

Hostages Freed; Home By Holidays

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) —Bear hugs and happy tears marked a reunion of relatives and friends here Tuesday with four tired, bearded Americans newly freed after 10 days imprisonment as hostages of Communist-led tin miners.

"DADDY!" cried the two young daughters of Michael A. Kristula, 41, and leaped into his arms. His wife, Harriet, 39, said, "We are going home now and be a family and spend Christmas together."

Colombian-born Mariela Martin, 25, smiled and wept as her husband, Thomas M. Martin Jr., 27, hugged and kissed her.

DARK GLASSES hid the tears in the eyes of Sue Rifkin, 44, as she and her husband, Bernard Rifkin, 52, embraced.

Robert Fergerstrom, 26, the only bachelor in the group, said: "Boy, I'm going home and take a hot bath and shave."

President Johnson was reportedly sending a plane to Bolivia to return the group to the United States for Christmas.

Bolivia's chief U. N. delegate, Jaime Caballera Tamayo, said in New York Johnson had told him of this arrangement after speaking before the U. S. General Assembly.

THE FOUR were flown to La Paz from Oruro, an Andean plateau town 135 miles south of the capital.

It was there they had spent the night after being released with 15 other captives of miners in the Catavi-Siglo Veinte district under an agreement between President Victor Paz Estenssoro's government and his dissident vice president, Juan Lechin, boss of the Mine Workers Federation.

Kristula, a former Chicagoan, and Martin, from the Bronx, New York, are U. S. Information Agency officers. Rifkin, from Brooklyn, is a labor adviser for the U. S. Agency for International Development. Fergerstrom, from Honolulu, is a Peace Corps volunteer.

THEY WERE seized by the miners along with 13 Bolivians, a Dutchman and a German Dec. 6 in an effort to force the government to free two Communist union leaders—Federico Escobar and Irined Pimentel—jailed of charges of anarchy, murder and embezzlement.

It was a harrowing confinement.

Rifkin said the first night was the worst.

"They put guns in our backs and set off dynamite," he said. Fergerstrom agreed.

"THAT FIRST night was frightening as hell," he said.

Martin said the miners had tried all sorts of scare tactics in an effort to force them to ask for the release of Pimentel and Escobar, "but not one of us gave in."

Kristula commented: "I felt the embassy did everything possible, and we never questioned their efforts, nor did we ever doubt the support of President Johnson or the American people."

THE GOVERNMENT went part way to meet two demands of the miners. It pulled back troops massed on a standby basis near the miners' stronghold and, though maintaining the charges against Escobar and Pimentel, agreed to release them on bail pending trial.

Raiders Romp Over Sad Sooners, 95-66

By MIKE WALL
Treador Sports Writer

It was strictly Red Raider night in the Coliseum Tuesday as Coach Gene Gibson's revitalized quintet downed the highly-ranked Sooners from Oklahoma, 95-66.

The Oakies held the lead at the very beginning of the game when they jumped out to a 1-0 lead via the free-throw route. The lead changed hands five times in the next seven minutes, but then the Raiders lowered the boom.

THE RAIDERS swarmed over the backboards and held the run-and-shoot offense of Oklahoma to less than a 30 per cent average from the floor in the first half.

The Sooners' touted Farrell Johnson was held to a meager five points by the tough Big Red defense. Up until the Tech game, he had been averaging more than 20 points per game.

FOR TECH, THE big senior from Carlsbad, N.M., Tom Patty, was once again the high point man and was one of the reasons that the home club controlled the backboards. Patty garnered 21 points and was retired from the floor with more than five minutes left to go in the game.

In all the Raiders had four men in double figures. The sophomore flash from Odessa, Dub Malaise, hit seven field goals and two free throws, topping the highest scorer for the Sooners. James Gatewood, 6-5 forward, was high point man for the Oklahoma club, scoring 13 points.

NORMAN Reuther connected for 10 points for the Raiders, while Glen Hallum hit for 12. Bill Murren had eight for the winners; Russ Wilkinson, seven; Royce Wollard, six; Mike Farley, four; Sid Wall, two; and Mike Gooden, two.

Coming into the Texas game, the Sooners were averaging 92.3 per game, and they lost by some three points to the Longhorns.

In the freshman game, it was again Tech all the way, as Coach Charlie Lynch's charges whipped the South Plains Texans, 79-69. Bob Glover was high point man for the Picadors, gathering in 26 points even though fouling out with five minutes left in the game.

Cole, Hance Attend Student Conference

The economic development of the United States was the main topic of discussion at the annual Student Conference on National Affairs recently attended by two Tech students.

The pair, Kent Hance, Student Council representative, and James Cole, Student Council vice president, heard prominent leaders in the fields of economics and finance speak on various aspects of economics as practiced in the United States, and participated in roundtable sessions on the topics discussed with student representatives from all over the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Edward P. Nieland, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, spoke to the group on the proposed tax cut and its effect on big business.

THREE OBJECTIVES

Nieland said that he believed the tax cut would accomplish three main objectives. First it would put more private capital to work. Second, it would put a brake on inflation. Third, it would encourage private investment by allowing more earnings to be used for investment instead of for paying taxes.

Also heard by the group were Dr. C. Lowell Harris, professor of economics at Columbia University and former economic advisor to President Kennedy; Max Friedman, prominent economics writer; Philip S. Hughes, assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget; and Herbert J. Miller, executive director of the Tax Foundation.

The students then broke into roundtable groups to discuss several questions on economics.

TAX CUT

Among discussion questions were the effects of the proposed tax cut, the monetary and fiscal policies of the United States and their effects on the average citizen, the possible effects of a balanced budget on foreign aid and the effects of the European Common Market on United States employment.

Cole and Hance were selected to participate in the conference as a result of interviews with Dr. James Allen, dean of student life; Royal Furgeson, SC president and Dr. Sterling Fuller, government professor.

The conference was at Texas A&M University.

SC Stages Wreck To Encourage Safe Driving On Holidays

Techsians who saw the mock wreck in front of the Chemistry Bldg. Tuesday morning will probably be more careful on the highways this holiday season.

The wreck was staged by the Student Council.

Three Techsians were removed from two badly wrecked cars at 10:55 a.m. The students, Carolyn Buxton, Bill Worley and Ronnie Botkin were made up so that their faces seemed covered with blood.

Campus police arrived on the scene almost immediately to clear the way for the ambulances. Lubbock Ambulance Service and Rix Ambulance Service sped onto the campus with their sirens screaming, and the students were placed on stretchers.

Many observers looked stunned and solemn, some were crying, others knew the wreck was staged and were laughing.

Bill Honey, chairman of the Student Council traffic safety committee, said, "We hope this will shock some people into thinking about safe driving during the holidays."

Debate Called Improper, Untimely

Glenn Looney, president of Tech Young Republicans, called a challenge to debate from Mike Read, president of the Young Democrats, untimely and improper Tuesday.

"The Young Republicans have tried in every way possible to refrain from partisan politics during the 30-day moratorium of John F.

Kennedy. We believe that this period should be kept free of partisan political activity out of respect for the late president and to allow the new president an opportunity to formulate his policies and to orientate himself to his new position," Looney said.

"Under these circumstances, I believe that it was improper for the president of the Young Democrats to come to such a meeting and purposely introduce a very partisan subject. I think that the debate challenge which Mr. Read issued was both untimely and rude," said Looney.

IN ANSWER to Looney's charges, Read told newsmen Tuesday, "I am sorry that Mr. Looney appears to feel that conservatism is a partisan issue—it is not."

"I did not ask for the debate to take place in December," he continued, "because I felt that political activities should be postponed."

LOONEY SAID that the Young Republicans believe that a series of debates between the two organizations would be very beneficial and would allow the Tech student body an opportunity to learn the views of the two organizations.

THE BEARD FAD ON CAMPUS WILL END DEC. 26

Sweethearts and parents will be giving REMINGTON® LEKTRONIC II shavers for Christmas. Shaving will become easier, cleaner and more comfortable than having a beard.

Here's why:

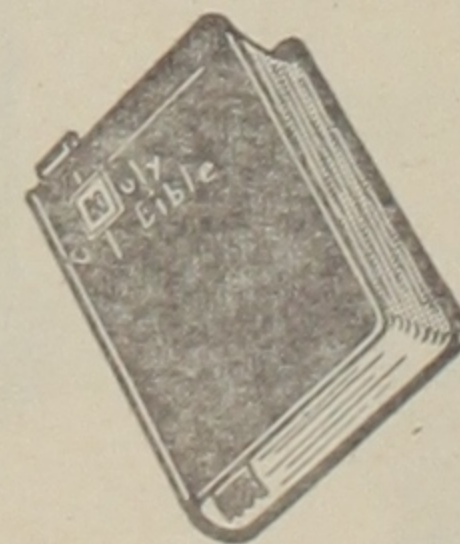

There's the cordless feature. Sealed-in, rechargeable energy cells let you shave without a plug. And what shaves they are! 348 cutting edges of high-carbon steel (sharper and tougher than stainless steel) whisk whiskers off. These edges are honed on an angle. So whiskers get sliced off instead of "ploughed up." 756 whisker-gathering slots in the big shaving head feed whiskers to the cutters faster. And on top of the shaving head: REMINGTON Roller Combs. Adjust to any skin or beard—protect skin; set up whiskers.

Forget to recharge? There's a cord. Plug it in and shave anywhere—so get a REMINGTON LEKTRONIC II for Christmas. After all, you wouldn't want to be the only non-conformist on campus who isn't clean shaven.

Death In Disguise

Traffic death comes wearing many disguises—one of which is the gaiety of the Christmas holiday season.

Thursday Tech students will hit the road for home as Christmas vacation begins. Let us hope each student reaches his destiny safely. The Grim Reaper need not snatch one of us if we'll drive carefully.

Tech's Traffic Safety Committee has tacked up posters, with sketches of death wearing a Santa Claus suit, around campus as a reminder for Techsians to take that extra safety precaution during the holidays.

Tuesday morning the Traffic Safety Committee staged a car accident, on the circle in front of the Chemistry Bldg., to show students how tragedy could strike.

Each of us needs to keep that wreck in mind as we drive home, lest the thought of a car accident becomes reality as it did for two Tech students who were critically injured near Waco during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Lubbock Jaycees also are taking a hand this week in reminding Tech students to drive safely during the holidays. Jaycees are distributing traffic safety brochures on campus.

One of the Jaycees' safety sheets reads in part: "This certificate entitles the bearer to a holiday free from automobile accidents and the tragedy of death, injury and economic loss—subject to the following conditions:

Don't be dying to have a Merry Christmas. Drive safely.

- That you obey all traffic laws.
- That you do not drink and drive.
- That you refrain from speeding or driving too fast for conditions regardless of posted speed limits.
- That you stay in your lane of traffic and make the proper signals when you have to change lanes.
- That you be wary at all intersections, with or without traffic controls.

- That you rest every 200 miles, or less if you become fatigued.
- That you have your car safety checked before starting a trip.
- That you follow no closer than one car length for each 10 mph of speed.
- That you refrain from passing on hills or curves, or from crossing the yellow centerlines.
- That you do not overload your car or obstruct the driver's view with passengers or baggage.
- That you drive defensively and give the right-of-way to anyone who wants it."

Texas Department of Public Safety has predicted 96 persons will die in Texas traffic accidents during the holidays. A Tech student need not be one of that number if he will drive cautiously. And while he has the wheel in his hands, he should observe the Christmas spirit of "good-will toward man"—including other drivers.

So behind the wheel be cautious and courteous. Then you'll stay alive.

But Once A Year...

Christmas is like a kindly mother. With a gentle touch it fills each heart with that certain calmness and thoughts of love that no other season of the year can bring.

The spirit of Christmas causes us to brush aside wrath, and turn our thoughts to doing good for our fellow man.

In keeping with the season THE DAILY TOREADOR wishes each of you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: TOM TATUM

Tom Tatum (M.B.A., 1962) joined the Telephone Company because he felt he would be given the opportunity to prove his abilities early in his career.

And how right he was!

Tom is a coordinator of private line service in Dallas, Texas. To insure that new service is delivered by the date given to customers, Tom must coordinate the activities of telephone people in many areas—sales, engineering, supply, equipment and installation.

As a member of A.T.&T.'s Long Lines Department, he is getting his basic knowledge in communications while developing managerial skills. Long Lines is responsible for long distance communications, and offers unlimited opportunities for men with Tom's initiative.

Tom Tatum, like many young men, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.
