The Regent Game

Clements putting a price on participation?

By PETE McNABB UD Reporter

The graduating senior who wants to return to Tech 20 years from now and sit on the Board of Regents has at least two options open to him.

He can become an active alumnus, working diligently through the Ex-Students Association, the Dad's Association and other groups in hopes of landing a "plum" spot on the prestigious nine-member board.

Or the prospective board member can take another approach — donate thousands of dollars to a gubernatorial candidate's political campaign and hope his candidate wins. The latter approach seems to be gaining in popularity during Gov. Bill Clements' administration. "Clements seems to be putting a price tag on participation in his administration," Austin political analyst Tony Proffit and spokesman for one of the Democratic gubernatorial candidates told The University Daily.

Even the director of the governor's appointment office agrees that some people actively campaign for the jobs.

"The regent appointments are highly competitive, just highly competitive," said Pat Oles, who advises Clements on some of the 3,000 state appointed positions. "But as far as contributions go, those are insignificant (in making appoint-

Others, including some past and present members of the board of regents, said Clements does keep an eye on the contribution list when appointing regents.

And at least some Tech regents appear to be playing the contribution game with stakes as high or higher than millionaires across Texas who Clements has appointed to lofty state positions.

Fort Worth Millionaires Perry Bass (Texas Parks and Wildlife Board chairman) and Eddie Chiles (a North Texas State University regent) are the only two Clements state appointees who have donated more to help get Clements reelected than did two Tech regents.

"All politicians are going to have to look at the guy who paid the fiddler before they can dance," one regent said.

Another Tech regent said the only connection between the large contributions and the regent appointments is simple: The regents want a good governor and the governor wants good regents, whether they be big contributors or not.

"Good government is expensive but the alternative is terrible, "said Lubbock oil man Rex P. Fuller, the regent who donated more than $34,000 to Clements.

One former regent said Clements looks for "dollar qualifications," making appointments based on who contributes the most to his campaigns.

Six of the nine members on the board have been appointed by Clements since he took office in 1979 as the first Republican governor since Reconstruction. Five of those six said they support Clements in his re-election bid, while one would not comment on who he supports.

Area voters go to polls for Saturday primaries

By DARIA DOSS UD Reporter

Highly competitive races will be placed before Lubbock County voters in the Democratic primary Saturday, while the Republican primary will be conducted on a lower key, local party chairmen said.

Voter turnout in the Democratic primary is expected to be around 25,000, but Lubbock County Democratic Party Chairman Madison Sowder said that figure could vary considerably depending on weather conditions.

In the Republican primary, about 5,000 to 6,000 voters are expected. Republican Party Chairman Ruth Schiermeyer said there are not very many Republicans in Lubbock.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7

In the Democratic primary race for governor, Sowder said there is "no doubt in my mind there will be a runoff." He said it's a toss-up between Attorney General Mark White, Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong. However, he predicted Armstrong would probably be one of the candidates in the runoff.

Sowder said Armstrong has general support from around the state. He has received endorsements from daily newspapers such as the Austin American-Statesman, Corpus Christi Caller- Times, Abilene Record-Reporter and San Angelo Standard-

Self-admitted long shots in the governor's race are Don Beagle, Ray Allen Mayo and David Young.

In the Republican primary for governor, Incumbent Gov. Bill Clements will face Lowell Embs of San Antonio. Embs has been committed twice to a state mental hospital while a jury later found him sane, and has been found guilty of contempt of court.

Schiermeyer said Clements will have no problem defeating Embs.

The lieutenant governor's race will have little opposition in the Democratic primary and no opposition in the Republican primary.

Incumbent Lt. Gov. William Hobby will face Troy Skates in the Democratic primary. Sowder said Hobby "ought to win overhandedly." The support that Skates has received has been mainly by extremist groups, he said.

George Strake Jr., the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, is unopposed.

The attorney general's race has garnered four Democratic candidates: John Hannah, James Mattox, Jack Ogg and Max Sherman. Sowder predicted Mattox and Ogg will be in a runoff after the primaries, but said his view was limited because he knows mainly about West Texas voters.

Republican State Sen. Bill Meier is unopposed in the bid for attorney

The Democratic state treasurer's race has involved some of the most scandalous talk in the election. Incumbent Treasurer Warren Harding has been indicted on two third-degree felony counts of official misconduct because two state employees allegedly did campaign work for him on state

Ann Richards, Lane Denton and John Cutright are the other candidates for the treasurer's race. Sowder said the controversy might upset Harding. He predicted a runoff might occur with Richards in the lead and either Harding or Denton as the other candidate.

Republican Millard Neptune is unopposed in the primary race for state

Incumbent Reagan Brown and Jim Hightower are running in the Democratic primary for agriculture commissioner. Sowder said this race is difficult to predict because Brown has been in office and Hightower seems to have drawn a lot of interest from his aggressive campaigning.

Donald Hebert is running unopposed on the Republican Party ticket.

In the race for land commissioner, four Democrats have entered the campaign and three Republicans. The Democrats are George Fore, Dan Kubiak, Garry Mauro and Pete Snelson. The Republicans are Andrew Jackson, Woody Glasscock and Al Gutierrez.

Sowder said there will probably be a runoff for the Democratic candidate.

"The runoff could include Kubiak, Mauro or Snelson. However, Snelson might have a hard time getting in the runoff because his following is mainly from the West Texas area and not statewide," Sowder said.

Schiermeyer said she has seen better campaign organization from Glasscock in the Republican race, which might influence his bid. However, she said it was hard to make a guess for how the whole state would vote.

The congressional race for U.S. senator in the Democratic primary involves incumbent Lloyd Bentsen and Joe Sullivan. Bentsen should have no problem winning in the primaries, Sowder said.

In the Republican primary, U.S. Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, will face State Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston. Schiermeyer said "this race will pull a lot of people in to vote in Lubbock because both candidates have been campaigning here since last summer."

She said Collins probably will win this

In the bid for U.S. representative, incumbent Kent Hance is unopposed in the Democratic primary.

E.L. Hicks is the unopposed Republican candidate.

In the local state Legislature races, Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney John Montford is facing incumbent E.L. Short in the Democratic Sowder said this race could go either way. Montford will probably win in Lubbock County, but Short may win in the other surrounding counties, he said. Short is from Tahoka.

Sowder said the population is about equal in both of these areas.

The Republicans have three candidates in the race for state senator. John Smith, John O'Shea and Jim Reese are all vying for a chance to face the Democratic candidate in November.

Schiermeyer said she is not sure what will happen in this race.

The District 83 state representative Democratic primary race includes incumbent Froy Salinas and Delwin

"That race will be real close," Sowder said. "Anytime you have an Anglo running against a Mexican-American, the Anglo will pick up a lot of votes. Froy will get most of the Mexican-American votes though."

District 83 is unrepresented by Republicans.

Local campaigns winding down

By GAIL FIELDS UD Reporter

Campaigns are winding down for local primary races and, understandably, candidates in the two hottest races say they are optimistic about their chances in the primaries.

"I'm optimistic," Criminal District Attorney John Montford said, "I guess everyone's optimistic."

Montford will face incumbent E.L. Short in the Democratic state senatorial primary Saturday.

Although the Democratic senatorial race has been touted as close, Montford said he does not think it will be that

"We'll just have to wait and see," he Montford said effectiveness and positive attitude have been the strong points in his campaign.

"We never did resort to the practices they did," Montford said.

Short also said his campaign has gone

"I feel we can win Saturday," Short said. "I feel we were very strong out in the rural area, and I think we can get a good vote here in Lubbock."

Short said he also is in "good shape" in Odessa and Big Spring. Short said his campaign strength has been his experience and his record. "I have a knowledge of state government and experience with the issues," he said. "In an overall sense I have a good record. John O'Shea, Jim Reese, John Smith are the three candidates vying for the Republican nomination for the senate. In the other closely contested race, Travis Ware and Wanda Wray will vie for the Democratic nomination for Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney Saturday.

Although tired, Ware said he is feeling optimistic about the outcome of Saturday's Democratic primary.

"Everything I hear from the community is positive," Ware said. Ware said his experience as assistant district attorney has been his campaign

British forces close in to impose war zone

By The Associated Press Britain's armada closed in on the Falkland Islands to impose a total war zone early Friday. Argentina girded for battle, declaring its own war zone against the British, and the United States found "little basis for optimism."

Argentine naval sources said the British flotilla was approaching "at a not excessively slow" speed Thursday, but "keeping away from the coast and constantly changing position."

Anti-aircraft defenses, radar and other electronic warning posts were reported strengthened around major southern Argentine cities.

An Argentine air force spokesman in Comodoro Rivadavia, a major supply point for the Falklands, said any British plane that approaches that city or the southern Argentine cities of Rio Gallegos or Rio Grande "will not return to its base."

Reagan asks voters to press for budget WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan asked America's voters Thursday night to press Congress for approval of his 1983 federal budget, deeply in deficit despite sharp spending cuts. He said it is essential to to hold down inflation." For the long term, Reagan urged approval of a con-

demonstrate "that we, Democrats and Republicans alike, can agree on reducing the deficit and continuing stitutional amendment to restrict deficit spending. Reagan made his case in a speech broadcast by the television and radio networks. He said if Americans will back his program, it will bring an end to red ink, high taxes and high interest rates. Recalling the public backing that helped sell his economic plan when it was first adopted a year ago, Reagan told the nation "You did it once, you can do it again."

Reagan said efforts to shape a budget compromise failed "despite our best efforts to achieve a fair com-

Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, responding for the Democrats, retorted that Reagan's speech had been too political. He said it would take cooperation instead of partisanship to fashion an acceptable plan. "If we work together effectively we can produce something that's good for you and good for the country and good for the future of the country," Bolling said. He said the budget problem is neither Republican nor Democratic, "it's very important that we have bipartisan cooperation all the way through."

Bolling broadcast his rebuttal immediately after the Reagan speech. "Government will have to do what each of us does with our own family budgets - spend no more than we can afford," the president said in his address from the Oval Office.

Reagan declared that "only a constitutional amendment will do the job. We've tried the carrot and it failed. With the stick of a balanced budget amendment, we can stop government's squandering, over-taxing ways and save our economy."

The Senate already is considering such a measure bearing 52 co-sponsors - though it would allow deficit spending provided both Houses authorize it by a threefifths vote.

The president's endorsement lacked the conditions he had attached to the idea just last month - that it must also carry a limitation on taxes.

Apathy winning the election

Inez Russell

Remember the old '60s saying, "what if they had a war and nobody came?" That same lack of involvement that once characterized protestors' attitude toward the war seems more and more to be taking over people's attitudes toward elections.

It's not too outlandish today to suggest having an election — and nobody coming. Ronald Reagan won a majority of the vote to become the president. Unfortunately, what has been termed his mandate was no mandate whatsoever, because the majority of people did not vote.

Apathy won the election.

This Saturday state voters will select Democratic and Republican candidates for governor and other statewide offices, as well as choosing local and county officers.

The election so far has been marked by a serious lack of attention to issues and by some of the dirtiest politicking possible.

There have been assaults on candidates' honesty, their drinking habits and innuendos about who's taking how much money from whom.

Unfortunately for the voting public, very little time has been spent discussing the issues that need to be addressed and debated by these would-be office holders.

The main discussion in the governor's race seems to be who has received the largest campaign contributions, and why those contributions make them poor choices for governor.

One of the candidates has a great solution to stop crime — more jails. A little simplistic, but that doesn't seem to bother him any.

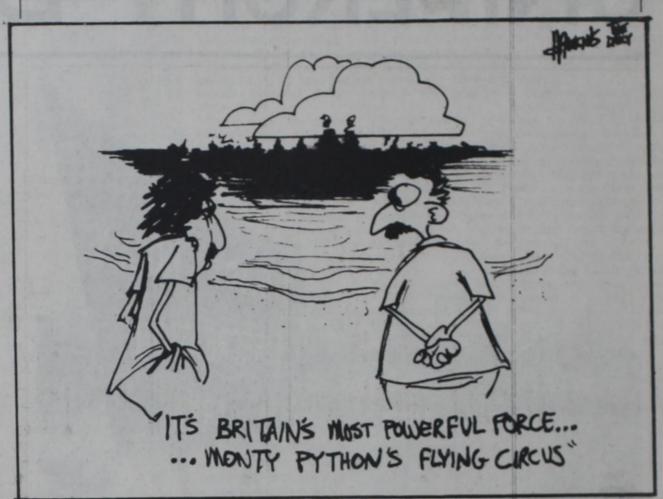

He promises flatly that he will have no new taxes. Period. That promise is silly and foolish, as events may cause situations where such a tax is necessary and right for the occasion.

Other candidates are just as bad. In the state treasurer's race, one otherwise bright and promising person has spent his campaigning sullying the reputation of his opponents.

We have never been given reasons to vote for this person, but we are told how horrible the rest of the field is. His below-the-belt style of campaigning is plenty of reason not to vote for him.

In fact, given the style of this primary election, it's no wonder more people don't vote. The candidates haven't given us reason to vote, to become involved in the election process.

No wonder apathy wins the election.

Letters to the Editor

KTXT reply

To the Editor:

We would like to respond to the letter appearing in The UD April 22. In this letter a Mr. Steven Mitchell criticizes the campus radio station KTXT for broadcasting "The Sounds of Light."

He argues that the separation of the church and state doctrine has been violated. We would like to point out that the original purpose of this doctrine was not to eliminate God from the government, but the main purpose of separation of church and state was to insure that the government would not force people to worship at the church the government set up, like the Anglican church in England.

Mr. Mitchell says that the show is based on Christian dogma. In John 14:6 Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man comes unto the Father except by me." So you see there is no alternative to Christianity. I'm dogmatic because Christ was.

In regards to the portion of Mr. Mitchell's letter where he says, "I must, however, draw the line at the idea of my tax dollars supporting three hours of dogmatic nonsense on KTXT," I would like to remind him that he is not the only tax-payer on the face of the earth. There are several Christian taxpayers whose money is used on programming that is, to say the least, non-Christian.

Also calling Christianity nonsense is totally unfounded. I personally challenge you, Mr. Mitchell, to check out Christianity for secular history. Look at the shroud of Turin, or the fact that historians have traced New Testament documents back to the First Century adding greatly to their validity, or look at the fact that no archaeological discovery has ever contradicted the Bible.

Mr. Mitchell goes on to call this area xenophobic, a real five dollar word that means a fear or hatred of strangers, or foreigners, or something foreign. In II Timothy 1:7 the apostle Paul says, "For God has not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." In 2,000 years nothing has ever happened to disprove Christianity, and Christians are not afraid that anything foreign or otherwise ever will.

Finally, Mr. Mitchell claims that he has a desire to do a radio show presenting religions other than Christianity. It would seem to us that The UD is the wrong place to go with this suggestion. Why don't you try

Disillusionment

To the Editor:

The intelligentsia affected by the recent article, "Table Hoppers Leap To New Heights Of Stupidity," have deliberated and have concluded that the sheer bigotry spewed upon half a page of The University Daily is a characteristic of closet Nazism.

Yet, not even the Nazis forced their proletariat to acknowledge derision from an infinitely more abysmal source. The nauseating and "catchy" account of a "young buck's" four-hour lunch break is a premium example of what working people everywhere endure. Fear not fellow laborers! For we enjoy the cultural enhancement only obtainable through working with our broad public.

To grow in a well-endowed environment is a luxury that only a small percentage enjoy. However, there are resultant drawbacks to such an upbringing, namely biases, naivety, and ironically, no incentive to better an already deteriorating livelihood. The greatest flaw in this social makeup is the lack of humanism.

This defiles the attainable esoteric qualities of life. The latter are precursors of the severe boredom that congests our "haves" who will soon experience a peptic upheaval.

Like Pygmalion with Galatea these frustrated "carcasses" can never comprehend the working independent. And so it must end a scribbled backlash, the only outlet for these "customer's" societal inadequacies.

Arm yourselves well, workers, for not only will you encounter these behavorial defects at work and play, but also in the "literature" produced by an institute of "higher" education.

Reagan misses the point in Falklands Island crisis

James Reston

WASHINGTON — President Reagan keeps trying to charm Britain and Argentina into a compromise over the Falkland Islands, as if there were no differences between the aggressors and the defenders. But there is a problem beyond the Falklands.

In his latest brief news conference, while the British Navy was approaching Argentine waters, the president praised Secretary of State Haig for a "magnificent effort" to arrange a compromise, and said the United States would try "to continue the mediation process."

Considering the failure of Al Haig's "magnificent effort," it's odd that the president didn't come out clear and strong against the military conquest of these islands by the Argentine generals.

For this may be the only thing at this late date that might avoid a war in the South Atlantic, and restrain the use of force to settle political controversies vital to U.S. interests elsewhere.

Much more is at stake here than the Falklands. There are conflicts over territory and sovereignty all over the world: in divided Germany, in divided Korea, along the Asian border between China and the Soviet Union, in Sinai between Israel and Egypt, in Kashmir between India and Pakistan, and even in Canada over the independence of French-speaking Quebec.

The United States can be even-handed about who has "sovereignty" over the Falklands, or what should be done with the conflict between the Soviet Union and Japan over the Russians' occupation of the Kurile Island chain, or who has the best claim in the innumerable border disputes between the new independent nations of Africa.

But on the use of military force to settle these questions, as the Argentine government has done in the Falklands, there is general agreement that the use of force to settle these disputes would lead to chaos and maybe even to world war.

In the first place, the United States is bound by treaty under the United Nations Charter to oppose the use or threat of military force to settle international disputes, and even if the U.N. doesn't have the authority to sustain this principle, it is still in the interests of the United States to do so.

The Reagan administration has been confused and selective in applying this principle. With good reason, it has condemned Moscow for using force to achieve its political objectives in Afghanistan, and for using the Cubans to apply force in Africa, and for applying indirect threats of military intervention in Poland.

At the same time it has been hesitant to condemn Israel for bombing the nuclear facilities in Iraq, or taking over the Golan Heights, or using force against the Arabs on the West Bank, and while it murmurs against this use of force, it continues to finance Israeli policies it opposes.

Accordingly, there is now confusion even among the allies about whether the United States can be relied upon to defend the principle of opposing the use of force to settle international disputes. For example, The Economist of London, which used to be on Reagan's side, wondered the other day about the consequences of his amiable evenhandedness in the face of Argentina's aggression in the Falklands.

This "have-it-both-ways irresolution on the part of the United States," The Economist said, "will lose British popular support for America's nuclear policies and deployment, and for its European, its NATO and its Soviet policies.

"The tendencies towards neutralism in West Germany and the Low Countries," The Economist added, "and toward belligerent abstention from the alliance in France will be vindicated. ... Russia will start encouraging new local challenges to European interests, feeling more confident that help is unlikely to come from America, and that therefore the Europeans are less likely to resist. ..."

There is perhaps still time before a naval clash in the South Atlantic for the administration to defend the principle of the peaceful settlement of disputes, but so far Reagan has not got around to thinking about it or even to consider what the British will do if they are humiliated by Argentina and abandoned by the United States. For the weaker they are, the prouder they get, and the more likely they are to fight.

"It is a curious fact about the British Islanders," Winston Churchill wrote in "The Gathering Storm." "They hate drills but have never been invaded for nearly a thousand years. For as danger comes nearer and grows, they have become progressively less nervous; when it is imminent, they are fierce; when it is mortal, they are fearless. These habits have led them into some very narrow scrapes."

Well, as President Reagan is accustomed to say, the British are in a scrape now, and they're wondering whether they really have the support of the American president in Washington.

Texas rancher setting record

AUSTIN (AP) - South Texas rancher-banker Clinton Manges has contributed more than $450,000 to contestants in Saturday's Democratic primary, with most of the money going to gubernatorial candidate Bob Armstrong and Supreme Court candidate Woodrow Wilson Bean.

Buddy Temple, another gubernatorial candidate, and Pete Snelson, running for land commissioner, returned donations offered by Manges.

Solidarity prisoners freed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Martial law authorities began freeing 1,000 interned Solidarity unionists, farmers and intellectuals Thursday and their release came so fast that some found no one to greet them at a prison bus-stop.

"We were just told that we were released. We got our belongings and said good-bye," said one unionist freed from Warsaw's Bialoleka prison, where 35 Solidarity members walked out after 412 months.

At the same time, four Solidarity chiefs in hiding called for talks with the Communist government and freedom for union boss Lech Walesa, who has been held since the Dec. 13 crackdown.

Hijackers lower demands

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) - Four hijackers holding 28 hostages, including eight Americans, lowered their ransom demand Thursday and were considering a government offer to fly them from the country in exchange for the release of their captives, officials reported.

Aderton sworn into office

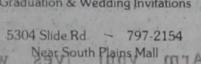

Victorious City Council Place 3 candidate M.J. "Bud" Aderton was sworn into office Thursday at a special meeting of the Lubbock City Council.

The council met to canvass, or certify, the results of Tuesday's run-off election between incumbent Aderton and challenger W.B. "Dub" Rushing.

Aderton received 6,509 ballots to defeat Rushing, who received 3,174 ballots, by about a 2-to-I margin.

A total of 9,711 Lubbock residents turned out for the run-off election, almost twice the number of voters in the 1980 run-off election.

"It's an historical fact more than anything else," said Bluford, one of three black men in the astronaut corps. 'The press makes more of it than I do."

.The Regent Game

toward Tech has been unwaivering among the six Clements appointees.

All of the Clements appointees described the relationship between the board and the governor as good. Some made statements reflecting their alignment with Clements' businesslike philosophies.

"Right after he (Clements) came into office, he said we had to cut the state spending by 5 percent," said Tech regent Joe Pevehouse, who was appointed to the board shortly after Clements took office. "And we went through and did it. Any business or school should be able to do it (cut the budget) once in a while if necessary."

A frequent comment by regents was, "If there are any problems (between the board and the governor), I'm not aware of any."

But the views are more guarded among some of the three regents appointed during the pre-Clements days of Gov. Dolph Briscoe and with two Briscoe-appointed regents who Clements opted to replace after he took office.

"I can't afford to make a statement like that at this time," said one regent who asked not to be named. "I don't want to say anything that will deter Texas Tech University, and I do think it (his comments) will affect Tech.'

To some, it appears Clements is stacking the board with people who not only make sizeable contributions to his campaign but also hold similar philosophical beliefs.

"If I was governor, I think I would put people in (appointed positions) that think like me," said who Clements did not re-appoint to the board. "That's one of the spoils of the job."

Clements appointees said the governor is not stacking the board. "I think each regent works and acts independently of the governor," board chairman J. Fred Bucy Bucy is one of six regents Clements appointed.

Originally, he was appointed to the board in 1973 at the beginning of the Briscoe administration.

The other five Clements appointees are firsttimers on the board.

The nine board members are appointed on a staggered basis with three members' terms expiring every two years. The regents, like others appointed by the governor to state positions, must have their nominations confirmed by a two-thirds vote in the Texas Senate. But almost every board member appointed by the governor is confirmed by the Senate,

The governor appoints individuals to about 3,000 state jobs each year, many of them, like regent positions, are unpaid. An investigation by the Dallas Times-Herald revealed that 96 of those appointees contributed more than $1,000 each to the Clements campaign in 1981.

At least four of those appointees were Tech

Some regents and politicians said Clements is building a patronage system within the state. Others said the patronage system has been there throughout Texas history. Still others said Clements ing, some regents said.

former regent Don Workman, a Shallowater banker is abusing the office more than previous governors by passing out top jobs to friends, business acquaintances and big spending contributors.

> "I guess it goes on during any administration," Workman said.

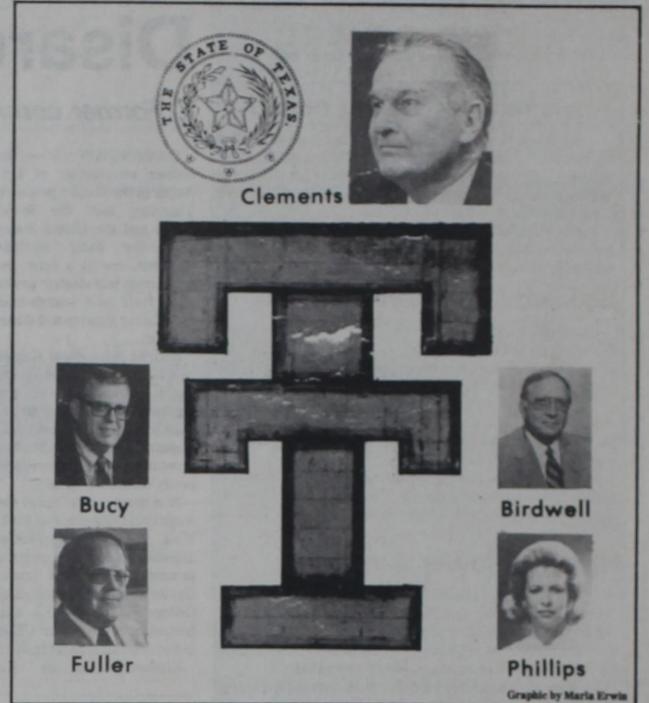

Workman, whose term expired during the Clements administration, was not re-appointed to the Tech board, but Clements did appoint him to a job on the Texas Youth Council.

Lee Stafford, another Briscoe appointee who Clements failed to re-appoint, said Clements' actions could have a detrimental effect on Tech in the future. Since Clements is elected to a four-year term, he has been able to appoint two-thirds of the board through the staggered term system.

"The key is: do these people support the governor or do they support Tecch?" Stafford said. "I think that what helps Tech more than anything is to have regents who look toward the future. It's so important that Tech gets its share of the appropriations. What you're seeing (through the Clements appointments) is what you'd call dollar qualifications."

Stafford said one of the reasons he was not reappointed is because he did not help campaign for Clements. Stafford said he had supported Briscoe in the 1978 primary, but Briscoe lost to former Attorney General John Hill. Stafford said he decided to not be involved in either the Hill or Clements campaigns even though the Clements campaign chairman asked him to join the campaign.

Faculty salary grant given

A $10,000 grant to supplement faculty salaries in the petroleum engineering department has been presented to Tech by the Getty Oil Co.

The contribution is designed to help the department improve faculty salaries to better compete with the salaries being offered in private industry. Maintaining high quality faculty in petroleum engineering departments nationally has grown more difficult in recent years because the industry has been able to lure teachers away with better salaries, according to James T. Smith, petroleum engineering department chairman.

Students to receive final benefits from Social Security claims

By TERI BRYCE UD Reporter

Many Tech students currently enjoying Social Security benefits could be receiving their last check May 3, according to Social Security claims representative Janice Grann.

"The change is complicated and a lot of students will be receiving their last check May 3 or August 3," Grann said.

Benefits will be cut according to a provision in laws passed last August to eliminate total student benefits by 1985.

The definition for eligibility changes for all new applicants in July 1982 and other benefits will be phased out over the next three years until 1985.

"Students no longer will receive checks during summer months, and benefits for students who still qualify will be reduced by 25 percent every August until 1985 when

Governor candidate: Campaign one of issues, not personalities

By GAIL FIELDS

UD Reporter Mark White, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said

this year's campaign has been one of issues and not personalities.

"I support a wiretapping bill against drug pushers; both of my opponents are against that," White said. "I have fought the windfall profits tax. I have not ever supported increases in utility bills. My opponent on the Railroad Commission, which sets every gas and utility rate, has approved every requested utility increase. Those are distinct issue differences, not personality problems."

White, currently Texas Attorney General, was in Lubbock Thursday for a brief press conference. White's major opponents in Saturday's Democratic primary are Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple.

AMBITION IS NOT ENOUGH!

A good public official should concentrate all his energies on being the best he can be in the office he holds. He cannot truly serve the people who elected him to one office if he is using time and energy to further his own personal political ambition.

State Senator E. L. Short rented out his farm and sold his business in Tahoka so he could serve the people of this 28th Senatorial District full time.

He has lived here all of his life, served 8 years in the House of Representatives and 4 years in the Senate. He knows this area and its people. We need E. L. Short in the Senate. He's the only listed farmer-rancher in the 31-member Texas Senate, and he's got the kind of experience that counts!

Barbecue: Finding the best in Lubbock a saucy undertaking

By CATHY ADAMS and BECKY HOLMES

UD Staff

Chicken fried steak and chili are fine and dandy Texas meals, but even they must take a back seat to the delicacy that holds the real warm spot in the hearts of many Texans -

Great barbecue spots and Texas seem to go together, and Lubbock certainly isn't the exception to this rule. Lubbock boasts a wide variety of barbecue establishments, all claiming to have the best barbecue in town.

The University Daily chose four local hot spots to explore their claims to the sparerib hall of fame.

Jug Little's Bar-B-Que serves lunch and caters all occasions. Owner Jug Little is typical of barbecue restaurant owners who swear by their product.

'We have the best barbecue in town," Little said. "We use strictly wood and long hours to prepare our barbecue, and we start at 4 a.m. everyday.

Little said he has been in the barbecue business for 28 years and added, "I would hope we have the best barbecue and at-

Jug Little's is filled with memorabilia that includes everything from a huge stuffed hog to posters of Roy Rogers and Trigger. These odds and ends contribute to an atmosphere that attracts both cowboys and three-piece-suit

The price of lunch at Little's is comparable to other restaurants in Lubbock and is serve-yourself style. Entertainment is free. A plate of barbecue, including all kinds of meat, runs from $5.95 for beef to $7.25 for the combination plate. Sandwiches are priced from $2.75 to $3.50 and include all the fixings - potato salad, cole slaw and beans.

Bigham's Smokehouse, located in September Place on 82nd and Indiana, holds its claim to barbecue fame because, as owner Don Bigham said, "I've tried all the other barbecue places in town and I know what they sell.

Selling 3,000 pounds of brisket a week and taking in more than $500,000 a year, Bigham's Smokehouse opened its doors three years ago after Bigham received his business degree

'We have a sophisticated pit that does a very good job on the meat," Bigham said.

But that's just about all Bigham would reveal about his barbecue, as secrecy seems to play a vital role in the recipe.

Prices of barbecue at Bigham's range from $3.50 for a small sliced beef plate to $5.95 for a combination plate with 3 meats. This includes beans, choice of salad and Texas toast. Sandwiches are priced from $2.45 for sliced beef to $2.25 for chopped beef, ham and sausage. Prices for barbecue by the pound run from $6.95 for brisket (sliced beef) and ribs to $4.95 for ham and sausage. Chopped beef by the pound is $4.50.

Lubbock's newest addition to the barbeque repertoire is The Road House. Located outside of the city in Escondidio Canyon and surrounded by huge willow trees and hilly landscape, The Road House is somewhat novel.

"Our barbecue is prepared with a lot of care," manager Mike Johnson said. "We cook our briskets for 18 hours on wood pits. We don't sit around thinking of cheaper ways."

Johnson said The Road House is part of a group of restaurants that began in Austin 10 years ago. The chain eventually spread to El Paso and Oklahoma City.

"Each restaurant is unique," Johnson said. "They all follow the 40s theme and they all have excellent barbecue." That "excellent barbecue" stems from cherished, secret

"Our recipe book is our bible," Johnson said. "We hide it." The atmosphere of The Road House is homey. It's a place to reminisce with old Life and Fortune magazines of the 40s. Prices at The Road House range from $4.95 for the sausage platter, which includes potato salad, cole slaw and beans to $10.95 for the New York strip, which includes baked potato, cole slaw and beans

The East side of Broadway is home for Stubb's Old-Fashioned Bar-B-Q. Owner C.B. Stubblefield, alias "Stubb," contends Stubb's has the best barbecue in Lubbock - period.

A local celebrity, Stubb has fed barbecue to stars like Tom T. Hall, Johnny Cash, Rolling Stones, Billy Carter, Natalie Cole, Roy Acuff, Bobby Bare and Johnny Rodriguez.

Stubb started his barbecue enterprise 13 years ago, "on a nickel and a nail," as he likes to say. When he started out, he relied on his experience as a cook in the army.

"Good smiles and beautiful faces that enjoy good food" is Stubb's special barbecue recipe. Stubb said he tries to make his barbecue taste the way his customers want their food to taste.

The aura that surrounds Stubb's Bar-B-Q practically assures good food. A homespun atmosphere dominates, with photographs and portraits of Stubb and noted celebrities decorating the walls. A "Sunday Night Jam" is featured also, spotlighting local talents and "anybody who can play

There is a tragic side to this saga - Stubb's Bar-B-Q is slowly dying from a lack of customers.

"Lubbock has deserted Stubb's Bar-B-Q," Stubb said. "I don't have the people. Business isn't business if you can't pay Stubb said he doesn't know if he'll leave Lubbock or stay and "fight it out."

"I don't care about money," Stubb said. "I just care about food, and I want it to be good."

Lunch prices at Stubb's Bar-B-Q range from $4.25 for the beef plate to $6.50 for "Stubb's Major," a monster plate that includes beef, links, ribs, chopped beef, beans, potato salad, pickles, peppers and onions. Sandwiches are priced from $2 for chopped beef to $2.65 for rib and $2.35 for sliced beef. Barbecue by the pound is priced at $5.99 for beef and links

Director talks of complex play

By KATHY WATSON UD Entertainment Writer

A talk with Elizabeth Biggers, director of "Uncommon Women and Others," reveals much about the play, opening at 8:15 p.m. today in the Lab Theatre.

The young woman said she prefers subtlety, a trait that Biggers carries herself. She is soft-spoken but seems to have a quiet self-assurance about her art and her upcoming play.

Biggers is a senior in the department of theatre arts. After taking a directing course last year, she applied to direct a show in the Lab Theatre and received the position.

"You have to submit three plays you would like to do. My first choice was 'Uncommon Women.' One, because I loved it ever since I found it in 1979. An all-woman cast is preferable opposite 'Hamlet.' There are not enough good roles for women here. There are more good female actors than male in this department," she said.

The play deals with five close friends who reunite six years after graduating from a prestigious eastern women's school. Through a series of flashbacks, the women discover the events that helped form their lives.

"It's a good play for a college audience. It deals with the things you deal with in college — language, subject matter, things you really start discussing in college, things that happen to you. They say college is the most difficult part of a person's life, the choices you have to make," she said.

Biggers further explained what ties the women together. "Living together in the same space ties you together. It's the same thing going through difficult times - women sharing problems. Their relationships tie them together, but sometimes pull them apart — it's both in this play," she said. "After six years five of them get together. In going back they see things anew, things occurred that they didn't see in college. How they became what they did is a question that goes back to the title, 'Uncommon Women and Others.' Which are uncommon, which are others is something for the audience to decide," Biggers said. The novice director has been involved in theater for about seven years. She was active in Monterrey High School's drama department under director Harlan Reddell, but Biggers said she really became interested in theater when she attended a high school workshop for theater students at Tech.

If It was the first time I really learned what live theater was all about. (George) Sorensen (an instructor for the high school workshops) is so concerned about everyone's potential. He gave me a personal interest," she said.

Biggers said she believes she has many options for her future. She plans to apply to professional training schools for graduates, and also some schools for film work. She added she would be interested in interning at a repertory theater if she is not accepted into any of the training schools.

"I want to act, direct, write. With directing you get to do

One-act play series starts tonight

Graduate students in the department of theatre arts will begin presenting their bi-annual series of one-act plays this

The students direct the plays for the final project of a directing class. All plays will be presented in the University Theatre and the public may see them for no admission

The presentations begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday with "Exit the King," a play by Eugene Ionesco, directed by Debi Buckner. That play will be followed by Paul Sills' "Story Theatre," directed by Leigh Ellis.

The next series will be Sunday, May 2, at 2 p.m., when Judi Sprague will present "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mom Has Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad," written by Arthur Kopit. On the same bill is Beth McGeehan's presentation, "The Shadow Box," written by Michael Christofer.

The third series of plays will be presented Monday, May 3, at 7:30 p.m. Mickey Best will present William Saroyan's play, "The Time of Your Life." Reagan Fletcher will present his interpretation of Ugo Betti's play, "Crime on Goat Island."

The final bill will be held on Wednesday, May 5, at 7:30 p.m. Phyllis Preston will present "The Doll's House," by Henrik Ibsen, and Richard Privitt will present Tennessee Williams' play, "Suddenly Last Summer." everything, every level of theater. There are more options to explore, more areas," she said.

Biggers discussed the possibilities of a career in the film in-

"Film is such an intimate medium, I like subtlety - more potential there. For one, in theater you're so far away that you can't see emotions, character relationships or facial expressions. In film, you see everything - I like that. I like the Lab Theatre for that reason," Biggers explained.

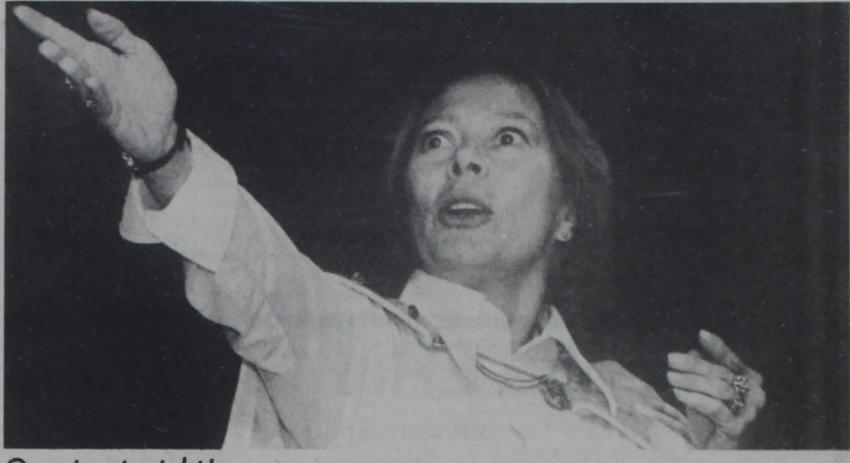

Biggers participated in a program for American students last summer in which she traveled to London for four weeks. In that time, she was coached by an instructor for professional theater, met professional actors and directors, and saw college and professional plays, both traditional and experimental.

"I learned a lot, a great deal from that. The way I see things now is different, like the way an actor moves. I'm approaching material in a different way," she said.

Biggers also said she is different from most directors. "I've absorbed so much. As an actor, what I feel works for me, works for other actors. I like to work with the cast as individuals, then as a group; from people to actors to characters," she said.

"I really enjoy working with my actors. I really like putting everything together, or at least trying to put everything together. It's a great accomplishment.'

WE'VE GOT SOME ACES UP OUR SLEEVES!

I saw the chance to move up to Bang & Olufsen. didn't pass it by.

Until now, a Bang & Olufsen® turntable was just one of life's frustrations. There was no question that my audio system demanded one, it's just that my budget always gave me the same dismal answer

Not a chance.

Things changed. Bank & Olufsen found a way to offer their Beogram 1602 with MMC 10E cartridge for a price even a thin wallet like mine could understand. You move up when you can, so I did. Now at lease one part of my audio system really makes sense, and I'll tell you why.

First, there is not an ounce of fat on this machine. A single, smooth control panel takes care of everything. One light touch and I have music; I don't even have to set the speed, let alone cue the stylus. Once the record is finished, the arm returns and the unit shuts itself off.

Second, I avoid the great strobe light ritual most other turntables require for speed adjustment. Instead of gimmickry the 1602 uses an electronically controlled drive system which automatically compensates for changes in line current. I should mention as well that anti-skating compensation is also totally automatic. They built this turntable to take care of itself

Third, the 1602 is not just another pretty face. It's tough. The suspension system is so good that you can slam the lid down while playing a record and not hear the slightest effect. Better than that, it shrugs off my parties without even trying

But in the end it all comes down to performance, and it's the integrated cartridge and tonearm that make the difference here. Bank & Olufsen says you have to design the tonearm and cartridge to work with one another if you're after truly top performance. That makes sense to me and I think they're right.

I've found only one thing wrong with owning a Beogram 1602. It's such a high class turntable, I feel guilty when I don't clean my records.

It's a fact. The best cassette deck in the world is only as good as the tape you put in it. So, when Nakamichi decks deliver performance of reference-standard caliber, you can bet it's not done with just any cassette tape. While there are many fine brands of tape on the market, Nakamichi's need for a laboratory benchmark in recording tape has led to the development of three exceptional formulations bearing the Nakamichi name: ZX, SX and EXII -a reference standard for each of the three major tape types. They represent the leading edge of tape technology and are produced under the most stringent quality-control standards in the industry. Nakamichi decks are individually calibrated at the factory using Nakamichi cassettes. They make it possible for Nakamichi to guarantee the kind of performance which makes Nakamichi cassette decks the standard of comparison. Why should your reference standard be anything less?

The Nakamichi Philosophy of Excellen¢e

Whether designing an ultra-high-technology recorder such as the ZX7 or a modestly priced deck such as the LX3, Nakamichi's commitment to excellence in the fine art of recorded sound is unwavering. Compare specifications. No competitively priced cassette deck approaches the technological excellence of the Nakamichi LX3. With its 20,000-Hz response, and its unique Asymmetrical, Diffused-Resonance Transport—a design it shares with the most advanced Nakamichi products-it is in a class by itself:

But what of the sound? Technical specifications do not tell the whole story. Simply listen. At Nakamichi, we are committed to music-to listening in our Tokyo concert hall, to comparing recorded sound with its live origins. The LX3 is the result of that commitment-a recorder that shares the unique purity of Nakamichi sound—a recorder whose excellence lies in its simplicity of operation-a recorder designed specifically for the lover of good music.

The Raiders will join host Wayland Baptist, West Texas State, Eastern New Mexico, Panhandle State and New Mexico Junior College in the six-team field. Preliminaries start at 12:30 p.m. and finals at 4 p.m.

We have a chance to do well at Wayland, but we are going to have to pile up the points in the field events," coach Corky Oglesby said. "West Texas State always seems to be strong in the sprints."

Rolle, Selmon and Poyser all qualified for the NCAA Championships. Rolle runs the 400 intermediate hurdles, Selmon is in the long jump and Poyser is in the triple jump.

Women's Track

Seventeen Tech women tracksters will try to improve on last year's sixth-place finish as the Raiders traveled to College Station this weekend to compete in the Texas AIAW state track and field meet, which started Thursday and will last through Saturday.

The Raiders will again rely on the field events to pile up points, most notably Early Douglas in the shot put and Sharon Moultrie in the long jump.

In last weekend's A&M Relays, Douglas took second place in the shot put with a toss of 45 feet and also placed fourth in the discus with a throw of 147-3. Douglas, who has already qualified for the national AIAW meet to be held in late May, will have to overcome Jo Beth Palmer of Texas to have any chance of a first place spot.

Moultrie, also a national qualifier, will try to improve on her season best of 19-7. At last year's TAIAW meet, Moultrie

ANK SHOTS, TRICK SHOTS AND OTHER TABLE MANN

I'm gonna teach you a coupla things that'll 1) impress your friends. and 2) maybe lose some friends.

MARING TO THE THE THE STATE OF THE STATE OF

All you need is good eyesight, a little dexterity, and three essentials: a pool table, pool cue, and some Lite Beer from Miller.

CHEAP SHOTS

Here's a goodie. I call it the "Cheap Shot." Place a ball on the edge of the corner pocket. Then, take a half-dollar and lean it against the side rail at the other end of the table. (If you don't have a half-dollar, you can always write home to your parents: they'd love to hear from you.)

Tell your friends you're gonna sink the ball in the corner, using the half-dollar as a cue ball. It's not hard. Hit the coin solidly on the edge, just above the center, and it will roll along the rail knocking the ball in the pocket. But don't forget to scoff up the half-dollar. Because you're not supposed to lose money doing trick shots-just win Lite Beers.

THE COIN TRICK

his one drives people nuts. Place a ball on the head spot. With the chalk, make a circle around it, approximately 8" in diameter. Then put a quarter or half-dollar on top of the ball. (Yes, you can use the same one from before, or you can write home to your parents again.) Place the cue ball behind the foot line and have your friends try to knock the coin out of the circle. Chances are, they won't be able to (this is a good time to work on your Lite Beer and act smug).

When you shoot, do one of two things: hit the object ball head-on with follow-through so the cue ball knocks the coin out, or hit the cue ball very, very slowly so the coin rolls off the object ball.

TABLE MANNERS

Now for simple table etiquette. After you've "hustled" your friends, you gotta keep 'em. So do what I call "Clearing the Table." Simply offer to buy the next round of Lite Beer. They'll all clear the table fast and head for the bar (or to your room or apartment). Then, once they all have Lite (just one apiece-you're not too rich, remember), tell them with Lite in hand and a smirk on your face that your shots were no big deal-you were just showin' off.

"The course can't play any easier," Archer said. "There wasn't a breath of wind, the greens were soft and you could fly the ball right at the hole."

The result was some of the lowest scoring recorded in the 15 years the tournament has been played on the Preston Trail Golf Club course. 20 horses set to run in Derby gelding were among 20 3-year-olds entered Thursday for the Kentucky Derby in a year in which several top candidates have been sidelined by illness and injury.

Cassaleria, missing his left eye, drew the No.18 post position for Saturday's richest Derby ever, while the filly, Cupecoy's Joy, drew the rail in the third-largest Derby field

Cupecoy's Joy also was entered in Friday's Kentucky Oaks for 3-year-old fillies, but Roberto Perez, her breeder and coowner, said she would start in the Derby if she drew an inside post position. "We're in for the big one," Perez said after the Cupecóy's Joy will try and join Regret (1915) and Genuine Risk (1980) as the only fillies to win the Derby.

Real Dare, who was purchased by owner J.E, Jumonville for $750,000, will try to become the eighth gelding to win the Derby and the first since Clyde Van Dusen in 1929. Real Dare will break from the No.12 post.

The three early favorites for what has to be considered a wide-open race are El Baba, winner of eight of 10 career stats, at 5-2 from the No.4 post; Air Forbes Won, unraced as a 2-year-old but unbeaten in four races this year, at 7-2 in No.7, and Muttering, the Santa Anita Derby winner, at 4-1 in No.11.

Also entered were Bold Style, 15-1, No.2;, New Discovery, 8-1, No.3; Royal Roberto, 20-1, No.5; Wavering Monarch, 15-1, No.6; Laser Light, 30-1, No.8; Music Leader, 8-1, No.9;

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - A one-eyed colt, a filly and a Reinvested, 8-1, No.10; Rock Steady, 8-1, No.13; Water Bank, 20-1, No.14; Rockwall, 30-1, No.15; Wolfie's Rascal, 8-1, No.16; Star Gallant, 8-1, No.17; Gato del Sol, 10-1, No.19, and Majesty's Prince, 8-1, No.20.

The added-money for the 108th Derby at Churchill Downs was increased from $200,000 to $250,000, the entry fee was boosted from $4,000 to $5,000 and the starting tab was increased from $3,500 to $5,000.

So, if 20 horses start - the filly will carry 121 pounds and the others 126 each — the purse will be $527,600, with $422,600 to the winner. The previous records were a gross of $413,415 and a winner's share of $317,200, set last year when there were 21 starters.

Post time is 4:38 p.m. CDT, with ABC to televise from 3:30

As recently as two weeks ago, it appeared there would be a relatively small field for this Derby. Then, Timely Writer, the early favorite who had won the Flamingo and Florida Derby, underwent surgery for an abdominal problem April 20; trainer Henry Clark announced he was skipping the Derby with Blue Grass winner Linkage, and Hostage, winner of the Arkansas Derby, broke a bone in his right front leg during a workout last Monday.

Then it looked as if there would be more than 20 3-year-olds entered, with the starters limited to the top 20 money winners and the others put on an also-eligible list in case of a scratch or scratches by 4 p.m. Saturday.

Winning two of three games from the second-ranked baseball team in the nation is like the sun shining on the Byron Nelson Golf Classic. Some things just don't happen.

Conjure up the scene of a homecoming football game in the fall. Thousands of Tech students, exes and fans pack Jones Stadium. The scene is a mixture of a party, a parade and a typical Friday night in the Hub.

The Saddle Tramps are ringing their cowbells, the Goin' Band is blaring out marching music and the cheerleaders are urging the student section to "Get Their Guns Up." To cap the mental picture, the Masked Rider. before kickoff, makes his pregame jaunt on Happy VI-II run errands for the coaches,' around the field.

The only music to be heard comes from a transistor radio in the crowd. Fans at the games are vocal, but they are only voices crying in the wilderness. The only other sound is the splash of chewing tobacco juice on the turf.

Then in 1977, head baseball coach Kal Segrist and thenstudent sports information director Alfred White formed the Double 'T' Dolls to help promote Tech baseball. Approximately 60 women tried out and 12 were selected to be the first Tech Dolls.

In 1981, more than 100 women tried out for the 12 positions. The group is now a prestigious group whose function hasn't changed. They still promote Tech baseball.

'The Double 'T' Dolls now not only help the Tech baseball program with support, but also promotionally. They help publicize Tech baseball in many ways, such as giving publicity to the program by making posters," Segrist said.

Several of the 1982 Dolls agreed with Segrist about the importance of support this weekend during the Texas
