West Texas Museum Has Bone To Pick

One of the most unusual court battles in the history of West Texas is expected to get under way on May 6 at Levelland, with Texas Tech attempting to secure title and possession of what appears to be the skeleton of a prehistoric mammoth, discovered April 15 in the Oklahoma Flats section of Hockley county by two farm hands.

D. C. Reed of Austin, owner of the farm on which the skeleton was discovered, has executed a documentary tender of the bones to Tech as a gift, but the discoverers and defendants in the case, Stanley and F. M. Palmer, allegeldly claim the skeleton by "right of discovery."

of discovery."

Tech officials, believing that Reed was the rightful owner under the sub-soil laws of Texas, filed suit Saturday afternoon for title and possession of the bones.
Judge Dan Blair of the 72nd judicial district has issud a restraining order enjoining the defendants from removing their find from the jurisdiction of the court.

from removing their find from the jurisdiction of the court.

Pending the court hearing on May 8, the bones are being kept in the Levelland court house under lock and key after removal from the Reed farm by W. Langston, college paleontologist, and a crew of students.

Great care has been taken to prevent damage to the skeleton during its removal. The bones were first coated with plaster of paris to prevent breaking and crumbling. They will require much more treatment before they can be assembled and placed in the West Texas Museum, providing the court, upon final hearing, finds for Tech in the title and possession suit. Tech paleontologists had as yet made no statement Wednesday concerning the exact classification of the skeleton, pending inspection of the tech and bones. They had reason to believe, however, that it might be th remains of a mammoth, a prehistoric elephant which sometimes reached a height of almost 14 feet and roamed over the earth at the same time as prehistoric man. Remains of mammoths have been found in the Pleistocene depsits, especially in Alaska and Siberia.

Letters To Lhe Editor

Dear Sirs:

During the last two years here at Tech, college Greek letter societies have been subjected to attacks condemning them as being undemocratic. In the case of some of these attacks one wonders as to the true social and economic beliefs of those who made them. In some instances they seem to have confused the rights which exist, or should exist in a democracy, with the theories of communism and fascism. The right to select one's friends and associations, is a right inherent in the American Constitution and which has existed ever since this nation was founded.

The right to form or join voluntrices.

has existed ever since this nation was founded.

The right to form or join voluntary associations is of primary value to democracy. Greek letter societies exist by virtue of that right. They have value in maintaining good scholastic standards on a campus, and in promoting proper conduct and acceptable campus citizenship. The paramount concern of Greek letter societies is friendship and members, and as a group of friends, to give loyal support to the purposes of these organizations. Groups of friends of fine standards always contribute to the total culture. Every member should forthrightly meet the issue when thoughtless individuals turn their attacks on Greek letter societies. It is important to know the good points of Greek letter societies and it is important to help people under-stand that the exercise of this right is necessary in order to pre-serve democracy.

serve democracy.

The real issue in any effort to abolish Greek letter societies — men's or women's—is whether college students shall enjoy the right to form voluntary groups. The right to form voluntary groups is the most vital right in a democracy. Any study of our Democracy shows that it lives by the exercise of such rights. If we look at any town, we see Masonic orders, Rotary, Kiwanis, clubs of all kinds, churches and a great variety of groups.

Before we go to college almost il of us belong to some kind of roup or groups. When we leave ollege we will be members of arious groups. It is inconceivable hat for the few years we are in ollege, we should be denied this ight which we had before we went o college and which we will exertise all of our years after college. It is a right that should flourish ise all of our years after college. It is a right that should flourish on a college campus. But let us remember that in order to enjoy his right we must first believe in he organizations or groups we oin. We cannot even be a member of a church unless we first accept he creed and purposes of a church. Unfortunately, the attacks made on Greek letter societies are not node on the basis of facts or horough knowledge of our total cociety, but one the lower level

How a city's voice was restored!

Early on December 14, 1946, flames gutted the Central Office at River Grove, Illinois. Telephone service for 10,000 families ceased to exist.

Even as the fire burned, restoration work was begun. Emergency telephone headquarters was set up. Mobile equipment arrived to handle calls of first importance.
