Thomas narrowly wins Supreme Court confirmation

by JAMES ROWLEY
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Clarence Thomas won Senate confirmation for the Supreme Court Tuesday night on a 52-to-48 vote, overcoming explosive accusations of sexual harassment to become the second black justice in history.

With crucial help from Southern Democrats, Thomas will take his seat as the 106th justice, a staunchly conservative successor to one of the court's last liberals.

The vote ended one of the angriest, most emotionally charged confirmation battles ever.

Thomas said he wanted to put the ordeal behind him.

"This is more a time for healing, not a time for anger or for animus or animosity," Thomas said, standing outside his house with his wife, Virginia, under an umbrella in the rain.

"I guess in so many ways, as I say to my wife so many times, I'd like to thank America," said Thomas, who rose from rural poverty in Georgia to prominence in government.

Thomas had been accused by law professor Anita Hill of making unwanted advances and humiliating her with lewd remarks a decade ago when she worked for him at the Education Department and Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Her surprise charges brought an abrupt halt to the Senate's plans to vote on Thomas' nomination a week ago.

Thomas emphatically denied the charges and complained he was the victim of a "high-tech lynching." The nation was transfixed as the accusations were spelled out in explicit detail and debated in nationally televised hearings.

In Oklahoma, Hill said she was satisfied she had been "able to go out and tell what I knew true." She also said she was pleased that national awareness of sexual harassment had been raised.

"What I hope is that none of this will deter others from coming forward. This is an important issue and the dialogue will not stop here," she said.

Supporters and opponents alike said in advance that Thomas would be confirmed, but President Bush worked the telephone, lobbying against last-minute defections. "The White House has a lot of clout," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt.

A federal appeals court judge, Thomas was nominated to succeed retired Justice Thurgood Marshall. He would become the nation's 106th Supreme Court justice and the second black, after Marshall, to sit on the high court.

Hill's charges, which resulted in a week's delay in the confirmation vote, defined the final hours of Senate debate.

"If we make a mistake today the Supreme Court will be living with it and the nation will be living with it for the next 30 to 40 years," argued Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Texas senators take opposite sides on Thomas' final vote

by MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Texas senators stood squarely on opposite sides of the issue Tuesday as the Senate voted 52-48 to confirm Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas.

Democrat Lloyd Bentsen voted against Thomas — though not because of the sexual harassment allegations that swirled around the conservative judge, he said.

Hours after blaming the Democrats for perverting the confirmation process, Republican Sen. Phil Gramm cast his ballot in favor of Thomas, only the second black appointed to the high court.

Bentsen said, "I voted against Judge Thomas because of the contradictions between the strong views he expressed in earlier speeches and articles and his answers to questions during confirmation hearings."

"In addition, he has only minimum qualifications to serve on the highest court in the land. There are far more qualified individuals the president could have chosen."

Gramm said Democrats ambushed Thomas with a "last-minute political charge."

"When we get into politics and philosophy rather than into basic competence and character, we basically pervert the process," Gramm said.

Tech faculty reaction varied

by JULIE COLLINS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Judge Clarence Thomas was confirmed to the Supreme Court bench last night in one of the closest confirmation votes in United States history.

Despite continuing controversy brought about by University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill, Thomas was confirmed by a 52-48 vote.

Victor Hernandez, chair of the Mexican American Democrats of Lubbock, said he hopes Thomas is really a closet liberal and not a standing conservative.

"I don't feel he is qualified for the position on the Supreme Court. He does not have enough judicial experience dealing with cases that come before the Supreme Court," Hernandez said.

He said representation on the Supreme Court needs to reflect the nation's demographic makeup. Approximately 50 percent of individuals in the United States are women, and Hernandez said a woman would have better served the representation of women in the United States than Thomas.

Randy Reddick, a Texas Tech mass communications professor, said Thomas will prove to be a fine judge, despite liberal opposition.

"He will work out to be one of the stronger judges on the bench," Reddick said.

He said Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, were instrumental in leaking Hill's charge of sexual harassment to the press.

"Metzenbaum and Kennedy were desperate to torpedo Thomas' confirmation," Reddick said.

Motivation behind the senators opposition toward Thomas was largely political, dealing with the conservative swing of the Supreme Court, he said.

During the confirmation hearings, Reddick said the actions of senators on the Senate Judiciary Committee did not mirror the actions of Thomas.

"It was disgusting how they treated Judge Thomas. He handled himself well in front of the committee. He came out of the hearings better than the Senate did," Reddick said.

Hunting for dirty laundry on an individual nominated for the Supreme Court is not necessarily bad, Reddick said, but he added that the way Hill's charge was handled was a disgrace.

Judith Henry, assistant vice-president of student affairs and dean of students, said she is willing to give Thomas a chance to prove himself on the Supreme Court bench before she passes a personal judgement.

"People will be watching Thomas closely to see what kind of Supreme Court judge he will make," Henry said.

Lubbock seeking most efficient recycling method

by JENNIFER SANDER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

In compliance with House Bill 1340, sponsored by Gov. Ann Richards, the city of Lubbock is evaluating several methods of recycling to determine the best and most cost efficient recycling program for Lubbock.

The H.B. 1340 states that by 1994, every municipality must recycle at least 40 percent of its waste.

The City of Lubbock Solid Waste Management Department is in charge of a pilot residential recycling program that divides the city into two divisions with separate recycling methods in each division in an attempt to determine which program works best for Lubbock.

The two divisions are called The Heart of Lubbock Neighborhood Division and the Unit Neighborhood Division.

The Unit division includes 19th Street, 34th Street, Indiana Avenue and University Avenue. The Heart of Lubbock division extends from 19th Street to Avenue Q. It operates under the blue bag separate collection program, in which residents are instructed to place recyclable materials in a blue bag provided by the city and put it beside a trash dumpster. The solid waste department will pick up the bag.

The heart division also places recyclable materials into blue bags, however residents place the bag inside the dumpster for collection. The two methods are being evaluated to see which is most cost effective.

Robert Medigovich, recycling manager for the pilot program, said that so far, the heart division has not participated as much as the unit division. He attributed this to a language barrier due to the large Hispanic populace in the unit division.

The city has collected 70,000 pounds of recyclable material from the unit division and 12,000 pounds from the heart division. Medigovich said that he is seeing improvement from the heart division.

The solid waste department recycles newspapers without inserts, rinsed aluminum and tin cans and rinsed plastic food and beverage containers that are marked with a recyclable symbol.

When the evaluation is completed, Medigovich said he will take the results to the city council and draft a proposal to determine which method works the best for Lubbock.

Besides the two residential recycling divisions, the department also sponsors recycling programs such as Goodwill sites, Christmas tree pickups and waste-oil recycling.

The Goodwill sites are the most efficient and most used method of recycling, Medigovich said. People can drop off their recyclables at any Goodwill collection site 24 hours a day. He said 81,000 pounds of recyclables have been collected.

"This looks like the way to go," he said. "This method is doing more recycling in the least amount of time."

The waste oil program involves placing waste oil into a recycling barrel set up by the department. People can dump waste oil from a car oil change. An oil company from Brownfield picks up the oil and reuses it.

Medigovich said this is important because one quart of oil can contaminate large amounts of water. When people dump waste oil on the ground or in a trash dumpster, there is a possibility of it leaking into the water system.

He added that Lubbock is one of the few cities who participates in oil recycling. So far, the Brownfield oil company has picked up more than 10,000 gallons of waste oil.

"We have the leading edge in this area," he said. "People think that West Texas would not know much about recycling, but that is false. We are creating much foresight on the recycling arena."

The department also collects Christmas trees from Dec. 26 to Jan. 6 and recycles them. They chop the wood into mulch and use it in the city parks. Medigovich said it has a two-fold effect because the trees are out of the landfill and providing mulch for the park that the city does not have to pay for.

Another form of the "recycling craze" in Lubbock is with the fast food chains. Most are switching their products such as their sacks and food containers to recyclable material only.

Mark Crayne, district manager for Burger King, said the switch has not been profitable money-wise, but it is an environmentally sound practice.

"Using recyclable material is actually costing us more money now," he said. "We may break even on it, but it is one of those things you do because it is right."

Sources say Baker on verge of Mideast peace conference deal

by BARRY SCHWEID
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAMASCUS, Syria — Secretary of State James A. Baker was on the verge Tuesday of sealing arrangements for a Mideast peace conference to open in Lausanne, Switzerland, on Oct. 29, U.S. and other diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

Even as Baker was holding extended talks with Syria's president Hafez Assad, the sources said the Swiss city would be the site barring last-minute hitches in Baker's diplomacy. The open questions rested primarily on the issue of Palestinian participation.

The sources, declining to be identified, said the opening negotiations would be in Lausanne, and the parties — Israel, the Arab States and Palestinians — would then decide whether to continue there.

Switzerland was an acceptable choice because of its long history of neutrality, officials said.

Initially, Israel preferred Washington, while Egypt and other sites were under consideration. Argentina had even offered Buenos Aires for the peace talks.

After more than seven hours of talks with Assad, a key player in the Arab-Israeli dispute there was no word on whether Baker had been able to take care of the final details for Syrian participation.

College of Education preparing for accreditation

by STEPHEN ARMOUR
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

To prepare for its accreditation by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, the College of Education is currently collecting information on its programs for the review process in 1994.

"This is a process whereby our peers review (the college) for national accreditation our programs, graduates, resources, various admission procedures and our faculty to see if we meet the standards established around the country as professionally appropriate and sound," said Larry Hovey, associate dean for undergraduate studies.

"This is similar to what professional schools of all sorts go through," Hovey added. "Receiving national accreditation is a very rigorous review that is very appropriate for our programs, faculty and students."

Hovey said the NCATE is the overall review body for the accreditation, although it is associated with various other official organizations who look at special programs.

"For example, the National Science Teachers Association looks at the science education program," Hovey said. "The basic programs at the undergraduate level will be looked at as well as the advanced programs at the graduate level. Any program from which we offer certification will be reviewed."

He said the accreditation review process is lengthy and ongoing.

"Our focus is to maintain the professionally established standards at all times," Hovey said. "This review process by NCATE comes around every few years. We are not trying to amass information just to be impressive.

This is what professional schools of all sorts go through.

— Larry Hovey

These standards are important and need to be maintained semester by semester and year by year."

Hovey added that the standards give the college something to work toward although it is often difficult to do.

"I am involved in this review process for two reasons," Hovey said. "First, I am the certification officer for the university, meaning I am intricately involved with the certification programs across the university."

Now that I have your attention, I'd like to tell you about today's MEET THE MEDIA extravaganza, taking place at 1:30 p.m. in the University Center's Senate room. Representatives from The University Daily (editorial and advertising), La Ventana and KTXT-FM will be on hand to answer any and all questions from Texas Tech students, faculty and staff.

Why are we doing this, you may ask? We want to make contact. Contact with the students, contact with the University. Our primary concern is the campus, and direct comment from the campus is the best way to know what kind of a job we're doing. By attending MEET THE MEDIA, you can find out how stories get into the paper, and how we decide to cover campus organizations. If you feel your organization — or any other topic — is not getting any coverage, you can find out what you can do about it. You can find out about student advertising rates. How to place a classified, how to buy a full-page ad. You can find out how the music played on KTXT-FM is selected, or how to get a public service announcement run.

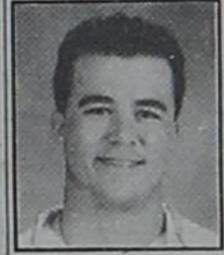

Top Ten Reasons to attend MEET THE MEDIA:

10. Meet cool media personalities who may one day be famous (or infamous, depending on the individual).
 9. Get extra credit on certain mass communication classes.
 8. Find out how we figure out how many trees we have to kill to put out one issue of The University Daily.
 7. Great excuse to skip class.
 6. Discover ulterior motives for the removal of the socio-destructive, subliminally communist strip Calvin and Hobbes.
 5. Ask about that neat daily crossword puzzle we're planning to buy.
 4. Kirk Baird-Parks will be nowhere to be found.
 3. Free handouts from The UD, La Ventana and KTXT-FM.
 2. Clarence Thomas confirmation hearings on C-SPAN over.

Tech faculty and students must take cycling routes seriously

ERIC D. SÁNCHEZ

Recently, there have been several articles written in by students who are concerned about the lack of and need for a bike trail on the Texas Tech campus.

As a senator representing the College of Arts and Sciences, I have had several students inquire to me what actions or procedures must be taken to try to resolve this problem.

Art Glick, our university architect, suggested a few proposals, but they had their share of problems:

The first proposal was to establish a curbside lane along all the streets within the Texas campus.

But a problem exists with cars parking along the street and buses pulling over to drop off and pick up students. Moreover, students crossing the streets into the curbside lane would conflict with cyclists riding in that particular lane.

Another proposal was to establish a bike trail on the sidewalks themselves. But, problems exist about cyclists hitting students or vice versa.

Finally, with the budget cuts that Texas Tech must endure for the next fiscal year, construction of these bike trails will prove to be difficult. Art Glick did, by the way, have some encouraging news.

If any student (especially a transfer student from another university) has any ideas or has seen a campus bike trail work effectively with pedestrians, motorists, and cyclists, then Mr. Glick would happily give it consideration.

Any proposal would be helpful. The students and administration of this university must take this problem seriously in order to avoid serious accidents with pedestrians, cyclists, motorists, or all three.

Note: If any student is interested in submitting a bike trail proposal, please call Art Glick, the university architect at 742-3803 or the Student Association at 742-3631.

"Tell Spike, he's fired!"

Congratulations, Spike! The Red Raiders really rode those Mustangs this weekend. At first, I thought that T. Jones might have hired a new head football coach, but then I realized that SMU has not been playing for five years due to the "death penalty."

With all due respect, you HAD to win this football game, otherwise, there would have been "Spike bashing" all this week.

Everyone I have talked with seems to agree that it is time for some "new blood." Before I end this letter, I would like to make two final comments.

First, I would like to thank The UD staff for not printing Spike's

"Excuse of the Week" and I have a new slogan that would drastically increase attendance at Tech football games: Tell Spike, he's fired!

P.S. I recorded the victory bells so I would not forget what they sounded like.

Student Senate allocates $139,000 for organizations

NICK FEDERSPIEL

The Student Senate allocated $139,900 to be used this year by 105 organizations. This week is the deadline for organizations to request a re-allocation of their 199-92 funding.

Organizations are entitled, once every fiscal year, to request a re-allocation. The request for a re-allocation, in order to be considered, must be:

- 1) typed
- 2) dated, and signed by the organization's president and adviser
- 3) addressed to Senate Committee on Budget and Finance
- 4) Important: Reason for re-allocation must be stated in request
- 5) submitted to Student Association Office
- 6) submitted by 5 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 18, 1991.

It is important for organizations to remember that reasons for the re-allocation must be included in the request.

If re-allocation requests are submitted by the established deadline, the Committee on Budget and Finance will then consider the request.

Organizations are encouraged to take the time this week to consider requesting a re-allocation if needed.

The committee is not obligated to change the allocation.

The final decision of whether or not a change is justified rests with the committee.

As the budget has been finalized,

The 1991-92 Committee on Budget and Finance is comprised of the following nine senators:

- Nick Federspiel, Chairman, Arts and Sciences;
- Chip Adami, Vice Chairman, Business Administration;
- Elena Perales, Secretary, Arts and Sciences;
- Heather Bunkley, Agricultural Sciences (appointed);
- Rocky Clinton, Arts and Sciences;
- Kendra Cook, Graduate School
- Tate Elliott, Business Administration;
- Joe Johnston, Arts and Sciences; and,
- Rusty Thompson, Engineering.

an increase in the total allocation is not possible.

All re-allocation requests are subject to the committee's approval.

If a re-allocation is approved by the committee, the request will then be submitted to the Senate for consideration. In this process, the committee will recommend that the Senate amend the process, the committee will recommend that the Senate amend the 1991-92 Organization Funding Bill, Senate Bill 26.44.

Organizations are encouraged to take the time this week to consider requesting a re-allocation if needed. This week is the last available time for such action.

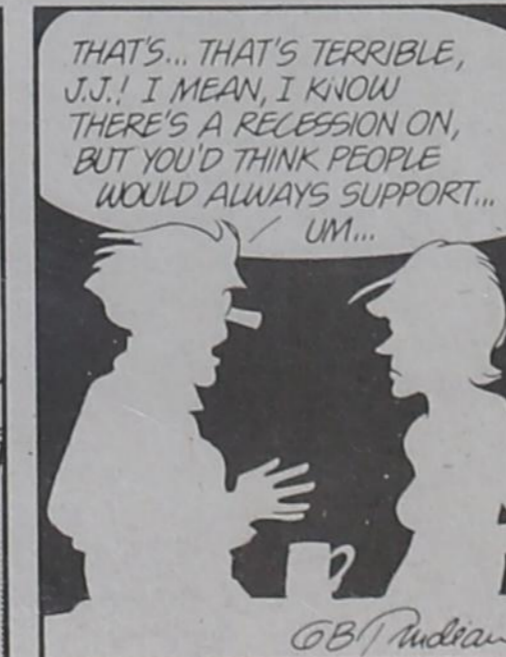

All requests must be submitted to the SA office by 5 p.m. this Friday, Oct. 18.

Please contact the Student Association at 742-3631 should you need further information.

Youth hostels reduce foreign travel costs

by AMY COLLINS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech students wishing to travel abroad but wanting to avoid the high costs of hotels may consider staying in one of the more than 5,300 youth hostels in 59 European and South American countries.

Theresa Barfield, a senior political science major from Stephenville, has participated in the youth hostel program while on an exchange program in France.

"I did not have a lot of money to spend on traveling," she said. "Youth hostels gave me the opportunity of having a safe place to stay and saving money for touring the sights of Paris."

The average cost of overnight fees for a hostel varies from $7 to $10 a night, although youth hostels in Paris average $16 a night.

Barfield said prior to leaving the United States for the Universite Deaix Marseille III she received numerous tips from Tech's Office of International Affairs on inexpensive places to stay, eat and tour.

"Everything in France is very expensive," she said. "Especially the hotels."

Barfield stayed in youth hostels in the French Alps and in Paris, and said she came across a lot of American students staying in youth hostels.

"I met a lot of diverse students who I proceeded to travel with to some of the sights around the city," Barfield said. "However, I think the hostels are used primarily by backpacking tourists."

Barfield recommended that students interested in traveling abroad invest in a youth hostel card which is available in the Office of International Affairs.

"I did not have a card and I had to pay a lot of fees which I could have avoided had I purchased a card at Tech," she said. "It may cost you money now, but it definitely saves you money in the long run."

She said students should not expect some of the comforts associated with staying in a motel because the hostels are very similar to dorm-style living.

"Some hostels charge people for their sheets and shower privileges," she said.

"I was lucky because I did have sheets and shower privileges."

Barfield said she avoided youth hostels in France that had a curfew because traveling abroad means seeing as many sights as possible at all times of the day.

"I realize curfews are for everyone's safety," she said.

"However, there is always a certain risk to traveling abroad regardless of where you stay."

She said a fear she had when staying at the hostels was the safety of her property because staying with strangers always means a risk of theft.

Barfield suggests that students be informed of the hostels they plan on staying in to avoid last minute surprises.

"I recommend students register early in the day for admittance into a youth hostel," she said. "I ended up sleeping in the Paris airport one evening, because I waited too long before trying to find a hostel to stay in."

She said her experience traveling abroad was one of the most difficult yet most rewarding experiences.

"I was completely on my own and was responsible for my decisions," she said.

"My outlook about my country as well as others changed dramatically as a result of my travels."

Texas commission selected to overhaul crime, punishment laws

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — A new commission charged with overhauling Texas laws on crime and punishment must make sure there is enough room in Texas prisons so violent criminals serve their full sentence, state leaders said Tuesday.

"The emphasis must be on reserving our maximum security prison space for the most violent offenders," Gov. Ann Richards said as she announced appointments to the Texas Punishment Standards Commission.

The 25-member commission, established by the recent state prison bill, will propose legislation in 1993 to rewrite the state penal code.

"Our criminal justice system is broken," Richards said.

"Texans are fed up with the spectacle of violent offenders being released from prison after serving only a fraction of their sentence. They are frustrated and angry with the revolving doors in our prison system."

The panel will study punishments for criminal offenses in Texas, sentencing practices in Texas criminal courts, prison construction costs, jail and prison overcrowding, and parole laws.

"This commission has the opportunity to restore some rationality to the way we go about sentencing criminals in this state," Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said.

"In doing so, their overriding concern must be to ensure that violent criminals in Texas serve the time — not just a fraction of it — that they deserve," he said.

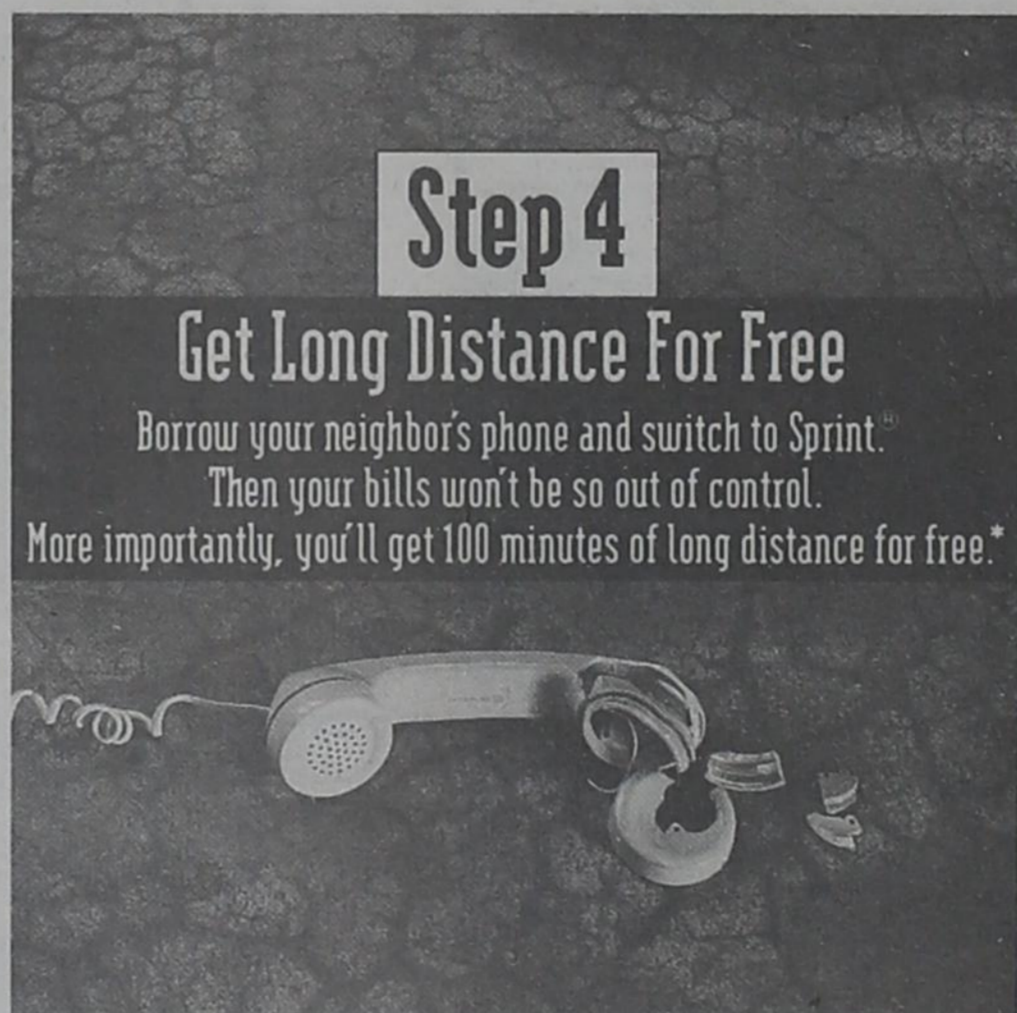

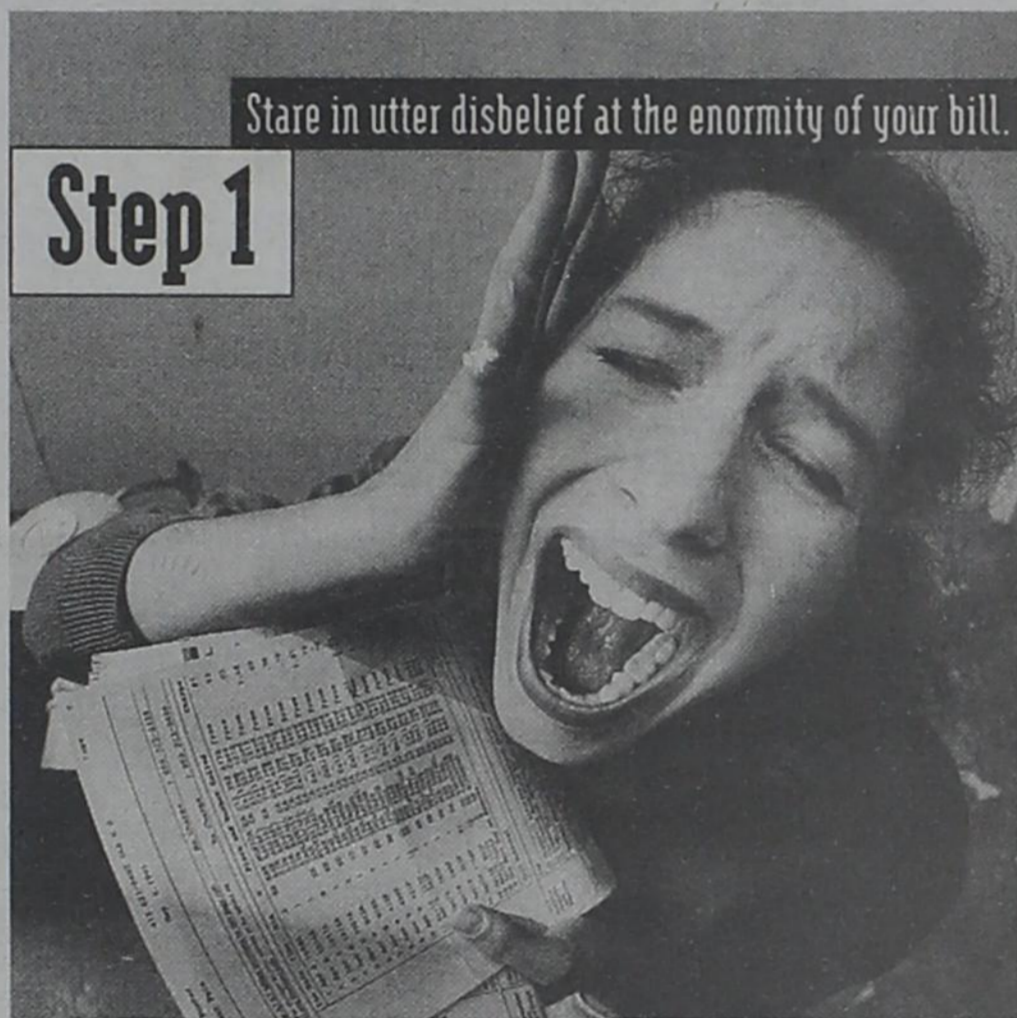

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said the new panel "must develop a comprehensive, long-range strategy that will allow Texans to once again feel safe in their homes and their neighborhoods."

The panel includes five state senators, five House members and 15 public members.

The senators, all Democrats, are Tellis of Houston, Ted Lyon of Rockwall, Jim Turner of Crockett, and John Whitmire of Houston.

The House members are Bill Carter of Fort Worth, Al Granoff of Dallas, Allen Hightower of Huntsville, Sam Russell of Mt. Pleasant, and Mark Stiles of Beaumont.

Memorial Quilt makes Lubbock appearance

by LYDIA GUARJARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

This is not one of the colorful quilts that Grandma made for children still in diapers, rather a quilt formed of lives lost to an overpowering and large epidemic — AIDS.

The University Center Ballroom will be the home of The NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt beginning Thursday and continuing until Tuesday. Opening ceremonies for the exhibition will be at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the UC Ballroom and is open to anyone who wishes to be a part of the traditional opening of the exhibition.

The schedule for the quilt's display begins at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, and continues from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday through Tuesday and 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Sunday.

The opening ceremony will consist of the reading of the names on the panels of the quilt. The exhibition displays 210 panels of the 14,000-member quilt. Each three foot by six foot panel consists of a remembrance of a single person.

"The ceremony will be a moving experience," said Alan Bojorquez, co-chairperson for the exhibition. "It is powerful to see the people just standing there in amazement and awe over the panels and that is just over a small sample of panels."

To create a panel a person may either paint or sew the name of the AIDS victim and special memories or qualities the person may have had on a quilt. Various pieces of memorabilia from their life can also be placed on the quilt.

Many of the segments of the quilt consist not only of the names of the victims, but also of pictures, credit cards and clothing pieces. Some of the panels also have remembrances such as cremation ashes of the victims, all of which create a somber and grieving feeling when viewing the quilt.

For those who wish to view a sample of a quilt, the UC Programs has displayed a quilt of a local AIDS victim in the display window in the entry of the UC.

The quilt commemorates the life of Max Blakney, a former Texas Tech student, who died recently of AIDS. Blakney was a former Student Association president and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity in the late 1960s.

Along with Blakney's panel, there will be other panels of area and regional AIDS victims included in the exhibition.

"Several people have already called from Odessa, Houston and San Antonio who have requested certain panels and said they were driving to see the exhibit," Bojorquez said.

Not only does the quilt include panels from the area and state, but there also are a number of panels from around the world ranging from Australia, to Japan.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt exhibit kicks off the annual AIDS Awareness Week. Several organizations both on and off campus are sponsors of the week which is used to promote and educate the Tech and Lubbock community about AIDS. The week's schedule will consist of two panel discussions, two radio shows on KOHM-FM and three performances of "Remember My Name."

"We have crammed a lot of things into one week in hopes to promote education opportunities for people all over the community," Bojorquez said. "This has turned into a community effort of different groups on campus and around town."

Among the information handed out at the discussions, a package of brochures and information sheets on AIDS will be dispersed at the exhibit and at the opening and closing ceremonies of the display.

The package will have instructions to follow to submit a panel to the quilt and an updated brochure with AIDS information from former U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop.

Not only is this an exhibit for people to view various names of AIDS victims who have since passed away, it is an attempt to make people aware of the seriousness and impact this epidemic has had on the country and the rest of the world.

"The quilt is a means of dealing with the sorrow of losing someone to AIDS as well as making people aware of the problem there is with AIDS," Bojorquez said.

Today, there have been approximately 167,803 cases AIDS reported in the United States and 106,361 deaths reported from the disease.

Internationally, there have been 1,300,000 cases and 500,000 deaths related to AIDS.

We are not trying to take a stand on the issue but inform and educate the public.

— Kevin Kelly

KOHM-FM (89.1) began its three-part series of hosting shows concerning the AIDS epidemic Saturday.

The series' first program, which was affiliated with the AIDS Awareness Week sponsored by University Center Programs and various organizations that are members of the HIV/AIDS Issues Awareness Committee.

featured a representative from South Plains AIDS Resource Center. The interview covered topics dealing with identifying AIDS and its symptoms, dealing with AIDS and educating people about the epidemic.

"We talked about defining AIDS, educating about AIDS and the difficulty involved in educating," said Kevin Kelly, public affairs director and radio show host. "It is difficult to educate children of today because there is only so much that the schools will do."

This week's show, which will air Saturday, will feature a member of the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt Organization which is based in San Francisco. Most of the show will focus on the AIDS Quilt on display beginning Thursday in the UC Ballroom.

The final show, which will air the Oct. 26, will feature an AIDS-infected victim. The show will focus on dealing both physically and emotionally with having AIDS.

Kelly said he hopes the shows will inform and enlighten the listeners on the subject.

"We are not trying to take a stand on the issue but inform and educate the public," he said. "Hopefully we will bring the issue a little closer to home."

Landmark celebrates anniversary

by CATHERINE DUNN
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Lubbock Lake Landmark volunteers will demonstrate how Indians cooked with hot rocks in the stomach of bisons during special guided tours as part of the landmark's anniversary celebration throughout the remainder of the week.

In addition to celebrating the 52nd anniversary since the archeological site was first excavated in 1939, the first anniversary since Lubbock Lake Landmark was named a state park and the Robert A. Nash Interpretive Center opening are also being celebrated.

The center, located at the site, interprets the prehistory and the history of the area for the past 12,000 years, said April McDowell, assistant education program manager for Lubbock Lake Landmark.

McDowell said both guided tours and self-guided tours are offered every day through Sunday.

Interpretive plaques are provided on the self-guided tour, which follows the perimeter of the reservoir, she said.

The guided tours lead visitors past excavation and washing areas and include demonstrations of different Indian cultures.

This year's demonstrations include pottery and basket making, beadworking and the use of every part of the bison in the daily routines of ancient cultures. A simulation of the excavation process is also given during the tours.

McDowell said the highlight of the guided tour consists of a presentation by Ray Olachia, a Mescalero Apache Indian. He demonstrates flintknapping, the making of stone tools, and the Apache Indian way of life.

Dow Chemical Company in Lake Jackson, where Olachia works, sponsored his visit both this year and last year.

"We're trying to stress in our tours some of the activities done in the past. It's part of our heritage," McDowell said. "It's important to study our past in order to better understand ourselves and prepare for the future."

She said tours have been given for 400 Lubbock students every day since the tours began last Friday. The Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife waived the $2 fee for students this week.

Drop-in tours are available throughout the day between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Sunday.

The guided tours leave once every hour. McDowell said visitors should try to reserve a few hours in order to see everything available.

In order to schedule a tour for school and private groups, contact Claudia Cory, museum education specialist, at 742-2456.

The park is located at Northwest Loop 289 and Clovis Highway. For more information, contact the education office at the Robert A. Nash Interpretive Center at 742-1116.

Despite Pacino, Pfeiffer 'Frankie and Johnny' predictable, unoriginal

by CHAD DUERKSEN
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Romantic comedies have become the favorite in the public eye. The success of both the implausible "Pretty Woman" and the predictable "Ghost" has opened a new genre of films, although the latter did emphasize the supernatural, nonetheless.

Garry Marshall, creator of TV's "Laverne and Shirley" and director of such lightweight pieces as "The Flamingo Kid," "Overboard" and "Pretty Woman," has apparently gotten stuck in a niche. His latest film, "Frankie and Johnny," is yet another romance between two unlikely people caught up in the fast life of New York City. It is neither visionary nor original, but occasionally rises to the level of predictability. In fact, the only thing that saves this cliched story is the eye-opening performances by both leads, Al Pacino and Michelle Pfeiffer.

Both Pacino and Pfeiffer have had tougher, more demanding roles. Pacino, probably best remembered for his Oscar-nominated performances in "The Godfather" trilogy and "Dog Day Afternoon," stated recently that he would like to change his image by taking more comedic, light-hearted roles. As Johnny, Pacino has surely toned down his style and is often quite amusing, although the lack of a good script makes him even less memorable.

Pfeiffer, fresh from her Oscar-winning role in "Dangerous Liaisons" and nominated role in "The Fabulous Baker Boys," looks comfortable with her character, Frankie.

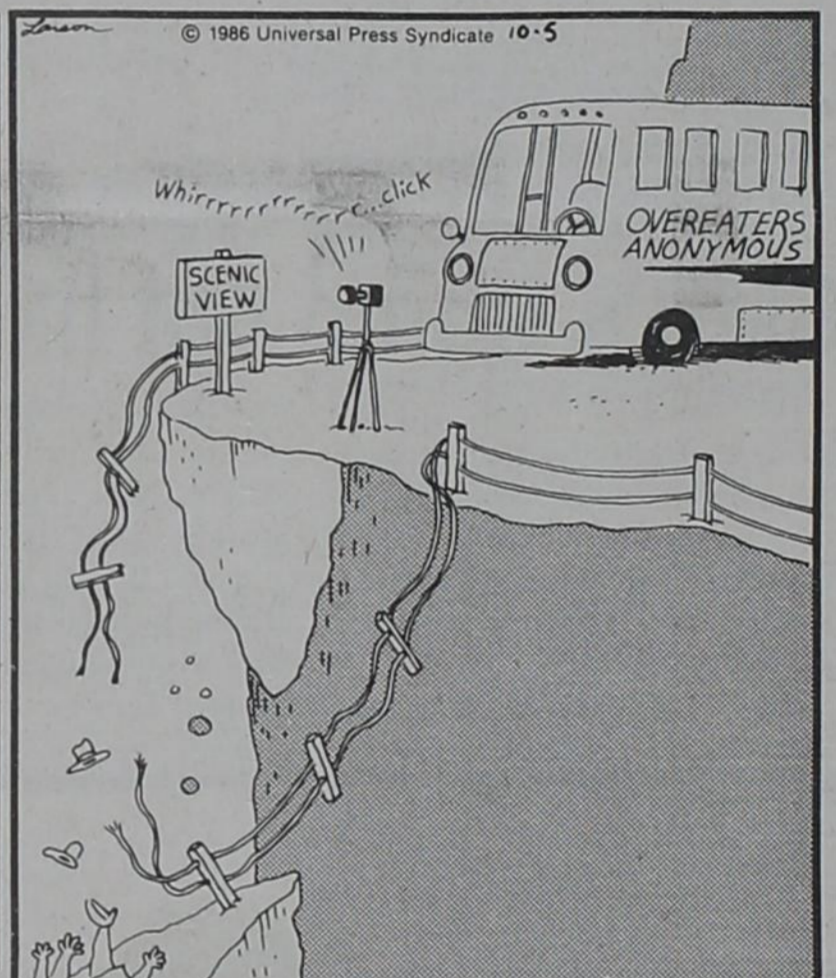

The film is basically a one-tone love story between Frankie, a waitress at a small diner, and Johnny, who was just released from prison and becomes a chef at the same diner.

AP players of the week Cobb snags top honors after 171-yard showing HOUSTON (AP) — Don't bother asking Rice's Trevor Cobb how many yards he gained in a particular game. Ask his offensive line.

"I think the offensive line really enjoys blocking for Trevor," Coach Fred Goldsmith said. "Trevor never seems to care how many yards he gets but everyone else wants to know."

"It becomes important to those guys blocking for him."

Cobb does know that he retained his national rushing lead by gaining 171 yards on 34 carries in Saturday's 20-17 upset of No. 8 ranked Baylor and that he is The Associated Press offensive player of the week for the second time this season.

The defensive honors went to James Patton, who stripped the ball from Oklahoma's Mike McKinley, allowing Bubba Jacques' 30-yard return for the winning touchdown in the Longhorns' 10-7 victory. Patton also had two sacks.

Cobb has 888 rushing yards and 978 all-purpose yards in five games this season and leads the nation with a 177.6 yards per game average.

"He works extremely hard at practice every day and he sets a tremendous example by his work ethic," Goldsmith said.

"That work ethic and the type of person he is makes him a likeable. He's the kind of guy that's the first one there to pat the offensive line on the back."

Cobb had his fourth 100-yard game of the season against Baylor and scored his 23rd career touchdown with 3:33 left in the first quarter.

He had been tied with Dicky Maegle, who scored 22 touchdowns from 1952-54.

Cobb had a 45-yard run in the second quarter that was the longest of the year against the Baylor defense, ranked

Cobb

No. 1 in the Southwest Conference against the rush.

"Cobb IS the Rice offense," Baylor coach Grant Teaff said. "He's a great back."

Consistency from Cobb has helped the Owls offense this season and it will be needed Saturday against Texas Christian in Rice Stadium.

"The tailback position would have to have more than 100 yards," Goldsmith said.

"If we rush less than a 100 yards we'd have a hard time winning the ball game."

Cobb has grown accustomed to the pressure he must face each week to perform.

"Last year after a good game, I'd relax the following week and not have (good) back-to-back games," Cobb said.

"I remember that so this year, I'm trying to do my job each week."

Cobb has been a workhorse for the Owls all season. His 42 carries against Iowa State set a school record.

"I feel great physically," Cobb said.

"I don't realize how many times I carry the ball until after the game. Then, sometimes my body tells me."

No. 17 Raiders embark on three-match trip

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

After almost five days of lay off, the Texas Tech women's volleyball team is preparing for a five-day road trip that begins at 7 p.m. today at Autry Court in Houston against the Rice Owls.

Coach Mike Jones said he feels the victory over Houston last week was a very important win after the loss to Texas, and that Tech must be prepared to play the Lady Owls.

"At the time, it was probably the most important match we have in our season at this point," Jones said at his weekly press conference Monday. "I started thinking about them (Houston) two weeks ago. After playing Texas, you don't want to be 0-2 going on the road in conference after two home matches."

Tech will try to improve its 14-3 overall record and 1-1 SWC record. The Raiders are ranked 17th in the Volleyball Monthly poll and 7th in the Southeast Region poll.

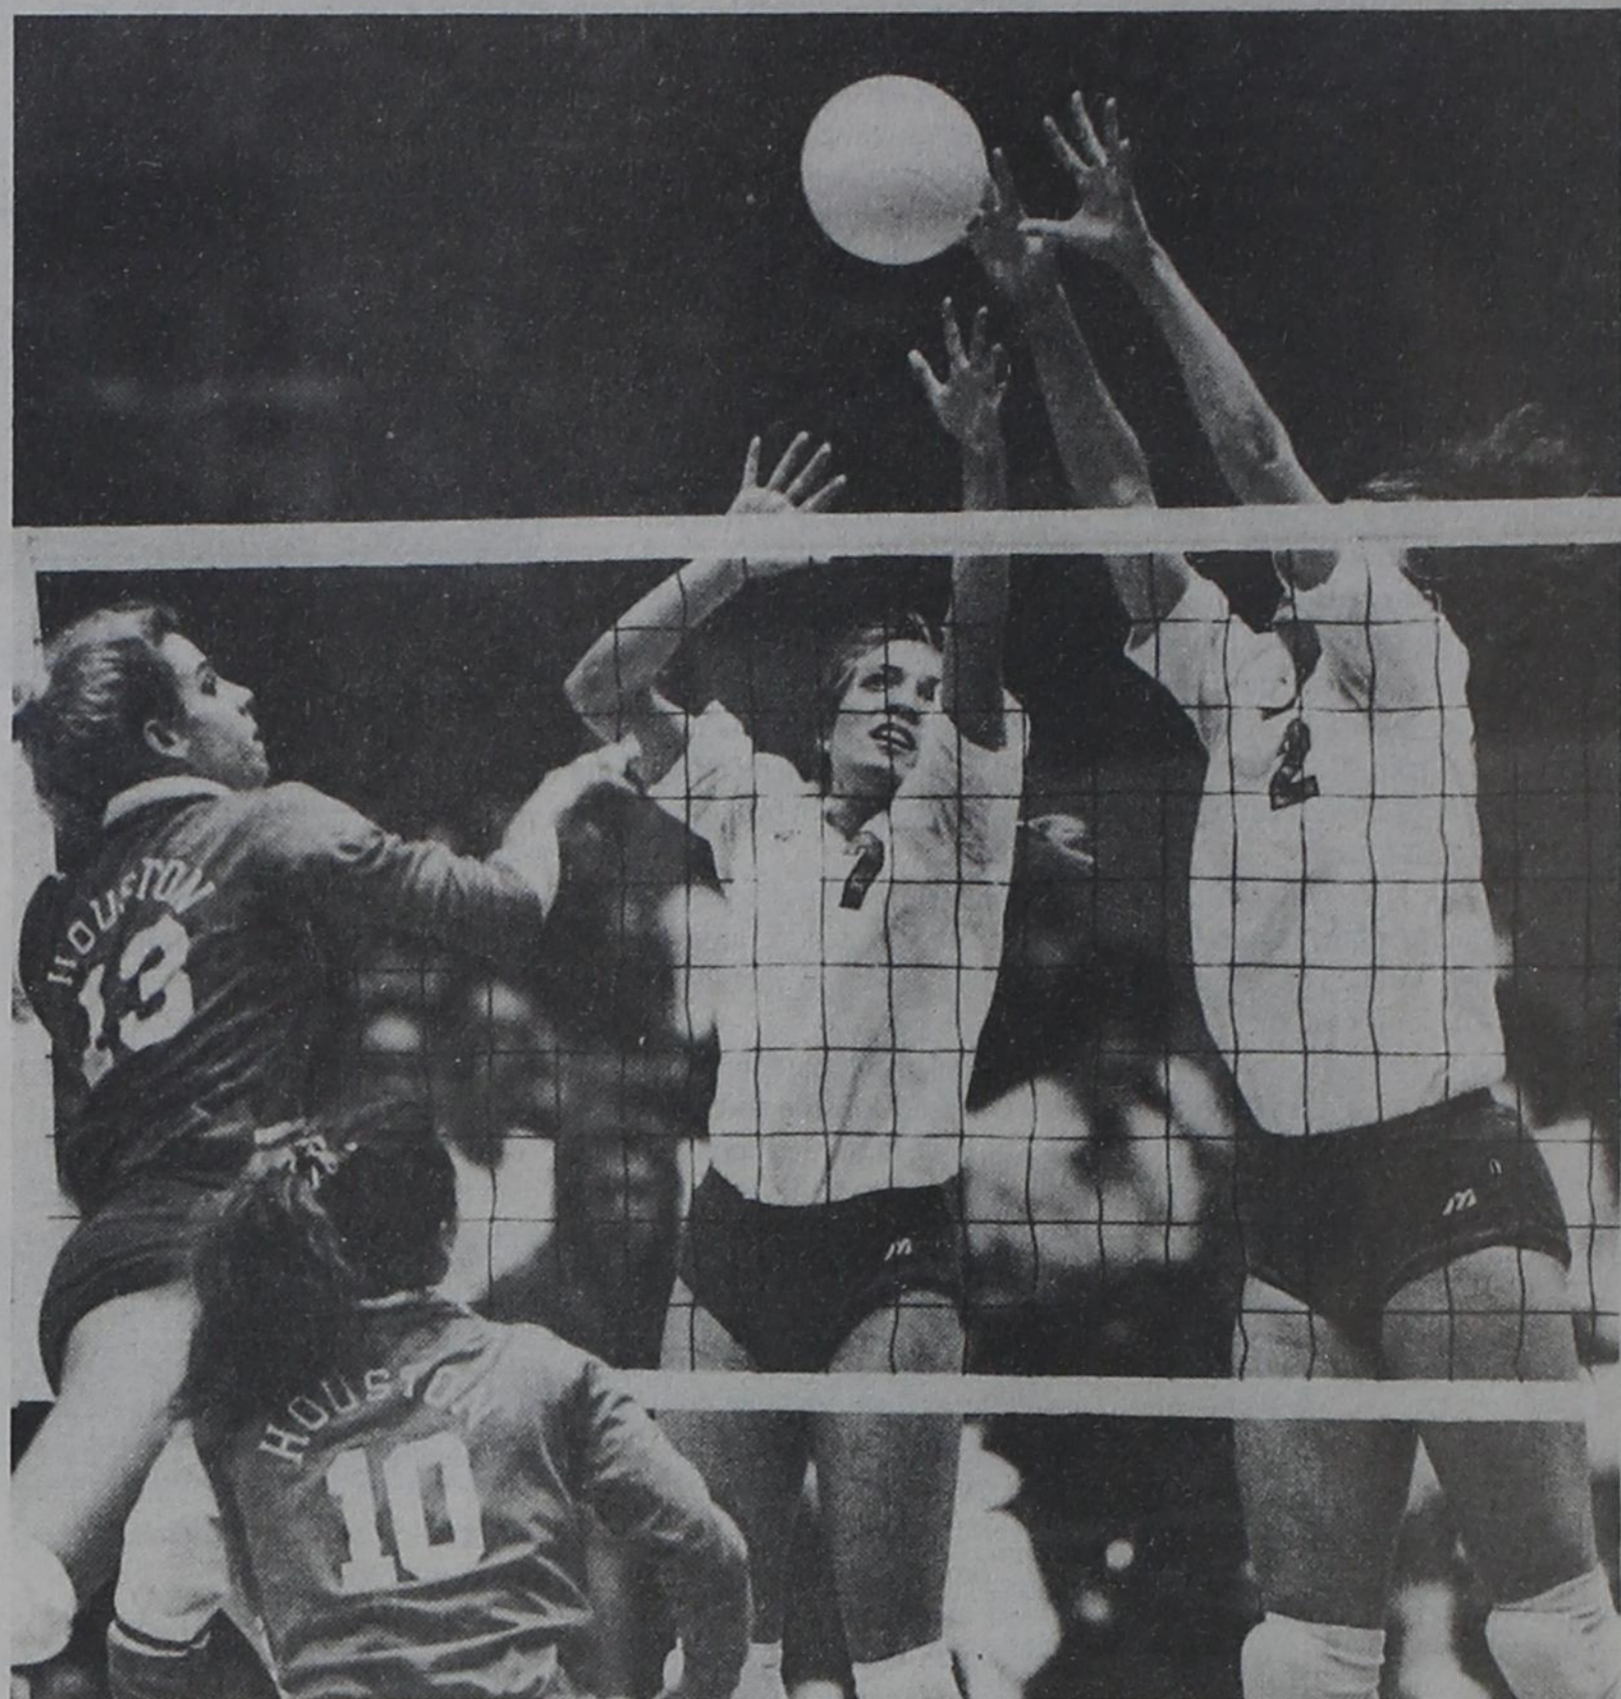

The Lady Owls have only seven players playing right now out of 10 on the roster, as they have a record of 7-13 overall and 0-3 in conference play.

"They're down a little bit from years' past," Jones said. "They are not a real strong team right now, and they only have seven players that are suiting up. They always seem to play us tough at Autry Court, and I think sometimes we don't take them very seriously. I am hoping we can go down their ready to play."

The Owls are led by Michelle Kaminsky, who has a hitting percentage of .213 and 68 kills.

Chris Martin was again named the Whataburger Player of the Week after her performance in the conference match against Houston. Martin is leading the team in kills in SWC play with 25 and a .381 hitting percentage. On the season, Martin has 137 kills with a .314 hitting percentage and 44 blocks.

Erica Ruegg continues to stay in the top echelon of the SWC in blocking, as she is averaging 1.55 blocks per game and has 87 on the year. On the season, Ruegg also has 139 kills, while averaging 2.98 per game.

Cringing Cougars

Texas Tech junior setter Rochelle Kaaia, left, and senior middle blocker Chris Martin go up high for a ball in the match against Houston on Oct. 19. The Red Raiders won in three games, 15-12, 15-12, and increased their overall record to 14-3 and Southwest Conference record to 1-1.

Jones said he feels the key to the win over the Cougars was the fact that the Red Raiders won the first game of the match after starting off slowly.

"We didn't start out too good," Jones said. "I think we had about four hitting errors in a row. We ended up winning the first game, and I think that was the key to the whole match."

Earlier in the season, Jones said the team was playing well but not consistently enough. After the match against the Cougars, he said he was pleased with the overall performance against Houston.

"I was very pleased with our effort, and I think we did a couple of things we have been looking for," Jones said. "I thought we played very consistent throughout the whole match. There weren't very many times at all where we gave up strings of points or really played bad."

"The most important thing of all was that we competed with them real well. Houston is a big physical team. They came out coming after us, and they wanted to win the match. We did a real good job of getting after them the whole time."

The Raiders will remain on the road after the contest with Rice, as they must travel to Waco on Friday to play Baylor and San Marcos to face Southwest Texas State on Saturday.

SMU's Romo not likely to return to gridiron after fourth collegiate knee injury

UNIVERSITY PARK (AP) — Quarterback Mike Romo, plagued by knee problems during his football career at Southern Methodist, is expected to undergo his fourth operation Friday amid doctor recommendations that he quit the game.

Romo was scheduled for surgery with Dr. John Baker, an orthopedic surgeon, at Mary Shields Hospital in Dallas, SMU spokesman David Spangler said Tuesday.

Romo, 21, will have a torn anterior cruciate ligament repaired in his right knee, which he injured Sept. 28 against Baylor. "They've recommended that I not continue to play," Romo said. "Tearing one anterior cruciate ligament is bad enough. (Having torn) both, I'm really jeopardizing my future trying to come back. I've prepared myself for the fact that I won't be playing again."

Baker said he was concerned about

Romo "being able to function when he's 40 years old."

"Scientifically, he can rehabilitate his knee. Realistically, it will be a long rehabilitation," Baker said. "From a personal and realistic standpoint, his future is not in football."

The quarterback has had arthroscopic surgery on both knees, along with a reconstructive knee operation to repair the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee.

"He has taken such a pounding over the years," Spangler said. "He has not said anything to the coaches officially yet, and they haven't sat down and talked about it. "They probably won't until after the surgery."

Romo started 24 of SMU's 27 games since the program returned from NCAA sanctions. He is ninth-ranked among Southwest Conference career leaders in passing yardage, with 6,041.

Whatever became of the 'red' in 'Red Raiders?'

RYAN HYATT

Now that the Red Raiders seem to have righted their footballship, it is time to turn our attention to more pressing matters — personnel attire, if you will.

Since 1984, Texas Tech's football team has been masquerading as the Red Raiders. To my recollection, Tech has only worn red tops twice in the last seven years.

silver. To what do we owe this mystery?

Think back to a dark and desolate time on the South Plains. A time when mothers shielded their children's eyes from the frights at Jones Stadium — the Jerry Moore years of the early to mid-eighties.

It seems the former Tech grid boss had a fascination with the Los Angeles Raiders and their image as tough guys clad in silver and black. With that image in mind, Moore sent his faltering troops out with a new look and an awful offense.

A year or so after debuting Tech's new image, Moore's quietus was made (thankfully not with a bare bodkin), and the sins of the two previous coaching administrations were attempted to be washed away by Athletic Director T. Jones and his new head coach David McWilliams. (Insert own joke here).

While McWilliams changed the attitude and record at Tech, the silver and black remained; a constant reminder of the futility of the Moore era.

Enter Spike Dykes. Enter a real "commitment to excellence." Exit stage left all those negatives associated with losing.

All but one that is. The black and silver still remained.

Why? Why not remove the last vestige of those dark years and return Tech to its true colors? I've already designed the "old" look. (Bet you knew that was coming).

First put the Red Raiders in a blood-red scarlet top. Couple that with black pants and you have the look of champions.

When one thinks back on the names of Holub, Anderson, Tillman and Rivera, images of All-Americans clad in red and black come to mind.

So what do you say, Spike? How about it Mr. Jones. Return the Raiders to their rightful look. It's the right thing to do and the right time to it.

Ryan Hyatt is a senior in the School of Mass Communications.

Baylor-A&M: Showdown in Aggieland

COLLEGE STATION — Early losses by both Baylor and Texas A&M haven't dampened the significance of Saturday's showdown in Waco.

"This is the first step," Aggies defensive back Kevin Smith said Tuesday. "If we get past Baylor this week, we can probably go unbeaten and get into the Cotton Bowl."

No. 19 Aggies (3-1, 1-0 in the Southwest Conference) are coming off an open week. The No. 16 Bears (5-1, 2-1) lost to Rice, 20-17.

But for that upset and A&M's shocking 35-34 loss to Tulsa, this weekend's game likely would have matched two Top 10 teams.

"I don't think whoever wins this game is the one" that will go to the Cotton Bowl, said A&M safety Patrick Bates. "But it will put the winner in the driver's seat."

Aggies coach R.C. Slocum said the Rice-Baylor game "has nothing to do with our game. We'll be playing a different Baylor team."

"Baylor is still one of the best teams that we've had in the Southwest Conference in several years. Nothing has changed," he said.

Slocum disagrees with his players that the winner could be Cotton Bowl-bound as SWC champion.

"It's still too early for that," he said. "We can't read any more into it than a conference win and a good road win. There's a lot of football left to be played."

Persons interested in going need to pay $75 non-refundable deposit. Full payment is due by Nov. 8. Ski rental through the Outdoor Shop is available for a nominal fee.

RACQUETBALL DOUBLES TOURNEY ACTION

Doubles racquetball action got underway at the Student Recreation Center last Friday and continued into Saturday afternoon. The Men's A division's top two seed proved to be on a crash course to determine the tournament winner. Klay Beavert/Vance Pipken and Michael Griffin/Ken Robinette lived up to their No. 1 and No. 2 seeds (respectively) in the Men's A division. The first meeting between the top two seeds saw a straight games win for Beavert/Pipken in the winner's bracket finals. Griffin/Robinette then struggled to defeat the team of John Limmer/Nick Judd for a revenge chance at Beavert/Pipken yet, Beavert/Pipken once again prevailed to claim the Men's A title.

Men's B champions Bora Akgerman and Brian Darden struggled to the title Saturday afternoon. Eric Cisneros and Josh Twining lost to Akgerman/Darden in the winner's bracket final. Cisneros/Twining the fought back through the loser's bracket to take the 'revenge match' over Akgerman/Darden, but ran out of gas and eventually gave way to Akgerman and Darden, who claimed the title.

2-MAN GOLF TOURNEY RESULTS

Sunday's weather conditions proved not to be a factor in the 2-man golf tournament scores. Low scores proved to be the "norm" in all three divisions. The Men's Open Division had 13 teams competing for the title. Saddle Tramps, Kirk Mankin and Derek Holmes, came in with an open division and tournament low score of 5-under par 67 to claim both the open division title and the All-University honors.

The two Greek divisions also had close finishes. The "Red" division winners Bret Sykes and Robert Lundy of Theta Chi came in 4-under par, 68 to claim the title and the "low score", All-Greek honors. The "Black" division leaders were John Ferrell and Troy Maxwell of Delta Tau Delta with a 3-under, 69 score, along with Robert Jenkins and Jason Worley of Phi Delta Theta. A card playoff reflected the strong finish of the Delt team of Ferrell and Maxwell. Ferrell and Maxwell finished with an eagle, two birdies and three pars on the last 6 holes. Blanket points were based upon both fraternity entries, so that information may be found at the IFC office in West Hall.

TRAP & SKEET AN DISC GOLF RESULTS

Saturday's weather greeted all contestants with delightful temperatures and light winds. Saturday morning, five disc golfers started across campus to endure the 27-hole course laid out on campus. Saturday afternoon action moved out to the South Plains Gun Club for the Fall Trap and Skeet Shoot. Pete Wenzel has been a consistent top finisher for the last several years and continued his domination into 1991. The Trap division provided the most excitement as Pete Wenzel and Shawn Sciumbato shot an identical 46 of 50 birds leading to a shoot-off. Pete edged out Shawn for the Trap division title. The Skeet division provided the day's upset when Carlos Vaquero outshot Pete Wenzel 44 hits to 43 hits. Buck Buchanan finished a close third place with a 40 score.
