Senate rejects raising taxes on upper crust

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate today voted 55-45 to defeat an effort to raise taxes on the rich and moderate a Medicare premium increase as it struggled to complete work on a deficit-reduction plan.

The vote killed an amendment by Sens. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., that would have scaled back increases in gasoline taxes and Medicare premiums and substituted a House-approved, three-pronged attack on those with higher incomes.

The amendment was one of more than two dozen ready for Senate consideration, many of which have been designed to move the Senate bill closer to the soak-the-rich package that won House approval Tuesday.

"Do we want to ask senior citizens in the hospital to pay more so the wealthiest in our society can pay less?" Gore asked before the vote on his amendment.

"The middle class has no more to give," Ms. Mikulski said.

Democratic leaders praised the aim of the amendment but said it would have killed the deficit-reduction package because President Bush has promised to veto any plan raising the top tax rate on the wealthiest Americans to 33 percent. The proposal would have raised that rate from 28 percent.

"What we have tried to do is put together a package the president will sign," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-

Texas, chairman of the Finance Committee. "There is substantial divergence with what came out of the House. ... We will end up with something that is in between."

The budget bill is on a fast track that congressional leaders hope could place it on Bush's desk for his signature Friday night.

Without final action, or at least considerable progress on such a package, Bush has said he'll shut down the government Saturday morning, when federal spending authority is due to expire.

A key element of the Senate's deficit plan is a 9½-cent increase in the gasoline tax. The Senate voted Wednesday to leave that provision intact. The Gore-Mikulski amendment would have provided a 6-cent increase.

The amendment would have been attached to a measure raising taxes and reducing benefit programs by $250 billion over the next five years.

In addition to increasing the tax rate for the wealthiest Americans, the Gore-Mikulski plan proposed imposing a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes over $1 million and raising to 25 percent the alternative minimum tax designed to snare well-to-do investors.

The Senate package appeared to be in considerable trouble Wednesday after Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, proposed stripping the 9½-cent increase in the gasoline tax. The issue wasn't settled until almost 14 hours later.

Medicare cuts under budget plan

Spending would be cut by $60 billion over five years: $30 billion from doctors and hospitals, primarily from decreased payments for a variety of medical procedures, and $30 billion from beneficiaries.

Williams' bank controversy continues

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — A former loan broker said that officials at a bank controlled by Texas Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams cancelled his contract when he warned against their plan to boost profits by financing risky auto loans.

Barry Neil Dees Jr. of Arlington said the bankers ignored his warnings about potential trouble with bank regulators, terminated his company's contract as an auto loan broker and hired others to solicit high risk loans.

Dees said he was told that Williams and the bank's directors were prepared to open their own finance company to handle the loans if federal bank regulators objected, The Dallas Morning News reported Thursday in a copyright story.

In an affidavit filed Wednesday, Dees said, "Clayton's and the board's comment was that they would just take the money out of the bank and fund themselves a finance company, and that way they wouldn't have to deal with the regulators."

Dees said ClayDesta's consumer lending chief, D.O. Rob Robinson, only smiled when Dees warned him last October that it would be illegal to require borrowers to buy credit insurance from the bank as a condition of obtaining their loans.

State law prohibits lenders from requiring borrowers to buy the insurance from a particular company as a condition of a loan.

David Jones, president of ClayDesta National Bank, did not immediately return phone calls Thursday from The Associated Press.

Campaign spokesman Reggie Bashur said that ClayDesta informally discussed forming its own finance company but nothing was organized and the proposal wasn't designed to circumvent federal regulators.

ClayDesta National Bank, founded in Midland by Williams who owns controlling interest, recently was sued by several of ClayDesta's customers. They allege that they were illegally forced to buy unwanted credit life and disability insurance from the bank to obtain auto loans.

Greg Mathis, a Dallas loan broker, claimed in another affidavit that the program cheated the state out of thousands of dollars in sales tax by not paying tax on the difference when cars were resold at a higher price to unknowing customer.

Tech senate adopts dignity resolution

By CHRIS BOBBITT
The University Daily

The Student Senate unanimously adopted a resolution Thursday concerning the incorporation of a Human Dignity Statement into the Student Affairs Handbook.

The Human Dignity Statement was adopted by the Dean of Students office during the summer and was distributed to students with the Student Affairs Handbook.

The resolution recommends the Board of Regents change the title of section I part IX of the handbook, "Code of Student Conduct," to "Human Dignity."

The Human Dignity section would then state: "Texas Tech University is committed to equitable, civilized and concerned treatment for all individuals without regard for race, gender, creed, disability or national origin. As members of the academic community, university students enjoy the privileges and share the obligations of the larger community of which the university is a part. Students are entitled to the privileges which accrue to them by virtue of their membership. These privileges carry with them the obligations of responsible citizenship.

"Freedom of discussion, inquiry and expression is fostered by an environment in which privileges of citizenship are protected and the obligations of citizenship are understood."

The resolution divides the statement into the following three sections: "Each Person Has Worth and Dignity," "Bigotry Cannot be Tolerated," and "Students are Responsible for Their Own Lives."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to members of the Board of Regents, President Robert Lawless, Vice President for Student Affairs Robert Ewalt and Dean of Students Judith Henry.

"I would like to commend Senators Laura English and Michael Catt for this piece of legislation," said Arts and Sciences Senator Doug Forte. "This is the best legislation we have seen in a long time."

Board member takes great pride in Tech because of importance to Lubbock

By MARK LACK
The University Daily

Board of Regents member and longtime Lubbock resident Alan White said he has a great deal of pride in Texas Tech because the university is important to the community.

"It's been a real honor to be given the opportunity to be on the Board of Regents," White said.

White assumed his position on the board in May 1989, as one of three regent members appointed to Tech by Gov. Bill Clements.

White said his position as a regent has been an interesting challenge in looking at the magnitude of the university and the Health Sciences Center as a business.

"I think one of the interesting concepts that I have had to get used to is looking at Tech in a business aspect as well as an educational aspect. It's difficult to keep the two separate because you don't do the same things in a business as you do in a university," he said.

Because of Tech's size, with so many different things happening within the university, White explained that he learns something new about Tech every day.

"It takes a while to get it all into perspective. I've been on the board going on two years, and it's a big business — it takes a while to get your arms around it all," the regent said.

White, a 1972 Tech graduate, said the Tech campus has not changed much since he was a student. He said he recently realized that the Health Sciences Center, which was just getting started when he was studying, is a tremendous operation.

"The expertise and academic manpower that we have out there is incredible, and I think the job that Bernhard Mitemyer and his people are doing is really starting to surface — that aspect I wasn't aware of in college," he said.

White said he is impressed with the improvements in quality and academic standards the administration has made in the past few years.

"To see that and to see the university become a research university and move toward that direction is impressive because the quality in the education is moving Tech from a second-class to a first-class university. It's great to see it happen and to feel it happen," White said.

White said he supports Tech President Robert Lawless' goals of becoming a research university, which is the status Tech needs to survive as an institution.

"That's the way we've got to head. We've got to be a class university to be able to compete well. With the budget for higher education being where it is, the only way we're going to be able to continue is to get out and raise money, and the only way you can do that is to become a top ranked university," he said.

The regent said he hopes that Tech can accomplish its goals in a sufficient time frame.

"My concern is that the timing in which those goals will occur in a short time span. I just have to be patient, and I keep telling myself that," he said.

After White left Tech in 1972 to pursue his career in banking, his interest in higher education continued.

"My big interest in Tech is that it has a big impact on this community, and for my business to be successful, Tech has to be successful. Besides that, I want Tech to be considered as a class institution across the country as well as the state," he said.

White said he sees his position as a regent as a learning experience.

"I really look forward to participating and interchanging with the other board members, and I think I can make a contribution," he said. "That's the reason I do it."

Lubbock ACLU files lawsuit against Lubbock school district

By COURTNEY CHRISTIAN
The University Daily

Lawyers for the Lubbock American Civil Liberties Union Wednesday filed suit against, and obtained a temporary restraining order against, the Lubbock Independent School District.

Lubbock ACLU lawyers at a press conference Wednesday announced that the restraining order was imposed because the school board did not take action allowing two students who violated the LISD dress code back in school.

The temporary restraining order allows Yacatico Kelley and Michael Buckberry to return to school after having been expelled because of dress code violations. The two were withdrawn from school because of a rule that prohibits males from wearing either long hair or earrings.

Mike Moses, LISD superintendent, must appear in the 364th district court of Judge Brad Underwood at 1:15 p.m., Oct. 30 regarding a temporary injunction to rescind the dress code. The parents of the students will petition the court concerning the code.

The temporary restraining order was served to Moses at 8 a.m. Thursday.

"We decided in good faith we would wait until yesterday afternoon when school let out to see if any dialogue with the school board was possible," said ACLU lawyer Steve McIntyre.

"After last Thursday's meeting of LISD's board of trustees we were not very hopeful," he said. "Since we had set a Wednesday deadline, we should wait until that passed (before beginning litigation)."

"We went with Tico and Michael to school, and they are now back in their regular classes," he said.

"The restraining order requires the school district to allow Tico and Michael to attend classes with reasonable opportunities to make up the school work missed," McIntyre said.

The restraining order requires that the school district not enforce those portions of the dress code that discriminate against any other males attending school.

"It orders them not to kick anybody out because of hair length, rat-tails, ponytails, braids or because of earrings on males," McIntyre said.

"Since the school board has appointed a committee to review the dress code, and we commend them for that, the school board might consider delaying any additional litigation until their own committee has reported to them," McIntyre said.

"If their committee suggests deleting the sex-based provisions, and the school board approves it, there will be nothing to litigate," said ACLU lawyer Rod Schoen.

The lawyers said they still have several students who would have been available plaintiffs in this case. "We chose these two (Kelley and Buckberry) because they are out of school. The others are in school because they complied with the code, which we think is illegal."

The case is being filed under the Texas Equal Rights Amendment and does not involve the federal constitution.

Schoen said the ACLU lawyers will cite the McLean case of 1987 in which the Texas Supreme Court decided sex discrimination under the laws of Texas is not allowed unless the state can show a compelling governmental interest in discrimination which can not be vindicated by any other means.

"We see absolutely no compelling interest that justifies this kind of sex stereotyping of boys and girls. If we did not feel that we could win, we would not have filed."

Bob Craig, president of the LISD board of trustees, said "we will certainly appear at the hearing and make known our stance."

"We want to be consistent in the dress code," Craig said. "We appointed a committee to look into and fine-tune the dress code. That committee will report to us at the Nov. 8 meeting," he said.

"From the committee's finding, the board will decide what to do. We are disappointed that the judge entered a restraining order without giving us an opportunity to be heard," Craig said. "It's unusual that a temporary restraining order is given without letting the other party know."

U.S. doesn't want to fight war alone

A.M. Rosenthal
Columnist

Almost every day, a particularly important falsehood keeps popping up about the choice facing the United States in the Iraqi crisis.

The choice is between trying to find a diplomatic formula that would persuade Saddam Hussein to get out of Kuwait but would leave him with military power, or seizing the moment to destroy him so that he can never again use him tanks, planes, poison gas and missiles to blackmail the world.

The falsehood: Israel is virtually the only foreign country that believes military action is the best course for the United States to take.

Most often this lie spills out of the brew that is kept aboil by Israel-haters of the American right and left.

That is nasty enough in itself. But the danger is that it is coming to be assumed as true by many Americans who are not anti-Israel, but simply do not want to enter a war that only Israel supports. The assumption is becoming so pervasive that Zbigniew Brzezinski points to it as one of the risks of military action.

"At some point the public might blame Israel for allegedly having pressed America to go to war against Iraq for the sake of Israeli interests," he wrote on the Op-Ed page of The New York Times.

Possibly, but the admirable Brzezinski could have diminished the risk by adding another sentence about what he and other sophisticated opponents of military action know but often neglect to point out: The current Arab allies of the United States believe that to leave Saddam Hussein's power intact would be a disaster they could not survive.

Arab rulers opposing Saddam Hussein know that if he stays in power he will be victorious in the minds of the Arab world, defeating them and the combined political and economic strength of the West. They will be the losers in their own homeland, frighteningly next door to Saddam Hussein, not thousands of miles away in Washington or Europe.

The Saudi monarchy is likely to be brought down in a year or two by its internal enemies strengthened by agents dispatched by Iraq. If they are not eliminated immediately the Saudis and other Persian Gulf princes will once again try to buy off Saddam Hussein with oil billions.

President Mubarak of Egypt will find it impossible to stay in office for more than a couple of years. Some Egyptians who support him believe it may take the Egyptian fundamentalists that much time to overthrow him, not more.

But State Department specialists, who talked about Saddam Hussein's peaceful intentions before he attacked Kuwait, now put out stories about how to contain him peacefully.

Nothing is more dangerous than diplomats trying to justify past mistakes by duplicating them.

What Arab government would be stupid enough to sign up with this new, make-believe alliance if Saddam Hussein is left with a poison gas shell in his hand and his gangs of terrorists searching Arab capitals for high-ranking victims?

We will leave troops and stocks of weapons behind to deter the Iraqis, say the diplomats. Really? Name the Arab leaders suicidal enough to keep sliver Western units on their territory after full Western force was withdrawn unused.

President Bush will make his own decisions in his own time. But it could help if he told Americans beforehand the full story about which countries support or oppose military action and

why. He owes that to himself for the support he will need, one way or the other.

No Arab despotism is worth American lives. But the only justifiable reason for the American intervention was not for their sake, but for our own — to prevent one bitterly hostile dictator from dominating the Middle East, turning its oil on and off as his hatred of the United States moved him.

Satan's guides

To The Editor:

1. Satan represents indulgence, instead of abstinence.
 2. Satan represents vital existence, instead of spiritual pipe dreams.
 3. Satan represents undefiled wisdom, instead of hypocritical self deceit.
 4. Satan represents kindness to those who deserve it, instead of love to ingrates.
 5. Satan represents vengeance, instead of turning the other cheek.
 6. Satan represents man as just another animal, sometimes better, more often worse than those that walk on all fours, who, because of his "divine spiritual and intellectual development," has become the most vicious animal of all.
 7. Satan represents all of the so-called sins, as they all lead to physical, mental, or emotional gratification.
 8. Satan has been the best friend the church has ever had, as he has kept it in business all these years.
- These are The Nine Satanic Statements as written by Anton LeVay in his book "The Satanic Bible." This book is a guide for satanist that includes instruction for performing satanic ceremonies and magic formulas. The freedom of religion is a basic right guaranteed in our Constitution, but The Nine Satanic Statements show that the basic rule of devil worship is to break all of the Ten Commandments. Remember that many of the Ten Commandments are laws in our society and are crimes if broken. I wish to make it understood to all who read this that satanism and crime walk hand in hand.

I remember an event that occurred in April last year. A 21-year-old student at U.T. was partying during spring break in Matamoros, Mexico. Mark Kilroy was abducted by a drug-ring that sacrificed him to Satan. This drug-ring believed that if they did this for Satan, then the devil would protect their shipments of marijuana from the police and that the members of the drug-ring cult would be immune to bullets. Many humans were sacrificed and the cult moved thousands of pounds of marijuana across the border.

When police arrested the cult members, they learned of the horrors of sacrifice — including the murder of a private investigator who was hired by Mark Kilroy's father. The cult cut the skin off the bottoms of the P.I.'s feet and they made him walk on salt. After this torture, they put him in a tub of boiling water and pulled strips of raw flesh off him while he screamed.

It is important for satanist to kill their victims as slowly and as painfully as possible; the conduct of satanist is so cruel, that it is often unbelievable. Satan does not want us to know that this happens but it does, check this out.

"Talk Back" with Bob Larson airs on the Lubbock radio station KJAK from 3 to 5 p.m. People call in and talk to Bob about satanism. One caller testified that when she was five years old, she had painful sex with the dying leader of a cult. The ritual was designed so that the dying man's semen would be passed on ceremoniously and the spirits that he served would become part of the child. When the leader died, the girl was forced to have sex with all of the cult members. This girl was only five!

Granted that the cult gangs in Lubbock may not be performing sacrifice and ritualistic rape. They may in the future if we ignore them. I pray that The UD will print this letter so that readers will understand that the threat of satanism is real and growing every day.

Gang nonsense

To The Editor:

I read with dismay the article on the front page of the Tuesday, Oct. 16, edition relating to "Gang Activity..." in Lubbock. At a time when there seems to be excessive hysteria in our community about alleged satanic and cult activity, the "research" only fuels the controversy with unsubstantiated information.

The use of simple math reveals the results of the study to be greatly exaggerated. Without commenting on the "scientific" nature of Mr. Holder's interviews with 250 school-age children, his statement that 60 percent of children in Lubbock are involved or related to gang activity must be greatly discounted.

Using the enrollment figures for the Lubbock Independent School District (30,943 at the end of the first six-week period) as a guide to the number of school-age children in Lubbock, gang involvement according to Mr. Holder would total more than 18,000 children. Yet, the story later states involvement of 10,000. Mr. Holder relates that there are 17 gangs in Lubbock. Dividing the lower (10,000) member estimate by the number of alleged gangs results in membership averaging 588 members per gang. I suggest that this figure, an average membership probably greater than the average membership of all civic groups in Lubbock, is not logical. I trust that any reasonable person will see that such gang involvement figures cannot be accepted as fact.

Five K Volks march to fund scholarships

By LORI TUCCI
The University Daily

The Division of Continuing Education and the German club on the Texas Tech campus will sponsor their first five-kilometer Volks March from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday at Buddy Holly Park.

Birgit Rahman, program coordinator for continuing education, said the program is sponsoring the march to get some publicity and raise awareness for continuing education.

"Also, there are not too many casual events on campus for students to attend, so we (continuing education and the German club) are offering this march as a casual event," she said.

The march is in conjunction with the October German Fest where people get together to have a good time, she said. If attendance is good this year, the march will be offered annually.

A participant may choose to have a pledge in place of the set cost of $6 to be in the march. A pledge awards the participant a certain amount of money for each mile he or she walks.

Profits from the march will go towards funding a scholarship for independent study courses for high school and college students.

There are no qualifications required to enter the march — other than having two feet.

"The march is available to anyone who enjoys walking," Rahman said. This includes students, faculty members, staff members and the general public.

Most of the entertainment will be German music tapes.

"Entertainment will be provided by the German club for the spectators," she said.

Oil prices advance after selloff

Trading soars along with tension in Middle East

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Crude oil futures prices swung wildly Thursday before settling slightly higher as tensions rose following a report that Israeli soldiers wounded dozens of Palestinians in clashes in the occupied West Bank.

Crude prices were sharply lower in the early going as the market reacted to Wednesday's Energy Department report showing shortages created by the Persian Gulf crisis have been largely alleviated.

The near-term contract for light-sweet crude, the benchmark grade of oil, initially plunged more than $2.25 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. That extended Wednesday's $2.17-a-barrel decline and was well off the record-high level of $41 a barrel registered earlier this month.

But prices reversed course following a mid-afternoon report that an attempt by the Israeli army to establish a new post in a Gaza strip refugee camp sparked hours of skirmishes and saw 35 Palestinians wounded by live ammunition and rubber bullets.

The price of light-sweet crude for November delivery settled at $36.80 a barrel, up 8 cents on the Mercantile Exchange. The contract had traded as high as $37.20 a barrel. Other contract months settled lower.

"This just adds to the tension in the Middle East," Jim Fiedler, a vice president at E.D.F. • Man International Inc., said of the Israeli report. "The market reacted immediately to it."

Fiedler said the market was concerned over the Palestinians' ability to drive a wedge into the unified front against Iraq. Non-Arab as well as some Arab nations have harshly condemned Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and have been supporting a U.S.-led embargo against Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude oil.

Israel's killing of Palestinians at the Temple Mount holy site earlier this month met with sharp criticism, and Fiedler suggested any further moves by the Israelis against the Palestinians could weaken the United States' position as a leader against the Iraqi invasion.

Several traders said they were exasperated with the wide swings in crude futures prices.

Since the Persian Gulf crisis erupted, the band in which energy prices trade has widened considerably. As long as the crisis remains unresolved, many analysts predict crude prices will continue to swing between $34 and $41 a barrel.

Higher oil prices were behind an 0.8 percent hike in the cost of living last month, according to a Labor Department report released Thursday. It was the second consecutive month of bad U.S. inflation and translates to a 9.5 percent annual rate.

Crude prices have nearly doubled since the invasion largely on speculation that a war would disrupt critical supplies from the Western world's most important source of petroleum.

The market has been influenced by war jitters for weeks on little more than rumors, but to date there have been no hostilities between Iraq and a U.S.-led force deployed in the Gulf.

Some analysts also said an Iraqi offer Thursday to sell oil to anyone for $21 a barrel may have had a minor effect on depressing prices initially. But others dismissed the gesture as propaganda posturing by Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein to gain world sym-

Importance of water forgotten

By STEPHEN PHILLIPS
The University Daily

Everyone knows the importance of a well-balanced diet, but people easily forget the importance of another critical element of sound nutrition, water.

Water is the medium for all body fluids, including blood, the lymph, the digestive juices, urine and perspiration.

Carol Plugge, student health educator at the Student Health Center, said the body's need for water is second in importance only to its need for oxygen.

Adult body weight is approximately 55 to 65 percent water. A 10 percent loss of body water poses significant health risks, and a 20 percent loss could result in death, Plugge said.

The fact that water plays an essential role in the human energy system is something many people do not consider, she said.

"The more we expend, the more we need," Plugge said. "During intense activity, the body can lose up to two liters of water as sweat, and dehydration due to water loss during an activity can have a significant effect on the body's performance."

Because the body's energy production takes place in a fluid environment, the blood, muscles and organs all need water balance to work effectively, Plugge said.

The following recommendations can help ensure your body has adequate water to keep you working in top condition.

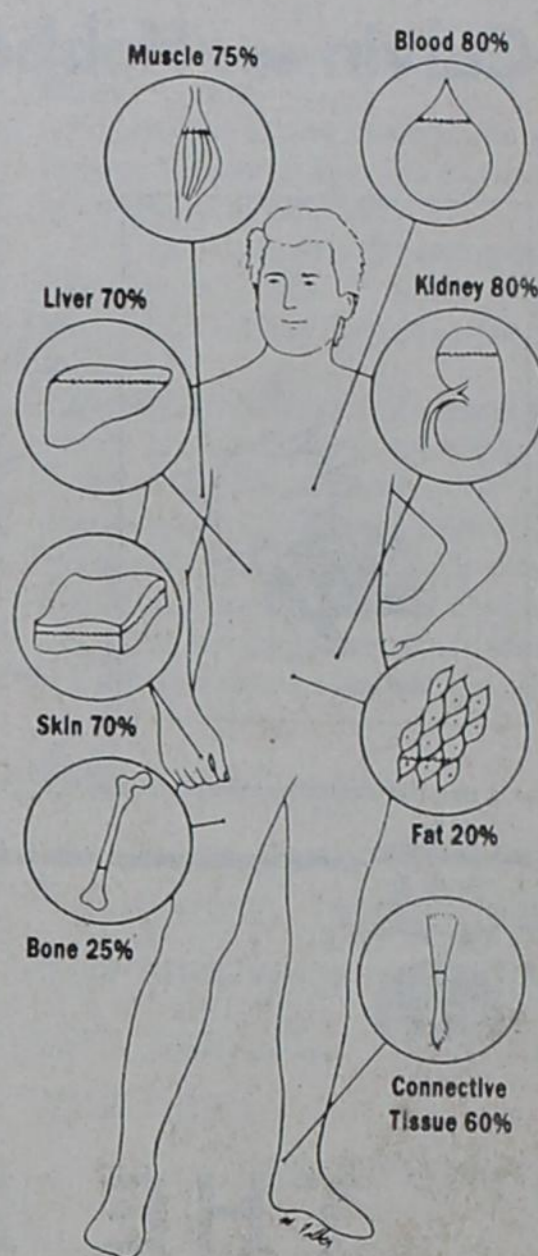

- Drink eight to 10 8-ounce glasses of water or other fluids daily.
- Start drinking before you feel thirsty, because during activity the body loses water faster in sweat than it can absorb into the digestive system.
- Use water to cool your skin during activity.

- Wear light, loose, porous clothing in hot weather to help sweat evaporate.

- Weigh yourself before and after activity; replace the water you have lost with cool fluids.

- Do not count on thirst as an accurate guide to your water needs. You will quench your thirst long before you replenish your body supply.

- Do not try to lose weight by not replacing water lost during activity.

• Do not wear rubberized clothing designed to increase sweating. It cannot help you lose weight; it just prevents sweat from evaporating.

Rare Air brings bagpipe-funk to Hub

By CRISSIE McMENNAMY
The University Daily

Bagpipe-funk. At first these two words appear to have nothing in common. Bagpipes bring forth images of kilts. Funk calls to mind Rick James. When associated with the Canadian musical group Rare Air, however, bagpipe-funk becomes a way of life. These rockin' Canadians will be at the UC Allen Theatre at 8:15 p.m.

Rare Air

(Clockwise from bagpipe) Grier Coppins, Jeff Gill, Christian Frappier, Rich Greenspoon and Patrick O'Gorman.

Saturday to present their original tunes. Tickets are $5 for students and $8 for non-students.

Rare Air's skillful combination of instruments which ordinarily have nothing to do with one another, like bagpipes, keyboards, whistles and wooden flutes, has made the band a popular attraction for a variety of people.

"One of the really neat things about our shows is the diversity in the audience," said Patrick O'Gorman, a member of the band. "From spike-head 16-year-olds to 80-year-old gran-nies who happen to like the bagpipes, we've seen them all."

The five-member group got its start 12 years ago when two childhood buddies decided to take their bagpipe talents beyond the City of Toronto Pipe Band. Now Grier Coppins, Christian Frappier, Jeff Gill, Rich Greenspoon and O'Gorman have collected their talents for five albums featuring original music. Their latest album is called "Primeval."

"Anytime you have a group of five strong-headed people, you're going to have a lot of disagreement, as well as a lot of inspiration," O'Gorman said. "From celebration to war and death, music expresses emotions and that is what we try to capture in our songs."

In addition to capturing emotion, this band certainly captures originality. Offering Celtic instrumentals to the general public might not seem like the quickest path to stardom, but then again, it's not the quickest path to boredom.

"We do what we do and that's what we do," O'Gorman said. "We don't change what we do just to fit in with different types of audiences. If you change your normal attitude just because someone else wants you, then you're not doing what is inside of you. We like to call ourselves the ambassadors of a different way of looking at things, the spreaders of the gospel, as it were."

These non-conformist troubadours of funk have promised to bring the Hub City their best performance.

University-Civic Choir presents night of Brahms

By CRISSE McMENNAMY
The University Daily

Yearning for a little Brahms? The University-Civic Chorale can quench your musical yearning this weekend.

The chorale will perform "The Choral Music of Brahms" at 8:15 p.m. Saturday in the Hemmle Recital Hall of the music building. Tickets for the event are $4 for students and senior citizens and $5 for non-students.

Featuring a variety of Brahms' choral pieces, the choir will present several different textures of music, as well as an array of voices. The female choir members, accompanied by a harp, will be featured in "Four Songs for Women." With "The Alto Rhapsody," written as a setting for a poem by Goethe, the male chorus and alto-soloist Sue Arnold will be spotlighted.

Conducting the 120-member chorale is Kenneth Davis, who insists that although the concert focuses on some deeply profound music, it is enjoyable to all ears.

"It's not an esoteric concert by any means. Brahms was an introspective sort of person and that comes through in his music," Davis said. "The well-versed musician might find tremendous meaning in the music, but someone who doesn't know anything about music would enjoy it also."

The University-Civic Chorale, made up of students, faculty, staff and area residents, performs two concerts each semester. The theme of each performance depends on several factors, the most important of which is diversity.

"As an educator, I try to vary the type of music we perform. If you don't explore new outlets and styles of music, then you can't learn as much," Davis said. "Basically the idea for a concert theme is born out of the desire to do a piece. For instance, the Brahms' selections are absolutely gorgeous, heart-wrenching music. It is the kind of music that gives you back twice what you put into it."

Director of the chorale for the last two years, Davis has numerous ideas for the future of the ensemble. In addition to performing a family-oriented Christmas concert at the Lubbock memorial Civic Center, he would like to do what any other leader of a group would like to accomplish — excellence.

"I have a lot of hopes for this group," Davis said. "The main thing is to continue striving towards excellence and to make the group a more professional ensemble."

Before moving to Lubbock, Davis utilized his musical talents at Western Kentucky University, where he says the students are very similar to Tech students.

"I think that there is a tremendous awareness of the arts here," Davis said.

Kenneth Davis, director, and the University-Civic Chorale prepare for Saturday's performance of "The Choral Music of Brahms," to be presented at 8:15 p.m. in the Hemmle Recital Hall.

Lubbock good source of funny material for big-time comedian

By KIRK BAIRD-PARKS
The University Daily

Wine, musical talent and comedian Jack Mayberry. What do all these things have in common? They're all successful exports from the Hub City.

Jack Mayberry headlines Joe's Froggy Bottoms Comedy Club, 7202 Indiana Ave., in a show featuring Gary Ingles and Carolyn Cooper. Showtimes are 9 p.m. today, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 p.m. Sunday. Ticket prices are $7.50 for today and Saturday and $5 for Sunday.

Mayberry, who describes himself as an observational comedian, said he enjoys leaving his ultra-metropolitan home of Los Angeles.

"It's a fun place to visit but living there is different. I never miss Lubbock but I always enjoy coming back. Still, Los Angeles is where all the business is," he said.

Mayberry's career is currently moving along with appearances on Showtime, VH-1, "My Talk Show," and the pinnacle of success for a comedian, "The Tonight Show," which he describes as "the ultimate comedic high." He's currently in negotiations to appear on "Late Night with David Letterman" and HBO.

"I'm starting to break through and appear on national television. I have a good product. I use a lot of politics because it's a good source for material. The stuff you think sucks, you throwaway," Mayberry said.

Why don't more comedians achieve this level of success coming from the Hub City?

"It's amazing to me that more comedians don't come from here. All there is to do here is to sit around and think," he said.

Regardless of the reasons for his humor, Mayberry said it's fortunate his jokes come naturally.

"My comedy is very dry and subtle. I'm always funny. If jokes aren't working I'll tell the crowd they're not on track."

Mayberry said Lubbock crowds are among his favorites because they're in-tune with the political world and everyday life — a far cry from cities like Los Angeles or New York where people are numbed by the constant stream of new ideas brought to them.

No matter where Mayberry is playing, he finds that jokes about Lubbock — "Lubbock is so flat that on a clear day, you can see the back of your head" — never fail to get laughs.

"People like small-town humor because they can relate to it. Even if you live in a city, it's divided into small communities," he said.

In the future, Mayberry hopes to do some screenwriting and acting. For now, comedy, which he described as a great release, is all he's interested in.

— Jack Mayberry

'Camille Claudel' examines life of French sculptor, relationship with Rodin

By BETH GEORGE
The University Daily

"Camille Claudel," the 1988 film version of the life of French sculptor Camille Claudel (1864-1943), is a richly layered film about the creative rise and fall of a gifted artist. The film focuses primarily on Camille's intense artistic and sexual relationship with French sculptor Auguste Rodin. The film opens in 1885 when Camille (Isabelle Adjani) meets Rodin (Gerard Depardieu). Their meeting is less than cordial, and the young sculptor is not impressed with the older Rodin, who has a reputation as a seducer of young women. Still she realizes he has certain things to offer, including marble for her new endeavors, so she visits his studio.

Rodin's initially brusque attitude belies his interest in the young artist, however, and he makes Camille his apprentice and enlists her help in completing several commissioned works.

Throughout Rodin and Camille's relationship, first as mentor and student then as collaborators and finally as lovers, Rodin draws on Camille for inspiration and artistic strength. She is progressively drained by him emotionally and creatively, and as she becomes consumed by his presence, she concentrates less and less on her own work.

This obsession with Rodin continues after they end their sexual relationship and Camille again takes up her career. She tries unsuccessfully to gain notice in the art world. A stormy reunion with Rodin reveals her obstacle — she is paranoid that Rodin is sabotaging her career, and she accuses him of taking everything from her and being jealous of her work.

Camille continues her descent into insanity, and she isolates herself from the world and Rodin's gang.

Isabelle Adjani, who received an Oscar nomination for her performance in "Camille Claudel" and is one of only a few foreign actresses to be recognized by the Academy in the best actress category, is understandably outstanding. Within Camille, Adjani captures the spirit of a young woman caught in a steamy relationship, as well as the all-consuming creative energy of a gifted artist.

There are several aspects of Camille's life which director Bruno Nuytten only hints at or reveals only briefly. As a result, the film's antagonist is never fully revealed and the oversight is somewhat bothersome.

Historically, critics have been unable to make any definitive attributions concerning certain sculptures produced during Camille and Rodin's relationship due to the similarity of their styles. Rodin apparently drew heavily on Camille's input for several of his works, including "The Burghers of Calais" and "The Gates of Hell," but whether he acted counterproductively towards her career remains in question.

The reasons for Camille's breakdown are equally unclear. Biographers have cited a hereditary strain of madness.

Unfortunately Nuytten fails to firmly choose any of these explanations. Neither does he choose Camille's or Rodin's side, and as a result, the audience is left wondering if Rodin was the villain or if Camille is an anti-hero.

Still, in the end, "Camille Claudel" is a recommendable film. The scoring is beautiful and Adjani is a joy to watch. Nuytten produced a fascinating, if somewhat timorous, look at the intense passion and creative ambitions of Camille Claudel. $$$½.

Sculptor's Father

enigma. They come out firing on all cylinders against Vanderbilt, but proceed to lose the next four games by a combined 151 to 52 margin. Go figure. The Cougars are not piling up as many points as a year ago, but the ole' Run-n-Shoot offense is still one of the most impressive, statistics wise.

The Aggies are their usual tough selves at home, but rather mediocre on the road. Blowing a 17-0 lead against Houston revealed yet another fault in the Texas A&M system, Bucky Richardson. Coach R.C. Slocum's squad definitely needs a quarterback to challenge for the national (and maybe the SWC) crown.

On the other side of the coin, coach Grant Teaff has turned his Bears into something more than a dancing act. Baylor has found new confidence in freshman quarterback J.J. Joe. Makes you wonder what would have happened if Joe would have been ready for the trip to Lincoln, Neb., to meet the Cornhuskers. Baylor has won three of their last four contests.

Tech looks to boost 18-2 mark

By BELLE MILLER
The University Daily

The Texas Tech volleyball team travels to Houston this weekend for its last Southwest Conference road match of the year as they take on Houston at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Tech, which has spent most of the first half of the season away from home, will stay down south to take on Rice at 7 p.m. Monday.

Coach Mike Jones said the trip to Houston is an important one as the Raiders try to improve their 2-2 league record and maintain the conference second-place spot.

"These are our last two conference games on the road," Jones said. "Houston is our biggest challenger for second place in the conference. If we beat them, we'll be in the driver's seat and be able to choose our own destiny."

After a disappointing loss in the highly-regarded rematch against Texas last week, Tech stands 18-2 on the season.

Houston, who was a pre-season Top 20 choice, is 10-8 overall and 3-1 in conference play. The Cougars lost to Texas 3-0 for their only league defeat this season.

"Houston gains a lot of points off of their serves," Jones said. "They are a very athletic team, but they have been plagued by a lot of injuries this year."

against the Owls 12-7.

The Raiders remained at the No. 12 spot this week in the NCAA Volleyball Top 20 Poll. Tech also stayed at No. 19 in the AVCA/Tachikara Volleyball Top 20 Coaches Poll.

Jones said the well-deserved attention the volleyball program has gained around the campus, as well as nationally, helps keep the team's momentum going.

"The crowd support is great," Jones said. "Anytime you get the students and the community behind you, it helps."

Jones said he noticed some areas of improvements in the Raiders game during the home match against the Longhorns.

"They have picked up their level of intensity," Jones said. "They improved their blocking, I noticed against Texas."

The Raiders play their last four conference games at home beginning with Baylor on Oct. 27.

Middle blocker Lisa Clark continues to pace Tech with a hitting percentage at 2.95. Outside hitter Sabrina Zenon leads the Raiders in kill totals with a mark at 209 for the season. Zenon has a kill percentage of 3.37.

Houston has beaten Texas A&M (3-1), Baylor (3-0) and Rice (3-1) in conference action.

The Cougars lead the all-time series record against the Raiders 20-9.

Tech beat Houston once last October and then lost to the Cougars later in the season in a five-game match.

Rice, led by All-American candidate Tricia Bowen, is currently 8-14 overall and 1-3 in conference play.

The Owls beat Baylor three games to one for their lone victory, but lost to A&M and Texas (3-0).

Here it goes again. Texas wins a couple of games and all of a sudden, they are the only team in the SWC that gets any national exposure and respect. The Steers peaked at No. 19 in the AP Poll.

When's the last time the Hogs lost three straight conference games? You have to go back all the way to 1983 when Arkansas lost to Baylor, A&M and SMU on consecutive Saturdays.

Yes, the Razorbacks want revenge from last season, but can they pick themselves off the ground in order to do it and can they keep the Cash twins (Keith and Kerry) out of the endzone?

The game will be shown on Raycom Channel 34 at noon with the Longhorns opening as an eight-point favorite.

John Jenkins' Cougars seem to keep on rolling up the wins, but not up the polls. In the latest Associated Press poll, Houston is ranked only No. 9 with five teams, each with at least one defeat, ahead of them.

Meanwhile in the Metroplex, the Mustangs have turned into an act of sportsmanship is heralded as the biggest largemouth ever caught and released in the state of Texas.

New had the choice to return the fish, mount it, or give it to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Share A Lone Star Lunker (OSLSL) program.

Since the OSLSL does not begin operation until December 1, New opted to return the fish to Fork.

I strongly advocate the catch-and-release process, but this act is more than releasing a fish back into its habitat, it is proof that the program is being used by anglers around the state.

Most professional anglers have been preaching the gospel of the catch-and-release method for years. Rarely do they throw large fish in their livewell.

When anglers return lunkers it shows that people actually care about the future of fishing and not just the pride in having a trophy fish on their wall.

OUTDOOR NOTES
Sheila Martin, promotions coordinator for Buffalo Springs Lake said that although the participation in the Fourth Annual Bass Classic was considerably lower than in past years, the event was very productive for the fishermen involved.

The largest bass of the event was caught by Danny Rodriguez in the fourth hour. His 5.35-pounder won him the $100 hourly big bass award plus $500 for the largest bass caught for the day.

OUTDOOR LETTERS
In response to Kirk Kinzie's question, "what's the deal with KTXI-FM's bashing of your outdoor's column?"

I was not aware of the "bashing" until just recently. I am quite surprised because I had no idea anyone in Lubbock listened to 88.1.

I send an open invitation to any of the little pretties on KTXI's morning show, the "Big Ugly," to fish with me (who, from what I have heard, they affectionately call Hazel) if they have the time.

Fisherman Jerry New of Marshall, who caught a 17-pound, 10.08-ounce largemouth bass in August at Lake Fork, released the lunker back into the lake Wednesday.

Although New missed the Texas state record (17-pounds, 10.7 ounces, caught by Lake Fork guide Mark Stevenson in 1986) by .62 ounces, this

Simpson heads pack at Disney Classic

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Tim Simpson, who revamped his putting stroke overnight, cruised to an 8-under-par 64 Wednesday to take the first-round lead in the Disney Golf Classic. Simpson, who has three PGA Tour victories in 13 years, made nine birdies and a lone bogey over the Lake Buena Vista Course, considered the easiest of the three layouts used in the $1 million event.

Rivers released by NBA's San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have waived guard David Rivers, reducing the team's roster to 14 players.

Rivers, a former Los Angeles Clippers and Lakers reserve, was waived Wednesday after traveling with the Spurs home from a pre-season game in Waco against the Dallas Mavericks.

Rivers averaged 7.3 points in three Spurs exhibition games.

Cowboys agree to terms with Solomon

IRVING (AP) — Holdout linebacker Jesse Solomon has come to terms with the Dallas Cowboys, a team spokesman said Thursday.

Solomon, who already has missed six paychecks, signed a contract and began working out with the team at 2:30 p.m., said Cowboys spokesman Brett Daniels.

Terms of the contract were not released. Solomon had been seeking a significant increase over last year's salary of $460,000.

Solomon, obtained last year from the Minnesota Vikings in the multi-player trade for Cowboys running back Herschel Walker, showed up at Valley Ranch Wednesday to watch practice and talk terms.

Dallas Carter to appeal ruling - again

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Carter High School Thursday appealed a 3rd Court of Appeals ruling that the University Interscholastic League claimed would allow the UIL to strip the school of its 1988 Class 5A state football championship.

In its appeal, attorneys for the Dallas Independent School District contended the UIL has misinterpreted the 3rd Court's ruling and that Carter should be allowed to keep its title.

The appeal was filed after the UIL had invited Carter officials to a Nov. 1 meeting, at which time Carter could be ordered to relinquish its 1988 title, UIL officials said.

Cincinnati surprises Athletics; heads to Bay area with 2-0 lead

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — It came down to the Brash Brothers against the Bash Brothers, and brash won out.

Rob Dibble, he of the 100 mph fastball, finally got the challenge he had awaited Wednesday night. He got to face Oakland's Jose Canseco with the potential go-ahead run at first base in the ninth inning of a tied game.

Brash prevailed.

Dibble got Canseco to hit into a double play, then struck out Mark McGwire to set the stage for the Cincinnati Reds' 5-4 victory in 10 innings of Game 2.

"As far as the offense is concerned, we got it going early today, then all of a sudden nothing happened. That's not us," McGwire said. "That's not the Oakland A's."

That is the way the Nasty Boys operate.

Dibble had looked forward to facing Canseco and McGwire in the Series, noting last week that people were predicting 600-foot homers off of him. "I can't wait," he said.

When he relieved in the ninth, Carney Lansford led off with a soft single to right. Up came Canseco, who already had a monstrous homer to right field to his credit in the game.

Ultimately, Canseco came up a whole lot of feet short of that 600-foot barrier. His routine grounder to short brought two outs, and McGwire fanned on a high fastball to end the A's last and best threat.

SWC's seasonal crossroads come into sight for Raiders, Owls

By MIKE PENDER
The University Daily

When the Texas Tech football squad squares off against the Rice Owls in Houston Saturday, second-year coach Fred Goldsmith will look for revenge.

Since the Red Raiders joined the Southwest Conference in 1960, Tech has dominated the series 21-8-1, including 13 wins in the last 15 meetings.

In Goldsmith's brief stints as defensive coordinator at Air Force and Arkansas, his units enjoyed relative success against the Raiders.

Goldsmith's Owls, who are 2-4 overall and 0-3 in SWC play, feature quality talent in quarterback

Donald Hollas, running back Trevor Cobb and wide receiver Eric Henley.

In the six games to date, Hollas has amassed 1,279 yards passing with 108 completions on 188 attempts. He also has thrown for five touchdowns, but his 12 interceptions leads the SWC.

Hollas has averaged 213.2 yards passing per game (No. 4 in the SWC), but the interceptions have spoiled his quarterback rating. Through last week, he is ranked as the league's tenth rated signal-caller with a rating of 110.6.

Sophomore running back Cobb, who was named SWC Player of the Week after his 271 all-purpose yards against Wake Forest, has rushed for an average of 105.8 yards per game and six touchdowns.

Henley, who caught nine passes for 93 yards in the 24-22 loss to Houston three weeks ago, is ranked No. 12 in the nation in receptions per game.

Although the Raiders will key on stopping the Owl offense, the Rice defense has proved difficult to score on thus far this season, holding opponents to 23.3 points per game.

Senior linebacker O.J. Brigance leads the Owls in tackles with 62. He recently became Rice's all-time leading tackler with 16 tackles in the losing effort to Texas.

Rice's defense has given up an average of 130 yards per game rushing (No. 3 in the SWC), but the problem comes on pass defense, where they are last in the conference, rendering an average of 269.5 yards per outing.

Tech is coming off a 49-44 victory over Arkansas in Fayetteville, Ark., in which the offense racked up 582 total yards against the stumbling Razorbacks.

The Raiders (2-4, 1-3) shattered five Tech football records with the win.

Raider quarterback Jamie Gill is coming off his best game of his career at Tech, passing for 337 yards and three touchdowns. Gill also rushed for another two scores.

Gill should split time at quarterback with redshirt-freshman Robert Hill.

Junior split end Rodney Blackshear continues to perform well for the Raiders, both catching passes on offense and returning

C ya!

Tech's Rodney Blackshear breezes through the Arkansas secondary en route to a touchdown in the Raiders' 49-44 win last Saturday. Rice is next on the Tech menu as they head to Houston to take on the Owls Saturday in Rice Stadium. Both teams are 2-4 on the season, but the Raiders are 1-3 in the SWC, while the Owls stand at 0-3.

kicks on special teams.

Junior tailback Anthony Lynn leads the Raiders in rushing, averaging 100.8 rushing yards per contest.

Freshman wide receiver Lloyd

Hill is scheduled to miss Saturday's game and junior cornerback Sammy Walker is listed as questionable.

THE FORDS HAVE ALWAYS DRIVEN VOLKSWAGENS.

Ask Kimo Ford why he bought a Volkswagen and get ready for some family history.

"Everyone in my family has driven a Volkswagen at one time or another. My dad had a Microbus. My mom and sister both drove Beetles. And my brother, who's also a student, drives an '83 Volkswagen Rabbit.

"So when I saved enough money to buy a car there was only one logical choice. A Volkswagen. If you ask me, it's the perfect student's car. Good on gas. Big enough to carry four friends. And fun to drive."

Fun to drive? Sounds like Fahrvergnügen. To experience it for yourself, just follow the Fords to your Volkswagen dealer.
