

Literary review to highlight South Plains works

By COURTNEY CHRISTIAN
The University Daily

Texas Tech students and area residents interested in having literary work published now have a convenient means to do so.

The Llano Estacado Review is a multilingual periodical started by graduate Spanish students at Tech. The periodical was created last summer to provide a literary review to publish literary works of all genres including short stories, essays and poetry.

The review was originally limited to Spanish, but Janet Perez, the graduate school assistant dean, said she decided to broaden the review to include all foreign languages taught at Tech.

Perez said the review board has bi-weekly meetings to set up the structure of the periodical as well as to appoint editors under specific languages and genres.

most of their work on a voluntary basis to keep the project as inexpensive as possible.

"We were too ambitious when we set the first deadline (Oct. 15) because we needed more time to collect material and to decide if it was suitable to publish," Perez said. The new deadline is Nov. 28.

The review plans to publish the acceptable entries at Tech with students volunteering to work on the technical aspects. Students use the Advanced Technology Learning Center in creating the review.

"We would like to have work submitted on diskette to save student workers from having to keyboard it (retype it on a computer)," Perez said.

The name Llano Estacado has nothing to do with the local winery. The name was chosen because of Hispanic identification in this region for centuries.

"It gives the name a multilingual flavor and it reflects an identification with the South Plains," she said.

The review board decided not to limit contributions to Tech, so other people could enter and open the review to a broader readership and contributorship.

"It is interesting how much response we have gotten from the surrounding area, including Matador and Slaton. More than 60 percent of the response has been from people widely distributed in South Texas," she said.

"The idea was to give the students here and people in the surrounding community an outlet for their creative writing," she said.

For the first issue of the review, 500 to 1,000 copies will be distributed to other campuses, restaurants, doctor's offices and other businesses as an advertisement of what Tech students are doing, Perez said.

"Although the first distribution is free, if the first number is well received, the other issues will be available through subscriptions," she said.

Perez said ultimately, the review will need more durable and dependable financial backing. One source for funding is the National Endowment for the Arts.

So far, the review has received about 20 entries in English and six in Spanish.

Primitive man not different from modern man, prof says

By MARK LACK
The University Daily

People who lived millions of years ago were just like modern people, said Alan Walker, professor of cell biology and anatomy at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Walker said Wednesday in a lecture titled "Early Man in Africa" that the peoples of before recorded times were humans who had the same intellectual capabilities as the humans of today.

Walker described in his lecture the search for the missing link as it began almost a century ago with Eugene Dubois and his wife headed out to the Far East starting the quest.

He said that Dubois found a skull cap that was smaller than a modern human, and a year later found a thigh bone similar to that of a human.

Walker explained the difficulty of trying to piece together an entire skeleton. He said that by 1976 only fragments of a Homo Erectus skeleton had been found in expeditions and searches.

He said that since then the skeleton of a boy dating back to more than 1.5 million years ago has been found, showing that the size of the Homo Erectus was much bigger and the structure much different than modern-day man. The age of the boy is estimated to have been 11.

Walker cited the differences between modern man and the Homo Erectus as a slower motor neuron ability in the Homo Erectus because of spinal structure.

Campaign rhetoric getting more intense as elections close in across nation

No one responded more colorfully than Democratic Sen. Bob Kerrey, Exon's home-state colleague. "Tower's behavior was larval," Kerrey said in a statement that also referred to Tower's "worm-like lies."

Many times this year, surrogates have stomped into territory where candidates dared not tread.

For example, Michigan Republican Richard Headlee said Democratic Gov. James Blanchard's tactics have been "as effective as the Third Reich under Hitler." John Engler, the GOP candidate Headlee was trying to help, did not agree.

"We don't share Dick's view on that," Engler's press secretary hastily explained. "Dick gets somewhat carried away."

And Republican Rep. Lynn Martin, who is trying to unseat Sen. Paul Simon in Illinois, ended up apologizing to Simon after an acidic news conference held by her media consultant, Roger Ailes.

"Simon is just being Simon which is unfortunately being slimy," Ailes said.

If that wasn't enough, he also labeled Simon a weenie.

On another occasion, Ailes had a few things to say about California Treasurer candidate Kathleen Brown, the sister of former Gov. Jerry Brown.

Ailes dubbed her Sister Moonbeam and when she complained, he responded: "She does not sound like a woman with all her oars in the water. ... I think she's going to need some Prozac before it's all over."

Bob Squier, Ailes' Democratic counterpart, has employed another strategy. He has been a leader in what Jamieson calls the distortive use of newspaper clips in TV ads.

"The newspapers are becoming a weapon, and not necessarily a legitimate one," she said. Squier, for example, was forced to admit wrongdoing in an ad he made for Richards in Texas.

The ad showed a partial headline that said: "Lawsuits Allege Williams A 'Deadbeat.'" Squier left off the last two words of the headline that made clear where the accusations came from: "Richards Discloses."

Man gets accent after stroke

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A Baltimore man suddenly began speaking with a Scandinavian accent after suffering a stroke, displaying a rare disorder that may shed light on how the brain produces language, a study says.

The man, who had no experience with foreign languages, sounded both Nordic and unfamiliar with English, said Dr. Dean Tippett.

"He was pretty clear, everyone who heard him said he sounded Scandinavian or Nordic," said Tippett, a neurophysiology fellow at the University of Maryland School of Medicine in Baltimore.

The 32-year-old man enjoyed his new accent at first, saying he hoped it would help attract women, Tip-pett said.

But by the time his accent had largely faded, six weeks after the stroke, he said he was happy to be speaking like an American again. His speech was normal by about 3½ months after the stroke.

The man had what's known as foreign accent syndrome, a rare condition in which a brain malfunction produces speech alterations that sound like a foreign accent. Other reported cases in Americans have involved apparent German, Spanish, Welsh, Scottish, Irish and Italian accents.

Immediately after the stroke, the man's speech was slurred for a day or two. His accent appeared as he recovered from that, Tippett said.

The man typically added extra vowel sounds as he spoke.

Bull riding, goat tying highlight 41st Tech Rodeo

By JENNIFER SANDER

The University Daily

It's time to dig out the boots, Wranglers and cowboy hats from the closet. The Texas Tech Rodeo is here again.

The Tech Rodeo will be at 7:30 p.m. today through Saturday in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Reserve-seating tickets are $7 and regular tickets are $5.

This year marks the Tech Rodeo's 41st year at the university, and the event is now the world's largest intercollegiate indoor rodeo.

The Tech Rodeo, sponsored by the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association, includes six events for men and three events for women. Awards will be given to those participants who place highest in any two events. Contestants from 14 colleges and universities are expected to compete.

Timed events include team steer roping, steer wrestling, calf roping, break-away roping, barrel racing and goat tying. The riding events include saddle riding, bareback riding and bull riding.

Highlighting the rodeo will be a steer-saddling event for Tech fraternities. A rodeo queen pageant and bull-riding event also will be featured. Kody Newman, secretary of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association, said fan support for the rodeo shows support for college rodeo competitors.

"I think the Tech Rodeo Club is really well known throughout campus and I think if everybody will come out and watch us they'll enjoy themselves and support our organization more," Newman said. "It will be a lot of fun, and we sure hope everybody will be there."

Brigance overcomes pain with determination

By ANDREW HARRIS
The University Daily

The sport of football has often proved to be a game of torn ligaments, broken bones and career-ending injuries, but for Rice linebacker O.J. Brigance, playing injured is just part of the game.

Despite playing with a broken wrist in 1989, Brigance led the Owl defense in tackles with 104 and was named to numerous all-Southwest Conference teams.

"When I broke my wrist, I had a hard time," Brigance said. "Everyone else got to play with two arms and I only had to play with one."

Brigance said there is a certain mental strength and attitude a player has to have in order to play injured.

"I did feel sorry for myself for a little while but I realized I could play with a broken wrist and if anything, use the cast to my advantage."

Brigance also missed three games in 1987 as a freshman because of a knee injury, but completed the season with 29 tackles.

Brigance leads the Rice defense into Saturday's SWC clash with Texas Tech in Houston.

Brigance said the key to stopping the Red Raiders would be to shut down Anthony Lynn and contain Jamie Gill.

"Lynn is really running well and Gill is capitalizing on defensive mistakes, much like our opponents have on us this year," Brigance said.

The 6-foot-0, 220-pound senior from Houston leads Rice in tackles so far this season with 64. He also has two fumble recoveries in 1990, and has had at least 10 or more tackles in a games 16 times during his career with the Owls.

Brigance's 16-tackle effort in Rice's 26-10 loss to Texas pushed him by Danny Burgess' record of 310 tackles (1983-86) to become the Owls' career leader in tackles.

Brigance followed up that performance with 12 tackles against Texas Christian giving him 323 for his career.

Brigance said he did not let the pressure of capturing Rice's career tackle record affect his play.

"I knew eventually it would come," Brigance said. "All I had to do is play my game and just let the defense play their game; I knew I would be able to achieve that goal."

Brigance also led the team in tackles in 1988 with a school record 128.

"One of my individual goals is to be a unanimous all-SWC selection or predominantly in all the major polls, so hopefully that will happen," Brigance said.

Brigance said defensive mistakes have led to the Owls not being where they want to be defensively.

"We are making far too many costly mistakes that are costing us games," Brigance said. "I think we are playing real hard, much harder than we've played before."

Sports Briefs

Dundee returns to managing for Nunn

PARIS (AP) — Boxer Michael Nunn announced today that he has hired manager Angelo Dundee for his upcoming IBF middleweight championship with challenger Donald Curry.

Nunn (35-0) will defend his International Boxing Federation crown against Fort Worth's Curry on Thursday before an expected crowd of 13,800 at the Bercy Sports Palace.

After his last defense of his title, an unimpressive majority decision over Marlon Starling in April, Nunn replaced advisers Dan and Joe Goossen with Dundee.

Gregory-Portland to appeal playoff ban

GREGORY (AP) — The Gregory-Portland school district is appealing a ruling that disqualifies the football team from the state playoffs because its players were given a pizza party and pancake breakfast.

School board members voted unanimously Tuesday night to appeal the decision by the District 30-4A executive committee.

The executive committee voted Oct. 10 to disqualify the Gregory-Portland high school team, saying pizza and pancakes given players during last year's playoffs violates the University Interscholastic League's amateur-status rules.

Gregory-Portland Superintendent Bob Jameson said after Tuesday night's school board action that the district will "pursue with all vigor" an appeal of the disqualification.

Cotton Bowl berth up for grabs as SWC hits week 7

Mike Pender Associate Sports Editor

With the Southwest Conference race half finished, the Cotton Bowl picture is finally taking shape. Not only have there been a few surprises, but also some glaring disappointments.

ARKANSAS (2-3, 0-2) — The book is still out on the defending SWC Champs. New coach Jack Crowe has one of the best signal callers in the nation in Quinn Grovey, but the Hogs' defense has yet to show up in a SWC game.

The Razorbacks may fare better against SEC cellar dwellers Mississippi State, Kentucky and Vanderbilt rather than tangling with the SWC's up-and-coming Frogs, Ponies and Owls.

A sarcastic Tech coach Spike Dykes said, "It's a shame Arkansas can't find any competition in the SWC."

BAYLOR (3-3, 2-1) — Coach Grant Teaff has once again fielded a team in characteristic Baylor fashion. The Bears played a tough game with now No. 4 Nebraska, but the next week they were drilled by Arizona State 34-13 in Tempe.

Baylor's defense is once again a leader behind defensive back Mike Welch's SWC-leading five interceptions, but the re-instituted Veer offense has yet to produce.

The loss of Brad Goebel to an injury may turn out to be a Bear necessity with the emergence of freshman J.J. Joe. Joe is currently ranked No. 4 in the SWC.

HOUSTON (5-0, 4-0) — When Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware left the Cougars, new coach Dan Jenkins inherited David Klingler.

In pre season Klingler told The Sporting News "Truthfully, I think I can put up a lot bigger numbers than Andre did because I don't know if I'll have someone playing behind as much as I did Andre."

At that point in the season everyone thought Ware's successor was a bit overzealous, but now we are believers. He has passed for 2,072 yards passing and 15 touchdowns in the first five games.

RICE (2-4, 0-3) — Second-year coach Fred Goldsmith has already had an effect on the Owls' football program. Rice's record does not show the fact that they have become a force to be reckoned with in the SWC.

In the Houston game, the Cougars were forced to kick a field goal with only seconds left to beat the Owls 24-22.

Quarterback Donald Hollas has yet to live up to his pre-season billing, throwing 12 interceptions in the first six games.

SOUTHERN METHODIST (1-4, 0-2) — The 44-7 opening victory against Vanderbilt was semi-impressive but the next week the Mustangs were spanked 43-7 at the hands on the Tulane Green Wave.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Romo has yet to be as impressive as he was last year, but the Ponies have established somewhat of a running game, with sophomore running back Kevin Love averaging 4.1 yards per carry.

KTXT-FM Sports Director Ryan Hyatt said "even if the Mustangs find some way to win, the post game celebration will be hampered by the fact that only 16 roster players are over 21."

TEXAS (3-1, 1-0) — Coach David McWilliams is finally seeing some of the pressure from the 'Horn alumni slowly fade away.

Texas has won some big games this season, with a win in Happy Valley over Penn State and last weekend's victory over rival Oklahoma 14-13.

The problem that may catch up to Texas is the fact that they rank last in total offense in the SWC.

TEXAS A&M (4-2, 1-1) — Something is fishy in Aggieland. SWC leading quarterback Lance Pavlas, with a rating of 162.7, has been riding the pine. Bucky Richardson, who solidly holds down the cellar spot with a 108.3 rating, has completed only 50 percent of his passes and has thrown six interceptions.

Luckily for the Aggies, senior running back Darren Lewis is averaging 129.5 yards per game. His 777 yards leads the SWC.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN (5-1, 3-0) — Holy Horned Frogs! Coach Jim Wacker has finally put the Triple Shoot into motion.

Leon Clay has weaved his second-half magic for TCU on many occasions with victories over Missouri, Oklahoma State, SMU and Rice.
