HOME TOWN TALK

By BEDDY

Big Spring should have a representative at the southwestern conference on town and city building problems in Dallas Monday and Tuesday.

The Kessler plan association of Dallas is sponsoring the conference. The idea that cities that offer the best service are the ones that grow substantially is as sound as the doctrine that the stores and other private business institutions that give the public better service are the ones that get the business.

Big Spring has more than the usual number of civic problems because she has grown up so rapidly.

This city is at a very crucial point in its history.

For the past five years growth has been thrust upon us through development of natural resources in this section.

Growth of tomorrow will not be thrust upon us. We must go out and work for it.

If there ever was a time when the people of a city should get their heads together and do some serious thinking and acting in an effort to solve mutual problems of civic importance that time is right now in Big Spring.

We have an election to choose two (nominations members) scheduled for two weeks from Tuesday. The election is important. But of far greater importance is the type of support and cooperation the commissioners, whoever they may be after April 7, receive from the citizenship.

Big Spring is fortunate in having a charter that sets up the framework of an efficient government. The men who framed the charter manifested sound judgment. It is the type of charter that all cities of any importance operate under.

But, no matter how sound the framework, it avails nothing unless the people, laying aside prejudice, that most poisonous drug when infused into a community, go seriously about tasks of civic as well as individual importance.

In every town that has just passed through a period of rapid growth, it avails nothing unless the people, laying aside prejudice, that most poisonous drug when infused into a community, go seriously about tasks of civic as well as individual importance.

You can't run a department store with the same methods used in operating a hamburger stand.

Negro Draws Death Penalty

First Potter County Assessment Of Extreme Sentence

AMARILLO, Tex., March 21 (AP)—Death in the electric chair was the penalty demanded by a Potter county jury today of Will Moore, negro hotel porter, for the slaying of Mont "Pete" Moore, youthful cowboy, March 4.

The jury reported at 2:50 p. m. after a deliberation of two hours. It was the first time a Potter county jury had assessed the extreme penalty.

A crowded courtroom received the verdict quietly. Spectators were instructed by Judge Henry S. Bishop to remain seated until officers had removed the prisoner. The negro extended his arms for handcuffs, apparently eager to escape the crowds.

Moore was indicted the day of the slaying, and his case was set for trial exactly two weeks from that date. The case opened Wednesday morning, as much time being spent in selecting a jury as in hearing testimony and argument of counsel.

The negro's testimony that he killed the youthful ranch employe after being attacked by four men, including Pete Moore, was uncorroborated. Two of the slain man's companions and two other eyewitnesses said the shooting was without provocation or warning.

The shooting occurred when the boys went to a hotel where the negro worked, at 2 a. m. to awake some friends that had registered there.

Ten-Cent Oil Is Threatened Penn Declares

Proration In East Texas Only Salvation Says Committee Head

BRANDS REPORT FALSE

Committee Has No Power To Fix Outlets He Points Out

DALLAS, Texas, March 21 (AP)—Robert R. Penn, chairman of the Texas central proration committee, predicted here today that the price of oil, which has dropped rapidly within the last few months, would go as low as 10 cents a barrel within a month unless proration were put into effect in the new East Texas field. Without proration in East Texas, he said, other fields would no longer "hold the umbrella" for East Texas.

Already the loss to East Texas producers due to the low price of crude has been about $600,000, Penn asserted—oil which should have brought a price of 75 to 80 cents a barrel has been selling for forty cents or less. On a total production of about 1,200,000 barrels, he said the loss had assumed large proportions.

"Reports from Henderson say I was quoted as having declared that outlets for East Texas to be recommended by the proration committee would be 30,000 barrels," said Penn. "This is absolutely untrue. The railroad commission has not yet met, the meeting being scheduled for next Tuesday, and we of the Texas central proration committee have not received the pipeline nominations. Also, we have not formulated any recommendations to the railroad commission and will not do so before the hearing in Austin. Agitators in East Texas against proration repeatedly have tried to make it appear that the central proration committee is trying to throttle East Texas.

"This is an entirely false conception. The committee has no power whatever to fix outlets and acts only in an advisory capacity for the best working out of a common purchaser act which provides that there must be no discrimination between the purchasers in any field and no unjust or unreasonable discrimination between the various fields of the state."

Bishop E. C. Seaman To Appear Before Two Congregations

St. Rev. E. Cecil Seaman, D. D., bishop of North Texas, arrived last night for his spring visitation to Saint Mary's Episcopal church. He will address the church Sunday School at 9:45 a. m. today.

At 11 o'clock this morning the bishop will confirm a class of young men and will be the celebrant in the service of Holy Communion.

Bishop Seaman will be the guest of Rev. William H. Martin and Mrs. Martin at the Episcopal rectory.

Rev. W. G. Bailey, pastor of the First Methodist church, and his congregation have extended Bishop Seaman an invitation to address them at this evening's service. Bishop Seaman, and Rev. Bailey have been friends several years and the bishop expressed happiness at being able to accept the invitation.

Supreme Court Ruling, Crude Conservation Recommendation Chief Topics For Legislature

AUSTIN, Texas, March 21 (AP)—The legislative halls were quiet today as tired law makers took one of their two days of rest, anticipating much work scheduled for next week.

Meanwhile, as the legislature gained momentum for the finish, there came a denouement from the supreme court Wednesday telling Texas and Texas that approximately 2,000 general laws with local application were unconstitutional. The decision caused consternation, some legislators believing it would require a special session to re-enact the bills into constitutional law.

Although the $200,000,000 state highway bond issue was due to come up in the senate about midnight, Senator Wood of Houston, co-author, declined to take it from the table, where it had been placed subject to call because of the absence of Senators Stevenson of Victoria and Holbrook of Galveston.

Substitutes
Meanwhile, as the bond issue, zero hour approached and passed with no action taken, opponents were retreating against the proposed constitutional Amendment by getting favorable reports on two bills which would retire the bonded indebtedness of counties without floating a highway bond issue, the house highway and motor traffic committee gave a favorable report to a bill by Representative Stevenson of Junction asking that the state set aside funds to retire the outstanding bonded indebtedness.

Another move to cut down the number of bond elections was embodied in a resolution by Representative Anderson of San Antonio asking an amendment to the constitution to require tax payers to tender their taxes before being qualified to vote in such elections. The house endorsed the resolution.

The legislative week got away with a program busting with activity. Consideration of oil and natural resources continued to creep into the legislative limelight throughout the week. Monday

WILL ROGERS' BOY STOPS ENROUTE TO JOB AS 'CUB'

'All Dad'll Know Is What I Write For Papers'

WILL ROGERS, JR.

Necessity For T&PN Clear Board Recites

Full Test Of Railroad Commission's Letter To I.C.C. Given

A copy of the recommendation made by the Texas Railroad Commission to the Interstate Commerce Commission, that the application of the Texas & Pacific Northern Railway Company be granted authority to construct and operate a line from Big Spring to Vega, Lubbock and Amarillo, has been received here by Garland A. Woodward, attorney.

The paper, signed by C. W. Terrell, chairman; Lon A. Smith, and Pat M. Neff, commissioners, was last week forwarded to the commission. Woodward, while in Austin, conferred with the commission in regard to the railroad.

The recommendation follows: Honorable Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C.: Gentlemen: Referring to your communication dated March 7, 1931, pertaining to application of Texas and Pacific Northern Railway Company to build a line of railway in Texas, as is shown on Finance Docket No. 8488, wherein you state you would be very glad to receive any representations or recommendations in connection therewith, we are pleased to make the following statement:

Our Chairman, C. V. Terrell, and Chief Engineer L. A. Queringer, were privileged to sit with Examiner Davis at the hearing on this application at Lubbock, Texas, in December, 1930, and our recommendation herewith made is based upon the testimony and facts introduced at the hearing, supplemented by our personal acquaintance with the facts and conditions existing at the time of the hearing. The fact that the line would be operated by the Texas & Pacific Northern Railway Company, which is a subsidiary of the American Airways line, is a factor in our recommendation.

"Well, Will, get off the plane and get interviewed." It was simply this interviewer's method of instructing the one to be interviewed, who within a few days will be interviewing himself, that the time has come to get things published about him.

The subject was Will Rogers, Jr., son of Will Rogers. "Have a cracker, Will," I urged, extracting one from my coat pocket. With the aid of Marshall McCrea, traffic representative, I had just a few moments before looted the American Airway's cracker department.

"Thanks," replied Will. "What, no cheese?" "Nope, no cheese. Just bouillon." "Pocket clean, I guess." "Well, fairly so. Suit cleaned last month. Or maybe it was the month before."

"What's The Idea?" "Pretty fair crackers. No crumbs to speak of, either. What's the idea of meeting me out here?" "Oh, nothing much. You're the son of Will Rogers, aren't you? and you're fixing to go to work as a cub reporter, aren't you?" "Yep. You see in a few days all my dad will know will be what his son writes for the papers."

The youth—nineteen and just out of high school—will go to work Monday for the Fort Worth Star Telegram as a cub reporter. He likes the work. He says so. It is his first job, although he has worked on the school paper of Beverly Hills high school. He was graduated from there in February.

Route Boy
"Don't know what I will do. Dad seems to think I'll be a route boy. I rather hope I get connected with the police department. You see I am going to study law."

San Antonian, Fatally Shot, Fights Bandits

Battle Is Won, Although Three Bullets Take Man's Life

'CRY BABY BANDITS' Attempt To Rob Store Thwarted At Cost Of Butcher's Life

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 21 (AP)—With three bullets in his body, mortally wounded, Paul Kardow, 53, battled with his bare hands against an armed bandit, winning though dying Saturday night.

One man, whom police have labeled "Cry Baby Bandit" was groveling on the floor of a cell in police headquarters early this morning begging to be shot.

Another man, L. R. Graham, 53, owner of Graham's Red and White Store, is suffering from cuts and bruises sustained as he joined Kardow in the struggle.

Graham was alone in the store late tonight he told police when a young man entered the store flourished a weapon and ordered him to turn over his cash or die. Graham told the youth to take the money. The bandit looted the register and then demanded money he believed to be hidden about the store.

Instead of obeying the bandit's order to get down on the floor, Kardow grabbed at the gun. A struggle ensued during which six shots were fired. Later it was found that three of them had lodged in Kardow's body.

Graham joined his employe in the struggle and was severely beaten. The gun was wrested from the younger man's hand and Kardow used it to beat him over the head, quelling him for a moment. As the two older men gasped for breath, J. B. Millford entered the store just in time to assist them in quelling the bandit a second time.

When police arrived, they found Graham sitting on the grate, begging for mercy. As Kardow attempted to reach living quarters at the rear of the store, he fell behind the counter, never to rise again.

Police later identified the seized car as belonging to Claude Atkins, route foreman for a creamery company. Atkins said that the prisoner was a new employe of the company and had borrowed the car.

Young Speeders Kill Detective

FORT SMITH, Ark., March 21 (AP)—Shot four times through the body as he was talking to jail two young men arrested for speeding, Detective Sam Booth, 48, died tonight less than 30 minutes after he was shot.

Booth had climbed into a light coupe in which the two men were riding when arrested. The machine, blood spattered, was found abandoned near the scene of the shooting. It had been stolen less than an hour before.

Every available policeman and county officer was detailed to the case.

PANAMA CITY, March 21 (AP)—Two United States navy aviators drowned in the Panama Canal today as their plane crashed into the water midway between the two oceans.

The bodies of the plane were taken up by the destroyer Ellis, which was passing through the canal. The plane was a utility amphibian from the Coco Solo air base at Cristobal returning "on a flight to Balboa in a heavy rainstorm."

Applications For Federal Drought Loans To Be Received Here Monday; Rules Outlined By County Chairman

Howard county farmers may make application for federal drought relief loans Monday morning.

The loans cover seed, feed and "rehabilitation" meaning necessities for the family.

Only farmers who had land cultivated in 1930 are eligible to receive the loans, inasmuch as the money was obtained for farmers hurt by the drought.

A limit of $2 an acre is placed on the loans, Carpenter said. The loans are based on the number of acres in cultivation.

Applications must be made by April 30.

"The applications," said Mr. Carpenter, "will be brought before the county committee immediately after they are made. They will be sent to Fort Worth, and immediate payment can be expected."

Although Monday was the date set by the committee to receive applications, two were filed here Saturday.

Story Of Why Port Arthur Man Killed Following Mysterious Death Of Daughter To Be Told

BEAUMONT, Tex., March 21 (AP)—The story of why A. B. Johnson killed young Otis Lee Adams—a story known in its entirety by Johnson himself—will be told in his murder trial scheduled to begin here March 23.

Johnson, an angular, mild mannered foreman of teamsters at a big bayside oil refinery here, shot Adams, 22 year old ambulance driver for the same refinery, to death on the night of Saturday, Jan. 17, at Port Arthur less than a month after the foreman's pretty 17 year old daughter, Elizabeth, had been found dead of a mysteriously inflicted bullet wound as she sat in an automobile in front of the First Methodist church, South there.

The father since that night had made but one statement and that a cryptic: "I killed him because I considered him responsible for my daughter's death."

At Church
The girl, a high school student and Sunday school worker, had been taken to the church by her estranged fiancé, Robert L. Williams, 18, son of an Austin, Texas, Methodist minister and apothecary student in the University of Texas.

Three Masked Men Take $400 From Players

Home Of T&P Dining Car Service Superintendent Riddled

FORT WORTH, March 21 (AP)—A bridge party in progress at the home of S. D. Johnson, superintendent of dining car service on the Texas and Pacific railway, was held up late tonight by three masked men and the players robbed of $400 in cash and jewelry.

It was the second of such bridge party holdups in the residence sections tonight, the first being in Arlington Heights. The players in each instance were forced to lie on the floor, while the bandits searched them and the house.

Capone's Best Gunner Killed

Johnny Genaro Slain As He Goes To Home Of Mother

CHICAGO, March 21 (AP)—Johnny Genaro, suspect in a half dozen gangland murders, including the slaying of Frankie Uale of Brooklyn, was shot to death tonight as he drove along a south side street.

The man known in the underworld as Al Capone's chief specialist in the art of "occupying enemies" was slain by remnants of another car which raced along side him and sent five bullets into his head.

Genaro had been marked for death a year ago, when he was ambushed and wounded by machine gun bullets. Violating a gangland tradition, the assassin was killed because he thought himself dying—and police viewed this as one possible reason why he was killed tonight.

But they had other theories. For Johnny Genaro was credited with having had a direct hand in more murders, probably than any other gangster in Chicago.

He was held as a suspect in the killing of Uale (or Yale), Brooklyn gangster, and questioned for weeks before police dropped the case for lack of evidence. Uale had been a former associate of Capone's but quarreled with him and became an enemy.

Genaro, whose brother "Pete" is listed as a "public enemy" and a "gangster" was on his way with a bodyguard to the home of his mother, when he was slain.

As his car with Genaro dead at the wheel, crashed into the curb the body guard, Sam Vinoli, fled but later was captured.

Vinoli told police he did not know the assassin. He, Mrs. Genaro and a brother, Charles Ammerino (Genaro's birth name was Ammerino) were held for questioning.

City Tax Extension Period Ends April 1

Attention of the public was called Saturday by V. E. Smithman, city manager, to the fact that the 30-day extension period for payment of city taxes without penalty will expire a week from Wednesday—April 1.

The board of city commissioners recently extended the time a month from the usual date—March 1—in which taxes may be paid without the 10 per cent penalty for delinquency. Payment after April 1 will have the penalty added.

Cambridge Huskies Defeat Oxford For Their Eighth Consecutive Win

PUTNEY-ON-THAMES, England, March 21 (AP)—Out-rowing and out generaling their rivals from the start, Cambridge's sweeping huskies conquered Oxford by two and one half lengths today for their eighth consecutive victory in an age-old rivalry that began in 1829.

The three-sided track meet that was scheduled for Lomax, between the Hornets and Steers, and the Stanton Elms, was deferred, postponed, delayed and put off. The wind, and it wasn't a head wind either, was too strong. It seems it presented the same old problem of the boy that tried to get to school in the snow, and took two steps forward and slid back four.

Golfers of West Texas will mix and mingle here today to make final arrangements for organizing a six club golf association. The meeting will be held at the Settles Hotel after which words will be exchanged for mashes and cetera, and the visitors will journey to the club house, from there going to the fairways, or off them as the case may be.

It is generally understood that R. C. Chesterfieldian Hankins of Midland will represent the caddy department of the loop.

Icky Connolly, known by his mother as Warren, is trying out with the Port Worth Panthers as an outfielder this year. His father will be remembered, was one of the main reasons Johnny Moore's Richardson Refinery baseball team won the city league loving cup last year. He has been attending Texas Christian University, but evidently has had a yen to turn professional.

Speaking of football games, this department understands that it is possible the Steers also will clash with the Pumpa and Oak Cliff eleven. Challenges, or what ever it is football teams send through the mails, have been received here from the two schools. For some reason, utterly unknown to this department, things are picking up in a gridiron way. Well, let 'em if they want to.

He too believes that every cloud has a silver lining. If you just look long enough. Youngsters are there in hundreds. And Williams hopes for bigger—and even better—days.

Home Talent Is Well Received In 'Arabella' Show

Practically every seat in the high school auditorium was filled for Friday evening's performance of "Here Comes Arabella," presented under "Here Comes Arabella," presented under sponsorship of Parent-Teacher units with Miss Eleanor A. Smoot, representing Wayne P. Sewell, Alibuta, Ga.

Miss Moore, as "giggling Chrysothale" was a distinct hit. Bill Henley's handling of the Uncle Josh role was all the more remarkable because of the fact that he entered the cast only a week ago. Bill Turpin and Lewis Rix as Jack and Bill college chums; Dr. J. R. Barcus as Levinay; and Wendell Bedelch as Sid Hopewell, a playwright completed the male contingent in the cast.

To climax the laugh-provoking qualities of the play itself, Margaret Moore and Lena Kyle, as aunts Derby and Prudence far outdid any rehearsal performance they had made and helped materially in making the show a success.

The beauty and rhythm of the show issued from songs and dances by several groups of girls and the "Robin Redbreast Chorus" of little girls, who were Margaret Jenkins, Ernestine Johnston, Ellen Margaret Dempsey, Martha Jean Norman.

Color was infused through the costumes used in the chorus scenes and the singing of both Mr. Gullkey and Mrs. Kilway filled the bill completely.

Members of the choruses were Inez Matthews, Louella Rix, Mary Alice Wilke, Evelyn Merrill, Ruth Taylor, Valeris Sligh, Jamie Barley, Florence Robinson, Lucille Bishop, Inez Finley, Elizabeth Tinley, Katherine Anthony, Hazel Smith, Anna Bell Johnson, Florine Rankin, Louise Flowers, Lillian Crawford, Polly Webb, Mary Pender, Zillah Mae Ford, Dorothy Vandergriff, Louise Hayes, Theodosia Folter, Mary Gene Dubberly.

Boys: Clifton Dunagan, Glenn Queen, Frank Morgan, Eddie Morgan, Cecil McDonald, Joe Faucett, Carlton Coburn, Tommie Neal, Durwood Elder and Joe Clare.

Models: Winona Taylor, Lolabel Stewart, Myrtle McCleskey and Mable Eddy.

Necessity

in the area through which applicant proposes to construct its line of railway, so as to warrant and authorize in our opinion its construction.

We are pleased to advise that in our opinion the application as filed and presented should be granted and approved, and that the applicant, Texas and Pacific Northern Railway Company, be permitted to make the construction as therein prayed for in addition and for the following reasons:

(a) Because in our opinion the testimony was conclusive showing an existing necessity authorizing the construction of the proposed line of railway for the reason that the road would penetrate, open and intensify develop a new, rich and virgin undeveloped agricultural territory;

(2) Because the facts show that additional transportation facilities, both freight and passenger, are needed to develop competitive markets for the area to be served;

(c) Because the proposed line of railway would afford a needed and additional north-and-south railway system connecting with the parent east-and-west line of railway in the southwest.

We are reasonably conversant and acquainted with the area through which said line of railway is proposed to be constructed, the conditions now existing therein and the existing necessity for its construction, as well as the benefits to be derived by the people of the southwest through its construction, which facts, supplemented by the testimony offered at the hearing, conclusively lead us to recommend to you that in our opinion a necessity exists which authorizes and warrants the granting and approval of the application heretofore filed in this cause by the applicant, Texas and Pacific Northern Railway Company.

Yours very truly,

LON A. SMITH, Commissioner.

OBJECTS TO "STIFF"

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (INS)—Declaring that with the name of "Stiff," he wouldn't have a chance as a doctor, Samuel Reese Stiff, medical student, has appealed to a court to legally change his name. Panhandle Men Oppose State Tax On Natural Gas

AMARILLO, Texas, March 21 (AP)—Carrying statistics to show the tax proposed by the legislature would bring ruin to the Panhandle gas field, approximately 25 land owners, gas producers and business men left here tonight for Austin to fight the measure and urge substitute tax which they believe would be equitable to all gas and oil interests.

Among the delegation were Ray C. Johnson, Lawrence Hagy, Bob Lynn, Charles Keffner, T. E. Johnson, Mack Sanford, Col. H. B. Masterson, Hugh Alspaugh, Tex McIlroy, C. T. Fowlston, O. V. Vernon and Avery Bush, all of Amarillo; George Briggs and Mel Davis of Dumas; Guy Hill and Hal Vaughn of Shamrock, and B. F. Bennett of Borger.

Will Says Work Around The Country Sort Of Picking Up Ex-Tax Collector At Waco Indicted

They had to have some place to go.

By WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. And I don't mind telling you that since Congress has adjourned, I'm not able to pick up much scandal. Course they left an awful lot of investigations to be carried on during the summer, for they had to have some place to go. They call it "junketing," that's getting a trip at Government expense. They investigate everything from Bird life to prehistoric Mammals and radio wave lengths.

Mr. Hoover seems to be doing a little better since he got rid of the "Sung." A President just can't make much showing against that Mob. They just lay awake night thinking up things to be against the President on.

Work all round the Country is kinder picking up. Los Angeles voted five million the other day to be spent right away putting men to work on street and municipal improvements and most towns have done the same. We are liable to run into some pretty good times this summer just accidentally. Of course the big time is going to be in '32. That's the year of election and as I have always told you the Republicans see that things are fine on election years. Oh I guess in the long run this whole thing has been good for us. I believe we all got a little more common sense than we had before, we are kinder more down to earth.

In the old days we had had good times so long we didn't think anything could happen. Now we know it can, and we will be sorter watching for it in the future. We won't let it sneak up on us again.

Well a couple or weeks ago the Democrats had a preliminary row. This one was just a rehearsal for the big one. It had nothing to do with anything in particular. They just decided to meet and did and when they did, WOW! It was a foolish kind of a thing as most rows are. Razkob is supposed to be head of the Gang and there is a lot of opposition to him that has been held over since the last election. They seem to think that he got an account of his money and personal friendship for Al, if trying to run everything. I don't hardly think that way at all. He just wanted to make a suggestion, and did. Well you wouldn't think that would cause a row would you? Yes, but look what the suggestion was. It was on Prohibition. Well, that was the Skunk that they didn't want to let out of the bag till they had to. Of course both sides would like to see the whole thing buried till after election but there is a big game on both sides that just made life miserable for the ones that don't want it mentioned. Some speaker gets up and says, "Ladies and Gentlemen, I want to speak to you on the economic problems of the day." "Never mind the problems of the day, what about Prohibition?" And they make life miserable for the poor Devil from then on.

Well the Democrats met in Washington to try and dig up ways and means to get enough dough to carry on another Campaign. They had just called the gathering to order, and said, "We will take up the business of the meeting," and somebody blatted out, "What about prohibition?" and oratory, denunciations, threats and almost mayhem was committed before they could get the house to order. Then to add to the dog fight, Mr. Razkob got up and delivered himself of a speech that he had been cooking up all winter. He told em it was just his idea and it wasn't made in the nature of an Amendment, it was made just as a personal suggestion. Well that didn't matter what it was made at, it could have been told as a dream, or as a fairy story. The minute it was told, Democratic bedlam by the way what is bedlam anyhow? well it broke loose. It always does when anybody is writing about something that come up quick. My mighty good friend Joe Robinson was on his heels in a jiffy. Joe was for Party harmony, and he knew there could be no harmony when the nature of Prohibition had been allowed to percolate. Course Joe was right. It shouldn't have been among anything that had anything to do with harmony, cause harmony and Prohibition is two things that just won't jibe. (Say what? that jibe mean I always wear it used in places like this, so I know it is used right, but what I mean is what is it?) Well there was a lot of support for Joe and his arguments "to not start anything that would be an argument."

Well that was fine till another gentleman arose. You would think that up to now you either had to be on one side or the other, you wouldn't have thought there was another side would you? But there was and that was the one Al Smith was on. He said "What is Democracy? I thought it was to discuss whatever anyone wanted to bring up. When did we get so that it was a crime for anyone to mention certain subjects?" He just wanted to fix it so they would be arguing there all the rest of the summer. He really didn't speak for or against, but he did speak for arguments sake. He wanted to see the whole thing dragged out and start the split in the Democratic Party right away. He couldn't see any use in waiting till voting time to see how they stood. But Joe and the others were for a late split.

But they finally got the thing kind half way straightened out, and then somebody proposed that they raise six million dollars for the coming Campaign. Well that flabbergasted not only one side like Prohibition had, but all of em. Six million for the Democrats? Why they were becoming Republicanized over night. If they had six million they wouldn't want the Presidency. Where was they going to get it? Nobody knew any more about that than they did about where was prohibition coming from. But they decided it was a good fantastic idea, so they are now on the search of it, and the Republicans all laughed and had a lot of fun at the Democrats' plight, cause they are so united on the subject of prohibition.

They can't even find out how Hoover stands, much less the rank and file of the voters. But ain't it wonderful to have something come up in a country where you can find out just how many Political cowards there are? (Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Coast Guard's First Amphibian Stops For Night At Abilene Port

ABILENE, Texas, March 21 (AP)—The United States coast guard is 140 years old, but is new in the air game—only six years. The first amphibian plane bought for that arm of Uncle Sam's service arrived here today enroute from the factory at Santa Monica, Cal., to Cape May, New Jersey. While the plane itself is new, the two 300-horsepower motors are service motors, and the tie up here was made for adjustments and needed parts are being ferried tomorrow from Kelly Field, San Antonio.

The amphibian is flown by its manufacturer, Major Carl A. Cover, vice president of Douglas Aircraft company, and is bearing Commander N. B. Hall, chief of aviation section of the coast guard, and C. J. Carr of Santa Monica. The trip will be resumed Monday morning with St. Louis the night stop. The ship is destined for Gloucester, Mass., for service with the fishing fleets in locating lost craft.

Shreveport Mayor Stops

Fabled Studies Airports Before Building One At Home

Mayor Jas. G. Palmer of Shreveport was a visitor in Big Spring Friday afternoon for twenty minutes.

The head of Shreveport's city government was a passenger on the eastbound American Airways passenger plane from Los Angeles. Mayor Palmer has been studying airports along the American Airways line, in order to ascertain correct methods of constructing what is expected to be one of the nation's foremost air centers.

He declared an airport that will cost millions of dollars will be constructed at Shreveport. At the present, he said, $3,500,000 is ready for expenditure.

The flight from Shreveport to Los Angeles, and return, was the first major one Mayor Palmer had made. Only once before had he been in a plane, and that was for a short flight over the city of Shreveport.

He declared he inspected over 30 airports in Los Angeles and surrounding towns.

Bail Refused Man Held On Complaint Involving Child

J. H. Harrison was refused bond by Justice of the Peace Cecil C. Collings at the close of an examining trial on a statutory offense charge Friday afternoon.

The state, represented by County Attorney James Little and Clyde E. Thomas, special prosecutor, used only one witness. She was the 13-year-old step-daughter of the man. It is alleged she was the victim of the assault.

The defense, represented by C. P. Rogers, did not place a witness on the stand.

The man will be held pending the action of the grand jury, which convenes in May.

Easter Show Of Flowers Planned

An Easter Flower show will be presented April 2 and 3 by E. B. Ribble, florist, at the "Ribble reservation" on Scurry street.

Visitors will compete in a contest to determine who can form the largest number of words from letters in "Ribble, The Florist."

Prizes will include a flowering orchid plant, an assortment of bulbs for home gardeners and an azalea plant.

In connection with the offering of an orchid plant as first prize Mr. Ribble pointed out that orchids are very fragile, growing only in high climates with much moisture and at uniformly cold temperatures. One year is required to propagate them. They are placed then in a bottle and fed on milk for two years. After three years leaves are grown and the first bloom appears at seven years. The plants live as long as 100 years.

FOOT SLIPPED

CINCINNATI, O. (INS)—When patrolmen called Mrs. Maurie Lewis to task for crashing into their patrolwagon which had stopped at an intersection for a red light, she offered an unusual excuse. She said she was wearing a pair of new slippers, causing her foot to slip off the brake and clutch pedals.

Three of the straight line bred Anxiety 4th strain Herefords that lead the I. B. Cauble herd, developed in Howard county into one of the nation's most famous, are shown above. Left to right: Beau Diamond 10th, 15777378, sired by Superior Diamond by Diamond by Domino, Dam, Gentle Annie 7th by Superior Mischief 2nd, Dam, Gentle Annie 6th by Domino. Middle: Gentle Annie 16th 1690969, full sister to Beau Diamond 10th. Right: Pretty Maid 5th 1746210; sire Beau Blanchard 194th; Dam Kathleen by Diamond by Dorotas; second dam: Miss Womble by Beau Randolph.

What constant care and common sense fired by genuine love of the business can do on a West Texas stock farm has been demonstrated in powerfully unmistakable fashion by I. B. 'Doc' Cauble of Howard county.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. and Mrs. Cauble began intensive cultivation of cotton and grain sorghums on their 3,000-acre ranch nine miles southwest of Big Spring in Elbow Valley. Now 640 acres in cultivation and it is one of the agricultural show places of West Texas.

Mr. Cauble had kept his eye on this particular location for five years, from the time he came to the county from his native Hill county, Texas.

"I knew in my own heart that pure bred Hereford cattle as fine as any in the world, with cotton of highest grade and grain sorghum of high yield could be raised right here as well, if not better, than in any other place in Texas. Therefore, I set out in 1905 to do what I knew could be done," said Mr. Cauble in a recent interview.

In the quarter century he has raised and registered more than 1,000 Herefords.

His farms are showplaces. While milo maize and cotton in other fields with before hot winds in the growing season his crops maintain vitality and go through to consistently satisfactory yield.

Leads Movement

As one of the instigators of the Texas Breeder-Feeder movement, that has become organized within the past three years, Mr. Cauble practices what he preaches.

Tons of red top sorghum, piled in the open according to a plan worked out by experience to do away with necessity of silos, always are on hand—just outside pens holding scores of registered young Herefords.

The Cauble herd is headed by six outstanding straight line bred anxiety 4th herd bulls. These bulls bow to none of their breed for purity of blood. They are Beau Diamond 10th by Diamond Domino, Beau Diamond 27th by Diamond by Domino, Prince Jr., by Prince Diamond by Domino, Beau Superior by Superior, Mischief Randolph by Stanway Randolph and Stanway Mischief by Mischief 15th by Mischief Domino 6th.

An example of results being wrought on the Cauble stock farm was afforded the other day when two 16-month-old bulls topped the Hereford sale at Albany, one bringing $425 and the other $300.

Mr. Cauble often is asked how he succeeds in getting such consistently high cotton and grain sorghum yields.

His answer is that year after year breeding plots are planted and from these the best plants selected at maturity from which planting seed is taken.

Good Yield
The past season was dry and average yield in this section lower than usual. However, fifty bales of cotton from the Cauble breeding plot was delivered in Fort Worth a few days ago at New York quotations.

Length of staple was 1 to 1.32 inch and the lint yield was slightly higher than 40 per cent.
This cotton had been picked carefully from the breeding plot at the proper time and stored in the warehouse of a gin in which Mr. Cauble is a heavy stockholder. Before placing it there the house was thoroughly cleaned of all other cotton or seed and the Cauble cotton was not ginned until the regular season had ended and gin machinery had been cleaned.

Last season's milo maize yield was slightly higher than a ton per acre.

Both maize and cotton are planted on the "plant two and skip one" plan and cow peas are planted in skipped rows. These plants are plowed under for soil enrichment after having been grazed.

Mr. Cauble is one of the most enthusiastic members of the Texas Breeder-Feeder Association, which he helped to organize. His methods for years having resulted in such fine results from the very practices sponsored by the organization he is finding much satisfaction in the growing public interest in these methods, especially on the part of 4-H club boys and girls.

Consumes At Home

Home consumption of home grown beef cattle raised on home-grown feeds is "Doc's" recipe for prosperity among farmers.

Cauble Herefords have won their share of blue ribbons and championships. In 1916 a car of feeder calves caused a sensation when the animals were sold on the Kansas City market at a price that was a record-smasher at that time.

In recent years Mr. Cauble has not gone in for preparation of cattle for the show, declaring that it has been his policy from the beginning to "grow in business rather than go in business."

History of the development of the fine Cauble strains of red top sorghum, milo maize and cotton forms one of the most interesting chapters in the agricultural development of this section. Mr. Cauble began by obtaining the best red top sorghum seed he could find. He planted in small plots and before harvest selected from the plots, stalk by stalk, the most hardy and fruitful plant seeds.

"Watch the rooting system," he always tells visitors. "The climate here calls for a deep, hardy rooting system. When you get that you can raise plenty of stuff with proper cultivation and continuous care of the soil."

Develops Maize

"Maize was a failure when I began developing this farm," said Mr. Cauble. "The plants grew too high, the rooting system was no good. When the government developed dwarf maize I obtained seed and began with the system of field selection practiced with sorghum. Now our maize stands uniformly at four feet and the rooting system is deep and hardy."

Mr. Cauble has given away tons and tons of planting maize seed and it is estimated that almost half the maize produced originated from the Cauble farm.

The first cotton planted on this farm was from seed obtained from A. D. Mebane. Mr. Cauble's object, which has been strikingly realized, was to develop high yield, high lint per cent, real drought resistance qualities and uniform staple length.

By plant selection the rooting system has been deepened.

"Cotton farmers in this section should begin with pure bred seed and then go into their fields and select, stalk by stalk, the best plants—those with the best developed bolls and deepest rooting," said Mr. Cauble.

A bale of Cauble cotton now is on exhibition at the Big Spring chamber of commerce. Mr. Cauble has donated a number of fine Hereford steers to 4-H club members and a number from his herd have been auctioned for benefit of such institutions as schools and hospitals.

"Know your land, know your farm. Know your cattle," counsils this successful business man-farmer. "I demand of my cattle that they produce enough to provide a living for my family and make possible steady improvement of the herd itself, as well as the farm and ranch."

Conveniences
At the Cauble home one finds conveniences equal to those in large towns. An efficient water system is in operation. This makes possible maintenance of an orchard and a fine garden, as well as the tall trees that surround the home. These trees were set out by Mr. and Mrs. Cauble several years ago before they moved there to make their home permanently.

George and Sam Cauble preceded their brother I. B. to Howard county from Central Texas two years ago. They bought from the late Sid Moore the ranch now owned west of here by Bruce Frazier. It is just north of the present Cauble farm. I. B. and Sam purchased nine sections on credit between the Frazier ranch and the present Cauble farm along with four sections where I. B. Cauble now operates.

Later I. B. sold his interest in the nine sections to the north.

In Meat Business

While his brothers were in the meat business in Big Spring, I. B. did the buying and the butchering. He declares this experience has aided him greatly as a Hereford breeder, having equipped him the better to judge cattle. After the brothers had been in business two years they asked I. B. to come in to Big Spring and manage the meat business. This he did for two years and then engaged in the grocery and grain business here a year.

The business grew and Doc awoke to the fact that unless he changed quickly he would find himself permanently a grocer rather than a developer of fine cattle and fine field crops, the ambition that had harbored him since coming to West Texas. So he discussed things with Mr. Cauble and they immediately returned to the four sections southwest of town and began the business that has developed so satisfactorily.

"I was handicapped for lack of funds then," said Mr. Cauble. "But I made up my mind to go ahead and developed the business as rapidly as possible."

The first farming was done on a 75 acre tract only. A section of land is now under cultivation. The most valued implements around the farm are the manure spreader and the land tending machine. The farm land is constantly enriched both by fertilizer and by plowing under cow peas planted in the cotton and maize fields.

There is now on feed and ready for market a car load of pure bred calves which Mr. Cauble said would be offered to Big Spring consumers through a local market this week.

The town of Earlington, Ky., has two fire chiefs, one for day and the other for night duty. Each is paid $50 a year.

OPEN SEASON on ELBOWS

SLEEVES are slipping shoulderwards. Three-quarter length . . . half-way up . . . mere shoulder caps! The elbow is emerging into a daytime existence. Alas, that most elbows should be so unluckily, so rough and wrinkly, so dingy! Their dire situation demands immediate attention. Elizabeth Arden, from her rich experience, tells you exactly what to do. You should attack the roughened surfaces with Anti-Elbow Spot and Special Bleach Cream. After this whitening treatment, use quantities of Orange Skin Food to enrich the skin and soothe it. Apply Musciv Oil liberally to the arms, using a rotary motion to stimulate circulation.

Wash your hands and arms only with the finest soap. Acquire these with the supreme luxury of Elizabeth Arden's Bath Mils, rich with almond-scented lather. Afterwards, out of simple courtesy, accord them a delicate application of Hand Cream or Velva Equine, to maintain their softness.

YOUR HAT MAY BE LARGE OR SMALL

BRIMS AND BOWS Are Featured in Hats for Spring Wear

Both of which gives the woman of today an opportunity of dealing kindly with her features, in the choice of a hat. If she finds brims give a softening effect... and flatter her more than any other type, she may have them for every occasion. If the tiny cap-like models, worn lightly toward the back of the head give her a piquant, youthful appearance which is so desirable, she may wear them as she likes... for they are also adapted in so many materials and are of so many different types that she could choose a dozen if she liked, and have them all different and distinctive!

Selection But one thing she must realize she isn't through when she has selected her hat... by no means. For wearing the new hats is the greatest art of all... and it takes experimenting before her own mirror to find out just the right angle at which to perch the new hat over the right eye... just the proper area of the forehead to display... just the right amount of coiffure to peep out from under the line of the hat whether it is the small hat or the one with brim tucked up at side or back.

Beauty or Smartness When fashion authorities themselves disagree as to whether it is sufficient to be pretty or if it is more important to be smart, the individual is left in the quandary as to which to choose. One says "nothing considered merely pretty and becoming is approved of at all." Another says "be pretty in the new hats."

We agree with both, but we know it is possible to be both pretty and smartly modern with such an infinite variety of styles, materials and trappings as we are shown in millinery this year. We only say "be very careful not to overdo the prettiness." It is such a temptation to see only the soft flattery the hat gives the face, without getting up to view the entire effect in a full length mirror.

Angel or a Shepherdess? Halo hats and Watteau brims seem to take care of just about every woman's smart millinery need this spring. There are so many variations of both... all coming under the same general types, that the two fashion terms classify spring millinery quite adequately.

In the halo hat, you will have snug fitting models to wear with your tailored suits and frocks... or you may have them dressed up with halos of flowers, petals, or other forms of ornamentation until they become the ideal little hats for tea or dinner.

Model is Modernized The Watteau hat is reminiscent of the romantic shepherdess, but is greatly modernized to greet 1931 fashion. In general it is the brimmed hat, caught up at the side or back, in numerous ways to flatter individual wearers. Like the halo hat, it will go everywhere, if treated properly. For general wear it will be trim and tailored looking... for afternoon it will have that drooping slope to the brim that is such a fitting accompaniment to dresses of silk or chiffon.

Two Colors Better The two tone or two color hat originated, no doubt, because of the prestige of the tailored suit with its blouse of a second tone or one that frankly contrasts.

For that matter, it doesn't need to rely upon the color contrast in suits for its existence, since every costume of 1931 flaunts colors and combinations of colors. The early tailored types of hats have bright colored trimmings on black or navy blue hats... strong colors like cherry and flame reds not being considered at all unusual or too exciting in this season of rampant color.

Feather or a Flower Trimmings include tiny feather arranged in novel designs, ribbon and flowers. There is nothing dull about hats this year and the fashion of trimmings certainly gives every one an opportunity to be a bit individual than when hats were just shapes and anything de-year cannot be classified with those of a season ago. It looks as if we are going to need a complete wardrobe of 1931 spring hats. Costs Lower

But one nice thing about it... you will be able to buy them for so much less this year that it will not be so very much of a strain on your purse to "start from scratch" for millinery is right in step with the new economy in fashions that is so noticeable and so gratifying this year.

SMART OUTFIT IS PRACTICAL Today the appropriate clothes, the right equipment for whatever you are doing, are the basic requirements for smartness. Take the question of long skirts. You will agree that long skirted tennis frocks are not appropriate. They are not even smart, for nothing can be smart that is out of place... and a long sports skirt is out of place as an evening frock in the daytime. Three inches below the knee is a comfortable length for sports clothes and it is the accepted rule for this season.

Where strenuous activity is concerned, clothes must be adaptable... and that is the idea behind all sports apparel today. The waist line is normal because it must stay in place while the body is permitted greatest freedom. The matter of sleeves is simple. For tennis where the arms must be free... they are omitted entirely. Where they do appear, they are loose and free of trimming so they can be turned up like a man's for real action.

SOFT OUTLINES IN SUITS For daytime wear a soft woollen suit or ensemble is particularly smart. It's a suit it is likely to have a vividly colored or even plaid jacket with a sober skirt. A daring contrast, but it's smart. Many waistcoats have graceful scarves falling with studied carelessness over the sleeves.

For more formal daytime wear one may choose the ensemble with the three quarter length coat, but don't let it have a belt. The line should fall gracefully and not mould the figure too snugly. Subtlety... that's the motive. Even the flare doesn't flare too much.

Cities and counties of Kansas have more than $4,600,000 of construction work in prospect for 1931

Men Will Cheer Themselves With Wearing More Color And Youthful Spring Suits

Summary Of Masculine Styles Presents More Important Details For Coming Season In Models And Fabrics

Whether the stylists have become psychologists or psychologists have become stylists there cannot be much question but that there has been a very welcome co-ordination between these two pursuits in the planning of the vogue for this spring.

All the world has been in the doldrums for a season or two. Depression has transmitted its "blues" even into the styling of apparel for subdued effects and more, or less, somber tones of our recent apparel schemes were either born of the general morale or co-incident to it so as to be quite in keeping with temperament of the times.

But 1931 paints in pictures in much more cheerful hues. The upturn to better times is an actuality and this spring the bluebird's song finds eager ears and responsive chords in all mankind. Just so the prevailing styles this spring become a part of the picture. Men will dress "in character" and in keeping with the more cheerful aspect of things and a colorful rainbow bursts through the clouds as a covenant of happiness and a harbinger of "back to normalcy."

Hence you may expect this spring to see men more gallantly groomed; sprightliness is the tenor of the tempo; jauntness is the mode of forth with so much momentum and is being so eagerly accepted by the younger men that it becomes significant and important. For added jauntness and youthful expression this peak model is even being shown in a one-button effect.

The leading suit models for this season in order of their acceptance by well-dressed men will no doubt be as follows: (1) the two-button notch model; (2) the two-button peak model; (3) the three-button model, two to button; (4) the double-breasted model; (5) the straight front three-button model and (6) the one-button peak model.

Sport Suits Good
Variations of these models will be seen with more prominence as the summer advances with sport details such as patch pockets, half belt backs, mock belts, inverted pleats under arms, notched effects with box pleats, inverted pleats on patch pockets. These will be noted largely on sport coats to be worn either with matched trousers or with flannel trousers as either lounge or dress or resort evening dress.

Natural shoulders and more body defining lines to the coats are characteristic of the spring 1931 styles. Vests are mostly collarless and single breasted. There is a noticeable revival toward the Tattersall vest that may become more pronounced this fall than this spring nevertheless it is a feature of some of the higher-priced lines that cater to the younger dresser.

Trousers are not quite so full as heretofore and show more taper from knee to cuff. The wider trouser band is feature.

Tweeds In Box Models
In the box model type of coats the double-breasted show peak lapels while the single breasted models hold largely to the notch lapels. Many of these are shown with belt backs but for dress wear the belt is losing ground. In its place to give character to these coats strap seams are chiefly employed and extremely large buttons are a feature. Pockets are also more pronounced in size and in stitching effects.

The polo coat retains its popularity largely because of the favoritism for fleeces fabric with which this type of coat so splendidly adapts itself. In these coats the softer fleeces such as shetlands are displacing the camel's hairs and llama wools in the better coats.

Flannels are coming in for much attention in the spring styles almost entirely in vertical patterns of narrow and broken stripes such as banjo, cable, pencil, chalk line and cluster stripes. These flannels are chiefly in navy and powder blues, state and light greys and a few tan shades.

Colors Brighter
Worsted both in the hard and soft finished varieties are also in the edicts. The hard finished worsteds are mostly in inobtrusive patterns appealing to the most conservative ideas of business men. Soft finished worsteds are shown in many novelty treatments a new mixture in these is termed "dusted blue" which is a combination of blue and tan yarns interwoven.

The more colorful tone of the spring suits is due to predominance of light greys, greens and grey-greens; more vivid blues, lighter shades of tans and liberal sprinklings of reds and purples in the development of pattern effects. Even where dark shades are used you see them in warmer tones of those shades. For instance browns run largely to henna tones; maroon runs more toward wine and purple trends toward burgundy cast.

Topcoat Models Varied
Never in recent seasons has there been so much latitude authenticated in topcoats. There are at least seven distinct models approved in varying degrees of favoritism. For instance, there is the double-breasted fitted coat; the double breasted box coat; the single breasted box coat; the polo coat; the button-thru Chesterfield; the fly-front Chesterfield; and the tenacious Raglan. Variations of these also include belt back models, outcuts and a slowly retreating tube coat.

Double-breasted types are distinctly in favor for this spring and for dress purposes at least the fitted coat is to the fore. These show very decided peak lapels and accentuated waist line but a straight-draped skirt.

TOWN GETS JAIL
WESTMORELAND, Cal. (INS)—This town, heretofore without a jail except a so-called "bird cage" used by road gangs, is to have a lockup. The "bird cage", owned by the county, has been used to house local prisoners until they could be transferred to Brawley or the county jail at El Centro. In summer men would blister their hands from the heat of the iron on the "bird cage." In winter they would nearly freeze. This not being an incorporated town, provision for a jail was up to the supervisors, who agreed to provide shelter for those that fall within the tails of the law.

Highlights And Fashion Notes

Palmyra shawls, from those very gay nineties, are with us again, brightening up the dark suits and blending harmoniously with the new dresses for the spring season.

Plaid scarves, in flannel or in silk, match the season's gay moods and add a sporting note typical of the modern younger set.

Bright cotton pique for the tailored blousette, gives that contrasting color touch to the dark street suit. Bag and gloves should correspond in color.

Berets with stars or berets with flowers; which will you have? Both are smart, with their gay embroidered crowns.

Mesh is the newest medium for the sports blouse. Cotton and woolen weaves for the active, and silks for the spectator sports.

is quite style-right. But see that they have that carefree air.

Roman stripes will be popular, especially in blouses, for they come in gay, harmonious colors to brighten up the dark suit.

Dots and frills appear in abundance on collar, and cuff sets this spring. They add a welcome note of frivolity to the sedate suit.

That there is nothing new under the sun is proven by the return of the "wrap-around" skirt, now being featured as a high sport of ing featured as a high sport of fashion.

The halo hat, an adaptation of the ever popular beret, has added a twisted or braided roll of self or contrasting material.

Mesh is the newest medium for the sports blouse. Cotton and woolen weaves for the active, and silks for the spectator sports.

Bags now dress for the occasion. The frames un-screw and the correct-colored pearl top is added completing the ensemble.

Let's Start Something!

The community that continually searches for just any old thing to make things hum may hop into something that will hurt instead of benefit it.

But, when after carefully considering problems confronting it in terms of the resources at hand, a community launches upon any project of construction or expansion of any other type immediate benefit to business for a spell and lasting profit to the people through the new facilities provided are enough to justify such an aggressive policy.

Big Spring needs several things. She needs right now a city hall and auditorium, fire stations, street paving.

Big Spring needs some new tonic shot into business and something with which to provide employment for several hundred craftsmen.

Why should Big Spring, then, not take stock of the financial condition and resources of its government to determine whether at least part of these needs can be filled without thrusting additional tax burden upon the people?

After carefully studying these problems to determine the best methods let's start something that will quicken business and improve general conditions.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Cities That Give Service

Abilene Reporter:

In the retailer and hotel dry goods and grocery and every other line of business, the concern that gives the quickest service, or the most comfortable service, or the most dependable service always wins out in the long run over all competitors. It's axiomatic.

Had you ever stopped to think that the same rule applies with equal force to a city?

Dr. E. H. Carey, president of the Kemper Plan Association of Dallas, declares that "in a new era of fierce competition between towns and cities for population, those which can offer the most favorable living conditions will grow faster."

But really there is nothing new in that; it is as old as civilization itself. Rome became mistress of the world because it was the most "livable" place in the world.

The first Southwestern city building conference will be held next week, March 23-24, in Dallas. Gardner S. Rogers, nationally recognized city planner of the United States chamber of commerce, will be principal speaker.

It is Dr. Carey's contention that "in the past many cities have grown because of conditions beyond their control." He says that "unearned growth" and says it is a thing of the past. Unearned growth it undoubtedly is, but it isn't a thing of the past—as half a hundred oil boom towns can testify.

In the main city growth today is haphazard. Practically all efforts to write a workable city-plan law, one that will keep filling stations and community stores out of strictly residential districts or billboards away from attractive spots have met with defeat at the hands of the appellate courts.

In spite of all the talk and all the good progress in city-plan, the country is still without a definite, worthwhile law on zoning.

But parleys such as the one at Dallas next week will go a long way toward bringing about a change of conditions. The road ahead is beset with difficulties but a determined move in concert by all the forces of civic righteousness will overcome the obstacles in time.

Like a railroad or a steamship line gets business through service, the city that offers and delivers the greatest degree of comfort and civic attractiveness will always get the cream of the population growth.

HOW'S your HEALTH

BY ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—That same spiritual quality which distinguishes all the Griffith heroines, wistful ethereal creatures who shimmer across the screen with soft-focus hazy eyes...

But Una Merkel is different from the rest. She is as spry as a gazelle, as lively as Lillian Gish, as lovely as Carol Dempster, with a quality of loveliness as intangible as the twilight mists which veil the rose bowers in which Griffith heroines keep tryst with virtuous rustic lovers.

Una Merkel breaks away from the tradition, fairly romps away, by possessing a down-to-earth naturalness and humor which threatens to make her an outstanding comedienne.

FROM OLD KENTUCKY

Una Merkel is the Kentucky girl who made her screen debut as Ann Rutledge in Griffith's "Abraham Lincoln." She is regarded as a Griffith discovery, although she worked extra in "The White Rose" years ago and the director apparently had forgotten her.

She also had a minor role in one of the first modern talkies, never released. But it was after three years on the stage, during which she had played with Helen Hayes in "Coquette," that she was brought to Griffith's attention as a talkie potentiality.

With her father at a talkie studio in New York two years ago, watching Chester Morris and Claudette Colbert take screen tests, someone suggested that she too make a test. Without makeup she read a scene, and the results were satisfactory, but Griffith left for Hollywood before seeing it.

Una continued on the stage, but a year later Griffith came back looking for players for "Lincoln." Her former test was shown him and she won the Ann Rutledge role.

METAMORPHOSIS

Ever since she was a little girl, giving her own shows on the porch of her home, producing, directing and acting in them and collecting the pins which the audience paid for admission, Una had longed to be an actress in emotional roles.

When her stage career began in earnest, it was in light comedy parts that she shone. But when she came to Hollywood, "Ann Rutledge" stamped her dramatically. She went from that to straight characterizations in "The Bat Whispers" and "The Eyes of the World."

Her role opposite Neil Hamilton in "The Command Performance" probably turned the tide, for her humor was evident in a romantic part. Now she is at home in light comedy, and enjoying it.

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

SYNOPSIS: Jimmie tells the amazed Evelyn that Green did not kill her aunt but was himself poisoned and accused by a forged confession. To her he reveals an appointment with Richmond in the Dutch garden to 10 p. m. and suggests that she ask friends over for the evening. They include most of those who were in the house on the night the chauffeur was poisoned in the garage.

UNMASKED MURDERERS

The song went on—the song in Duckworth's powerful voice—"Roses of memory, roses of September." Yet he was not in the room, nor was there anyone playing.

In the drawer of Evelyn's desk there stood a graphophone, used while its owners were busy on their deeds of evil.

"Mrs. Dalton, where is your husband?" With a cry of terror, Evelyn shrank into the corner.

"Guard her," Richmond, I know where he is. I will fetch him." He strode back into the darkness and re-traced his steps to Dutch garden. He soon returned. With him came Donald Wade and between them they carried the limp, corded figure of the singer, Lionel Duckworth, or, as he was more correctly called, Lionel Dalton.

During the few minutes of Jimmie's absence the bride players, startled by the commotion, had deserted their game. They stood, an amazed group, while Richmond guarded the girl who had collapsed into a chair. The graphophone had ended its song and was scratching on unheeded.

Jimmie and Donald deposited their prisoner on the floor. Jimmie turned to the little company of friends.

"This is the man," he said "who killed Miss Annabelle Querding. He also poisoned Edward Green, putting by his side a confession to that first crime. Tonight he sought to take a third life so that the truth about the others should not be known. It might have been hard to prove his guilt, but I laid a trap, and he fell into it."

No one replied. The only human sound was a moan from the girl in the chair.

"In the Dutch garden you will find a dummy figure dressed in my clothes. This man pushed over the stone image on it, just as he did when Miss Querding sat in the other seat."

Two weddings have been announced tonight. Marjorie Blake married Captain Stirling, but her sister Evelyn married Lionel Duckworth three months ago. They told no one, but planned to kill Miss Querding to get her wealth.

Their method was simple. There are graphophone records of Duckworth's voice. They said they detested such machines, but had one nevertheless. They would enter the room and he would sing one song. Then, at its conclusion, the graphophone started another while he crept out to do his evil deed. Those outside would swear he was singing all the time. Behind that curtained doorway, his wife would await his return, the room door meanwhile being locked. To reach the Dutch garden, throw over the figure and come back was the work of a few minutes. Then at his return the graphophone would be hidden and his own voice would sing up the song."

As he paused, there were groans from the two accused, but the others remained silent, dazed by what Jimmie was telling them.

He told of his proof that Green had been poisoned and related how he had informed Evelyn of this health habit, to the effect that one should eat slowly and be as appetizing and pleasing in an environment that is calm and peaceful.

When one is excited, tense, and ill at ease, one should not eat at all, or only such foods as may be readily and quickly absorbed.

In certain studies conducted by a German scientist it has been shown that the psychic behavior of a patient may indicate abnormal physical conditions long before typical symptoms develop.

The approach of illness is often heralded by a change of mood or disposition. Fatigue, weakness, memory, absent-mindedness and mental excitement are often subtle indications of disturbed function.

"I said that I would sit in the Dutch garden tonight beneath that other stone figure and wait for Richmond. I knew she would tell her husband and figured that they would attempt to remove me. The party I suggested was to bring together those under suspicion. When Duckworth threw the figure on what he thought was my head, we seized him. You know the rest."

But Richmond's curiosity was not satisfied, as Jimmie learned next morning when the superintendent called on him at the Wade home. "I'd like to know what first made you suspect Lionel and Evelyn, and how you guessed they had a graphophone."

"If Duckworth hangs," said Jimmie bringing out a small shining object from his pocket. "It will largely be because of this."

"A graphophone needle!" exclaimed Nancy.

"Yes. That first day in the young ladies' room I noticed this on the carpet and picked it up. Then I thought it strange that there was no graphophone in the house. When we heard the stories of those in the house I was struck by the general agreement that Lionel and Evelyn were busy in that room with their singing. I saw at once how a graphophone would answer all requirements of the case. Real singing at first, then a record turned on while the singer slipped out for a few moments. Then real singing again. I could see it was possible, but you can not say more of it than that."

"I thought you were worrying about the car at the bottom of the garden," observed Donald.

"I was. While that factor remained unaccounted for, it was impossible to pin one's faith finally to any definite theory. Green, Graham, Netherton, Vincent, Marjorie—there was suspicion against each of them, but I was not satisfied with the case against any. I felt—we all felt—that Marjorie and Netherton were keeping something back, and while the mystery remained as to Stirling's ear, doubt about the car at the bottom of the garden," observed Donald.

"You saw the truth, but couldn't believe it," remarked Donald.

"Yes. In a way that is so. Until yesterday my case was not complete. Even then it fell far short of absolute proof," he said, smiling at Richmond, "and you had already shown me you would take a lot of convincing. I was able to demonstrate that Edward Green had never written that confession and had never attempted suicide."

"But that was a very different thing from showing who had killed him or Miss Querding. Evelyn and Duckworth acted last evening exactly as I anticipated they would. It is entirely to that that their guilt is so clearly established." (Copyright, 1930, J. B. Lippincott Company)

In Monday's concluding installment Jimmie shows the real significance of the face at the window.

MIND AND BODY

That ancient bromidism, "A sane mind in a healthy body," has been true, familiarly has bred a contempt for its significance.

And yet the implied inter-relationship of mind, or better the psychic process, and the body is being reaffirmed in every forward step in medical science.

Show a hungry rabbit a juicy turnip, and the mere sight of the delicacy will set up a rhythmic and active movement of the entire intestinal tract.

Proceed then to pinch the ear of the hungry rabbit, and under the influence of pain, the intestinal movements will quiet down, and the intestines become pale, the blood being drawn off to other parts of the body.

Similar changes and disturbances in the functions of the human digestive system were observed and reported by Dr. Beaumont as far back as 1834. Dr. Beaumont made his observations on Alexis St. Martin, a French-Canadian guide who had a permanent opening into his stomach through the body wall, following an accidental gun shot wound.

In a restricted manner these observations justify the common dictates of good personal hygiene and health habits, to the effect that one should eat slowly and be as appetizing and pleasing in an environment that is calm and peaceful.

When one is excited, tense, and ill at ease, one should not eat at all, or only such foods as may be readily and quickly absorbed.

In certain studies conducted by a German scientist it has been shown that the psychic behavior of a patient may indicate abnormal physical conditions long before typical symptoms develop.

The approach of illness is often heralded by a change of mood or disposition. Fatigue, weakness, memory, absent-mindedness and mental excitement are often subtle indications of disturbed function.

SIMPLE SPORTS TOGS ARE SMARTEST

The Well Shod Woman Selects The Reptile

"Do you want to take a walk?" For daytime wear the pump, the one strap shoe or the oxford is smart. But it must be simple. If it's an oxford or strap slipper it may have a perforated trimming. Pumps are all leather combinations.

For afternoon the lizard and snake wiggles in. He comes gently but nevertheless he's there waving his way in a simple line around the shoe. Reptile trims are very, very fashionable.

The simple buckled pump is charming for evening wear. A tiny line of gold or silver piping gives an exquisite touch. Many of the evening slippers have silver and golden heels. If you're a little timid about dancing in pumps, wear a one-strap slipper; straps are graceful, especially the dainty little ones which are being shown in such profusion.

COCKTAIL JACKETS

There are all sorts of beautiful frocks in lace and slightly stiffened chiffon. Odd shades that are neither pastel or bright, but manage to achieve a fascinating "in-between-ness." Many of the costumes have cocktail jackets with flowing three quarter length sleeves and a flaring peplum. The hemlines are quite often jagged affairs, but then, you'll find quite as many even ones. Both are equally fashionable.

FOR DANCING NIGHTS

Formal dresses are vividly colored, although black and white are perennially good. Colors lead, provided they are blue, red, green, or pink. The gown must have jewels. There may be a long, wiggly rhinestone stripe running snakishly down the back; perhaps there will be a glistening shoulder strap, or turquoise belt, but there is bound to be a jewel somewhere.

FORGOT MEASURES

HARTFORD, Conn. (INS)—The Connecticut state legislature received 1,511 proposals for new laws in the period assigned for reception of new business, the discovery was made a week later that not enough bills had been submitted. One measure that had been forgotten asks funds to pay for a state police barracks building at Stamford which the state leases and another provided reimbursement to towns for wages paid poor people for work in place of doles. Special permission was granted to care for these two measures.

LINES OF FROCKS SIMPLE

The lines of the frock are classic in their simplicity and wickedly delectable. You must make your own back do, for your formal gown just about refuses to have one. The most hip top frocks are interpreted in satin and velvet. But no matter how much you adore your dress, be sure that it ends before it quite touches the floor.

The sweater is with us again after a whole year's absence. But it was worth waiting for, since it has returned in many new and interesting variations.

Spring Offers Best Alibi In World To Women For Buying Wardrobes To Aid Industry

Plan Your Needs First; Inform Yourself On What Is New For Spring And Then Go To It; Big Spring Merchants Ready To Serve You

If ever women needed excuses for dressing well, they undoubtedly have them this year, from the standpoint of economy and from the even more admirable one of helping humanity. Take it first from the view of economy. Never before has apparel of every kind been available at the low prices you will find now.

A glance at the advertising of any newspaper will convince the most skeptical of that. The most exclusive shops . . . shops that have always maintained fixed prices for certain items, now advertise something like this, "For the first time in our history we are offering . . . at a new lowered price." And this is only one example of the many convincing proofs of a new economy.

March to Duty

In the interest of humanity, it simply becomes a duty to buy new clothes. Every woman who can afford to buy a new garment and still decides to wear her old one is helping to keep people out of jobs. That situation has been explained so many times in the past few months that every thinking woman knows just how it reacts. Madame doesn't buy. Salespeople are dismissed. Manufacturers' orders are curtailed. Garment workers are thrown out of work . . . and so on and on down the line until it actually comes back to Madame's own income being affected. But spring has brought a new promise of prosperity. We are starting out with new conditions that indicate better things for all. So when it is such a pleasant duty as the one of dressing well, what woman with the slightest pride in her appearance, will not be only too willing to do her part?

An Opportunity

The case with which she may gratify her desire for pretty clothes this year will be both an opportunity and a test to every woman. An opportunity because the low prices will permit her to buy more than she has felt possible to buy before . . . a test because so many beautiful things are within her reach that she will be tempted to buy indiscriminately just because things appeal to her, rather than because they are the things she needs to build up a perfect wardrobe. If she indulges without careful consideration, she will be failing in true economy . . . economy to herself.

Know Your Needs

So the first bit of advice we would offer to prevent the mistake of buying injudiciously is this: . . . study your needs. Think of the life you are going to live this summer . . . your social activities . . . your real requirements. If you are going to summer in the country your greatest need will be for clothes of the out-door type, rather than a whole bevy of fragile afternoon costumes, be they ever so flattering . . . be they ever such a bargain.

If you are a business woman with only week-ends in the country you will want chic tailored things for the greater part of your wardrobe. A thorough study of your summer plans will save many a sad mistake and a waste of shopping energy as well as money.

Contrasts

To begin with, the newest note

this summer is contrast . . . smart preposterous combinations of fabrics and colors . . . A plain colored little jacket over a printed dress . . . A plaid collar and belt with a black dress . . . a dark colored jacket with striped skirt . . . accessories carefully selected to be an accentuating note.

The frock with separate jacket in a variety of forms is a leading fashion and there is nothing more suitable or becoming for a smart day in town . . . nothing more practical and dignified for the office hours of a business woman.

The Jacket Dresses

The jackets often have three quarter sleeves to show the long sleeves beneath. You will make no mistake in confining your choice of daytime dresses almost exclusively to a variety of jacket dresses.

Two-piece overblouse and skirt theme is also a popular and satisfactory daytime costume. It is apt to be finished with much button trimming (a favorite 1931 trimming touch) and a contrasting scarf of polka dot or plaid. Prints for daytime are largely plaid effects . . . used either as entire dress or as trimming.

Wear Chiffon to Bridge

For afternoon, we see chiffons, either plain or printed . . . many of them taking to the jacket idea and combining a sleeveless dress that can be worn for dancing, with long sleeved, short jacket.

Lace, chiffon or flat crepe hold places of prestige in evening gowns . . . some of them with long slim lines . . . others of romantic ruffled silhouette. Your figure will be the deciding factor as to which type you will choose. Necklines are varied, with draped treatments, square effects the most outstandingly new. Hemlines are exceedingly wide, with tiny scallops, petal edges, slashed hemlines that reveal a lacy petticoat and pleats.

Within All Budgets

This new era of prosperity, with its attendant vigour expressed in joyous, colorful fashions, and best of all the new economy that makes it possible for every woman to share in its beauty, is reflected in the offerings of our own merchants. A perusal of the advertising pages will point the way to the achievement of a tasteful, well balanced spring wardrobe that will be no strain on the most moderate income.

Preliminary surveys are being made for a $5,000,000 federal port project at Brownsville, Texas.

It's The Accessories That Give The Fillip

It's in the bag. Patent leather bags in brilliant and pastel colors is exciting. You'll find them in all shapes, sizes, especially the important looking envelope bag and the fatter pouchy one. They're carried when you wear your street or afternoon dress. The colors should exactly match or harmonize with your costume.

Snake and lizard skin are always good in springtime, but alligator and white pig (it washes) add a fresh note of interest.

Fearls and Brocades

Small bags of seed pearl or brocade are what you'll be carrying when you go dancing. They are quite simple except for the mounting which is often intricately carved.

On Your Hand

Gloves have done all manner of strange things this spring. For afternoon wear the four button pull on is the most fashionable length. But its smartness by no means ends there. Some gloves are perforated, others have a curling inset in a contrasting color down the back. Some gloves have even grown frills. Many have contrasting colors in applique and novelty stitching.

The plain cape skin glove, simply stitched is always in good taste. The only way that you can achieve the correct silhouette is by wearing a girdle. Even though you are slim, you need a light, boneless one that will give definite graceful lines to your figure.

White pigskin bags! That may sound ridiculous, but it's not. They will wear forever and you can scrub them, but the nicest thing about them is that this is the first season pigs have been used in just that way.

Long Gloves Popular

Long gloves for evening in pastel or white are smart. When you're dancing the figures of the glove should be tucked in at the wrist. For people who enjoy creating effects there is the jeweled glove in white or pastel shades that is often gathered tucks for its whole sixteen button length.

The dresses which will be worn most frequently on the street will be lightweight woolen, crepe, voile and sheer basketweave.

Buying...

with YOUR EYES OPEN!

MANY of the products that greet you from shelf and counter today bear familiar names.

Names you know by their advertising. By their reputation. Or by personal experience. They seem like old friends.

Other products are strangers.

What do you know about them?

Often their appeal is a "bargain price." But are they always bargains?

Their labels are attractive. More inviting, sometimes, than those of the products they seek to imitate. But how can any shopper ever know what these labels conceal?

Remember this every time you buy—

Before there can be an imitation, there must be something worth imitating.

Have you ever seen an imitation as good as the original?

Clerks who try slyly to sell you something "just as good" are looking only to today. By tomorrow the same product may not be on the shelf. Perhaps even today the clerk does not know who made it.

Ask yourself... "Why does he offer me this substitute? Why does he urge me to buy this or that product instead of the one I want?"

There are many reasons. Most of them selfish. Certainly, none of them springs from the desire to serve you better.

These facts are published by this newspaper to tell you of your danger. To protect you against substitution. To warn you to buy with your eyes open.

No deserving product ever needs the claim, "just as good." When you hear those words, you may know there is something better. And that package which "holds a little more" often holds little more than disappointment.

There is only one sure way by which you can avoid substitution.

Ask for recognized brands. Ask for them by name. Accept no questionable imitations.

THE ANSWER TO SUBSTITUTION
IS ALWAYS . . .

"Cimarron" Arrives At Ritz For 3-Day Run

Largest Cast Appears With Famed Leaders

Ferber Novel Of Oklahoma Development Becomes Genuine Epic

What is considered the largest and most carefully chosen cast in the history of films is the one that appears in Radio Pictures' "Cimarron," opening today at the Ritz Theatre.

Thirty-three players—names that read like a film and stage blue-book—comprise the cast.

It took Louis Borecky, associate producer, Wesley Ruggles, director, and a corps of assistants two months to make film tests and selections of players who would faithfully portray the vivid characters of Edna Ferber's novel.

Dix Gets Mighty Role
In the starring role of Yancey Cravat is Richard Dix, whose preparation for the part extends over a period of four months.

Champion Rodeo Performers Seen In Screen Drama

Hundreds of champion trick riders, broncho busters, bull-doggers and marksmen appear in "Cimarron," Radio Pictures' epic of history opening today at the Ritz theatre.

Most of them have been identified with films for years, but owing to the temporary eclipse of "westerns," have been employed by "dude ranches" throughout the Southwest during the last year.

Among them are: Bill Patton, former western star, who won the world's broncho busting championship at Brownsville, Texas, in 1911; Denver, 1916; and Miles City, in 1916.

Gordon Jones who was roping champion at the Salinas Calif. meet in 1925 and winner of international roping honors at Wembley, England, in 1924.

Bob Erickson, winner of the western bull-dogging and riding championship at Reno, Nev., in 1921.

Kenneth Cooper, world's champion rider of bucking horses, is a champion bull-dogger and rider of bareback horses. He was judged best rider at the Pendleton roundup in 1925.

Henk Fotta, film stunter for fifteen years, won the trick-riding championship at Ascot in 1925, and Salinas in 1928.

Colonel Whitehorse is world's champion indoor bronco-buster and pistol artist.

Bob Burns is a rope, rifle and broncho expert.

Other important westerners include Walt Robbins, bull dogger, rider and clown; "Shorty" Hall, champion, pony-relay rider; Buff Jones, trick-rider; Charles Johnson, all-around cow-puncher; Whitley Sovereign, Bud Pope, Rex Cole, Lee Cooper and Pete Janet.

All of them perform feats of riding, roping and fancy shooting in "Cimarron," the Edna Ferber epic which stars Richard Dix in the colorful role of Yancey Cravat. Opposite Dix is Irene Dunne as Sabra, his wife.

Miss Margie Neal, Texas' only woman senator, is backing a bill which would penalize tardy election judges.

Henry Roquemore, and Neil Crispin, "Cimarron" has been adapted faithfully by Howard Estabrook from Edna Ferber's sensational best-selling novel of the same name. The picture, in production for months, has been acclaimed the most significant development since the screen found its voice.

Wesley Ruggles' direction is hailed as one of the outstanding achievements of the past decade. He has caught vividly the colorful characterizations and mighty high spots of the original story.

RICHARD DIX, as the leading figure in the screen version of Edna Ferber's great new novel, "Cimarron," stamps himself as one of the great actors of cinema history. "Cimarron" opens a three-day stay at the Ritz theatre this afternoon.

George Bancroft Managing Editor Of Crusading Newspaper In Ritz Play "Scandal Sheet," Due Friday

This time George Bancroft is the two-fisted managing editor of a tabloid newspaper. He is a man feared by all society for his code is a code of "yellow journalism." We see him in an atmosphere charged with the electric busy-ness of high-tension news-gathering. Presses roar, newsboys shriek the latest "scoops." Reporters sliktalk their way into places where they are not wanted. Civic leaders protest. Pridelict citizens are rained in a one-edition blast from the newspaper trumpet of this Bancroftian terror who barks his withering commands, and never relents.

Poor and rich alike are caught in the path of the news juggernaut. "If it's news, print it," says Bancroft, "no matter whom it may hurt."

But with all his bluster, all his hardness, he has one weak spot. It is his charming wife. He loves her with a fervor that is almost child-like. He has implicit faith in her.

Then comes the incident which brings his brutal credo to the test. His wife falls in love with the town's biggest banker. At the same time the banker is in the shadow of disgrace because of the financial obligations of his firm. Bancroft learns of his wife's defection. He also knows that to print the story of the bank's finances may cause trouble, probably ruin, for hundreds of the city's poor. To leave it all unprinted may mean future safety for all.

But he is a man of iron determination. He has said that news, fit or unfit, shall be printed. And so he publishes the story, sacrificing even his own reputation in the ensuing maelstrom of screaming headlines.

It is potent stuff—drama, action, thrills, excitement, that tingles the spine. A thundering play for the mightiest, most thunderous of the talkie celebrities. It is Bancroft at his fist-thumping best. A grand, swash-buckling picture, as modern as tomorrow's headlines, as exhilarating as a six-alarm fire. It is "Scandal Sheet," to be shown Friday and Saturday at the Ritz.

Wilson Norman took his sister, Mabel Norman, who has been visiting her to her home in Winters last week.

J. E. Harding, Faye and Miss Nora have returned from Dallas, where they were called on account of the illness of Marcus Harding. Miss Nora has returned to Amarillo.

"GENTLEMAN'S FATE"

Things that happen when a fashionable clubman finds himself thrust into the circles of gangsters are seen in "Gentleman's Fate," with John Gilbert at the Ritz Wednesday and Thursday.

Pioneer Days Of Railroading Topic Of Queen Feature

The romance of railroading has become a part of everyday American life. The lure of it is as real today as it was sixty years ago when the first trans-continental train was linking two oceans across the United States.

The steam driven monsters and the men who drive them are the fascinating subjects of the latest Warner Brothers action drama, "Other Men's Women," which opens Wednesday at the Queen Theatre. It is a realistic melodrama of railroading, romance and danger.

Grant Withers, Mary Astor, Regis Toomey, James Cagney, Fred Kohler, Joan Blondell and J. Farrell MacDonald are included in the cast of this epic of transportation, which William Wellman is directing. "Other Men's Women" is a gripping story of two men who drive one engine and eventually love the same woman, who is already the wife of one. Elemental passions vie with the danger and flood in galvanizing the interest of audiences.

It is a story of strong men and powerful forces that move them into a net of circumstances that brings one of the most amazing climaxes of the talking screen.

Tense and moving, spectacular and romantic, "Other Men's Women" ushers in a new area in talking pictures, a refreshing return to outdoor drama which the talking picture alone makes realistic.

Organizations of both feminine wets and dries took exhibit space for the Women's Exposition in the St. Louis Coliseum March 5-11.

Errol And Pitts, New Comedy Team At Queen Monday

Ever since those days when George Spoor contributed an "A" and Broncho Billy Anderson donated an "A" to bring the Essanay partnership to the motion picture screen, teams particular comedy teams have been an indispensable part of motion picture making. Double identities have always drawn a quick and sympathetic response from audiences.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, and Arthur V. Johnson and Lottie Brisco were two of the first screen teams to bring romance to theatre-goers.

Somewhere along the way, the clowns joined the march, and rapidly came up toward the head of the procession. First came Charlie Chaplin and Ben Turpin, then Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, Karl Dane and his diminutive partner, George K. Arthur, made a joint

Down "Main Drag"

What fun Easter is going to be this year... the Big Spring shops are shocked full of the most exciting new things. They look just like Vogue fashions... one has only to stroll through and take a look to know what is the very newest and up to date without straining one's eyes to read fashion magazines.

For instance there are the cutest (no other word will do) little shoes in the new material, beavers, in all the lovely pastel shades, green, blue, natural, yellow, and some using all these colors and looking like a spring flower garden. They are pumps and oxfords both and it doesn't take much of a prophet to prophesy that they are going to be popular things for one's feet... That is, unless you like the terribly tailored things. Then you will fall for the new natural and colored linen oxfords, especially those comfortable Star Brand shoes that make Easter shopping a joy instead of a job.

If you are one of these tailored persons you will find one shop in this town with a pajama negligee suit made especially for you in black and white; it is the swankiest thing... wide pants... that look like shirts almost... and talking of wide pants... the new pajamas are adorable. They come in all colors, in printed shantung, for only $4.95, greens, and blues, lavenders, and alongside of them is the most heavenly bridal set of egg shell satin with ivory lace. The coat has a fitted back... it would make any girl look like a movie heroine. There's another ensemble, too, a blue satin gown with a blue satin and chiffon negligee to match... and one diamond plaid and black, but oh those wide pants... they make you go out of the store clutching your pocket book like mad, unless you are lucky enough to get always just exactly what you want.

Dresses have never been so enticing... You read about the fashionableness of printed chiffons. Well, they are already in The Spring waiting to be worn to a big bride party. Or if it is an evening party, there's one dress—the loveliest one you ever saw, but none of cream silk lace over a floral taffeta slip with a sash of the same material. It's indescribably lovely. The big soft pink roses are as pretty in that dress as in a garden. There's another evening dress that is very, very formal. It has a once flower figure on a cream ground with low back, that is practically no back at all, and it is trimmed with brown velvet bows and a brown velvet belt. It should be tried on to be appreciated.

If you are a size twenty and cannot find exactly what you want, you should see the Sunshine brand dresses of Roshanara crepe in lovely pastel shades that are well with even the thoughts of Easter. They have jackets... all dresses have jackets it seems... a girl in a dress without a jacket is nearly as bad this year as a man in his shirt sleeves, or will be, until hot weather.

One can't mention dresses without throwing a burrah for the reason of the shirt suits. Some of these are three-piece and are so practical. With jackets they are right for spring and without the jackets just right for summer and in the cool color of the natural shantung they are as summery as one could ask.

The hats to go with these dresses are of multitudinous sorts, according to one's face, rather than the style. The brimless hat is everywhere of course but if you can't wear that style there are some clever wide brimmed styles in one of the stores with the new lines in just that smart, perky fashion you are looking for in big hats.

Of course you know what the halo hat is—rolled up—something on the order of a man's shirt sleeve when he makes fudges in the kitchen. There are some of the wisest halo hats in town made of a straw mesh for only $1.95. Lucky girls will shop for them early enough to get their choice of the many colors.

Dress and costume jewelry accent the crest-note and the brilliant colors. But if you must be unquest and who mustn't?—take a peek at some of the antique silver necklaces the smart shops are showing and at the maize and gold combinations. They are really different.

One of the most Vogueish materials is violet embroidered shantung. It is just waiting for you, in gold on a cream ground, in green and in yellow. If you can see that dressmaking is almost one of the fine arts you are going to take advantage of these adorably embroidered and plain shantungs, or the new printed Cheney silks in the big designs... Of course you have read what is said about them, how a really clever dressmaker is no longer held back by the size of the figures in designing prints for large sizes; she achieves slenderness by her design.

PATENT LEATHER
Patent leather shines as a headlight for spring. But it has changed its black winter coat for one of pastel hue. Pinks, blues, yellows, and greens, vie with each other in the new narrow belts, and correspond with the latest Parisian patent leather bags.

POLO COATS
Polo coats will be fitted as before, but a new detail has been added, or rather, omitted, namely, the belt. The light tans remain predominant, with white and a very light egg-shell added to the list.

SAVED BY PRUNES
NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (INS)—Louis Nair is more than ever convinced of the value of prunes. He had just put up his auto and was walking from his garage to his home when a pair of strangers appeared and ordered him to put on his hands. Now Nair's hands were full of bundles at the moment and one bundle contained a jar of prunes. He managed to toss the prunes at the head of one of the strangers who fled with prune juice running down his neck. The other man avoided being hit and also kept on running.

COMMERCE—Arthur's Drug Co. installed electrically operated engraving machine.

Moran and Mack two-black-crowded their way to success—and Laurel and Hardy, Wheeler and Woolsey, Smith and Dale, Summerville and Hamilton, and Gleason and Armstrong are other pairs that carry on the team comedy tradition.
Today another team trend is apparent. Film producers are mixing the sexes for laugh scenes rather than love scenes, and new combinations are making their bow. Wallace Beery and Marie Dressler are successful in "Min and Bill," and promise to carry on together their promise to come. Paramount presents Leon Errol and Zasu Pitts together for the first time in "Finn and Hattie," from the Donald Ogden Stewart story, at the Queen Theatre for two days starting Monday. Eugene Pallette and Louise Fazenda are announced as another mixed-duet for comedy in "Gun-
