What It Means:

Prof's Speak On Election

By MARY ALICE NABORS
Staff Writer

Interviews with several members of Tech's faculty Wednesday indicated that many view the outcome of Tuesday's national election as a great loss for Barry Goldwater rather than an overwhelming victory for Lyndon Johnson.

Those interviewed believe that many voters cast their ballots against Goldwater instead of for Johnson. Voters were forced to choose between "the lesser of two evils."

Wesley Butler, assistant professor of government said, "The landslide for Johnson indicated the recognition of the American people that we are in the second half of the twentieth century. We are no longer a nation with an agrarian frontier but an industrial society."

Negro Voters

"The increase in the numbers of Negro voters is a result of the civil rights program. Eventually, even in the Southern states, the nation will reach a point when race will no longer be an issue."

"The reversal seen in the Vermont election points out the trend toward a two-party state in this traditional Republican area. This is a result of Catholic Canadians and New Yorkers favoring the Democrats who have moved into the state in recent years. (Vermont went Democratic for the first time since the Republican party was founded in 1859.)"

Struggle Seen

"A struggle for leadership will be seen within Republican ranks. Men to watch are George Romney, Michigan; William Scranton, Pennsylvania; Thomas Kuchel, California; and John Lindsey, New York."

"I believe Johnson will be conservative in the amount of money spent by the administration, but he will be liberal in the way it is spent," he concluded.

Dr. Winfred G. Steglich, head of sociology and anthropology department said, "The whole election was primarily a social thing. The vote in the South was purely a racist vote, reflecting the race revolution the country is going through. The tremendous vote against Goldwater reflects the anti-racist vote of other sections."

Key Issue

"Racism was the key issue in the Northeast and the South. This resulted in the big margins evident in the big-city states," he said.

Robert M. Lawrence, assistant professor of government said, "There are both assets and liabilities associated with the election outcome. Among the latter these stand out:

"First, this nation needs a strong two-party system which will furnish moderately liberal proposals to be balanced in the electorate's mind by moderately conservative programs. The destruction of the Republican Party is not in the national interest, and we all should help to get a moderately conservative GOP back in business — a kind of 'Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition' sort of arrangement for the 1964-68 period."

Talent, Money

"Second, there is gathered about Goldwater a considerable amount of talent and money. What will these people do now? Their action could be either an asset or a liability to this nation."

"Third, racism appears to have coined the day in five states of the South. This is regrettable, and we should show understanding and compassion for these states."

"Assets of the election outcome are as follows:

"The American people respect President Johnson but do not worship him. This was evident in the lukewarm support the President seemingly received from many voters. This is an asset and improvement in politics because it guards

3 Techsans Recognized For Action

Three Tech students will receive the Lubbock Citizens' Traffic Council Certificates of Commendation for the roles they played following an Oct. 17 accident in which a small girl was killed.

The certificates will be awarded at 2:20 p.m. today in the council chambers of City Hall to Clay C. Speer and Norman H. Cobb, both freshmen, and sophomore Barry P. McFarland, all of Amarillo.

Car Struck

On Oct. 17 at 4:30 p.m. near Frankfurt Ave. on West 4th St., the car of Air Force Lt. Arthur B. Ward was struck from behind and cartwheeled into a plowed field.

The lieutenant was accompanied by his small daughter, Leslie Ward, and his father, L. P. McElroy. The girl was fatally injured in the accident.

The three Tech students, who witnessed the wreck from a nearby golf course, immediately came to the aid of the injured. After seeing the child was dead, they covered the crushed body of the small girl and saved the father and grandfather from seeing the sight.

Apply Tourniquet

Two of the students then applied a tourniquet to Ward's arm. The third student climbed into the precariously balanced car and cut McElroy from his seat belt and removed him for first aid.

While waiting for the arrival of the ambulance and the police, the Tech students directed traffic, preventing another accident.

The students later accompanied the injured persons to the hospital in the ambulances. Police statements indicate the three men were of great assistance in determining the circumstances of the wreck.

Second Time

Bill Wright, president of the Citizens' Traffic Council, will present the three certificates. This is the second time the Certificate of Commendation has been awarded. Representatives from Tech and Reese AFB will also be present.

"Speer, McFarland and Cobb present a fine example of good citizenship to the people of their age," said Walter Lindsey, manager of the Citizen's Traffic Council.

-For '64 Homecoming-

Queen Finalists Selected; Eleven Compete For Title

Eleven Tech coeds out of a field of 24 candidates won spots on the final ballot for 1964 Homecoming Queen as a result of student voting Wednesday.

According to Nancy Shoemaker, Student Council secretary, 11 finalists were selected this year instead of the usual 10 because of a tie vote. Only 1,366 voted in the election.

The finalists, in alphabetical order, include Mary Behrends, Dim-

Other Winners

Others are Sheila Helbing, Richardson senior, Delta Delta Delta and Sneed Hall; Camella Moore, Midland junior, Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon; and Betty Newby, Borger senior, Carpenter Hall and Alpha Phi Omega.

Election Set

The field will be further narrowed Nov. 13 when students will go to the polls again to select the five coeds who will compose the Queen's Court.

The ultimate winner will be announced Nov. 20 in a night ceremony in the Science Quadrangle.

As yet, no one has been selected by the Homecoming Committee to crown this year's queen. Last year, Frank Blair, a television news commentator for the National Broadcasting Company, presented the crown.

Two years ago, then vice president Lyndon Johnson was on campus for the ceremonies.

Deadline Extended For 'Beauty' Contest

Nominations for Tech's Most Handsome Man, to be selected Nov. 14, and skit competition entries will be accepted until noon Friday when final selections will be made.

Extension of the Tuesday deadline is due largely to the difficulties reported by some organizations in securing pictures of the nominees, Carolene English, Theta Sigma Phi president, said.

Twelve Tech men already will compete for the title of Most Handsome, to be decided at Club Scarlet, Theta Sigma Phi's annual mock nightclub.

All Entries

Photo Required

Nominees are required to have a 2.0 overall grade average, unless a first semester freshman, and be enrolled for 12 hours during the present semester. A 5x7 black and white glossy photo of the candidate must be submitted with the entry. Miss English said.

Organizations needing help to get pictures of the candidates may call Ext. 4252 between 1-5 p.m. today.

TEMPESTUOUS CHARACTER — Two hours of make up transformed Perry Langenstein into the character of Ariel for the drama department's presentation of Shakespeare's "The Tempest." Tickets go on sale today for the play which opens Nov. 12.

Tickets On Sale For 'Tempest'

Tickets for the Tech Speech Dept.'s production "The Tempest" go on sale at 9 a.m. today in the University Theater box office.

Faculty and general admission tickets are $1.50, and student tickets are 50 cents with ID's.

The play's first performance will be Nov. 12.

—President Re-Elected—

LBJ Summons All Americans; Calls For National Unification

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson summoned all Americans—Democrats and Republicans, too—to “stand united before all the world” Wednesday in the aftermath of his towering, 15-million-vote presidential election triumph. From Barry Goldwater, whose hopes for the White House he blasted in a record-shattering victory march, Johnson received congratulations and an offer of help with tasks and problems ahead.

Goldwater pointedly let it be known to newsmen that: “Being unemployed after Jan. 3, I will have a lot of time to devote to the leadership of this Republican party and to strengthening this party.”

Lopsided Defeat

Johnson battered him down to defeat in one of the most lopsided elections in history.

The Arizona senator held off a concession until about noon, Eastern time, when he read his congratulatory telegram to Johnson.

At that point, the scoreboard on Tuesday's balloting showed more than 65 million votes had been counted — 40,566,812 for Johnson, 25,603,480 for Goldwater, a spread of 14,963,332.

Johnson had nailed down 44 states and the District of Columbia, Goldwater had won five Southern states and his home state of Arizona.

Electoral Votes

In electoral votes, Johnson had clinched 486 to 52 for Goldwater, with 270 required to win the election.

This was the nearest thing yet to the vast victory Johnson's political idol and mentor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, racked up in 1936. FDR carried all the states but Maine and Vermont and piled up a popular margin of 11 million votes at a time when there were far fewer voters.

Furthermore, Democrats upped their holdings in the House to the biggest total since Roosevelt helped them set the record of 333 in 1936.

In the Senate the Democrats held onto their comfortable margin of nearly 2 to 1.

Only in races for governor could the Republicans claim an advance—a net gain of one.

With 98 per cent of the presidential votes in Wednesday, Johnson had 41,513,737 to Goldwater's 26,162,920. Johnson's margin was 15,350,817 votes or a percentage of 61.3.

Electoral votes gave Johnson 486 from 44 states and the District of Columbia, and Goldwater 52 from six states. 270 are needed to elect.

In the Senate, Democrats have won 26 of 35 races, with 40 holdovers. Democrats were certain of 66 seats in the next Senate—the same as they have now.

SOVIETS CALL MEET

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union called Wednesday for a new nine-nation conference to guarantee the neutrality of Cambodia, and Britain's new Labor government promised to consider the Soviet proposal.

Profs Speak...

“America may now adopt ingenious and inventive methods to compete with the Communists without fear of being labeled ‘traitor’ or ‘soft on Communism,’” he said.

Dr. Metin Tamkoc, visiting associate professor of government from Turkey, said, “I am happy with the election results, for Johnson is a great leader who will push the country toward prosperity. Most of the foreign nations were pessimistic about Goldwater's election because of his views on international affairs. Goldwater's election might mean the return to isolationism.

“The landslide for Johnson gives me courage that the American people still have common sense in electing their president.

“Southern states that voted for Goldwater indicated that they were more interested in domestic problems than world affairs,” he said.

'Idea' Club Discusses Many Ideas

“We talk about everything from neo-orthodoxy to musical comedy to literature to computers.”

George Griffin, president of the Channing Club, was discussing Tech's informal discussion group that meets every Sunday evening in the Tech Union.

“We're interested in people who have ideas.” He hesitated a moment and then added, “and who can support them.”

Entering Seventh Year

Now entering its seventh year, the Channing Club was born in 1957 when Bobby Brown, 1960 Tech graduate, decided that there was a need for an organization in which people could discuss their ideas.

Brown and several friends began to meet in the Union on Sundays, and membership grew until it totalled nearly 80. The group took the name Channing from William E. Channing, a Unitarian minister.

The club's horizons grew along with its membership. The program has expanded from the original discussions over coffee to include speakers, and this year, topics will range from social science to fine arts and pure science.

Individual Ideas

“We try to help each individual form his own ideas,” Griffin continued. “In most instances, everything worth discussing is controversial, and we encourage controversial discussions.

“As a matter of fact, next semester we're going to have a forum-type discussion on the pros and cons of population control.

“And soon, Dr. Mitchell Smith, Tech's authority on African history, is going to speak.

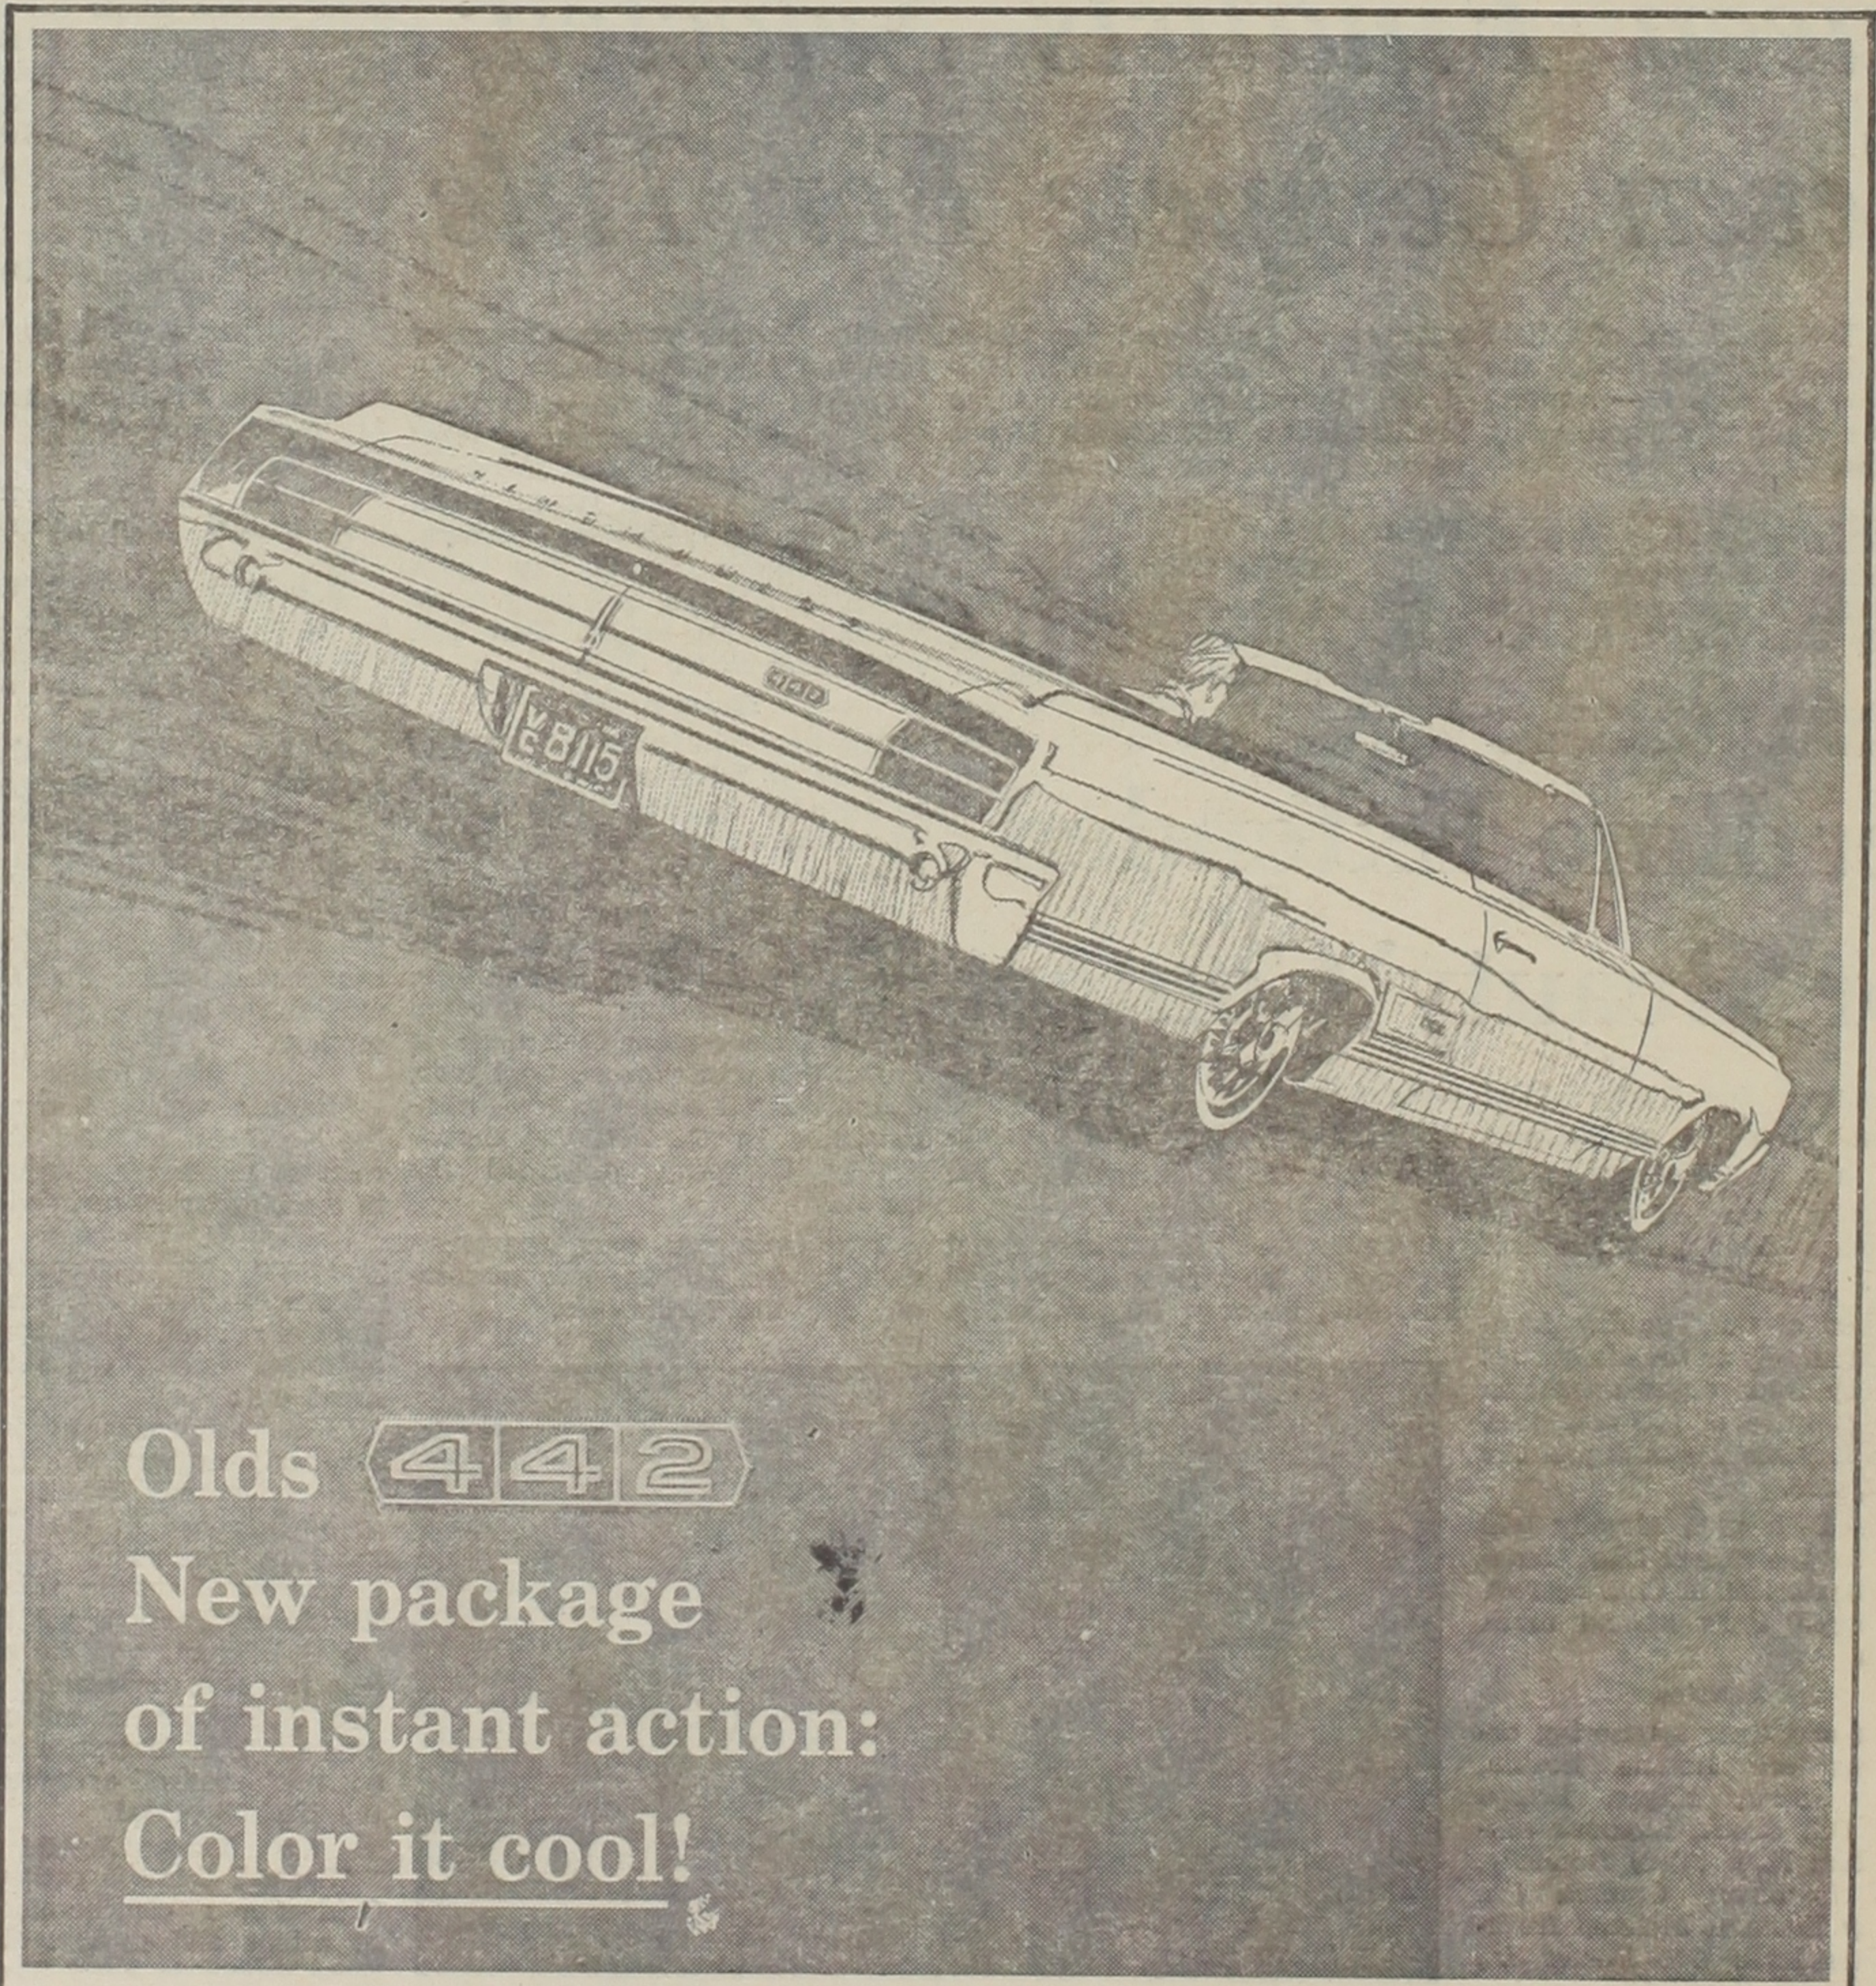

“The only prerequisite for membership in the Channing Club is attendance, and even that fluctuates according to the program to be presented,” Griffin said.

ACTORS IN MAKE UP PROCESS — Actors for "The Tempest" begin the two-hour-long process of applying make up. Perry Langenstein, Lubbock junior, left, prepares for his part as Ariel and David Keys,

'The Tempest' Prepares For Opening

By MARGARET EASTMAN
Assistant Fine Arts Editor
Students will witness magic when Tech's production of "The Tempest" opens Nov. 12.

Dr. Clifford Ashby, setting director, supervises several magical feats. A banquet disappears. Glittering costumes appear. Prospero's robe vanishes. Furthermore, there is a sea storm on stage.

Special effects are only a part of the responsibilities that confront those working in "The Tempest." Dr. Ashby also had to build a set durable enough to support actors. He did this by rebuilding the set used in last spring's production of "Romeo and Juliet." Mosher Steel made structural steel for the sets and loaned it to Tech.

Enlarge Props

The spaciousness of the University Theater's stage makes it necessary to enlarge props used in the production. For instance, apples are the size of grapefruits.

Make up and costumes for the play present unusual problems. The make up for Perry Langenstein, who plays Ariel, and David Keys, who plays Caliban, takes two hours to apply.

Caliban is a deformed slave. To create this effect, Keys' hair will be tinted blue, green, silver, purple and yellow, and his make up follows the same scheme. He will wear black tights and turtle neck sweater, which will be painted to follow the color scheme while he's wearing them.

White Costume

Ariel is a spirit. Langenstein's make up is similar to Keys', but his costume will be white with a painted design to match the make up.

Mr. Ronald Schultz, director of the play, said, "We have tried to bring out those values in the play which are particularly meaningful to modern audiences. The main problem we have had is to emphasize the contemporary meaning without distorting the play."

He said, "The enchanted island setting, with its magic and supernatural elements, offer opportunity for spectacle. We are trying to avoid the pitfall of losing the meaning of the play in the spectacular elements of production."

'Anniversary Waltz' Premieres At Centre

The long-run New York hit, "Anniversary Waltz," will open at 8:15 p.m. today at the Lubbock Theatre Centre, 2508 Ave. P.

The leading roles are played by Walter Windsor and Dorris Jeanne Smith. Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields, authors of several successful comedies, are the playwrights.

The play deals with a happily-married couple's anniversary party and the events resulting from the husband's indiscretion in telling sentimental secrets.

Comedy Sparked

The situation comedy is further sparked when the wife's parents become involved and consequently shocked. The revelation also effects the couple's children, two excitable and precocious teenagers. The children are apparently dedicated Freudians and are familiar with other literature advanced for their age.

The uninhibited daughter further complicates her parents' dilemma by appearing on a national television network and telling the world of her difficulties with her problem parents.

"Anniversary Waltz," which ran 17 months in New York City, has also had long runs in other cities. The show broke all previous San Francisco records and ran longer than such hits as "Life With Father" and "Oklahoma."

The supporting roles are filled by Debbie Madden and David Little, as the irrepressible children.

The play will also be presented at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Reservations may be made by calling SH4-3681 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Tickets are $2.25 for adults and $1.15 for Tech students.

GOP To Face Changes

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY nearly became extinct according to the results of the election.

Democrats received the largest margin of victory since the 1936 landslide of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Johnson carried 44 states and the District of Columbia with 486 electoral votes. Goldwater carried five states with 47 electoral votes.

One state was still uncertain Wednesday. In order to win, Johnson needed only 270 electoral votes.

In Congress the biggest gains for the Democrats were in the House, where Republicans were toppled in nearly half the states. Democrats increased their present total of 257 to 289, and they were leading Wednesday in six of the remaining eight.

Republican strength slipped from 178 to 138. In order to have a majority, 218 seats are needed.

In the Senate, the Democrats matched their present total of 66 seats and led in the two contests still undecided. They have 15 more than the 51 needed for a Senate majority.

Throughout the country, Johnson was accredited with bolstering the Democrat strength in state governments. Only in the deep South did Democrat strength wane. However, in the "deep North" the Democrats scored victories.

Although it was a Democrat landslide, the Republicans picked up the key Senate positions in California and Ohio and retained the governorship of Michigan.

The Republican defeat leaves the party in shambles without leadership and an ununified national organization.

What happens now is anybody's guess. It will take several years to rebuild the party. This will mean a number of changes in leadership and platform positions if the GOP is to offer a challenge to the Democrats.

For those of us who believe in a two party system, we can only wish the Republicans the best of luck.

A New Student Paper

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of changes in The Daily Toreador yesterday initiates a bold new experiment that will effect the future of the paper.

The staff members are busy making plans for next week when the paper will come to students, faculty, administrators and others in a new form.

Instead of a tabloid paper, it will change to eight columns full format size. In order to produce a paper as different as possible, even the name will change. Instead of being The Daily Toreador, we will call it "The University Daily."

The purpose of this week-long experiment is to determine if we have reached the point in the growth of this university when the student newspaper can offer a better service to its readers.

There are certain advantages to a large-size paper and certain immediate disadvantages that we will discuss in the days to come.

The new name is also an experiment. It reflects a new image and may be a harbinger of the newspaper's future.

Staff editors will study the many technical problems involved in this experiment next week; and then, based on the data, they will make recommendations to the Student Publications Committee.

One part of the study will determine student, faculty and administration reaction. In this regard, we invite your comments on the changes. Do you like the new paper, "The University Daily?"

Tech Union--By George

By STEVE GEORGE
Tech Union President

In a small prosperous market town about a hundred miles northwest of London, there once lived a young businessman who had built a prosperous career for himself, his wife and six children.

The eldest child of his successful and locally prominent family was destined to become the most universal and highly regarded playwright in history.

Stratford was the small market town, 1564 the year and William Shakespeare was the name of the playwright.

This high concentration on Shakespeare Shakespeare's birthdate—an occasion that the Tech Union, Music Dept., Speech Dept. and Allied Arts Dept. are not going to let slip by unnoticed.

No birthday cake with 400 candles will mark this celebration. Hopefully, the event will be celebrated with a much more fitting tribute to this master of English literature and drama.

For the two-week period, Friday through Nov. 20, there will be an almost continuous array of activities highlighting the life, times and works of Shakespeare.

This high concentration on Shakespeare in the Union's annual Fine Arts Festival promises to make the festival bigger and more complete than ever before. Such featured performers as Basil Rathbone and Richard Dyer-Bennet will highlight the great list of this festival.

To start things rolling on a musical note, the Texas Tech Choir, Tech Singers and Symphony Orchestra combine to present a festival concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Union Ballroom.

Selections will be presented from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" and Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" as well as other verses from the wide range of Shakespeare's plays and sonnets.

Also on Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Coronado Room, "The Ballet of Romeo and Juliet" movie produced by the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow will be presented.

Dr. Robert Loper, executive head of the speech and drama department of Stanford University, will present two programs Monday.

First will be a coffee hour at 10 a.m. in the Mesa Room and later a lecture entitled "Twelfth Night: That Way Madness Lies" at 7 p.m. in the Coronado Room. Another movie, Henry V, will be shown at 4 p.m. and again Tuesday at the same hour.

Those of you who enjoy folk singing can hear a rather sophisticated version of the more popular folk style by coming to the Ballroom at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to hear Richard Dyer-Bennet, one of the last singing minstrels.

Hailed as a twentieth century troubadour and not a folk singer, Dyer-Bennet has a remarkably clear and beautiful voice. He will sing songs that were popular during the sixteenth century.

Also at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Dr. Louise Brewer will talk on the sonnets of Shakespeare at an informal coffee hour. Another coffee hour at the same time Wednesday will feature Dr. Charles Laurie speaking on "Dramatic Music."

Many movies will be shown all through the two-week period. Most are rather famous Hollywood productions: "Romeo and Juliet," "Richard III," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Hamlet" and "Julius Caesar."

Lawrence Olivier, Cedric Hardwicke, Lawrence Harvey and Olivia de Havilland are some of the well-known actors and actresses who conspire to bring Shakespeare's immortal characters to life on the screen.

Basil Rathbone, the world-famous Shakespearean actor, will appear in the Municipal Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 17 to read various selections from Shakespeare's plays and sonnets.

Mr. Rathbone was here three years ago and those of us who were here at that time, and were fortunate enough to hear him, can state unreservedly that he puts on "quite a show."

In conclusion then, these two weeks will be "loaded" with Shakespeare. There are many events with enough variety to suit nearly every taste. But in the final analysis, only you can take advantage of them—no one can do it for you.

In conjunction with the Fine Arts Festival, Sigma Tau Delta and the Student Union will sponsor an essay contest for students wishing to write on any of the arts prominent during Shakespeare's era.

Members of the English Dept. faculty will judge the papers, and cash awards will be presented to the first, second and third place winners by Basil Rathbone.

Other activities coming up in the Union but not connected with the Fine Arts Festival are the annual Dinner Dance featuring the "Continental" at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Coronado Room, and a discussion by Ted Jolly, a Lubbock juvenile officer, on "Juvenile Delinquency—Why?" at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Mesa Room.

Thanks Extended By BSU Director

Dear Editor:

Permit me to express the appreciation of all of us connected with the Baptist Student Union for the splendid coverage that you gave our series of programs during our political emphasis week.

The coverage was fair and accurate, and all of the stories were well written. The placing of the articles on the front page is also greatly appreciated.

We are also grateful for the editorial that you wrote concerning the programs. We constantly strive to make our faith relevant to the world in which we live and to the campus of Texas Tech in particular. It is gratifying to receive encouragement in these efforts from campus leaders such as you.

Thank you again for your kindness and best wishes for the remainder of the school year.

Sincerely,

Reader Reports 'Tragic' Story

Dear Editor:

I institute this as both a public warning and a confession of guilt. We, of the off-campus world, who have been bounced even further off-campus due to an over accumulation of traffic tickets, we of this nebulous, fringe-like world must seek a new home for our respective cars.

Some of us seek refuge in the swamp of 19th Street, or a nice breezy hike from the Furr's Cafeteria lot, or else we brave the long clutch of the law by parking in various hiding places on campus.

As for myself, I have taken my problem to the church, St. John's Methodist to be exact. I confess I was not exactly welcomed by the warm signs that read, "No Parking Allowed—All Unauthorized Vehicles Will Be Towed Away At Owner's Expense."

But my innate belief in the goodness and charity of my fellowman overcame my first feelings of misgivings and I parked in that vast empty lot.

My friends, it is vast and empty for a good reason. My child-like faith and budget were dashed to the ground to the tune of $5.50 (including taxi fare to the wrecking yard where they had towed my car.)

Again, I wish to emphasize that I was in the wrong in believing that I could flaunt the uppermost authority and park within three miles of the class I must attend, so please heed warnings and believe them.

Remember, "them youngsters don't know what it's like to walk three-fourth miles to school," count your "blessings."

Sincerely,
 J. P. BUSSEY

In Major Problems

Counseling Aids Students

By JACQUE GILL

Curtis Clark was in trouble. He was failing. For some reason he just couldn't make his grades.

He studied a lot—or tried to. But he found it hard to concentrate and his mind wandered. His major, electrical engineering, required a lot of reading and studying and he couldn't force himself to do it.

Finally in desperation he decided to seek help; he went to his major adviser. His adviser suggested he try Tech's Testing and Counseling Center. He did.

At the center he was given a background survey sheet to fill out—a questionnaire about high school grades, hobbies, family, etc. This survey helped his counselor decide what tests to give him.

Tests Began

Then his tests began. Over a period of two weeks he completed seven tests, including aptitude, achievement, ability, study and reading tests and interest and personality inventories.

After the test results were compiled, Curtis discussed them with his counselor.

He was surprised to find the tests indicated he was not cut out to be an electrical engineer. He was further surprised to learn the tests indicated he had a great deal of aptitude in a field he had never considered before—journalism.

After studying and reading about the field, observing journalists at work and talking with journalism instructors, he switched his major to journalism.

Degree In Journalism

He graduated with a degree in journalism and now has a good job on a large daily newspaper.

Curtis was one of many Tech students who have been aided by the Testing and Counseling Center. The Center is maintained by the college to aid students in selection of careers, planning course programs and solving personal problems.

However, the percentage of Tech students who use the counseling service is small, according to Mrs. Marjorie Kuntz of the Center.

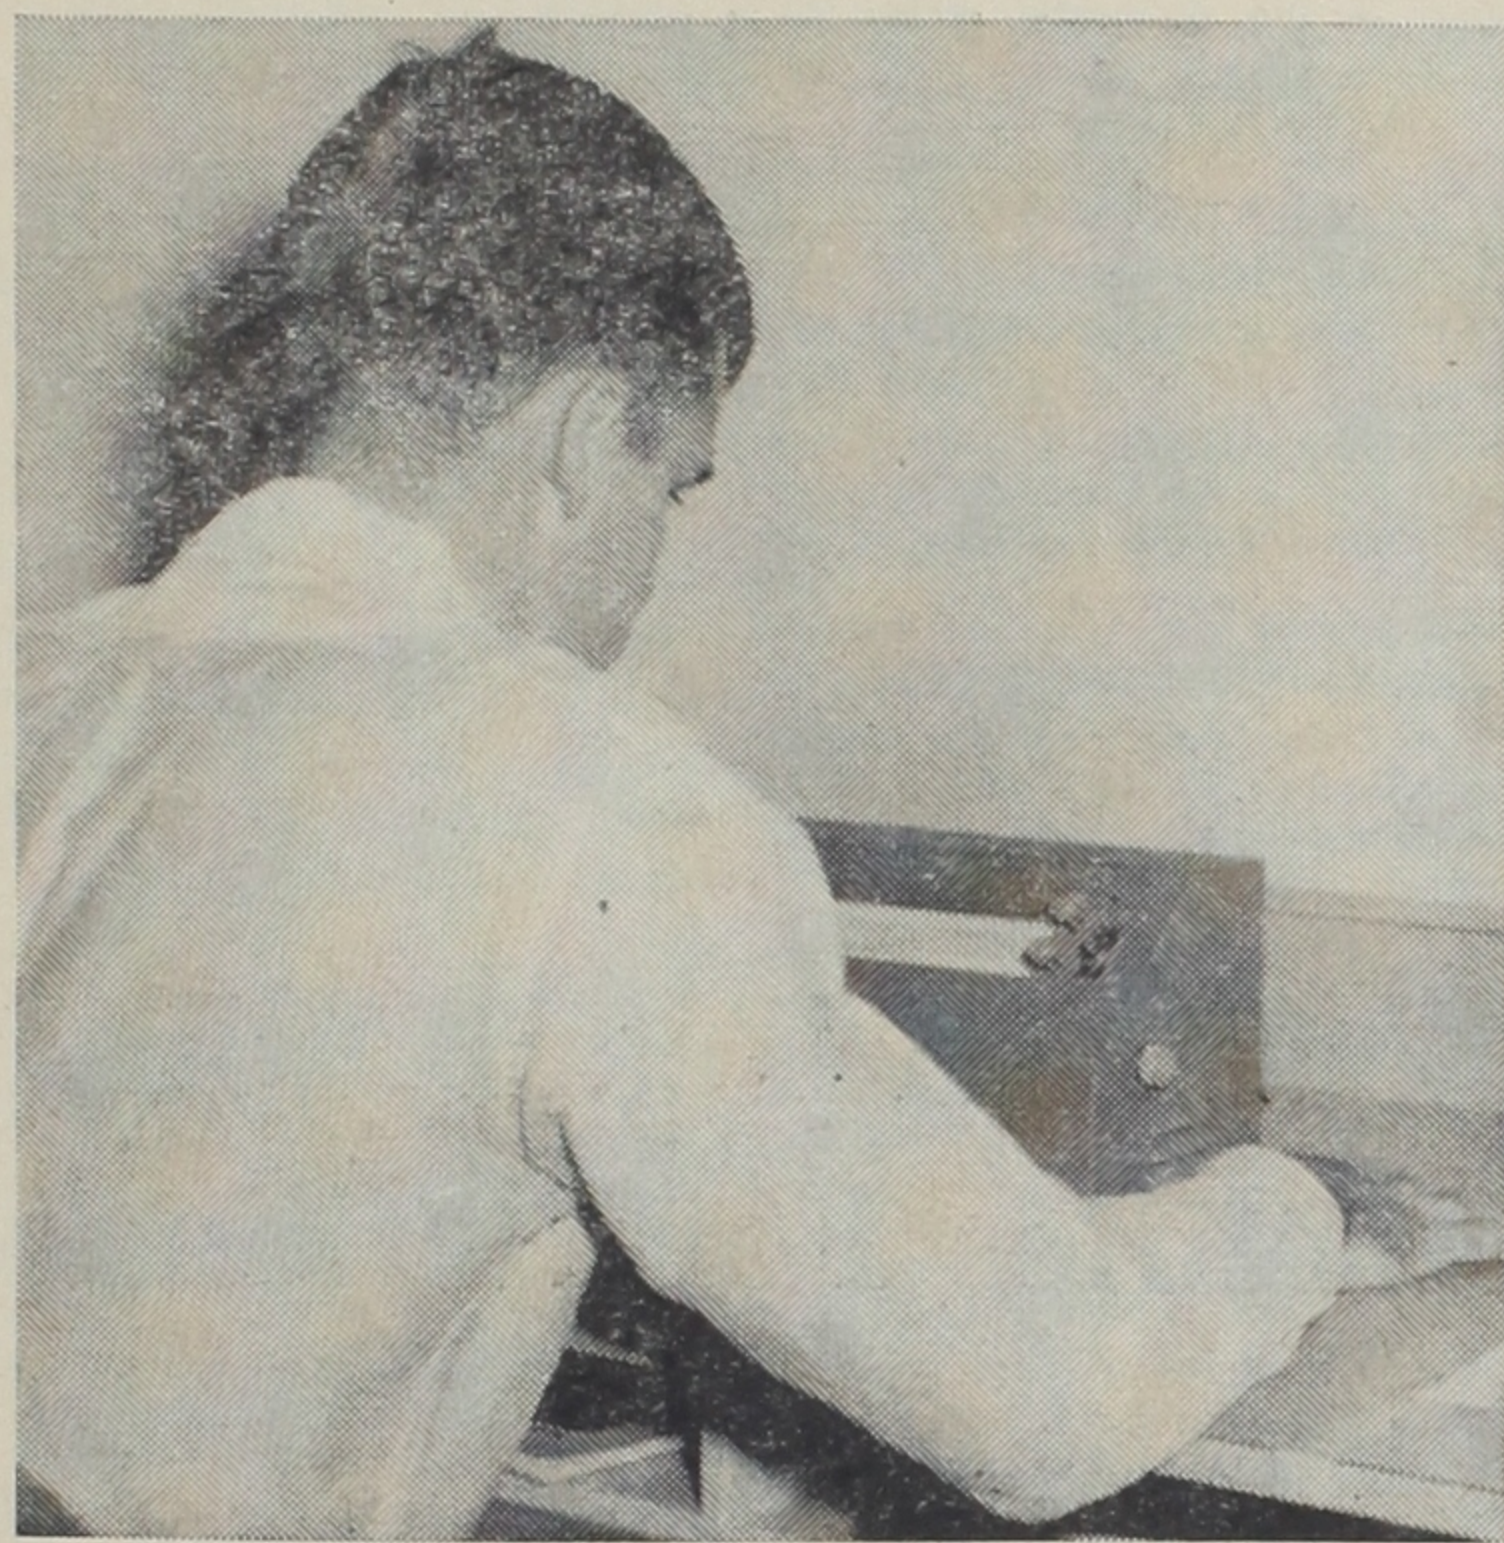

Only about 300-350 students per year use the Center," said Mrs. Kuntz. She said probably the reason more students didn't use the counseling facilities was lack of time and the $10 fee. She said the fee didn't actually cover much of the expense of the counseling but was intended to draw only the students who were sincere in wanting and needing help.

Worried About Grades

Mrs. Kuntz said most students who used the counseling service were worried about grades and not being in the right field.

After counseling some decide to change vocational studies while others decide to stay in the same field.

"We are quite frank with the student," Mrs. Kuntz said. If he is not college material we tell him so, but try to indicate other places of training — such as vocational schools.

SPEED READER — Rudy Baumgardner, Plainview junior, tries increasing his reading speed with a machine provided by the Testing and Counseling Center in its reading improvement course. The machine is used in the center.

Almost all students who take the tests rate low on study habits, said Mrs. Kuntz. "We try to point their study problems and help them improve their study habits."

The Center does handle some personality problems, but only on a short term basis. "We don't have the time or counselors for long term treatment but we do refer students to psychologists or psychiatrists."

Mrs. Kuntz said the Center usually gets most of its business prior to finals — when students are worried about low grades.

"It would be helpful to us and to the student if they came at an earlier time in the semester."

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Course Improves Students' Reading

The Guidance and Counseling Center offers a seven-week reading improvement course to help students double their rate of reading and comprehension.

Dr. David Clark, program supervisor, said participants can "learn twice as much in half the time" after taking the course.

Registration for the course, which begins Nov. 9, is in the main office of the center. Fee for the course is $25.

Another service offered by the center is personal counseling. Dr. Clark says through this counseling many students with personal problems learn to better understand themselves and the nature of their problems.

Students wanting guidance or assistance in any of the areas can come to the Counseling Center office, make an appointment with Dr. James Kuntz or Dr. Clark, and pay a fee of $10.

Dinner Canceled For Union Dance

A dance featuring the Continentals will be 8-11:30 p.m. Friday in the Tech Union Coronado Room.

The dance will not be a dinner dance as originally announced. There will be no charge, and the Dance Committee invites everyone to attend.

MUN Applications Needed By Union

Applications for delegations to Tech's Model United Nations are now due in the program office of Tech Union.

Forms and the accompanying $10 registration fee are to be turned in no later than Nov. 11 by campus organizations, resident halls, and independent groups who plan to enter a delegation. The registration fee will admit the four members of each delegation to the UN banquet.

Guest speaker for the program will be the American Broadcasting Company's UN correspondent John McVane.

Zafer Cetinkaya, MUN Secretary-General, emphasized that applications should be turned in as soon as possible so that the steering committee can make country assignments to each of the delegations.

WT Eyeing Upset Of Raiders On Saturday

West Texas State and Texas Tech, two teams that have pulled a surprise or two this season, meet for the 27th time in Jones Stadium Saturday night.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. The Buffaloes, who upset San Jose last week, 18-7, are suddenly being taken a bit more seriously than they were after losses to Ohio University, Arizona State and Memphis State.

And Tech, which finally has made its presence felt in the Southwest Conference after a few seasons in the cellar, is anxious to put an end to all this upset talk that is going around Canyon these days.

The Red Raiders are 4-2-1 on the year, having tied Rice 6-6 last Saturday. They have wins over Mississippi State, 21-7; Texas A&M, 16-12; TCU, 25-10; and SMU, 12-0. The losses came at the hands of Texas, 23-0, and Baylor, 28-10.

Joe Kerble's Herd is 4-3, beating Texas Western, 14-0; North Texas, 21-13; and Trinity, 21-6, before San Jose.

West Texas uses a varied, pro-style attack, primarily falling to the split-T.

Russell Mundy, a bowling-ball-type fullback, spearheads the WT offense. He has earned 421 tough yards so far, averaging a mean 4.3 steps a run.

Buff quarterback Bill Bundy has tossed for 504 yards so far with 46 completions in 106 tries.

Earl West and David Dennis, Kerble's two halfbacks, are carrying impressive rushing figures into the contest. West is averaging 3.7 a ramble and Dennis 4.5.

Tech coach J T King counters this with the Southwest Conference's best rushing attack. The Raiders have been eating up 189 yards on the ground per contest.

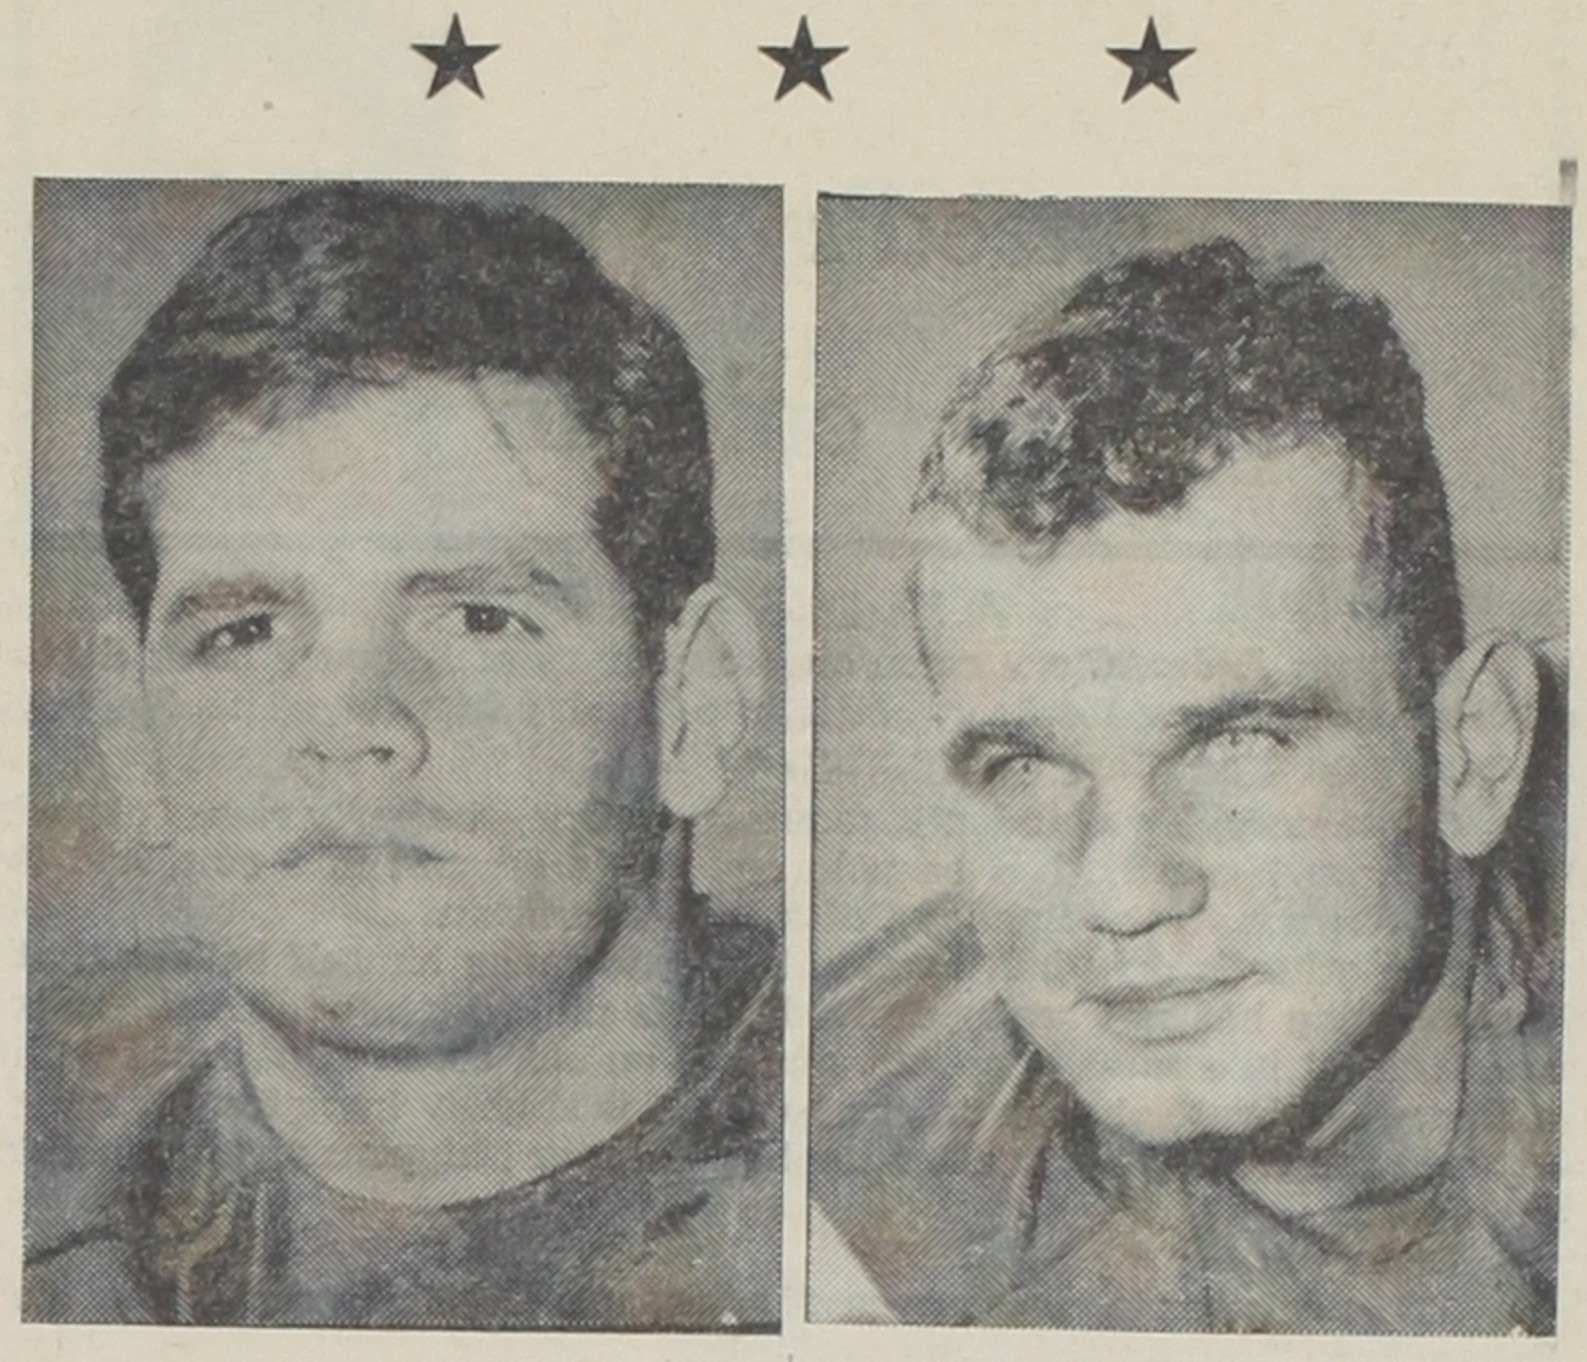

Headed by All-America candidate Donny Anderson at one halfback spot, Tech is a threat on every play.

Quarterback Tom Wilson, who did a great job with his roll-out passes in the tie with Rice, halfback John Agan, and fullback Jim Zanios make up the rest of the Raider backfield.

The last time the two schools met, two years ago, WT took a 30-27 win. Tech still leads the all-time series, 19-7, but since the Raiders went into the Southwest Conference in 1956 it is all even at three wins apiece.

It will be something of a homecoming for Kerble. He was a Tech assistant for two years, '58 and '59, before moving on to West Texas. Before that he was a highly successful coach in Texas high school ranks at both Breckenridge and Amarillo.

Last season, when the two schools did not play each other, both broke even. Tech was 5-5, finishing in a tie for sixth in the SWC. The Buffs went 4-4-1 on their independent schedule.

PACE FROSH—Leading Tech Picadors statistically after two games are quarterback Chris Alford, Houston, and fullback James Honey, Hereford. Alford has completed 9 of 17 passes for 109 yards, and rushed for 44 more. Honey has gained 85 running yards. The Pics meet the Texas A&M fish in Midland Nov. 12 in their next outing.

A Short Scenario

Setting: A dormitory room on the campus of Slippery Rock State College in Slippery Rock, Pa. It is late Sunday morning. The Playboy calendar on the wall reads October, 1966.

Characters: Two students, roommates. One, the early riser (played by Bronson Havard), has been to church, is dressed in a suit, and is settled down with the Sunday Pottsville Republican.

The other is only half awake, trying to make himself believe that the morning has not really arrived. He is played by Joe Sneed. He is spralled out in a mess of sheets, and has on old, tattered pajamas with a Barry Goldwater image on the tops. He is slightly hung over, having attended the victory party after the big win over Shippensburg the night before.

Dialogue:

ER: (Turning to sports page of newspaper) Well, I wonder how ole Texas Tech U-u-university did yesterday.

LR: Groan.

ER: Says here they beat West Texas State.

LR: (Listlessly) Yea . . .

ER: Yea, ole Tech U. has really come up in the last few years.

LR: You know, I never believed that place existed until the other day. Where did they ever come up with a name like (disdainfully, spitting out the words) Texas TECH UNIVERSITY?

ER: Beats me. But you know how those people are down there.

LR: Yea. Where the hell is it, anyway? Tech, Texas.

ER: No, it's in a place called Lubbock. Time Magazine claims that it is the biggest place in the world where you can't buy beer.

LR: (Fast falling asleep) Wonderful . . .

Mercifully, the curtain is drawn.

From Far-Away Places

Where does Joe Kerble get 'em?

The West Texas coach continually comes up with football players from everywhere, sometimes even West Texas.

Pete Pedro, the little Puerto Rican speedster who beat Tech a couple of years ago, is Joe's most famous example. Pete came from Brookline, Mass., by way of Trinity, Colo., Junior College, arriving in Canyon his sophomore year to begin a brilliant career.

When the Buffs come to Lubbock Saturday, their starting offense will feature an end, Ted Wheeler, from Detroit, a halfback, Earl West, from East Orange, N.J., and hard-going fullback Russell Mundy, who hails from Harrisburg, Pa.

Five guys are defensive starters for Kerble, and three made it to Canyon from far-away places.

They are Bill Uzzolino, a center (Newark, N.J.), and a couple of Californians, safety Dave Shellabarger (Santa Clara) and linebacker Gene Browning (Sacramento).

WT Spirit 'Way Up

A West Texas State publicity release says that "Spirit is high on the WTSU campus and upset talk is rampant after Saturday's 18-7 surprise win over highly rated San Jose State."

Of course, all this pertains to the Tech game.

Raiders Rank Third, Lead SWC In Rushing Offense

Sporting the top rushing offense in the Southwest Conference, Texas Tech ranks third in both full season and conference standings behind nationally-ranked Arkansas and Texas.

The Red Raiders are averaging 189.4 yards per game on the ground, 11 yards a game better than second-place Texas. A low passing average per game, 68.9 yards, puts the Raiders in second place in total offense behind Baylor. Tech's 385 total yards against TCU rates as the best single game.

Fourth Place

The Raiders are fourth in total defense behind Texas, Arkansas and SMU. Opposition is averaging 233.6 yards against Tech, 106.7 on the ground and 126.9 in the air. The rushing defense ranks third in the conference, but the pass defense is dead last.

This is partly explained by the fact that Tech has had by far the greatest number of passes thrown against them. The Raiders have the second-best pass defense in the SWC from the standpoint of opponents' completion percentage.

Anderson Loses Lead

Halfback Donny Anderson lost his leadership in individual rushing to TCU's Jim Fauver, even though he did surpass his entire last year's total last week. Fauver holds a slim 13-yard lead, and Anderson is virtually assured of regaining the top spot this week against West Texas State since TCU has an open date.

Anderson is by far the busiest ball carrier in the conference with 141 totes. If he keeps up this pace through Tech's remaining three games, he will become the conference's second-busiest ball carrier in history.

Safetyman Teddy Roberts leads the Southwest Conference in interceptions with five, all but three of Tech's team total.
