

Council Backs '4-System' Bill

THE DAILY T O R E A D O R

TEXAS TECHNOLOGICAL COLLEGE

Vol. 40 Lubbock, Texas, Thursday, February 4, 1965 No. 77

Amendment Added To Change Name

By BRONSON HAVARD
Editor

The Student Council yesterday voted to back the "four university system" bill introduced into the Legislature Wednesday morning.

Council members took the action after more than an hour of debate on the bill placed before the Senate in a surprise move by Sens. H. J. (Doc) Blanchard, Lubbock, and Dorsey Hardeman, San Angelo.

Agriculture Rep. Floyd Collins made the motion that the Council support the four university system bill as in the best interests of Texas Tech.

The motion carried an amendment made by A&S Rep. Roland Anderson urging, "... that this system be given a name that will appropriately denote its multi-purpose."

The amended motion passed 18-6.

In the debate over the resolution, A&S Rep. Jim Hackney said, "This (the bill) brings Doc Blanchard up to zero in my book. I don't particularly like the school arrangement in the system, but I think the Student Council should support the move. It is better than any suggested before."

Anderson debated, "We have seen the faculty, students and even some of the townspeople behind us. We would like to stress that we have never been against the governor's proposal but the placing of Tech in a technological system."

He said he was in favor of the bill but felt an amendment was needed to express the Council's position on the name change.

Arguing against Anderson's amendment, Engineering Rep. Mike Stinson said, "We are involved in a life or death struggle and it's not over a name change. What we want is to be the head of a university system."

"Let's leave the name change issue secondary and fight it later." A&S Rep. Marcia Winkleman commented, "If we do support this bill we must make it clear how we feel about the name change."

During the debate, Council President Ronnie Botkin permitted persons in the audience of about 40 to express their opinions.

Jim Richardson, a member of the Joint Name-Change Committee, said, "I think we need to consider that if we support Sen. Blanchard's bill it could still be construed as supporting Sen. Blanchard's position on the name change."

Stinson followed up, "He makes a good point. We do not know the context of Sen. Blanchard's bill or the Governor's. We should wait until we know."

Phil Roberts, chairman of the Committee of Interested Students, answered, "We can only act on what we know, we have waited for the Governor but he hasn't said anything that will clarify his position."

After the Council called the motion to a vote and it passed on a roll call vote, representatives then debated how to implement the resolution.

Stinson blasted what he considered administration indifference to student opinion and said that the Council should try to get administrative help.

"We are going to have to ask why our administration has remained silent for three or four years."

"We are going to have to ask why our president has remained silent on this and other issues for the last three or four years."

Stinson also blasted the statement of the mayor of Lubbock which appeared in The Daily Toreador opinion poll Wednesday.

"I move that the Student Council pass a resolution that the president of our college make known his views to the legislature and to us, and we ask the administration, faculty, citizens of Lubbock and exes to join with us in making known to the legislature our multi-purpose university status and to attempt to stop our classification in a technological system." The motion passed.

Legislation Calls For New Plan

Two West Texas senators introduced the first bill in the Texas Senate Wednesday calling for realignment of state-supported colleges under four university systems.

Under the plan co-sponsored by H. J. (Doc) Blanchard of Lubbock and Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, Texas Tech would head a five-college division. Other system leaders would be the University of Texas, Texas A&M University and the University of Houston.

The bill proposes to create the four systems oriented more along geographical lines instead of the three based along functional lines called for by Gov. John Connally last week.

TT College System

Included in the Texas Technological College System besides Tech would be West Texas State, Angelo State College, Midwestern University and Sul Ross College.

Rep. Reed Quilliam of Lubbock told reporters Wednesday that he plans to introduce an identical bill in the House today.

The bill would abolish the regents and boards of directors of seven schools as of Sept. 1, 1965, and would place those schools under control of each of the systems.

Tentative arrangements of the schools placed North Texas, Texas Woman's University, Pan American University, East Texas State, Texas Western and Southwest Texas State under the University of Texas; and Texas A&I, Stephen F. Austin, Arlington and Tarleton under A&M.

Houston System

The University of Houston would control Lamar State, Texas Southern and Sam Houston State and other teachers colleges in that area.

Under the bill, the terms of all the regents and directors—including Texas, Texas A&M, Houston and Tech—would expire on the effective date of the legislation.

The governor, with confirmation of the Senate, would appoint nine new members to each of the four system boards.

Blanchard also announced vague plans to put Arlington under the Tech system at a later date.

UH Protests

Citizens Reflect 'Concern'

A group of Lubbock citizens formulated initial plans Wednesday for a "mutual interest" committee to oppose the "potential threat" to Texas Tech from Gov. Connally's proposed higher education systems.

"We realize the potential threat to Tech and the community if the school becomes technical," said Ed Bray, spokesman for the group.

"However, our immediate aim is just to keep in touch with the problem," he said. "We don't want to jump into anything until we know exactly what is happening and the proposals are in bill form before the legislature."

"Also," Bray continued, "we suggest an active campaign to get students to talk to their parents and encourage them to write to their congressmen — this will insure opinions from all parts of the state."

Asks Organizations' Help

"We feel that some organization — possibly off-campus, like the Ex-Students' Assn.—with the necessary time and concern should do some work on this proposal and spread the fact."

According to Bray, many townspeople realized the "potential threat" to Tech when Gov. Connally's announcements were made last week, but others became more aware after reading the editorial in Wednesday's Daily Toreador.

Opposition was also shaping in other fronts against the governor's proposal.

Houston Protests

In a telephone interview Wednesday representatives of the University of Houston "Cougar" told the Toreador that they were "... against going with the Texas University System because of the difference in the schools."

Earlier in the week, the president of UH conducted a press conference in which he read his statement to the Texas Legislature, opposing Houston's inclusion with the Austin school.

"We do not believe the overall benefits of area leadership will help the University of Houston," he said, "... because University of Texas regents don't know our problems."

The "Cougar" reports that a legislative committee has been assigned to study his report.

DISCUSS INTERNATIONAL TRADE — Robert Reinhardt, vice president of Hancock Manufacturing Co. of Lubbock, and Dr. John Hildebrand, associate professor of economics, look over a Hancock Co. export shipment to Pakistan. Reinhardt is conference chairman of the International Trade Seminar scheduled here today.

Annual Trade Seminar To Begin Here Today

Business and trade experts will participate in the second annual International Trade Seminar here today.

Purpose of the seminar is to encourage Lubbock businesses to enter the international trade field. The all-day program is open to the public.

Included in the list of seminar topics are "Financing International Trade," "Opportunities to Develop International Trade," "Opportunities for Agricultural Exports in the Plains" and "Handling of Cargoes in International Trade."

Co-sponsored by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, the U.S. Department of Commerce and the International Trade Society of Tech, the program opens at 8:15 a.m. in the main ballroom of the Tech Union.

Keynote Address

Gen. Robert J. Smith, president of Pioneer Texas Corporation of Dallas, will deliver the keynote address during the morning session. Smith is a director of Continental Air Lines and of Space Corp., and is a member of the advisory committee of Export-Import Bank of Washington, D.C.

At 10:10 a.m. there will be a panel discussion. Panel speakers are John Dale, vice president of First National Bank of Dallas; Stanley Moore, president of Drilco, Inc. of Midland and Harry Meyers, director of Dallas Field Office of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce.

Also participating on the morning panel will be Bill Nelson, executive director of Grain Sorghum Producers Assn. of Amarillo and Jay Rodney Reese, vice president of Texas Instruments of Dallas.

South African To Speak

Vere G. Stock, consulate general of the Republic of South Africa, will speak on "The South African Scene" at the 12:15 p.m. luncheon program. A native of the Cape of Good Hope, Stock has held diplomatic assignments with the South African Department of Foreign Affairs.

Tech Stays In TISA

A decision to continue Texas Tech's membership in the Texas Intercollegiate Student Assn. and to join the United States Student Government Assn. (ASG) was made by the Student Council Wednesday.

BA Rep. Tom Craddick said the TISA program offered relatively inexpensive European tour programs to students of member schools and he felt Tech students would benefit from retaining membership.

Engineering Rep. Collier Perry

added, "I feel if we could afford it we ought to stay in TISA. For more than just the trip but because it is the only means of communications (among student governments in Texas)."

Council Business Manager Garland Weeks told the representatives that the Council could afford membership.

The Council then voted unanimously to retain membership.

Also on the question of joining the newly organized ASG, Perry told the Council, "I feel that we should join this organization because we tend to become inbred and need new ideas."

The motion to join ASG passed unanimously with little discussion.

In other Council action, Engineering Rep. Mike Stinson and BA Rep. Scott Allen were elected as the Council delegates to the upcoming Board of Student Organizations' winter leadership retreat to New Mexico.

Cadet Resignations Complete

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (P) — The superintendent of the U.S. Air Force Academy announced Wednesday completion of an investigation into cheating at the academy, listing the final total of cadets resigning at 105.

Maj. Gen. Robert R. Warren said that only cadets involved in the theft, sale or use of stolen examination papers were asked to resign.

He said those who stole or sold papers will receive less than honorable discharges and those who only used them will receive honorable discharges. Gen. Warren said 29 who resigned were football players, including 20 who would have been candidates for the varsity team next season.

He said altogether 40 athletes were involved.

Warren defended the cadet's honor code which has been criticized as a result of the scandal and said in his opinion it should continue unchanged.

He said only four per cent of the total cadet wing of 2,567 were involved.

Deferment Data Soon Available

Male students who want certification of their enrollment for selective service deferment purposes can make such requests in person at the registrar's office after Feb. 15.

The individual is responsible for filling in Selective Service form 109 and mailing it to his local draft board after certification by the registrar.

Any questions concerning selective service status must be directed to the student's local draft board.

Belli To Help In Ruby Appeal

AUSTIN (P) — Melvin Belli, who defended Jack Ruby at his Dallas murder trial, received permission today to file briefs in Ruby's appeal to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals from the death sentence.

However, court officials indicate Belli won't be allowed to take part in the March 10 oral arguments because he is not one of the lawyers of record in the case.

Ruby was convicted of shooting presidential assassin Lee Oswald to death Nov. 24, 1963.

LBJ MAY TRAVEL

WASHINGTON (P) — President Johnson, obviously encouraged by secret contacts with Moscow, said Wednesday night he hopes to visit the Soviet Union this year and to entertain Soviet leaders in the United States.

New Fruit Jar Drinkers Play In Authentic Style

By DAVE BRUCE
Fine Arts Staff

Probably the biggest thing in music these days is folk music. Of course, as with any fad, there is bound to be some vulgarity of the original thing, and, in looking for a folksinger to interview, we kept this in mind.

We were beginning to think that our search was pretty futile until we heard of a group called The New Fruit Jar Drinkers. Having once heard them, we knew them to be just the sort of group we had in mind — one which somehow knew the music they were performing.

So, it was with a great elation that we set out to interview one of its members, Tech student James Howell.

Toreador: I guess the most obvious thing to start out with would be to ask you where the name came from.

Howell: The name is taken from the original "Fruit Jar Drinkers," a string band of Uncle Dave Macon's. All the members of our group have a lot of respect for Uncle Dave Macon, so we decided to use that name.

Toreador: I'd hate to give you any sort of comparison to the New Christy Minstrels, but your name is sort of like that. Who's in your group?

Howell: Well, we've got Pat Patrick; he plays guitar, harmonica, autoharp, and twelve-string. Pat's a teaching assistant in English here. Then there's Jimmy Gilmore, who's probably the finest flat-picking guitarist in Lubbock as well as being one of the best harmonica players. He also plays mandolin and twelve-string. And I play banjo, guitar and kazoo.

Toreador: How long have you been a group?

Howell: About six or seven months. We felt that we were the only three people in Lubbock who knew anything about real folk music, and we still think we're the only three who can play it. Don Lee Smith might be an exception to this. We have a lot of respect for him.

Toreador: Generally, what areas of the folk idiom do you concentrate on?

Howell: Well, to start out, we consider ourselves to be the only true folk group in Lubbock, and we do just about every aspect of American folk. We sing some of the contemporary songs of writers like Bob Dylan, Pete Seeger, Jesse Fuller. Jimmy does some blues. Of course, we do a lot of Woody Guthrie, and we also do some old-timey music as done by Doc Watson, "Tom" Ashley, Buell Kazee, North Carolina Ramblers, and a few other modern string-bands like our own — Old Reliable, New Lost City Ramblers, Greenbrier Boys.

Toreador: There's got to be some reason for your group. I mean why do you want to get together in the first place, for the kicks or what?

Howell: I think that Pat's in it for the kicks primarily. Of the three of us, Jimmy is probably the one with the greatest idea of money. I personally am in pursuit of a goal—it's my aim to desophisticate the urbanite in order to make him a connoisseur.

LUBBOCK'S ORIGINAL
PANCAKE HOUSE
STEAKS + BURGERS
DANCE HOUSE
6 to Midnite, SAT. to 2, 8th at Q

Toreador: A most noble aim, but where could your group be heard around?

Howell: We've had several engagements in some of the little towns around Lubbock — Littlefield, New Home, Idalou, like that, then there's been hoots on campus we've done. We did a museum program, and we've done banquets. We'll play just about anywhere, usually for free.

Toreador: I think you've hinted around at the answer to my next question, but we might as well make it definite. What's your opinion of the modern folk scene?

Howell: I have a lot of respect for folk performers. Underscore folk. It might be very good now to define folk. First off, I like to put folk singers in three classes. One is the minstrels: those who have an urban background but who respect, or observe the idiom when they sing. Seeger is probably the best, but in other idioms, like blues, there's Van Ronk, and John Hammond.

The traditional performers, i.e. Doc Watson, Mississippi John Hurt, Uncle Dave Macon, Gus Cannon, are all performing (or were performing) in a rural tradition in which they grew up.

And there are the contemporary song writers — Dylan, Ochs, Paxton, Seeger, Jim Garland, Joe Hill, and Woody Guthrie — all of whom are (were) writing in the idiom of American folk music. Groups or soloists calling themselves folksingers but either lacking knowledge of traditional American music, or ignoring tradition are detested by members trying to keep the American musical heritage alive. And I think you know exactly who I mean by that.

Toreador: Yes, I think I do. Anyway, thank you very much for your time.

Howell: You're welcome and goodnight, "Playboy."

Toreador: Toreador. Sorry.

Mastroianni To Appear In Concert

Thomas Mastroianni, chairman of keyboard instruction at the Music Dept., will be featured in the first of a series of three piano recitals at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Music Bldg.

He will be assisted by Gerald Edmundson, graduate assistant in piano.

Mastroianni, who recently returned from a concert tour of Europe, has received numerous awards, including the Pittsburgh Concert Society Competition and the Pittsburgh Musicians' Club Awards. In addition to many concerts, he has frequently appeared in radio and television performances. He holds Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees from the Juilliard School of Music and was awarded a graduate fellowship as instructor in the Piano Minor Dept.

Mastroianni will play Scarlatti's "Two Sonatas in D Minor;" Brahms' "Three Intermezzi, Opus 117;" "Allegro inquieto," "Andante Caloroso" and "Precipitato" from Prokofieff's "Sonata No. 7" and "Moderato," "Adagio sostenuto," and "Allegro scherzando" from Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2 in C Minor."

Opera Slated

"La Forza del Desino" (The Force of Destiny) by Giuseppe Verdi will be broadcast at 1 p.m. Saturday on KTXT-FM.

The opera was written on a commission from the Imperial Theater at St. Petersburg, Russia, and had its world premiere there in 1962.

Among the musical highlights are the aria "La Vergine degli angeli," "Pace, pace, mio dio," and "Solenne in quest ora."

Appearing in principal roles will be Gabriella Tucci as Leonora, Franco Corelli as Don Alvaro and Ettore Bastianini as Don Carlo.

Intramural Bowling Schedules Organizational Meet Today

Edsel Buchanan, director of intramural program for men, announced Wednesday that a special organizational meeting for all teams desiring to participate in league bowling this semester can meet today at 5 p.m. in the Intramural Conference Room, Intramural Gym.

In addition to the regular league bowling program, Buchanan hinted that an attempt will be made to initiate a league composed of undergraduate married couples at today's meeting.

All representatives interested in bowling either in the regular handicap league bowling or married couples handicap bowling must attend this meeting. The regular program of bowling will get underway tomorrow.

In addition to league bowling, entries are now open for basketball free throws, badminton, table tennis, paddleball and boxing. Entries in the free throw event began last Friday and will continue through the month of February.

Badminton and table tennis entries will close Feb. 11. Those interested in paddleball should contact the intramural office before Feb. 18, and boxing entries should be in by Feb. 27.

Golf, tennis, handball, volleyball, cross country run, softball, decathlon (3/4), slow-pitch softball and track and field entries will open next Thursday.

For further information contact the Intramural Office at Ext. 3113 or room 1, IM Bldg.

MANTLE, MARIS SIGN
NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle has agreed to terms with the New York Yankees for a $107,000 salary, tops in baseball, the New York Post reported Wednesday. The report said the Yankees also have reached an agreement with Roger Maris at $70,000.

Harlem Stars Will Battle All-Stars Here Tonight

Boid Buie, former Globetrotter, brings his Harlem Stars here tonight to meet the West Texas All-Stars at Municipal Coliseum.

The action starts at 8 p.m. The contest is co-sponsored by Tech's Circle K and the Lubbock Kiwanis Club.

The All-Stars are a group of former collegians including Carroll Stephens, Bill Redden, Orin Carney, Joe Ince and August Luedeker.

Buie, who has only one arm, is one of the top basketball players in the country, but he has a good supporting cast headed by comic Loudmouth Billingsley and Curtis (Spider) Williams.

In a preliminary game at 7 p.m. the Texas Tech Picadors will take on the Levelland Independents. A halftime program will be performed ed by the Tex-Anns, girls' drill team from South Plains College. The South Plains band will also perform.

Tickets are on sale in the Tech Union lobby, the Sport Center, Holt's Sporting Goods, Evans Drug and Caviel's Pharmacy. Prices range from $1-$2, with children's tickets priced at fifty cents.

AF-TT To Meet

The starting time of the Air Force Academy-Texas Tech swimming match here Saturday has been changed to 4 p.m.

Coach Jim McNally made the change so as not to conflict with the Tech-Rice basketball game scheduled for 2 p.m.

The Raider swimmers broke even on their road trip last week and are now 3-4 for the season. Last week the Tech tankers downed Arlington State 61-33 and Oklahoma State 57-36 but lost to Southern Methodist 59-35 and to Kansas 61-34.

Against Kansas, Jessie Marsh sparked the losing effort by winning the one-meter diving competition. The victory was the fourth straight for the Red Raider swimmer in the four-stop road trip.
