Don Cossack Chorus Here Monday Night, October 25

Present Second Performance On Artists Course

Group Of Russians Led By Platoff; Are Exiles Of Homeland

The General Platoff Don Cossack chorus, under direction of Nicholas Kostroff, will be presented Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Lubbock High school auditorium.

The Cossack chorus of 27 Russians from the Don region, whose perfectly matched solo voices cover the range from high soprano to the lowest bass.

The chorus is made of Russian Cossacks who are exiles from their native land. It is named for the Cossack General Platoff, famous hero who achieved renown helping to turn back Napoleon's invading army in his march on Moscow.

While studying in Prague, he became very interested in music and attracted other music lovers. He and several of his friends began giving concerts to other exiles, but one night a visiting personnel attended the performance and their careers were made. It was their leader to consider seriously what they were to make of their future careers—music vs. medicine, engineering, etc.

Part one of the program is made of liturgical music and folk songs such as "Hymn to the Creator" and "Ave Maria." The second part, dealing with the plains and steppes. There is a patriotic theme, especially in the song entitled "Beloved City" which was composed by Bogoslavsky, a young flier who took part in the defense of Stalingrad, and was inspired to commemorate that heroic defense.

Speech Clinic Is Being Conducted

Speech clinic conducted for anyone with a speech difficulty has begun regular consultation periods this week.

This clinic service is free and is held annually by the Speech department with Annah Jo Pendleton, head professor of speech, and Helene Blatter, associate professor of speech, conducting the consultations.

The majority of students enrolled this year are from Lubbock public schools. The major difficulties presented are in articulation, retarded speech, and "baby talk." Some enrolled are stutters, or have other types of speech handicaps.

Army Engineers On Campus Entertained With Party

Twenty-five army engineers stationed on the campus were entertained by the students in the Home Management room Sunday afternoon. The party was informal, with group games, cards, and dancing comprising the entertainment.

Williams Win In Enrollment Tilt

Smiths Are Second; Jones Fall Below Par To Fifth

By VIRGINIA FORBES
Toreador Staff Writer

SUPREMACY of the Jones clan in America is a thing of the past, if Tech is representative of the nation. The Joneses just "ain't what they used to be", at least in numbers.

According to the registrar's office, Williams's are leading numerically this year with Smiths running a weak second.

At present there are 19 of the Williams clan registered; 13 Smiths; Browns and Millers tie for third with 12 each; and the onerolous Joneses tie with the Johnsons for a lowly fifth, with 8 each.

Among the more colorful names on the campus are Black, Brown, Gray, Green, and White. Romantic is the word for some monickers, namely Love, Dear, and Sweet. Less romantic is Loveless, less interesting, Allgood.

In the industrial field there are Bakers, Brewers, Butlers, Carpenters, Millers, Cooks, Farmers, Fishers, Hunters, and Shoemakers. Tech hunters game is confined to Fox, Beavers, Batts, Crows and Bear. There is Moss, Nettles, a Peak, a Hill, and a Wood. Herring and Pike are the popular fish from the different Poodles and Wells; and the food problem is solved by Berry, Cobb, Coffee, Cone, Oates, along with Ice and Roots if the situation gets desperate.

There are several Kings and a Castle; Knights, and Armor; Bales of Cotton; Camp, Cannon, and a Sargent; even a Temple, a Wiseman, and a Pope.

The body is represented at Tech by the Head alone, and the Harp offers the only music. France, Spain, and Wales are represented, as are the famous Darwin, Crosby and Shakespeare's immortalized Montagues. The only Car on the Street is a Ford, but Tech is Rich having a Bond and a Dollar.

There are even Martins and McCoy's, "those feudin' mountain boys."

Miss Alice H. Haley, education director of the Celanese Corporation of America, will speak to the Home Economics club Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in Annex G.

Her topic will be the story of man-made fibers from the standpoint of wearing quality.

Miss Haley was formerly Minnesota state supervisor of home economics, dean of home economics at the University of South Dakota, and has taught in Columbia university.

Other groups she will address while she is in Lubbock include the Lubbock County Home Economics association and various clothing classes both at Tech and at the high schools. She will be in Lubbock from Saturday until Wednesday.

Young Reads Conservation Paper At Questers' Meeting

Dr. A. W. Young, head of the plant industry department, read a scientific paper on "Soil Conservation" at the first monthly meeting of the Questers' club at the Hilton hotel last night.

ODT Warning Out To Do Christmas Shopping Early

"Do your Christmas shopping early" is an order this year. The Office of Defense Transportation has set Dec. 10 as the deadline for mailing all Christmas packages.

According to Amos H. Howard, Lubbock postmaster, "the deadline for mailing Yuletide parcels to men in the Navy is Nov. 1 and Christmas delivery of packages to men overseas with the Army was not guaranteed after Oct. 15. Presents to service men still stationed in the states fall under the Dec. 10 deadline, along with civilian packages."

"The Post Office department for years," Howard pointed out, "has been conducting a Christmas 'shop early and mail early' campaign," which has made but slight impression on the American penchant for waiting until the last minute to get things done.

Men Considering Army And Navy Exams Act Now

"Men considering taking the Army 12 and Navy V-12 examinations should get a bulletin and identification card promptly" says Dr. H. L. Kent, administrative assistant.

These two examinations are to be given on the campus Nov. 9, and to determine the number of tests to order Dr. Kent must know how many men students intend to take it.

No one will be admitted to the examination without certified identification card saying they are eligible for the exam. These cards may be secured at Dean Kent's office.

The same examination will be taken by both Army and Navy candidates, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

The last Army-Navy test given on the campus was April 2. Over 300 men took this test last spring. After the test in November there will not be another until April, 1944.

College students who took the test April 2, 1943, and failed may take the test again on Nov. 9, if they are within the ages of 17 to 21.

Tower Chimes Remain Silent Until Clocks Repaired

Tech's tower chimes will remain silent this year until the campus clock system can be repaired and coordinated, according to W. T. Gaston, college business manager.

Until the highly complicated system of electrically controlled clocks is in working order the ringing of the chimes would only add to the confusion, he said.

Located in the West tower of the Administration building, the chimes were presented to the college by the graduating class of 1941. They are electrically controlled and amplified, and when in use, sound on the hour both day and night. They were installed at a cost of $1000.

"When we will be able to use the chimes again is indefinite," Mr. Gaston said.

Three leading performers of the Cossack chorus doing a popular Russian dance. The chorus will give the famous Cossacks Knife Dance, in which twelve knives are juggled.

Lo It Came To Pass That Fish Became As Green As Shamrock

And, lo, one of these wolves entered in the guise of a chemist, stating that verily in his own bathtub he had made gin for the express purpose of bleaching the green from the cheeks of freshmen.

As the freshmen wherewith to quaff. As the green freshman was strong in constitution, having occasionally attended a government class, he survived this party and many like it that came thereafter.

And lo, the green straightway faded from his cheeks. And as the years passed, this freshman gradually became an upperclassman and his nose assumed a scarlet tinge. Yes, verily, the redness of it was marvelous to behold.

When, lo, there entered into the portals of this institution of high learning a great draft. Yea, verily, it swept before it all those students who were yet of a normal color, having neither cheeks too green nor noses too red.

And he betook himself to inquire how he could rid himself of his nauseous hue. Yea, verily, he entreated his roommate to impart to him knowledge of how this could be done. But, lo, his roommate led him among the wolves who infested the campus, even as they do unto this day.

Khaki-Klad Techsians-

IT HAS never before been called to the attention of the freshmen on the campus, and probably has been forgotten by the upperclassmen about our relations with the pre-flight students and engineers now stationed here, living in Tech dormitories, and using Tech buildings for classes.

When the army joined our campus last spring, they came rather suddenly. We were moved into the street with little or no notice. But it was all taken with a grain of salt and students decided that it was their contribution to the war effort.

It has been called to our attention that several students have been making slighting remarks to the pre-flight students as they march to and from class. These students are unable to answer due to army regulations.

We appeal to these students to call a halt to such childish tricks, and try to act like college students. It is not only our duty to our country, but also a duty to our school and ourselves.

These students are not here through any desire of their own. They came because they were sent by high officials to prepare themselves for the responsibilities that will be theirs when they become officers. It is true that they do not come here through any invitation of ours but what has been said before is even more true than the latter.

We have for years been trying to build our school to one of nationally known and well-liked reputation. We can not do so if we continue to carry the "chip on our shoulder." The pre-flight students who are here come from the four corners of this nation. Where they go from here they will carry their idea of our college. Also with them will go an opinion of the type of students who are in school here, and in some cases they will know the individual.

What we are striving for is a better understanding between the students regularly enrolled here and the army. We feel that it is up to both factions to work together for the mutual benefit of all. If this is done, then the school will benefit, and so will the pre-flight detachment.

Our social affairs are open to the pre-flight students as long as they come with a Tech card. That is all well and good, but we do not feel they would enjoy such affairs if they were uncomfortable during the entire evening.

When these students return from the wars seeking an education they will remember Texas Tech. What they think of this school will determine our enrollment after the war much more than we seem to realize. They will not only judge us on their present stay here, but will pass this judgment along to their friends. If we can maintain the famous "Howdy" spirit with these khaki-clad Techsians, then we will be really accomplishing something.

We fear that students may read this article with the underlying thought that it was invoked through pressure from some source other than The Toreador offices. We wish to assure all that it is written by us with the hope that the students will take the advice given and create a better name for our college. It is written hoping for the earnest support of all so that this college will continue to grow and flourish and truly be the educational center of the South Plains as it has been for some eighteen years.

Post-War Schools-

AMERICAN soldiers in the Pacific battle zone, although doing excellent work in coping with the enemy, have been found lacking in strong national spirit, according to a report made recently by a special Senatorial investigating committee.

This situation, while unfortunate, should not take Americans completely by surprise. Until the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor most American young people were of the opinion that war was a colossal money-making effort on the part of certain capitalists and that the soldiers were chiefly just suckers. Further, they were taught via Hemingway, Dorothy Parker and others that all ideals were merely outmoded sentimentality.

Perhaps the older people did not know that this attitude was firmly entrenched in the minds of this nation's young. But it is impossible to understand how they could be oblivious to all the poems, short stories and articles proclaiming this theory circulating in school and public libraries. At any rate, the idea took solid root and flourished all undiscouraged by any thought leaders, and now Senatorial investigating committees are becoming alarmed.

We do not mean to imply that the writings to which we referred above are the cause of a lack of national feeling. They are, rather, the result of this of the widespread disillusionment that followed the last war. And we propose, as a measure to prevent the evil effects of like disillusionment following the present war, a carefully planned course to be taught in schools that would combine significant parts of world history, economy, comparative study of the governments of important powers and the ethics of international law.

This project would definitely not entail the school's becoming an agency to spread propaganda in favor of any group of persons or political party; surely it is not jingoistic for our schools to interpret trends of events for relatively inexperienced youth and to show them the obvious advantages of democratic over totalitarian states.

Youth and democracy, each of which we love, are idealistic. If the young are forced to discard all their dreams, only tragedy can result. It is a pity that we had to have a war before our nation became worried about the mental attitude of its population. Let us, however, learn our lesson from this war, and give to our children the benefit of aspirations not ridiculed and of instruction in democratic living.—E.H.

MANY girls have refused to join any of the auxiliary services, the WAC, the WAVES or the SPARS, because they are afraid that they will lose through their experience and associations the qualities of ladyhood they possess.

They are worrying unnecessarily because a girl who goes into one of the services as a lady will come out a lady, ladyhood being an inner quality that is indestructible. Ladyhood is unaffected by either environment or circumstances. A lady may go anywhere and meet any condition without being contaminated in the slightest degree. She may be thrown into association with men and women who are strangers to gentility and still keep her gentle approach to them and to life.

There is an appearance of ladyhood that is but a thin veneer, possessed by girls and women who think it expedient to show, but which they drop when they are not on guard or parade. And that veneer, exposed to harsh conditions, may easily be chipped off.

Here We Go Again...

A Techsan Speaks

—By Barnett

I AM afraid that the time has come to make an admission that in many respects is not too good of a reflection upon the student body of Tech. It has been thought over carefully by yours truly, and I have even threatened to omit the subject from this paper entirely. However, it is much too much to overlook.

I am speaking of our attitude toward soldiers and their seating arrangement at football games. Saturday as the Red Raiders were battling out a 14-12 win over South Plains Commandos, the student body must have been overcome by the magnificence of the situation. Whatever the cause they practically failed to open their mouths for the full sixty minutes during the game.

Meanwhile the khaki-clad group sitting in the adjoining seats were making almost as much noise as I have heard many Tech roofing sections cause in recent years. And in case you did not notice, they were rooting for the men in the scarlet uniforms.

It has come to a sad state of affairs when Texas Tech must rely on a group of men, who have not the slightest cause to be loyal to our school, to do their yelling for them. I was grateful to that group for the spirit and enthusiasm they showed, and was equally embarrassed by the response shown by the students of this college.

When Tech's new fight song was played by the Matador band, what happened? Students did not even know the name of it so as to read it from the backs of their yellsheets. The same incident came when the old fight song was played.

There was a yell practice last Friday night. (I believe that many of the students knew nothing about it due to the response given), and these songs were played and sung by those present. It was not too difficult for many to make this practice, and I feel that those who were absent could benefit greatly by attending such affairs.

I do not know who the soldiers were who did our yelling for us Saturday. If they were pre-flights then to them goes my congratulations and thanks. They did a truly swell job, and I hope that they will not be too harsh in judging our school spirit. The same can be said for the engineers now on the campus, many of them former Techsians.

That is another point that embarrasses me. If the boys who were here last year, and who returned with the army group receiving special training here, judge us on of Texas, has peroxidized his hair. We understand he did this just to please the co-eds of Texas U. Tech girls saw the glamour guys of the gridiron minus their padding, but resplendent in bright ties and black eyes at the football reception Sunday afternoon.

Veteran Flyers Seek Revenge From Tech

Army Team Loser To Techsans Only

Revamped Offense By LAAF Promising Raiders Trouble

WITH three losses and two wins chalked up on their season scoreboard, the Texas Tech Red Raiders hope to make it three-up when they meet the Lubbock Army Air Field Flyers tomorrow night in the second game of the season with that team. In the season-opener the collegians downed the veteran soldiers 26 to 14 in a surprise victory.

Fresh from their 14-12 defeat of the South Plains Army Air Field Commandos, the Morganmen have high hopes of making it two straight over the Flyers, and becoming undisputed champions of Lubbock football.

In the opening game the Flyers were running from the T formation, something not new to many of the ex-Raiders on that squad, and the collegians defense was successful in holding them in check. At present, however, the Army eleven is using a mixup of the box, short punt, some of the T plays, and a single wing formation.

Mild-mannered Roger Smith, former Raider star, is the big gun in Captain Nathan Eubanks offense, and from the box formation, has proved too much for other opponents to stop. Smith is a powerful runner and an accurate passer and works much better from the new formation than he did in the T.

Combining with Smith will be former Raider, Norman Volz, along with another Matador great of years past, "Lefty" Sollis. Volz was a basketball star while at Tech, and was never renowned for his football ability. Since the 1943 season began Volz has fast developed into a speed-merchant who is hard to stop on the gridiron. Sollis was a star at Tech some years back, and still running as he did during college days.

Anticipating this difficult team combined with other college stars, coaches Dell Morgan and Polk Robinson have been working on a defense to stop "Rocket Roger" Smith and his playmates. Realizing the difficulty the freshmen will have against this powerful runner, Morgan has changed his defense slightly to give more power on the side of the line that Smith favors.

It is Morgan's hope that his light but rugged line composed of Hubert Bechtol and Don Dudley at ends, Pruitt Browning and Thurman White at Tackles, Tom Pirtle and Charles Read at guards, and Bobby Williams at center will halt the Flyers fast charging offense.

Plus this line, the backfield starters will probably be Freddie Brown at the tailback post, Euster Melton at full, Joe Thompson at the blocking-back slot, and Harry Riley at the half-back slot.

Bob Brewer, sensational freshman back from Lubbock, reinjured his ankle in the SPAAF battle and is not due to see action again until the game with Rice Institute in Houston next week. Brewer first received the injury against the Texas Aggies, and was forced to miss the Tulsa game because of it.

Behind this starting line the Raider coaches will have plenty of reserve material that includes Carroll Hall, James Rogers, Nolan Weeks, and Tex Wallis at ends; Harry Walker, Clyde Black, Ed Robertson, Raymond Smith and Donald Grove at tackles; Bobby Hayes, Ed Watson, Claude Freeman, Calvo Boydston and Bill Gipson at guards; Jack Brewer and Ralph White at the pivot position; T. M. Cox and Dale Cooper at blocking back; Oren Peden and Malcolm Mitchell at the right half slot; Bernie Winkler and Murrell Taylor at fullback; and James Wright and Hulen Clifton at the tailback position.

The kickoff is slated for 8:15 in Tech stadium with $1.10 charged for general admission, $1.65 for reserved seats, and 50 cents for soldiers and their wives.

Slater Appointed Business Manager

Bob Slater, junior from Schenectady, N. Y., was appointed business manager of the Student council last week, and Richard Story, San Angelo senior, was made vice-president. The appointments were made by the Student council in accordance with the student constitution.

Still open is the office of athletic council representative which will not be filled until the athletic council makes a recommendation, according to Maxine Craddock, student president.

The Crouse College of Fine Arts at the Syracuse University was the first on the North American continent. Founded seventy years ago, it was also the first school to confer degrees for courses in architecture, painting and music.

Callahan Shines As Texans Beat Hogs

34-0 Defeat Handed Arkansas As Ex-Raider Is Outstanding

THE Texas Longhorns, last year's Southwest conference champions, started a new drive for the title last Saturday when they opened their conference season against the Arkansas Razorbacks, and promptly trounced that team 34-0.

Outstanding in the Longhorns lineup was J. R. Callahan, sensational Little All-America at Tech last season. George Rabon, Daily Texan sports editor, had this to say in his report of the game:

"J. R. Callahan's gridiron debut for the Orange and White wasn't as sensational as most of the fans had expected, but the sturdy-legged 180-pounder who made the Little All-America with Texas Tech last season turned in a creditable performance."

"Starting in place of little Bobby Coy Lee, who came into the game on five occasions to hold while Ralph Park booted conversions, Callahan's most notable efforts were a 31 yard sprint through center on the last play of the first quarter, a 35-yard punt which rolled out of bounds on the Arkansas 8 yard line, and a beautiful 45 yard pass to Park for Texas' second touchdown."

Callahan was slated to return to the Red Raider lineup this season, but was called into service early in September. He, along with Billy Hale, now of TCU, was one of the captains elected to pilot the Morganmen in their 1943 campaign.

Callahan left this campus in September to join the Naval V-5 unit at the University. It was undecided for a time as to whether he would play football at that school. When first moved there, the Naval cadets had no time for football, but last week the ban was removed and Callahan reported to Coach D. X. Bible for action. He is expected to be a big gun in the Longhorn offense during their coming campaign for the conference flag.

Brown And Melton Spark Raiders In South Plains Win

It was Freddie Brown's passing and running, combined with Buster Melton's accurate punting that brought the Texas Tech Red Raiders from their three-game losing streak and placed them at the long end of a 14-12 score over the South Plains Army Air Field's Winged Commandos.

Statistics for the game, played last Saturday night in Tech stadium were:

TECH	SPAAP

1 First downs, penalties	0
11 Total First Downs	9
124 Yards gained rushing	147

Letters Mailed To New Mexico, Arizona And Tech

Official Notice Not Received Here; Game For War Relief

Playing in the annual Sun Bowl game at El Paso on January 1, and acting as host team, will probably be one of three Border conference teams still carrying on football this year, Dr. C. M. Hendricks, director general, announced in El Paso last Saturday.

"While our agreement provides that we shall use the Border conference champion each year as the host team in the Sun Bowl, this agreement has been suspended for the duration," Dr. Hendricks said. "However, we played Hardin Simmons versus Second Air Force last year. It is our hope to use either Texas Tech, New Mexico, or Arizona State of Flagstaff as the host team this year. Letters have gone out to these three teams and no decision can be arrived at until we have heard from them."

"We would like to play one of these teams against some service team of about the same caliber. 0 Should any of the three Border conference teams decide not to accept the invitation, we will then do our best to secure any most available team. If we finally succeed in signing up two teams for the Sun Bowl all profits will go to war relief, each team deciding which agency shall receive their share."

"Morley Jennings, athletic director at Tech, has stated that nothing has been received here as yet concerning such a post-season game for the Raiders. In the event that such a letter is received in the future, the Athletic council will be in authority. Tech has appeared in the Sun Bowl once before. Their other appearance there was in 1941, and they dropped a close battle to the Tulsa Golden Hurricane 0-6.

Various Jobs Available For Tech Students Now

Jobs on Tech campus are going begging today, for the first time in years. Part time jobs typing, working in homes, keeping children, and doing receptionist work are waiting for campus women. Those interested in these part-time jobs should apply at the office of the Dean of Women.

Coed's Corner

Social Clubs Blamed By Unambitious Coeds

By Ellen Helm

SOME coeds have contracted a certain type of infantilism (and no one believes that she is afflicted) that results in her sitting back, watching others win honors, but accomplishing nothing herself, and telling herself that if people only appreciated her personality, if people only knew what she had in her heart that she, too, would receive acclaim from her classmates.

And as if all this dreaming weren't sufficiently detrimental to her personality, she then finds some general idea on which to lay the blame for her own lack of recognition. For example, one thing often blamed by these girls is the institution of social clubs.

These disgruntled students who must shift responsibility for their own lack of recognition, berate clubs with all their might. Now everything in the world has its place. Social clubs are good in that they provide activities for groups with common interests.

At the risk of being thought naive, we believe that a coed can accomplish almost anything she really wants to. But first she has to see herself honestly, recognize her own limitations, and overcome them. Until she is willing to take the blame for her own shortcomings, she deserves nothing.

Take a good look at yourself. Are you adult, or do you usually shift blame to others? Are you hiding behind something?

Jackson Speaks Wednesday To Senior High PTA

Dr. Doyle D. Jackson spoke on Federal Aid for Public Schools Wednesday at a meeting of Senior High's PTA. He based his talk on the Thomas-Hill bill now pending in Congress, giving the pros and cons of the measure.

The Thomas-Hill bill is a proposal for federal aid designed to equalize education. It provides for a fund of $100,000,000 for equalizing educational opportunities among and within the states, and for an emergency fund of $200,000,000 to help pay teacher's salaries.

The funds are made available to states for aiding public, elementary and secondary schools from nursery schools through junior college.

Pre-Law IRC Club Elects Officers

Katy Lee Randle, sophomore from Lamesa, was elected president of the Pre-Law-IRC club last week at the second meeting of the year. Jackson Sisk will fill the office of vice-president and chairman of the program and docket committee.

Other officers elected were: Patsy Smith, secretary and treasurer; Tom Hodges, chief justice; and Bodesa Burkham, reporter.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 1 at 7:30 p. m. in room 302 of the Administration building. The meeting, which was originally scheduled Monday, Oct. 25, has been postponed due to the Artist course. A program will be arranged by Jackson Sisk.

Registration Is Begun For Speech Clinic At Tech

Registration for the speech clinic was begun last week and consultation hours are being scheduled. Registration is being handled in the speech office in the Administration building.

Speech clinic is held annually by the instructors in the speech department, as a free service for anyone with a speech difficulty. Tech students, townspeople, grade school children, or anyone who is in a position to avail himself of the clinic is invited to register. In the past the clinic has served a large number of people covering an area as far as 150 miles from Tech.

Miss Annah Jo Pendleton, head professor of speech, and Miss Helene Blattner, associate professor of speech will conduct the clinic from the middle of October until the first of May.

No Student Directories Printed For The Semester

"Due to the decreased enrollment and consequent drop in number of directories purchased, the regular student directory will not be printed this semester," Prof. Cecil Horne, head of the journalism department, announced.

The directories, heretofore, have financed themselves, but such a few were bought last spring that, at least for this semester, they will not be printed.

Former Techsians Return To Campus During Leave

Second Lt. J. C. Long, former junior textile engineering student at Tech, is visiting his parents, 2313 twenty-first street, on a few days leave. He received his wings Aug. 13 at Stockton field, Calif.

Miss Bernice Borgman was named co-sponsor, and Margaret Leonard was appointed vice president of the Home Economics club at a special council meeting this week.

Fern Brannen was elected as the club's AWS representative. Those named to the club council at a regular business meeting after the initiation service Tuesday night were: Avis Herring, senior representative; Betty Huckabee, junior representative; Jean Halbert, sophomore representative; Maxine Harp, freshman representative.

One hundred fifteen new members were initiated this semester.

Miriam Peckham Holds Commission

Lt. Miriam Peckham, former Tech student, now serving as a special officer in the WAC, has been transferred from Chicago to Ann Arbor, Michigan. Lt. Peckham visited on the campus last week.

Commissioned this summer, Lt. Peckham has been on duty as an inspection officer in men's barracks of Army specialized training program. Her duties in Ann Arbor, where the University of Michigan is located, will probably be similar. Other women graduates now in service are Elizabeth Fox, who is now with the signal corp in Washington D. C. and Evelyn who enlisted in the WAVES this summer.

Miss Cooper has recently been transferred to New Orleans from New York. She will engage in special recruiting duty there.

Theta Sigma Phi Holds Initiation For Pledges

Theta Sigma Phi pledges are Jane Gilmore, Betty Davis, Vera Culwell, Peggy Seale, Ellen Helm, and Mary Lynn Morris.
