Gang activity rising in Lubbock

By COURTNEY CHRISTIAN
The University Daily

Tom Holder, a Texas Tech freshman researching gang and occult activity in Lubbock, has interviewed more than 250 school-age children who told him of their involvement or relation to these activities.

Holder said 60 percent of children in Lubbock are involved with gangs and 11.5 percent are involved with the occult.

"Involvement with these activities does not necessarily mean they are active members, but they do participate in the drug and crime aspect," Holder said.

Gang membership in Lubbock is 10,000-plus and the ages range from 8-year-olds to people in their late 20's. There are seven occult gangs in Lubbock where 25 percent of the members are involved in satanic activities, he said.

Holder, who was in law enforcement for 10 years, has started a group called Victory Over Satan. "Our main objective is to be there for kids involved in the occult or gangs who want out. We are here to help," he said.

"We are working out of our own pockets but we need support in various areas from Tech and the community because it is a community problem. Over 25 percent of these kids want out and I want to be there for them when they want out, not just Monday through Friday from 8 to 5," Holder said.

A local gang member ("M") said his gang is not very big (31 members) with the youngest member being 16 and the oldest 27.

M said there are about 17 gangs in Lubbock and his gang has been active for about 8 months. His gang is not involved in prostitution or selling drugs. "If we did that (prostitution, drug-running) I wouldn't be sitting here now. I'd be in a BMW somewhere in Florida," M said.

M said he and the others joined the gang to protect each other. "We just take care of each other."

In M's gang, there is not one leader. "The top three pretty much say everything and make the rules. You get to be one of the top three by showing your worth." To join the gang, M said a person has to be "worthy" or able to stand up for both the gang and himself.

If a member has an attitude problem, the rest of the gang straightens him out. If a member turns against the gang, then three other members "take him on" for 20 minutes and kick him out of the gang.

To get out of the gang, a member must "walk the line" which involves all the gang members lining up with the one who wants to leave walking between the members. The members hit the one who wants to leave as he walks by. "If the guy wants to stand there and get hit, that's his choice. It's all in the way he walks. There is no kicking, everyone just punches him, usually they get in about two hits," M said.

M said his gang only uses weapons (knives and guns) when it is necessary. "If they pull a knife, we will. Only one or two people carry (firearms), mostly .38's, but we only use them if it is necessary," he said.

The gang activity in Lubbock is as bad as gang activity in Los Angeles and New York, he said. "The same things go on. There have been drive-by (shootings) in Lubbock."

AAF seeks students for university competition team for product research

By LORI TUCCI
The University Daily

The American Advertising Federation has called on interested students at Texas Tech in an effort to improve the university's product research and marketing status.

The national organization, which sponsors the National Student Advertising Competition each year, places students in highly competitive marketing situations.

Slated for the spring, the national competition organizers will host students from across the nation from various schools and universities as well as student AAF chapter members.

Traditionally, students would have to be members of AAF to be a part of the team. Currently, any student can participate in the event.

The competition uses marketing and research, business, design communication and advertising majors, among others, as members of the teams.

Becoming part of the 12- to 15-member team requires students to complete an application and return it by Friday.

Joe Bob Hester, advisor for the Tech Student Competition Team, said each year the AAF invites a major corporation to sponsor the competition. The upcoming competition will be sponsored by American Airlines Corp.

College and university teams, including the Tech team, will receive a case study outlining the history of AAF products along with a current advertising scenario. Each case study reflects a real-world situation.

Students research the material and analyze company competition. After identifying potential company problem areas, the students devise a complete advertising and marketing campaign for the client.

Student teams then produce written plans which address media, budget, promotions and evaluation issues.

Five students from the team will then give an oral presentation.

AAF is structured into 15 districts, each containing one to five states. "Tech is in the tenth district which is the toughest, since more schools come from this district than any other one," Hester said.

During the last 11 years, Tech has won at the district level in 1979, 1981, 1984, 1986, 1987 and 1989.

Applications are available in rooms 218 and 219 in the Mass Communications Building. Application deadline is Friday. Interviews will be scheduled after all applications are returned.

Nov. 6 absentee voting election begins Oct. 17

By MELISSA SHARP
The University Daily

Absentee voting for the Nov. 6 state and county elections begins Oct. 17 in the South Plains Mall north of Sears; at the Lubbock County Courthouse, 904 Broadway; at Alderson Junior High School, 219 Walnut; and in Slaton.

Only voters in precincts 35, 36, 37, 38, 19 and 51 can vote in the Lubbock County Courthouse Annex in Slaton. All registered voters qualify for early voting.

Polls will be open: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 17-26; 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 27; 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 28 and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 29-Nov. 2.

Students registered outside Lubbock County can request ballots from their county clerks. Requests must include the voter's name, signature, residence and mailing addresses, reason for voting absentee and the date of the election, Nov. 6.

Voters must return ballots before 7 p.m. election day. Ballots must be mailed or delivered by a common or contract carrier.

Lubbock County Clerk Ann Davidson said students and faculty might want to vote absentee if they have classes Nov. 6.

"Of course we want everyone to vote absentee because it makes it easier on us election day," Davidson said. "And we don't want anyone to miss being able to vote."

George Scott, Texas Tech coordinator for voter registration, said voting early is more convenient.

"You don't have to worry about what precinct you are in or where you have to go," he said. "You can vote leisurely because you don't have to wait in line. It fits into your schedule because you have two weeks to (absentee vote)."

All polling places will accommodate the handicapped, Davidson said. Handicapped people who cannot leave their cars can request curbside voting.

In the 1988 presidential election, more than 11,000 Lubbock County residents voted early, she said.

"The 'no excuse' absentee voting was newer then, and people were not really used to it," she said. "I hope (Lubbock County) will have 15,000 (absentee voters) this year. People are more familiar with this now. We added the polling place at Alderson, and that should help us."

Day care centers focus on nutrition

By LORI TUCCI
The University Daily

The Early Learning Centers of Lubbock, as part of a cooperative local effort, guarantee children in the centers a meal.

"The Early Learning Centers of Lubbock provide a child care food program that ensures any local child a nutritious breakfast, lunch and snack," said Joanne Cotter, executive director of the centers.

Many Texas Tech students have children in the centers — especially foreign graduate students, Cotter said.

"Students seem to find the program beneficial financially," she said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reimburses local day care centers a percentage of the amount spent on food for the children. The day care center buys all the food needed to fill all nutritional requirements for a healthy meal. The percentage of reimbursement totals $1 a day per child.

"My three-year-old daughter is enrolled in one of the centers and she told me the food was good," said Stan Kasprzyk, a father and graduate student at Tech. "I feel the program is doing well in feeding her good food. It is hard to estimate just how much she likes the food because she is so young, but she says it tastes good," he said.

Federal and state monies are also given to parents to aid with day care fees.

"We have five centers in all, and most of the children enrolled in each of the day care centers come from low income families," Cotter said.

Since some of the children come from middle-income families, fees paid for day care services are based on a sliding scale according to a family's income and eligibility, she said.

Most of the children in the centers are infants to 6-year-olds, which is an eligibility requirement for receiving meals.

All children are offered the same free meals without discrimination based on race, color, handicap, sex, age or national origin. The meals are served at the centers daily.

The centers have had the program for more than 20 years and feedback from parents and children show the program has been successful.

The 4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment (Memorial), headquartered in Lubbock, will sponsor its first cavalry olympics and exposition Saturday and Sunday at the Ranching Heritage Center, 4th Street and Indiana Avenue.

The colorful event will feature reenactments of U.S. Horse Cavalry in action, horse drawn military vehicles, sabre charges, pistol firing from horseback, precision platoon competition and individual trooper competition. Events will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Sunday's action will begin at 9 a.m. and will last until approximately 3 p.m. Admission charges are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Children under 12 will be admitted free. Tickets are good for both days.

A concession stand will be located on the grounds. Bring your lawn chairs, sit back, relax and watch events from the historic U.S. 4th Cavalry of the 1800s come alive once again.

In what is expected to become an annual event, the largest gathering of mounted soldiers in more than 100 years will assemble on the South Plains. Similar reenactment groups from throughout the Southwest have been invited to participate. The grounds of Texas Tech's Ranching Heritage Center will provide an authentic backdrop for the colorful activities. Military camps with white canvas tents will go up, and men in authentic Union Army, Confederate Army and Indian Wars period clothing will be seen on the center's grounds.

A general orientation session for those competing in the event will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday. Events for the public will start at 9 a.m. with individual cavalry competitions and a competition for military vehicles.

A grand review featuring all the mounted platoons,

The organization currently is recruiting new members and establishing new companies throughout the Southwest. Two recently established companies are in Amarillo and Hobbs, N.M. Anyone interested in joining the 4th U.S. Cavalry (Memorial) may contact 1st Sgt. Ray Thomas at 799-0054.

Meet The Media; it's your turn to let us know about it!

Every year we at Student Publications provide the opportunity for the Texas Tech community to ask us questions and explain operations to give you a better understanding of the role student media has on the Tech campus — now is your chance.

At 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday in the University Center Senate Room, we will have the annual "Meet The Media" day.

Representatives from the La Ventana yearbook, KTXF-FM and The University Daily advertising and editorial staffs will be present to answer any questions you may have about Tech's student media.

We want to lend leaders of campus organizations and all Techsians the opportunity to express concerns and let us know how you think we can better serve the Tech community.

Through "Meet The Media" you can find out why we have a bad reputation for bashing Greeks, why we don't let the sports department run rampant with football coverage and why we are so biased in editorials.

The UD editorial staff also can explain how stories get into the newspaper, how we decide to cover campus organizations and events, who to talk to about getting an event publicized and what information you need to have available.

The UD advertising staff will explain the procedure of placing an ad, how to get student rates and exactly how much of your Student Services fee goes to the operating budget of the newspaper.

You can find out about getting your student organization in the La Ventana, when page deadlines are, how to ensure maximum coverage of your organization and why you have to pay for pages.

Members of KTXF-FM will be present to explain the music format, how you can get student organization events announced, the different divisions of the station and even how you can be a disc jockey.

Each representative will be available to answer any questions you may have concerning that particular department.

We are all working to put out quality publications and broadcasts to keep you informed of what's going on at your university and around the nation and globe. We want to serve the Tech community to the best of our abilities and with your input, we can strive to improve.

So, come and ask us that one question that has been bugging you for ages or express your opinions on ways we could improve to serve you better — that's our sole purpose in presenting "Meet The Media."

Reagan to blame for Gulf crisis efforts to impose sanctions on Iraq in 1988 because of the use of poison gas. It continued to extend $500 million a year in credit guarantees to Iraq to buy U.S. food products.

At a special international conference on chemical weapons, held in Paris in January 1989, the United States strongly opposed efforts to name Iraq as a violator. Because the administration gave a low priority to human rights, and because it wanted to sell goods to Iraq, it groveled.

loud for international action." The Reagan Administration, in short, missed a chance to deter Saddam Hussein.

Shortly after Reagan was elected president, he said energy conservation meant being too hot in the summer and too cold in the winter. His policy was in keeping with that ignorant sneer.

Funds for research on energy conservation were cut toward the vanishing point. Energy efficiency standards for cars and appliances reversed the historic American position, going back to Theodore Roosevelt's time, of respect for international law and international legal institutions.

In disregard of treaties and other obligations, the Reagan Administration made war on Nicaragua. When Nicaragua sued in the World Court, the Reagan administration rejected the Court's judgment and withdrew from its jurisdiction.

Again, Saddam Hussein heard the message he wanted: The United States does not care about international law; it will look the other way if I break the rules.

President Bush carried on the failed Reagan policies. When Congress imposed sanctions on Iraq but allowed a presidential waiver, he waived them — and his people were on Capitol Hill opposing effective sanctions just a few days before the invasion of Kuwait. He did nothing for energy conservation. His invasion of Panama was another expression of contemptuous disregard for international law.

We can hope that Mr. Bush has learned from the experience of these last two months: learned at least that it does not serve American interests to disregard a tyrant's cruelties or to trample on international law.

But Mr. Reagan never learned. I thought of him when the superb public television series on the Civil War last week described how President Buchanan's vacuity helped to bring on the war. Americans paid for that war for 100 years. We shall be paying as long for Ronald Reagan's folly.

THE FAR SIDE

By GARY LARSON

"Zak! Don't eat parsley! Just for looks!"

There has been much soul-searching since Aug. 2 about failures of American policy that helped to encourage Saddam Hussein's aggression. But not enough attention has been paid to the man whose folly led the way: Ronald Reagan.

In three significant ways, President Reagan gave the Iraqi leader reason to believe that he did not have to worry about American opposition. Reagan played down human rights concerns, winking at horrendous cruelties by Saddam Hussein. He destroyed U.S. energy policy, making us more vulnerable to oil threats. And he treated international law with contempt.

Few recent inhumanities in the world have been as shocking as Iraq's use of poison gas to kill thousands of its own Kurdish citizens in 1988. And it was un-concealed. Reporters went to the devastated villages. The world saw bodies on television.

And what did the United States do? Secretary of State George Shultz, to his credit, condemned Iraq for the use of chemical weapons. But the larger message sent by the Reagan administration to Saddam Hussein was that it did not care.

The administration lobbied against, and blocked, congressional Reagan played down human rights concerns, winking at horrendous cruelties by Saddam Hussein. He destroyed U.S. energy policy, making us more vulnerable to oil threats. And he treated international law with contempt.

Before the gassing of the Kurds, Saddam Hussein had used chemical weapons in the war with Iran. The Reagan administration made no forceful objection to that either.

"In retrospect, it would have been much better at the time of their use of poison gas...if we'd put our foot down." Richard L. Armitage, an assistant secretary of defense in the Reagan administration, said after the invasion of Kuwait.

"The mistake we made," he added, "was not pushing very hard and were cut back, opposed, delayed. And the Reagan administration just about ended the search for solar and other renewable energy sources.

By the conservation measures started in the Carter administration, the United States had reduced its dependence on imported oil to 28 percent of its total supply. Now about half of the oil we use is imported.

Ronald Reagan's contemptuous attitude toward international law hardly needs to be described. He

Italian pianist Lupo performs at UC

World renowned pianist Benedetto Lupu performs at 8:15 p.m. today in the UC Allen Theatre.

Winner of the Bronze Medal at the Eighth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, Lupu has been called "an authentic emerging talent and a true interpreter."

Tickets for the performance are $6 for Tech students and $10 for non-students. Tickets are available at the UC Ticket Booth and Sears.

In his concert tonight, Lupu will feature Brahms' "Two Rhapsodies, Op. 79," Schumann's "Fan-tasiestucke, Op. 12," Scriabin's "Sonata-fantasy #2, Op. 19 in G sharp minor" and Rachmaninoff's "Sonata #2 in B flat major, Op. 36."

The Italian-born performer begin playing piano at 6 years of age, making his debut at 13 with Beethoven's First Piano Concerto. He now teaches at the Piccinni Conservatory in Bari, Italy, and performs worldwide.

Heart of Texas Cafe still The Spoon

By KIRK BAIRD-PARKS
The University Daily

Though the Texas Cafe and Bar is under its third name change, it continues to feature a variety of musical talent, barbecue and blue margaritas.

Kenra Minnick, club manager, said Texas Cafe started out as Stubbs Barbecue West when a famous Lubbock barbecue chef known simply as Stubbs would come over and cook barbecue.

"Then Stubbs, who cooked for us, got into other stuff and we changed the name to the Texas Spoon," she said. "But the same guys have always owned it."

After a legal bout involving the use of the name the Texas Spoon, the club adopted its current name, The Texas Cafe and Bar.

"It was just a legal thing that we had to change our name. There was a chain restaurant called Spoons that is based out of California but there were some down in Austin and San Antonio," Minnick said.

"I don't know how they heard of us. We got a letter from their lawyers and fought it for a while in court. We finally said fine we'll change our name. We didn't have the money to fight it."

Regardless of the reasons behind the name change, Minnick said people still call the restaurant and bar The Spoon.

"We're trying to get back and use the name a little bit more, although we'll never be able to legally use it. Because we're getting a lot of people who say 'I wish the Spoon was still here — there's nothing like the Spoon anymore,' and you're still here. Just the name changed, everything else is still the same," she said.

CLUB OF THE WEEK

Minnick said the club features a variety of groups from college-oriented groups to rock 'n' roll/blues bands.

"The Nelsons always pull a large college crowd. Right now in Lubbock there are so many bands it's hard to say who is pulling the most crowds. The older rock/blues bands pull in a good crowd, just an older-type crowd," Minnick said.

One problem the Texas Cafe and Bar faces is the lack of Tech students going to the club due to the age restrictions, Minnick said.

"That's what everybody is going to say. We've had a hard time building back up since then. We're not as much of a Tech hangout as we used to be."

Conductor Bernstein, 72, dies Sunday at home in Manhattan

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Leonard Bernstein, the impassioned American maestro who thrilled an international multitude with his spirited shows "On the Town" and "West Side Story," his podium pirouettes and his hundreds of recordings, died Sunday. He was 72.

Bernstein was a conductor, pianist, educator, author and composer. His compositions included the theatrical, chamber music, symphonies, ballet and even a Mass.

The son of Russian-Jewish immigrants, he led an orchestra performance at a liberated concentration camp, raised money for the Black Panthers and on Christmas 1989 celebrated the demise of the Berlin Wall by conducting Beethoven's

"Ninth Symphony," substituting the word "freedom" for "joy" in its last movement, the "Ode to Joy."

He won Grammys, Emmys and a Tony, but in November 1989 refused to accept the National Medal of Arts to protest cancellation of a $10,000 National Endowment for the Arts grant for a New York art exhibit about AIDS.

Bernstein died in his Manhattan apartment, his spokeswoman Margaret Carson said. Dr. Kevin M. Cahill, who was present, said the cause of death was progressive lung failure.

On Cahill's advice, Bernstein announced last week that he would retire from conducting. Cahill said emphysema and lung infections left Bernstein too weak to continue working.

Bernstein, who was once a heavy smoker, canceled performances with increasing frequency in recent months. His last conducting appearance was at Tanglewood, Mass., on Aug. 19.

"It's really shocking to discover he was this ill. We thought we lost him as a conductor but we thought we would count on his teaching and composing for years," Kenneth Haas, managing director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, said Sunday night.

Born in Lawrence, Mass., Bernstein got a relatively late start in music. The boy genius was 10 when his Aunt Clara gave the family an upright piano. But he always had an ear for music, recalled his mother, Jennie.

"When he was 4 or 5, he would play an imaginary piano on his windowsill," Mrs. Bernstein said in Joan Peyser's 1987 biography "Bernstein: A Biography." "When we finally got a piano, he did what he now says he did: made love to it all the time."

His father, Sam, however, hoped Lenny would join his beauty supply business. Lenny persisted with piano. He went on to study under Walter Piston at Harvard, Fritz Reiner at Curtis Institute, and Serge Koussevitzky at the Boston Symphony's summer Tanglewood retreat.

During his Harvard days, he met conductor Dimitri Mitropoulos, who recognized his genius and encouraged him to pursue conducting.

In 1957, the year he completed "West Side Story," Bernstein joined Mitropoulos as co-director of the New York Philharmonic, and the following year became its first American-born director.

Survivors include son Alexander, a teacher; and two daughters — Jaime Thomas, a rock musician, and Nina Bernstein, an actress.

Jones looks for squad to rebound after SWC loss

By BELLE MILLER
The University Daily

After a tough loss to the No. 4 Texas Longhorns on Sunday, the Texas Tech volleyball team prepares to travel to Houston this weekend and take on Southwest Conference foes Houston and Rice.

Tech continues to gain notoriety as a screaming crowd of 1,167 attended the rematch between the Raiders and the Longhorns at the Student Recreation Center.

Sunday's standing-room-only crowd was the largest home crowd ever for a Tech volleyball match.

The previous attendance record was set earlier this year when the Raiders played Arkansas State in the Holiday Inn-South/Red Raider Classic in front of 688 volleyball fans. "That was a great crowd," Mike Jones said at his weekly press conference. "It was wonderful for us as far as volleyball is concerned to see that many people interested in seeing volleyball when there is pro-football on T.V."

Jones, whose Raiders are now 2-2 in league competition, said the upcoming weekend is important for Tech, especially if they want to see post-season NCAA Tournament action.

"We have some real important things to take care of this week. We play at Houston this coming Saturday and that may be the most important match of the season at this point.

"Consider Houston the second best team in the conference besides us. That's one we have to go down to their place and try and get a victory from them," Jones said.

Should Tech return from down south with victories over Houston and Rice, the Raiders will be 4-2 in the conference and will have the home court advantage for the remaining four conference games.

"Next weekend is going to be a key road trip for us," Jones said.

The Cougars are presently 9-8 for the season with a 2-1 mark in the conference. Houston lost to the Longhorns but has beaten A&M and Baylor.

The Owls are currently 8-3 and 1-2 in conference play. Rice has lost to A&M and Texas. The Owls' lone league win was against Baylor.

Jones said despite the second loss to Texas over the weekend, the team should be mentally prepared for the important road trip.

Tech's Whataburger Player of the Week is senior middle blocker Lisa Clark.

Sports Briefs

Raiders hope to continue quick start in Abilene

The Texas Tech women's tennis team travels to Abilene today for a dual match against Abilene Christian at 2 p.m. The match was originally scheduled for Oct. 9, but due to rain it was cancelled.

Tech defeated the Wildcats three times last year 9-0, 7-2 and 6-0. Tech is posting a 1-0 dual match record after shutting out West Texas State 9-0 in the season opener. Last week the Raiders won 22 of 30 in the Husker Invitational in Lincoln, Neb.

Junior Karen Biggerstaff won the Flight 2 singles competition in last week's tournament. Freshman Lynne Jackson won Flight 6 and Robin Dawson won all three matches at No. 7 singles.

The Raiders probable lineup includes Mallory Grantham at the No. 1 spot, Karen Biggerstaff at the No. 2 spot and Debbie Biswell in the No. 3 spot for the women's singles.

In the doubles competition Grantham and Jackson pair up for the No. 1 spot, followed by Biggerstaff and Amy Ryan in the No. 2 spot.

Samantha Isaac, one of Kathy Vick's top returnees from last season. Tech is scheduled to face ACU again in Lubbock on Feb. 19.

Tech turns thoughts to Owls after first SWC win

By MIKE PENDER
The University Daily

Some say the grass grows greener on the other side of the fence, but when you do not get the chance to see that pasture very often, you tend to treasure even the simplest things in life.

The Texas Tech football team and coach Spike Dykes can attest to that fact after their second win of the season. The Raiders held off Arkansas quarterback Quinn Grovey en route to their 49-44 win last Saturday in Fayetteville, Ark.

"The hamburger tastes better today than it did last week," Dykes said in his weekly press conference Monday, "that's for darn sure."

Last week's hamburger, courtesy of Whataburger, was a bit harder for the Tech mentor to digest following a 28-24 defeat at the hands of Southwest Conference foe Texas A&M.

Dykes said, "I was real proud of our guys Saturday night. I thought we played at times better than we ever had."

The win boosted the Raiders' record to 2-4 overall and 1-3 in SWC action while the defending SWC-Champion Razorbacks dropped to 2-3 and 0-2.

"We did what we hadn't been doing as far as scoring touchdowns instead of field goals and it was really a heck of a performance on offense," Dykes said.

The offense accumulated 582 yards on the day behind both Jamie Gill and Robert Hall, which was the most ever by a Tech team in an away game and the third best yardage total ever by any Red Raider team.

Whataburger Player of the Week Gill finished with 337 yards passing and three touchdowns. It was the first time he has seen extended action since the Houston game in which he injured his knee.

Dykes also said the defense did a good job pursuing the Hogs' offense headed by the illusive Grovey.

"Defensively we had a lot of people running to the football. We had a tremendous pass rush; we just had a hard time getting him (Grovey) down, Dykes said.

"I don't know if I've ever been around a bunch that enjoyed winning a game any more than they did."

Dykes said the team will not be able to enjoy the victory for an extended period of time.

"We can't dwell on that game very long, that game is history," Dykes said. "That game is one that I'm certain will help us to be a better football team, but what we got to do is start getting ready for Rice.

"Donald Hollas will be a Quinn Grovey of a different breed, I guess you could say — he'll figure out a way to beat you if you're not careful."

Hollas has lead an Owl team that got off to an uncharacteristic winning start, but has lost some well played battles of late.

The week after Houston drilled Tech 51-35 on a Thursday night game in "The Hole", the Cougars kicked a field goal with only seconds remaining to give them a 24-22 victory at Rice Stadium.

Dykes said the Raiders got out of Arkansas with few injuries. Junior defensive back Sammy Walker injured his ankle and big toe and Dykes said his chances are "slim" for playing against Rice.

Freshman wide receiver Lloyd Hill missed the Arkansas game but is expected to return for the clash with the Owls. Linebacker Leric Eaton is also expected to return to action Saturday.

SPIKE'S QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"Arkansas leaving this conference is like a friend of yours getting a divorce after four years of marriage you know, doggone you hate to see it happen. It's none of your business, but you hate to see it happen."
-Dykes on the departure of Arkansas from the Southwest Conference to the Southeastern Conference after next season.

Nasty Boys ready for A's Bash Brothers

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — The place to be for the World Series is in the bullpen.

It's Cincinnati's Nasty Boys vs. Oakland's Bash Brothers in a confrontation involving more strategy than a chess match between Karpov and Kasparov.

The opening move is set for Tuesday night at Riverfront Stadium when Dave Stewart is expected to start for the A's against Jose Rijo.

Since Pittsburgh manager Jim Leyland isn't involved, it's also expected the starting pitchers who show up at the pregame news conference will actually start. But the real fun is who will finish.

The A's are favored to win their second straight World Series because of Stewart, Bob Welch and Mike Moore.

The Reds are given a chance because of the Nasty Boys — relievers Rob Dibble, Randy Myers and Norm Charlton.

In 15 2-3 innings against the Pirates, the Nasty Boys gave up one earned run and six hits while striking out 20. Dibble pitched five hitless innings, striking out 10 to tie a playoff record for a reliever.

"It doesn't matter if a guy hits cross-handed, right-handed or he's a switch-hitter," Leyland said. "It doesn't matter if you have a midget at the plate. If Rob Dibble is throwing 100 miles per hour, I don't care if you're standing on your head. You're going to have a tough time."

Cincinnati's formula for victory is to grab an early lead and then turn it over to the Nasty Boys in the sixth or seventh inning. The Reds were 66-22 when they scored first and 74-6 when holding the lead after six innings.

The A's, as demonstrated against Boston, have all sorts of ways to win. One of the best is to bring in Dennis Eckersley and friends.

The Oakland bullpen of Eckersley, Rick Honeycutt and Gene Nelson combined to give up five hits and no runs in 6 2-3 innings during the AL playoffs.

In the playoffs, Oakland and Cincinnati relievers combined to give up one earned run and 14 hits in 25 innings, striking out 24.

"I've never sat down and analyzed their bullpen," Myers said. "They have the best in closer in Eckersley. We have co-stoppers in Dibble and myself."

"Rob's a nice boy," owner-den mother Marge Schott said. "But sometimes I'd like to smack him."

THE FORDS HAVE ALWAYS DRIVEN VOLKSWAGENS.

Ask Kimo Ford why he bought a Volkswagen and get ready for some family history.

"Everyone in my family has driven a Volkswagen at one time or another. My dad had a Microbus. My mom and sister both drove Beetles. And my brother, who's also a student, drives an '83 Volkswagen Rabbit.

"So when I saved enough money to buy a car there was only one logical choice. A Volkswagen. If you ask me, it's the perfect student's car. Good on gas. Big enough to carry four friends. And fun to drive."

Fun to drive? Sounds like Fahrvergnügen. To experience it for yourself, just follow the Fords to your Volkswagen dealer.
