Governor says his future will involve 'goals, results'

By DARIA DOSS
UD Reporter

Gov. Bill Clements, hot on the campaign trail for re-election, said Tuesday in Lubbock his plan for the future, just like his plan in the past, will pay attention to "goals and results" instead of "politics and bureaucracy."

Clements conducted a press conference at the Civic Center, followed by a meeting with local supporters.

The only other announced candidate for governor is Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, who consistently criticized Clements during the 1981 Legislature.

Clements said in his introduction speech that for the first time in 30 years, the growth of government has been stopped. He said 3,000 state employee jobs have been terminated since he took office in January 1979.

"If state government had continued to grow at the rate it had for the five years prior to my administration, we would have 12,000 more state employees than the level today," he said.

Clements said that during his term as governor, he has created a new task force program that comprises 13 areas that need attention. One of the task forces is higher education. Some of the others are equal opportunities for women and minorities, agriculture and traffic safety.

The defeat of Amendments 3 and 4 to the Texas Constitution in the Nov. 3 election were not his fault, Clements said.

"Because voters turned down Amendment 3 and 4, this doesn't mean that they are totally against them. It means they didn't like those particular plans," he said.

"I have task forces working on other long-term plans for amendments similar to these for the 1983 Legislature," Clements said.

Amendment 3 would have allowed the legislature the power to grant a seven-member state finance committee the power to manage expenditures of state agencies in between legislative sessions.

Amendment 4 would have dedicated one-half of the state's excess tax revenues to use for water projects.

Clements said the Legislature is having to spend too much time allocating money.

"The budget for Texas is $13 billion," he said. "This is big business."

If an amendment is not passed in the future that is similar to Amendment 3, legislators will have to continue to spend 200 extra days in Austin a year allocating funds to state agencies, Clements said.

Concerning the defeat of Amendment 4, he said "the most critical area that will be hit by this is Harris County. It has a dense population without proper planning for water."

Clements emphasized that Texas needs a water fund. He said the population will increase by 50 percent in the next 20 years.

More on Texas politics, p. 3

In 1980, Texas had 14.2 million people. In about 20 years, Clements said, there will be nearly 21 million people.

"Water has to be our top priority," he said.

When asked about the success of the halfway-house system set up to alleviate crowded prisons, Clements said he was "highly skeptical of the program at first."

The system was set up so prisoners could be put in halfway houses six months before they were up for parole.

He said the program is not a failure even though crimes were repeated when some of the prisoners escaped.

"This program was not a failure because a study was conducted, and it turned out that 60 percent of the prisoners who stayed in prison those six months returned to prison later," Clements said.

"Until there is added construction to the Texas prisons, I'm for setting up tents," he said jokingly.

There are 33,000 inmates in Texas, he said. This is the greatest number in the United States.

He said the U.S. neglected in the 1970s to keep up with the prison increase in relation to the population increase. As a result, we have overcrowded prisons.

To capture the vote for governor, Clements said he will have to win the votes of some of the Democrats and independents.

He said 20 percent of the voters are Republicans, 35 percent are Democrats and 45 percent are independents.

"I have a special campaign group that will target in on the Democrats and independents," Clements said.

Clements has appointed T. Boone Pickens Jr., Amarillo oil company president, to be his state chairman with Bobbie Biggart, Dallas, vice chairman.

Dary Stone and George Bayoud Jr., both former members of the governor's staff, will be in charge of campaign activities. Stone will be campaign manager and Bayoud will be finance manager.

Rex Fuller, a member of the Tech Board of Regents, will be Clements' regional chairman for the Lubbock area and surrounding counties. Fuller is presently Regional Finance Chairman of the Republican Party for 1980-81.

When Clements was elected in 1978, he became the first Republican governor of Texas in more than 100 years.

He was born and reared in Dallas. He began work in 1937 in the oil fields working on drilling rigs as a roughneck and driller. He founded SEDCO, Inc., a drilling company, in 1947.

Clements Tuesday also made stops in Fort Worth, Amarillo, El Paso and Odessa. He will stop in Texarkana, Tyler, Waco, Corpus Christi and Harlingen today.

Houston elects woman mayor

HOUSTON (AP) — City Controller Kathy Whitmire was elected Houston's first woman mayor Tuesday, scoring a landslide victory over runoff opponent Sheriff Jack Heard.

With 78 percent of the vote counted — 281 of 360 precincts — Whitmire had 129,050 votes, or 60.2 percent, to Heard's 85,270 votes.

Whitmire, 35, joins Jane Byrne of Chicago and Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco as other woman mayors of major U.S. cities.

The widowed accountant, who was backed by moderates and liberals, promised to run the city like a business, while Heard, 63, a career law enforcement officer, appealed more to conservatives and vowed to get tough with criminals.

"I think there is a lot of interest in Houston, especially in how we have dealt with problems that have arisen from the wealth we have," she said over the drum of a band at her jubilant headquarters near the Astrodome.

Whitmire had received 36 percent to Heard's 24 percent in the Nov. 3 election. Although neither won a majority, they defeated incumbent Jim McConn, who was accused of cronyism and losing control of this Sun Belt boom town's explosive growth during his two two-year terms in office.

Voters also elected Lance Lalor controller over former controller and former Immigration and Naturalization Service Director Leonel J. Castillo. Lalor had received about 62 percent of the vote with nearly 80 percent of the returns in. Jim Greenwood and Dick Gottlieb were strong leaders in two City Council seat runoffs.

The mayoral race heated up Monday when two newsmen investigating the source of a last-minute campaign accusation reported they were chased from a home by a man firing a shotgun.

No one was hurt.

Houston Chronicle reporter Raul Reyes and photographer Buster Dean had gone to a residence in hopes of finding out who sent more than 100,000 Western Union Mailgrams on Monday accusing Whitmire of strong sympathies with the gay community.

Heard denied any connection to the Mailgrams, which were signed only "Concerned Houston Citizens."

District Attorney John Holmes said they may be a violation of a state campaign law against "dirty tricks."

Reyes said after he rang the doorbell, a man stuck a shotgun out a window and said, "You want a story; I'll give you a story" and then fired once over the newsmen's heads.

Reyes said a second shot was fired into the air as the Chronicle pair backed out of the man's driveway in their van.

Police were investigating the incident.

Whitmire had the endorsement of Houston's Gay Political Caucus. The Mailgrams said she advocated mandatory instructions on the homosexual lifestyle in kindergarten.

Heard was endorsed by the Ku Klux Klan but rejected their support and called them "a bunch of clowns."

During the campaign, Whitmire said she would start a "loaned executive program which will allow me to borrow experienced executives" to serve for one or two years in city management positions.

She said she has seen "millions of dollars wasted to pay outside consultants."

Heard endorsed the concept and claimed the borrowed management idea as his own.

The sheriff, who was police chief here from 1954 to 1956 and also served as an executive in the Texas Department of Public Safety, pledged to reorganize the police department and reform other city departments.

"This hasn't been done in 25 years," he said during a 10-minute television panel show with Whitmire the night before the election.

Heard also promised to "put pressure on" the Metropolitan Transit Authority, which controls Houston's troubled bus system, and to take traffic control steps designed to reduce Houston's chronic traffic congestion.

Bad bus service and notorious traffic jams were two problems blamed on McConn during the general election campaign.

Clements: panel will increase tuition

By LYN MCKINLEY
UD Staff

Excellence in education is the goal of the specially appointed Blue Ribbon Task Force on Education, Gov. Bill Clements said at a press conference in Lubbock Tuesday.

The possibility of a tuition increase in the 1983 legislature will be considered by the task force, of which Tech President Lauro Cavazos is a member.

"In my personal judgment, they (Blue Ribbon Task Force members) will come up with a tuition increase," Clements said.

Clements said the only reason for the increase in tuition is to reach the goal of excellence in higher education, which he said he is one of the most important issues in the minds of voters.

"Along with a business approach to government, you (voters) have told me that education and crime are on your priority list," Clements said.

Clements passed Tech's 1982-83 budget request with no cuts in funding. The Texas Legislature appropriated $227.3 million to Tech for 1982-83, a 32 percent increase from the previous session.

Tech will receive more than $109 million for 1982 and $117.4 million in 1983. However, Clements has not always been as kind to higher education in general and Tech in particular.

Clements and the Legislature cut Tech's entire budget by $9-10 million in 1980-81. The University of Texas at Austin and Texas A&M University were also hurt by 1980-81 budget cuts.

The Legislature appropriated $83,790 for research by the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS) for 1982. Clements vetoed the budget for ICASALS in 1979.

Tech also received appropriations for water research, which Clements cut in 1979.

The Legislature appropriated $203,716 for water conservation and reuse in 1981-82. An additional $203,716 for 1982-82 has been appropriated for the same purpose.

The education package of legislation proposed by Clements in his bid for re-election would return education back to the basics of reading, writing, arithmetic and discipline and will require teachers to pass competency tests, Clements said.

Forum audience majority says environmental policies harmful

By BILL MILLER
UD Staff

A majority of the 57 persons at Tuesday's University Forum program overwhelmingly favored a resolution that the country's current environmental policy is destructive to America's natural resources.

The final tally showed 42 people in favor of, 15 opposed to the resolution; thus, the majority said they believe the current environmental policy is destructive to our natural resources.

"Public lands, population and food, environment and its protection, occupation, housing, education and research must all be considered before evaluating what is destructive to our natural resources," William Stewart, Tech professor of architecture, said.

Stewart, who spoke in favor of the resolution, said there is an axiom that "development which is not ecologically sound is not a development."

Speaking against the resolution was Marion Hagler, professor of electrical engineering.

Hagler said he agrees that the current environmental policy is destructive. But he said he would agree more strongly if applied to past and future administrations.

"Any policy we have will be destructive to the environment if we consider the environment solely by itself," Hagler said. "Dealing with a single aspect of any problem isn't going to get us very much."

The second argument in favor of the resolution was made by Lubbock Attorney Thomas Griffith, who is also a member of the Sierra Club.

Griffith mentioned extraneous statements made by President Reagan.

"Our chief executive once stated that trees and grass cause air pollution, and once you've seen one redwood you've seen them all," Griffith said.

"Eighty percent of Americans would agree that there is an environmental problem in this country," Griffith said.

"There is not a simple solution and the problem of the environment is a complex one, but regulation should not be by private industry but rather a public concern," Griffith said.

James Mertes, chairman of park administration delivered the final argument against the resolution.

Mertes spoke of renewable and non-renewable resources, and he said he favors administrative policy concerning both resources.

"There seemed to be a lot of emotional impact on environmental protection during the 1960s. In response, the federal and state governments enacted legislation possibly overprotecting wilderness areas," Mertes said.

"Now the pendulum must swing back toward the middle in order to create more resources for a continuing America," he said.

In conclusion, Mertes said he does not believe the administration is destructive to natural resources.

European nuke force reduction to be proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is ready to propose to the Soviet Union that both superpowers virtually eliminate nuclear missiles from the European theater, State Department officials said Tuesday.

The president, it was said, will use a foreign policy speech Wednesday at the National Press Club to embrace the so-called "zero-option" approach as the goal for Soviet-American negotiations on restraining nuclear forces in Europe. Those talks open Nov. 30 in Geneva.

The option consists of an expected U.S. offer not to undertake the planned deployment of new U.S. medium-range missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union agrees to disassemble its own missiles, stationed in western Russia, aimed at European targets.

However, there is deep skepticism in U.S. arms control circles that such an approach will prove acceptable to the Soviet Union, which is believed highly reluctant to destroy new weapons such as the SS-20, capable of carrying three nuclear warheads.

A more limited, fall-back position is said to include an attempt to win Soviet acceptance of the planned deployment of 572 American nuclear warheads on Pershing II missiles in exchange for the removal of more than 900 Soviet warheads now in place on SS-20, SS-5 and SS-4 missiles. That would be a shift in force levels aimed at producing a relative nuclear balance in Europe.

On a related subject, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said the United States remains interested in a possible summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev if the "necessary groundwork is laid" and there are indications that a summit would prove "fruitful and productive and yield results."

There are no indications Reagan will announce such a meeting in his speech, despite statements from West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt that he hopes to get the two leaders together to clear the air on arms control and nuclear issues.

Brezhnev and Schmidt meet in Bonn for a series of meetings beginning Friday. U.S. officials have said they expect a summit would take place sometime in 1982.

The U.S. at the moment has no medium-range missiles in the European theater, but does have short-range tactical nuclear weapons such as Pershing I and Lance missiles.

The Soviet Union already has deployed substantial numbers of SS-20 missiles.

Senate works on money under strong veto pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee, working under a very strong veto threat from the White House, began Tuesday to redraft a massive, House-passed money bill to keep the federal government in business after midnight Friday.

Even before the panel began its work, sources said the White House relayed word that President Reagan was likely to veto the measure unless it contained a 5 percent across-the-board spending cut. There appeared little chance Congress would meet those terms, officials agreed.

But at the same time, both sides were equally agreed that Reagan had the strength to sustain a veto. Chairman Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., of the Senate panel said if that occurs, Congress "will have to stay in session ... around the clock" rather than taking its scheduled Thanksgiving recess late this week.

The White House said the disagreement was over budget cuts, largely stalled since

Arab satellite sale revived

WASHINGTON (AP) — After one retreat, the Reagan administration is forging ahead with the proposed sale of communications satellite gear to an Arab consortium that includes Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Sources told The Associated Press that the proposal, which could stir another fight with Congress on the heels of the $8.5-billion arms sale to Saudi Arabia, is being revived even though some senators object to delivering the sophisticated equipment to a group whose membership involves hostile elements.

Creationsim boosted in poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of four Americans believe that both the scientific theory of evolution and the biblical theory of creation should be taught in public schools, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

Weather

Cooler and more windy is the forecast for today, with the high expected to be in the upper 70s and the low tonight in the mid 30s. The high tomorrow should be near 60. The skies will be partly cloudy, and the winds should pick up to 15-20 mph with gusts.

Reagan unveiled a new austerity plan in September.

But Republican and Democrats alike in Congress said Reagan also hoped to use the situation to regain the initiative in fighting for his embattled economic program.

"It makes him look like a macho man, I guess," said House Democratic Leader James Wright, D-Texas.

"They just want to veto a bill," said one Republican official, asking not to be quoted by name.

The measure is necessary because Congress has not yet completed action on any of the 12 regular appropriations bills that fund the executive branch departments and the judiciary. An existing interim measure expires Friday at midnight.

The House rejected a proposed 5 percent cut when it passed its own $440-billion version of the bill on Monday.

Officials said the 5 percent cut wasn't likely to succeed in the GOP-controlled Senate.

Hinckley reported functioning well

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr., hospitalized after trying to hang himself, was reported functioning well mentally Tuesday afternoon. Meanwhile, a federal judge threw out two pieces of evidence the government wanted to use at his trial to prove he was sane when he shot President Reagan.

Hinckley began talking, eating and watching television at a nearby army base hospital in Maryland after breathing and intravenous tubes were removed, the Justice Department said Tuesday afternoon.

In U.S. District Court here, Judge Barrington D. Parker suppressed the use of handwritten notes seized from Hinckley's prison cell last July and a statement to the FBI the day of the shooting in which he gave a detailed narrative of his wanderings the year before the March 30 attack.

Parker said the seizure of notes violated Hinckley's

Fourth Amendment right against unreasonable searches and the statement taken by the FBI violated the Supreme Court's Miranda ruling, which said questioning of a suspect must cease once he requests an attorney.

Hinckley's lawyers also wanted two court-ordered psychiatric reports suppressed, but Parker ruled against the defense on that issue.

Prosecutors have said they had planned to use the notes and the statement to the FBI to rebut defense arguments that Hinckley was insane and unable to appreciate the wrongfulness of his actions.

The Justice Department said Tuesday afternoon, "With the exception of a short lapse of memory surrounding the circumstances of the attempted suicide, clinically John Hinckley's mental capabilities are intact. More definitive testing is required to determine if there has been any long-lasting effect."

Hinckley was cut down by U.S. marshals who reached through a window three to five minutes after he dropped from a makeshift noose Sunday.

Hinckley pleaded innocent to a 13-count federal indictment charging him with attempted assassination of the president. His lawyers say they will not contest the fact that he shot Reagan, a Secret Service agent, a District of Columbia policeman and White House press secretary James Brady.

Peyton McKnight...

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is "trying to sell us something he calls apples, but a closer examination reveals it to be oranges," Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, said Tuesday.

McKnight, an announced Democratic candidate for governor, was in Dallas for a series of organizational meetings.

He said Clements is misleading voters when he tells them he has reduced the number of state employees by 3,000.

McKnight said records at the Comptroller's office show there were 167,144 persons on the state payroll on Jan. 31, 1979. On Oct. 31, 1981, there were 176,151 warrants issued.

This means, McKnight said, that "the size of the state payroll did not decrease, as Clements is telling people, but actually increased by more than 9,000 people."

Reagan Brown...

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown asked for a second four-year term Tuesday saying he is the only qualified candidate.

Brown labeled his opponent in the Democratic primary, Jim Hightower, a "gadfly" with a program of "radical proposals and tired slogans."

He said he did not think there would be a Republican challenger.

"I do not offer pie-in-the-sky promises; I'm working to keep meat and potatoes on the table for the people of the state and profits for our farmers," Brown told a Capitol news conference.

Hightower ran a close but unsuccessful race for the Texas Railroad Commission in 1978. Recently he announced as a candidate for agriculture commissioner.

"If the people of Texas didn't want Hightower for railroad commissioner, they sure don't want him for agriculture commissioner," Brown said.

Brown said that under his leadership Texas is now one of the top three agricultural producers in the nation and a leader in exports. "Farmers and ranchers have an annual economic impact of $34 billion on the state's economy. Thirty percent of the retail trade in Texas is related to agriculture. Food production provides jobs for one-fourth of the working force in Texas."

Brown said Texas agriculture's present problems are caused by national and world economic conditions.

"They are not going to be solved by radical proposals and tired slogans that are a century out of date," he said. "The horse-and-buggy days are over, and so are the days of forty acres and a mule."

Jim Hightower...

MARSHALL (AP) — Jim Hightower said Tuesday he welcomes Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown in the Democratic race for the statewide elective post.

Brown said Tuesday he would seek re-election. Hightower already has announced he will be a candidate.

"We are going to do something very mean to Mr. Brown," Hightower said in a statement to a news conference. "We are going to be hard-hearted enough to make him run on his record ... if Mr. Brown has been such a terrific commissioner, why have we lost 8,000 family farmers during his tenure, why have food prices jumped by half, why was the interest rate ceiling raised to 24 percent for farmers and consumers alike, why have we lost more than a million acres of good farmland?"

Baylor president concerned about future of private colleges

By DARIA DOSS
UD Reporter

As Herbert Reynolds sees it, private colleges have a unique responsibility in the world of higher education — preventing the public institutions from gaining a government-controlled monopoly on the education of America's youth.

Reynolds, president of Baylor University, was in Lubbock this week to meet with community leaders to inform them of Baylor's goals and what it has to offer.

Reynolds took office in June 1981, succeeding controversial Baylor president Abner McCall. Reynolds served for 12 years as executive vice president before he was inaugurated as president.

In an interview with The University Daily, Reynolds said higher education, especially private higher education, is going to be in trouble in the future because of inflation.

One of Reynolds' goals is to increase Baylor's endowment fund from the present $75 million to $250 million. Reynolds said this year $17 million was presented to students for scholarships, but in the future, if inflation persists, less money will be given.

"Private education has seen a vast change over about the past 100 years," Reynolds said.

Before 1862, private education dominated. After 1862, when state funds were set aside for public education, enrollment in private institutions began to decline.

In 1950, Reynolds said private education took in 50 percent of the students in the United States. Now he said only 12 percent of college students attend private institutions.

"Private colleges, however, will continue to have a great impact," Reynolds said.

For the future of small private institutions with 600 students or less, though, Reynolds said "they may not make it."

When Reynolds begins talking about his personal views as president of Baylor, the conversation inevitably turns to the 1980 Playboy incident.

That year, the editors of Baylor's student newspaper, The Lariat, published an editorial encouraging Baylor women to make up their own minds about posing nude for the magazine.

McCall, then president, instructed the editors not to run the editorial. When the editors refused, they were fired.

Reynolds said he would have taken McCall's approach and not condoned the editorial.

"If I were approached about letting young women pose nude for Playboy, I would not like it at all," Reynolds said. "It's not good for the personhood of the girl or for Baylor's reputation."

Reynolds said students have to remember that freedom of the press takes into consideration freedom of the publisher also. According to the newspaper's charter, Baylor's president is publisher of The Lariat.

Reynolds said it is hard to live with alienation of the students, but he would make the same decision McCall made if a similar situation came up again.

"The incident with the editorial, though, was really a small thing and is not typical of Baylor," Reynolds said.

One goal Reynolds has for the university is to give the 8,000 students who are not members of sororities or fraternities more attention. Baylor has an enrollment of about 10,000 and he said the 2,000 that are in sororities and fraternities get more recognized attention from teachers because they're in an organized group.

Reynolds said he would like to organize a "full Friday and Saturday night program" for students so they could get together and not feel left out. He said if more activities were provided at the student union center, this might help alleviate the problem.

The West Texas State University Student Senate resolved Monday to conduct an investigation of the WT student newspaper The Prairie.

Student Senator Brad Swygard introduced a bill that will create a committee to investigate student response to the paper, the structure of the paper's financial support and alleged "abuses of the by-laws of journalism etiquette."

Swygard said The Prairie's editors have frequently refused to print letters to the editor, instead using the letters as a basis for editorials. He also said the editorials in The Prairie attacked some students' personal beliefs.

Carroll Wilson, adviser for The Prairie, said he had "no earthly idea" what the Senate's accusations meant.

Part of the controversy, he said, centered around a series of editorials written by Prairie associate editor Rick Mullen. Wilson said Mullen's editorials, satirical imitations of the style of preaching practiced by Jerry Falwell, were not intended to offend any student's religious beliefs.

"Perhaps it is the function of a newspaper to get people to think," Wilson said. "Apparently the Student Senate's reaction is a direct result of the editors writing their own opinions on issues more important than 'don't walk on the grass.'"

Swygard also proposed to the Senate that the financial support for The Prairie come from the sale of individual issues rather than from the Student Service Fee paid at registration by WTSU students.

Kathy Huffman, editor of The Prairie, said the newspaper could not survive without the money from the Student Service Fee.

"Apparently the Student Senate's reaction is a direct result of the editors writing their own opinions on issues more important than 'don't walk on the grass.'"

— Carroll Wilson, adviser for The Prairie

"It (losing the fees) would be like a football team trying to run their program just with the money from ticket sales," Huffman said. "I believe we could sell The Prairie by the issue, but not enough to keep us from going down the drain."

Wilson called Swygard's proposal to restructure The Prairie's financial support "a power play" and "a blatant attempt at intimidation."

"Almost all of Mr. Swygard's proposals have to do with his guest column he wanted printed in the paper," Wilson said. "He was told by the editors he would have to revise it before it could be printed. By the third time he brought it back, he was already running for the senate, and it became obvious he was just trying to get free publicity. We told him we would be glad to print a political ad for him, but not a political column. That's what irritated him."

Swygard also said he was denied free space in The Prairie to campaign for several candidates during fall general elections.

"Our policy during these elections," Huffman said, "is to print the names of all the candidates. In the spring elections when the Student Government officers are being elected, we will run their opinions on university issues. But in a situation where there are many students running for a spot on the senate, there simply is not free space available for every one of them to write in condoning their favorite candidate or themselves."

Wilson said he had contacted a lawyer specializing in student press rights who had agreed to work with The Prairie free of charge.

The Senate committee will begin investigating the charges against The Prairie as soon as possible, Swygard said.

Writer 'channels' efforts in Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bruce Channel was thumbing through selections at a record store recently when he came across his 1962 hit, "Hey Baby."

"I was shocked," he recalled. "I didn't know Smash Records was still printing it."

"I didn't buy it," he said, laughing.

He's one of the few who didn't. The record sold a million copies, earned him two appearances on "American Bandstand" and still garners him royalty checks. People now in their mid- to late-30s, who wore out their transistor radios back in the tranquil days of 1962, will easily remember the song, their steady date at the time and their favorite high school hangout.

Today, Channel is 40 and a Nashville songwriter, who has written or co-written such hits as T.G. Sheppard's "Party Time" and "You're the Best," recorded by Kieran Kane.

But "Hey Baby" is what launched his long career in music.

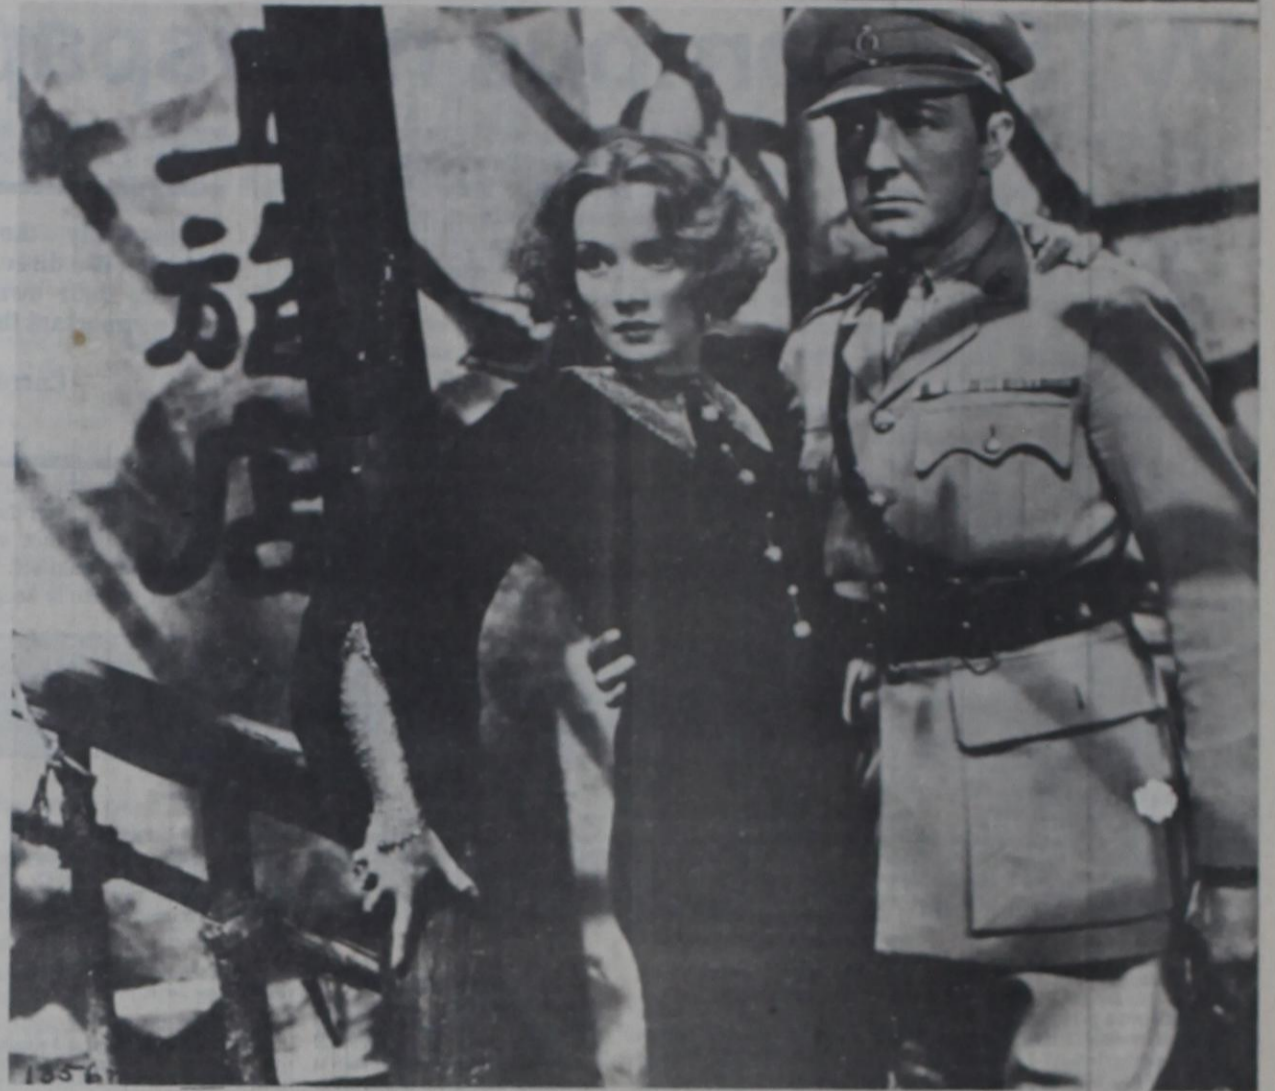

"There was a sing-along quality to it that people liked," said the husky Channel, who has red hair and a matching mustache. "There was a dance then called the Hully Gully, and people danced to the song like they did to the Stroll. The song had a simple message — a guy talking to a girl — and the harmonica part made it unusual."

"It gave me the chance to see things I'd always wanted to see and to travel around," he said. "It opened many doors for me and kept me in the business and kept me working."

He kept singing until the mid-1970s, when he left the music business to take a job with the parks department in Grapevine, Texas, his hometown. He re-entered the music business about three years ago when he moved to Nashville to make his living as a songwriter.

Channel, a contemporary of Del Shannon, Paul Anka and Jimmy Clanton, said rock 'n' roll music probably is better now than it was during his heyday nearly 20 years ago.

"It's not changed too much. The musicians are younger," he said. "It's probably a lot cleaner now — more musicianship is involved and people learn their instrument and keep working at it."

Tonight's Cinematheque presentation will be a Marlene Dietrich double feature. The twin bill includes "Shanghai Express," above, as Dietrich teams with Clive Brook and "The Scarlet Empress," which co-stars John Lodge and Sam Jaffe with Dietrich. Since it's a double feature, the starting time will be moved up to 7 p.m. and tickets will be priced at $2.

'Siouxsie and Banshees' unlikely disco act

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of those nice little ironies that crop up in show business from time to time is the evolution of the record trade magazine disco charts. Created at the height of "Saturday Night Fever" dance boom, they originally were more or less carbon copies of the all-encompassing pop charts, filled mostly with entries from the likes of the Village People, Donna Summer and the Bee Gees.

Top 40 songs with a beat still do well, but these days the disco charts are just about the only place where newer, more adventurous rock bands can also make a showing.

You won't, for example, find British stars Siouxsie (pronounced Susie) and the Banshees on the Hot 100. Yet "Spellbound," a mesmerizing song from their recent "Juju" LP, has been floating around on the disco charts — not the upper reaches, but somebody out there is obviously dancing to it.

The irony is that disco — or at least the kind of music it suggested a few years back — once was the last thing with which a rock 'n' roll band wanted to be identified.

Siouxsie and the Banshees certainly don't consider themselves a disco band in the Village People-Summer-Bee Gees sense of the word. But they aren't any happier being pigeonholed as punk rockers, a classification that resulted mainly because they got their start in Britain at about the same time as the Clash and the Sex Pistols.

"The thing we really notice about America is that they have a horrible way of putting things in little packages. The word punk is a media-created word in the first place," says bassist Steve Severin, a soft-spoken man with close-cropped platinum hair who has been playing music with Siouxsie Sioux for more than five years.

"You can say that us and the Clash are the only survivors from 1976, but us and the Clash are a million miles apart musically and in attitude as well," Severin says.

Spikers face THE date

Hilltop View
Sid Hill

Everybody knows the major sports news in November is which team is going to go to which bowl.

Well, almost everybody.

For volleyball coach Janice Hudson and members of the Tech volleyball team, THE important date of the season is the regional tournament Friday and Saturday in Arlington.

Tech finished fourth last weekend at the state tourney in Austin, Texas, which drubbed the Raiders in the Coliseum earlier this month, won the tourney. Texas-Arlington placed second and Lamar finished third.

Tech will have to compete with those three teams and teams from New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas for the regional championship. The regional champion will qualify for the AIAW National Championships Dec. 10-12 at Florida State in Tallahassee, Fla.

I visited the Raider workout Monday to talk to Hudson about the squad's performance at state. Hudson was pleased with her team's performance and added that the squad played as a unit for the first time this season in the Texas match, which the Longhorns eventually won, 15-5, 1-15, 15-7, 10-15 and 15-10.

"Without any question at all, that Texas match was by far the best the team has played this season," Hudson said as the Raiders practiced in the Women's Gym.

The squad must have improved tremendously, because in the match earlier this month, Texas seemed to have little trouble overpowering Tech.

But Hudson said the state meet made the difference in the team's play.

"At state over the weekend, the players finally came together

Pitt, Clemson maintain top spots

By The Associated Press

When Bobby Collins took over as Southern Mississippi's coach in 1975, he didn't even have a football field to call his own.

Things have changed considerably since then for the Golden Eagles, who broke into the Top Ten in The Associated Press college football poll on Tuesday.

For the third week in a row, Pittsburgh and Clemson were ranked 1-2 with two Southeastern Conference rivals, Georgia and Alabama, moving into the third and fourth spots.

Skidding were Southern California, from third place to 10th by losing to Washington 13-3; Penn State, from fifth to 13th by losing to Alabama 31-16, and Arizona State, from ninth to 20th by losing to UCLA 34-24.

It was Southern Mississippi which made the biggest jump, from 14th a week ago to No. 9 in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The Golden Eagles beat Florida State last Saturday 58-14.

"We felt we deserved more national attention," said Collins, who led the Golden Eagles to a 9-3 mark including a victory in the Independence Bowl last season. "We have to be realistic — this kind of recognition is slow coming."

Pitt, a 48-0 winner over Army, received 63 of 68 first-place votes and 1,354 of a possible 1,360 points. Clemson, which defeated Maryland 21-7 to capture the Atlantic Coast

Conference crown, received the other five first-place ballots and 1,290 points.

Georgia, which clinched at least a share of the SEC championship by beating Auburn 24-13, moved up from fourth to third with 1,169 points, replacing Southern Cal.

Alabama, with Bear Bryant posting a record-tying 314th coaching triumph, jumped from sixth to fourth with 1,128 points.

Nebraska climbed from seventh to fifth with 972 points after clinching the Big Eight title with a 31-7 victory over Iowa State. Southern Methodist's 30-6 triumph over Texas Tech pushed the Mustangs from eighth place to sixth with 924 points.

Michigan moved from 11th to seventh with 875 points after a 28-10 victory over Purdue.

as a team and not just a bunch of individuals out there hitting a volleyball," Hudson said.

Hudson was pleased with the Raiders' performance in the final game of the best-of-five match after trailing 14-4.

"But the players never gave up and fought back to make the score 14-10," Hudson said. "But they finally just wore us down and got that last point."

Hudson said Tech played super in the state tourney, which caused her to look forward to the regional tournament this weekend.

"For the first time this season, I feel good about the team's chances at region," Hudson said.

One reason Hudson feels good about the team's chances, she said, is that a starting lineup has been determined for the spikers.

Outside hitters will be Carolyn Tubb, Christa White and Irene Solano. Cynthia Hardaway and Rhonda Farley will play middle blocker. Setter is Gracie Gallardo.

Hudson during Monday's workout continually stressed to the players the mental aspect of the game.

"Get here mentally," Hudson yelled to the players during a drill.

"We're not going to miss serves this weekend so ya'll just need to make up your minds," Hudson exhorted to her team.

A short time later, Hudson explained that she thought the team had the physical talent to advance to nationals, but that the major obstacle is Tech's mental attitude.

"It has been said the mental aspect is important in volleyball. Personally, I'd say 90 percent of a team's performance is mental," Hudson said.

Assistant coach Christy Cotton explained the players' attitude entering this weekend's tourney.

"Hyper is a good word to explain their attitude right now," Cotton said. "They realize that they have to win regionals or their season is over. I don't believe they're ready to quit yet."

I'm just a sports writer, who before this season thought volleyball was a pansy sport, but I don't think the team is ready to quit either.

Maybe the team ought to adopt the motto "Florida or bust!"

Things have changed considerably since then for the Golden Eagles, who broke into the Top Ten in The Associated Press college football poll on Tuesday.

For the third week in a row, Pittsburgh and Clemson were ranked 1-2 with two Southeastern Conference rivals, Georgia and Alabama, moving into the third and fourth spots.

Skidding were Southern California, from third place to 10th by losing to Washington 13-3; Penn State, from fifth to 13th by losing to Alabama 31-16, and Arizona State, from ninth to 20th by losing to UCLA 34-24.

It was Southern Mississippi which made the biggest jump, from 14th a week ago to No. 9 in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The Golden Eagles beat Florida State last Saturday 58-14.

"We felt we deserved more national attention," said Collins, who led the Golden Eagles to a 9-3 mark including a victory in the Independence Bowl last season. "We have to be realistic — this kind of recognition is slow coming."

Pitt, a 48-0 winner over Army, received 63 of 68 first-place votes and 1,354 of a possible 1,360 points. Clemson, which defeated Maryland 21-7 to capture the Atlantic Coast

Conference crown, received the other five first-place ballots and 1,290 points.

Georgia, which clinched at least a share of the SEC championship by beating Auburn 24-13, moved up from fourth to third with 1,169 points, replacing Southern Cal.

Alabama, with Bear Bryant posting a record-tying 314th coaching triumph, jumped from sixth to fourth with 1,128 points.

Nebraska climbed from seventh to fifth with 972 points after clinching the Big Eight title with a 31-7 victory over Iowa State. Southern Methodist's 30-6 triumph over Texas Tech pushed the Mustangs from eighth place to sixth with 924 points.

Michigan moved from 11th to seventh with 875 points after a 28-10 victory over Purdue.

as a team and not just a bunch of individuals out there hitting a volleyball," Hudson said.

Hudson was pleased with the Raiders' performance in the final game of the best-of-five match after trailing 14-4.

"But the players never gave up and fought back to make the score 14-10," Hudson said. "But they finally just wore us down and got that last point."

Hudson said Tech played super in the state tourney, which caused her to look forward to the regional tournament this weekend.

"For the first time this season, I feel good about the team's chances at region," Hudson said.

One reason Hudson feels good about the team's chances, she said, is that a starting lineup has been determined for the spikers.

Outside hitters will be Carolyn Tubb, Christa White and Irene Solano. Cynthia Hardaway and Rhonda Farley will play middle blocker. Setter is Gracie Gallardo.

Hudson during Monday's workout continually stressed to the players the mental aspect of the game.

"Get here mentally," Hudson yelled to the players during a drill.

"We're not going to miss serves this weekend so ya'll just need to make up your minds," Hudson exhorted to her team.

A short time later, Hudson explained that she thought the team had the physical talent to advance to nationals, but that the major obstacle is Tech's mental attitude.

"It has been said the mental aspect is important in volleyball. Personally, I'd say 90 percent of a team's performance is mental," Hudson said.

Assistant coach Christy Cotton explained the players' attitude entering this weekend's tourney.

"Hyper is a good word to explain their attitude right now," Cotton said. "They realize that they have to win regionals or their season is over. I don't believe they're ready to quit yet."

I'm just a sports writer, who before this season thought volleyball was a pansy sport, but I don't think the team is ready to quit either.

Maybe the team ought to adopt the motto "Florida or bust!"

Pitt, Clemson maintain top spots

Shoot-Out over

The Texas Tech Racquetball Shoot-Out took place last weekend, and, to illustrate how heated the competition was, money was involved.

In the Men's Open division, with a $100 in store for the winner and $50 for the runnerup, Scott Cullins defeated Dick Lupia 21-6, 21-11, for the big paycheck. In consolation play Keri Wheatley topped Robert Zander 21-19, 4-21, 11-5.

The Women's Open and "B" divisions were combined, but it made no difference to Lisa Lynch, who beat Nancy Pusser 21-11, 13-21, 11-2, to collect the $50 first prize, while Pusser received $25 for her efforts. Brenda Depperman defeated Kara Kauner for the consolation championship.

In Men's "B" division action Steve Waldron captured the title with a 21-20, 18-21, 11-10 win over Javier Suffle, while Joe Ayala took the consolation honors with a win over Steve Sharp.

The Men's "C" division championship went to Jim Sands, who beat Louis Valdez 21-20, 21-8. John Mendez topped Tim Teske 21-12, 21-10, for the consolation championship.

Tray White took the Men's Novice division championship with a 21-11, 21-17 win over David Vaughn, and Victor Quintana claimed the consolation trophy with a 16-21, 21-18, 11-10, victory over John Ortega.

The Men's Senior division championship went to Troy Johnson, who defeated Warren True 21-10, 21-5. Alvin Sharp became the Senior division consolation winner with a victory over Don Bumpass.

In other women's singles action, Chris Contreras took the "C" division title with a 21-27, 21-8 win over Linda Ruzicka. Consolation competition went to Sally Brown when she defeated Karen Anderson.

Men's Open doubles action pitted the two singles finalists against each other again with a little more money at stake and partners this time. Lupia got the best of Cullins this time when he teamed up with Ken Williams to oust Cullins and Keri Whitley 21-11, 15-21, 11-8.
