

Tech Foundation Board Hears Dr. Goodwin; President-Elect

By JIM JONES
Staff Writer

Directors To Meet

Texas Tech's Board of Directors will meet at 9:30 a.m. today to study a "routine" list of proposals.

Primary matters on the agenda will be a report from the Board's Academic Programs Committee concerning requests for new degree programs and new departments.

Also, the Campus and Building Committee will report on various building projects now under consideration.

Last night, Board members hosted their annual Board Dinner in the Tech Union Ballroom. More than 400 guests and officials of the school were present to hear Dr. D. M. Wiggins, a former Tech president and now a member of the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Dr. Wiggins discussed the organization of the Coordinating Board and some of the problems it will face in maintaining high degrees of excellence in state education.

Also introduced was Dr. Grover Murray, Tech's next president, who received a standing ovation from those present.

Mr., Miss Tech Election Set

The Student Council said Tuesday the voting for Mr. and Miss Texas Tech will be Wednesday.

Nominees for Mr. Texas Tech are Scott Allen, Roland Anderson, Chris Hickey, Dub Malaise, Barry McNeil, Dick Ostott, Norman Reuther, Barry Tull, Russ Wilkinson, Steve Wolfe, and Neal Young.

Nominees for Miss Texas Tech are Joy Cox, Sara Cox, Connie Curry, Marge Eubanks, Jan Fauske, Rita Reynolds, Karen Schroeder, Susan Waits, and Sue Walker.

Dr. Murray said that the efforts of each individual connected with Tech will play a major role in working toward a greater university. He said the challenges and opportunities at Tech are virtually unlimited and with every effort, "Texas Tech can properly move into its place in the region and the nation."

Dr. Goodwin said the growth of Tech could be compared to the proverb, "Observe the turtle, he only makes progress when he sticks his neck out." It is time for us to stick our necks out."

Parsley brought members up to date on Foundation activities and called on them to increase their efforts on behalf of Texas Tech's future growth.

Board officers announced the

'Red Day' Set For Tuesday

Texas Tech's spirit organization, the Saddle Tramps, has scheduled an "All I See Is Red Day" for Tuesday.

Texas Tech meets Texas A&M in basketball Tuesday night, and the Tramps are asking all Tech students and fans to "wear as much red as possible."

Taber Bearden, senior from Baird, is in charge of the annual project. He said the Coliseum will be decorated and signs posted at campus entrances.

"We are hoping all Tech students and fans will cooperate in this effort," Bearden said. "We want the Raiders to know the fans are still behind them."

reappointment of six directors and the appointment of several new members. Reappointed for six year terms were Harold Hinn, Dr. Dysart E. Holcomb, Retha R. Martin, O. B. Ratliff, Dr. W. L. Stangel and Dr. D. M. Wiggins.

Appointed to six year terms were R. H. Brummal, Leon Ince, Mrs. Helen D. Jones, W. B. Rushing, Fritz Thompson, Charles Verner, Jim Ed Waller and E. W. Williams, Jr.

New board chairman is J. F. Maddox of Hobbs, N.M. Joe H. Bryant is vice chairman and W. D. Hord is board secretary. Members of the Executive Committee are Maddox, Bryant, Hinn, Hord and Loyd Lanotte.

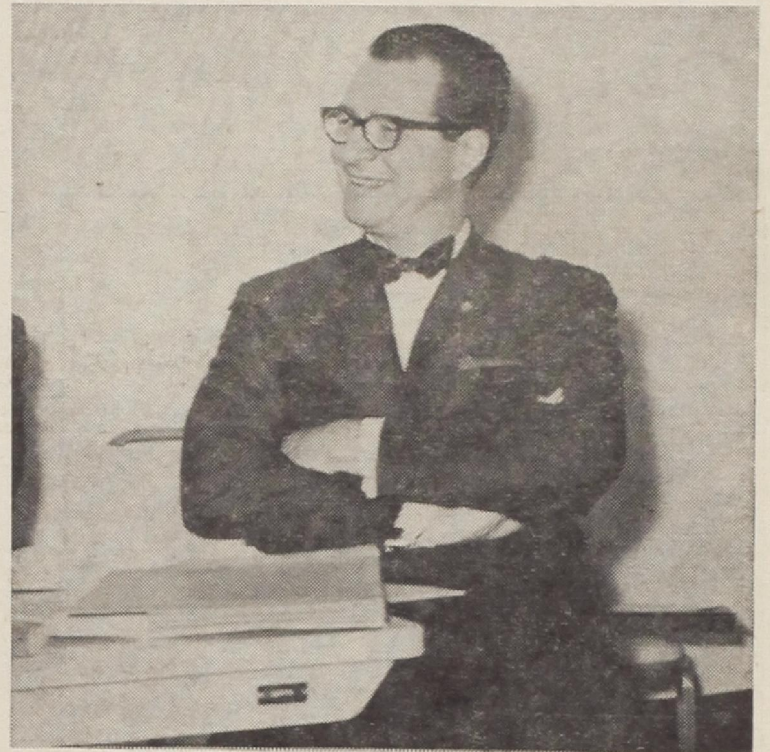

The Tech Foundation is responsible for accepting and distributing all monetary gifts to the college.

Frosh Form Committee

A special committee of the Freshman Council is beginning an investigation of freshman orientation and registration.

The committee will conduct a poll of the freshman students to get their views and ideas concerning their recent registration and orientation. Recommendations will then be made to the newly formed Student-Faculty Committee.

Members of the freshman committee are: Chairman and President Pro-tem Mike Riddle, Keeton Zacharay, Pete Kyle, Dick Bowen, and Rita Williams.

Dr. Murray Speaks For Name Change Declines To Mention Any Specific Names

By DAVID SNYDER
Assistant Managing Editor

Dr. Grover E. Murray, recently appointed eighth president of Texas Technological College, said Friday he believes a name change is "warranted and justified," but declined to mention any specific names.

"Texas Tech is already a university in fact if not in name," he said, "and change from college to university recognition would simply be a recognition of this. If it is justified, time will take care of a name-change to the best interests of all."

He said he expected to be involved in the issue, and "hoped to be consulted" about it.

The new president described education as a combination of the search, development and impartation of knowledge. For this reason, he said he would try to increase research work done by both students and faculty in all fields of education.

A geology researcher himself, Dr. Murray said he planned to continue his personal research work in north-eastern Mexico.

In regard to a Faculty Senate, Dr. Murray said faculty members should be allowed to participate in decisions of the college.

"However, the student body is as much a part of a university as the faculty," he said, "and they should also be allowed to participate."

He said Tech's position on the blacklist of the American Association of University Professors would solve itself.

The most pressing problem Texas Tech faces, he said, is a broad one similar to that of all universities in the United States.

"We must acquire ways and means of imparting an education which will help students cope with this complex world," Dr. Murray said.

"I am pleased and flattered to be chosen to serve Texas Tech as its president. I pledge to devote all my energies to fulfilling the destiny of excellence that exists," he said earlier in the week.

"Maintaining continued excellence in higher education is a challenge no one can honestly turn down. I look forward so very much to successfully meeting this challenge at Texas Tech in the years ahead."

Dr. Murray Monday was named to succeed Dr. R. C. Goodwin as president of the college. He will assume his new position Sept. 1.

Dr. Murray is at Tech this weekend to confer with college officials and to attend the Board of Directors meeting scheduled today.

He is presently vice president for academic affairs of the Louisiana State University System.

"GRUBBY" STUNT—Residents of Men's Dorm 10 toured the campus Friday in this condition to advertise the first residence hall-sponsored dance in Tech's history. The "Grubby Valentine Dance," billed as an "extremely informal affair" is scheduled for 8 p.m. tonight in Municipal Coliseum.

81 Rooms Available

Eighty-one rooms are now available in the ten women's and nine men's residence halls. Thirty-one spaces are vacant in the men's dorms and 50 in the women's dorms.

From one to five are available in each of the dorms enabling students wishing rooms to choose the dorm they desire.

Students wishing to get a vacant room should report to the Room Reservations Office between 8 a.m. and noon and 1 and 5 p.m. as soon as possible. Students who apply first will secure the rooms.

Blake Heads World Council

GENEVA (AP) — The World Council of Churches elected Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S. as its head Friday. He immediately called for increased efforts toward the unity of Christendom.

Proposed Constitution Revisions

The following articles are proposed Student Association constitutional amendments which the TOREADOR prints below as a service to Texas Tech students before the upcoming election Wednesday:

Article II, Section 3

"No Senator shall be seated or allowed to continue in his seat unless he is a registered member of the school his seat purports to represent. A candidate for senator need not be a registered member of the school he proposes to represent at the time of the election."

Part 2

"Senators shall be elected by plurality vote of students voting for each of the positions in question."

Part 3

"The executive officers of the Student Senate shall be elected by majority vote of the students voting in that election."

Article II, Section 4

Part 4

"Vacancies shall be filled in a manner prescribed by the Elections Committee and approved by the Student Senate."

Ex-Klansman Relates Assassination Plot

WASHINGTON (AP)—A youthful ex-Klansman from Ohio on Friday described a fantastic series of plots to assassinate President Johnson and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., blow up the White House and start a civil war.

Daniel N. Wagner, 19, well-dressed and well-spoken, told the House Committee on Un-American Activities that he joined the Ku Klux Klan in 1965 because he wanted to do "something drastic" for the white race.

But at the end of his testimony, Wagner said: "I pray the Klan is banned."

Wagner told of driving to Georgia with another Klansman to get a load of dynamite. He identified photographs of the men he said furnished the dynamite and committee investigator Philip Manuel said two of them were tried for the murder of Lemuel Penn, a Negro Army Reserve from Washington who was shot to death on a Georgia road in 1964. The two were acquitted.

While he was there, Wagner said in an FBI interview read into the record, the men laughed about a card that had just arrived saying, "Happy anniversary for a murder."

Manuel said the card came one year to the day after Penn was murdered on July 11, 1964. Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, commented, "a strange coincidence."

Asked the purpose of the dynamite, Wagner said, "That dynamite was supposed to come into Ohio along with hand grenades and weapons. It was supposed to be used as the starting element of a civil war in this country."

But the most fanciful disclosures—which often caused a ripple of laughter in the hearing room—came in a letter or statement Wagner wrote at the request of a Klan leader.

Wagner wrote of coming to Ohio "very much interested in reaching for an organization for the white race." He said he finally located Eloise Witte of Cincinnati, who described herself as "grand empress" of the Ohio Klan.

After a series of meetings with Mrs. Witte, he bought a pistol and rifle from another Klansman, he said, and Mrs. Witte said he could "practice on Negroes as a sniper to prove yourself and help the white race."

"I felt that was stupid," the Wagner statement continued, "Since the Negro birth rate was much higher than I could snipe." Mrs. Witte was called at the start of the afternoon session but she did not respond. She was reported visiting a doctor.

Wagner said that at one meeting in Mrs. Witte's house she discussed assassinating President Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

"I thought blowing up the White House would be appropriate, and she agreed," Wagner said. But he said nothing came of it and he figured it was just talk.

He said she told him the Klan had hired a gunman for $25,000 to assassinate Dr. King, the civil rights leader, but the gunman "had feathers on his legs"—evidently meaning he was chicken—and could not accomplish it for less money.

Wagner said Mrs. White told him King should be slain in June 1965, when he delivered a commencement address at Antioch College.

Wagner said others were supposed to "drive up to the speaker's stand and blast the crowd. I was to shoot King and make sure he was dead."

"Mrs. Witte said it would be a great achievement for the white race," Wagner added, but later she told him the project was canceled because a Klan rally was being held at the same time.

VOTES PERMITTED

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Persons with or without poll tax receipts will be permitted to vote in a $7.3 million school bond issue election Tuesday.

But the Corpus Christi Caller and Times said validity of the bonds might be jeopardized were they approved by an overwhelming vote by the non-poll tax holders.

The Corpus Christi School District made the voting eligibility decision after a federal court ruled Wednesday that a poll tax as a voting requirement was unconstitutional.

VALENTINE DANCE

A Valentine Dance for "those who dare to be close" will be held Saturday from 8:30-12 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. Mark Anthony's Orchestra will play, and there is no admission charge.

Seniors Can Join Army OCS Today

Today is the last opportunity for senior to get into the Army Officer Candidate School according to Col. B. W. Paden, professor of military science.

The orientation session on the OCS plan will be from 11 a.m. to 12 noon in room 22, Social Science Bldg.

"The college graduate OCS plan will be an advantage for students graduating during the current academic year who have not been able to participate in the Army ROTC program but still desire an Army commission," Col. Paden said.

One advantage of the plan is that the time spent in OCS training will count on the two-year enlistment, if for any reason the candidate fails the course.

When the course is completed, the graduate enters the Army as a second lieutenant.

Maj. Darrell B. Kampschorr, an OCS graduate and a member of the Tech Army ROTC staff, will explain the new program and will answer any questions at today's meeting.

FRESHMAN COUNCIL

The Freshman Council will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Union Mesa Room.

CHANNING CLUB

Channing Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Union Snack Bar.

Students Plan Pro-War Rally In Georgia

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Thousands are expected to attend a student rally here Saturday in support of the United States' commitment in Viet Nam while civil rights groups and so-called peace groups plan antiwar demonstrations elsewhere in the country.

"Affirmation in Viet Nam," a project which hopes to rally 50,000 persons at the Atlanta Stadium, climaxes the efforts of thousands of Georgia college students to "do something to show the world how most Americans feel."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk will be given the signatures of more than 200,000 Georgians supporting the war effort. Besides Rusk, speakers will include retired Army Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Nguyen Du Lien, ambassador-observer at the United Nations from South Viet Nam.

A group called the "Southern Coordinating Committee to End the War in Viet Nam" has said the group will picket the rally as part of a nationwide demonstration against the U.S. war effort.

Dwain Wilder of Atlanta, coordinator of the antiwar committee, said demonstrations against the Viet Nam commitment will be held in New Orleans, La.; Jackson and Tugaloo, Miss.; Nashville, Tenn.; Little Rock, Ark.; Richmond, Va.; Boston; New York; Philadelphia and Pittsburgh; Chicago; Miami; Los Angeles and Berkeley, Calif., and Houston, Tex.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

The International Club will meet Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Union Blue Room. Slides and a talk on the Holy Land will be presented.

Schulz Attends Theater Meet Goldberg Vows U.N. Help In Viet Nam Peace Efforts

Ronald Schulz, associate professor of Speech and director of the University Theater, will attend the annual meeting of the Texas Educational Theater Association at Arlington State College today.

Dr. Jack Mirrson, Theatre Specialist of the Arts and Humanities Project of the United States Office of Education, Washington, D. C., will be a featured speaker.

He will explain the availability of federal funds for educational theater projects.

The Texas Educational Theater Association was founded in 1951 to promote the development of high quality theatre programs in Texas colleges and universities.

The Department of Speech at Tech is one of 14 senior colleges and universities in Texas that have been admitted to organizational membership in the association. Membership is contingent upon meeting minimum criteria of the association with respect to theatre curriculum, faculty, production program, library, and physical facilities.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg speeded up the U.S. peace offensive Friday, vowing that the United Nations will play a consecutive role in trying to bring about a peaceful solution in Viet Nam.

No Agreement

But there still was no agreement among members of the 15-nation U.N. Security Council on how it might step into the situation, and Goldberg did not predict any formal session of the council right away.

The chief U.S. delegate went into action after his conference in Washington on Thursday with President Johnson on the decisions taken at Honolulu in the talks there with the leaders of South Viet Nam.

Goldberg consulted with some members of the council during the morning, held a news conference, then gave Secretary-General U Thant a review of his meeting with Johnson.

U.S. Goal

"The President asked me in this review to reaffirm that the goal of the United States in Viet Nam is an honorable and just peace—peace at the earliest possible time," Goldberg told reporters.

He declined to predict the outcome of the U.N. consultations or what action the Security Council might take.

Goldberg Warns

He said this could be a resolution, a statement summing up the opinion of the various council members "or some other action." He cautioned against ruling out prospects of a formal council debate at a future time.

He said he wanted to stress that the U.S. action in bringing the issue before the council already has had a good effect in that many nations now are involved in the problem and that is all to the good.

College graduates, new to Ford Motor Company, often comment on the comparative youth of many of our top executives. The example of these men in key positions is evidence that being young is no handicap at Ford to those who possess ability and ambition. In fact, new employees can expect challenging assignments while still participating in our College Graduate Program. This means an opportunity to demonstrate special skills and initiative while still learning the practical, day-to-day aspects of the business. Consider the experience of Jim Weston, who has been with Ford Motor Company for three years.

Jim came to Ford in February, 1963. His first assignment was in marketing analysis where his principal job was evaluating present and potential dealer locations. For a time, he also gained experience in the actual purchasing of dealer locations. Later, an assignment forecasting sales and market potential with Ford Division's Truck Sales Programming Department gave him the background he needed to qualify for his present position. His job today? Only three years out of college, Jim is now a senior financial analyst in Ford Division's Business Management Department.

Jim Weston's experience is not unusual. At Ford Motor Company, your twenties can be challenging and rewarding years. Like to learn more about it? Talk to our representative when he visits your campus.

The Evaluation Plan...

TECH'S STUDENT SENATE has come up with another idea which could be of great value to Techsans—the teacher evaluation plan.

Certainly this plan is not unique since many other universities have used it and used it successfully.

The evaluation plan as was presented at Thursday's Senate meeting calls for a campus-wide evaluation of all teachers and courses at the end of the semester. After processing the opinions, the Senate or an off-campus group would publish the findings and make them available to all interested students.

We commend the Senate first for the investigative and thorough job they have done in forming this plan, and second for postponing further action until student reactions could be obtained.

We hope students will begin thinking seriously about the evaluation proposal and let their reactions be known to the Senate, because without student help and assistance this plan will not succeed.

It can be of great benefit to both students and instructors. Students can get a better idea of which courses and sections to take by reading the opinions and evaluations of students who have already taken the course or had the instructor.

Teachers themselves can benefit from the program, by using student evaluations as constructive criticisms in improving their lecture methods.

The teacher evaluation plan could improve the quality of learning at Texas Tech if students and instructors use it wisely.

An Active Dorm...

NO OTHER DORMITORY at Texas Tech in the last few years has been near as active as Men's No. 10.

It seems as if the male residents there are aware that a dormitory can be more than just a place to sleep and eat (?). They are becoming a close-knit organization that is taking an active interest in the world around them.

Last year, they began to show their spirit by sending Christmas cards to every coed living on campus.

And just this last Christmas, they threw their support behind an even more worthy project—they originated and spearheaded the campaign to send Christmas greetings to American troops in Viet Nam.

Now, they are the first campus dormitory here—and probably the first such "Independent" organization—to sponsor an all-school dance: the Grubby Valentine Dance.

The event is scheduled to come off at the Municipal Coliseum tonight, and when it does, other dormitories should rightfully be envious of No. 10 and their work.

The residents of No. 10 had a lot of problems to overcome to get tonight's shindig on the road, but they never faltered or gave up because this was something that no dormitory had ever tried before.

We wish other dormitories would realize the part they could play on the campus if they would use their potential.

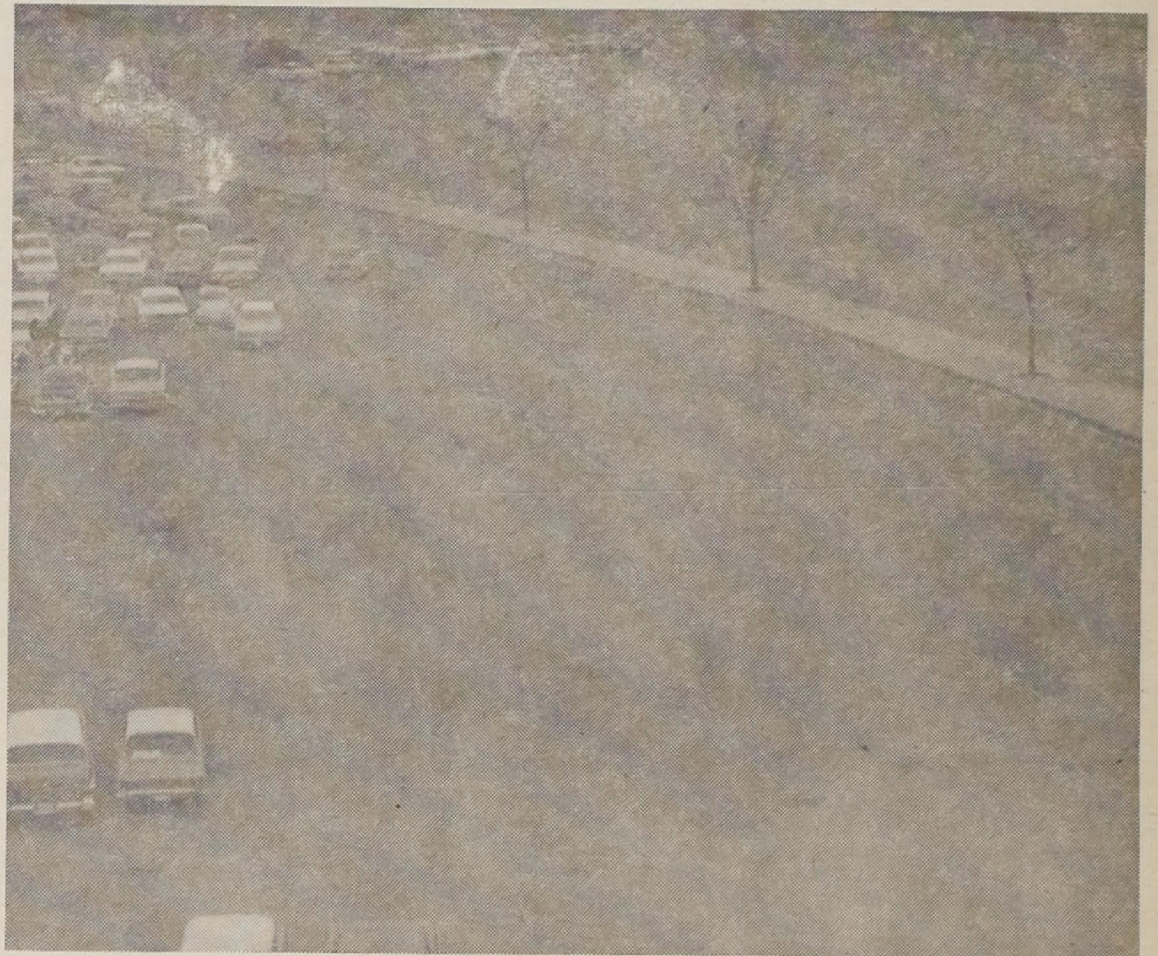

To No. 10, we offer a hearty "well done," and keep up the good work.

Letters To The Editor

All commentary letters for publication should be addressed to "Editor, The Daily Toreador, Campus."

Letters on any topic are welcomed and encouraged, but will be rejected for publication if they are libelous or too long for practical use. All letters will be edited for spelling, grammar and minor mistakes.

Letters mailed through the intra-campus mailing service require no postage.

Our View On:

University Happenings

Postal authorities are investigating the operation of a chain letter scheme at nearby West Texas State University in Canyon.

According to The Prairie, the letter apparently began circulation on campus after the Christmas vacation. It "works" when a student buys one copy of the letter for $10, adds his name to the bottom of the list, then sells two copies of it for $10 each.

By geometric increase, one can supposedly hope to make $640 when his name finally travels from seventh to first place on all of the letters with his name on them.

The presence of the letter was made public when the dean of men at Southwestern Oklahoma State College in Weatherford complained that several copies had been sent through the mails to his school.

This brought in the authorities, since such letters are illegal because they depend upon the U.S. mail to perpetuate them.

The only immediate action taken was the expulsion of two WT men in the incident at Southwestern.

Students at Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa, are now in the process of evaluating their courses and instructors.

However, for the first time, says the Iowa State Daily, the results will be tabulated by computers.

ISU students will do their rating concurrently with university elections on prepared survey sheets. The finished booklet, listing all the fall teachers and courses, will be ready for distribution by next fall.

A similar procedure may soon be started at Tech under the operation of the Student Senate, and if it is run correctly, it can mean a lot to help students, faculty and the degree of excellence of the entire school.

Coeds who have reached their 21st birthday may now live in off-campus apartments at Northeastern University in Boston.

According to the Northeastern News, administration authorities said the change in rules was a necessary one brought about by crowded conditions in the women's dorms.

An assistant dean of women said, "We cannot realistically or logically house four or five years of undergraduate students in the existing dormitories."

Any girl who is now 21 and is living in one of the university residences has the right to submit an application so that she can move out.

The restatement of policy will be advantageous, both to the students and to the administration. By allowing women students to move out when they reach 21, there will be more room in which to house other underclass women.

At the same time, upperclass women will receive their special privilege—off-campus apartments.

NU students—particularly coeds—have been working for such a change for a long time.

The same thing can also be said about Texas Tech. There are many instances here where upperclass women are having to live in dorms, while underclass women are being forced to live off-campus because of a lack of room.

And naturally, the upperclass women would like the situation reversed.

Although still in its adolescence, television is being used more and more as a college teaching medium.

For instance at the University of Texas junior students are able to observe actual classroom instruction in two Austin public schools through closed-circuit television.

This allows the students, who also sit in elementary and secondary classrooms for observation purposes as part of their teacher training, to view the teacher's methods and the children's reactions from a classroom on campus. A seminar follows the TV period allowing students to discuss what they have seen with the guidance of their professor.

The advantage of the closed-circuit TV, as was pointed out by the Daily Texan, is it enables all the students in a class to see the same thing at the same time and thus discuss it more meaningfully.

A petition seeking to impeach all class officers at North Texas State University ran into constitutional technicalities and was declared unconstitutional by the school's Supreme Court. The reason: the North Texas constitution holds that impeachment petitions should be only for individual officers.

However, the student who defended the petition at the hearing was not discouraged. His comment: "If they want 16 petitions, that's what they will get."

The petition sought the ouster of all class officers because they failed to comply with their duties as outlined in the constitution.

Performing, Writing

By ANN BREWER
Contributing Writer

Jerome Hines, husky six-foot star of The Metropolitan Opera, will be guest soloist in a return performance with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra at 8:15 p.m. Monday.

Hines, towers above other members of his profession in more ways than just his height, becoming a tradition maker in his own time.

Some years ago, he began work on a trilogy of operas based on the life of Christ, tentatively titled "I Am the Way," "I Am the Truth" and "I Am the Life." The work, when finished, will give the entire story of Christ from birth to Resurrection.

The Salvation Army Corps Easter celebration has adopted the already completed "I Am the Way" part of the trilogy, and each spring on or around Good Friday it is staged at the Corps' Temple on Fourteenth Street in New York City.

Hines tries to write as many new scenes each year as is possible during his busy schedule. Last Easter he added vignettes of Christ at dinner with the Pharisees and the Conversion of Mary Magdalene as well as a new chorus.

Music Sets

Two Recitals

Texas Tech's Music Department has scheduled two Student Recitals for presentation, one Sunday and one Monday.

Margaret Moss will be featured in an organ recital at 3 p.m. Sunday at the First Methodist Church. She is a student of Dr. Judson Maynard.

A second recital at 4:05 p.m. Monday in room 1 of the Music Bldg. includes on the program pianists Glenda Miller, Susan Birdsong, Sharon Morrison and Sylvia Curry, Steve Robbins and Billy Powell playing flute and clarinet, respectively and Devorah Russell, soprano.

Both programs are free of admission and open to all students.

In his appearance Monday, Hines will sing the aria and death scene from Moussorgosky's "Boris Godounov," which accredited to him another first when he sang it as the first American bass to do so with the Met. He recently made similar operatic history in Russia by singing the same role in that country.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the Jerome Hines appearance range in price from $1 to $4.50 and are on sale at the Symphony business office on Ave. Y. The office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily Monday through Friday. For information, call PO2-4707.

The program will be in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Have you ever attended a Noon Forum?

Every other Wednesday 40 to 50 people gather to discuss current issues or ideas under the leadership of a Tech professor. The hour for the Forum is divided into lunch, lecture, and discussion. It is not necessary to eat lunch in order to attend.

By 1:00 p.m., most of the discussion is over and students leave for classes or linger for further discussion. Topics are designed to appeal to a wide range of interests.

This semester the noon forums include the following:

- Feb. 16 Dr. David Vigness, "Revolution and Change in Latin America"
- Feb. 25 Dr. Metin Tamkoc, "The Role of the U.N. in International Civil Wars"
- Mar. 2 Mr. Richard Furlow, "Personality in Anthropology"
- Mar. 16 Dr. Van Mitchell Smith, "Contemporary Africa"
- Mar. 30 Mr. Frank Simpson, "Another Tired American"

April 20 Dr. Kenneth Davis, "Satire: The Voice of Criticism"

May 4 Rev. Ralph Macy, "Changing Patterns in Christianity"

on alternating Wednesdays with the Noon Forums. They include:

Feb. 23 Ann Brewer, "Playwrights of the Theatre of the Absurd"

Mar. 9 Penny Ann May, "On Saul Bel-low"

Mar. 23 Jackie Pardus, "Modern American Theatre"

April 27 Charles Watkins, "J.B., Ahab, and the Book of Job"

In conjunction with the forum tradition, this year the Honor's Council and the Ideas and Issues Committee are sponsoring Sandwich Seminars. These seminars are given by senior students in a field they have researched. They follow the same pattern of lunch, lecture, and discussion.

ROOMMATES: THEIR CAUSE AND CURE

You'd think that with all the progress we have made in the education game, somebody would have found a cure for roommates by now. But no. Roommates remain as big a problem today as they were when Ethan Mather founded the first American college.

(Contrary to popular belief, Harvard was not the first. Mr. Mather started his institution some 100 years earlier. And quite an institution it was, let me tell you! Mr. Mather built schools of liberal arts, fine arts, dentistry and tanning. He built a lacrosse stadium that seated 200,000. Everywhere on campus was emblazoned the stirring Latin motto CAVE MUSSI—"Watch out for moose." The student union contained a bowling alley, a weighing machine, and a sixteen-chair barber shop.)

(It was this last feature—the barber shop—that, alas, brought Mr. Mather's college to an early end. The student body, being drawn chiefly from the nearby countryside, was composed almost entirely of Pequot and Iroquois Indians who, alas, had no need of a barber shop. They braided the hair on top of their heads, and as for the hair on their faces, they had none. The barber, Tremblatt Follicle by name, grew so depressed staring day after day at 16 empty chairs that one day his mind gave way. Seizing his vibrator, he ran outside and shook the entire campus till it crumbled to dust. This later became known as Pickett's Charge.)

But I digress. We were exploring ways for you and your roommate to stop hating each other. This is admittedly difficult but not impossible if you will both bend a bit, give a little.

I remember, for example, my own college days (Berlitz '08). My roommate was, I think you will allow, even less agreeable than most. He was a Tibetan named Ringading whose native customs, while indisputably colorful, were not entirely endearing. Mark you, I didn't mind so much the gong he struck on the hour or the string of firecrackers he set off on the half hour. I didn't even mind that he singed chicken feathers every dusk and daybreak. What I did mind was that he singed them in my hat.

To be fair, he was not totally taken with some of my habits either—especially my hobby of collecting water. I had no jars at the time, so I just had to stack the water any-old-where.

Well, sir, things grew steadily cooler between Ringading and me, and they might actually have gotten ugly had we not each happened to receive a package from home one day. Ringading opened his package, paused, smiled shyly at me, and offered me a gift.

"Thank you," I said. "What is it?"

"Yak butter," he said. "You put it in your hair. In Tibetan we call it gree see kidstuff."

"Well now, that's mighty friendly," I said and offered him a gift from my package. "Now you must have one of mine."

"Thank you," he said. "What is this called?"

"Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades," I said.

"I will try one at once," he said. And did.

"Wowdow!" he cried. "Never have I had such a smooth, close, comfortable shave!"

"Ah, but the best is yet!" I cried. "For you will get many, many smooth, close, comfortable shaves from your Personna Blade—each one nearly as smooth, close, and comfortable as the first!"

"Wowdow!" he cried.

"Moreover," I cried, "Personna Blades come both in Double Edge style and Injector style!"

"Sort of makes a man feel humble," he said.

"Yes," I said.

We were both silent then, not trusting ourselves to speak. Silently we clasped hands, friends at last, and I am proud to say that Ringading and I remain friends to this day. We exchange cards each Christmas and firecrackers each Fourth of July.

Tech Goes For 'Rebound' Against Froggies Tonight

FORT WORTH—Texas Tech invades Daniel-Meyer Coliseum at 8 tonight to battle the TCU Horned Frogs in a Southwest Conference basketball duel that will be lacking in some of the "championship fever" which existed at the last meeting of the two teams.

When the same opposing forces met in Lubbock's Municipal Coliseum Feb. 1, both were knotted for second place among the conference components, with identical 3-1 records.

The Frogs and Raiders will enter tonight's battle with similar records but the digits are reversed. The Raiders are 4-3 after consecutive losses to Texas and the Texas Aggies.

TT Wins First Round

TCU's standard is a less impressive, 3-4. The Froggies are reeling from three straight losses beginning with the defeat at the hands of the Raiders. They also fell to the aggies and Texas.

The Raiders are still mathematically in the race but will need help from some of its conference cohorts to overtake the bulldozing Aggies who are atop the standings with a 7-0 record.

A combination of losses by the Farmers and victories by the Raiders would vault Coach Gene Gibson's pupils back into the title picture.

Aggies Host Texas

The Aggies are hosts to a revitalized group of Texas Longhorns today. Texas surprised the Raiders last Saturday in Lubbock and then followed up with a victory over TCU Tuesday.

After today's contests the Raiders return home to test the Aggies once again in Municipal Coliseum Tuesday.

Unless last minute changes are put into effect, Gibson will open combat with his usual combo of Bobby Measells and Dub Malaise at guards; Norman Reuther and Billy Tapp at forwards and Bob Glover at center.

Hefty Crew

In TCU, the Raiders will be facing the huskiest starting quintet in the league with the first five 220. Steve McCarty, a sophomore product from Pasadena, will open at center. He's the "big man" of the team at 245 and 6-5.

Rounding out the starting crew will be Wayne Kreis and Rich Sauer at guards and Gary Turner and Stan Farr at forwards.

Only other conference action today will be between Arkansas and Baylor in Waco.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE COLLEGE ORGANIZATION

The Christian Science College Organization will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Union Mesa Room. A lecture on "Mythology of Matter" will be given by Lenore Hanks of Portland, Ore., member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston, Mass.

Are You Friend Or Fan?

MIKE LUTZ

AT THE RISK OF being called idealistic or shouting from a soap box, it appears necessary to recall the popular subject of Tech's fan support at basketball games. And, contrary to the vogue, we don't mean over exuberance, but a lack of it.

It has been called to our attention that following the Raiders' third conference loss to the Aggies Tuesday night there were rumblings of disaffection among some of the Raider supporters who only a week before had been accused of excessively backing their team.

Now that the Raiders are all but eliminated from the run for the championship, some of the "loyal" Tech fans appear ready to join the cup throwers and ice throwers to perform an even further detriment both to the college (university if you wish) and team.

The mutterings say the Raiders "are all washed up" and that they just "don't have what it takes to win." We think the cup and ice throwers are a minority group and certainly hope the "fair-weather" fans are also a small faction.

PERHAPS A TEAM that was defeated in an important game because of lack of hustle deserves to be criticized and even shunned. But for those of us who listened to the Tech-Aggie game by radio, it was apparent without even being at court-side that the Raiders were playing an "inspired" contest.

It Was 'Inspired'

And when the final buzzer sounded, the Raiders hung their heads not because they hadn't given their best, but only because they had been defeated.

To the average fan, "It's not how you play the game that counts it's whether or not you win." Everybody wants to win. It's human nature. It's also human nature for even the most rabid group of supporters to sluff off when their teams starts losing.

Ask J T King. A large segment of West Texas had been cussing him for five years until last season he came up with a winner, so right now he has a new five-year contract and folks saying, "Jake, I knew you could do it all along."

But just let the Raider gridders come up with a off-season and he'll be right back down at the bottom of the popularity list along with Adolph Eichmann and Harold Bradley.

As one Tech professor put it, "There's a lot of difference between a 'fan' and a 'friend.' And there's merit to his observation. A fan is the human phenomenon described above. But a friend is someone who's gonna stick with you whether you win or lose.

This corner asked Tech students to deposit their cups and ice some place other than the basketball court a week ago. There were several who did not heed our admonition. We hope all will go along with us in being a friend to the Raiders now that they are at a low ebb in the season. And, although it's not really practical to predict the Raiders will rebound to win the championship, it is still mathematically possible and who's to say a little pat on the back wouldn't help point them in the right direction.

The Psychology Of It All

FROM THE WAY things have been going around this SWC basketball race, and even more so than in the past, it may become necessary to take the statements of basketball coaches "back to the Batcave" to be analyzed.

Mike Lutz' Column

Everyone's familiar with the statements of Texas' Harold Bradley about Tech crowds and the effect it had on the West Texans. Everyone figured he made the statements to start a controversy and get the Raiders' minds off the game with the Longhorns. But whatever his purpose, the psychology worked wonders.

Then last week the Ags' Head Basketball Coach Shelby Metcalf said his husky pupil Randy Matson would not play in the game against Tech because of a knee injury. We had a feeling all week that the big fella might be suited out.

Sure nuff, when they squared off, there was ole Randy among the starting five. 'Course he did have his leg bandaged and was given frequent rests.

But it wouldn't be the first time a coach played up the injury of a star player just to get a little "psychological edge" over the opposition.
