

Boston jet recorders recovered

BOSTON (AP) — Federal investigators recovered crucial data and voice recorders Sunday from a partially submerged World Airways DC-10, hoping to learn why the jumbo jet with 208 people aboard slid off an icy runway into Boston Harbor and broke open.

The cockpit voice recorder and the flight data recorder, to be sent to a lab for analysis Monday, might reveal at what point on the 10,081-foot runway the plane landed, what the crew said before landing, and "sounds such as switches being thrown, changes in engine noises and warning horns," said National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Robert Buckhorn.

The flight data recorder contains information about the plane's speed, direction, angle of flight, and where it landed, Buckhorn said. The DC-10 needs about 5,000 feet to land.

The 196 passengers and 12 crew members slid down emergency chutes and scrambled through waist-deep icy ocean water after Flight 30, from Oakland, Calif., and Newark, N.J., skidded off the end of a runway at Logan International Airport while landing in a light rain about 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The cockpit of the plane broke off and water surged through the cabin.

At least 38 people were injured, none seriously.

A team of 10 members of the National Transportation Safety Board inspected the scene of the Saturday night accident.

"Weather conditions and the airport's decision to operate is a key area we'll be looking at," said Patricia Goldman, who toured the airport Sunday morning.

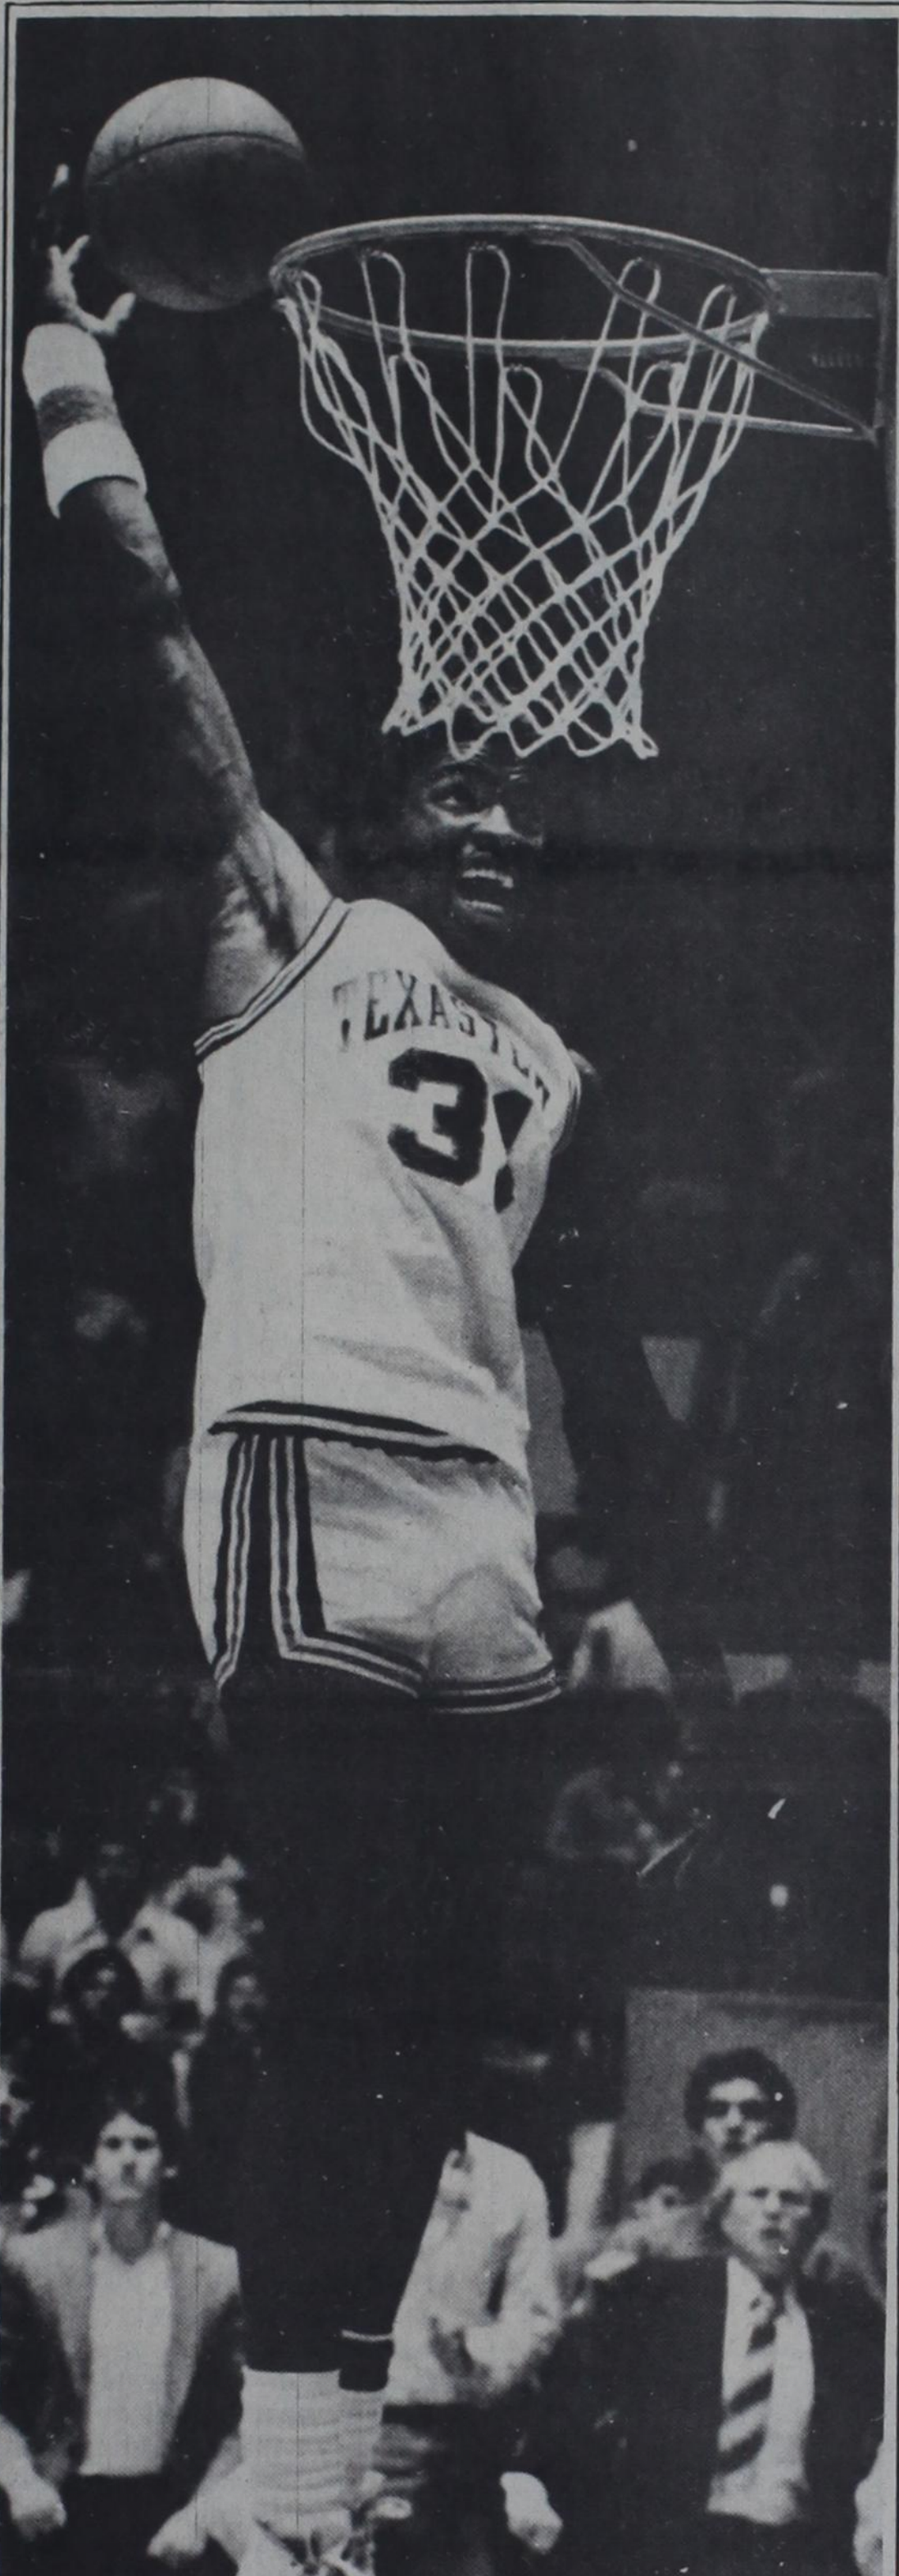

"It was obviously a stunning scene and we're very fortunate to have all survivors," she said.

Buckhorn said the inquiry would include a look at landing conditions at the harborside airport. The temperature at the time of the crash was about 35 degrees, and snow had fallen earlier in the day. Some passengers reported they transferred to the World Airways flight after People's Express and Delta canceled flights into Logan.

At least 38 people were treated at area hospitals for exposure, bumps and bruises. Six rescue workers also were treated for exposure because they helped pull passengers out of the frigid water.

Four people remained hospitalized Sunday, including pilot Peter Langley, who was thrown into the water. Langley, 54, from the San Francisco area, was in good condition after being treated for hypothermia, cuts and bruises.

"A pilot or co-pilot, stunned, walked past us, and he was saying, 'I couldn't stop the plane, I couldn't stop the plane,'" said Jeffrey Carr, a college student from Attleboro, Mass. "He was in a total state of shock."

Prosecuter bids for District Attorney post

By PETE McNABB

A long-time protege of Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney John

Travis Ware

Montford announced Saturday that he intends to run for his boss' job and put a "strangle-hold on crime in this county."

Travis S. Ware, the 32-year-old chief felony prosecutor who has won almost every case he has tried, made the anticipated announcement before a gathering of 250 supporters at the Hilton Inn.

If elected, Ware said he would continue Montford's "get-tough" policy in handling local crime.

"We are going to continue the tough, aggressive war against crime that has been a trademark of his (Montford's) administration," Ware said. "Nobody is going to get away with breaking the law in this county."

Montford announced Thursday that he will not seek re-election to the district attorney's spot but will run for the state senate. Although Montford did not appear at the rally, political insiders say he has been grooming Ware for the job for some time.

Ware, who is running for the Democratic nomination, faces only one announced opponent so far. Tech business law professor Wanda Wray, who is also a practicing Lubbock attorney, announced last week that she intends to run for office.

Jim Bob Darnell, another district attorney's office prosecutor, is rumored to be interested in running for the Republican nomination in the district attorney's race. Darnell, however, has not officially announced his campaign.

Wray had criticized Ware last week for not having the administrative background necessary to effectively run the district attorney's office.

Ware, however, said Saturday he does have the administrative background. He ran Montford's private law practice in 1978, he said, while his boss was campaigning for the district attorney's spot.

Also, he said he has gained more administrative experience since being appointed chief felony prosecutor in 1979.

He said he plans to do more than simply work as an administrator if elected district attorney. Ware said he intends to continue prosecuting cases.

Officials complete initial TA evaluation

By SUSAN CORBETT
UD Reporter

Two Tech foreign teaching assistants will not be allowed to teach this semester after an internal evaluation proved they cannot speak English proficiently in the classroom.

The two graduate students, who were not identified, were told following an Academic Affairs office evaluation they cannot return to the classroom as instructors unless they improve their use of the English language.

The two teaching assistants, however, will be allowed to continue working for the university outside the classroom.

Roslyn Smith, assistant professor of Classical and Romance languages, whose specialty is teaching English as a second language, developed and is conducting the evaluation on oral proficiency.

"So far, these are the only two who will not be teaching. I'll be happy to re-evaluate their English at any time. We're trying to be fair. If they're willing to be corrected on their problems, I can recommend various classes, labs and aids," Smith said.

"I had expected a lot more problems than I found. I was pleasantly surprised," Smith said.

The overall proficiency of foreign TAs, however, has been overplayed, Smith said.

"There is a perceived problem. Therefore, a problem exists. If you happen to be a student who had a really bad TA, you don't think it's been overplayed. But I'm speaking for the majority of the foreign TAs who are really quite good," Smith said.

The most frequent errors the TAs make are systematic errors, in which single mispronunciations are made repeatedly, Smith said. The TA's can be easily understood when the student becomes accustomed to the systematic errors, Smith said.

"Most are quite good. I have found only a couple who do not make such minor errors and I have made recommendations to them like making a list of the words most used in class and working on them," Smith said.

The academic departments with large numbers of foreign-born teaching assistants — including chemistry, math, computer science and physics — were evaluated first.

Approximately 13 TAs from departments with few foreign TAs have yet to be evaluated. Smith said the evaluation was not completed before this semester began because of the time involved in evaluating 106 foreign TAs before the Christmas holidays.

Smith said she visited classes taught by the graduate students and after listening to them teach, approved most of the TAs immediately.

"I did this sort of thing for eight years before I came here. I can listen for just a short time and evaluate. There is no elaboracy required, just experience," Smith said.

"I asked myself one basic question: Can I, someone from administration or the student understand this person? I was only asked to evaluate their English speaking ability, not their teaching ability. Some departments may look for that themselves," Smith said.

Academic departments and the administration supported the evaluation, Smith said.

"The departments have been extremely cooperative. They have to support their TAs either way. They have signed contracts with the TAs. It behooves them to hire good people," Smith said.

Smith said she was impressed with the positive attitude the administration has toward the evaluation.

"It shows the university is making an honest effort to correct its problems, especially when they're willing to spend some money on the program," Smith said.

"The university pays for room and board for the TAs to come a few weeks early and get used to their surroundings before the mandatory English workshop they all must go through. That isn't typical of most colleges," Smith said.

Smith said the evaluation may not be the end of internal checks on foreign TA English proficiency.

Attempts are now being made to stop the problem before it starts. Applicants are sending tapes of themselves to the departments for evaluation before they come to the country.

Smith said the practice is foolproof because English speaking abilities can be evaluated before and after the student arrives.

"We're thinking of doing several follow-up sessions on a regular basis as well to monitor their progress. It could help them with problems they might be having as well as give us more feedback on speaking problems for workshops in the future," Smith said.

Good feedback, a growing program and a reduction in letters-to-the-editor from angry students are testimony to the success of the summer workshops, Smith said.

Before teaching, all foreign TAs must first take the Michigan Test of English Language Proficiency, a four-part test covering vocabulary comprehension, an impromptu composition, listening comprehension, and a final interview. One hundred foreign students took the test this fall, Smith said.

After passing the Michigan test, the foreign TA must attend the summer English workshop, worth six credit hours in a three-week period.

Complaints rare Students part of problem?

Enough students filed complaints concerning the ability of foreign teaching assistants to communicate adequately in English that a formal evaluation was conducted.

Yet, one math professor said a large part of the problem is not caused by the foreign TA but by the student.

The math department has been the most criticized in the last year for hiring the most, but maybe not the worst, foreign TAs, said Monty Strauss, math graduate advisor in charge of recruiting, hiring, monitoring and firing foreign TAs.

"The math department volunteered to be evaluated first since we have the biggest number (24) under the gun (in the letter-to-the-editor) by The University Daily," Strauss said.

"None are as bad as the complaints made against them. Just because they have accents, doesn't make them unable to communicate," he said.

Strauss said 1 percent of the students enrolled in math courses actually voice their complaints. The legitimate complaints generally go unreported and those that are filed are few in number. Most students' complaints are unfounded, he said.

"The unfounded complaints are made out of a lack of an excuse for failing a course. Students enroll for courses not knowing what they're getting into. They think they have a bad instructor when they're failing and a good one when they're passing," Strauss said.

The evaluation coordinator Roslyn Smith said she agrees with Strauss that some complaints are unfounded.

"Rather than admit poor ability in the course, a student will take it out on the TA. The fact that he is foreign makes it so much the better," Smith said.

Smith did find seven or eight math TAs whose English speaking proficiency she questioned. Those TAs had to give a five-minute presentation on a random subject, and were evaluated numerically and subjectively by a panel on the special evaluation team, Smith said.

Strauss said in December that a small percentage of the foreign math TAs would not be teaching this semester.

"We were asked to remove them from the classroom and we concur. They are not hopeless and were given specific suggestions. They may be retested and get put back in," Strauss said.

Strauss said the department does have a problem with foreign TAs and is trying to take care of it.

"We have a program monitoring all TAs. We follow each report or complaint. The faculty members sit in on classes for evaluation purposes," Strauss said.

"We require them to take speech courses in which they work on communication skills in English," he said.

Every foreign TA must be judged proficient in English and every foreign student must pass an English test. In this evaluation, the emphasis is on speech. There are no tests, however, for teaching abilities, Strauss said.

"The English language is no criterion for good teaching ability. Not all teachers or students are perfect. We would not have hired the person if we didn't think he could do a good job," Strauss said.

Students do not try to understand the foreign TAs, Strauss said.

"After you hear them for a while, you get used to it and you learn the words they say wrong. Students are upset because the foreign TAs' speech is not the same as in West Texas. The university is preparation for life. You will always meet people who do not speak with a West Texas accent," Strauss said.

Strauss said all complaints should be taken directly to the department since the faculty is concerned about problems students may be having in classes.

Circle beautification process going through an ugly stage

Inez Russell

Change has never been good for my constitution. Once I settle into a good, solid routine, I see no reason for a dangerous upheaval.

That's why I suffered such a shock upon my return to Tech this semester. Ever since coming to school here, one of my favorite places on campus has been Memorial Circle.

The green shrubs, the lofty flagpoles and the vibrantly hued flowers lent a colorful touch to the circle. Even on the most dreary days, the spectacle of the flags waving over the green grass would lend some brightness to an otherwise gray day.

The first thing I noticed two weeks ago when I returned to school was the brown, scarred earth around the Circle.

The bushes that previously had encircled the flagpoles were gone, leaving nothing but disfigured, ugly earth. A few phone calls by a reporter, and The University Daily was at the bottom of the mystery.

The shrubs had been taken down in the first step of a process to beautify the circle. For a beautification process, the mess around Memorial Circle was one of the ugliest scenes I'd witnessed in years.

But no matter, sometimes ugliness is the first step to a more beautiful finish. And that more beautiful finish apparently was the goal of Tech administrators.

A landscape study indicated that the shrubs were overgrown and contributed nothing to the area. In my botanical ignorance, I merely thought the shrubs were attractive, lending a nice touch of greenery to the center of campus. What do I know?

Besides, Tech President Lauro Cavazos wanted the Tech flag to be displayed at the Circle, right up there with the United States flag and the flag of Texas.

That in itself was not a bad idea. In fact, it was a darn good one. A Tech flag displayed that prominently naturally would be a source of pride to students, faculty and staff — even if that flag does resemble that of Portugal or some small South American country.

At least we've got a flag here at Tech, which is more than many can say. This is my fourth year here at Tech, and until the beautification started at the Circle, I never even knew the university had a flag.

Now the whole world, at least that part of the world around University Avenue and Broadway will know that Tech indeed does have a flag.

Unfortunately, until planting season comes around, the whole world also will know that some redesigning is taking place. That's because the earth around the Circle will just lie there until sheared evergreens, annuals and perennials are planted. After all, Lubbock is desolate enough without adding to the desolation.

Ultimately, the planners say the new plants will give the Circle a more formal appearance. Until then, I suppose it will just have to look informal or, if you will, ugly.

A look inside the troubled affairs of suffering Poland

Flora Lewis

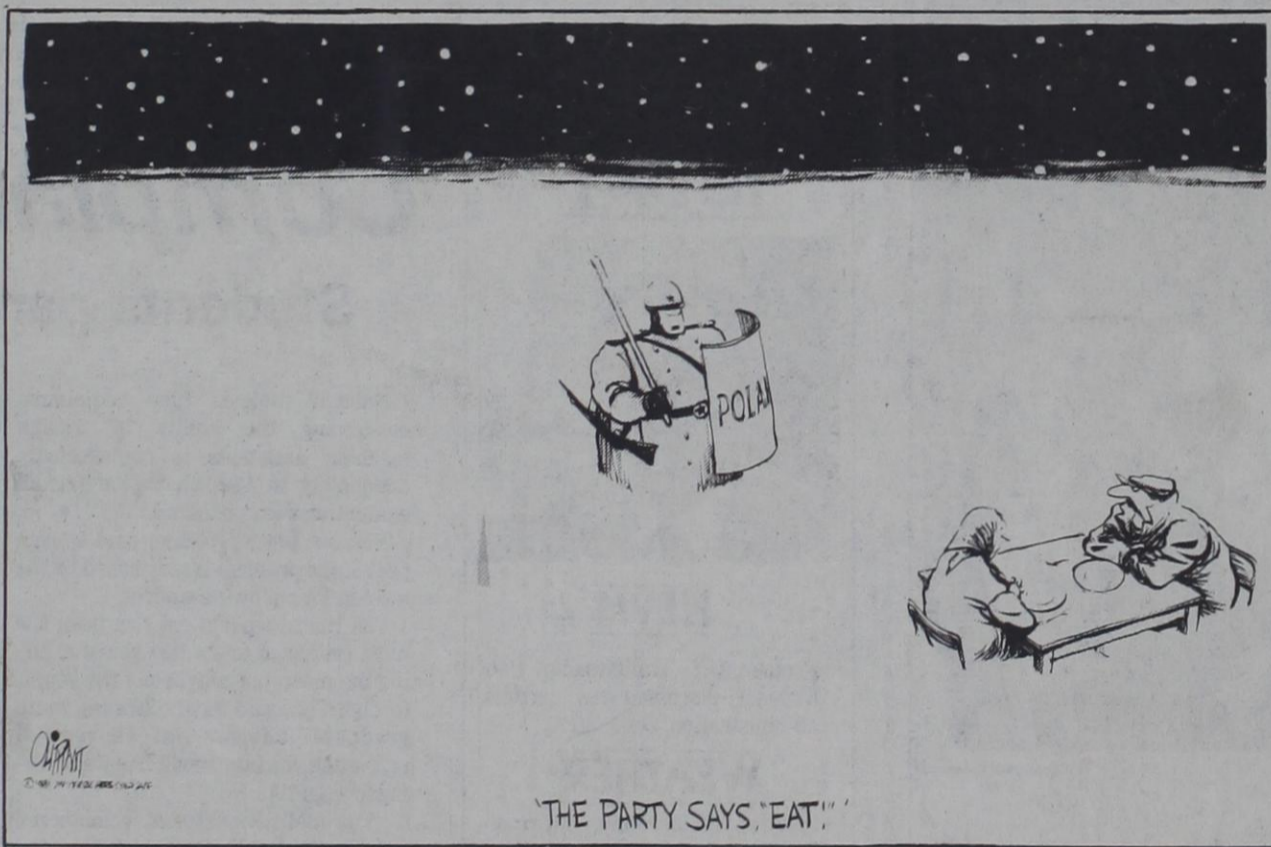

PARIS — The trickle of information from militarized Poland has been enough to make two things clear.

First, the coup was well prepared, even to timing. Reports from Gdansk show it began before Solidarity voted its last resolutions.

Some people named as arrested by Radio Warsaw are actually in the United States. The list was an old one. Soviet "non-interference" is a myth. Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski himself said he was acting to protect Polish sovereignty, a barely veiled admission of a Soviet ultimatum.

Second, the military dictatorship's promise of return to "renewal" of Polish society is empty. Of course the country cannot go back to pre-1980. It collapsed under 35 years of misrule. The regime's unwillingness and inability to deal with its people without force has been proven.

But neither have the generals, mostly Soviet trained, brought room for reconciliation. Massive arrests, the banning of organizations which had nothing to do with the union such as Catholic groups and the association of university rectors, reveal a will to destroy all 'the military dictatorship's promise of return to 'renewal' of Polish society is empty. Of course the country cannot go back to pre-1980. It collapsed under 35 years of misrule.'

popular representation.

When, and if, the military "terminate" their rule as pledged, to whom will they hand power? The fact that organs of repression remained fully in place, untouched by Solidarity's achievements, is now starkly highlighted. The union and its supporters built a parallel structure which was dazzling and aroused profound echoes among the people, but the oppressive power was never dismantled.

Remains the Communist Party. It has been deeply shaken, self-purged by defection of the relatively moderate faction, purged of a few discarded and discredited incompetents. Never before has a ruling Communist apparatus been taken over by its uniformed comrades. But where can that lead?

It appears that Jaruzelski's idea of "renewal" is simply renewal of the apparatus, replacement of one nomenclatura (the secret list of people eligible for responsible jobs) by another more vigorous, but with the same goal of monopoly power.

Janos Kadar did manage a fairly effective renewal of his Communist Party after Hungary's 1956 revolution. But there are two key reasons why Jaruzelski is unlikely to do as well. One is just time. An additional quarter century of Polish experience has killed illusions about the system's capacity for reform.

The other is alienation of intellectuals. Kadar's turning point came when he reversed the old Stalinist slogan of "He who is not with us is against us" to an acceptance of all who did not actively resist. Gradually, competent people agreed to seek improvements within the limits imposed, and indulgence of their efforts persuaded others to participate.

Jaruzelski and his junta may enforce a dead "order," no question of law. They cannot revive Poland's productive capacity without help from such people. Almost all have been swept into prison. However ardent his patriotism, the military ruler has turned himself against the wellsprings of the nation's vitality.

What is the West to do? I would make a distinction between government and public reactions, just as Poles have always had to distinguish between "reasons of state" and feelings. There should be no damper on widespread voicing of outrage. The more protests the better.

Western governments, and private bankers, should immediately suspend credits and aid to Poland, except for whatever foodstuffs and medicine can be distributed directly, not through the regime.

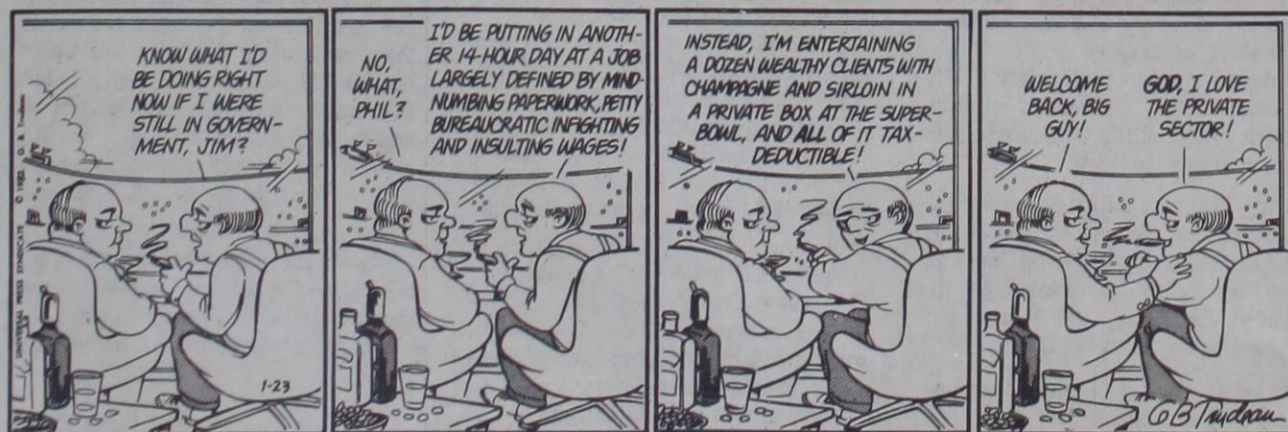

The word is suspend, not cancel, for there is leverage only so long as a chance for easement exists.

Excessive reliance on the nuclear deterrent is a major reason for Western impotence now. To extend it risks shattering the Western alliance. Poland should spur both Western Europe and the United States to concentrate more on conventional defense.

FCC chief wins Tech award

Federal Communications Commission Chairman Mark Fowler, who has proposed wide-range deregulation of the broadcast industry, has been named 1982 recipient of the national Thomas Jefferson Award honoring a public official concerned with freedom of the news media. The award will be presented to Fowler at the Thomas Jefferson Award Banquet Feb. 19 during Mass Communications Week at Tech. Fowler, who became the 19th FCC chairman last May, has been a leader in the movement to deregulate the broadcast industry.

7 killed in Laredo plane crash

LAREDO (AP) — A twin-engine airplane crashed at Laredo International Airport Sunday morning, killing all seven people aboard. The Cessna 402 was making its final approach for a landing when it plummeted and crashed nose-first about 10:15 a.m. CST, said airport director Carlos Gonzales. The three women and four men on board the plane were residents of Freeport, according to police and Texas Department of Public Safety officials. The victims' names were not released. Fire Chief Mike Perez said the seven bodies were taken to Mercy Hospital in Laredo.

Congress to begin session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress begins its 1982 election-year session today with Republicans worrying aloud about the economy and Democrats vowing that President Reagan won't get his way as easily or as often as he did a year ago. The president will outline his program in a State of the Union address before a joint session of the House and Senate Tuesday night, one day after lawmakers return from a six-week recess. And Republicans and Democrats alike say he will face a Congress with the economy on its mind.

China celebrates 'Year of Dog'

PEKING (AP) — Firecrackers exploded and flares arched from Peking windows across city streets early Monday as China welcomed the lunar calendar's Year of the Dog with a crackling, roaring display. Colorful fireworks blasted throughout Sunday evening and reached a peak at midnight, signaling the official start of family reunions, feasts and visits to friends and neighbors. The New Year is also the season for weddings, new clothes, redecorating, gifts and, for most of China's 1 billion people, the year's longest rest — four days.

Federalism to be theme of speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, returning from a snowy Camp David, is still at work on the State of the Union speech in which he will unveil new efforts to turn over to the states some of the work done by the federal government. Federalism — "the cornerstone of what Reagan is all about," in the words of spokesman Larry Speakes — and the second year of the Reagan economic program will be the central themes of the address the president will give Tuesday night to a joint session of the House and Senate and a nationwide television and radio audience. But another topic — and one on which the president was said to be undecided about final details — will be how to trim the 1983 federal budget deficit that could balloon to more than $100 billion without more spending cuts or higher taxation.

When Reagan left for Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, on Friday, he took with him the arguments of two conflicting groups that make up his economic advisers. The "supply-siders" in the Treasury Department are waging a last-ditch effort to head off any shift from the president's promise not to raise taxes. But more traditional conservatives, led by members of the president's senior staff and David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, have argued strenuously about the need to raise revenue by increasing excise taxes on most alcohol products, gasoline and some luxury items. By all reports, the president had been heeding the advice of the latter when the supply-siders persuaded him by Thursday that an increase in taxes would send a wrong signal and show a lack of confidence in the administration's first-year economic program. And so, the president retreated to Camp David on Friday, speech texts tucked away, to ponder his choices and prepare the address, his first State of the Union speech.

Archbishop: efforts to free prisoners 'not without fruit'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Roman Catholic Archbishop Jozef Glemp Sunday pleaded with Poles not to despair about martial law and said church efforts to free political prisoners were "not without fruit." Priests in pulpits across Poland read a church letter condemning the Communist government and demanding freedom for imprisoned workers and dissidents. "Brothers and sisters," said the archbishop, "pray for those who suffer, pray for all detainees to be quickly released, lift up your hearts."

In a homily broadcast from Warsaw's Holy Cross Church, Glemp did not call for an end to martial law, but told countrymen to "follow a path of truth," and said "we must lift ourselves from the depths only by ourselves." Communist Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski imposed martial law Dec. 13 to ban strikes, jail dissidents, curb civil rights and suspend the independent Solidarity union after 16 months of labor trouble and economic crisis. Thousands remain detained and others have been fired for refusing to resign from the union or take loyalty oaths.

A super blizzard kept much of Michigan immobilized Sunday, setting more records in the Snow Belt. The storm, which had swept out of the Rockies last week and spread up to 40 inches of snow across the Midwest, had moved into Canada but was still punishing the Great Lakes region and northern New England with wind-blown snow.

Tech ends tailspin against Baylor Raider women not as lucky with Bears

By SID HILL
UD Sports Writer

Prior to Saturday's 78-71 win against Baylor, the Tech basketball team had been in a tailspin — losing games to Texas, Houston, TCU and Rice.

Against Rice Tuesday night, Tech had a frigid night shooting the basketball. The Raiders made only 32.4 percent of their shots from the field, enabling the Owls to win for only the third time in Lubbock in 41 years, 66-57.

Saturday against Baylor in the Coliseum, Tech almost doubled Tuesday's shooting percentage. The Raiders shot a sizzling 63 percent from the field, making 34 of 54 attempts and connecting on 10 of 12 free throw attempts to defeat Baylor 78-71.

The win upped Tech's season mark to 11-6 and the squad's conference mark to 3-4. Baylor's season record fell to 9-6. The Bears' conference record is 2-3 after Saturday's loss to Tech.

Tech head coach Gerald Myers following the contest talked about the importance of the win for the Raiders.

"It's an understatement to say that the game for us tonight was important. All conference games are important, and this one was especially because we had lost four of the last five," Myers said. "The win against Baylor is a real confidence builder for our team."

The Tech coach said that in a close game, like Saturday's game, a team that has not been doing well has a tendency to lose confidence in itself. But Myers said he liked the way the Raiders performed.

"All our guys really played well and played hard all the way. All the starters played well, but if we gave a game ball to anyone it would be Steve Smith," Myers said.

Smith led all scorers by connecting on 11 of 16 field goals and going three for three from the free-throw line to score a season-high 25 points.

Jeff Taylor pumped in 22, Clarence Swannegan netted 16 and Charles Johnson scored 11 points to join teammate Smith in scoring double figures.

The first half was a dogfight between the two squads with Baylor taking a 41-39 advantage at halftime. The Bears made use of the 16-point first half effort of All-SWC forward Terry Teagle, who led Baylor scorers with 23 points for the night. Ozell Hall scored 19 and Joe Copeland tallied 13 points for Baylor.

As effective as Teagle was in the opening half, Tech neutralized his effectiveness in the second half by limiting the talented player to seven points. Tech assistant coach Rob Evans explained what Tech did differently in the second half to stop Teagle.

"In the first half, he was out on the wing and we didn't get out to him. The players were able to make him rush his shot in the last half," Evans said.

Baylor maintained its lead in the early minutes of the second half, until Tech made a rally which would prove to be the difference in the game.

With 13:10 remaining in the contest and Baylor possessing a 52-48 lead against the then listless Tech squad, the Raiders made a dramatic comeback scoring 17 unanswered points. While shutting out Baylor, Tech made the score 65-52 with 6:09 left in the game.

Baylor closed the Tech lead to nine points at 78-69 on two free throws by Copeland. Teagle scored another basket with 11 seconds remaining in the contest to close the gap to 78-71.

By SID HILL
UD Sports Writer

The Tech women's basketball team Saturday night tried to overcome a game-long deficit to Baylor in the closing minutes of the contest only to see 5-7 Bear guard Gaye Pack sink a 15-foot jump shot with seven seconds remaining on the clock to give Baylor the victory, 66-65.

The Raider loss dropped the squad's season record to 10-7, while the win boosted the Bears' record to 10-3.

Pack opened the scoring in the contest with a layup 10 seconds into the game to give Baylor a 2-0 lead.

Tech's Sabrina Schield connected on a 15-foot jumper at 19:31 to tie the score at 2-2. Pack again connected on a field goal from 20 feet out to put the visiting Bears in the lead, 4-2.

Carolyn Thompson, who led the Tech scoring efforts for the night with 22 points, tied the contest at four-all by putting in a lay-up with 17:43 remaining in the first half.

The Bears' defensive effort thwarted Tech scoring attempts for the remainder of the half while going ahead of the Raiders by as much as 10 points.

But Tech, helped by the scoring efforts of Schield, a 5-8½ sophomore, whittled away at the 10-point lead in the waning minutes of the first half to pull within two of the Bears, 35-37, at the intermission.

Schield, who pumped in 16 points for Tech, tied the score at 37-37 with 19:46 remaining in the game with a 20-foot bomb.

That was as close as the Raiders would come for 14 minutes in the final half. The Bears consistently maintained a slight advantage over the Raiders until 5-8 Tech forward Gwen McCray zeroed in on the basket from 10 feet out to put Tech in the lead 59-58 with 4:08 remaining in the contest.

Thompson added a 10-foot turnaround jump shot to improve the Raider margin to three, 61-58. Schield put in a 15-foot shot from the baseline to give the Raiders their biggest lead of the night with 2:38 left in the contest.

The Bears cut the Tech lead to three points, 63-60, on a layup by forward Jackie Reiter. Debbie Polk cut the Tech margin to a single point, 63-62, with 57 seconds left in the contest when she made use of the backboard to bank in a 12-foot shot.

Janet Mears again put Tech up by three, 65-62, with 51 seconds remaining in the game when she hit both ends of a one-and-one situation.

After Pack connected on two free throws to narrow the Tech lead to one point, 65-64, the Raiders turned the ball over to the Bears on the inbounds pass. The turnover set the stage for Pack's game-winning field goal.

Tech tracksters place second in Canyon

CANYON — Tech men's and women's track and field teams each finished second in the West Texas State Indoor Invationals.

Field performers led the men's second place surge as Jim McIntire and Thomas Selmon brought home first place honors. McIntire won first in the shot put with a toss of 55-5 and Selmon won the long jump with a leap of 24 feet. Ken Matney finished second to McIntire in the shot put with a 52-10.

Greg Rolle recorded the Raiders' only first place finish in the running events when he won the 300-yard dash with a time of 32.42.

Other Raiders who placed included Delroy Poiser, third in the high jump with a 6-10; Tim Bednarz, third in the 1,000-yard run with a 2:23.8; Steve Tidrow, third in the mile run with a 4:38.0; and Rolle, third in the 600-yard run with a

The Tech women's track and field team placed second in team totals in the WTSU meet.

Placing for Tech were Sharon Moultrie, second in the 60-yard dash and second in the long jump; Kana Smith, third in the 60-yard dash; Shelley Johnson, second in the two-mile run and fourth in the 1000-yard run; Teresa Sanders, second in the 440-yard dash; Kayla Morrison, second in the 880-yard run; and Cynthia Williams, third in the shot put

Baylor still cannot solve Lubbock jinx

By JOHN KELLEY
UD Sports Staff

Every year about this time, the Baylor Bears come to the South Plains to play a little basketball, and for quite a while now they have been returning home wondering just what it takes to win in Lubbock.

The Raiders Saturday night kept the hex on the Bears with a 78-71 victory in the Coliseum. The Tech victory marked the 12th straight year, dating back to 1970, the Raiders got the best of the Bears in the friendly confines of the Bubble.

Though by no means was it a cakewalk for the Raiders. Baylor owned a 41-39 lead at halftime, thanks mainly to 6-5 senior forward Terry Teagle, who poured in 16 first half points from just about everywhere but the locker room. The half easily could have been billed "The Terry Teagle Show" as the BU star hit on seven of 11 shots — five of which came from 20 feet or better.

"I don't think it was my best game ever, but it was my best game here in Lubbock," Teagle said.

The second half, however, was a different story. Tech did the one thing that had to be done — slow down Teagle. The Raiders switched from a man-to-man defense to a zone defense, and it proved to be the cure.

Teagle managed only five shots in the second half. He connected on three of them, but he just couldn't control the game the way he did in the first half. Once Tech put the clamps on the SWC's second leading scorer, the outcome was academic.

"They (the Raiders) played a tough zone defense in the second half," Teagle said. "Everywhere I went there were two guys right by my side. I just didn't get the ball." All told, the senior forward scored 23 points, pulled down eight rebounds, had two steals and committed no turnovers. It was too bad he didn't sing the National Anthem to round out his flawless performance.

The performance might have had more meaning if the Bears could have maintained their early second half lead. Trailing 52-48 with 13:10 to go in the contest, Tech reeled off 17 straight unanswered points to take a commanding 65-52 lead. The surge was due to some great outside shooting and the move to the zone defense.

"Tech stayed tough," Teagle said. "We made a run and they came back. They made a run and we couldn't come back. Every team has cold streaks and we had one in the second half." Baylor head coach Jim Haller said he thought Teagle played his best game of the year, but he reserved most of his compliments for the Raiders.

"They had a streak where they couldn't miss and we couldn't buy a basket," Haller said. "That was the difference. You have to give them credit, they played better than we did."

They party despite weather

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The wintry weather outside the Silverdome couldn't put a chill on Bill Cook's party. He was doing his celebrating inside a 28-foot motor home.

Cook and his party of 14, all avid Bengal fans, drove up from Cincinnati on Saturday and spent the night at the home of a friend. Three hours before the kickoff for Super Bowl XVI, they were parked outside the domed stadium, the party in full swing.

It was a scene that was repeated all around the vast stadium as motor homes, most of them bearing Ohio tags, hosted pre-game parties.

"This is great," Cook said. "What makes it so fantastic for us is that if it had been held anywhere else, we wouldn't have been able to attend."

Fans, clad in ski parkas, stocking caps and thick boots, streamed quickly toward the gates once they left their vehicles. Hundreds, however, stood around seeking tickets.

"I flew in from San Francisco last night, hoping to get a ticket," said 49er fan Bill Gates. "There are a few around, but they're asking $200. I figure if I wait until a couple hours before kickoff, I can pick one up for about $150."

Wes Garratt, from Gilroy, Calif., also flew in without a ticket but was certain he'd get one before game time.

"I've been raising hell and having a good time," Garratt said. "I wouldn't recommend having this thing back in the North again, though. This is just too cold."

It was 14 degrees and the wind-chill factor made the temperature seem 21 below. But inside the Silverdome, it was 72 degrees, as it always is.

A crush of photographers jockeyed for position as Vice President George Bush arrived, accompanied by his wife as well as Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, former Washington Redskins running back Larry Brown, former New England Patriots wide receiver Darrell Stingley, Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and his wife, and Vic Gold, a political adviser and writer.

The Silverdome's green carpet had a new coat of paint, and the end zones were painted with the logos of the Bengals and the 49ers.

The stadium was bedecked with hundreds of banners, including one which read "Hi kids. Send money. Lost it all betting on Cowboys."

Tech swamps NMSU

Tech diver Richie O'Neill qualified for nationals in the one-meter dive Saturday as the Raider swimming and diving team concluded its 1981-82 home schedule with a 79-34 win against New Mexico State at the Men's Gym Pool.

The Raiders coasted to a lead early in the meet and never relinquished that lead. Tech, now 3-4 in dual meet action, was paced by O'Neill who qualified for nationals in the one-meter event with a 292.55. He already has qualified for nationals in the three-meter diving event.

The meet was the last at home for senior co-captains O'Neill and Sid Glenn. Glenn took firsts in the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:01.06 and in the 200-yard backstroke event with a 2:08.17. O'Neill was first in the one-meter diving event.

Other Raider first place finishes were Monte Allwein with a 4:51.47 in the 500-yard backstroke, Jay Hadley with a 49.48 in the 100-yard freestyle, David Jezek with a 1:58.38 in the 200-yard butterfly and a 22.32 in the 50-yard freestyle events.

Tech's Rich Dorsey won first place in the three-meter diving event with a 230.10. Tom Grant was first in the 200-yard freestyle with a 1:48.85, and Danny Smith was first in the 1,000-yard freestyle with a 9:55.35.

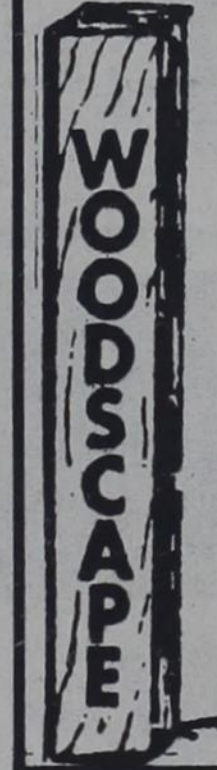

The Raiders' 400-yard medley relay team won first place honors with a 3:36.64. Members of the relay team are Rick Scott, Jeff Beth, Paul Hazuka and Allwein.

Tech resumes action Saturday when the squad challenges Texas A&M in College Station.

San Francisco wins in Pontiac Montana leads team to world championship

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Joe Montana, displaying the guile and flare of a riverboat gambler, engineered two long touchdown drives after San Francisco's youthful secondary swiped the ball from the Cincinnati Bengals, and the 49ers rolled to a 26-21 victory Sunday in Super Bowl XVI.

Montana, executing Coach Bill Walsh's innovative offense with electrifying ease, and a spate of turnovers which kept Cincinnati off the scoreboard, helped the 49ers roll to a record 20-point halftime lead.

The Bengals roared to life behind quarterback Ken Anderson in the second half, scoring on his 5-yard run and two passes to tight end Dan Ross.

But the difference was a goal-line stand of epic proportions in the third period by the San Francisco defense — the third time Cincinnati had been denied so much as a point within 10 yards of the 49ers' end zone.

Ultimately, it was that defense, a heady mix of grizzled veterans and kids just a year off campus, that carried the 49ers to one of the most remarkable turnarounds in National Football League history. The team, which just two years ago had staggered through its second consecutive 2-14 season, reached the pinnacle this time — its first Super Bowl championship.

Montana, in only his third year in the

SUPER BOWL XVI

See crowd story, p. 7

NFL, outplayed Anderson, his veteran counterpart on the Bengals, in the first half. He scored the 49ers' first touchdown on a 1-yard dive, then passed 10 yards to fullback Earl Cooper for a second score.

Montana said he felt that the 49ers' Super Bowl victory was a vindication of a team which was underrated all year.

"People around the country still didn't believe in us," he said, "even after we beat Dallas, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and the others."

Montana was asked if he ever thought that winning the Super Bowl could be this easy.

"Who said it was easy?" he replied.

Each was set up by a Cincinnati turnover deep in San Francisco territory.

Free safety Dwight Hicks, the only veteran in the 49ers' secondary, intercepted an Anderson pass at the 5-yard line and ran it out of danger to the 32. In 11 plays, one of them a flea-flicker pass good for 14 yards, Montana put the 49ers on the scoreboard with 5:52 remaining in the opening period.

And 2½ minutes into the second quarter, after Anderson had drilled a pass to Cris Collinsworth at the 49ers' 8-yard line, Eric Wright stripped the ball from the Cincinnati wide receiver and fellow rookie cornerback Lynn Thomas pounced on the fumble.

Twelve plays later, Montana's flare pass to Cooper, who bowled over two Bengals at the goal line, climaxed the 92-yard scoring drive, the longest in Super Bowl history. It surpassed by 3 yards one by Dallas in Super Bowl XIII.

Having broken one Super Bowl record, the 49ers proceeded to shatter another, scoring on two Ray Wersching field goals just 13 seconds apart in the final minute of the first half.

The first, a 26-yarder, came 15 seconds short of halftime. Then, on the kickoff, Cincinnati's Archie Griffin fumbled the ball, and so did his brother Ray. Milt McColl fell on it for the 49ers, and, after an illegal procedure penalty pushed them back 5 yards to the 10, Wersching kicked a 22-yarder with two seconds left on the clock.

Hastings lifts Hogs past Coogs

By The Associated Press
ARKANSAS 67, HOUSTON 66
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — When coach Eddie Sutton's plan for a last second shot failed, center Scott Hastings improvised.

The 6-foot-10 Hastings swished a 20-footer with six seconds remaining as the 15th-ranked Razorbacks rallied to beat Houston Saturday afternoon.

"We were gonna set a double screen for Ricky Norton on the baseline, hope Houston would come out on him, then go inside to Hastings," Sutton said. "They defeated the play as well as it could be defended."

"It was just an amazing shot by Hastings. Scott's shot would have to rank with the one U.S. Reed made," he said. Sutton referred to a 49-footer that Reed made as time expired when Arkansas defeated national champion Louisville last year in a regional tournament.

"I really didn't know how far I was," Hastings said. "The shot felt good when it left my hands."

"Brad (Friess) told me after I got back into the dressing room, 'After four years it's about time you hit a winning shot.' It was definitely the biggest shot of my basketball career," Hastings said.

Sutton said that he didn't believe he had ever had a team come out as flat as the Razorbacks in the second half. "If we have many more like that I won't be coaching much longer," he said. "That was a remarkable comeback."

The 19th-ranked Cougars scored the first 12 points of the half and led by as much as 11 points midway through the second half but only scored four points in the final seven minutes. They had a one-point lead when Keith Peterson knocked the ball away from Clyde Drexler with 33 seconds remaining.

TCU 63, SMU 61
DALLAS — Junior guard Darrell Browder scored two baskets and two free throws in the final four minutes Saturday to lift TCU to a SWC win over SMU.

TCU evened its SWC ledger at 3-3 while the Mustangs dropped into the cellar with a 1-5 mark. TCU is 8-8 for the year, SMU is 6-10.

TEXAS 88, S. CAROLINA 71
AUSTIN — Virdell Howland and LaSalle Thompson combined for 42 points Saturday night as seventh-ranked Texas extended its record to 14-0 by defeating South Carolina in an inter-sectional college basketball game.

Howland, tossing in long jumpers, scored 22 points and Thompson — despite sitting out with nine minutes with foul trouble — had 20.

South Carolina, dropping to 6-11, played without leading scorer Jimmy Foster, who had averaged 15.9 points per game. Foster reinjured an ankle and did not play at all.

TEXAS A&M 66, RICE 59
HOUSTON — Texas A&M's Claude Riley scored 11 of his 17 points in a tight second half as the Aggies overcame 28 points by Rice's Ricky Pierce en route to a SWC victory Saturday night.

The victory boosted the Aggies to an 11-4 season record and a 4-1 mark in the SWC. Rice dropped to 10-8 and 1-4.

Swimmers close out season with win

The Tech women's swimming and diving team Saturday closed out its 1981-82 home schedule by swamping New Mexico State 89-42 at the Aquatic Center.

The Raiders captured first place honors in 12 of the 15 events in the dual meet. Tech earned first and second place honors in six events.

Tech improved its dual meet record to 5-3 with the win.

The Raiders' Betty Horvat and Susan Hyde placed the squad with two first place finishes apiece. Horvat won the 1000-yard freestyle with a 10:55.43 and the 200-yard freestyle with a 2:02.90. Hyde won the 100-yard backstroke with a 1:03.38 and 200-yard backstroke with a 2:20.12.

Other Tech first place finishes were the relay team with a 4:12.79 in the 400-yard medley, Melanie Schmauch with a 25.41 in the 50-yard freestyle, Lidia Yukman with a 1:12.55 in the 10-yard breaststroke and Dorinda Jung with a 55.02 in the 100-yard freestyle events.

Other first place finishes included Kathy Dixon with a 4:47.14 in the 400-yard individual medley, Amy Daniel with a 1:01.22 in the 100-yard fly, Becky Bryant with a 242 total in the one-meter dive and Michelle Menge with a 252.60 in the three-meter dive.
