

Join the Parade to EASTER Church Services

Easter Sunday Is One of the Holiest Days in All the Year. Let It Shed Its Blessings on You and Those You Love. Feel the Soul-Filling Satisfaction of the Full Beauty of the Occasion in the Church of Your Choice. This Page Has Been Reverently Planned to Guide You.

"The warm sun dances on the Church windows, making every little pane of stained glass a reflector of myriad rainbows. The music plays softly, inspiringly, and the choir's voices rise as one voice to sing out His glory. And even after the music has ceased, we can still hear its sweetness serving as a frame for the pictures drawn in words by the sermon-maker of the day. And though his thoughts be simple or delivered with oratorical emphasis... though his words be understandable to the smallest child or subtle in their meaning... he will carry forth the thoughts of Him who went before, teaching to all he loved, the means toward a good life. Come to Church, and enjoy the full satisfaction no other experience can give you.

The Church is the greatest social and civic factor in the community... your support will help!

ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE!

You have something for the church; the church has something for you!

THE GOVERNMENT SPENDS SOME MORE

There are two major viewpoints to be taken in considering President Roosevelt's outlined program for whipping the recession; they are the viewpoints of democrats and republicans, the first asserting that the undertaking would spur recovery, the second assailing it as undesirable pump priming.

The practical-minded person will have to determine that situation as a natural adjunct of the political system. The party in power always will have an advantage in money and patronage and other political plums.

The recovery program needs to be studied more carefully in the long range. In the present need of further governmental expenditures pressing enough to justify a continuation of this policy? At the depths of the depression, this need recoiled itself to the theory that such expenditures were necessary to meet an emergency.

In other words, is this nation going to have to call for governmental subsidies in the way of relief and work relief everytime the business barometers point downward? And if so, will there ever be a stopping place? And if there never is a stopping place, will even such a financial power as the U. S. government be strong enough to carry the continuously-growing burden?

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

(Miss Thompson's column is published as an informational and news feature. Her views are personal and are not to be construed as necessarily reflecting the editorial opinion of The Herald.—Editor's Note.)

TIME TO TAKE STOCK—II

If we look back over the last seven months, we observe the following: In the late summer it was evident that a definite recession of business had set in.

In the opinion of this column, that depression was precipitated by the government itself which, in apprehension of deflation, and a desire to check the boom which was starting, took such radical deflationary measures that it was stopped altogether.

The treasury began to contract spending in the spring of 1937; the federal reserve board raised the reserve requirements of the banks up to the limit of the law and sterilized about $1,500,000,000 of gold.

Since the beginning of the depression, which was apparent to anybody who could read business graphs back in October, the administration has adopted four attitudes toward it.

The first was that it did not exist. There was no depression. There was only a slight and normal recession of business, and we got optimism in stocking and other trivial reasons.

By the end of December it was clear that we were in a bad way. The administration then adopted its second attitude, which was a feverish search for scapegoats. The feudal economic lords, barons and royalists were to blame.

The third attitude was ambiguous. The administration returned to a period of denying that anything really serious was wrong, and to making it uncomfortable for business, while initiating overtures for peace, and we had a series of pliancies to Washington.

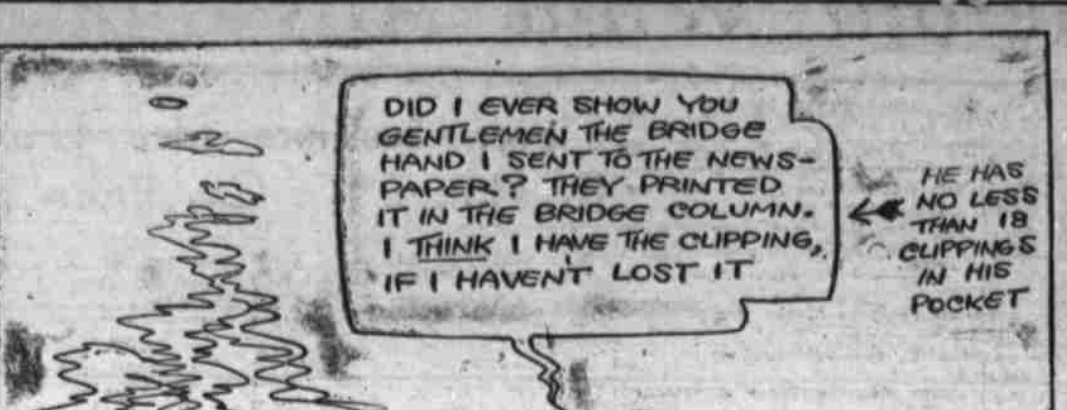

At the same time the administration's viewpoint was expressed in the press conference, which, with their confusing offhand statements, contributed greatly to the general uncertainty, while a barrage of administration measures, such as the wages and hours bill and the reorganization bill, introduced into the regular session of congress, which had convened early in January, further disconcerted business by making it wonder what it would have to confront in the immediate future.

Some things were done, meanwhile. The federal reserve board and the treasury reserved their deflationary policy which had actually started the depression, and congress, with obstructions rather than aid from the administration, modified the taxation policy.

But never, in this entire seven months, has there been a serious attempt in Washington to diagnose and deal with the fundamental illness of the economic organism.

And now the fourth attitude is clear. Still without giving evidence that it has made any accurate diagnosis, the administration is reverting to its 1933 program of spending.

Man About Manhattan

by GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — It was to be a night of bridge. For food, four men in shirt sleeves gathered about a table dealing and shuffling the little spotted cards.

And I went up to Charles' house, about 8:30. I wanted to see Dick Maney, who is a poet and a publicist, and I wanted to see Morton Downey, who is Irish and a singer.

Green was a tall, very lanky fellow and a good companion. And in a few minutes, since the other's hadn't come, we went back into the kitchen and got out the ice and mixed a few cold glasses of water, to ease our thirst.

As the ice water sank home and we began to feel like old friends, the door bell jangled, and in walked another lad neither of us had ever seen.

His name, I forgot to mention, was Bill Teller, and that's what he was, a teller at a downtown bank, and by the time Bill had refreshed himself at the hydrant somebody was clamoring at the door and it was our fourth at bridge.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

by ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Along with a jungle thriller called "Boo!oo" Clyde Elliott has brought back a professional biographe to Dorothy Lamour: In Singapore no movie star is more popular.

Throughout the Malayan peninsula it is Lamour, toujours Lamour. "The Jungle Princess" and other films with Malayan settings have helped. Part of the fun is to pick the technical errors in Hollywood's Malayan speech.

But before they get to the tiger, and afterwards, the yarn makes use of wild buffaloes, a 20-foot python, wild elephants and assorted undomesticated fauna.

One of Collin's little scenes had him lassoing a baby buffalo while swimming in a stream with a herd of them, babies and grown-ups.

She stepped to the golding's side, touched his shining arched neck as though she feared it would wash beneath her fingers.

She buried her face in the sorrel's flowing mane and let the tears that she had been fighting since her wedding day have their way.

She raised her head and flashed him an April smile. "It was just seeing Kingpin—and I didn't get any sleep last night. Gary, if you know how I've longed for the feel of a good horse under me!"

Judith wiped away the last tear. "I haven't cried for ages."

There was also a bit of a skirmish with a wild bull elephant, and a flood to put the recent Southern California deluge to shame, and then there was the heat, equatorial, humid and best described by Tapley: "Just sweat, sweat, sweat!"

So if "Boo!oo" doesn't strike you as realistic, rest assured just the same: not a foot of it was shot in Hollywood.

The leading lady is a Javanese actress named Suratna Asmara. In the picture also are 41 relatives of Suratna, whose family loyalty is all that stood between her and a Hollywood career.

LOS ANGELES, April 15 (AP)—Sheriff's deputies rescued an elderly man from a mob of enraged neighbors early today and then alighted under the wheel. "Which is your plot, Judy?"

Without sudden hatred Gary decided, with his usual impulsiveness, that it was no place for Judith Goodloe. It was a sacrifice that she was here in a free camp, a foster-wife—a nobody's wife!

John Moreno, who had sought his daughter for hours, finally discovered the scene of the slaying only 100 yards from his house. Jenny, her head bloodstained, was lying face downward in tall grass.

She was last seen about noon when she went out to play with children in the neighborhood.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

Chapter 25 THE OLD FASCINATION Same Gary, same greeting. He might have left her only yesterday. It might have been that day in the garden. His arms around her filled her with that same joyous expectancy, the same hushed breathlessness.

He did not know what halted his kiss. This was little Judy Goodloe, whom he had known all his life. It was a stranger too. A thin girl with overbright eyes, and a faded old rag of a dress—a lover's Judith than he remembered.

While he searched for the subtle change and its cause, Judith looked up at him and he caught that elusive quality that Raphael and Murillo loved to paint. The latent Madonna had come alive.

It was true. Never before had her presence given Gary such pure ecstasy as this moment gave him. As you glad to see me, Judy? I thought to see him! She thought of all the sleepless nights; of all the days, when just the touch of this man's hands, just the sound of his voice would have turned hell into heaven.

She stepped to the golding's side, touched his shining arched neck as though she feared it would wash beneath her fingers.

She buried her face in the sorrel's flowing mane and let the tears that she had been fighting since her wedding day have their way.

She raised her head and flashed him an April smile. "It was just seeing Kingpin—and I didn't get any sleep last night. Gary, if you know how I've longed for the feel of a good horse under me!"

Abif o' Thinkin' PHONEY

Practical philosophy is cluttered with phoney axioms. One of these so-called axioms is that "Practice makes perfect."

Suppose Mary Jane, learning to play the piano, uses faulty fingering. She could practice her faulty fingering until the crack of doom without ever becoming a good pianist. It is just as easy to practice something wrongly as rightly—easier, many times.

We don't accept old so-called axioms without question, just because they are old. Some, of course, are self-proving, but in this business we are more interested in modern merchandising than in ancient formulas.

The group accompanied her to the bus station and were joined there by the Rev. and Mrs. Anall Lynn and Beulah Griffith in wishing her a pleasant trip.

Clever Seashore Idea Employed By Hostess To Gay Bridge Affair

The term jingoism, denoting aggressive military policy, was originally applied to a group of British politicians who in 1877-78 wanted the government to take sides in the Russo-Turkish war. The chorus of a popular song of that time included the words, "We don't want to fight, but by jingo, if we do we've got the ships, etc." Deaths from automobile accidents in 130 major cities of the United States during the first 10 weeks of this year showed a 21 per cent decrease compared with the corresponding period of 1937. Refreshments of sea food were served to Mrs. E. E. Fabrenkamp, Mrs. Thomas J. Coffee, Mrs. M. K. House, Mrs. Ben LePevre, Mrs. Preston R. Sanders, Mrs. P. W. Malone, Mrs. William T. Tate, Mrs. V. AN EXPERIENCE WITH A SNAKE

MIAMI, Fla., April 15 (AP)—Things are pretty quiet on the beat patrolled by Officer Herbert Neal. Nothing of interest had occurred there in months, he said.

But yesterday Officer Neal turned in a report.

"While patrolling my beat early today," he wrote, "I was attacked and bitten by a snake. The reptile was killed and I reported to University hospital. Physicians reported the bite was superficial and the snake non-poisonous."

All's quiet again on Patrolman Neal's beat.

Swing-time, waltz-time, "grab your partners and around we go"—it all comes in one big program in the KBST "Barn Dance" beginning at 9 o'clock tonight and continuing until well after midnight in the Settles hotel ballroom.

Tonight marks the second regular Friday night presentation of the KBST "Barn Dance" at the Settles, the first having been staged last Friday. Oldtime and modern dances are mingled along with other features to give variety to the program.

As was the case last week, tables again will be available to visitors. Food and drinks will be available, adding a nightclub effect to the weekly KBST feature.

Thelma Willis, popular Big Spring singer, makes her regular weekly appearance before the KBST microphone tonight at 7:45 o'clock. Her programs consists of melodies, presented in her individual interpretative manner.

The story of the resurrection of Christ will be presented over KBST by the Rev. R. R. Cumble in his regular weekly discussion of the Sunday school lesson Saturday morning from 10:45 to 11:15.

Saturday morning will be the third review of the Sunday school lesson by the Rev. Cumble, this feature having been added to the station log April 2. His discussions are entirely non-denominational and are based on the International Sunday school lesson which is followed by many Protestant churches.

"Health Ship" Made By East Warders

The fifth year pupils of East Ward have just completed their building of a health-ship called "The Health Ship and Her Friends." It is made of cardboard and is 27 inches long and 13 inches high. The eight friends of this ship, which are represented by banners, are: pure water, good food, fresh air, exercise, sunshine, bathing, sleep and good health. To complete this unit on health, each child has written a one and one-half page theme entitled "The Health Ship and Her Friends," and has drawn an original picture to represent the most outstanding phase of his or her theme.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Operetta To Be Staged April 21

West Ward Groups To Appear In Program At Auditorium

The fourth, fifth and sixth year groups of West Ward school are preparing an operetta to be presented Thursday night, April 21, in the city auditorium at 8 o'clock. The public is invited. The plot of the play is centered around a mother who lives in "The Old Shoe," a tenement in "Twilight Alley" which her large family. The children are quarrelsome because they have to work so hard to keep clean. Lily, a rich girl from on the hill, loses her way and wanders into the court where the sun rarely penetrates because of the smoke. She pities these "twilight dwellers" and invites them to her own lovely garden. The girls steal away while L's mother sleeps.

Life Of The Cowboy Studied By North Ward Group

The third year pupils of Miss Doris Castle in North Ward are very interested in cowboys. Upon entering the room, one may see an array of ten-gallon hats, boots, spurs, chaps, lariet ropes and even a saddle.

The children are studying the life of the cowboy, the customs and traditions connected with ranch life, and the story of meat. They are learning to sing cowboy ballads. To make the atmosphere even more complete, some of the boys are even wearing cowboy suits!

PLAY TO BE GIVEN AT MOORE FRIDAY

Pupils Present A Play In Their Own 'Little Theatre'

The first year at East Ward enjoyed the story of "The Prize Pig," and decided they would like to dramatize it in their "Little Theatre." Puppets were constructed to represent the characters of the story, and after rehearsing several times, the pupils thought it would be nice to invite the second grade for the performance of the story.

Accordingly, great care was taken in constructing and writing invitations for the play. Both grades enjoyed the play very much and, incidentally among other things, the first graders learned to express themselves in a better manner. All rehearsed the play and the best players were selected to play for the guests.

Pupils presenting the play were: Joyce Owens, Margie Ann Trullit, Charles Hall, Ogle Tyler, Dorris Jean Powell, Frances Wilson, Howard Cherry and Billie Rose.

Students At League Meet

Compete At Sweetwater For District Honors
