

Techsans Favor Connally, Oppose Racing

By CAROLENE ENGLISH
- Toreador Staff Writer

If Texas Tech students serve as a measuring stick, then the governor's race today is still anybody's election.

In a poll of 50 Tech students, only 54 per cent questioned had a preference from the eight candidates and 46 per cent head no preference.

At the same time, there was decided interest in the vote for or against legal horse race gambling. Only two per cent were undecided on this issue; 50 per cent of those polled opposed the measure.

Of those students who knew their candidate, John Connally was the favorite with 20 per cent.

One of Connally's supporters, Neal Turner, a senior who has already voted, explained that Connally's platform won his vote.

"He has already held an important position, one appointed by the President. I think he's qualified for governor," Odus Anderson, sophomore, stated in favor of Connally.

The candidate who pulled the second highest vote was Dan Yarborough with five votes, followed by Edwin Walker and Marshall Formby, both with 6 per cent of the votes.

Youth seemed to be the drawing factor with Yarborough. Barry Orr and Michael Menaul, sophomores, agreed that they favored him because he was young and still "clean" politically.

Olin Scarborough, senior, favored Formby "because he's independent and not tied to any special interest group."

Walker was the candidate of Virginia Oliver, senior, because she would not vote for Daniel or Yarborough and thought Walker was the "best."

Drawing four per cent of the votes were incumbent Price Daniel, and the only two Republican nominees, Jack Cox and Roy Whittenburg.

Governor Daniel "has done a good job," declared Lance Nunn, freshman.

The remaining candidate, Attorney General Will Wilson, drew one vote.

The undecided voters, 23 of them, either had not given consideration to the election or they admitted their inadequate knowledge of candidates and issues.

But if indecision was common in the gubernatorial race, the opposite was true when students were quizzed about the gambling vote.

"It's degrading to civilization," Dick Evans, junior, reasoned. But probably the biggest objection to it was that students feared other forms of gambling would accompany horse racing.

"Once you get something undesirable in the state, then it's hard to keep other undesirable things out," Mary Beth Thornton, junior, responded.

Others had entirely the opposite opinion.

Annette Sweatt, junior, believes that racing is a good sport and would help Texas.

"Why should people have to go out of state for racing?" she asked. "The state could take advantage of the revenue that racing brings in."

David Hill, junior, had a more personal reason for wanting horse race gambling back in Texas.

"I'd like to see Arlington Downs (a race track in Dallas) reopened," he said.

Trio Captures Audience

By TOMMY SEAY
Toreador Staff Writer

The Kingston Trio captured the hearts and souls of more than 3,000 fans with a fabulous display of showmanship in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum Friday.

John Stewart, Nick Reynolds and Bob Shane presented various versions of the songs that made them famous. The ballads of "Tom Dooley," "Little Maggie" and "MTA" brought a roar of applause from the audience, as did Shane's "Scotch and Soda" and the group's version of "The Lion Sleeps Tonight."

Tech Band, Choir Join For 'Pops'

The Tech Band and Tech Singers combine Sunday to present their version of "Pops Night" at 3:30 p.m. in the upstairs Ballroom of the Tech Union.

The first overture, played by both varsity bands, will be "The Student Prince," under direction of Dean Killian. The 140-piece band will then play selections from "Carousel" and "South Pacific."

Their part will be concluded with several marches and Vaughan Williams' "British Folk Song Suite."

The Men's Glee Club, under direction of Gene Kenney, will sing folk songs and other numbers as "Dreaming," "Oh Wasn't That A Wide River," "Song of Brotherhood" and "Coventry Carol."

The Tech Singers will close the program with "She Walks In Beauty," "Go Lovely Rose" and "O Lemuel."

The public is invited to attend the concert which is free of charge.

ROTC Participates In Simulated Attack

Tech's advanced course Army ROTC cadets will engage in a mock attack at Johnson's Ranch at 5 p.m. today, Army officers announced Friday.

The public is invited to watch the efforts of the cadets to assault the enemy forces. A hill in the northwest section of the ranch offers a panoramic view of the entire area of action.

Parachutists will drop on the target area at 5:10 p.m. and will be supported by ground troops. Night patrol units will maintain the watch for "enemy forces." The Army National Guard will participate in the exercise with the Tech cadets.

The mock attack is part of the plans for preparing the cadets for the six weeks summer training course at Ft. Sill, Oklahoma.

Thursday nine Army ROTC cadets were decorated for their outstanding performance during the current year. The last ROTC ceremony of the year will be next Thursday. Both the Army and Air Force unit will drill together.

Soviet Spaceman Tours Steel Mill With Wife

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Soviet cosmonaut Gherman S. Titov's pert, brunette wife, went along Friday to tour a hot, dusty steel mill and she said some of it looked like fireworks.

Tamara Titov, 24, a former medical student back home in Moscow, made the rugged tour past blast furnaces and over catwalks in high-heeled shoes and doggedly declared it was very interesting.

Like her spaceman husband, Tamara seems to come up with all of the politically proper responses.

When asked how she liked touring a hot steel mill, she responded through her U.S. State Department interpreter, "You can't do without them."

Wouldn't she rather have seen scenic sights as she did Thursday? she was asked.

"Both," said the 5-foot-tall Mrs. Titov.

As Titov was shown the elaborate works of the Bethlehem Steel Co. at Sparrows Point, she followed closely, wearing a gray steel helmet and protective goggles along with all the rest.

Union Displays Art, Sculpture

Tech students need not go to New York City to visit a contemporary sculpture gallery. Tech Union has borrowed 19 pieces of sculpture from the Bertha Schaefer Gallery of New York for display this week.

This is the first time the Union has brought in outside works in bronze, metal and wood.

Masterpieces from such American sculptors as Fred Farr, Joseph Konzal, Raymond Rocklin and Jules Struppel are exhibited in the display case of the Union foyer.

One of the display's most striking works is Konzal's "Tree Fantasy." This piece of contemporary sculpture is composed of numerous nails, bolts and screws welded together to form an 18 inch abstract tree. The tree is made of iron and valued at $300.

The entire display is valued at $4,850.

BASIN STREET BLUES—will be dispelled by Ray Sharpe when he plays for the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Basin Street Dance tonight at Fair Park Coliseum. The all-school dance will be from 8 to 12 p.m.

Boone Will Hang Up Gun After '62-63 TV Season

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Richard Boone and gun already are traveling into their sixth and—he says—final year on television.

Paladin fans needn't rush to protest. Not yet, anyway. "Have Gun, Will Travel" will be seen through the 1962-63 season. Boone will have the job of preparing a whole season's product before the first show goes on the air. The reason for this is his plan to star next fall in a Broadway play, "Sergeant Steiner." No relation to the Dr. Styrer he once played on "Medic."

"The urge to go back to the stage is inescapable," Boone explained on Paramount's Western Street. "Motion pictures are a director's medium, without a doubt. It is only on the stage where an actor gains full control of what he is doing."

"So I am going back. It's got to be for satisfaction as an actor; I can't be doing it for money. The pay will be paltry compared to what I could earn in television."

Somehow money doesn't worry Boone. It shouldn't. He made a fabulous deal when he sold his Paladin rights to CBS.

"It's kind of nice to know that the bills will be paid for the next 20 years," he admitted.

The future of Paladin? "I think six years is enough," said Boone. "As far as I'm concerned, it is, and I should think that CBS would agree."

"I would hate to hang around too long. It's a shame when great shows like 'I Love Lucy' and 'Dragnet' continue past their peak, and people start saying, 'Oh, are they still on the air?' I'd rather quit while people still care. And the ratings this year indicate that they do."

FUJI REVELERS—outdoor dancing will be the scene of the annual Fiji Island Dance tonight at Mackenzie Park Pool. The all school dance will be from 8 to 12 p.m. with music supplied by Royal Earl. Invitations were delivered by "blacked up" pledges to the dates of members and pledges.

AMA Slates Council Elects New Officers

Carlsle Park will be the site for the American Marketing Association picnic at 3 p.m. today. Barbecue will be served at a cost of $1.20 per person. Families and friends of members are invited to attend the all afternoon affair.

Reservations can be made now and until noon today at the Engineering bookstore behind the C&O building.

Games of volleyball, badminton and softball will be available for those interested. Dress will be casual.

"This will be the last time for some of us to get together with the group so let's turn out in force," commented Jerry Treadwell, assistant advertising manager.

Recently tapped members of Junior Council elected officers for next year at a meeting Thursday in the Tech Union.

Mary Gaskin will serve as president with Carolyn Kelley, vice president; Karla Dickson, secretary; and Betty McFarren, treasurer.

Hazael Hale, projects chairman; Annette Innon, reporter; Linda Hill, AWS representative; Anita Queen, BSO representative; and Arminta Kemp, senior advisor were also elected.

The councilors may be recognized by their red vests with white JC's on them. They are a recognition society for activities and service participation thus far in school. They must have maintained an overall 2.0 grade average.

Textile Fraternity Becomes Active

Professional Textile Engineering fraternity, Phi Psi, was reactivated Tuesday night after two years of inactivity.

Officers for the organization are Don Compton, president; Joe Stephens, vice president; and Mark Burks, secretary-treasurer. Installation of these officers will be tonight. There are 12 members in the organization.

Phi Psi is the oldest Greek letter organization on campus, originating here in 1931. There are nine such chapters in the United States.

Pikes Honor Parents Here

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity will honor their mothers this weekend with their annual Mother's Day program.

The event is scheduled for this weekend because of oncoming dead week which interferes with Mother's Day.

Plans begin at 5:00 p.m. Saturday with a barbecue and paddle party at Rushing Party House. A banquet at the Pioneer Hotel is scheduled for Sunday honoring the members and their mothers.

EDITOR'S OPINION

... Vote Daniel Today

Texans go to the polls today. As far as I am concerned, the voters have only one candidate in the governor's race who is ideally suited for the position.

PRICE DANIEL.

In my opinion, Daniel offers more than any other candidate in the race. While the other candidates have been knocking themselves out in a desperate attempt to "pin" something on him, Daniel has been presenting a program of progress for Texas. The other candidates have found faults, but they haven't offered anything NEW to Texas voters. Their platforms, in the most part, are designed to gain votes—nothing else.

Daniel has waged a good fight for Texas and Texans during his stay in office. If elected, I feel that he will continue to work for water development, school improvement and enlargement, highway improvement, highway safety, better law enforcement, more work on juvenile delinquency curbs and new tourist attraction programs.

Daniel has been criticized in many circles because he is seeking a fourth term in office. This charge—a rather ridiculous one—is easily answered. If you have a good man working for you it would be senseless to fire him, wouldn't it? ESPECIALLY if you don't have an adequate replacement on hand. Well, that's the situation in Texas right now. Daniel, it seems to me, is the only man on the scene that can get the job done.

I will be criticized by many for failure to support the "West Texas candidate"—Marshall Formby. His supporters maintain that he will be able to do more for Texas Tech than any of the other candidates. This seems rather far-fetched to me. In my opinion, Formby would have to "lean over backwards" in an effort not to show partiality to Tech in order not to become the "West Texas governor."

A look at the other candidates in the race strengthens Daniel's position. Because . . .

Many fear that a vote for John Connally is a vote for "LBJ." If this is true, it would be a dark day in Texas if he were elected. Nobody wants the Vice Presidency to gain more "control" over Texas.

Will Wilson, whose campaign has been termed "the latest show on earth," will probably be content if Daniel is beaten. He certainly hasn't offered many concrete suggestions to improve state government.

Don Yarborough, the candidate from Houston, has been impressive from time to time. However, it seems to me he isn't ready to assume the responsibilities of this high office. He will bear watching in the future.

I don't believe that any comment is necessary as far as Edwin Walker is concerned.

Jack Cox will defeat Roy Whittenburg in the Republican primary. Whittenburg doesn't seem to have enough statewide popularity to win.

I offer this suggestion to the eligible voters at Texas Tech. Go to the polls today and vote for PRICE DANIEL for governor.

It's a logical choice for Texas and Texans.

RALPH W. CARPENTER
Toreador Editor

A group of "loyal" Texans calling themselves, among other things, such names as "Texans Against Race Track Gambling" have taken upon their shoulders to legislate morals in our state.

These groups, seeming bound and determined to keep our virgin state untouched, are telling us that "gambling invariably brings in its wake unpaid bills, skipped installment payments, repossessed automobiles and appliances, lapsed insurance policies and . . . hungry children."

How ridiculous!

When are these "holier-than-thou" types going to learn that they cannot pass laws to contain people on a moral issue? When are they going to learn that they cannot lead people around by the nose? When are they going to learn that they cannot force people to follow their own narrow, biased, so-called "morally right" way of thinking?

In leading this moral fight against race track gambling, these "agin'ers" have misquoted the facts, made pleading to people's emotions and, in general, tried to distort the whole picture of horse racing and parimutuel betting in Texas.

Statistics prove without a doubt that taxes on parimutuel gambling in the state would bring in over $12 million the first year. Tourist trade, sorely needed in the state, would increase; new jobs would be created; and hundreds of thousands of Texas dollars that are now spent across the state line in New Mexico on horses would stay at home.

As for the morals involved in the issue, FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover has this concerning parimutuel betting and horse racing:

"I do not believe that there are any moral issues involved. This is a well supervised sport. It is a clean one and the various states which have racing exert every effort to keep it this way on a highly competitive basis."

This from the man who knows more about crime in this country than anyone else.

It seems that every time an issue is at stake in an election concerning liquor, gambling, selling on Sunday, etc., groups rush to the fore who emotionally plead that if the voters don't turn the issues down, then we shall all be morally corrupted, become vagrants or even worse—go on relief.

It's about time that these groups woke up to the fact that the man on the street no longer needs emotional appeals to sway him. They had better learn, quickly, that he is quite capable of understanding the facts, digesting both sides of a question and coming up with a logical, enlightened conclusion.

Texans needs horse racing.

Toreador Mail Call...

Sir,
I should like to voice my disagreement with one of Mr. Town's several vague general statements. "The education whose goal is mere scholarly achievement, rather than useful intelligence, is of no real value," he says.

In the first place it is difficult to understand what Mr. Town means by "useful intelligence." Perhaps he alludes to what I consider a perversion of education, that is, the idea that the aims of education should be to train a bunch of technologists who can utilize this "useful intelligence" in order that they may "acquire a satisfactory living."

If I were interested solely in being trained in some field so as to be able to make money, I would want to go to a trade school rather than to a university. No, I'm afraid I still prefer the "mere" scholarly approach to education—yes, for the so called impractical purpose of adding to knowledge.

Kennedy Comments On Economic Policy

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—On the banks of the Mississippi River where captains of commerce helped build America, President Kennedy called on the nation Friday to maintain its trade leadership among the world's free countries.

America, he said at a new $12-million wharf, stands at a crossroad in its foreign economic policy—"trade or fade."

"For what we are moving toward is an open partnership among all free nations," he told a crowd of about 5,000 and a four-station television simulcast, "a gradual leveling of trade barriers that will draw the whole non-Communist world together with the strings of economic self-interest."

The city built by great steamers gave the President a thundering welcome. Police Supt. Joseph Giarrusso estimated the crowds that lined the highways and streets from the airport to the wharf at 100,000 at least and another 20,000 greeted him at City Hall where he spoke to the city's school children.

In regard to his trade program, he said, "The trade partnership will be based on what already comes to a trillion-dollar economy. And it will be specifically and initially expressed in terms of a genuine Atlantic partnership — between the Common Market of Europe and the common market of 50 United States.

"More trade will mean more jobs, a firmer national security and a strengthened foreign policy.

"It will produce nearly 90 percent of the free world's industrial power," he said of his proposed trade expansion program, "the lion's share of its technical skills, two of its greatest markets for raw materials, and a very large portion of the capital for investment and development."

The program will be contagious, he said, in that it will "extend these benefits of these new opportunities to the continents of Asia, Africa and Latin America... and, finally, it will pose to the leaders of the Communist world a direct, deep and abiding challenge."

The President indicated that a few people and industries might be hurt, but the projected trade act contains safeguards to protect them.

But "no one... is going to be sacrificed to the national interest with a medal and an empty grocery bag," he said.

On the other hand, the President said the nation could raise its tariffs, restrict the flow of capital, reduce commitments and let its foes slip into the gap.

"But this administration," he declared to an audience that cheered frequently, "was not elected to preside over the resignation of America from its manifest destiny."

Texas Tech Day Enters Eighth Year

Texas Tech Day, rolling into its eighth year Saturday, is promising to be one of the most successful celebrations in its history, according to Wayne James, Executive Director of the Texas Tech Ex-Students Assn.

Texas Tech Day will be observed by all local chapters and exes meeting in their communities. Recreation ranging from picnics and swimming to dinner and dancing will take place in various areas of the world.

The purpose of Texas Tech Day is to bring exes and friends of the college together for the mutual enjoyment of the traditions and heritage of Texas Tech.

Although the date has been set for Saturday, several chapters have arranged to meet on other dates due to the primary election date in Texas.

Persons who are living in a community without an Ex-Student chapter and are desiring one are asked to write to the Ex-Student Assn. for information.

PAPER USAGE

Paper used by Tech during the year was 3,194,500 sheets of mimeograph service. In addition, Tech Press used approximately 153,675 pounds of paper. The Press also printed 682,000 envelopes, weighing about 4½ tons. These amounts do not include other places where paper is duplicated on the campus.

Doctors Want Boycott Of Medical Care Bill

POINT PLEASANT, N. J. (AP)—A movement to boycott the proposed federal medical care-for-the-aged program if it becomes law has taken root among more than 200 New Jersey doctors.

It could backfire, says the physician who started it, "But it could catch on all over the country."

The physician, Dr. J. Bruce Henriksen, director of surgery at Point Pleasant Hospital, launched the movement when he wrote a resolution "as a trial balloon to see what the reaction would be."

The resolution declared that its signers would not care for patients under the proposed Anderson-King Bill. Backed by President Kennedy, the bill ties medical care for the aged to Social Security.

Henriksen said he circulated a copy of his proposal among 44 doctors at the Point Pleasant Hospital about a month ago and, "To my amazement, all of the doctors signed it."

Raiders Aim At Farmers

Texas A&M, seeking another Southwest Conference golf championship, will play Texas Tech's Red Raiders at Meadowbrook Monday afternoon.

Although comparative scores favor the Aggies, Coach Jay McClure's Raiders are given a chance to spring an upset and possibly pull into the upper bracket of the SWC race in their final match.

Three sub-par rounds fired by the Red Raiders in their 4-2 triumph over Rice here Monday make such speculation more than a pipe dream.

Last year Texas A&M beat Tech 5½-½ at College Station.

Don't ever count Monterey out of a District 3-AAAA baseball title.

Because that's just what they won Friday afternoon with a 3-2 win over the Lubbock Westerners. And everyone said it was Lubbock's year on the diamond since the Westerners returned seven starters from last year's group that tied for the crown.

But coach Bobby Moegle had two starters to work with this year and found the right combination, experience or no experience. Moegle, who played pro baseball before coming to Monterey, has been with the Plainsmen three years, and it's beginning to look like no coincidence that Monterey has taken the title all three years.

For a while Friday, it looked like the district might end in a tie for the second consecutive year. The Westerners jumped on starter Bob Black in the bottom of the third and came up with their two runs.

With two out and a man at second, Lubbock pitcher Gary De-ment walked. Then Phil Johnson bounced a triple off the left field fence for the two runs. Johnson died on third when Buzzy Henderson fled out to retire the side.

Monterey finally scratched in the fifth on a walk, an error and an infield single. The Plainsmen's tying run came across in the bottom of the sixth. Keller Smith walked, went to second on Buddy Hampton's single and scored on a sacrifice by Danny McDougall.

The winning run was scored in the last inning on a walk, a passed ball and two errors.

Raider coach Berl Huffman has his eye on several Monterey and have supplied the Tech squad with Lubbock players. Both schools top notch players in the past.

Cardinals Try Tech Tuesday

Fans who marveled at Pan American College's tennis team's exploits won't believe this, but Texas Tech will be host Tuesday to an even better net squad—Lamar Tech's Cardinals.

Lamar Tech holds two decisions over Pan American, a 5-1 victor over Texas Tech here Tuesday.

South Africans make up the nucleus of the Lamar team, labeled the "World's Collegiate Tennis Champions" following a successful tour of Mexico and Europe last summer.

Among the Cardinals expected to play here Tuesday are Al Driscoll of North Hollywood, Calif., Robin Spengler of Capetown, Tim Heckler of Kimberly, Francis Row-storne of Johannesburg and Alfonso Ochoa of Mexico City.

Admission to the matches, scheduled for 2 p.m. on the Varsity Courts, is free.

We were assigned to cover the Kingston Trio.

Ah—we thought—what a wonderful assignment! And we rushed out of the newsroom with car keys, copy paper and pencil in hand.

We had called the sponsors trying to find out where they were staying, but no one had answered. Undaunted, we had called around a bit more and finally found that they were supposedly staying at the Plainsman Hotel.

So we broke all speed laws driving to the Plainsman and confidently walked up to the desk.

"Is the Kingston Trio here?" we asked.

"No, we don't know where they are," came the reply.

Being trusting souls, we decided to believe her. So we rushed out to the car and drove back to Tech—to the Speech Auditorium, where the Trio was to be interviewed on KTXI.

We went inside and found that it was indeed true. The Trio was scheduled for an interview at 3 P.M.

Aha, we thought, we'll wait till the interview's over and catch them when they come out the door. We waited alright. Until 3:45 in 90 degree blistering sun . . . but still no Kingston Trio.

We went back to the Plainsman. This time, we decided, we'd be tough.

"What room's the Kingston Trio in?"

"Kingston Trio? They're not staying here."

"Oh, they're not, huh." We looked at each other, then back at him.

"Really, they're not here."

"O.K.," we said skeptically.

"We'll just look around, if you don't mind."

We sprinted down the first floor hall, looking in all the rooms.

We were listening for guitar and bongo music, but could find nothing. Finally we decided to call the sponsors again.

We got in touch with one of them, and he still knew nothing. So we called the newsroom and were told to come back.

As we left the lobby of the Plainsman, the desk clerk called, "They're not staying here, honest."

As we walked back to the car, we looked at each other, our blank copy paper, and the empty gas gauge. Oh brother!
