New Board Needed To Trim Costs

AUSTIN (P) — Gov. John Connally's 1966-67 budget gives Texas colleges almost all they asked for — if they are put under the control of a new coordinating board.

Cut Luxuries

The budget proposed holds out $47.2 million to encourage formation of a new board to trim "expensive educational luxuries."

If the legislature creates the new agency, as recommended by Connally's 25-man higher education study committee, he will seek $226.1 million for the 22 colleges during 1966-67.

To illustrate his point, the budget includes an alternate proposal if the present commission on higher education is retained without change: a $179.8 million recommendation for the colleges.

Misunderstanding

Connally acknowledged at a news conference that his strategy "will be interpreted by some as an effort on my part to maintain a position of strength with respect to the coordinating board."

Connally added, "That is certainly not the reason for it. I did it because I am convinced beyond any question that money alone is not the answer to our problems of higher education in Texas."

Colleges were appropriated $156 million for the current biennium.

Connally proposes reconstituting the 15-man commission on higher education into an 18-man "coordinating board, Texas college and university system."

Powers Undefined

Increased powers of the new board are not defined, but would include power to allocate $1.5 million to the schools for matching research grants; $20 million for construction; and $29 million to junior colleges. The board would take authority over the 32 junior colleges, now under the state board of education.

He also proposed a 23 per cent increase in faculty salaries to $156.5 million. He estimates this would put Texas 10 per cent above the national average of about $10,000 annually.

Daniels Gives Safety Rules

For many Tech students, the race home will begin after today's classes.

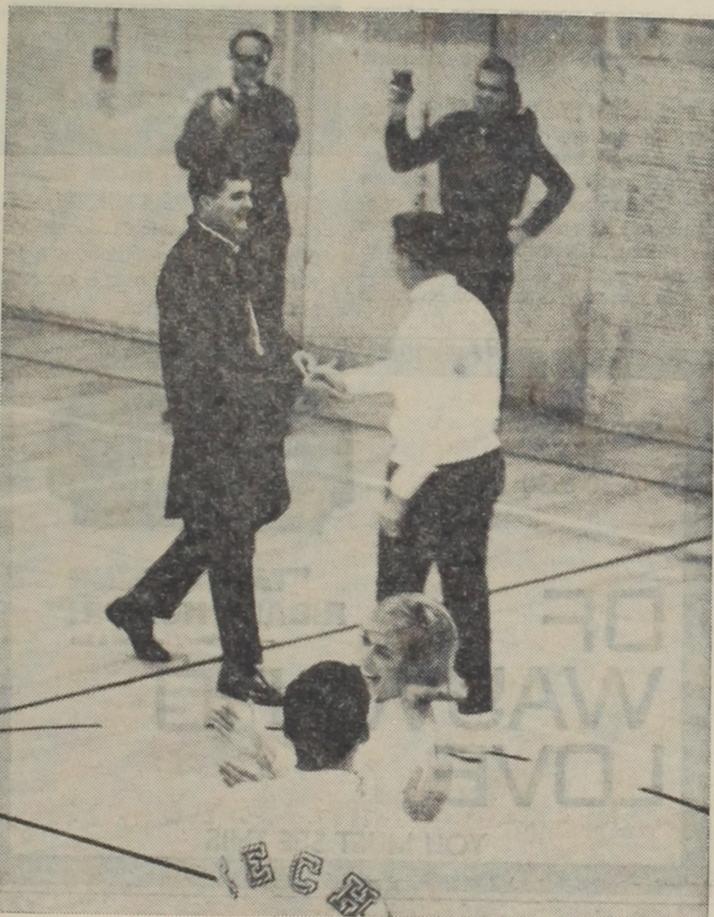

Bill Daniels, head of the Traffic Security Division at Tech, said the prize in this race may be death or serious injury. He further advised students who make a race of the trip home that the risk involved far outweighs the saved time.

"Drinking and driving causes more accidents than anything else. Students who drive too far and too long without rest stops will also cause accidents."

"Courtesy and carefulness will save lives and prevent injuries."

Daniels suggested that some students may overload their cars and endanger the vehicles' road stability.

"We don't want anyone hurt or killed."

PARKS RETURNS — Featured at Thursday's Sun Bowl victory pep rally was David Parks, last year's Tech All-American as he was greeted by head cheerleader Cril Payne on the right. Governor Recommends Texas Western Budget

AUSTIN (P) — Gov. John Connally recommended Thursday a $9,387,506 total budget for Texas Western College in El Paso for the 1966-67 biennium, including $7,041,138 from the general revenue fund.

The recommendation compares with a total $3,225,640 spent by the school last year and $3,162,009 appropriated for the current fiscal year, making a total for this biennium of $6,387,649.

Also in the budget is a recommended $39,982 appropriation for the college museum for the biennium.

Connally also proposed that eventually Texas Western should be placed under the board of regents for state senior colleges, the designation the governor wants for the present board of regents for state teachers colleges.

Among special items in the budgets is a $35,100 request for closed circuit television equipment at Texas Western and $8,000 in tuition scholarships at the school. Connally noted that the school had issued no tuition scholarships in the 12 months ending with the spring semester of 1964.

The budget goes along figure-for-figure with Texas Western's request for faculty salaries $5.9 million and library books $307,699. It recommends a bigger raise for the school's president than was asked — $17,500 a year, plus and authorized $700 supplement, instead of $16,000.

The state presently appropriates $15,000 for the president, plus house and utilities, but the budget notes a $3,200 supplement is authorized this fiscal year.

Tech Tickets Return Today

Texas Tech's supply of Sun Bowl tickets will return to El Paso today at 5 p.m.

Sun Bowl officials requested all unsold tickets be returned to their office by Saturday morning due to increasing demand for tickets there.

Mrs. Mildred Wright, ticket manager, reports some 4,000 Sun Bowl tickets have been sold in Lubbock since Nov. 30. Approximately 2,000 remain, but all are expected to be sold in El Paso.

Following the Lubbock deadline tickets may be purchased from the Southwest Sun Carnival, P. O. Box 95, El Paso. Price is $5 with a 50 cent mailing fee.

May Sponsor Bill For New Compromise Name

By MIKE WALL
Assistant Managing Editor

State Rep. Reed Quilliam announced Thursday that unless the Tech Board of Directors' choice of Texas Tech University as a new name for the college was changed, he would "... introduce a bill to change the name to Texas Technological College and State University."

His action came after another Lubbock legislator, State Sen. H. J. "Doc" Blanchard, had announced support of the Board's name choice. Blanchard also said at the time he might sponsor a bill to change the name to shackle it (Texas Tech) with a name I feel would do serious harm."

Quilliam also said that by including the words, "state university," the college would be able to obtain more easily research grants and awards in non-technical areas.

Help Obtain Teachers

He also said he hoped his name choice would enable the college more easily to obtain teachers to staff proposed law and medical schools at Tech.

Quilliam said he did not agree with the statement made by some people that the Board has final authority on the name change issue. He said since the state legislature voted the college into existence, voted on its location and, finally, voted on its name, he felt the legislature also had the authority to change the name.

Others Have Voice

He added that the Board had the authority to recommend a new name, but that other equally important members of the college community, such as the students, faculty and ex-students had a right to voice an opinion.

He said, were the college being named for the first time, he believed Texas State University would be the logical choice. But, he said, since he was not a graduate of Tech and since Tech had built up 40 years of tradition including the Double-T, he believed an alternate name allowing the retention of tradition but at the same time indicating the real nature of the institution should be adopted.

Would Keep Double-T

At the same time, he said the name he would introduce, would allow retention of the Double-T while still providing a name in keeping with the diversity of the institution.

Quilliam said he did not believe the name Texas Tech University would help the school to achieve the greatness to which he felt it would someday reach, and also that it contained a non-word, tech.

Duty To Perform

Quilliam said he had a duty to the citizens of the state and members of the college, and "I cannot perform this duty by voting to SITATHON ENDS — At midnight today, Will Rogers will once more ride his horse alone. After 19 days and nights, approximately 500 hours, and $1,200 since it began, the Tech Sitathon will end. Bob Fillpot, Saddle Tramp official and Sitathon backer, said all participants considered David Horton's scheme for raising money for the fountain a success. The Sitathon began at noon, Nov. 30.

Number Nine Robbery—Hoax

The reported robbery and assault of a freshman in Men's Hall No. 9 Monday was revealed as a hoax Thursday.

The hoax was admitted to investigating officials as a "joke" on several men in the dormitory but one that got out of hand.

The incident is under study by college disciplinary officials and officially closed as a public case.

Soviets Condemn Act As Aggression Pact

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union denounced as "monstrous" the U.S.-Belgian mission that rescued 2,000 rebel-held hostages in the Congo, and said it was carried out while the Western powers plotted secretly to dismember that African country.

Nikolai T. Fedorenko, chief Soviet delegate, delivered the charge Thursday in the U.N. Security Council, where he proclaimed support for the rebels seeking to overthrow Premier Moise Tshombe.

"What was behind this monstrous mission of the Western powers?" he asked. "At the same time this operation was being planned the Western powers were putting the final touches on a criminal conspiracy for the dismemberment of the Congo."

Fedorenko lined up behind those African nations which have been demanding that the council condemn the United States, Belgium and Britain as aggressors for carrying out the rescue mission late last month. Britain permitted the paratroopers in U.S. planes to land at the Island of Ascension en route to Stanleyville.

Book Drive Staged For Vietnamese

The Ideas and Issues Committee of the Tech Union is launching a drive for books to be sent to South Viet Nam.

The drive is a result of former South Vietnamese diplomat Tran Van Dinh's recent plea for American social rather than military aid to South Vietnam. He spoke on the Tech campus Dec. 9.

Van Dinh said there is a critical shortage of books in South Viet Nam. Present American military tactics are causing resentment of the American people among Vietnamese, he said.

"This will be a good way to show good neighbor relations," said Marsha Winkelman, chairman of the Ideas and Issues Committee. "We hope students will bring back old books, regardless of their age level, after the Christmas holidays."

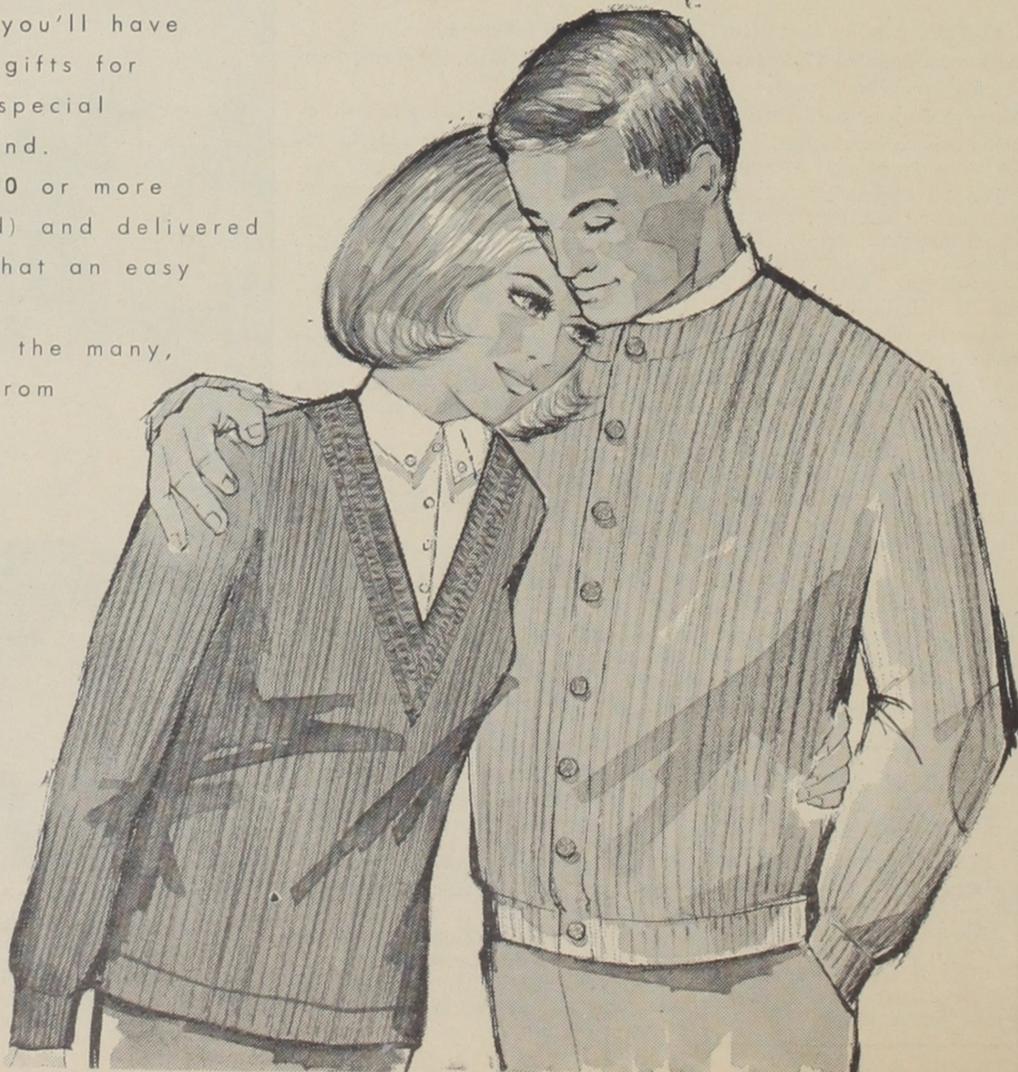

Receiving station for books is the program council office of the Tech Union.

Sadistic Assignments Mar Holiday Season

By BARBARA WORLEY
Staff Writer

Christmas, a holiday, a time to rest — unless you happen to be a college student.

At no other time during a semester can there be found so many of the characteristics of ogres in college professors.

Possibly the most downtrodden feeling in the world comes to the college student as he sits in class on the Monday before Christmas holidays begin on Saturday.

The reason is pure and simple: this is the day of days when each teacher in his turn springs his own cruel surprise assignment on the class.

Somewhere deep in the mind of every college professor is a streak of sadism that bursts forth on this occasion, resulting in some kind of scientific mutation such as the following specie:

There is the Latus Informas Termus Themus, or a Late-Waiting Write Bird, the English teacher who on the first day of class in an afterthoughtful manner mentioned a term theme. Fiendishly he enters the room on the Monday, announcing that the theme is due on the day classes resume.

Or the Panelus Discussus Springus Omus, or Final Minute Bomb-Dropper, which is the government teacher who has lured everyone to class for the entire semester with the threat of an impromptu discussion. A sardonic smile beaming on her face, she rises at the end of class and does her dirty deed. The topic of the long-awaited discussion: On whether or not the United States should include in its foreign policy the extradition of all wild boars from Tehran. The deadline: first class period after the holidays.

Not to be outdone by their fellows in cultivating the complete disgust of their students, there are some teachers who also hand out assignments on that day for the last day before the holidays.

This is done so as to weaken completely the students' chances of getting an early start towards the fun and good cheer of his two week study hall.

These specie seem to find their grotesque amusements in competing with each other to fill up every minute of the student's time before the vacation, leaving him to pack his clothes, clean up his room and buy his bus ticket while running down the highway in pursuit of the bus.

Included here are the Goto Labus Restof Lifus, or Time-Consuming French Bird, the French teacher who insists the whole semester that it is not necessary to spend any time in the optional lab. His assignment for the last day of classes, however, is a foregone conclusion—three hours in the lab.

Finally there is the Feature Writus Beforus Leavus, or Topic Giving News Bird, who shrewdly picks the Monday to assign — for the first time of the semester — a topic feature with a feature-picture idea attached. The deadline for this is, needless to say, the last day before Christmas.

This is what Christmas brings the college student.

And the turkeys think they have it bad.

Dear Santa:

We really don't need any new balls, or kites, or cars this year, but there is something we would like very much.

This year we would like for you to take to all our friends at Texas Tech, students and faculty, our sincere appreciation for their friendship and patronage during 1964. And with the new year, Santa, for everyone, put in a gift of health, happiness, and prosperity, with a world at peace in which to enjoy them.

And for us, Santa, just bring us the continued patronage of our customers and the opportunity of serving them in 1965.

Thank you, Santa.

Sincerely,

— Tech Plays Host —
Swim Relays Staged

By DON ENGER
 Asst. Sports Editor

The Texas Tech Red Raider swimmers will play the host role today at 4 p.m. in the annual Southwest Conference Relays.

The University of Oklahoma and Arlington State, visitors to the meet, will join SWC schools Southern Methodist, Texas A&M, and Texas Tech in the competition. Raider Coach Jim McNally said of the meet, "SMU is the defending Southwest Conference Champion and will post another strong team this year. They will bring some 25 individuals to the meet where the other teams will have 12 to 16. They are very deep in every event and have a number of seniors on the team. Where most teams will have only one or two men in each event, the Mustangs will use four.

One of the big attractions for the meet will be the tremendous quality of sprinters. According to McNally, spectators should see the finest sprinting that has ever been to Texas Tech. One of the sprinters will be Luther Walker from Arlington State. "Walker has tremendous ability and is also distinguished as being the first Negro swimmer ever in the Southwest Conference," said McNally. "We have two of the best swimmers in the conference in Phil Simpkins and Robert Graham, but Oklahoma will also have good sprinters in Jack Hove and Bob Welky; A&M has another in Bob Baker, who as a junior was the 50 yard freestyle champion; and, of course, SMU will have David Quick, who is the defending Southwest Conference champion in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle.

The scheduled events are as follows:

- 200-yard freestyle relay,
- 200-yard breaststroke-butterfly relay,
- 200-yard backstroke relay,
- 200-yard medley relay,
- 1000-yard freestyle relay,
- 3-meter diving relay,
- 400-yard freestyle relay,
- 400-yard breaststroke-butterfly relay,
- 400-yard backstroke relay,
- 400-yard medley relay,

400-yard backstroke relay,
 400-yard medley relay,

The 3-meter diving relay is a composite score of three divers from each team.
