The Legislature will defeat Gov. Connally's "three system" plan for Texas colleges and universities, two Lubbock legislators said Friday.

State Sen. H. J. (Doc) Blanchard and Rep. Bill Parsley declared they would fight the governor's system proposal. The legislators spoke at a press conference for area newsmen.

"The systems proposal was a shock to me as I am sure it was to you when you read about it. I think that the Governor has made a tactical error and an error in pure composition on the systems," Rep. Parsley said.

He added, "I have joined Rep. Reed Quilliam and other representatives in the House in sponsoring a different set of systems in another bill.

prefer the systems that we are talking about here rather than the one the governor proposes.

"If I had my way I would rather wait and let the central coordinating board go to work and then recommend to the legislators the systems.

Make Sense

But if I have to make a choice I prefer this Texas Tech system. It makes more sense. It is more logical, functional and the alignment makes more sense."

Speaking about the effects of redistricting on Tech's influence in the legislature, Sen. Blanchard said he thought the legislature should decide on the systems now because the West Texas area would not be able to get in a system it wants after redistricting when the Houston, Austin, San Antonio and Dallas areas have the overwhelming majority of legislators.

When a reporter asked about the status of the name change for Texas Tech, Rep. Parsley said, "My position is still the same, and I have not introduced any bills in the House to change the name, but I would still like to see all the groups in agreement.

"I believe very strongly with John Connally that we have got to do some planning on excellence in higher education. If this is the session of the legislature where we are going to start, I believe that the central coordinating board is where we must start.

"We are going to have to have the systems. If I am right in this, if we are going to have to go to systems, then nobody knows what these systems are to be called.

More Proposals

"I would speculate that once systems are adopted, then there will be eight or nine name change proposals."

He said he thought that any action taken must come from the coordinating board.

On the name change, Sen. Blanchard said that he would follow the dictates of the Board of Directors and would go with them on whatever they wanted to do in regard to anything.

When asked if he had any reaction from members of the Tech Board of Directors, Blanchard answered, "We have discussed all this with them. I'd rather not speak for them, but I'll say this—they are 100 per cent against the proposal for systems as set out by Gov. Connally."

Flu 'Ailments' Not Noticeable

A statewide flu-like ailment has not reached Tech in any noticeable proportion, according to Dr. E. P. Kallina, student health center director.

"The cases of flu are not to any excess for this season. It is true we have more cases this year but we also have more students to serve," Kallina said.

Many schools throughout the state have been closed because of the flu-like ailments, which last from three to five days.

Red, Red Everywhere . . .

A LITTLE EARLY — Lubbock Fire Dept. jumped the gun yesterday in trying to contribute to "All I See Is Red Day." Actually, nine units from Lubbock Fire Dept. answered a call on Tech campus which turned out to be a smoking pipe in the Ad Bldg.

Today has been designated as "All I See Is Red Day" and everyone is requested to wear red all day and to the Rice basketball game this afternoon, even Lubbock firemen.

Stanford Dean Says Exes' Report Wrong

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Almost everybody who is anybody at Stanford today denied a report that some of Stanford University's young English instructors "sexually arouse freshmen" women deliberately.

The remark was attributed, in an official report of former student officers, to Dean of Women Lucile A. Allen.

The dean strongly disagreed with that. She said it was an attempt to reconstruct discussions which occurred more than nine months ago.

'Erotic Approach'

In the student version, the dean told a woman's council meeting that "salacious materials" used in freshman English and "the erotic approach adopted by many of the younger professors" contributed to problems of freshmen coeds.

"These professors, she said, sexually arouse the freshmen both within the classroom and without it. She cited as a case in point a story about a professor who stood upon steps of Wilbur Hall and urged the freshmen to 'make' a girl within a week.

"The young professors arouse the girls sexually, as well. They concentrate deliberately on the erotic aspects of literature, in part because those who are unmarried use literature as their sexual outlet, and in part because they wish to seduce the girls in their classes."

The dean, taking particular exception to this, said she thought "the students have tried to be honest" in telling of the meeting but "I believe their interpretations are inaccurate."

The sexual references were presented as supporting data to students charges that deans interfered with disciplinary action by student councils.

The student governing body in a special meeting Thursday night said students, and not the deans, should have complete disciplinary control.

'Quality' Of Resources Poses Future Problem

"The quality, not the quantity, of natural resources is going to be a problem in the future of the United States," said Dr. Marion Clawson, director of the Land Use and Management Programs, Resources for the Future Inc., Washington, D.C.

Clawson addressed the Third Annual West Texas Water Conference at the Tech Union at noon Thursday.

Clawson said the American people live in a time of rapid change and seemingly have confidence in their ability to deal with the future. Their technological advances, however, have produced a capacity for the destruction of natural resources.

Central Board

"However, I think all system bills have been put together too hurriedly. I think the answer to this is House Bill No. 1 which will create a central coordinating board of learning in the state," he continued.

Rep. Parsley said he was going to strongly support the bill. He felt that after the board is established, then the systems should be organized.

"The governor, I understand, is not very pleased with the fact that we have introduced this four system bill," Sen. Blanchard said.

He added, "I feel that mine and Sen. Hardeman's has equally as good, if not better, chance of passing by far as the one proposed by the governor.

"I think that I would stop his program. Very frankly, I think I could stop that Texas Tech-A&M whatever-it-is."

Sen. Blanchard explained that he felt the governor considered the central coordinating board more important than the system arrangement. He said he would support the House Bill No. 1.

Gain Control

He continued to say that under the governor's proposal after redistricting, the Houston, El Paso, Dallas, Austin and Fort Worth areas would gain control of the systems. He implied that higher education in those areas would then receive most of the appropriations.

"His (the governor's) alignment and mathematics were not too good in my opinion," Sen. Blanchard remarked.

On what schools should lead a system, Blanchard said he wanted Tech to be a dominating school and head a system.

"I think my proposal follows more along the lines of the one proposed by the Committee of 25 on Education Beyond the High School."

When asked by a reporter whether or not the governor intended the three systems to be functional, Sen. Blanchard said the governor said they were not.

Net Effect

However, when asked if the net effect of the system would be to create one more oriented toward technology and one toward a general university program, Blanchard said that was true.

"I think the governor's plan would be inclined to place Tech in a technological or engineering school rather than a multi-purpose university," he said.

Blanchard said the governor considered Tech to be a great university and one capable of teaching anything to any student on any level.

"He indicated to me that there was a very good chance of passing the medical school."

Discussing the systems, Parsley said, "If it gets to a fight, I much

Faculty Instructors Perform In Recital

Benjamin Woodruff, double reed instructor, and Walter Kent Hill, organ instructor, will give a recital at 4 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Stevenson, 65, Cites Lack Of Perception

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, summing up his views for his 65th birthday Friday, said some nations "don't even perceive what's involved" in the U.N. financial crisis and some don't care.

But he expressed confidence the United States can muster the needed two-thirds vote in the General Assembly in any showdown with the Soviet Union on the matter of money and the right to vote.

In a far-ranging interview with

The Associated Press, the chief U.S. delegate said the organization can't stand still. He said Red China is trying to break up the United Nations; expressed belief U.N. troops pulled out of the Congo too soon; and declared he has no present intention of leaving the United Nations although he finds his job more of executing policy than making it.

Stevenson said the dispute over paying U.N. peacekeeping dues is between "those who want to preserve the organization intact and those who don't or don't care, or who don't even perceive what's involved."

The Soviet Union, France and 11 other countries under Article 19 of the charter stand to lose their votes in the assembly because they are two years behind in their peacekeeping assessments. They hold the assessments were illegal because they were adopted by the assembly instead of the U.N. Security Council.

The assembly meets Monday and Stevenson said it may set up a new committee to negotiate on the whole subject of peacekeeping. He said the assembly might then recess to let the committee work but added:

"In our country, we would like as short a postponement as possible, because if there is going to be a permanent solution it ought to be reached quickly. The date I hear about most is May 1" for reconvening.

Stevenson said there was "strong leadership from the Chinese Communist to break up the organization because it is a peacekeeping organization, or because it doesn't promote the ambitions of the Chinese Communists. But I don't apprehend much trouble from that source."

GOPs Join Exes Meet In Houston

A four-man delegation of local Young Republican leaders left Lubbock Friday for Houston to attend a state executive committee meeting of the Texas Young Republican Federation.

Heading the delegation is Glenn Looney, state secretary and state campaign director of the Texas Young Republican Federation.

Others in the group are Dick Teel, area YR chairman; Curtis Swinson, vice president of the Tech YR's; and Scott Smith, representative of the Lubbock High School YR's.

The weekend of activities began Friday with a reception, committee meetings, and conferences. The main executive committee sessions will be today.

Among the items on the agenda for the meeting are finalization of arrangements for the upcoming state convention of Young Republicans, March 19-20 in Austin; the appointment and ratification of convention committee appointments; and formulation of federation policy for the coming year.

Special speakers for the weekend meeting will include Republican party leader George Bush.

SMOKEY PIPES — A misplaced coated steam pipe (arrow) in the basement of the Ad Bldg. under room 116 brought nine units and 26 men from Stations 1 and 4 of the Lubbock Fire Dept. scurrying to the Tech campus at 3:10 p.m. Friday. The "fire" turned out to be smoke from excessive heat liberated by the melting pipe coating. The alarm was turned in by Don Renner, assistant registrar.

Students Add Sparkle To LTC Production

By MARGARET EASTMAN
Asst. Fine Arts Editor

Jack Lemmon won an academy award for his role as Ensign Pulver in the movie version of "Mr. Roberts."

Roland Myers, senior psychology major, matched Lemmon's performance as far as a packed house was concerned at the Lubbock Theatre Centre Thursday.

Myers never missed a laugh in his role as the mischievous, lazy Pulver. He seemed to use an eclectic approach to make his performance thoroughly hilarious.

"Mr. Roberts," which ran on Broadway for three years, is set on a cargo ship during World War II. The set, designed by Tech junior, Marvin Schulze and LTC director, Burt French, gives the audience the feeling of being on the ship.

Credit must be given to French for taking amateur actors and teaching them to make the most of every line. They did this, and the audience couldn't have been more enthusiastic.

The plot centers around the boredom of a crew that is confined to the "old bucket" by a tyrannical captain. The captain, portrayed by Dr. William Ickes, speech professor, makes the audience hate the captain as much as the crew does.

The protagonist, Mr. Roberts, was played by Roy Freund. He made Roberts a sympathetic and warm character that the audience couldn't help but loving.

After Roberts finally obtains a long-needed liberty for the crew, crew members realize how important he is to them and the scenes which follow are hilarious and heart-warming.

The crewman are excellently played by Johnny Hughes, Lubbock senior; Michael Connell, Muleshoe junior; and Charles Benton, Lubbock junior, among others. Hughes and Connell give a realistic fight scene that is the highlight of the first act. Benton does a fine job in his part as the scatter-brain Lindstrom.

The second act is highlighted when the crew returns from their shore leave. Credit must be given to costume designer Sheila Heinen, Littlefield junior, who sends the crew members on stage in bloody and battered costumes. One member of the crew appears wearing only a crepe paper diaper. The scene kept the audience laughing uncontrollably.

Mike Niemczyk, English teaching assistant, plays the captain's messenger who comes into the second act pulling a goat behind him. Niemczyk is realistic in his part as the nitwit who says, "The goat's name is 'property of.'" Naturally the goat belongs to an admiral.

Greta, who is the property of the Tech animal husbandry department, is a fine actress in the part of a goat. In this scene, she jumps on and eats a palm tree just as the script requires.

Dr. Ralph Durham, head of the animal husbandry department, does well in his role as the sympathetic doctor who quietly "patches up" all of the drunken sailors in this scene.

Jacque Tunnell, Lubbock junior, is memorable in her part as the army nurse. The scene in which she plays a brief visit to the cargo ship is unforgettable. After all, she is the only female in the play, and she does well in her "stand apart" role.

"Mr. Roberts" was so well received that three hold-over performances on Thursday, Friday and Saturday as well as a performance at 8:15 p.m. today are scheduled.

Raiders 'Leaders Of Pack,' Try To Outfox Rice Today

TRENTON BONNER

ROYCE WOOLARD

By TEX ROGERS
Staff Writer

Like the little red fox racing ahead of the hounds, it's nice to be in front of the pack, even if the nearest dog is only a nip away from the heels.

Tech's Red Raiders, forerunner in the Southwest Conference cage scramble, will be trying to stay away from the rest of the pack when they face a tailender in the Rice Owls at 2 p.m. today in the Municipal Coliseum here.

Cling To One-Game Margin
The Raiders are clinging to a single game lead in the SWC after getting a 77-74 jolt from the Baylor Bears here Tuesday, making their league record 4-1.

Rice, sharing the bottom of the conference cellar with TCU, posts an opposite mark of 1-4.

4 Vying For 2nd Place

In the middle, SMU, Texas A&M, Texas and Baylor are snarled in a traffic jam for second place with 3-2 records, indicating the SWC crown may not be decided until the last dog is gone.

The Owls will be treading lightly on Raider soil today when they invade Tech's Holler House, with more than just a single unimpressive season record traveling with them.

Rice has never won a basketball game in Lubbock, which really isn't much to be ashamed of. However, Raider Coach Gene Gibson doesn't look upon that pertinent fact with much optimism.

Streaks Made To Break

Streaks, winning or losing, are made to be broken. That may be justified by the Baylor win Tuesday night.

Tech had captured eight consecutive decisions from the Bears before they finally came back with a win, the first since 1960. That one also happened to be in Lubbock.

Rice, winless in seven Coliseum starts, has managed a scare more than once, losing in 1963 by a lonely point, 73-72.

Rice Beat Baylor 59-56

Furthermore, only a month ago George Carlisle's Owls ventured to Waco and trimmed by a 59-56 tally the same Baylor team who cut Tech's conference lead to one game.

Despite Baylor's tremendous defensive display, the Raiders are still maintaining a respectable 89.6 points per outing, while yielding 80.

Tech's point ratio is being held high due to five Raiders averaging in the double figures for conference play — Norman Reuther of Fort Worth, 22.6; Dub Malaise of Odessa, 19; Harold Denney of Amarillo, 15.8; Glen Hallum of Brownwood, 14; and Bobby Measels of Seminole, 12.4.

Hallum Leads In Accuracy

Hallum leads the Raiders in accuracy from the field for conference competition, hitting 27 of 40 attempts for 67.6 per cent. Denney is the most accurate from the foul line, connecting with 23 of 26 free throws for 88.6 per cent.

The Tech freshmen will open today's basketball show here with the Rice Owlets. Game time is 11:45 a.m.

Coach Charley Lynch's Pica-dors are currently sporting a 6-1 mark for the season.

Commission MD's Find No Injury

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Athletic Commission said Friday that its doctors had found no indications of an injury to Floyd Patterson's left hand when they examined him a few days before last Monday's heavyweight fight against Canada's George Chuvalo.

After earning a 12-round decision over Chuvalo in a hard fight Patterson said his hand had been injured when he was training for his December bout against Charley Powell and reinjured in training for Chuvalo.

He described the injury as a bone separation and said he had taken ultra-sonic treatments after the weigh-in and again after the fight.
