing we were framing each other for future use, just in case something happened and the red and white clad fellows go cattering down the stairs of defeat.

On account of this being New Year's day, which means the new year is starting, bringing with it renewed prosperity and bread for the hungry, feathers for the sleepy, entertainment for those troubled with insomnia, we'll allow Mr. Boyce House to finish this stretch. Mr. House, the Ranger Times sports editor, has been commenting daily on the grid situation at Big Spring. One of his latest spurges follows:

Whoever takes over the coaching duties at Big Spring will find it necessary to start building from the ground up. Rogers, Mims, Neal and Kilduff, backfield men, will be lost from this year's team. Bill Flowers, elusive halfback, will return, however. Glover, Pardue, Hanshaw, Maxwell and Phillips of that heavy forward wall are through, also. With the fine looking squad of lads that the Steers placed on the field, it is remarkable that they achieved no more of the feat in the past season.

But they did not maintain the pace even for the remainder of that game. In fact, as the struggle progressed, Mineral Wells looked better and Big Spring worse. Apparently, the Steers never regained, at any time during the season anything resembling the precision that was manifested in that opening quarter, unless it was in holding the district champion Buckaroos to a rather close score and in defeating the Eastland Mavericks, a crippled club as the result of the loss the week before to the Cisco Lobos.

Perhaps it is just as well that the new coach should start with new material—the most impressive minds on which to imprint his own system. The psychological advantage of obtaining a coach who has a record of developing teams that have been recognized as outstanding in Texas also will be great. Big Spring is negotiating for such a mentor.

Having read that we feel sure our customers are in dire need of a New Year's greeting. We have held a hurried conference with Andrew the Galley Boy, who is sole manager of our greeting department, but his brain was foggy, his thoughts muddled, and he slipped us a Fourth of July salutation. Galley's next game of life, Even Callie the Cash Girl, who was asked for a suitable New Year's greeting, let slip a wisecrack instead, as cash girls are prone to do. So we'll frame ourself, to-wit: May the New Year bring the things you've always wanted, including a cup brimming with something that never saw fuel off; may you live and learn, if possible, but live anyway; may happiness settle down upon your shingle roof like dew does upon a lily pad; may everything be right, including your mother in law; and may your year 1931 be prosperous, what ever that word happens to mean.

Betting Odds Shift to Washington As Alabama Eleven Takes Final Workout

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 1 (AP)—Fickle favoritism as quoted in betting odds, which have been preeminently Alabama, as regards the sixteenth annual Tournament of Roses football classic today, suddenly switched to Washington State today as the opposing squads swept through their final workout.

Rumors the Crimson Tide was having difficulty rounding into the top physical condition enjoyed during the regular season was the only foundation for the shifting from the southeast side of the grid ledger to the northwest.

Coach Wallace Wade put his team through its final secret paces at the Rose Bowl, scene of the New Year's day clash, after the Cougars of Washington State had taken their final fling at preparation under Coach Orin "Gabe" Hollingberry. Both mentors said they were ready for the game.

General belief is the two elevens, probably as great as any in the nation defensively, both exponents of a smash-bang offensive, will blossom out with a passing attack.

The game is called for 2:15 Pacific coast time.

Probable starting lineups:
Alabama Position Washington S
Clement Center Ahlskog
Sington Center Perodi
Godfrey Right Guard Edwards
Elmore Right Tackle Maskell
Campbell Right End Tomkin
Suther Quarter Lathart
Cain Right Half Schwartz
Full Back
Referee: Bob Evans, Millikin; umpire: H. R. Hutchins, Purdue; head linesman: Walter Powell, Wisconsin; field judge: Sam Dolan, Notre Dame.

The two elevens likely to take the field today, the Midwest seeking its third straight victory, were:
Southwest: Peterson (Texas) and Lott (Oklahoma Aggies), ends; Witchee (Baylor) and Armstrong (Missouri), tackles; Koch (Baylor) and Lee (Oklahoma), guards; Pardue (Baylor), center; Wilson (Tennessee), quarterback; Hackman (Tennessee) and Bethea (Florida), halfbacks; Dale (Arkansas), fullback.

Midwest: Rogge (Iowa) and Casey (Wisconsin), ends; Ridler (Michigan State) and Butner (Purdue), tackles; Stears (Purdue) and Vanyo (Ypsilanti Normal), guards; Clark (Loyola) or Jensvold (Iowa), quarter; Kiesel (Purdue) and Hinchman (Butler), halfbacks; Dieg (Marquette), fullback.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 1 (AP)—Little Rock and Mobile must decide before January 8 whether they remain in the Southern Baseball Association.

Association directors, convened here to discuss the possibility of a six club circuit, will meet again on the eighth for the same purpose unless they learn soon that the Travelers and the Bears are to remain.

The directors adjourned last night with that understanding. They had received word that Little Rock business men hold an option on R. G. Allen's majority stock had not determined whether a field will be available. Renewal of a lease on Kevanough field, owned by the city school board, was refused by the board.

Byrd Douglas, Nashville attorney, and Milton Stock, widely known ball player and manager, also must determine immediately whether they can arrange to purchase Jimmy Hamilton's majority interest in the Mobile club. It went on the block after a poor 1930 season.

Any chance that Knoxville may have to enter hinged on the outcome of Little Rock negotiations. Unsuccessful in taking over the Mobile club Knoxville offered a home to the Travelers.

President John D. Martin said control of the Nashville club, entangled by the failure of Caldwell and Company, also is in doubt. He added the directors are confident a club will take the field there.

Giants Obtain Another College Right Hander
NEW YORK, Jan. 1 (AP)—The New York Giants have added another college pitcher to their big roster of youngsters. Secretary Jim Tierney has announced that Harold Schumacher, a right hander 19 years old and six feet tall, who starred for St. Lawrence college last spring, is to complete his college work this month and will report with the Giants first squad at San Antonio Feb. 10.

Delegates To Grid Meet Leave

NEW YORK, Jan. 1 (AP)—Delegates to the annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association coaches, college officials and others closely concerned with college sports were on the way home today leaving behind the impression that old man football is a pretty good fellow after all, but that he has fallen into bad company.

Four days which saw in addition to the N. C. A. A. convention, meetings of the football coaches, football officials, the sportsmanship brothershood and in gate receipts, strongly against football with few startling discoveries and almost no definite action against the game.

The opinion was generally held that football was being somewhat over emphasized and that there was too much interest taken in championships and in gate receipts, but that the situation was far from serious. The football rules committee pronounced its work virtually finished for a while, and other officials did little but recommend a few changes.

Yesterday's addresses by Dr. Charles W. Kennedy of Princeton, president of the N. C. A. A., and President James R. Angell of Yale struck the keynote for the week. Both urged less football practice, particularly in the spring and fall, shorter and more natural schedules and closer participation of the student in the direction and management of play. The same suggestions were urged by the coaches and at other meetings, and all followed lines of thought expounded by student publications during the past few months.

CELEBRATE
Are we not just emerging from one of the most depressing periods, psychologically and otherwise, that we have ever experienced? Haven't we much to be thankful for, health if nothing more? Does not the immediate future promise us adequate relief from our so-called troubles, without limiting our opportunities?

Let us pull together this coming year, being guided at all times by—"Does it help Big Spring and Howard County?"

Such a whole hearted determination on the part of our citizenship is more than justification for celebration so let's do it in a big way—a whole year of boosting and no knocking.
